Such an application on the part of the sitting member will be looked upon with greater disfavor than one made by a contestant. Newland v. Graham, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 5; Giddings v. Clark, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 91. But where the contestant has, by his own misconduct, prevented the sitting member from taking the testimony, or having it at the hearing, the time will be extended. Bowen v. De Large, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 99.

The provision as to the taking of testimony applies only to the testimony of witnesses, and not to documentary evidence which proves itself; and such documents may be offered before the committee at the hearing. Vallandigham v. Campbell, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 223; Cannon v. Campbell, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 607.

1. Loyal v. Newton, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 520; Newland v. Graham, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 5.

2. New Jersey Case, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 20; Hood v. Potter, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 217.

3. Perry v. Montague, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 200.

4. McFarland v. Purviance, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 131; Knox v. Blair, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 524; Blair v. Barrett, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 308; Hogan v. Pile, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 281; Wigginton v. Pacheco, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 5.

5. Rev. Stat. U. S. sec. 108.

6. Rev. Stat. U. S. sec. 109.

7. Rev. Stat. U. S. sec. 110.

8. Rev. Stat. U. S. sec. 112.

Where the depositions are taken before an officer not authorized by this statute,

The testimony must be confined to the proof or disproof of the facts alleged or denied in the notice and answer.<sup>1</sup>

While the statutory rules are only directory so far as the House is concerned, there is no case where they have been departed from, although the committees have recommended it in some instances.<sup>2</sup>

16. Dismissal for Want of Prosecution. — In an early case where the contestant declined to continue the contest, it was unanimously agreed that the inquiry should not abate, and the case was re-committed to the committee for further consideration;<sup>3</sup> but in later cases the committee has reported in favor of dismissing the case for failure to take the evidence,<sup>4</sup> and for a failure to file briefs after the evidence was submitted.<sup>5</sup>

17. The House can declare the Seat Vacant. — The House of Representatives has the same power to declare the seat vacant, as a court has to declare an office vacant, in a quo warranto proceeding.<sup>6</sup> And this was done quite frequently in the early cases, but more recently the cases where this has been done have been where the majority candidate was ineligible to hold the seat.

Where the contestant is alleged to be ineligible, the practice is to investigate the matter during the contest, and, if his disability is established, to declare the seat vacant, if it is shown that he received a majority of the legal votes cast.<sup>7</sup>

XXI. Evidence. — (A) IN ELECTION CONTESTS. — 1. General Principles. — While, as a general thing, the rules of evidence which govern in the courts, in other cases, apply to contested election cases in the courts, and generally in the legislative bodies, yet in legislative contests it may be said that the rules are somewhat relaxed, in order to reach the truth where justice might be defeated without consent, they cannot be read if objected to. See Stolbrand v. Aiken, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 603, where the testimony was taken before a United States commissioner; and Stovell v. Cabell, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 674, where it was taken before a county clerk.

It is not material whether the officer authorized by this statute to take testimony has the power by the State law to administer oaths or not. Washburn v. Voorhees, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 56.

When all the officers authorized to take depositions refuse to act, the testimony may be taken before the two justices. Harrison v. Davis, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 341. And also where none of those officers reside in the district, although their duties may lie in the district. Todd v. Jayne, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 555.

1. Rev. Stat. U. S. 121; Stovell v. Cabell, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 668.

2. Brooks v. Davis, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 244; Carrigan v. Thayer, 2 Cong. El.

Cases, 376; Witherspoon v. Davidson, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 163; Jones v. Shelly, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 681, where the committee reported, in case of an election to fill a vacancy, that the time for taking evidence would not expire before the session would terminate, and that, from the evidence before them, there were ten thousand votes returned to the county boards of canvassers which were counted out upon frivolous pretexts, and recommended that a special committee be appointed to go to the State, and take the evidence; but the House did not act upon the report.

3. Kelly v. Harris, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 260.

4. Smith v. Robertson, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 284.

5. Herbert v. Acklin, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 345.

6. Newland v. Graham, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 5; Archer v. Allen, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 169.

7. Cannon v. Campbell, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 607.

if the strict legal rules as to the introduction of evidence were followed.<sup>1</sup>

In England the committees were not bound by the common-law rules of evidence as such, but in general they adopted them because they were based upon principles which are applicable to an inquiry into the truth of any ordinary fact; but in cases of necessity the committees allowed greater latitude than courts of law;<sup>2</sup> and an examination of the Congressional cases will show that, in many instances, evidence is admitted, and rules are laid down, as to the burden of proof, which are not warranted by the rules adopted by the courts; and even in the courts, in many instances, a greater latitude is allowed than would be allowed in civil proceedings between private persons.

2. Who may and must testify.—The general rules of evidence as to the competency of witnesses, and the privileges of exemption from testifying, prevail in election cases as in suits between private parties.<sup>3</sup>

3. Effect of Return or Certificate.—Where the returns of an election, or the certificate based upon them, are regular in form,

1. This doctrine was forcibly stated in the case of Stimpson v. Breed, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 260, where the committee say, "Legislative bodies, in the performance of such judicial functions as belong to them, are not bound by the rules of pleading and evidence, except as they see fit; and the general opinion that investigations of this character, in which not only the parties, but the constituency, and indeed the entire commonwealth, have an interest, should be conducted liberally, and by such rules as will on the one hand afford no protection to irregularity and fraud by which the will of the people may be defeated, nor on the other permit the acts of sworn officers to be set aside without good cause."

2. Bedford Case, F. & F. (Eng. El. Cases) 436.

3. Thus, attorneys or counsellors will not be permitted to testify before election committees to any matters disclosed to them in professional confidence. Dover Case, P. & K. (Eng. El. Cases) 417; Rye Case, 1 P. R. & D. (Eng. El. Cases) 116. But this does not apply where the party is not an attorney, although acting as such. Fountain v. Young, 6 Esp. 113; Aylesbury Case, 2 Peckw. (Eng. El. Cases) 263. Nor where the attorneys are not acting in their professional character. Evesham Case, F. & F. (Eng. El. Cases) 523; Middlesex Case, 2 Peckw. (Eng. El. Cases) 132.

A witness cannot be compelled to answer questions which would show his vote to be illegal. Second Ilchester Case, 2 Peckw. (Eng. El. Cases) 251; P. & K. 225. But this is a privilege of the witness, and not of the party, and may be waived by the witness. Hull Case, K. & O. (Eng. El. Cases) 427. A witness may testify that he was bribed.—Oxford Case, C. & R. (Eng. El. Cases) 199,—or that he had personated another. Southampton Case, P. & K. (Eng. El. Cases) 225; Worcester Case, K. & O. (Eng. El. Cases) 243.

A legal voter cannot be compelled to testify for whom he voted. People v. Pease, 27 N. Y. 81; Respublica v. Ray, 3 Yeates (Pa.), 66; Easton v. Scott, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 272; People v. Cicott, 16 Mich. 283; Palmer v. Howe, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 145. And this is true where the right to vote is merely doubtful. McDaniels Case, Brightly, El. Cases, 248; Locust Wood Election, 4 Penn. L. J. 349; People v. Cicott, 16 Mich. 283; State v. Hilman-tel, 23 Wis. 422.

This exemption is a personal privilege, and the testimony will be received if the voter sees fit to give it. Kneass Case, 2 Pars. 584; Brightly, El. Cases, 337; Washburn v. Voorhees, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 54; Reid v. Julian, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 832; People v. Thatcher, 55 N. Y. 523.

The proof must be confined to the allegations in the pleadings, as was said by Clerk, Law of El. 452: "Neither in the examination-in-chief, nor in the cross-examination, will parties be allowed to examine a witness to other matters than those which are material to the points in issue before the committee;" but where the testimony has been taken without objections, and is before the committee, it will be considered, and such effect given to it as the law requires. Stimpson v. Breed, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 257.

they are prima facie evidence of the facts stated upon the face of the returns;<sup>1</sup> and in a proceeding in mandamus to compel a certificate to be given to another,<sup>2</sup> or in a collateral proceeding, they are conclusive as to the title to the office.<sup>3</sup> But in a direct proceeding the court can go back of the returns, and see whether the returns are correct summaries of the returns from the inferior officers;<sup>4</sup> and there may be a full investigation of the election in quo warranto.<sup>5</sup> If the certificate shows on its face that the person declared elected did not receive the greatest number of votes, it destroys itself, and is not evidence for the person in whose favor it was given.<sup>6</sup>

In Congressional cases the same rule prevails, and duly certified copies of returns are primary legal evidence of the votes cast; and, unless they are assailed, they are conclusive.<sup>7</sup>

Where the returns are not made by the proper officers, or signed or sworn to, as required by law,<sup>8</sup> or when they do not state the required facts, they will be worthless.<sup>9</sup>

4. Informal Return corrected.—When a return is accompanied by other papers which the law requires to be kept, if the return is informal, it may be corrected by such papers, or by the record kept by the officers, where a record is required;<sup>10</sup> or it may be corrected at the hearing of the contest, by parol evidence; and when thus corrected they become prima facie evidence of the result of the election.<sup>11</sup>

5. Secondary Evidence of Contents of Returns.—Where the original returns and tally-sheets have been lost or destroyed, evidence of their contents, and of the number of votes cast, is admissible;<sup>12</sup> but where there is a charge that the returns used by the canvassers were forged, secondary evidence of the contents of the original will not be admitted until it is shown that the originals themselves were not in existence.<sup>13</sup>

And where it was charged that the original returns had been fraudulently changed, their destruction or loss must be proved to admit proof of their contents.<sup>14</sup>

6. What will not impeach Returns.—Where the document upon

1. Magee v. Supervisors, 10 Cal. 376; People v. Thatcher, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 274; Crouse v. State, 57 Md. 327; People v. Miller, 16 Mich. 56; Ewing v. Filley, 43 Pa. St. 384; Marshall v. Kerns, 2 Swan. (Tenn.) 68; Territory v. Pyle, 1 Oreg. 149; State v. Sherwood, 15 Minn. 221.

2. State v. Churchill, 15 Minn. 455.

3. Hadley v. City of Albany, 33 N. Y. 603; Moulton v. Reed, 54 Ala. 320; Smallwood v. Newbern, 90 N. Car. 36.

4. People v. Van Cleave, 1 Mich. 362.

5. State v. Passaic, 25 N. J. L. 354; People v. Vail, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 12; Echols v. State, 56 Ala. 131.

6. Harrt v. Harvey, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 55.

7. Spaulding v. Meade, 1 Cong. El.

Cases, 157; Gause v. Hodges, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 304; Bisbee v. Hull, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 315.

8. Chrisman v. Anderson, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 328; Barnes v. Adams, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 760; Niblack v. Walls, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 101; McKinney v. O'Connor, 26 Tex. 5.

9. Hall v. Manchester, 29 N. H. 295.

10. Opinion Justices, 70 Me. 560; Rounds v. Smart, 71 Me. 380.

11. Powers v. Reed, 19 Ohio St. 189; Howard v. Shields, 16 Ohio St. 184.

12. Warren v. McDonald, 32 La. Ann. 987.

13. Knight v. Ragan, 28 Ia. Ann. 289.

14. Fletcher v. Jeter, 32 La. Ann. 401.

which the canvassers are to act is regular, it will not be impeached because other documents required by law to be kept are informal or defective, if they do not contradict the statements in the returns;<sup>1</sup> nor will it be impeached by other unofficial documents, kept by officers of the election.<sup>2</sup>

7. How Returns may be impeached. — The doctrine that a return is to be treated as prima facie evidence of the result of an election, is undoubtedly based upon three presumptions: first, that sworn officers will act honestly and in good faith; second, that they will perform their duties with care; and third, that the votes received by them will be legal votes.

The first presumption will be rebutted by proof, showing that the duties were so carelessly performed that there were opportunities for others to commit frauds, and that they had been probably committed, and may be partially rebutted by proof of mistake; but if this mistake can be corrected, the presumption of correctness will be destroyed only so far as the mistake is shown, and the return will stand with the mistake corrected.<sup>3</sup>

Presumption as to the legality of the vote can be partially rebutted by showing that particular votes cast were illegal; but unless the number of cases proved is so great as to amount to proof of fraud, the accuracy of the general return will not be affected, but it will be corrected by deducting the illegal vote.

8. Effect of Recount of Ballot. — Where the ballots are preserved, so that their identity is assured, and they can be counted during a contest, they are undoubtedly better evidence of the vote cast than the returns, and should prevail where there is a difference.<sup>4</sup> If the ballots are counted without the order of the court, or without notice to the opposite party, the presumption that the official count was correct should not be considered as rebutted; and where the time for counting the votes is past, and the return has been made, if there is a recount made by the election officers, it should not prevail over the official count, unless there is other evidence that the mistake was in the first count;<sup>5</sup> but where the evidence is taken upon notice, and the recount is made in the presence of both parties, and with such care that no objection can be taken to it, it should prevail, if the ballots had been properly preserved.<sup>6</sup>

In Pennsylvania a recount of the ballots will not be allowed, unless some reason is alleged which renders it probable that there was either fraud or mistake in the official count;<sup>1</sup> and this view prevails in the legislature of Massachusetts.<sup>2</sup>

1. Howard v. Shields, 16 Ohio St. 184; 4. Newton v. Newell, 26 Minn. 529; Follett v. Delano, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 113. State v. Judge, 13 Ala. 805; Reynolds v. State, 61 Ind. 392; Dorey v. Linn, 31 Kan. 758; Owens v. State, 64 Tex. 500.

2. Echols v. State, 56 Ala. 131. 5. Ramsey v. Caloway, 15 La. Ann. 464; 3. Turner v. Bayliss, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 234; Wright v. Fisher, id. 518; Root v. Adams, id. 271; Colden v. Sharpe, id. 369; Williams v. Bowers, id. 263; Willoughby v. Smith, id. 365. Gooding v. Wilson, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 79. 6. Acklin v. Darrell, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 124.

Before a recount of the ballots should be allowed to rebut the presumption of the correctness of the official returns, it should be proved satisfactorily that the boxes had been kept so that there had been no opportunity for tampering with the ballots, and that those offered in evidence are the identical ones cast.<sup>3</sup>

But if it is shown that they have not been tampered with, their value as evidence is not destroyed by proof that they had been illegally opened, and counted by an official body.<sup>4</sup>

Where there is no statutory provision as to the preservation of the ballots, the party assailing the correctness of the return by a recount of the ballot should be required to show affirmatively that there had been no opportunity for tampering with them;<sup>5</sup> but where the statute provides that the ballots shall be kept in a certain way, and they are in the hands of the proper officer, it is presumed that he has done his duty; and the burden of proof is upon those assailing them, to show that they might have been tampered with.<sup>6</sup>

On the other hand, when it is made to appear that the statutory provisions had not been complied with, the burden of proof is upon the person who asks the recount, to show that they had not been tampered with;<sup>7</sup> but this question is a question of fact to be determined by the jury, or the court trying the issues.<sup>8</sup>

9. Returns impeached by Fraud.—The presumption of good faith on the part of the election officers may be rebutted; and when it is shown that they are parties to fraud, the value of the returns as evidence is destroyed; and the fact that a much larger number of votes are returned than are shown to have been cast by the poll-book, will be a circumstance tending to prove

1. Lelar Case, 2 Pars. (Pa.) 548; Kneass Case, 2 Pars. 599; Thompson v. Ewing, 1 Brews. (Pa.) 67 & 97.

2. Austin v. Sweet, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 189; Rice v. Welsh, id. 128; Taylor v. Carney, id. 228; State v. Green, id. 226; Harris v. Richardson, id. 372; Ames v. Beebe, id. 346; Clapp v. Sherman, id. 307; Morse v. Lonergan, id. 288; Haskell v. Closson, id. 233; Baker v. Hunt, id. 378.

3. Butler v. Lehman, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 353; Cook v. Cutts, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 252; Davis v. Murphy, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 172; Powell v. Holman (Ark.), 6 S. W. Rep. 505.

4. Dorey v. Linn, 31 Kan. 758.

5. Gooding v. Wilson, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 79.

6. People v. Holden, 28 Cal. 123.

7. People v. Cicott, 16 Mich. 283; Kin-gery v. Berry, 94 Ill. 515; Coglan v. Beard, 67 Cal. 303.

8. People v. Livingston, 59 N. Y. 279; reversing same case, 18 Hun, 59. But see People v. Borden, 45 Cal. 241, where the statutory provisions in regard to forwarding the ballots were not complied with, and the evidence tended to show that they had been tampered with; and the court held that even a board of canvassers might treat the ballots as worthless, and declare the result from the returns, and that the court would adopt the result.

Where the statute required the ballots to be kept for a certain length of time, and provided that a recount might be had upon application during that period, and that they should be destroyed upon its expiration, it was held that, if the time passed without a recount, the ballots became absolutely worthless, and had no legal existence, and a recount made thereafter was an absolute nullity. State v. Bate (Wis.), 36 N. W. Rep. 17.

Parol evidence is competent to show that ballots have been changed, although all persons who had charge of them have testified that they were not disturbed, and that the seals were not broken. Pedigo v. Grimes (Ind.), 13 N. E. Rep. 700.

fraud.<sup>1</sup> Where the number is large, and the fact is unexplained, it will be conclusive.<sup>2</sup>

It has been held that evidence that frauds were attempted, but the attempts were unsuccessful, is not competent.<sup>3</sup>

Testimony showing that the officers acted with a gross disregard of the statutory provisions in the reception of votes; that they were intoxicated, and permitted great irregularities, — is admissible; and the proof of such charges will have the same effect as the proof of fraud.<sup>4</sup>

Proof that a large number of votes were cast for a candidate, which were not returned, may be offered to show fraud; and if this fact is proved, and is unexplained, it will warrant the rejection of the returns.<sup>5</sup> And in such cases the testimony of the voters may be taken, for the twofold purpose of destroying the credibility of the returns, and for the purpose of having votes counted for the party for whom they were cast.<sup>6</sup>

10. Return made from Improper Data. — When a return is regular on its face, it may be impeached by showing that it is not made from the proper data.<sup>7</sup>

11. Reception of Illegal Votes. — The third presumption, which goes to make a return prima facie evidence of the result of an election, which is that the votes cast are legal, may be rebutted by showing such a total disregard of the statutory requirements in the reception of the votes as to warrant a conclusion of fraud, in which case the whole return will be rejected, or it may be partially rebutted by a scrutiny; and the votes of such individuals as are proved illegal may be rejected.

In this scrutiny, there are three things to be considered: first, what persons voted; second, is the vote legal; and third, for whom was the illegal vote cast.

1. Jackson v. Wayne, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 47; Lowe v. Wheeler, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 61.

2. Blair v. Barrett, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 308; Dodge v. Brooks, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 78.

In these cases, there was an unusual increase in the vote, with no perceptible increase in the population; and in the Senate and House of Representatives in Massachusetts, when there were one hundred and fifty-nine more votes returned than there were names on the list, it was held, that, where there was no corroborative evidence, the return would not be rejected for this reason. King v. Park, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 155; Ordway v. Woodbury, id. 163.

3. Ward v. Sykes, 61 Miss. 649.

It may be doubted whether this is correct where there are other suspicious circumstances, and where the frauds were attempted by the election officers themselves, as this attempted fraud will destroy the presumption of honest intentions on their part.

4. Myers v. Moffatt, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 564; Covode v. Foster, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 600; Knox v. Blair, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 521.

5. Reid v. Julian, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 832; Washburn v. Voorhees, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 54; Lowe v. Wheeler, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 61; Smith v. Shelly, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 18.

As was said by the committee in the case of Bisbee v. Finley, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 187, "Any considerable number of votes proven for a candidate, in excess of the number returned for him, has always been regarded as an evidence of fraud, and a legitimate method of impeaching the returns."

6. Reid v. Julian, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 822; Clausen v. Van Brunt, N. Y. Cont. El. Cases, 407.

7. Thus, it appears in one case, that, in making up the returns from one county, the canvassing officer had none of the precinct returns or other documents before him, as required by law, they having been

12. Proof of who voted. — When poll-books showing the names of the voters are required to be kept, they are unquestionably the best evidence as to what persons voted, if they come from the proper custodian, and are properly authenticated.<sup>1</sup> And in case of formal defects in authentication, parol evidence is admissible to identify them.<sup>2</sup>

If the poll-lists are in existence, other evidence is inadmissible to show who voted.<sup>3</sup> But where the law does not require the poll-books to be preserved as a record of the votes cast, it may be proved by other testimony.<sup>4</sup> And where the poll-books are lost, the voters may swear how they voted, and officers may testify to the number of votes cast for each person.<sup>5</sup> Poll-books may be rendered worthless as evidence by showing that the names of persons who had not voted were placed on the list, and that spurious ballots had been placed in the boxes.<sup>6</sup>

It has been held that circumstantial evidence may be sufficient to prove that certain persons voted.<sup>7</sup>

In many cases the rule that hearsay evidence is not admissible, has been departed from, where the question was, whether a certain person had voted, either in his own name or in that of another; and in many cases declarations of parties at or after the time of the election have been received.<sup>8</sup> stolen from his office before he had made the abstract; and his certificate was founded upon the affidavits of the judges, from part of the precincts in the county; and it was held, that, in the absence of proof of the vote of the county, the return would be rejected. Gause v. Hodges, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 291.

1. Newark Case, 1 Frs. (Eng. El. Cases) 277; 1 Peckw. (Eng. El. Cases) 489.

2. 2 Horsham, 1 P. R. & D. (Eng. El. Cases) 86; Orme on El. 475.

In England it is held, that, even if the statute as to the keeping the poll-books was wholly disregarded, they would not be rendered inadmissible by the neglect. Waterford Case, 2 P. R. & D. 86; Wolferstan, Law & Practice of El. Pet. 83; Rogers on El. 11th ed. 310.

In such a case, the parties would be placed in the same condition as if there was no statute for their preservation, and could give the ordinary proof of their authenticity. Tralee Case, F. & F. (Eng. El. Cases) 322; Cork Co. Case, K. & O. (Eng. El. Cases) 394; Kinsale Case, 1 P. R. & D. (Eng. El. Cases) 19; Langford Case, id. 140. And in People v. Pease, 27 N. Y. 45, it was held that a poll-list not signed, having no heading, and never filed in the clerk's office, might be admitted, to prove that a person had voted, upon proving its genuineness.

3. Olive v. O'Riley, Minor (Ala.), 410.

In this same State, where the name of a person who was indicted for illegal voting did not appear upon the poll-list, and it did not appear from the list that he had voted, either in his own name or in the name by which he had been indicted, or that there was a name on the list to represent the ballot alleged to have been cast by him, it was held that no other evidence could supply its place. Wilson v. State, 52 Ala. 299.

4. New Jersey Case, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 19; Vallandigham v. Campbell, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 323.

5. Dixon v. Orr (Ark.), 4 S. W. Rep. 774.

6. Russell v. State, 11 Kan. 308.

7. In Abbott v. Frost, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 594, it was held that the fact that men had been employed by the government in a navy-yard shortly before the election, and discharged shortly afterwards, was a circumstance to show a corrupt agreement on the part of the voters, to vote for the candidate of the party in power, and was sufficient proof that the number of voters so employed did afterward vote, and that the burden of proof was thereby cast upon such candidate to show that any of such voters did not cast their votes for him.

8. In the English Parliamentary Cases, the declarations of parties who were charged with illegal voting have been admitted. Southampton Case, P. & K. (Eng. El. Cases) 222; C. & R. 114. But

13. Presumption of the Legality of the Vote. — Where a vote has been received at an election by the officers who have complied with the forms of law in its reception, the law will presume that the vote is legal.<sup>1</sup> And this presumption is not rebutted by proof of suspicious circumstances;<sup>2</sup> but where such formalities have been disregarded, the authorities are so conflicting that no rule can be laid down; though it is probable that the weight of authority is in favor of the doctrine, that, where it is shown that the voter has not been required to comply with the law in proving his right to vote before the election officers, there is no presumption that his vote is legal.<sup>3</sup> in Canada it was held that the statement of persons that they had voted was not admissible. Lincoln El. Pet. 4 Ont. App. Cases, 206.

Declarations of parties made at the time of the election, after voting, have been received as a part of the res gesta, to prove fraud and combination. Patton v. Coates, 41 Ark. 111. The general principle is, that the declaration of a party after the election, that he had voted one or more times, or under various names, will not be received in a contested case. Gilleland v. Schuyler, 9 Kan. 569. And the same principle is adopted in Congressional cases. New Jersey Case, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 19; Cessna v. Myers, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 60.

1. Cirencester Case, 2 Fras. (Eng. El. Cases) 448; Orme on El. 405; Porterfield v. McCoy, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 261; Loyal v. Newton, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 520; New Jersey Case, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 19; Whittaker v. Cummings, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 360.

2. Proof of facts, which would have placed the burden of showing the legality of the vote upon the voter, if he had been challenged at the polls, will not be sufficient to require evidence to sustain the vote in the contest. Gooding v. Wilson, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 79.

Thus, in a civil case, involving the right to property, it was held that proof that a person was alien born, in the absence of proof to show his naturalization, will cause the presumption of the continuance of his alienage. Howenstein v. Lynham, 100 U. S. 483. And while this would undoubtedly justify the officers of election in refusing the vote, it has been held that it will not justify the rejection of his vote in a contest.

New Jersey Case, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 19; People v. Pease, 27 N. Y. 45; Beardstown v. Virginia, 76 Ill. 34. But these same cases hold that but slight additional proof of the alienage will be required, where there is no proof that he had been naturalized. And see Whittaker v. Cummings, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 360.

Proof that a person who lives in the precinct, and has the same name as one of the names on the poll-list, is a minor, is not sufficient to require proof of the legality of the vote, without further evidence that there is no such person in the precinct who was a legal voter. Letcher v. Moore, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 749.

3. There are three opinions upon this question. The Supreme Court of Illinois held, that when the statute required a person, whose name was not on the register, to prove his right to vote by his own affidavit, and that of another person, who was a voter in the district, and an unregistered person voted without challenge, and without the proof required by law, the presumption that his vote was legal would still prevail. Dale v. Irwin, 78 Ill. 170.

On the other hand, in Michigan and Wisconsin, and in the later cases in Pennsylvania, the rule seems to be, that when it is shown that a person voted, without complying with the legal requirements, a presumption is raised that the vote was illegal, which cannot be rebutted by proof that the party was in fact a legal voter. People v. Koppelcorn, 19 Mich. 342; State v. Hilmantel, 21 Wis. 566; McDonough Case, 105 Pa. St. 488; Gibbons v. Shepherd, 2 Brews. 129.

In the Kneass Case, 2 Pars. (Pa.) 553, and in the House of Representatives, the view prevailed, that the presumption of the legality of the vote is overcome by proof of the failure to comply with the law before voting, but that the vote may be counted upon proof of its legality. Myers v. Moffatt, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 564; Covode v. Foster, id. 600; Finley v. Bisbee, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 94.

Where, however, the votes have been refused because the requisite proof was not offered at the time the votes were tendered, they cannot be counted, by showing at the trial that the persons were legal voters. McLean v. Broadhead, 48 Cong. H. Rep. 2613.

14. Proof that Vote was cast by Non-resident. — When the names of voters appear on the poll-books, it is competent to show that no such persons lived in the precinct.<sup>1</sup>

15. Declarations of Voter as to Incapacity. — In England, the weight of authority has been in favor of receiving the declarations of voters against their right to vote, although the earlier cases were in conflict.<sup>2</sup>

In this country the Congressional cases are somewhat in conflict, although the weight of authorities seems to be in favor of admitting the declaration;<sup>3</sup> and in the courts the authorities are also in conflict.<sup>4</sup>

1. This may be shown by testimony of persons who are acquainted in the precinct; but where the district is large, the testimony of more than one witness should be required in order to reject the vote. Letcher v. Moore, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 749.

Testimony has been admitted, that a person had canvassed the district, and failed to find 109 names out of 389 on the poll-book, — Dodge v. Brooks, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 78, — and also to show that persons whose names are on the poll-book, had never voted in the precinct before, were strangers to the older residents of the district, and to persons who had acted as officers of election for many years; that they had no place of business there, and were not found by the census-takers a short time afterward; and the census reports of a city census taken a few days after the election, which were on file in the city archives, were held to be competent to prove that persons whose names were on the poll-lists, were not residents of the district. Blair v. Barrett, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 308.

Muster-rolls of companies made at or near the time of the election, were admitted to show whether persons who had voted were members of the company; but those made a long time before were rejected for that purpose, but were admitted to show the ages of the persons who had voted. Knox v. Blair, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 521.

The votes of persons were rejected, in one case, upon proof that there were no buildings upon the lots given on the register as their residence, or that the buildings were unoccupied, and also that the names were those of former residents of the precinct who had died or removed. LeMoynes v. Farwell, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 410.

2. In the Leominster Case, 2 Peckw. 395; Ipswich Case, K. & O. 387; and in a number of other cases cited in Rogers on Election Committees, 122, the declarations were received in cases of scrutiny.

In the Shaftesbury Case, 2 Doug. 308, and some of the earlier cases from the Parliamentary Journals, this kind of evidence was rejected; and in the Southamp- ton Case, P. & K. 223, where the declarations were made after the committee was balloted for, and in the Middlesex Case, 2 Peckw. (Eng. El. Cases) 141, where they were made some time after the election, they were rejected.

Evidence of the declarations of a person, that he was not the person whose name was on the register, have been received in cases of personation, — Southampton Case, P. & K. 225; Taunton Case, F. & F. 205, — as well as evidence of declarations of a person that he had no freehold, — Yorkshire Case, 2 Doug. 309 and 315, — and statements of voters, that they had been bribed, have also been admitted. Galloway Case, 14 Law Times, N. S. 810; Huddersfield Case, id. 346; Bridgenorth Case, 2 P. R. & D. 18; Chatham Case, id. 37; and in the Kidderminster Case, 1 P. R. & D. 266, the declarations of the wife of the voter, that her husband had received money for his vote, were received.

3. In the case of Letcher v. Moore, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 715, the committee unanimously resolved that all declarations or statements of voters after the election, relating to their right of suffrage, be rejected; but in Vallandigham v. Campbell, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 230, and in Blair v. Barrett, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 316, the doctrine of the English cases was upheld.

4. The courts of Wisconsin held, that, when a person who had voted refused to testify as to his qualification, his declaration that he was not naturalized should be admitted, — State v. Olin, 23 Wis. 309, — and this view was also taken in People v. Pease, 27 N. Y. 45. In Beardstown v. Virginia, 76 Ill. 81, the court permitted evidence to be given of the declarations of the voter, made at, or immediately after, the election, but rejected them when made some time afterward. In Griffin v. Wall, 32 Ala. 149, the courts refused to admit evidence of reputation, common report, or the declaration of the voter as to where he had lived, but admitted those made when starting upon a journey upon the question of intent. In Colorado the declarations of

16. Proof of how Voter voted.—Circumstantial evidence to prove how a person whose name is shown to be on the poll-book, voted, has been continually admitted in Congressional cases;<sup>1</sup> and the statements of the voter himself are competent to prove this fact, where the returns are impeached, or the poll-books and returns are lost.<sup>2</sup>

The authorities are not uniform as to whether declarations made after the election by the voters, as to how they had voted, can be admitted.<sup>3</sup> But where made at the time of the election, they have been admitted as a part of the res gesta.<sup>4</sup>

17. Poll-book contradicted by Parol.—The poll-book is not such a record as to import absolute verity, but it may be contradicted or corrected by parol evidence.<sup>5</sup>

the voter as to his qualifications were rejected. People v. Comrs. of Grand Co., 2 Pac. Rep. 912.

Where a person has offered evidence of this character himself, and it has been received, he cannot object to other statements of the same voter. Norwood v. Kenfield, 30 Cal. 393.

1. Thus, evidence of the general reputation of the politics of the voter, at the time of the election; evidence that one party insisted upon the voter's right to vote, while the other denied it; that he had received his tickets from persons of one party, and refused the tickets of the other; that he came to the polls in a carriage with party emblems on it; and that he was attended by the friends of one of the candidates,—has been admitted, and deemed to be sufficient to prove the character of the vote. New Jersey Case, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 19; Vallandigham v. Campbell, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 234; Cook v. Cutts, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 243; Delano v. Morgan, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 168; Wigginton v. Pacheco, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 10.

2. New Windsor Case, K. & O. (Eng. El. Cases) 173; Reid v. Julian, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 822; Dixon v. Orr (Ark.), 4 S. W. Rep. 774.

3. In Canada such statements were held not to be admissible,—Lincoln Election Petition, 4 Ont. App. Cases, 206,—but were received in Wisconsin, where persons refused to testify for whom they voted. State v. Olin, 26 Wis. 319.

In the earlier Congressional cases of Vallandigham v. Campbell, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 223; and New Jersey Case, id. 19; and Delano v. Morgan following them, the testimony was received; and in Cessna v. Myers, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 60, where the evidence was clear, and it was shown by other evidence that the voter had voted, the declarations were received, although the author of the report strongly assailed the principle involved in the admission of such evidence.

In Newland v. Graham, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 5; and in the later cases of Cook v. Cutts, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 251; Garrison v. Mayo, 48 Cong. H. R. 954; Wallace v. McKinley, 48 Cong. H. R. 1548, the committees have refused to receive such evidence, as they did also in the case of Dodge v. Brooks, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 92, where the declarations were made several months after the election.

4. Patton v. Coates, 41 Ark. 111. Statements made by a person that he was a Republican, and was inquiring for a Republican ticket at the election, were admitted to show how he had voted. Wigginton v. Pacheco, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 10.

Where the votes of a number of persons had been rejected by the judges of election, and they immediately made affidavits in which they swore they tendered the votes attached, and deposited the affidavits with the United States supervisor of election stationed at the polls, and declared they offered to vote, the affidavits were received, and the ballots counted, upon proof that the parties were legal voters, upon the ground that such acts and declarations were a part of the res gesta. Bell v. Snyder, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 247.

5. Thus, where a poll-book showed that a voter had voted for only one of two candidates for his party, the error was corrected by parol proof. Bedfordshire Case, 2 Lud. (Eng. El. Cases), 402, 407. And in the same case, evidence was received to show that a vote had been given for the opposite candidate, instead of the one for whom it had been recorded. Evidence is also permitted to show that the name of the voter had been assumed by one who had falsely personated him when he voted; and it is the unquestioned practice to allow parol evidence, for the purpose of showing fraud in the poll-book; and where the number of names placed on the poll-books, where the parties had not voted, is numerous, it raises a strong presumption of fraud

18. Ambiguous Ballots explainable.—The evidence of surrounding circumstances may be given, to explain ambiguities in the ballots;<sup>1</sup> but the weight of authority is in favor of the idea that the voter cannot be permitted to testify for whom he intended to vote.<sup>2</sup> Evidence may be received to show who were the candidates nominated by the different parties, and that only two persons were candidates for the office; and, where a ballot is printed, it may be shown how the mistake occurred; and any other fact or circumstance connected with the case, which will show for whom the ballot was intended, may be given.<sup>3</sup>

19. Various Presumptions.—The presumption that all men know the law, applies to election cases.<sup>4</sup> The presumption is in on the part of the election officers. Ward v. Sykes, 61 Miss. 649.

1. State v. Griffy, 5 Neb. 151; Meriam v. Batchelder, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 294.

2. Atty.-Gen'l v. Ely, 4 Wis. 429; People v. Saxton, 22 N. Y. 309. But in People v. Seaman, 5 Denio (N. Y.), 409; People v. Ferguson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 102, this was permitted; and also where the ambiguity was a patent one, testimony of this kind was received. McKinnon v. People, 110 Ill. 305.

3. Lee v. Rainey, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 589; Stroback v. Herbert, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 5; Wright v. Hooper, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 100. Evidence has been admitted, where there was an ambiguity in the name of the candidate, to show whether any other persons of the name resided in the district, and, if so, whether they were eligible, or had been named for the office. — State v. Yeates, 43 Conn. 573; Chapin v. Snow, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 96; McKennon v. People, 110 Ill. 305, — and also that a candidate generally signs his name by his initials, or was known by them. — People v. Ferguson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 102; McKenzie v. Braxton, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 19, — or that he was known by a title such as major. Wallace v. McKinley, 48 Cong. H. Rep. 1548.

Evidence that only two persons were candidates for a certain office, has been held sufficient to show that ballots, varying considerably from the correct name, were intended for one of the candidates. Clark v. Robinson, 88 Ill. 498. But in Minnesota a stricter rule prevails; and it was held that the vote might be counted where the name was abbreviated, only where evidence was introduced showing that the candidate was known by the abbreviation. Newton v. Newell, 26 Minn. 529. And the rule in Michigan will not permit the introduction of any evidence outside of the ballot. People v. Tisdale, 1 Doug. 65; People v. Higgins, 3 Mich. 233; People v. Cicott, 16 Mich. 283.

Where the ballot does not show what office the name is meant for, it has been held that it is not competent to show by the voter for which one it was intended. Wigginton v. Pacheco, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 5; Clark v. Robinson, 88 Ill. 498. But where the name of the office is correctly given, but it is ambiguous because there is another office to which the description is also applicable, the fact that the person voted for is a candidate for only one of the offices, or that the voters of the precinct had the right to vote for but one, may be shown to explain the ambiguity. Boynton v. Loring, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 346; Phelps v. Goldthwaite, 16 Wis. 146.

In one Congressional case, — Campbell v. Morey, 48 Cong. H. R. 1845, — the name of a candidate for sheriff was written under the printed name of contestant; but the ballot was counted for contestant, and not rejected as double.

This was contrary to the general line of decisions, and could only be upheld by proof of the fact that the candidate for sheriff named was intended to be placed under that office. Where a paster for the office above that of representative, wholly or partially obliterated the title of that office, it was held that it was not to be inferred that the voter did not intend to vote for representative, and that the vote should be counted for that office. Chappelle v. Prince (Mass. El. Cases), 396. But when the paster for the name of the candidate for senator was pasted over the name of the candidate for another office, leaving the name of the regular candidate for senator still on the ticket, it was held that the paster should have no effect upon that office. Clark v. Salmon, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 191.

When there are several persons of the same name in the district, all of whom are eligible to election to the office, and one of them is announced as a candidate, all ballots for that name will be presumed to be intended for the person who is announced as the candidate. Macomber v. Fish, L. & R. (Mass. El. Cases) 311.

4. Thus, it will be presumed that the favor of the legality of the election,<sup>1</sup> and of the regularity of the canvass.<sup>2</sup> The law presumes the sworn officers to perform their duty honestly and faithfully.<sup>3</sup>

Where a series of acts are required to be done by the officer, the fact that one was not done does not affect the presumption that the rest were done.<sup>4</sup>

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that the voters voting at an election are all the legal voters in the district, or that those who do not vote acquiesce the action of the majority of those who do vote.<sup>5</sup>

20. Proof of Mistake.—Ordinarily, the mistake of officers of election or of canvassers can be corrected, and proof is admissible to show such mistakes; but it seems that the record of a legislative body or a judicial record imports absolute verity, and that the court will not permit evidence of such a mistake to be given.<sup>6</sup>

21. When Court takes Judicial Notice of an Election.—The courts will take judicial notice of a public election when the time is fixed by law.<sup>7</sup> electors know their rights, and will not be presumed that they were prevented from voting by the fraud or misconduct of the managers of the election. People v. Brenham, 3 Cal. 477.

22. Best Evidence required.—The general rule that the best evidence that can be obtained should be required, is applicable to election cases,<sup>8</sup> though perhaps it is not so strongly insisted upon by election committees as by the courts.

1. Trustees of Common Schools v. Garvey, 80 Ky. 159.

2. Campbell v. Braden, 31 Kan. 754.

Where a place voted for, as a county-seat, had a legal name and a popular name, but the ballots were printed with the legal name on them, it was held that it would be presumed that the canvassers counted the returns under the legal name used on the ballots. State v. Cavers, 22 Iowa, 343.

3. McKnight v. Ragan, 3 La. Ann. 398; Littell v. Robbins, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 138.

Where the law required that election officers should be sworn, it will be presumed that this was done. Draper v. Johnson, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 702.

4. Thus, where the law required the officers to demand certain affidavits of non-registered voters, and to return them to the clerk's office with other papers, it was held that the failure to return the affidavits did not rebut the presumption that they had been given. Curtin v. Yocum, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 416.

5. State v. Bender, 38 Mo. 450; State v. Mayor, 37 Mo. 270; Cass Co. v. Johnson, 95 U. S. 360.

In Illinois it is held that the presumption that the voters voting in a district are all the legal electors, cannot be rebutted by the registry-lists. — People v. Garner, 47 Ill. 246, — nor by proof of the number of votes cast at the election in the preceding year. Melvin v. Lisenby, 72 Ill. 63. But in Mississippi it is held that the registration-books were admissible, but that deaths and removals subsequent to the date of the books might be shown. Hawkins v. Carroll Co., 50 Miss. 735. And they are prima facie evidence in North Carolina. Rigsbee v. County of Durham, 3 S. E. Rep. 749.

6. Thus, in quo warranto case against a person claiming an office, the Journals of the Senate of Ohio showed that Lemuel Moffatt had been voted for by that body, and the House Journal showed the election of Samuel Moffatt; and it was held that no evidence could be received to show that there was a mistake in the name. State v. Moffatt, 5 Ohio, 259.

In the same State, where it was sought to correct the date of a certificate of a canvassing board, the court refused to admit the evidence in the absence of a charge of fraud, upon the ground, that, being of a public nature, the date could not be impeached without proof of fraud. Taylor v. Wallace, 31 Ohio St. 151.

7. Davis v. Best, 2 Iowa, 96.

8. Sinks v. Reese, 19 Ohio St. 202.

Where the proof is a matter of record, parol evidence is not admissible, unless the record evidence is lost or destroyed.<sup>1</sup>

Hearsay evidence, public rumors, and vague estimates of numbers, will be rejected.<sup>2</sup>

23. Proof of Rejected Votes. — In order to justify the counting of rejected votes, four things must be proved: first, that the persons were legal voters at the place where they offered their votes; second, that they offered the votes, or were prevented from so doing; third, that they had been rejected; and fourth, for whom they were offered.<sup>3</sup>

24. Burden of Proof. — The burden of proof is upon the person asking that returns should be rejected because of irregularities, to show that they were such as affected the result, or were in disregard of mandatory provisions of the election;<sup>4</sup> but when the conduct of the election officers has been such as to show fraud, or the irregularities have been so great as to destroy the credit of the returns, the burden of proof is cast upon the party wishing to uphold the returns.<sup>5</sup>

1. Thus, it has been held that a record of a township-meeting, or a certified copy thereof, if obtainable, was the only admissible evidence to show the election of a town officer. Prickett's Case, 20 N. J. L. 134. And that a list of voters, if in existence, must be produced to prove that the person's name was on it. Harris v. Whitcomb, 4 Gray (Mass.), 433. And where a person's right to vote depended upon a change in the boundaries of a town, it was held that the record, if not lost, was the only competent evidence. Clark v. Robinson, 88 Ill. 498.

The record of conviction is the best and only evidence upon which to reject the vote of a convict. Lowe v. Wheeler, 6 Cong. El. Cases, 76.

But where the record is not definite, parol evidence may be admitted to supplement it. Preston v. Culbertson, 58 Cal. 198.

The fact that a record is not properly authenticated will not be sufficient to defeat an election, but parol evidence may be admitted. State v. Ferguson, 31 N. J. L. 107. And evidence that a person was acting as a public officer is admissible, and is prima facie evidence that he was duly elected and qualified. Bryan v. Walton, 14 Ga. 185; Hollister v. Hollister, 35 Conn. 247; Willis v. Sproule, 13 Kan. 257; Druse v. Wheeler, 22 Mich. 439.

When there is written evidence of an appointment, acceptance, and qualification of an officer, he will not be permitted to show by parol that he was not such officer by contradicting the record. Crawford v. Dunbar, 52 Cal. 26.

Contents of printed notices, not records, distributed at an election, were allowed to be proved by a copy of the same printed impression. Wakefield Case, Bar. & Aust. (Eng. El. Cases) 307. And inscriptions on flags paraded at public meetings, and the contents of resolutions publicly read at such meetings, can be proved by parol. R. v. Hunt, 3 B. & Ald. 556.

2. Thus, evidence of a political census offered to prove fraud has been rejected. Ingersoll v. Naylor, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 33. And estimates of the number of voters prevented from voting, made by guessing at the size of the crowd, were held too vague. Norris v. Handley, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 74. And the proof of the existence of rumors was rejected upon the ground that it was the truth of the rumors, and not their existence, that must be shown. Duffy v. Mason, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 291.

3. Frost v. Metcalfe, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 291.

4. Whitley v. McCune, 12 Cal. 352; Taylor v. Taylor, 10 Minn. 107; Pradat v. Ramsey, 47 Miss. 24.

5. Thompson v. Ewing, 1 Brews. (Pa.) 67; Marvin's Case, 2 Phila. 320; Myers v. Moffatt, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 560. In Duffy's Case, 4 Brews. (Pa.) 531, and Barber R., 10 Phila. 579, it was held, that, where legal and illegal votes had been counted indiscriminately, the party for whose benefit the majority in such districts was declared, would be required to lift the curse which the law imposed on the illegal ballots, or that they should be deducted from his count. This rule, however, should not be enforced where the election officers are of the opposite party from the majority candidate, and where they connive at the frauds.

In quo warranto proceedings to contest an election, where a party has a regular certificate, the burden of proof is on the State, to show that the respondent was not elected.<sup>1</sup>

25. Proof in Action for refusing Vote.—Where malice is the gist of an action for refusing a vote, it must be proved that the refusal was knowingly wrongful, and prompted by impure and corrupt motives.<sup>2</sup>

Where the right to vote depends upon making certain proof before the election officers, the evidence must show that such proof was made; and the lack of such proof cannot be supplied by evidence that the defendants knew that plaintiff was a legal voter, or that they gave insufficient reasons for refusing the vote.<sup>3</sup>

Where an election is held under a statute, plaintiff need not show that it was legal, in order to recover for a wrongful refusal of his vote.<sup>4</sup>

26. Evidence of Mistake in depositing or counting Ballots.—Where different ballot-boxes are used for the ballots for different offices, and a ballot is found in the wrong box, evidence of the facts and circumstances surrounding the transaction is admissible to show the intention of the voter; and when that can be shown with reasonable certainty, the vote should be counted for the office for which the voter intended to cast it.<sup>5</sup> Evidence of the election officers is admissible to show that they made a mistake in counting the votes.<sup>6</sup>

27. Matters of Opinion.—Unless the question is one calling for expert testimony, the opinion of witnesses should not be admitted to determine the issues in a case.<sup>7</sup>

28. Intention of Person in removing.—When a person's right to vote is in question by reason of a removal, he may testify as to his intention in leaving the place.<sup>8</sup>

1. People v. Lacosto, 37 N. Y. 192.

2. Caulfield v. Bullock, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 494; Morgan v. Dudley, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 693; Gotcheus v. Matheson, 5 Lans. (N. Y.) 214.

As an element of proof to show wrongful motives, it may be shown that defendant knew that plaintiff was opposed to him politically. Elbin v. Wilson, 33 Md. 135. Or, in short, any evidence which is competent, may be introduced to prove that the defendant was actuated by fraudulent or corrupt motives, or that his intentions were honest, and that he acted under an innocent mistake. Friend v. Hamill, 34 Md. 208.

3. Byler v. Asher, 47 Ill. 101.

4. Bernier v. Russell, 89 Ill. 60.

5. People v. Bates, 11 Mich. 362.

In one or two early Congressional cases, however, the committees decided that the action of the election officers should govern. Washburn v. Ripley, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 679, where the officers counted for member of Congress a vote placed in the Congressional box by mistake by the voter himself; and Newland v. Graham, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 5, where they counted for representatives votes which had been deposited in the other boxes by their own mistake.

6. Adams v. Wilson, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 375.

In one case, where two ballots found together had been rejected as a fraudulent double ballot, the testimony of the officers was admitted to show that, after these ballots were rejected, the number in the box was two less than the number of names on the voting-list; and the testimony of the by-standers was admitted to show that, in their judgment, the ballots had not been cast together. Reed v. Cosden, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 353.

7. Thus, it was held that the witnesses should not be permitted to give an opinion as to the fairness or the freedom of an election. Patton v. Coates, 41 Ark. 111.

8. Wilkins v. Marshall, 80 Ill. 74.

29. When Official Certificate admissible. — An official certificate is not admissible to prove facts in the officer's own knowledge, or derived from the examination of the files of his office.<sup>1</sup>

Certified copies of abstracts on file in the office of the secretary of state are admissible in evidence; and the secretary is not a witness, and cannot be cross-examined; and his seal gives the certificate the import of absolute verity.<sup>2</sup>

30. Proof of Naturalization. — It is held in the recent case of Lowry v. White, in the House of Representatives, that where no record was kept of the naturalization of parties by the court, and the certificate was lost, parol testimony was competent to show the fact of naturalization.<sup>3</sup>

Where a certificate of naturalization is granted by a court of competent jurisdiction, evidence is not admissible to show that it was improperly granted, or was obtained by false and perjured testimony.<sup>4</sup> But proof may be offered to show that it was issued by the clerk in the absence of the judge.<sup>5</sup>

31. Public Documents admissible. — It has been held, in a number of Congressional cases, that various documents were admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving the facts shown by them.<sup>6</sup>

32. Use of Record offered. — Where a record is offered in evidence by one party for one purpose, it may be used by the other party to prove any facts pertinent to the issue.<sup>7</sup>

33. Proof when Returns are illegal or wanting. — Where the

1. Thus, it has been held that a clerk's certificate was not admissible to prove that certain documents were not on file in his office, but that he must be sworn as a witness, to prove that fact. Goggin v. Gilmer, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 70.

2. Daily v. Estabrook, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 229.

A record of a suit between other parties in a contest, at the same election, where the validity of the same election was determined, is not admissible, as it is res inter alios acta. Spencer v. Morey, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 444.

3. 50 Cong. H. R. 163.

In this case, which turned upon the eligibility of the sitting member, the majority report held that this fact could not be proved by parol evidence; but the minority report was adopted by a decided majority. The applicant need not see that the proceedings were recorded. Coleman Re, 15 Blatchf. (C. C.) 406.

While the certificate of naturalization of one's parents is the best evidence, other evidence may be used when this cannot be obtained. People v. McNally, 59 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 500.

4. Wigginton v. Pacheco, 5 Cong. El. Cases, 16; People v. Pease, 30 Barb. 588.

5. Van Wyck v. Greene, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 631.

6. Thus, it has been held that land-books required to be kept by the statute of a State were admissible as prima facie evidence, to show that a person was a freeholder. Taliaferro v. Hungerford, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 250; Loyall v. Newton, id. 520.

The census reports of the United States were examined by a committee, to show that the per cent of voters voting in districts where intimidation was alleged was as great as the average in other districts in the country. Norris v. Handley, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 68; Niblack v. Walls, id. 105.

A city census was admitted, to show that certain persons were not voters in the wards where they had voted, — Blair v. Barrett, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 308, — and the muster-rolls of a company of soldiers, to show the residence of the members, and their ages when they enlisted. Knox v. Blair, 2 Cong. El. Cases, 521.

7. Thus, when a party sued introduced a record of a town, to show his election to office, the other party was allowed to show, by other parts of the record, that the election was illegal. Bearce v. Fassett, 34 Me. 575.

returns are either destroyed or are rejected for irregularity, secondary evidence may be admitted to show that the actual vote was correctly stated in the return;<sup>1</sup> and either party may prove the number of votes cast for him.<sup>2</sup>

34. Effect of Illegal Promise. — Where it was shown that a candidate for an office publicly announced to the voters, that, if he was elected, he would perform the duties of the office for less than the legal salary, it was held, that, in order to defeat his election, the contestant must show that the number of votes obtained by reason of the promise was greater than the majority of the successful candidate.<sup>3</sup>

35. Declaration to prove Unlawful Combination. — Declarations of voters after the election, that they had voted, and how they had voted, have been held competent to prove an unlawful combination to carry an election by illegal voting, though they would not be admitted for the purpose of excluding the particular votes.<sup>4</sup>

(B) EVIDENCE IN CRIMINAL CASES. — 1. For Illegal Voting. — Parol evidence is admissible to prove illegal voting, where the poll-list is lost or destroyed; but the act is not complete until the ballots are deposited in the box.<sup>5</sup>

It has been held that a statement of the defendant made under oath when challenged is not admissible in his favor, nor the decision of the judges in his favor.<sup>6</sup>

1. Daniel Bard's Case, 1 Cong. El. Cases, 116; Sheridan v. Pinchback, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 322; Burns v. Young, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 181.

This may be shown by certified copies of the precinct returns, when the originals are lost, — Opinions of Justices, 70 Me. 570, — or by the testimony of the officers who compiled them.

2. Reid v. Julian, 3 Cong. El. Cases, 22; Norris v. Handley, 4 Cong. El. Cases, 73.

3. People v. Thornton, 25 Hun (N. Y.), 456.

4. Patton v. Coates, 41 Ark. 111.

5. Blackwell v. Thompson, 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 348. But where the poll-list lacks the proper official certificate, it is error to admit it in evidence without preliminary proof of its authenticity; but parol testimony is competent for this purpose. Hunter v. State, 55 Ala. 76.

The copy of the record of the proceedings at a town-meeting could not be admitted upon oral evidence that it was such a copy, as the record itself was the best evidence. Com. v. Wallace, Thatcher's Crim. Cases, 592.

6. Morris v. State, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 607.

In Iowa, under an indictment for wilfully voting when not a citizen of the United States, it was held that the defendant would not be allowed to prove that he consulted witnesses as to his right to vote, and was advised by them that he had such right. State v. Shelly, 15 Iowa, 404.

In Massachusetts, where a party was indicted under a statute for wilfully voting, knowing himself not to be a qualified voter, it was held that an admission of the defendant, on the trial, that he had voted at the election, was equivalent to an admission that he had voted wilfully. Com. v. Bradford, 9 Met. 268.

In the same case it was held, that, under such a statute, the defendant would be permitted to show that he consulted counsel as to his right to vote, and submitted the facts of the case to them, and that he was advised that he had such right; but it is not conclusive that he had not such knowledge. From the case of State v. Smith, 15 Iowa, 404, it seems that the defendant will not be permitted to show that he took the advice of persons who were not licensed attorneys, but must consult persons learned in the law.

In the case of Com. v. Aglar, Thatcher's Crim. Cases, 412, it was held that the person must know at the time that he is doing, or attempting to do, an unlawful act, before he can be convicted of a wilful violation of the act; and this was also the construction given in the case of Drewe v. Coulton, 1 East, 563, note.

It is probable, however, that the greater number of cases in the American courts

But on the other hand it has been held, that, where a charge of fraudulent voting is made, it must be shown that the vote was cast with the knowledge that it was illegal.<sup>1</sup>

Secondary evidence of the contents of a ballot is competent, when the ballot is destroyed, in proceedings for altering the ballot.<sup>2</sup>

2. Sufficiency of Proof.—As no general rule can be laid down as to the proof necessary to convict in the various cases, it will be necessary to consider the facts set forth in the decided cases.<sup>3</sup>

3. Proof in Action for betting on Elections.—In an action for unlawfully betting on an election, it was shown that the money was placed in an envelope, on the outside of which were written directions to the stakeholder as to paying it over. It was held that the writing was the primary evidence, and must be uphold the idea that a voluntary illegal act is presumed to be wilful and fraudulent. State v. Harrt, 6 Jones (N. Car.), L. 389; State v. Barrett, 10 Ired. (N. Car.) 336; People v. Harris, 29 Cal. 678.

In Tennessee it is held the ignorance of the law will not excuse illegal voting; but it must be shown, in order to convict a person of the offence, that the voter had knowledge of a state of facts which, in law, would disqualify him from voting. McGuire v. State, 7 Humph. 54.

And in another case it was held that it must be shown that the party was chargeable with knowledge of facts rendering the vote illegal, before he could be convicted of voting illegally. State v. Haynorth, 3 Sneed (Tenn.), 64.

In Alabama, where a person is indicted for voting as a minor, it was held that he might show that he voted under an honest belief, induced by information derived from parents, relations, or acquaintances, having knowledge of his birth, that he was of lawful age. Gordon v. State, 52 Ala. 308; Carter v. State, 55 Ala. 181.

It has been held in Massachusetts that it is a question of fact for the jury to determine whether the vote was wilful or not. Com. v. Wallace, Thatch. Crim. Cases, 596.

1. State v. McComber, 7 R. I. 349.

2. Com. v. McGurty (Mass.), 14 N. E. Rep. 98.

3. When a defendant indicted for illegal voting was proved to have left his father's house, where he was at home, on Sunday preceding the election, and to have gone to the township where he had voted, and to have remained there, chopping wood, until the day after the election, when he returned home again, having voted in the mean time, it was held that the proof fully warranted a conviction. State v. Minnick, 15 Iowa, 123.

When a defendant was indicted for having voted illegally at an election, and the only question was, whether he had resided in the town where he had voted six months next preceding the election, it was held that it was not sufficient to change the burden of proof, to show that he had resided in another town seven months before the election. Com. v. Bradford, 9 Met. (Mass.) 268.

When the indictment was for giving false answers to the officers who presided at a meeting, or for wilfully voting at such meetings without being qualified, it was held to be sufficient to prove that the officers were acting as such, without having proved that they were legally qualified or chosen to hold the office. Com. v. Shaw, 7 Met. (Mass.) 52.

Where an allegation was made "that a town-meeting was then and there held," it was held that it might be shown that the meeting was one held under the laws and constitution of the State; and where the allegation was, that a meeting of the inhabitants of a town "was duly holden," it was held sufficient to show that a meeting of the qualified voters of the town had been held. Com. v. Shaw, 7 Met. Mass. 52; State v. Boyington, 56 Me. 512.

Where the offence charged was that of having voted in one town, ward, or district, after having voted at the same in another town or district, and there were two counts, in which the priority of the vote was different in each town, it was held, that, unless the jury could determine from the proof, in which town the first vote was cast, the proof was not sufficient, although it was shown that the party had voted in both towns. State v. Fitzpatrick, 4 R. I. 269.

Proof that an election was in fact held, that a board of inspectors was organized, and received votes, is competent evidence on trial for illegal voting. People v. Tripp, 4 N. Y. Leg. Observer, 344.

produced before the State would be allowed to prove the bet by parol evidence.<sup>1</sup>

4. For making False Certificate.—Where an inspector of an election, chosen under a State law, was indicted for making a false certificate of the result of an election for representative in Congress, it must be shown that the certificate was made fraudulently in order to convict.<sup>2</sup>

5. On Indictment for refusing a Vote.—When an election officer is indicted for knowingly refusing the vote of a qualified citizen, it must be shown that the act was done wilfully.<sup>3</sup>

XXII. Offences against Election Laws.—1. Offences at Common Law.—It is said by Judge McCrary, that the better opinion is, that double voting, or any other wilful and corrupt attempt to defeat a fair expression of the legal voters, through the ballot-box, is, in the absence of a statute, an offence, which may, as a general rule, be punished by indictment under the common law.<sup>4</sup>

2. Election must be Legal.—In order to convict a person of an offence at an election, it must be legal and regular; and an offence committed where the election is not authorized by law, or is not so called as to be valid, cannot be punished, where the act prohibits such an offence at an election.<sup>5</sup>

1. Frazee v. State, 58 Ind. 8.

2. U. S. v. Hayden, 52 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 471. In this case it was held, that, where it was shown that the fraud upon the ballot-box had been perpetrated by an unknown person, not an agent of the inspector, there could be no conviction; and where State officers were indicted for adding names of persons not voting at the election, where a member of Congress was elected, in order to affect the result, it was held that it must be proved that the act was done by the defendants, or by others in their presence with their consent. U. S. v. Wright, 16 Fed. Rep. 112.

3. People v. Boas, 29 Hun (N. Y.), 377.

In the case of the Com. v. Lee, 1 Brews. (Pa.) 173, it was held that it must be shown that the officer rejected the vote knowing it to be the vote of a qualified citizen; that the presumption of honesty was in his favor; and that the Commonwealth must prove that in rejecting the vote the defendant did not act conscientiously, but wilfully and intentionally disregarded his duty. And see Com. v. Sheriff, 1 Brews. (Pa.) 183; State v. Smith, 18 N. H. 91.

In the case of Byrne v. State, 13 Wis. 519, it was held that the doctrine that ignorance of a law does not excuse a man, does not apply, where an officer is required by law to decide questions which require the exercise of judgment and discretion; and he can only be required to do his duty according to the best of his knowledge and ability.

4. Am. Law of El. § 469.

It has been held, in Com. v. Silsbee, 9 Mass. 417, that giving in more than one vote at an election for selectmen at a town-meeting was a misdemeanor at common law.

It is an indictable offence to violently and rudely disturb a town-meeting. Com. v. Hoxey, 16 Mass. 385.

It is an indictable offence at common law to bribe, or attempt to bribe, an elector by giving him money for giving in his ballot. State v. Jackson, 73 Me. 91.

And in England this is true, although the offence is punishable by the statute. Rex v. Pitt, 1 Wm. Bl. 380.

In Pennsylvania it is held, fraud in an election for public officers is an indictable offence at common law. Com. v. McHale, 97 Pa. St. 397.

In some of the States, however, there are no common-law crimes; and no person can be punished for an offence at any federal election in the United States court, unless a penalty was provided by the statute of the United States.

5. Thus, in England it is held, that, in an action for bribery, it was not sufficient to show a de facto election, but that a regular election must be shown. Rex v. Lamb, 6 H. & N. 75. In State v. Williams, 25 Me. 561, it was held that an indictment against a person for voting twice at a town-meeting for the choice of selectmen, could not be maintained unless the meeting was warned as required by statutes.

3. Defence to Action for Illegal Voting. — The act of voting must be complete before one can be punished for an illegal vote.<sup>1</sup>

It is no defence that a disfranchised person should have been told by counsel that there was no record of his conviction, or that he had forgotten the fact of his conviction.<sup>2</sup> Or that he had been a minor when convicted, and also when discharged from prison.<sup>3</sup> Nor is it a defence to an action for voting the second time, to show that the first vote was also illegal, and could not be counted.<sup>4</sup>

4. Other Offences under State Laws. — As the offences under the statutes of the various States are dissimilar, it will be necessary to examine the particular decisions of the various States.<sup>5</sup>

Where an election officer was indicted for failing to comply with the requirements of the law in regard to making up the return of an election, it was held that he would not be permitted to question the constitutionality of certain provisions of the law, which were limitations upon the rights of the electors. Hall v. People, 90 N. Y. 498.

But it was held in Texas, that, in a habeas corpus proceeding by a party charged with illegal voting at an election, the question of the constitutionality of the statute could be made.

Irregularities at an election, however, will not be a defence to a prosecution for illegal voting if the election was legal, was properly called, and held at the proper time and place. State v. Calhoun, 12 Ired. (N. Car.) 178; State v. Bailey, 21 Me. 62. But where the irregularities are such as to invalidate the election, it has been held that no penalty can be inflicted for voting twice at the election. Morrill v. Haines, 2 N. H. 246.

1. In Tennessee it was held, that if a party standing at the poll hands his ballot to the proper officer, and his name is announced, and is registered by the clerk by order of the judges, he has voted, although the officer may neglect to deposit the ballot in the box until after the close of the polls. Steinwehr v. State, 5 Sneed, 586. But in Alabama, where it was provided that the ballot of a voter should be taken by the manager of an election, and deposited in the box by him, and that the name of the voter should at the same time be entered on the list of persons voting, it was held that the act of voting was not completed until the ballot was deposited in the box; and that the entry of the name on the list was not the vote, but only evidence of the vote. Blackwell v. Thompson, 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 348.

2. Gandy v. State (Ala.), 2 So. Rep. 465.

3. Hamilton v. People, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 625.

4. State v. Perkins, 42 Vt. 399.

Where the statute made it a felony to vote the second time at an election, and made it a misdemeanor also to vote in an election district in which the voter did not actually reside, it will not be a defence to a prosecution for the felony that the second vote was cast in the district in which the defendant did not reside. State v. Welch, 21 Minn. 22.

Where the law prohibited an officer from receiving a tax on election day, and made it a crime to vote without having paid the tax, a party who paid the tax on election day, and cast his vote afterwards, could not be convicted of casting an illegal vote. Austin v. State, 71 Ga. 595.

The fact that a person committed perjury in swearing to his residence, when voting, would not prevent an indictment and conviction for the illegal voting, although he might be subjected to another prosecution for the perjury. State v. Minnick, 15 Iowa, 123.

5. Thus, in Pennsylvania, it was held that a mere attempt to vote illegally is an indictable offence, — Com. v. Jones, 10 Phila. 211, — but that fraudulent voting in the army, beyond the limits of the State, was not within the jurisdiction of the criminal courts of the State. Com. v. Runzman, 41 Pa. St. 429.

Where a qualified voter supports the right of a challenged person to vote, he is not liable to an indictment unless he acts in bad faith. Com. v. Sheriff, 12 Phila. 594.

In Kentucky, the office of judge of election is a constitutional one, and a person may be indicted for usurping it without regard to his motives. Wayman v. Com., 14 Bush, 466.

The delivery of a fraudulent ballot to the judge of election is indictable under a statute forbidding any one to wrongfully put, or insert, ballots in the boxes. Com. v. Gale, 10 Bush (Ky.), 488.

In Massachusetts it was held that it was an indictable offence for the mayor and aldermen of the city of Boston to omit, through carelessness, to return any votes cast at an election for member of Congress.

5. Offences under Acts of Congress. — Congress has no authority to pass any laws providing for the punishment of offences committed at elections, unless representatives or delegates to Congress, or electors of President and Vice-President, are to be voted for, or unless some parties, acting under the authority of State laws, hinder or prevent persons from casting their votes on account of their race, color, or previous condition of servitude; and most of the offences against the United States laws come under one of these heads, and the cases will be considered more fully in the notes.<sup>1</sup>

Com. v. Mayor, etc., Thatch. Crim. Cases, 298.

In Indiana it is held that it is not a felony to treat voters at an election, — Heilman v. Shanklin, 60 Ind. 424, — but in Tennessee it is indictable to treat electors with a view to obtain their votes. State v. Rutledge, 8 Humph. 32. But it was held in that State that it was not indictable under the statute to vote illegally for officers of municipal corporations. State v. Liston, 9 Humph. (Tenn.) 603.

The statute of Alabama, prohibiting any person from voting out of the county, city, or town of his residence, or from voting at any election where he was not entitled, was held not to be infringed by voting out of the ward for municipal offices of the city in which the voter resides. Nettles v. State, 49 Ala. 35.

The statute of Illinois makes it an offence to refuse a vote where an affidavit is tendered, showing the right of the person who tenders it to vote. A person cannot be convicted under this statute where the affidavit was not tendered, by showing that he had said he would refuse the vote, even if the affidavit was offered. Sharpe v. People, 14 Bradw. (Ill.) 224.

Where an act required the registration officer to make a list of persons whose names were stricken from the register, and also makes it an offence to do a forbidden act, or to omit to do any required act, it was held to be an offence to include in such list names not stricken from the register; but there will be but one offence if a number of names are included. Mincher v. State, 66 Md. 227.

Under a statute for punishing one who shall vote not being qualified, an indictment will not lie against a qualified voter for voting in the name of another person, although charging that the defendant was not qualified to vote in the name of the other person. State v. McClarnon (R. I.), 8 Atl. Rep. 688.

1. The purpose of § 5515 of the Revised Statutes of the United States was not to punish violations of the State law by State election officers, unless such violation affected the election of a representative or a delegate in Congress. United States v. Nicholson, 3 Woods (C. C.), 215; United States v. Morrissey, 32 Fed. Rep. 147. Under this section, an officer of elections is criminally liable for intentional delay until the election day in executing a warrant for the arrest of one charged with illegally registering, or for threatening to arrest the person for the purpose of deterring him from voting. Spooner Re, 9 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 481.

The supervisor of elections is not guilty of an offence in expressing an opinion that one seeking to vote is not qualified, and refusing to return his naturalization certificate, in consequence of which the State inspectors refused to allow him to register. Hilt Re, 9 Abb. N. Cas. (N. Y.) 484.

A conviction for using a certificate of naturalization for the purpose of registering as a voter, knowing the same to have been unlawfully issued, cannot be sustained by showing that a certificate, regular on its face, had been issued, to the knowledge of the defendant, without his having taken the oath, or having been present in court. United States v. Burley, 14 Blatchf. (C. C.) 91.

It is an offence under sec. 5515 for an inspector of election to appoint unsuitable and incompetent persons as inspectors with intent to affect an election for member of Congress, or its result. U. S. v. Carrothers, 15 Fed. Rep. 309.

Under the same section, an election officer may be punished for adding names of persons who did not vote to the list of voters required to be kept by the State law, if the acts were done to affect the result of the election for member of Congress. United States v. Wright, 16 Fed. Rep. 112. And where the statute requires an inspector to deliver the certificate to the canvassers, parting with it before he has so delivered it, where a member of Congress is voted for, is an offence under this section. Coy Re, 31 Fed. Rep. 394.

Where the judges of election for member of Congress refuse a vote with a wrongful animus and intent, they may be

XXIII. Criminal Pleading and Practice. — I. General Rules. — The rules of pleading applicable to other offences will, in general, apply to indictments for violations of the election laws; but in cases of indictments for voting without qualification, the rule that it is sufficient to state the offence in the language of the statute does not apply. There are so many disqualifications, that the indictment should inform the defendant of the particular one charged against him.

This doctrine is supported by the overwhelming weight of the authority, though there are exceptions to the general line of decisions.<sup>1</sup> indicted, notwithstanding a colorable excuse. United States v. Foster, 3 Hughes (C. C.), 514.

Congress has authority to provide penalties for the violation of State statutes by State officer sat elections for member of Congress. Siebold Ex p. 100 U. S. 371; Clark Ex p. 100 U. S. 399; U. S. v. Baader, 16 Fed. Rep. 116.

Under an indictment for voting without having lawful right to do so, it was held that the fact that the defendant, who was a female, believed that she was lawfully entitled to vote under the Constitution, was no defence. United States v. Anthony, 11 Blatchf. (C. C.) 200.

A conspiracy to aid or counsel non-residents to go into a county to vote illegally, if any of the alleged acts were done, is complete, although no person went into the county, or cast or offered an illegal vote. U. S. v. Wrape, U. S. C. C. (Ind.) 4 Weekly Law Bul. (Cin.) 433.

Where the laws of a State do not disqualify a person from voting, on account of an offence against the government, a person cannot be indicted for fraudulently registering because he had been convicted of having uttered counterfeit money of the United States. United States v. Barnabo, 14 Blatchf. (C. C.) 74.

In sect. 5514 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, enacting that where, by the laws of a State, the name of a candidate for representative or delegate in Congress, and the names of candidates for State offices, are required to be on the same ballot, "it shall be deemed sufficient prima facie evidence to convict any person voting, or offering to vote, unlawfully under the provisions of this chapter, to prove that the person so charged cast, or offered to cast, such ticket or ballot wherein the name of such representative or delegate in Congress might by law be printed, written, or contained, or that the person so charged committed any of the offences denounced in this chapter with reference to such ticket or ballot," the last clause should be read ad if the word "so" were omitted, and the section is therefore not limited to the offence of voting, or offering to vote, unlawfully, but embraces all the offences named in the chapter. United States v. Morrissey, 32 Fed. Rep. 147.

United States supervisors of elections may be indicted for doing an unauthorized act with the intent to affect the result of a Congressional election. U. S. v. Fisher, 8 Fed. Rep. 414.

Resisting a United States marshal attempting to arrest a man trying to vote at Congressional election under circumstances showing fraud, is indictable under sec. 5222, U. S. Rev. Stat. U. S. v. Conway, 6 Fed. Rep. 49.

1. Thus, in Indiana it was held that an indictment which charged that the defendant had voted at an election, "not having the legal qualifications of the voter," was bad for alleging, not a fact, but a conclusion of law. Quinn v. State, 35 Ind. 485.

In Alabama it was held that a general allegation of illegal voting was not sufficient; although a charge that the defendant, not being twenty-one years of age, voted at a general election, was sufficient. Gordon v. State, 52 Ala. 308.

In New Jersey it is held that an indictment for voting illegally which does not disclose the particular disability of the defendant is fatally defective. State v. Moore, 27 N. J. L. 105. And see Pearce v. State, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 63.

On the other hand, in Iowa it was held that it was sufficient to aver that the party knew himself not to be qualified, without stating the lack of qualification. State v. Douglas, 413. And this same doctrine was held in United States v. Quinn, 8 Blatchf. 48, where it was held, the offence being a misdemeanor, that it was sufficient to charge it in the words of the statute; but in United States v. Hirschfield, 13 Blatchf. 330, an indictment, alleging that the defendant, having no lawful right to register, did fraudulently and wilfully register, was held bad; and another count that he had no lawful right to register, as he well knew by reason of the fact that he was then and

2. Averment of Proper Officers. — In an indictment for illegally voting, an averment that the defendant voted at a certain election authorized by law then and there holden, implies that it was holden by proper officers.<sup>1</sup>

3. Averment of Purpose. — An indictment need not show the names of the candidates, nor that candidates were voted for, for any particular office;<sup>2</sup> but the purpose for which the election was held should be stated, and it is not sufficient to call it a general election.<sup>3</sup>

4. Against the Statute. — Where the act of Congress has fixed a penalty for the performance of an act by the State officers which the State law also declares illegal, an indictment which concludes against the form "of the statute of the United States" alone is sufficient in the federal courts.<sup>4</sup>

Where an indictment for illegal voting, under the acts to regulate elections, charged that the vote was given at an election held in pursuance of the statute, in that case made and provided for electors for President, etc., it was held that, as the act to regulate elections was the only one under which the election of such officers could be held, the indictment substantially charged that the election was held under that act.<sup>5</sup>

5. Averment of Time. — The indictment must specify the day on which the election is held.<sup>6</sup>

6. Allegation of Fraud. — The averment of fraud must be specific, and set forth the particular acts charged to have been committed.<sup>7</sup>

there an alien, and had not been admitted to become a citizen, was held bad, because these averments did not show that he had no right to register or vote.

In Oregon it is held that such a defect in failing to state the particular disqualification was waived by failure to demur, and the indictment was good after verdict. State v. Bruce, 5 Oreg. 68.

1. State v. Douglas, 7 Iowa, 413.

An averment that certain persons were judges of the election, is a sufficient averment that they were duly appointed judges. State v. Randles, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 9.

An averment that a "town-meeting was then and there duly held," is sufficient to enable proof to be given that it was held according to the constitution and laws of the State. State v. Boyington, 56 Me. 512. It is not necessary to state by what authority a town-meeting or an election is held where it is averred that it was duly holden. State v. Marshall, 45 N. H. 281.

2. State v. Minnick, 15 Iowa, 123.

3. Carter v. State, 55 Ala. 181.

In the case of Lane v. Stat, 39 Ohio St. 312, an allegation in the indictment, that defendant at a certain township, in a certain county, "did unlawfully, wilfully, and knowingly vote more than once, to wit, twice, at a certain corporation election then and there holden, and authorized to be holden by the laws of the State of Ohio," was fatally defective in not describing the election, as under this averment it might have been an election in a private corporation, a township election, or an election in any city or village in the township; but an averment that the election was held, and authorized by law, within and for the city of W., to vote for city attorney and other officers then and there to be chosen, was held sufficient to show the purpose of the election. Gallagher v. State, 10 Tex. App. 469. And an averment that the inhabitants of a town, at the town-meeting, were called upon to give in their votes for member of Congress, was held to be sufficient to show that the meeting was called for the purpose of voting for member of Congress. State v. Marshall, 45 N. H. 281.

Where the defendant is charged with voting more than once at the general election held at a certain place, it need not state the names of the persons or officers for whom the alleged vote was cast. Wilson v. State, 52 Ala. 299.

4. U. S. v. Baader, 16 Fed. Rep. 116.

5. State v. Moore, 27 N. J. L. 105.

6. State v. Day, 74 Me. 220.

7. A count in the indictment, under a statute providing for the punishment of an

7. Refusing Legal, or accepting Illegal, Votes. — In an indictment for refusing to receive legal votes, the purpose of the election should be stated,<sup>1</sup> and also the fact that the defendant knew the voter was entitled to vote.<sup>2</sup>

8. Conspiracy. — An indictment under United States Statutes, § 5520, for conspiracy to prevent a citizen, lawfully authorized to vote, from giving his support or advocacy in a legal manner in favor of an election of a lawfully qualified person as member of Congress, need not set out the acts of advocacy and support, which the conspiracy was formed to prevent.<sup>3</sup>

9. For taking False Oaths. — An indictment for taking a false oath of qualification as a voter must allege that the defendant offered to vote, or was challenged, or informed by an inspector of the qualifications of an elector; and the occasion of the administration of the oath must be specifically set forth.<sup>4</sup>

10. For betting on Election. — Where an indictment for losing money by betting on an election charged that the defendant bought a gold ring of the value of ten dollars to be paid for at that price, when a certain candidate should be elected governor, otherwise not to be paid for at all, it was held to be insufficient, as he would in neither event lose any thing of value.<sup>5</sup>

11. Joinder of Defendants. — All the inspectors of an election may be joined in the same indictment,<sup>6</sup> but this is not necessary;<sup>7</sup> and where the various officers act in different capacities, they cannot be joined in the same bill.<sup>8</sup>

12. Offences against United States Laws. — In a prosecution in the federal courts, where the offence charged is on the borderline of federal jurisdiction, it is the imperative duty of the court officer who should be convicted of any wilful fraud in the discharge of his duties, which charges that such officer "did commit wilful fraud in the discharge of his duties," was fatally defective, although in the words of the statute. Com. v. Muller, 2 Pars. (Pa.) 480.

In the same indictment there were counts charging the defendants with having caused to be written on the poll-list a hundred and fifty names of persons who had not voted, and with having counted them, and marked on the tally-papers a hundred and fifty votes which had not been received or polled. It was held that these counts were defective, in not giving any of the names alleged to have been placed on the poll-books; but in an indictment for altering the tally-sheets and poll-books, it has been held that it is not necessary to copy the documents in the indictment. State v. Granville (Ohio), 12 N. E. Rep. 803.

1. Tilton v. State, 27 Ind. 492.

2. State v. Daniels, 44 N. H. 383.

In Maine, where one of the election officers was indicted for receiving at the general election the vote of a person whose name was not borne on the list of electors, it was held to be necessary to allege that the act so committed was unreasonable, corrupt, or wilfully oppressive. State v. Small, 10 Me. 109.

Where one judge was indicted for knowingly and unlawfully receiving the vote of a person not entitled to vote, it was held to be unnecessary to state how the other officers acted. Com. v. Gray, 2 Duv. (Ky.) 373.

3. United States v. Goldman, 3 Woods, C. C. 187.

4. Humphreys v. State, 17 Fla. 381.

An allegation that the defendant "being required by law to take an oath," is not sufficient. Dennis v. State, 63 Ind. 389.

5. Wagner v. State, 63 Ind. 250.

6. Byrne v. State, 12 Wis. 519.

7. Com. v. Gray, 2 Duv. (Ky.) 373.

8. In the case of Com. v. Miller, 2 Pars. (Pa.) 220, a bill joining the inspectors, judge, and clerks for fraudulent acts at the election, was held bad upon demurrer for misjoinder of parties.

to require a clear and distinct averment of every fact essential to give the court jurisdiction; and for this purpose, the indictment must contain an affirmative and distinct charge of an act which does or may affect the election of a representative or delegate in Congress.<sup>1</sup>

For particular instances, see notes.

13. Action for Penalties.—A complaint under § 2006 of the Revised Statutes of the United States must show that the officer refused, or knowingly omitted, to give the plaintiff an opportunity to perform the acts required to be done as a prerequisite to vot-

1. U. S. v. Morrissey, 32 Fed. Rep. 147. In this case the counts upon which there was a verdict of guilty, charged that the defendant had received certain ballots from persons whom he knew were not entitled to vote, whose votes were for that reason known to him to be fraudulent, but failed to state they were cast for a candidate for Congress, and for this defect the judgment was arrested; but in the U. S. v. McBosley, 29 Fed. Rep. 897, it was held that an indictment under section 5511, for illegal voting or bribery at an election for member of Congress, voted for on the same ballot with local or State officers, need not charge that the ballot contained the names of persons for member of Congress, nor that the bribe was given to influence the vote in reference to the Congressional election; and in Coy v. R., 31 Fed. Rep. 794, where the inspector, in violation of the requirements of the State law, parted with the certificate showing the votes cast for State officers and for member of Congress, before delivering it to the canvassers, it was held that the indictment need not charge that it was done with intent to affect the result of the election for Congress.

An indictment for permitting illegal voting at a Congressional election, need not set out the special means by which the permission was given. U. S. v. Doherty, 25 Fed. Rep. 28.

Where an indictment under section No. 5511 in various counts charged that the defendant did then and there procure certain persons (naming them) to vote more than once, and that he did then and there counsel them to vote more than once, and also that he did counsel certain persons to vote in places where they had no right to vote, stating the time and place particularly, it was held that the indictment which charged the offence in the words of the statute was sufficient. U. S. v. White, U. S. C. C. S. D. of Ohio, 2 Weekly Law Bul. (Cin.) 27.

An allegation that a party claimed the right to vote at an election, is not equivalent to the allegation that he is a qualified voter. U. S. v. Hendrick, 2 Sawyer (C. C.), 479.

An allegation that the defendant knowingly offered a person who is under the age of twenty-one years a bribe to vote at a Congressional election, was held to mean that he knew the person to be a minor when he offered the bribe.—U. S. v. O'Neil, 2 Sawyer, 481,—and also that it was equivalent to the allegation that he had counselled the party to vote. U. S. v. Hendrick, 2 Sawyer, 476.

It was held that the charge that the defendant gave the party money to vote at the Congressional election was sufficient. U. S. v. Johnson, 2 Sawyer (U. S.), 482.

When the indictment was under section 5523, for refusing to answer lawful inquiries of the supervisor of election, in the verification of the registration list, it was held that it must be averred that the inquiries were made of the defendant at the place assigned in such list as his place of residence, or it will be fatally defective. U. S. v. Davis, 6 Fed. Rep. 683.

An indictment under section 5511 of the Revised Statutes is defective, unless it charges that the interference was with a voter, qualified and offering to vote at a Congressional election for representative in Congress. U. S. v. Cahill, 3 McCrary (C. C.), 200.

An indictment charging that defendants were officers, at an election held at a certain precinct at a certain time, for member of Congress, and that they "being then and there officers of said election, with intent to affect such election and its results, did acts unauthorized in this that they, being required to keep a list of the persons then and there voting, and to swear that said list was correct, did then and there add to such lists," is sufficient under §§ 5515 and 5522 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. U. S. v. Baader, 16 Fed. Rep. 116.

An indictment charging defendant with a fraudulent attempt to vote at an election, when member of Congress is to be elected, must aver that there was an attempt to vote for representative. U. S. v. Seaman, 23 Fed. Rep. 882.

ing, and that the act of the officer was on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude of the plaintiff.<sup>1</sup> And in order to recover under § 2008, the declaration must aver that the plaintiff was prevented from voting, by force, bribery, threats, intimidation, or other unlawful means; and when the allegation was, that the unlawful means was an erroneous decision of defendant while acting as officer of the election, without any averment that the decision was wilfully or maliciously wrong, it was held to be insufficient.<sup>2</sup>

XXIV. Meaning of Phrases. — The phrase "majority of voters," in a constitution or law, is held to mean a majority of those voting, and not of all qualified to vote.<sup>3</sup>

"Majority of qualified voters" means of those actually voting.<sup>4</sup>

"Majority of voters voting" means of all voting at the election, and not merely of those voting on the question at the election.<sup>5</sup>

The phrase "loyal voters," if it has any meaning, means something different from legal voters or qualified voters.<sup>6</sup>

The term "voters," as used in the State constitution, means those entitled to vote for State offices.<sup>7</sup>

Where an act provided that towns and cities might submit a proposition to the vote of the "inhabitants," the word "inhabitants" was held to mean legal voters.<sup>8</sup>

The phrase, "any election," in a statute, embraces elections for local option,<sup>9</sup> but does not include a vote for a school-tax.<sup>10</sup>

XXV. Illegal Contracts. — 1. What Contracts are void. — Contracts not to vote, but to pair off, are of no validity.<sup>11</sup>

A contract to use money for purposes not permitted by the law for the promotion of the candidacy of any party, will be void.<sup>12</sup>

1. McKay v. Campbell, 1 Sawyer (U. S.), 374. Atchison, etc., R. R. Co. v. Jefferson Co., 17 Kan. 39.

2. Seely v. Koox, 2 Woods, C. C. 368.

3. Everett v. Smith, 22 Minn. 53; Holcum v. Davis, 56 Ill. 414; People v. Allen, 52 N. Y. 538; Sanford v. Prentice, 28 Wis. 358.

4. State v. Mayor of St. Joseph, 37 Mo. 270.

Constitutional provision that two-thirds of the qualified voters of a district shall favor a proposition, is not the same as a law that two-thirds of the voters voting at the election shall vote for it, and such a law would be invalid; though, if it had followed the language of the constitution, a two-thirds vote of the parties voting at the election would have been held sufficient by the Supreme Court of the United States. Harshman v. Bates Co., 93 U. S. 569. But in Missouri it was held, that, under such circumstances, the registration books are the test. State v. Brassfield, 67 Mo. 331.

5. State v. Wiant, 49 Ill. 263; State v. Beched (Neb.), 34 N. W. Rep. 342.

It also means of those voting legally.

6. Leeman v. Hinton, 1 Duv. (Ky.) 37.

7. State v. Williams, 5 Wis. 308.

Qualified elector means same as registered voter. White v. Reagan, 25 Ark. 622.

8. Walnut v. Wade, 103 U. S. 683.

9. Gandy v. State (Ala.), 2 So. Rep. 465.

"Election" and "election by the people" are synonymous, and imply a popular vote. Clarke v. Irvine, 5 Nevada, 111; Rosen, stock v. Swift, 11 Nevada, 138.

10. Marshall v. Donovan, 10 Bush (Ky.) 694.

11. The judges of election have no authority to reject votes because the party has agreed with another that neither of them should vote. Piatt v. People, 29 Ill. 54.

12. In New York, under the statute providing that it should not be lawful for any person to contribute money for any purpose intended to promote the election of any particular person or ticket, except for defraying the expenses of printing and cir-

The contract to satisfy a debt, if a party would use his political influence for a candidate, will not be enforced.<sup>1</sup> A note given in consideration of the agreement of the payee to resign an office, and to use his influence to secure an appointment of the maker, is void, in the hands of the payee.<sup>2</sup>

An agreement to pay for food and liquor for the friends of the candidate, during the time of the canvass and the election, was held void, although the articles had been furnished without any intention of influencing the election.<sup>3</sup>

2. Wagers. — In this country no wagers on the result of an election can be enforced, as they are held to be void as being against public policy if the election is one in which either of the parties have interest.<sup>4</sup>

This applies as well to Presidential as to State or municipal elections.<sup>5</sup> And a purchase upon condition of paying nothing if the majority is in favor of one party, and double the value of the article if in favor of the other, will be treated as a wager, and will not be enforced.<sup>6</sup> culating votes and other papers, it was held that a contract to erect and keep open a building to be used by a certain party and its candidates during a campaign, was void. Jackson v. Walker, 5 Hill, 27. But in a later case it was held that this ruling went beyond the letter or spirit of the statute, and that a contract to pay for putting up and taking down a tent to be used for political meetings could be enforced. Hurley v. Van Wagner, 28 Barb. 109. Foley v. Speer, 11 Daly, 254, holds that a candidate could not be compelled to pay expenses which he had promised, when part of them were illegal.

1. Nichols v. Mudgett, 32 Vt. 546.

2. Meacham v. Dow, 32 Vt. 721.

3. Duke v. Ashby, 11 Ired. (N. Car.) 112.

4. Ball v. Gilbert, 12 Met. (Mass.) 397; Hizer v. State, 12 Ind. 330; Worthington v. Block, 13 Ind. 334; Murdock v. Kilbourn, 6 Wis. 468; Connor v. Ragland, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 634; Sike v. Thompson, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 315; McAllister v. Hoffman, 16 S. & R. (Pa.) 147; Stoddard v. Martin, 1 R. I. 1; Hill v. Kidd, 43 Cow. (N. Y.) 615; Forman v. Hardwick, 10 Ala. 316; Howe v. Foster, 19 Ark. 347; Craig v. Andrews, 7 Iowa, 17; Cooper v. Brewster, 1 Minn. 94; Dufresne v. Guerremont, 5 Low. Can. Jurist, 278; Allen v. Hearn, 1 Term R. 56; Stevens v. Sharpe, 26 Ill. 404.

5. Gordon v. Casey, 23 Ill. 70; Sipe v. Finnerty, 6 Iowa, 394.

In some early cases in Illinois it was held that it was not against public policy to make a bet on the result of the Presidential election in another State. Morgan v. Pettit, 3 Scan. 529; Smith v. Smith, 21

Ill. 244. But these cases were afterward overruled. Gregory v. King, 58 Ill. 169.

6. Givens v. Rodgers, 11 Ala. 543; Davis v. Leonard, 69 Ind. 213.

In one case, goods were sold to two parties upon the agreement between themselves, that, if one candidate was elected member of Congress, one of them should pay the whole bill, and the other should pay it if the other candidate received the majority: it was held, that, as the sale was absolute, the seller could recover the contract price, as he had nothing to do with the bet of the buyer. Lurton v. Gilliam, 1 Scam. (Ill.) 577.

After a bet of this kind is decided, it has been held that the losing party may demand and recover his money from the stake holder. Spence v. Wheeler, 15 Conn. 28; Gilmore v. Woodcock, 69 Me. 118; But in California the opposite view was taken. — Johnson v. Russell, 37 Cal. 670, — but that a retraction could be made before the result was known. Hardy v. Hunt, 11 Cal. 343.

An agreement to sell hogs at nine cents a pound, payable when a certain candidate should be elected, has been held to be a wager, and void. Lucas v. Harper, 24 Ohio St. 328. And the buyer may rescind such a wager by delivering back the property before the result has been ascertained. Harper v. Crane, 36 Ohio St. 328.

Money bet on an election cannot be recovered back after it has been paid, in absence of a statutory provision. Schlosser v. Smith, 93 Ind. 83.

List of Authorities. — English Text-Books. — Heywood, County Elections (2d ed.); Clerk, Law of Elections (1st ed.);

ELECTOR—ELEEMOSYNARY—ELEMENTS—ELIGIBLE.

ELECTOR.—One who has the right to make choice of public officers; one who has a right to vote.<sup>1</sup>

ELEEMOSYNARY.—See CHARITIES; CORPORATIONS.

ELEMENTS.—See ACT OF GOD.<sup>2</sup>

ELIGIBLE.—Capable of being legally chosen, and of legally holding.<sup>3</sup>

ELOPEMENT.<sup>4</sup>

Bushby, Election Law (4th ed.); Davis, Registration and Elections (1st ed.); Cox & Grady, Registration and Elections (12th ed.); Simeon, Law of Elections (1st ed.); Male on Elections (2d ed.); Wordsworth on Elections (2d ed.); Roe on Elections (2d ed.); Rogers on Elections (1st ed.); Orme on Elections (1st ed.); Rogers on Election Committees (5th ed.); Saunders, Registration and Elections (1st ed.); Hardcastle, Election Petitions (1st ed.); Wolferstan, Election Petitions (1st ed.); Tancred, Quo Warranto (1st ed.). Canadian Text-Books.—Brough on Elections (1st ed.); Notman, Parliamentary Elections (1st ed.). American Text-Books.—McCrary, American Law of Elections (2d ed.); Glauque, Ohio Election Laws (1st ed.); Cooley, Constitutional Limitations (4th ed.); High, Extraordinary Remedies (1st ed.).

1. Bouv. Law Dict.; Beardstown v. Virginia, 76 Ill. 39.

In Sanford v. Prentice, 28 Wis. 358, a distinction is made between an elector and a voter; the former being one qualified to vote, the latter one who actually does vote. But where a constitution provided that certain laws, before taking effect, should be submitted to the electors of the counties affected thereby, "and be adopted by a majority of such electors," "electors" was held to mean electors voting at the election. Taylor v. Taylor, 10 Minn. 107; Everett v. Smith, 22 Minn. 53. And these words are treated as synonymous, and meaning those qualified to vote, in State v. Tuttle, 53 Wis. 45; s. c., 9 N. W. Rep. 791.

In the expression "qualified electors," the word "qualified" is redundant, the term being in no way distinguishable from "electors." Beardstown v. Virginia, 76 Ill. 43.

2. "Damages by the elements," and "damages by the acts of God," are convertible expressions in the law of leases. "The elements are the means by which God acts." Polack v. Pioche, 35 Cal. 416.

A statutory provision that, where a leased building "shall be destroyed or so injured by the elements or other cause as to be untenable," the lessee, if not in fault, may quit possession, and not be liable for further rent, applies only to cases where the building becomes untenable by reason of some sudden and unexpected calamity, and not by mere failure to repair. Hatch v. Stamper, 42 Conn. 28.

3. The word embraces both ideas. Where one holding a federal office is, by constitutional provision, ineligible to office, he cannot be elected and then render himself eligible by resigning his federal office before the time of entering upon the duties of the other office. Searcy v. Grow, 15 Cal. 117; State v. Clarke, 3 Nev. 566; Carson v. McPhetridge, 15 Ind. 327; Brady v. Howe, 50 Miss. 626.

Conversely, one duly eligible, and elected to an office under the State government, becomes incapacitated to hold the same by accepting and entering upon a federal office. People v. Leonard (Cal.), 14 Pac. Rep. 853.

But, in the absence of statutory provision, eligibility to office is capacity to hold, not capacity to be elected: it is to be determined by the qualifications of the officer at the time of entering upon his office, and not at the time of election. State v. Smith, 14 Wis. 497; State v. Murray, 28 Wis. 99; State v. Trumpf, 50 Wis. 103.

4. Lord Coke says that under the statute of Westm. 2, c. 34, "If the wife elope from her husband, that is, if the wife leave her husband, and goeth away and tarrieth with her adulterer, she shall lose her dower until her husband willingly without coercion ecclesiastical be reconciled unto her, and permit her to cohabit with him." Co. Litt. 32 a. The word elope is not used in the statute, which provides, that "if a wife willingly leave her husband, and go away and continue with her adventerer, she shall be barred forever of action to demand her dower," etc. So that the meaning Lord Coke attaches to the word covers the entire offence specified in the statute. See also Bacon's Ab. "Dower," F.; Cogswell v. Tibbetts, 3 N. Hamp. 41.

Sir William Blackstone, and the courts in many of the cases, exclude the conception "adultery" from the meaning of the word. "Yet now," says Blackstone, "by the statute of Westm. 2, if a woman voluntarily leaves (which the law calls eloping from) her husband, and lives with an adulterer, she shall lose her dower, unless her husband be voluntarily reconciled to her." 2 Bl. Com. 130. In McCutchen v. McGahay, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 281, the court says, "If the wife elopes, without an adulterer, and afterwards offers to return, and the husband refuses to receive her, his liability for her contracts for necessities is revived from that time, notwithstanding a general notice not to trust her." See also McGahay v. Williams, 12 Johns. 293; Hunter v. Boucher, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 289; Harris v. Moore, 4 Esp. 41.

ELSE.<sup>1</sup>

ELSEWHERE.<sup>2</sup>

EMANCIPATION.<sup>3</sup>

To constitute an elopement that will bar the wife's right of dower, by the statute of Westm. 2, the wife must leave and depart from her husband. In an action brought by a widow for dower in certain real estate belonging to her late husband's estate, the plea alleged that the demandant had committed adultery on a particular day, and thereafterwards lived in adultery, during the life of her late husband, he being absent on a voyage to Europe. But there was no allegation that she left, and departed, and dwelt with the adulterer. Said the court, "Notwithstanding any thing alleged in this plea, she may have continued to reside in the family of her late husband during the whole time mentioned in the plea; and however gross her conduct there may have been during the absence of her husband, it is very clear it does not amount to an elopement." Cogswell v. Tibbetts, 3 N. Hamp. 41.

De Grey, C. J., in Hatchett v. Baddeley, 2 Wm. Black. 1080, speaks of the meaning of elopement as follows: "The word elopement is not a legal term, nor has any express meaning in the law. It is not to be found in Bracton, Britton, or Fleta; nor is used in the statute of Westm. 2. The 'Mirror' indeed has the word elopa, but in a different sense; and none of the dictionaries or etymologists explain the word, except Blount and Jacob. Lord Coke is the first that I remember to have mentioned it, and he speaks of a wife's eloping ana remaining with an adulterer. The modern books never speak of an elopement but in a criminal view."

1. An instrument signed "A. B., or else C. D.," but otherwise having the ordinary form of a promissory note, is not a promissory note by C. D. within the statute of Anne, because it operates differently as to the parties. It is an absolute undertaking on the part of A. B. to pay; and it is conditional only on the part of C. D., for he undertakes to pay only in the event of A. B.'s not paying. Ferris v. Bond, 4 B. & Ald. 679.

2. If one who has real estate in the towns of A., B., C., and D., though that in D. greatly exceeds in value that in A., B., or C., devises "all his real estate in A., B., and C., or elsewhere," the real estate in D., if there is nothing in the will to show a contrary intention, will pass by the word "elsewhere." Chester v. Chester, 3 P. Wms. 61; Winn v. Littleton, 1 Vern. 3; Strong v. Teatt, 2 Burr. 912; Freeman v. Chandos, Cowp. 363; Atkyns v. Atkyns, Cowp. 808; Roe v. Reade, 8 Term, 118.

The word "elsewhere" was held to have a similar effect in an act of Parliament, passed by way of settlement in execution of marriage articles. Freeman v. Chandos, Cowp. 360.

Money equitably converted into land may pass in a devise under the word "elsewhere." By marriage articles, it was agreed that the marriage portions should be laid out in the purchase of lands, which were to be settled to such uses and trusts that the husband would have the right of disposition by will. Until a purchase could be had, the money was to be held in trust; and the trustees were to invest it in mortgages, or in government or other securities, and to apply the produce as if lands had been purchased. Before the purchase had been made, the husband died, leaving a will, in which he devised all his "freehold, leasehold, and copyhold lands lying in I. and E., or elsewhere," to his wife for life. It was held that the marriage portions had been equitably converted into land, and passed, by this devise, under the word "elsewhere." "It is said," said L. Ch. Hardwicke, "the lands do not lie anywhere, for they are not yet purchased. [But] when people make such descriptions as the testator has done here, they intend to pass every thing they have in the world. Now, the money is somewhere; and that, by the transmutation of this court, is changed into land."

In shipping articles, the word "elsewhere" must be construed either as void for uncertainty, under the act of Congress of July 20, 1790, for the regulation of seamen in the merchants' service, or as subordinate to the principal voyage stated in the preceding words; the word "voyage" being used as a technical word, and importing a definite commencement and end (Story, J.). Brown v. Jones, 2 Gall. (U. S.) 477; Wood v. The Nimrod, Gilp. (U. S.) 83.

3. When children lose the settlement,

EMBARGO.—An embargo is, in its special sense, a detention of vessels in a port, whether they be national or foreign, whether for the purpose of employing them and their crews in a naval expedition, as was formerly practised, or for political purposes, or by way of reprisals. A civil embargo may be laid for the purpose of national welfare or safety, as for the protection of commercial vessels against the rules of belligerent powers which would expose them to capture. Such was the measure adopted by the United States in December, 1807, which detained in port all vessels except those which had a public commission, and those that were already laden or should sail in ballast. A hostile embargo is a kind of reprisals by one nation upon vessels within its ports belonging to another nation with which a difference exists, for the purpose of forcing it to do justice. If this measure should be followed by war, the vessels are regarded as captured; if by peace, they are restored.<sup>1</sup> under the poor-laws, of their father, by their marriage, or by contracting some other relation, so as wholly and permanently to exclude the parental control; by acquiring a new settlement, or by separating themselves from their father's family after they attain the age of twenty-one years,—they are said to be emancipated. King v. Inh'b'ts of Offchurch, 3 Term, 114; King v. Inh'b'ts of Witton cum Twambrookes, 3 Term, 355; King v. Inh'b'ts of Roach, 6 Term, 247; King v. Inh'b'ts of Woburn, 8 Term, 479; King v. Inh'b'ts of Cowhoneyborne, 10 East, 88; King v. Inh'b'ts of Rotherfield Greys, 1 Barn. & C. 345; King v. Inh'b'ts of Wilmington, 5 Barn. & Ald. 525; Queen v. Inh'b'ts of Rothwell, 72 B. 574 n.; Inh'b'ts of Somerset v. Inh'b'ts of Dighton, 12 Mass. 383; Inh'b'ts of Taunton v. Inh'b'ts of Plymouth, 15 Mass. 203; Overseers of Alexandria v. Overseers of Bethlehem, 1 Harr. (N. J.) 119.

EMBASSADOR.—See AMBASSADOR.

In the law of contracts, when a father expressly, or impliedly by his conduct, waives his right, generally, to the services of a minor child, such child is said to be emancipated. The child may sue, under such circumstances, on such contracts as are made with him for his services. Nightingale v. Withington, 15 Mass. 272; McCoy v. Huffman, 8 Cowen (N. Y.), 84; Stiles v. Granville, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 458.

The Civil Code of Louisiana provides for three sorts of emancipation of minors as follows: 1. Emancipation conferring upon the minor the full administration of his own estate; 2. Emancipation by marriage; 3. Emancipation relieving the minor from the time prescribed by law for attaining the age of majority. Art. 365 et seq.

In the United States, the word "emancipation" is also used to signify the liberation of slaves. See United States Digest, "Slaves."

1. Woolsey's International Law.

An embargo is not required to be, upon the face of the act, definite as to time. It is frequently otherwise. But it is from the very nature and policy of the measure a temporary restraint. An embargo, ex vi termini, means only a temporary suspension of trade. McBride v. Mar. Ins. Co., 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 308; Beale v. Thompson, 3 Bos. & Pul. 416. Embargo means a "prohibition to sail." The William King, 2 Wheat. (U. S.) 153.

Where, after a voyage had commenced, the vessel was detained in a port by the Embargo Act of Dec. 22, 1807, it was held that the insured, under the general words of the policy, which was against "all arrests and restraints," had a right to abandon and recover for a total loss. McBride v. Mar. Ins. Co., 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 299. Whether an embargo be legally or illegally laid, the insurer is equally liable for the loss occasioned by it. Marshall on Insurance, b. 1, c. 12, s. 5.

An embargo, considered as a temporary suspension of commerce, does not operate by a dissolution of any mercantile contract. Baylies v. Fettyplace, 7 Mass. 325; Beale v. Thompson, 3 Bos. & Pul. 405; s. c., 4 East, 546; Hadley v. Clarke, 8 Term, 259.

The Embargo Act of Dec. 22, 1807, was constitutional. 2 Hall's Law Journal, 255; 1 Kent's Com. 432.

EMBEZZLEMENT.

- I. Definition, 451.
- II. What constitutes, 453.
  1. Generally, 453.
  2. Intent, 455.
  3. As Distinguished from Larceny, 455.
- III. What may be embezzled, 458.
  1. In General, 458.
  2. Value Immaterial, 460.
  3. Property and Money sold, kept, or received contrary to Statute, or illegally, 460.
- IV. Clerks and Servants, 461.
  1. Who are, 461.
    - a. Generally, 461.
    - b. Occasional Employment, 463.
    - c. Payment on Commission.—Duty not Compulsory, 464.
    - d. Employment by Other Masters, 465.
  2. What constitutes Embezzlement by, 465.
    - a. Generally, 465.
    - b. Possession or Custody of Goods, 466.
    - c. Employer's Money; Failure to account for; False Entries, etc., 468.
- V. Agents, 471.
  1. Who are Agents: Generally, 471.
  2. What constitutes Embezzlement by; Intent; Possession of Property, 473.
  3. Working on Commissions, 474.
  4. Collecting Agents, 475.
  5. Stockbrokers, 476.
  6. Railroad and Express Agents, 476.
- VI. By Directors, Members, and Officers of Corporations, etc., 477.
  1. By Officers generally, 477.
  2. By Servants, 478.
- VII. By Partners, 479.
- VIII. By Bailee, 480.
- IX. By Attorneys, 481.
- X. By Trustee, 482.
- XI. By Guardian, 483.
- XII. By Carrier, 483.
- XIII. By Banks, Private and National, 483.
  1. Private Banks, 483.
    - a. By Officers generally, 483.
    - b. By Clerk and Cashier, 484.
    - c. Private Bankers and Managers, 484.
  2. National Banks, 485.
    - a. Generally, 485.
    - b. By Officers, 485.
      - (1) By President, 485.
      - (2) By Directors, 486.
      - (3) By Cashier or Teller, 486.
- XIV. By Public Officers, 487.
  1. Of United States Officers, 487.
    - a. Generally, 487.
    2. By State, County, and Municipal Officers, 488.
      - a. What constitutes Offense by, generally, 488.
      - b. De facto Officers, 488.
      - c. State Treasurer, 489.
      - d. County Officers, 489.
        - (1) Treasurer, 489.
        - (2) County Auditor, 489.
        - (3) Deputy Sheriff, 490.
      - e. Township Trustees, 490.
      - f. Municipal Officers, 490.
        - (1) School Treasurer, 490.
        - (2) City Clerk, 490.
        - (3) Town Treasurer, 490.
        - (4) Comptroller, 491.
      - g. Tax Collector, 491.
      - h. Clerks and Servants of Public Officers, 492.
      - i. Persons aiding or abetting Public Officers in Embezzlement, 492.
  - XV. Justices of the Peace, 493.
  - XVI. Constables, 493.
  - XVII. Assignee in Bankruptcy, 493.
  - XVIII. Public Administrator, 493.
  - XIX. From the Mails, 493.
    1. Generally, 493.
    2. Postal Clerks generally, 495.
    3. Mail Carriers and Riders, 495.
    4. By Individuals, 495.
  - XX. Indictment, 495.
    1. In General, 495.
      - a. Sufficiency, Certainty, 495.
      - b. In Language of Statute, negativing Exceptions, 496.
      - c. Averment of Intent, 496.
      - d. Averment as to Demand, 496.
      - e. Averment in Case of Embezzlement of Several Articles, 497.
    2. Averment as to whose Service, 497.
      - a. In General.—Relation of Master and Servant; Principal and Agent, 497.
      - b. In Case of Officers of Societies, 498a.
      - c. In Cases of Bailment, 498b.
      - d. Averment as to Ownership, 498d.
    3. Description, Nature, and Value of Money and Property, 498e.
      - a. Generally, 498e.
      - b. Certainty, 498f.
      - c. Description of Coin or Money; Character of Funds, etc., 498g.
      - d. Averment of Value or Amount, 498h.
      - e. Averments as to Directions for Application of Proceeds, 498h.
    4. Description, Nature, and Value of Money and Property, 498e.
      - a. Generally, 498e.
      - b. Certainty, 498f.
      - c. Description of Coin or Money; Character of Funds, etc., 498g.
      - d. Averment of Value or Amount, 498h.
      - e. Averments as to Directions for Application of Proceeds, 498h.
    5. Averment as to Time, 498h.
    6. Time when must be found.—Statute of Limitations, 498i.
    7. Counts, 498i.
      - a. Joinder, 498i.
      - b. Joinder of Embezzlement and Larceny, 498j.

8. Averments Necessary in Embezzlement from National Banks, 498k.
9. Public Officers, 498k.
  - a. Averment as to Official Capacity, 498k.
  - b. Averment as to Manner of Acquisition of Office, 498l.
  - c. Averment as to Ownership of Money, 498l.
  - d. Averment as to Failure to Account, 498m.
10. In Embezzlement from Mails, 498n.
- XXI. The Venue and Jurisdiction, 498o.
  1. Venue, 498o.
  2. Jurisdiction, 498p.
- XXII. Defences — Pleas in Bar, 498q.
- XXIII. Bill of Particulars, 498r.
- XXIV. The Trial, 498r.
  1. Practice, 498r.
  2. Charge to Jury, 498s.
  3. Evidence, 498s.
    - a. Presumptions. — Burden of Proof, 498s.
    - b. Of Venue, 498s.
    - c. Documentary Evidence, 498t.
      - (1) Transcripts from Public Offices. — Written Statements, etc., 498t.
      - (2) Books of Account; Receipts, etc., 498t.
  - d. Parol Evidence, 498u.
  - e. Confessions, Admissions, and Statements made by the Accused, 498u.
  - f. Declarations of Owner of Property, 498v.
  - g. Proof of Service, 498v.
  - h. To show Intent. — Similar Acts, 498w.
  - i. Of Time. — Days stated, 498w.
  - j. To show Obtaining of Money, and Application of Proceeds, 498x.
  - k. Of Demand and Refusal, 498x.
  - l. Of Custom, 498x.
  - m. Of Value, 498y.
  - n. Of Defendant's Financial Condition, 498y.
  - o. Competency. — Relevancy, 498y.
  - p. Sufficiency, 498z.
3. Witnesses. — Experts. — Credibility, 499.
4. Variance, 499a.
5. Verdict, 499a.
  - a. In General, 499a.
  - b. Conviction of, under an Indictment for Theft, 499a.
6. The Punishment, 499b.

I. Definition. — Embezzlement is a crime unknown to the common law, but depends entirely upon statutory enactments; is a sort of statutory larceny,<sup>1</sup> and may be defined as a fraudulent appropriation to one's own use of the money or goods of another, which were intrusted to his care as servant, bailee, or otherwise.<sup>2</sup> Though kindred to theft, embezzlement is a separate and distinct offence. Theft involves the idea of an unlawful acquisition,

1. State v. Wolff, 34 La. Ann. 1153; Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 527.

2. Cothran v. The Hanover Nat. Bank, 40 N. Y. Super. Ct. (8 J. & S.) 401. See also Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629; State v. Mason, 108 Ind. 48; State v. Baldwin, 57 Iowa, 266; s. c., 30 N. W. Rep. 476; Johnson v. Com., 5 Bush (Ky.), 431; Barclay v. Breckinridge, 4 Met. (Ky.) 374; Com. v. Hays, 80 Mass. (14 Grav) 62; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 662; Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 185; State v. Heath, 8 Mo. App. 99; Chaplin v. Lee, 18 Neb. 440; s. c., 25 N. W. Rep. 609; People v. Dalton, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 581; People v. Burr, 41 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 294; State v. Snell, 9 R. I. 112; Brady v. State, 21 Tex. App. 659; s. c., 1 S. W. Rep. 462; State v. Johnson, 21 Tex. 775; Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 527; Rex v. Taylor, 3 B. & P. 596; Reg. v. Jackson, 1 Car. & K. 384; Reg. v. Chapman, 1 Car. & K. 119; Regina v. Norman,

1 Car. & M. 501; Rex v. Murray, 5 Car. & P. 145; s. c., 1 Mood. 276; Rex v. Headge, 2 Leach (4th ed.) 1033; s. c., Russ. & Ry. 168; Rex v. Grove, 1 Mood. 447; Rex v. Hall, Russ. & Ry. 463; s. c., 3 Stark 67.

Money Paid by Mistake. — Where money is paid by mistake to the defendant, and by him converted to his own use with felonious intent, he cannot be convicted of embezzlement. State v. Heath, 8 Mo. App. 106. A relation of trust must exist, but the fiduciary relation essential to characterize the crime is sufficiently set forth by an averment that the property was delivered to the defendant upon the trust and confidence that he would return it to the owner on demand. See Commonwealth v. Hussey, 111 Mass. 435; Commonwealth v. Hays, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 62; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 661; Commonwealth v. Concannon, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 502; Commonwealth v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1.

whereas embezzlement is a fraudulent conversion of personal property after its possession has been lawfully acquired.<sup>1</sup>

The statutory offence of embezzlement originated in the necessity which resulted from the inapplicability of the common law of larceny to breaches of trust by persons occupying fiduciary relations.<sup>2</sup> The fraudulent conversion may be consummated in any

1. Chaplin v. Lee, 18 Neb. 440; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 379; Simco v. State, 8 Tex. App. 406; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 113.

To constitute Embezzlement it is essential that the owner should be deprived of the property alleged to be embezzled by an adverse use or holding. Chaplin v. Lee, 18 Neb. 440; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 379.

The first possession being lawful, the act of embezzlement consists, in a certain sense, in a mere act of the mind, without any outward and visible trespass, as in the case of ordinary larceny, and that this act of fraudulent appropriation has taken place may be inferred from the conduct of the defendant. Hence, in this case, the facts (which the evidence fairly tended to prove) that defendant having come into possession of an order on the county treasurer, which he knew that his predecessor had redeemed, but had neglected to mark "paid," falsely marked it as paid and redeemed by himself, and falsely credited himself in the books of his office with the amount as disbursed by himself, and subsequently returned it to the county auditor as paid and redeemed by himself, and fraudulently obtained credit therefor upon the books of the county auditor; held, to constitute sufficient evidence to warrant the jury in finding an actual conversion by defendant of public money to his own use, and was therefore sufficient to sustain verdict of guilty. State v. Baumhager, 28 Minn. 226; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 823.

In Illinois. — Statute defining Embezzlement construed. — The word "care," as used in sect. 75 of the criminal code relating to embezzlement, is the equivalent of "custody," and may mean "charge," "safe keeping," "preservation," or "security." The word "possession," as used in the same section, has, perhaps, a different and broader meaning than the word "care;" but it may also mean "to keep," "to take or seize hold," "to hold or occupy," as the owner of property would or might do; and it matters little whether one or both words are used in an indictment. Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629.

In Indiana. — What is now generally known as the crime of embezzlement, under act of March 5, 1883, was at one time usually treated and punished as a form or species of larceny, and it still has some features in common therewith. It is purely a statutory crime, its definition varying with the varying statutes; but in general terms it may be said to be the fraudulent appropriation, by one person, to his own use, of money or property intrusted to his care and control by another. State v. Mason, 108 Ind. 48.

The Kentucky Statute, in relation to embezzlement, embraces all persons who are guilty of fraudulently secreting or converting to their own use the money or property of others intrusted to them, or placed in their hand for the purpose of being carried or delivered. Johnson v. Com., 5 Bush (Ky.), 431.

In Louisiana, it is said that "embezzle" includes in its meaning appropriation to one's own use, and, therefore, the use of the word "embezzle" in an indictment or information contains the charge that the defendant appropriated the money or property to his own use. State v. Wolff, 34 La. An. 1153; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611.

In Texas. — In order to constitute embezzlement under the laws of Texas, the accused must occupy the designated fiduciary relation, and the money or property must belong to his principal, and come to the possession of the accused by virtue of that relation. Griffin v. State, 4 Tex. App. 390. Embezzlement is eo nomine an offence against the laws of Texas, and is fully defined in art. 786 et seq. of chap. 16 of the Penal Code. Hodges v. State, 22 Tex. App. 415; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 555, 556.

Repeal of Statute. — Saving Clause. — Pending Prosecutions. — The proviso to sect. 3 of the Indiana act of March 21, 1879, upon the subject of embezzlement (Acts 1879, p. 126), saved the right to prosecute for offences committed under the previous statute upon the subject of embezzlement, and the right to continue pending prosecutions thereunder. State v. Smith, 72 Ind. 549.

2. Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 527.

Defects of the Common Law. — The defects of the common law by means of which many persons, who unlawfully appropriated another's goods, escaped criminal prosecution, though the moral turpitude of the offence was as great as in the case of larceny proper, were two. The first of these gaps was constituted by the position, that, to maintain larceny, the stolen goods must at some time have been in the prosecutor's possession. The second resulted from the assumption, that when possession of manner capable of effecting it; and its commission is a question of fact, and not of pleading, when the indictment charges that the defendant did embezzle, fraudulently misapply, and convert to his own use the property intrusted to him.<sup>1</sup>

II. What Constitutes. — 1. Generally. — It is often said that embezzlement is only a breach of trust; but this is misleading, for it is one species of a breach of trust which has been declared criminal by statute.<sup>2</sup> It is said that a person charged with embezgoods is acquired bona fide by the bailee no subsequent fraudulent conversion can be larceny while the bailment lasts. 1 Whart. Cr. L. (9th ed.) sect. 1009. See Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 11; Com. v. Hays, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 62; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 662; State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517; State v. Shirer, 20 S. C. 392; Cartwright v. Green, 8 Ves. 405.

1. Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528.

Embezzlement not an Infamous Crime. — Embezzlement is not an "infamous crime" within the intention of the fifth amendment of the Constitution; and hence, a person charged therewith may be tried without the intervention of a grand jury. United States v. Reilly, 20 Fed. Rep. 46; s. c., 18 Cent. L. J. 457. See 4 Am. & Eng. Encyc. of L. 644 et seq.

No crime is "infamous" within the meaning of Constitutional Amendment V. unless expressly made infamous by an act of Congress. State v. Gardner, 1 Root (Conn.), 485; Clark v. Hall, 2 Har. & McH. (Md.) 378; Com. v. Keith, 49 Mass. (8 Metc.) 531; Com. v. Barlow, 4 Mass. 439; Com. v. Macomber, 3 Mass. 257; Cushman v. Loker, 2 Mass. 106; In re Truman, 44 Mo. 181; Lyford v. Farrar, 31 N. H. (11 Fost.) 314; People v. Whipple, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 707; People v. Herrick, 13 Johns. (N. Y.), 82; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 364; State v. Keyes, 8 Vt. 65, 66; s. c., 30 Am. Dec. 450; Wilson v. State, 1 Wis. 184; Moore v. State, 55 U. S. (14 How.) 13; bk. 14, L. ed. 306; United States v. Reid, 53 U. S. (12 How.) 364; bk. 13, L. ed. 1204; Fox v. State, 46 U. S. (5 How.) 410, 438; bk. 12, L. ed. 212; Wheaton v. Peters, 33 U. S. (8 Pet.) 591; bk. 8, L. ed. 1055; United States v. Mills, 32 U. S. (7 Pet.) 138; bk. 8, L. ed. 636; United States v. Wiltberger, 18 U. S. (5 Wheat.) 76, 93, 96; bk. 5, L. ed. 154; United States v. Bevans, 16 U. S. (3 Wheat.) 336; bk. 4, L. ed. 403; United States v. Coolidge, 14 U. S. (1 Wheat.) 415; bk. 3, L. ed. 124; United States v. Hudson, 11 U. S. (7 Cr.) 34; bk. 3, L. ed. 144; United States v. Burr, 8 U. S. (4 Cr.) 470; bk. 2, L. ed. 699; United States v. Shepard, 1 Abb. C. C. 436, 440; United States v. Okie, 5 Blatchf. C. C. 516; United States v. Wilson, 3 Blatchf. C. C. 435; United States v. Golding, 2 Cr. C. C. 212;

Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cr. C. C. 137; United States v. Maxwell, 3 Dill. C. C. 275, 278; United States v. Clayton, 2 Dill. C. C. 226; United States v. Hawthorne, 1 Dill. C. C. 422; United States v. Shepherd, 1 Hughes C. C. 520; United States v. Wynn, 3 McCr. C. C. 266; s. c., 9 Fed. Rep. 886; United States v. Patterson, 6 McL. C. C. 467, 468; United States v. Lancaster, 2 McL. C. C. 431, 433; United States v. Block, 4 Sawy. C. C. 212; United States v. Waller, 1 Sawy. C. C. 701; United States v. Magill, 1 Wash. C. C. 464, 465; United States v. New Bedford Bridge, 1 Woodb. & M. C. C. 401; In re Wilson, 18 Fed. Rep. 33; United States v. Clark, Crabbe (U. S. D. C.), 584; United States v. Cross, 1 McAr. (D. C.) 149; United States v. Yates, 6 Fed. Rep. 861; United States v. Coppersmith, 4 Fed. Rep. 198; United States v. Baugh, 1 Fed. Rep. 784; Rex v. Priddle, Leach, 442; Rex v. Davis, 5 Mod. 75; Pendock v. Mackender, 2 Wils. 18; Am. Jur. and other authorities cited United States v. Brady, (Star Route Cases, U. S. D. C.); 3 Cr. L. Mag. 69; 1 Bish. Cr. L. sects. 581, 584, 621, 743, 974; 4 Bl. Com. 94, 95, 230; Chit. Cr. L. 599, 600, 601; Coke Litt. 391a 6b note 1; Coke Litt. 6 a. b.; Conk. Tr. 83; 1 Greenl. Ev. sects. 372, 373, p. 15; 2 Hale P. C. 277; 1 Hale P. C. c. 43, p. 503; 1 Kent Com. 336, 337; 1 Phil. Ev. 22, 23, note; 1 Russ. Cr. (Graves, ed.) 44, 46, 47; Serg. Const. L. 345; 1 Stark. Ev. 94, 95; 4 Tuck. Bl. No. 10 of Appendix; Wheat. Cr. L. (3d ed.) 354 et seq.; Willis, 665; 3 Wilson's Works, 371, 377.

2. The court says, in Com. v. Hayes, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 63, that "The statutes relating to embezzlement, both in this country and England, had their origin in a design to supply a defect which was found to exist in the criminal law. By reason of nice and subtle distinctions, which the courts of law had recognized and sanctioned, it was difficult to reach and punish the fraudulent taking and appropriation of money and chattels by persons exercising certain trades and occupations, by virtue of which they held a relation of confidence or trust toward their employers or principals, and thereby became possessed of their property. . . . The statutes relating to embezzlement were intended to embrace this class of zlement must have been an agent, clerk, or servant, and must have come into possession of the money or chattels, alleged to have been embezzled, by virtue of his employment in such capacity.<sup>1</sup> But where one places his money in the hands of another, relying upon his honesty or responsibility for its return, with the stipulated interest, then a failure of the party to properly account offences; and it may be said, generally, that they do not apply to cases where the element of a breach of trust or confidence, and the fraudulent conversion of money or chattels, is not shown to exist."

1. People v. Sherman, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 299; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 563; Regina v. Goodbody, 8 Car. & P. 665; Rex v. Prince, 2 Car. & P. 517; Rex v. Barker, 1 D. & R. N. P. C. 19; Rex v. Mellish, R. & R. 80.

A Servant may be found guilty of embezzlement, though he is not a general servant, but is employed to receive in a single instance only. Rex v. Hughes, 1 Mood. C. C. 370. It has been held that a servant, receiving money on his employer's account, commits embezzlement by converting it into his own use, although the employer had no right to it, and would be a wrong-doer in receiving it. Rex v. Beacall, 1 Car. & P. 454; s. c., 11 Eng. C. L. 448.

A Clerk intrusted to receive money at home from out-door collectors, receiving it abroad from out-door customers, was considered as acting thus "by virtue of his employment." Rex v. Beechey, R. & R. 318.

An Agent.—An indictment for embezzlement lies against an agent for converting to his own use the money, goods, etc., of any other person, which shall have come into his possession by virtue of his employment as agent. Com. v. Stearns, 42 Mass. (2 Metc.) 343; People v. Hennessey, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 147.

Continuing Offence.—Arrangements for embezzlement by the fraudulent issue of checks were made between C, the aiding and abetting accomplice, and B, the principal, Sept. 21. The embezzlement was consummated by cashing the checks Sept. 24. Held, that C's offence was continuous from the arrangements of the 21st, to the consummation on the 24th. State v. Cushing, 11 R. I. 313.

Proof of a continuous series of conversions of money by an officer to the use of another, in pursuance of a conspiracy between them, will support a verdict of the jury finding the aggregate sum as the amount of a single embezzlement. Brown v. State, 18 Ohio St. 496.

Converting Mortgage to Own Use.—If the execution of a deed of mortgage has been procured by mere fraud, the person who executed it may lawfully take it into his possession wherever he can find it; but if it was executed for a valuable consideration, even though the full sum named therein was not actually due, it is the property of the mortgagee; and if the mortgageor afterwards obtains possession of it from a person with whom it has been deposited, for the purpose of conveying the same to the mortgagee, and, instead of so conveying it, fraudulently and feloniously converts the same to his own use, knowing that he has no right to retain it, he may be convicted of embezzlement. Com. v. Concanon, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 502.

Necessity of Demand to Constitute Conversion.—Where the party making a demand for money, claimed to have been embezzled, had no authority to make such demand, no lawful demand for the money is made, and a refusal of such demand does not constitute a conversion. People v. Tomlinson, 66 Cal. 344; s. c., 20 Cent. L. J. 197. See 5 Am. & Eng. Encycl. of Lit. tit. Demand, p. —.

In Massachusetts.—Fraudulent conversion to one's own use of money paid to him by mistake is not embezzlement, within Mass. Stat. 1857, ch. 233. Com. v. Hays, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 62. See Kribs v. People, 82 Ill. 425.

Missouri Revised Statutes, Sect. 1322, has application only to those who occupy the relation of common carriers, or some similar contractual relation, and does not apply to a mortgageor to whom a mortgage has been intrusted for record, and who fails to have it recorded. State v. Grisham, 90 Mo. 163 s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267.

In Vermont.—Where defendants fraudulently concealed effects of the deceased before administration granted, with the intent of finally converting the same to their own use, but which the administrator afterwards found in their possession, held, embezzlement under Vt. Gen. Stat. ch. 51, sect. 10. Spaulding v. Cook, 48 Vt. 145.

A tenant in common with an intestate, removing the property, but without denying the right of the estate, or refusing to account, is not within the liabilities of Vt. Comp. Stat. ch. 50, sect. 11, as there must be an intention of wrongfully abstracting to the injury of the assets. Batchelder v. Tenney, 27 Vt. 578.

for the money so received will not subject him to a criminal prosecution for embezzlement.<sup>1</sup>

2. Intent.—Intent to convert funds or property to one's own use is a necessary element in embezzlement; and, therefore, before the offence can be made out, it must distinctly appear that the respondent has acted with a felonious intent, and made an intentionally wrong disposal, indicating a design to cheat and deceive the owner.<sup>2</sup>

3. As Distinguished from Larceny.—Embezzlement, as contradistinguished from larceny, is purely a statutory offence, and should never be made to overlap common-law larceny. Any thing which is indictable at common law, as larceny, should never be indictable under the statute providing a punishment for embezzlement, and vice versa.<sup>3</sup>

It may be laid down as a general proposition, that when property, lawfully in the custody of an employee or bailee, is criminally appropriated to the use of such employee or bailee, the offence may be embezzlement, but it cannot be larceny,<sup>4</sup> yet the crime of

1. Cribs v. People, 82 Ill. 425. See Com. v. Hays, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 62.

If a Minor Son places in the Hands of a Third Person to deliver to his Father certain bounty money received for enlisting in the United States service, which the said third party unlawfully appropriates to his own use, an indictment for embezzlement, describing the money as the property of the father, will be sustained against the offender. Com. v. Norton, 93 Mass. (11 Allen) 110.

2. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; People v. Gray, 66 Cal. 271; Beaty v. State, 82 Ind. 228; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; People v. Galland, 55 Mich. 628; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 425; People v. Hurst, 41 Mich. 328; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 354; People v. Wadsworth (Mich.), 6 West Rep. 180; State v. Reilly, 4 Mo. App. 392; State v. Lyon, 45 N. J. L. (16 Vr.) 272; United States v. Sander, 6 McL. C. C. 598.

Felonious Intent.—Intent to convert funds to one's own use is a necessary element in embezzlement, and is a question of fact to be decided in view of the circumstances. People v. Galland, 55 Mich. 628; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 425.

Same.—Embezzlement.—Felonious Intent.—Where one is charged with the embezzlement of money or property intrusted to him, an intent to feloniously appropriate it, at the time of the appropriation, is essential; and if the appropriation is made upon the belief, honestly entertained by the defendant, that he has lawful title or right to the money or property, the act is not criminal. Beaty v. State, 82 Ind. 228; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

Same.—Presumed from Illegal Use.—Where one uses the money of another without right to do so, and thereby converts it to his own use, the statute infers a fraudulent intent, and punishes the act as embezzlement. People v. Wadsworth, (Mich.); 6 West Rep. 180.

Where the Facts do not show whether the Act committed amounts to a Breach of Trust or Felony, the former will be presumed. Barclay v. Breckenridge, 4 Met. (Ky.) 374. Thus in a case where there was nothing indicating concealment or a felonious disposition on the part of the defendant, but where he made a candid admission immediately upon inquiry, and thereafter made partial payment, and gave security at different times when asked, there was no offence of embezzlement established. People v. Hurst, 41 Mich. 328; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 354.

3. See Fulton v. State, 13 Ark. 168; Kibs v. People, 81 Ill. 599; 1 Whart. Cr. L. sect. 1009; 3 Chit. Cr. L. 291.

Power of Legislature to include Larceny.—Being purely a creature of the statute, the Legislature has power to so prescribe its limits as to make it include the common-law offence of larceny, or to permit a conviction for larceny under an indictment for embezzlement. Planters' Ins. Co. v. Tunstall, 72 Ala. 142; People v. Salorse, 62 Cal. 139; Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 630; State v. Wengo, 89 Ind. 204; Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5; Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; State v. Sluner, 20 S. C. 392; Reg. v. Cooper, 2 L. R. C. C. 123. See also N. Y. Penal Code, sect. 528.

4. See Pullman v. State, 78 Ala. 31; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 21; People v. Salorse, 62 Cal. 139; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448; State v. Wingo, 89 Ind. 204; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag.

embezzlement embraces all the elements of larceny, except the actual taking of the property embezzled, that being already right-

448; Warmoth v. Com., 81 Ky. 133; People v. Nichols, 3 Park. (N. Y.) Cr. Cas. 579; State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616; Rex v. Sullens, Car. C. L. 319; s. c., 1 Mood. C. C. 129; Reg. v. Haywood, 1 C. & K. 518; Reg. v. Gill, 6 Cox, C. C., 295; s. c., Dears. C. C. 289; 23 L. J., M. C. 50; 18 Jur. 70; Reg. v. Goodneough, 6 Cox, C. C. 206; Reg. v. Hawkins, 4 Cox, C. C., 224; Reg. v. Goodneough, Dears. C. C. 210; Reg. v. Hawkins, 1 Den. C. C. 584; s. c., T. & M. 328; 14 Jur. 513; Rex v. Headge, 2 Leach, C. C., 1033; s. c., R. & R. C. C. 160; Rex v. Whittingham, 2 Leach, C. C., 912.

Larceny is the felonious stealing, taking, and carrying away of the personal goods of another. State v. Wingo, 89 Ind. 204; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 661. See tit. "Larceny," this series.

Appropriation by Husband of Money intrusted to Wife.—If the husband feloniously takes, and converts to his own use, money deposited with his wife to be kept for the benefit of a third person, without her association in the crime, he is guilty of larceny, and not of embezzlement. Pullman v. State, 78 Ala. 31; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 21.

Goods in Possession of Master.—A. had agreed to buy straw from B., and he had sent his servant C. to fetch it. C. did so, and put down the whole quantity at the door of A.'s stable, which was in the courtyard of A. Part of the straw was put into the hayloft, but part was taken away by C. and sold. Held, that this was larceny, and not embezzlement, as the delivery was complete when the straw was put down at the stable-door. Reg. v. Hayward, 1 C. & K. 518.

Goods received from Master.—If a servant receives from his master, goods, and sells and appropriates them to his own use, he is guilty of larceny, and not embezzlement. Reg. v. Hawkins, 4 Cox, C. C., 224.

Generally where the agent has received goods or money to carry, deliver, or control for his principal, unless the agent parts with the manual possession, and delivers the property to the principal, or another for him, he cannot be convicted of larceny. The offence is embezzlement. Warmoth v. Com., 81 Ky. 133.

Goods or Note given by Master to Servant.—Where the prosecutor gave his servant a five-pound note to get changed, which he did, and made off with the change, held, that it was embezzlement, and not larceny. Rex v. Sullens, Car. C. L. 319; 1 Mood. C. C. 129.

The prisoner having been trusted by his master with a number of articles of soldier's clothing for the purpose of selling them, and ten pounds of silver to enable him to give change, sailed in a ship for the coast of Africa, having, before his departure, written to his master to say that he would send the account, together with a remittance, from Madeira; held, that he could not be convicted of embezzlement, having received the goods from his master himself, and not from another for and on account of his master; but that he might have been convicted of larceny. Reg. v. Hawkins, 1 Den. C. C. 584; s. c., T. & M. 328; 14 Jur. 513.

Receiving Money from Master to be expended in Business.—Appropriation.—The prisoner, who was clerk to the prosecutor, was indicted for embezzling certain moneys belonging to his master. The evidence showed that the prisoner had received, at different times, several sums of money from the prosecutor, a dealer in skins, for the purpose of purchasing skins; the prisoner obtained the skins on credit, and applied the money to his own use, but debited prosecutor in his day-book with several sums of money as having been paid for the skins. The jury found the prisoner not guilty of embezzlement, but guilty of larceny. Held, that the conviction was wrong. Reg. v. Goodneough, Dears. C. C. 210; s. c., 6 Cox, C. C., 206.

Marked Money given by Master to Third Person to pass at Shop.—The prosecutor gave some marked money to J. W. to expend at his (the prosecutor's) shop, for the purpose of detecting a servant, of whom the master had suspicions. The servant was convicted of embezzling a portion of the marked money. Held, that the conviction was right. Reg. v. Gill, 6 Cox, C. C., 295; s. c., Dears. C. C. 289; 23 L. J. M. C. 50; 18 Jur. 70.

If a servant secretes moneys, which his master has marked and sent by a friend to make a purchase at his shop, with a view to try the honesty of his servant, it is a felonious breach of trust, and an embezzlement, and not a larceny at common law. Rex v. Headge, 2 Leach, C. C., 1033; s. c., R. & R. C. C. 160; Rex v. Whittingham, 2 Leach, C. C., 912.

A Common Carrier on a Canal received a quantity of iron, to be conveyed from Albany to Buffalo. At an intermediate point, with the aid of one of the boat-hands, and with a felonious intent, he put off a certain quantity, and carried the rest to Buffalo. Held, that the crime was not larceny, but embezzlement under the New York statutes, and that an acquittal on a fully in the possession of the embezzler.<sup>1</sup> And in order to a conviction for embezzlement, it is necessary to prove that the possession of the property, as distinguished from its mere custody, was in the defendant. If the actual or constructive possession was in the owner, then the wrongful conversion would be larceny, and not embezzlement. The two offences are distinct, and must be set out in such terms as will indicate the precise offence intended to be charged.<sup>2</sup> charge of larceny for this offence was no bar to an indictment for the same offence as embezzlement. People v. Nichols, 3 Park. (N. Y.) Cr. Cas. 579. But see some case on appeal.

Obtaining Property by False Pretences.

— If a person honestly receives the possession of goods, chattels, or money of another upon any trust, express or implied, and, after receiving them, fraudulently converts them to his own use, he may be guilty of the crime of embezzlement, but cannot be convicted of larceny, except as embezzlement is by statute made larceny. If the possession of such property is obtained by fraud, and the owner of it intends to part with his title as well as his possession, the offence is that of obtaining property by false pretences, provided the means by which they are acquired are such as, in law, are false pretences. If the possession is fraudulently obtained with intent, and on the part of the person obtaining it at the time he receives it, to convert the same to his own use, and the person parting with it intends to part with his possession merely, and not with his title to the property, the offence is larceny. Com. v. Barry, 124 Mass. 325; s. c., 7 Cent. L. J. 98.

The defendant was charged and convicted of embezzlement of a horse hired to him by another. Upon appeal, it was claimed that the conviction was erroneous, because the offence committed, if any, was larceny, and not embezzlement. Held, that when an act of taking co-exists with a felonious intent to deprive the owner of his property, the offence is complete. Hence, if, at the time of receiving the horse from its owner, the defendant had the fraudulent intent to take it and convert it to his own use, and to deprive the owner of it, and did, in fact, obtain possession for that purpose, he would have been guilty of larceny, because a fraudulent receipt of the property of another amounts, in law, to a taking without his consent; but in this case there was no charge against the defendant, and no proof that the original taking was felonious; and the offence, therefore, constituted embezzlement, and not larceny. People v. Salorse, 62 Cal. 139; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448.

In Indiana it has been held that whatever would be embezzlement under the act of 1879 (Acts 1879, p. 126), would not be larceny, though it might have been larceny before the passage of that act, that act having the effect of so modifying, by implication, the older statute defining larceny. Hence, a servant who, being without fraud intrusted with the possession of his master's goods, feloniously sells and thus converts them to his own use, is now guilty of embezzlement and not of larceny. State v. Wingo, 89 Ind. 204; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448.

In North Carolina the distinction between the statute which makes embezzlement a felony punishable as larceny, and the English statute which makes it larceny, is noted in State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616.

1. State v. Baldwin, 70 Iowa, 180.

Embezzlement retains so much of the Character of Larceny that it is essential to the commission of the crime that the owner be deprived of property embezzled, by an adverse holding or use. Com. v. Este, 140 Mass. 279.

2. Com. v. Berry, 99 Mass. 428; Com. v. O'Malley, 97 Mass. 584; Com. v. King, 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 284; Com. v. Doherty, 127 Mass. 20; s. c., 9 Cent. L. J. 77.

When Guilty of Embezzlement for Appropriation of Property in Custody merely.—

Under the English statutes, and those similar to them, that is, those which provide that a clerk or servant shall be guilty of the crime of embezzlement when he converts personal property which comes into his possession, "for and in the name, or on the account, of his master or employer," but does not use the words "by virtue of such employment," to constitute embezzlement on the part of an agent or servant, the thing embezzled must not have come into the master's hands before it is received by the servant; because if it does, whether delivered to the servant by the master or by another, the conversion of it will be larceny, and not embezzlement. The possession of the servant is the possession of the master, except in those cases where the property is delivered by a third person to the servant for delivery to the master, in which case the possession is the servant's; where the property is delivered to the servant by the master, the control is that of

III. What may be Embezzled. — 1. In General. — Any money or personal property belonging to the principal, master, or employer, which comes into the possession or control of a servant, clerk, or agent, may be embezzled.<sup>1</sup> Thus a servant, agent, or clerk, who the master, and the servant has the mere custody of the goods or property; hence, in order that the servant may have such lawful possession as to render him guilty of embezzlement for the appropriation of the goods, they must have been delivered to him by a third person. Warmouth v. Com., 81 Ky. 133; Johnson v. Com., 5 Bush (Ky.), 431; Gill v. Bright, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 130; Com. v. Doherty, 127 Mass. 20; People v. Burr, 41 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 293; United States v. Clew, 4 Wash. C. C. 700; Reg. v. Butler, 2 Car. & K. 340; Reg. v. Hayward, 1 Car. & K. 518; Reg. v. Smith, 1 Car. & K. 423; Reg. v. Evans, Car. & M. 632; Reg. v. Beaman, Car. & M. 595; Reg. v. Goode, Car. & M. 582; Reg. v. Wilson, 9 Car. & P. 27; Rex v. Freeman, 5 Car. & P. 534; Rex v. White, 4 Car. & P. 46; Reg. v. Hawkins, 1 Den. C. C. 584; Rex v. Robinson, 2 East, P. C., 565; Rex v. Paradise, 2 East, P. C., 565; Reg. v. Watts, 2 Den. C. C. 14; 1 Eng. L. & Eq. 558; Rex v. Bakewell, 2 Leach (4th ed.), 943; Rex v. Abrahath, 2 Leach (4th ed.), 824; s. c., 2 East, P. C., 569; Rex v. Chipchase, 2 Leach (4th ed.), 699; s. c., 2 East, P. C., 567; Rex v. Bass, 1 Leach (4th ed.), 251; s. c., 2 East, P. C., 566; Reg. v. Heath, 2 Mood. C. C. 33; Reg. v. Jackson, 2 Mood. C. C. 32; Rex v. Metcalf, 1 Mood. C. C. 433; Rex v. Murray, 1 Mood. C. C. 276; Rex v. Stock, 1 Mood. C. C. 87; Reg. v. Masters, 12 Jur. 942; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 332; Temp. & M. 1; 2 Car. & K. 930; Peck's Case, 2 Russell on Crimes (3 Eng. ed.), 180; Rex v. Smith, 1 R. & R. C. C. 267; Rex v. Hammon, R. & R. C. C. 221; Rex v. Walsh, 4 Taunt. 258; s. c., 2 Leach (4th ed.), 1054; R. & R. C. C. 215.

The Servant of a Co-Partnership who fraudulently appropriates money which he has received from one member of the firm, under the direction to carry it to another member, is not guilty of embezzlement, but of larceny. Com. v. Berry, 99 Mass. 428; Com. v. O'Malley, 97 Mass. 584; Com. v. Hays, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 62; People v. Call, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 120; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 655; United States v. Clew, 4 Wash. C. C. 702. And where A. agreed to loan B. a certain sum of money, and gave him money to a larger amount to count in A.'s presence, A. took therefrom the sum agreed to be lent, and B. after counting the money refused on demand to return any of it to A., and carried it all away. He was held guilty of larceny, and not of embezzlement. Com. v. O'Malley, 97 Mass. 584. See Com. v. Wilde, 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 83; s. c., 66 Am.

Dec. 350; People v. Call, 1 Den. (N. Y.) 120; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 655; Reg. v. Tompson, 9 Cox, C. C., 244; Reg. v. Janason, 4 Cox, C. C., 82.

Taking Goods from Shop or Store after Business Hours. — It has been held that the felonious taking of goods from the owner's shop by clerk or packer in his employ, who had keys, by means of which at the time in question he entered the shop after it was closed, but who was not a salesman, although the owners had occasionally allowed him to take and sell goods for them, is larceny, and not embezzlement. Com. v. Davis, 104 Mass. 548. See Fulton v. State, 13 Ark. 168; Com. v. Berry, 99 Mass. 428; State v. Coombs, 55 Me. 477; State v. Healy, 48 Mo. 531.

Appropriation of Goods by Mercantile Clerk. — It has been held, that under the English statutes, and those similarly worded, when a clerk in a mercantile house takes goods and converts them to his own use, he is guilty of larceny, and not embezzlement, for the reason that he has a limited and qualified possession of goods as to a stranger, but as against the owner he has neither possession nor the right to possession. Cobletz v. State, 36 Tex. 353.

Embezzling Proceeds of Property. — The proceeds of property may be embezzled, as well as the property itself. Thus, when a servant who has the mere custody of property is employed to sell goods or to change a bank-note, and he appropriates to his own use the goods or the note, he is guilty of larceny, and not embezzlement. See Rex v. Freeman, 5 Car. & P. 534; Rex v. White, 4 Car. & P. 46; 1 Wharton Cr. L. 956 et seq. However, if he sells the goods, procures the change for the note, and absconds with the proceeds, he is guilty of embezzlement, and not larceny. Com. v. King, 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 284; Rex v. Winnall, 5 Cox, C. C., 326; Rex v. Sullens, 1 Mood. C. C. 129. See State v. Foster, 37 Iowa, 404; Johnson v. Com., 5 Bush (Ky.), 431; Reg. v. Gale, 13 Cox, C. C., 340; s. c., 35 L. T. N. S. 526; Reg. v. Keena, 11 Cox, C. C., 123; s. c., L. R. 1, C. C. 113; Rex v. Hartley, R. & R. C. C. 139.

1. See People v. Williams, 60 Cal. 1; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 822; State v. Stoller, 38 Iowa, 321; State v. Orwig, 24 Iowa, 102; Com. v. King, 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 284; Com. v. Stearns, 43 Mass. (2 Met.) 343; Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5; Brown v. State, 23 Tex. App. 214; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; State v. White, 66 Wis. 343; 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355;

appropriates to his own use bank-bills, obtained by him on a check drawn by his principal or master, is guilty of embezzlement;<sup>1</sup> and the same is true of a similar appropriation of city or municipal bonds,<sup>2</sup> exchequer bills,<sup>3</sup> shares of stock in joint-stock company,<sup>4</sup> money collected as trustee from debtors of an insolvent,<sup>5</sup> grain,<sup>6</sup> game,<sup>7</sup> or an animal.<sup>8</sup>

Rex v. Mead, 4 Car. & P. 535; Reg. v. Barnes, 8 Cox, C. C., 129; Rex v. Aslett, 2 Leach, C. C., 954, 958; s. c., 1 B. & P. N. R. 1; R. & R. C. C. 67; Reg. v. Read, L. R. 3 Q. B. Div. 133; s. c., 14 Cox, C. C., 17; 47 L. J. M. C. 50; 37 L. T. 722; 26 W. R. 283; 6 Cent. L. J. 195.

"Money or Other Property." — In Iowa. — The words "any money or property of another," in Iowa Rev. Stat. sect. 4244, include promissory notes and bills of exchange, by virtue of their being evidences of debt. Hence an indictment under sect. 4237 will lie for embezzlement of a treasury draft on the United States, drawn in favor of the State, and payable to the governor, although not indorsed by him. State v. Orwig, 24 Iowa, 102.

Same in Massachusetts. — The phrase "money or property of another," in Mass. Rev. Stat. ch. 126, sect. 9, providing, that "if any clerk, agent, or servant, etc., shall embezzle, etc., without the consent of his employer or master, any money or property of another," he shall be deemed guilty of larceny, applies to the money or property of the employer or master, as well as to that of any other person than the clerk, agent, etc. Com. v. Stearns, 43 Mass. (2 Metc.) 343.

Same. — In Texas. — "Property," as defined in art. 732, Penal Code Texas, includes any and every article commonly known and designated as personal property. "Money" is "property" within the meaning of art. 219 of the Texas Code of Crim. Proc., by which the venue of prosecution for embezzlement is regulated. Brown v. State, 23 Tex. App. 214; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973.

1. Com. v. King, 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 284. See Rex v. Mead, 4 Car. & P. 535.

Halves of Bank-Notes. — The halves of country bank-notes, sent in a letter, are goods and chattels, and a person who embezzles them is indictable for such embezzlement. Rex v. Mead, 4 Car. & P. 535.

2. Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5; State v. White, 66 Wis. 343; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

Unissued Bonds of a City, which are in the custody of the city comptroller, are the subject of embezzlement; and the fact that the city may not be liable upon them, has nothing to do with the case. State v. White, 66 Wis. 343; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

Negotiable Bonds of a Municipal Corporation complete in form, and capable of becoming effective instruments in the hands of a bona fide holder, are, although unissued, "property" within the meaning of the Laws 1875, chap. 19, providing for punishment of peculation of public moneys and property. Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5.

3. Exchequer Bills. — If an indictment charges the prisoner with having embezzled "certain bills," commonly called "exchequer bills," and it appears that the person who signed them on the part of government was not legally authorized to do so, the indictment is bad, for they are not the things which they are averred to be. Rex v. Aslett, 2 Leach, C. C., 954, 958; s. c., 1 B. & P. N. R. 1; R. & R. C. C. 67.

4. Embezzlement of Shares of Stock. — Shares of stock constitute property, and are, therefore, the subject of embezzlement. People v. Williams, 60 Cal. 1; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 822; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 940.

5. Debts assigned to Trustees. — B. being in difficulty, assigned all his books, debts, estate, and effects to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. He was employed by the trustees at a salary to manage the business, and to collect the debts for them. He received the amount of two of the debts, but did not account for the sums received. Held, that inasmuch as the debts, being choses in action, could not be legally assigned, he had received only money which was in law, though not in equity, his own, and, therefore, that he could not be guilty of embezzling it. Reg. v. Barnes, 8 Cox, C. C., 129.

6. Converting Wheat. — One who has converted to his own use wheat which has been stored with him, held not to be liable for embezzlement under the Iowa Code of 1873, sect. 3910; the term therein, "property which may be the subject of larceny," being used generically. State v. Stoller, 38 Iowa, 321.

7. Animals Ferae Naturae. — Continuous Act. — The prisoner being employed as a gamekeeper, and having no authority to kill rabbits for his own use, killed and removed wild rabbits in and from a wood belonging to his master, with the intention of selling them. The killing, removing, and selling were one continuous act. Held, that he was not guilty of embezzlement. Reg. v. Read, L. R. 3, Q. B. D. 133; s. c., 14 Cox, C. C., 17; 47 L. J. M. C. 50; 37 L. T. 722; 26 W. R. 283; 6 Cent. L. J. 195.

8. Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 272; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289.

2. Value Immaterial.—The value of the article converted is not an element in the crime,<sup>1</sup> and a special finding by the jury of the amount of the loss is not essential to the power of the court to sentence under the statute.<sup>2</sup> But a different rule, it seems, prevails in Texas.<sup>3</sup>

3. Property and Money Sold, Kept, or Received contrary to Statute, or illegally.—If an agent receives money of his principal upon illegal consideration, and in the transaction of an unlawful business, and converts it to his own use, he is guilty of embezzlement; and the money having been received illegally, is no defence.<sup>4</sup> The same is true where money is received for an illegal or immoral purpose.<sup>5</sup> And the fact that moneys were derived from an unlawful source, will not avoid the charge of their embezzlement.<sup>6</sup>

1. Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 272; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289; People v. Salorse, 62 Cal. 139; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448; People v. Leehey (Cal.) 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124, 4 Pac. C. L. J. 75; People v. Bork, 78 N. Y. 346; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 911; 19 N. Y. Week Dig. 281.

In Alabama.—An agent or servant who embezzles or fraudulently converts to his own use "any money or property which has come into his possession by virtue of his employment, must be punished on conviction as if he had stolen it" (Code, sect. 4377), and the larceny of an ox or any other domestic animal named in the statute being now made a felony, without regard to the value of the animal stolen (Code, sect. 4358), the embezzlement of such animal by an agent is equally a felony, without regard to value. Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 272; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289.

In California.—Under sect. 514, Penal Code, the embezzlement of a horse or other of the animals specified in sect. 487, subdivision 3, of that code, is felony, without regard to the value of the property. People v. Salorse, 62 Cal. 139; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448; People v. Leehey (Cal.), 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124; 4 Pac. C. L. J. 75.

2. People v. Bork, 78 N. Y. 346; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 911; 19 N. Y. Week Dig. 281.

3. In a case where the defendant, a barber, was convicted of embezzling a razor worth a dollar and a half, upon evidence which showed that two razors had been lent to him, one of which he had paid for by shaving, it was held, upon proof that the other was of no value, that a conviction for embezzlement was not sustained by the evidence. Perry v. State, 22 Tex. App. 19, s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 398.

4. State v. Tumey, 81 Ind. 559; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 498, 581; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

Where an Agent of a Foreign Insurance Company is prosecuted for the Embezzlement of the moneys of the company received by him in the course of his agency, as embezzlement is defined in section 1944, Indiana Rev. Stat. 1881, it is no defence that such agent had not complied with the requirements of section 3765, Rev. Stat. 1881, in regard to his agency, and had therefore received such moneys for the company upon an illegal consideration and in the transaction of an unlawful business. State v. Tumey, 81 Ind. 559; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 498, 581; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

5. State v. Tumey, 81 Ind. 559; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 498, 581; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; Com. v. Cooper, 130 Mass. 285; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 260; State v. Shadd, 80 Mo. 358; s. c., 18 Cent. L. J. 236.

Money intrusted for Immoral Purpose.—It is no defence in a prosecution for embezzlement; that the money was given to the defendant to devote to an illegal purpose, e. g., gambling for the prosecutor. State v. Shadd, 80 Mo. 358; s. c., 18 Cent. L. J. 236.

In Transactions of Unlawful Business.—If an agent receives money of his principal upon an illegal consideration, and in the transaction of an unlawful business, and converts it to his own use, he is guilty of embezzlement, and the money having been received illegally, is no defence. State v. Tumey, 81 Ind. 559; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 581; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

In Massachusetts.—It is no defence to an indictment for the embezzlement of money under the Gen. Stats. c. 161, sect. 38, that the money was intrusted to the defendant for an illegal purpose. Com. v. Cooper, 130 Mass. 285; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 260.

6. Woodward v. State, 103 Ind. 127; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; State v. Tumey, 81 Ind. 559; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459, 3 Cr. L. Mag. 498; Rothrock v. Perkinson, 61 Ind. 39; United States Express Co. v.

IV. Clerks and Servants. — 1. Who are. — a. Generally. — A clerk is usually defined as a person in the employ of a merchant, who attends to a part of the merchant's business, while the merchant himself superintends the whole.<sup>1</sup> And a servant may be said to be any person who lets, hires, or engages his services to another, to work at any commerce or occupation whatever, for the benefit of such other, for a certain sum as retribution or compensation, or upon certain conditions.<sup>2</sup> Where the prisoner is indicted for Lucas, 36 Ind. 361; Com. v. Smith, 129 Mass. 105.

Embezzlement of Proceeds of Lottery Ticket. — It is no defence to a prosecution for embezzlement of money collected by an agent, that it was collected on a lottery-ticket, in contravention of the laws of this State. Woodward v. State, 103 Ind. 127, 244; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

Embezzlement of Proceeds of Liquor. — It is no defence to an indictment for the larceny of intoxicating liquors, or to an indictment for embezzling the proceeds of the sales of such liquors, that the liquors were kept for sale, or sold, in violation of law. Com. v. Smith, 129 Mass. 105.

1. See 1 Bouv. L. Dict. (15th ed.) 323; 2 Bouv. Inst. 1287; 1 Chitt. Pr. 80; Pardessus, Droit. Comm. n. 38.

2. See 2 Bouv. L. Dict. (15th ed.) 630.

Laborers, or Persons hired by the Day's work or any longer time, are said not to be considered servants. Duchamp v. Nicholson, 2 Mart. (La.) N. S. 681; Boniface v. Scott, 3 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 351. See also Chilcot Bromley, 12 Ves. 114; Townshend v. Windham, 2 Vern. 546. Ex parte Skinner, 3 Deac. & C. 332.

As to who are clerks and servants generally, see People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 76; Lewis v. Kendall, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 62; People v. Sherman, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 298; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 563; People v. Dalton, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 582; State v. Costin, 89 N. C. 511; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616; Com. v. Lynch (Pa.), 9 Cr. L. Mag. 114; 3 Lan. L. Rev. 412; Reg. v. Goodbody, 8 Car. & P. 665; Reg. v. Gibson, 8 Cox, C. C., 436; Reg. v. Barnes, 8 Cox, C. C., 129; Reg. v. Walker, Dears. & B. C. C. 600; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 1; 27 L. J. M. C. 207; Reg. v. Arman, Dears. C. C. 575; s. c., 7 Cox, C. C., 45; 1 Jur. N. S. 1115, 1117; Reg. v. Hoare, 1 F. & F. 647; Reg. v. Faulkes, L. R. 2 C. C. 150; s. c., 44 L. J. M. C. 65; 32 L. T. 407; 23 W. R. 696; Rex v. Hartley, R. & R. C. C. 139.

Where One employed by a Merchant "to sweep out, and wait about the Store, but not as a clerk," was authorized by the merchant to take a lot of shoes and sell them, during his visit to a neighboring town, which he did, and converted the money to his own use, held that he was a servant within the meaning of the embezzlement act, and received the goods by virtue of his employment. State v. Costin, 89 N. C. 511; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616.

A. was convicted on an indictment charging him with embezzlement. He was storekeeper and clerk of a county jail, and it was no part of his duty (which was defined by written instructions) to receive money; but he had, from time to time, received moneys in the absence of the governor of the jail, and to the knowledge of some of the justices. It was submitted that he had not received the money by virtue of his employment, and that that question ought to be left to the jury; but the recorder directed that if they believed that A. received the money, he did receive it by virtue of his employment. Held, that the question whether he received the money by virtue of his employment ought to have been left to the jury, and that the conviction was wrong. Reg. v. Arman, Dears. C. C. 575; s. c., 7 Cox, C. C., 45; 1 Jur. N. S. 1115, 1117.

Assignor for Benefit of Creditors. — Employment by Trustees. — B., being in difficulties, assigned all his books, debts, estate, and effects to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. He was employed by the trustees at a salary, to manage the business, and to collect the debts for them. He received the amount of two of the debts, and did not account for it. Held, that he was not a clerk or servant within the meaning of the act. Reg. v. Barnes, 8 Cox, C. C., 129.

A Captain of a Barge employed to sell Coal. — Where the owner of a colliery employed the prisoner, as captain of one of his barges, to carry out and sell coal, and paid him for his labor by allowing him two-thirds of the price for which he sold the coal above the price charged at the colliery, held, that the prisoner was a servant within the meaning 39 Geo. 3, c. 85; and having embezzled the price, he was guilty of larceny within the meaning of that act. Rex v. Hartley, R. & R. C. C. 139.

A Drover of Cattle. — A drover of cattle was employed by a grazier in the country to drive eight oxen to London; his instructions were, that if he could sell them on embezzling moneys he received by virtue of his employment as clerk, it is for the jury to say whether the relation of master the road, he might do so; and that those he did not sell on the road he was to take to a particular salesman in Smithfield Market, who was to sell them for the grazier: the drover received the money for the beasts, and applied it to his own use. Held that he could not be convicted of embezzlement. Reg. v. Goodbody, 8 Car. & P. 665.

Employment by Father.—Father Clerk to Local Board.—The prisoner's father was clerk to the local board, and held other appointments. The prisoner lived with his father, and assisted him in his office and in the business of the board. In his father's absence, the prisoner acted for him in the business of the board, and when present he assisted him. The prisoner was not appointed or paid by the board, and there was no evidence that he received any salary from his father. The board having occasion to raise a loan on a mortgage, the prisoner managed the business for his father, and at his father's office received the money from the mortgages, and appropriated a part of it to his own use. Held, that there was evidence that the prisoner was a clerk or servant, or employed as a clerk or servant, and was guilty of embezzlement. Reg. v. Faulkes, L. R., 2 C. C. 150; s. c., 44 L. J. M. C. 65; 32 L. T. 407; 23 W. R. 696.

A Stage Driver is a servant within the meaning of an act punishing, as felonious stealing, the embezzlement of property received by virtue of employment as servant. People v. Sherman, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 298; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 563. See also Lewis v. Kendall, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 62; and People v. Dalton, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 582.

A Solicitor employed to Collect Rents.—An indictment charged a person, who was a solicitor, with embezzlement. It appeared from his appointment, as entered in the minute-book of the company, that he was a land-agent to the company, and that in the course of his duties he collected the rents of houses, refreshment-stalls, book-stalls, etc., and should have paid the sums over to the company, and that he managed the parochial assessments, as to the justice of claim. His salary was £300 a year, and an extra sum was allowed for travelling expenses. Held, that he was a clerk or servant. Reg. v. Gibson, 8 Cox, C. C., 436.

One to whom a Note has been handed for Collection, a certain proportion of what he collected to be paid over, cannot be indicted for embezzlement under section 107 of the Pennsylvania Criminal Code of 31st of March, 1860, for neglecting to pay over the proper proportion of the amount collected. He is not a "clerk, servant, or other person in the employ of another." There is no breach of trust, simply a failure to pay. Com. v. Lynch (Pa.), 9 Cr. L. Mag. 114; s. c., 3 Lan. L. Rev. 412.

Where a Constable is employed to collect Certain Demands without suit, if the debtors will pay, and by procuring and serving process before a justice of the peace where they will not, he is not a "servant" of the creditor within the meaning of the New York statute concerning embezzlement. People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 76.

No Remuneration agreed upon.—A., who had been a farm servant of B., but who had ceased to be so, was employed by B. to collect his debts; it being B.'s intention to go to America, and to take A. with him, and set him up there in business for himself. There was no agreement for any remuneration to be paid by B. to A. for collecting the debts. Held, that A. could not be convicted of embezzling the sums received by him on behalf of B. Reg. v. Hoare, 1 F. & F. 647.

When Debtor, not as Servant.—The prisoner kept a refreshment-house at B., and whilst doing so was engaged by the prosecutors, manure manufacturers, to get orders, which they supplied from their stores. He was to collect the money, and send it at once to them, and also to furnish weekly accounts. He was paid by commission, and it did not appear that he had undertaken to give any definite time or labor to the business; but he was to act in a particular district, and was called agent for the B. district. He was to go through the country, and see the farmers, and get orders, and during the season was to be continually among the farmers. Subsequently the prosecutors rented stores at B., which were placed under the prisoner's control, and from them he supplied the orders he obtained. The first mode, however, or the mixed mode, might have been resorted to according to the convenience of the prosecutors. After some time a proposal was made to a guaranty society to insure the prosecutors in respect to their connection with the prisoner. This proposal was signed by the prisoner. It was a printed form issued by the society, and contained a notice that some salary must be payable, or the society would not insure. It stated that the prisoner's salary was £1 a year, besides commission, estimated at £65 a year. At this time the prosecutors had agreed to give the salary of £1 a year. The prisoner was allowed to get in arrear, and was treated by the prosecutors as a debtor in respect of the arrears. Having, however, received money and servant or clerk existed between the prosecutor and the prisoner.<sup>1</sup>

b. Occasional Employment.—It is not necessary that the clerk or servant should be in the steady employment of his master or principal: it is sufficient if he is occasionally in his employ, or employed for the particular occasion or work.<sup>2</sup> from certain customers, he fraudulently returned their names as not having paid, and for this he was tried and convicted of embezzlement. Held, that the conviction could not be sustained, as it was not established by the evidence that the prisoner was the servant of the prosecutors. Reg. v. Walker, Dears. & B. C. C. 600; 8 Cox, C. C., 1; 27 L. J. M. C. 207.

1. Reg. v. Chater, 9 Cox, C. C., 1.

2. Lewis v. Kendall, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 59; Reg. v. Tongue, Bell, C. C., 289; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 386; 30 L. J. M. C. 49; 3 L. T. N. S. 415; 9 W. R. 59; Reg. v. Winnall, 5 Cox, C. C., 326; Rex v. Hughes, 1 Moo. C. C., 370; Rex v. Burton, 1 Moo. C. C. 237; Rex v. Nettleton, 1 Mood. C. C. 259; Rex v. Spencer, R. & R. C. C. 299.

A Person casually employed by an individual to receive money in a single message, and pay it out, is not a servant of such individual within 2 N. Y. Rev. Stats. 678, sect. 59; Lewis v. Kendall, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 59.

A servant may be found guilty of embezzlement, though he is not a general servant, and is employed to receive in a single instance only. Rex v. Hughes, 1 M. C. C. 370.

A Person employed to collect the Sacrament Money from the communicants is not the servant of the minister, church-wardens, or poor, etc., as to be within 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, sect. 47, if he embezzles the money. Rex v. Burton, 1 M. C. C. 237.

Embezzlement by one neither Clerk nor Servant.—It is sufficient, if he was employed to receive the money he embezzled, although receiving money may not be in his usual employment, and although it was the only instance in which he was so employed. Rex v. Spencer, R. & R. C. C. 299. But it was held in Rex v. Nettleton, 1 Moo. C. C. 259, that embezzlement by one who is neither clerk nor servant, nor in any respect under the control of the person by whom he is in a single instance only requested to receive moneys, was not punishable under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 2, sect. 49, as he did not come within the description of clerk or servant, or a person employed for the purpose of, or in the capacity of, a clerk or servant. Rex v. Nettleton, 1 Mood. C. C. 259.

Occasional Employment.—A man was sufficiently a servant within 39 Geo. 3, c. 85, although he was only occasionally employed when he had nothing else to do. Rex v. Spencer, R. & R. C. C. 299.

A Person hired by a Market Gardener to do a day's work, and who is requested by his employer to take some vegetables to market and sell them, and bring back the produce, is a servant to his employer in respect of such employment within 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, sect. 47; Reg. v. Winnall, 5 Cox, C. C., 326.

Appropriation of Proceeds of Check.—The prisoner had worked for the prosecutor, sometimes as a regular laborer, and sometimes as a roundsman; but at the time in question, he not being at all in the prosecutor's service, was sent by the prosecutor to get a check cashed at a banker's, for doing which he was to be paid a sixpence. He got the cash, and made off. Held, no embezzlement, as the prisoner was not a servant of the prosecutor within 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, sect. 47; Rex v. Freeman, 5 Car. & P. 534.

A. was Secretary to a Benefit Building Society. It was no part of his duty, as prescribed by the rules, to receive money for the society; but, according to the course of business, the subscriptions were frequently received by him, and when mortgages were redeemed the money was paid to him as secretary, but for and upon receipts signed by the trustees. Having embezzled the redemption money upon mortgages so paid to him, he was indicted under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, sect. 47. Held, that there was evidence for the jury that he was employed by the trustees as their servant to receive money on their behalf. Reg. v. Hastie, 9 Cox, C. C., 264; s. c., L. & C. 269; 32 L. J. M. C. 63; 9 Jur. N. S. 235; 7 L. T. 695; 11 W. R. 293. A., who was convicted of embezzlement, was secretary of a money club. His duties were cognate to that of receiving money, although the receipt of money was not expressly named as one of them in the rules which were in writing. He was directed by the club to sue upon a joint promissory note, their property, or get better security; and the note was handed to him by the treasurer, not a member of the club, who desired that his name should not be used in legal proceedings. The note was payable to the treasurer's order; and A. indorsed the treasurer's name on the note, and employed an attorney, who issued a writ at the suit of A. In consequence of the action, money was paid to c. Payment on Commission. — Duty not Compulsory. — A person who is employed to get orders for goods, and to receive payment for them, but who is at liberty to get the orders and receive the money where and when he thinks proper, being paid by a commission on the goods sold, is not a clerk or servant within the statute.<sup>1</sup> But where a person was employed as a traveller to solicit orders, and collect the moneys due on the execution of the orders, and to pay over moneys on the evening of the day when collected, or the day following; and he had no salary, but was paid by commission, and was at liberty to get orders when and where he pleased within his district, but was to be exclusively in the employ of the prosecutors, and to give the whole of his time — the whole of every day — to their service, — he was held to be a clerk and servant within the meaning of the statute.<sup>2</sup> him by one of the makers of the note, the receipt of which he denied, and fraudulently withheld the money from the club, and appropriated it. The court held that he was rightly convicted. Reg. v. Tongue, Bell, C. C., 289; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 386; 30 L. J. M. C. 49; 3 L. T. N. S. 415; 9 W. R. 59.

1. Reg. v. May, L. & C. 13; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 421; 3 L. T. 680; Reg. v. Negus, L. R. 2, C. C. 34; s. c., 42 L. J. M. C. 62; 28 L. T. 646; 21 W. R. 687; Reg. v. Bowers or Bower, L. R. 1, C. C. 41; 12 Jur. N. S. 550; 14 L. T. 671; 14 W. R. 803. See 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 68; Reg. v. Hall, 31 L. T. 883; Reg. v. Marshall, 21 L. T. 796.

Payment of Commission. — B., in answer to an application, was informed by letter from the prosecutors, "We are not disposed to appoint any agent at N., but for all business you do for us we shall be happy to pay you a commission." He afterwards obtained some orders, and misappropriated some moneys received by him. The jury found that it was his duty to account to the prosecutors for the money he might receive for them immediately on receipt of it. It was held, that B. was not a clerk or servant, and could not be convicted of embezzlement. Reg. v. May, L. & C. 13; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 421; 3 L. T. 680.

The prisoner was employed by a coal-merchant under an agreement, "that he was to receive 1 shilling per ton, procuration fee, payable out of the first payment, — four per cent for collecting, and three pence on the last payment. Collection to be paid on Friday evening before 5 P.M., or on Saturday before 2 P.M." He received no salary; was not obliged to be at the office except on Friday or Saturday, to account for what money he had received. He was at liberty to go where he pleased for orders. Held, he was not to be a clerk or servant within the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 68, relating to embezzlement. Reg. v. Marshall, 21 L. T. 796.

A Person whose Duty it is to obtain Orders When and Where he Likes, and to forward them to his principal for execution, and then has three months within which to collect the money for the goods sent, is not a clerk or a servant. Reg. v. Mayle, 11 Cox, C. C., 150.

A person engaged to solicit orders, and paid by commission on the sums he was forthwith to hand over to his employers, who was at liberty to apply for orders when he thought most convenient, and was not to employ himself for any other persons, is not a clerk or servant within 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 68; Reg. v. Negus, L. R. 2, C. C. 34; s. c., 42 L. J. M. C. 62; 28 L. T. 646; 21 W. R. 687.

And if such a person, at the request of his principal, collects a sum of money from a customer, with the obtaining of whose order he has nothing to do, he is a mere volunteer, and is not liable to be prosecuted for embezzlement if he does not pay over, or account for, the money so received. Reg. v. Mayle, 11 Cox, C. C., 150.

An Account and Debt Collector was employed by the prosecutors to collect certain debts specified in a list given to him. The time and mode of collecting the debts were in his discretion, and he was authorized to sue for them, if necessary, but at his own charge. In no case was he to receive from the prosecutors more than five per cent on the amount collected by him and paid over to the prosecutors. The jury having found, on these facts, that he was employed in the capacity of a clerk, and convicted him of embezzlement of certain sums received by him, and not paid over to the prosecutors, held, that the finding was wrong, and that he was not employed as a clerk. Reg. v. Hall, 31 L. T. 883.

2. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 68; Reg. v. Bailey, 12 Cox, C. C., 56; s. c., 24 L. T.

It would seem that if the money comes into the servant's hands, any act still remains to be done, before he has the right to take his share, wrongful conversion to his own use is embezzlement; but if on the receipt of the money, he is entitled to his share of commission on the claim collected, it is not embezzlement;<sup>1</sup> but where a servant receives money for his master for an article made of his master's material, it will be within the statute, if he embezzles the price, though he made the article, and was to have a given proportion of the price for making it.<sup>2</sup>

d. Employment by Other Masters. — The fact that the person is employed by different masters, and that he pays his own expenses out of his commission on the business transacted by him, will not relieve him from liabilities under the statute punishing for embezzlement.<sup>3</sup>

2. What Constitutes Embezzlement by. — a. Generally. — In order to sustain a conviction of the offence of embezzlement under the statute,<sup>4</sup> three things must be shown: (1) that the accused was the clerk, agent, servant, or apprentice of a private person; (2) that the money came into his possession by virtue of his employment; (3) that he embezzled, or fraudulently converted it to his own use, 477; Reg. v. Thomas, 6 Cox, C. C., 403; Reg. v. Tite, L. & C. 29; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 458; 30 L. J. M. C. 142; 7 Jur. N. S. 556; 4 L. T. 259; 9 W. R. 554.

A. was indicted for embezzlement. He was engaged by the prosecutor as a commercial traveller, to be paid by commission, and he was at liberty to obtain orders for other persons. Held, that there was evidence of his being a servant to the prosecutor. Reg. v. Tite, L. & C. 29; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 458; 30 L. J., M. C. 142; 7 Jur. N. S. 556; 4 L. T. 259; 9 W. R. 554.

Where Duty not Compulsory. — A butty collier, who received a certain sum for every ton of coal he raised, was also allowed to sell coal for his employer, the owner of the colliery. It was his duty to pay over the gross money received on such sales, and he subsequently allowed a poundage thereon. Having converted money received for the coal to his own use, he neglected to account for it. Held, that although the sale of the coal was not compulsory, he was a servant to the owner of the colliery, so as to support an indictment for embezzlement. Reg. v. Thomas, 6 Cox, C. C., 403.

1. See 13 Cent. L. J. 464.

2. See Rex v. Hoggins, R. & R. C. C. 145.

3. See Reg. v. Turner, 11 Cox, C. C., 551; s. c., 22 L. T. 278; Reg. v. Batty, 2 Mood. C. C. 257; Rex v. Carr, R. & R. C. C. 198.

Employment by Other Masters. — A person employed by A. to sell goods for him at certain wages may be convicted of embezzlement as the servant of A., though at the same time employed by other persons and for other purposes. Reg. v. Batty, 2 Mood. C. C. 257.

A person employed upon commission to travel for orders and collect debts, was a clerk within 39 Geo. 3, c. 85, and might have been indicted for embezzlement, although he was employed by many different houses on each journey, and paid his own expenses out of his commission on each journey, and did not live with any of his employers, nor act in any of their counting-houses. Rex v. Carr, R. & R. C. C. 198.

The prisoner agreed with a manufacturer of earthenware to act as his traveller, and "diligently employ himself in going from town to town in England, Ireland, and Scotland, and soliciting orders for the printed and decorated earthenware manufactured by him, and that he would not, without his consent in writing, take or execute any order for vending or disposing of any goods of the nature or kind aforesaid for or on account of himself or any other person." It was further agreed that the prisoner should be paid by commission, and should render weekly accounts. The manufacturer subsequently gave the prisoner written permission to take orders for two other manufacturers. The prisoner being indicted for embezzlement under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 68, held that he was a clerk or servant of the prosecutor within that statute. Reg. v. Turner, 11 Cox, C. C., 551; s. c., 22 L. T. 278.

4. Alabama Code, sect. 4377.

or fraudulently secreted it with the intent to convert it to his own use.<sup>1</sup>

Where a clerk by authority of his master collects one bill and fraudulently converts the money, the offence of embezzlement is complete; and if he collects another bill after the first conversion, and then fraudulently converts the proceeds, he is guilty of a second offence,<sup>2</sup> and the embezzlement of several articles at the same time is an embezzlement of each.<sup>3</sup>

b. Possession or Custody of Goods.—A distinction exists where a servant has merely the custody, and where he has the possession of the goods.<sup>4</sup> To constitute the crime of embezzlement, the person must have the money or property in his possession by virtue of his occupation or employment, and it must be fraudulently converted to his own use in violation of a trust reposed in him.<sup>5</sup>

1. Pullam v. State, 78 Ala. 31; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 21; John Langley's Case, 4 City Hall Rec. 159.

The prisoner was indicted for petit larceny at common law, and for embezzling under the statute. It appeared in evidence that the prisoner, a servant boy, who had been in the employment of S. for some time, was intrusted by S. with a basket of cakes to sell and return the money, but did not return either the cakes, the money, or the basket. It was held, that to convict him of larceny, the jury must believe that at the time his master intrusted him with the property he harbored the felonious intent to convert it to his own use; and to bring the offender within the act in relation to embezzlement, the jury must be convinced that the prisoner converted the property to his own use, with intent to steal the same. John Langley's Case, 4 City Hall Rec. 159.

Animus Furandi. What constitutes the offence.—In the absence of proof of animus furandi, the act of a servant giving away old tools of his master will be presumed a matter of charity, and not embezzlement. State v. Fritchler, 54 Mo. 425.

When Society or Partnership is illegally or irregularly Constituted.—Where a society, in consequence of administering to its members an unlawful combination and confederacy under 37 Geo. 3, c. 123; 39 Geo. 3, c. 79; 52 Geo. 3, c. 104; and 57 Geo. 3, c. 19, a person charged with embezzlement, as clerk and servant to such society, cannot be convicted. Reg. v. Hunt, 8 Car. & P. 642.

2. Ricord v. Central Pac. R. R. Co., 15 Nev. 168.

3. Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1.

4. Warmoth v. Com. 81 Ky. 133.

5. See Jones v. State, 59 Ind. 229; Ennis v. State, 3 G. Greene (Iowa) 67; Com. v. Berry, 99 Mass. 428; Com. v. Hays, 80

Mass. (14 Gray) 62; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 661; Com. v. Tuckerman, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 173; Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 185; ex parte Ricord, 11 Nev. 287; People v. Hennessey, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 147; State v. Costin, 89 N. C. 511; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616; Hart v. Mills, 31 Tex. 317; DeGaultie v. State, 31 Tex. 34; Tucker v. Anderson, 25 Tex. Supp. 158; People v. Sheahan, 1 Wheel. Cr. Cas. 226.

Conversion of Horses by Servant.—Where a person in the employment of another is intrusted with a span of horses and wagon, and while thus in charge appropriates them to his own use, he is guilty of embezzlement, and not larceny, under the statute of Iowa. Ennis v. State, 3 G. Greene (Iowa) 67.

Conversion of Money sent by Person from one place to another.—Where the money was sent from New Orleans by the accused, and he converted it to his own use, and refused to pay it on demand in Texas, he was guilty of embezzlement under the statute; but if the indictment allege the theft to have been from the person, it is not sustained by such proof. Hart v. Mills, 31 Tex. 317, 318; Tucker v. Anderson, 25 Tex. Supp. 158, 159. See De Gaultie v. State, 31 Tex. 34, 35.

By the Common Law this would be nothing but a breach of trust, for which the party would be liable to a civil action; but by this section the act is a felony, of the class of thefts. De Gaultie v. State, 31 Tex. 34.

Massachusetts Doctrine.—In Commonwealth v. Hays, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 62, it is held that the Massachusetts statute relating to embezzlement has been strictly construed, and its operation carefully confined to persons having in their possession, by virtue of their occupation or employment, the money or property of another, which has been fraudulently converted, in violation of a trust reposed in them. Where

Where goods come into the possession of a servant, out of the ordinary course of his employment, but in pursuance of special directions from the master to receive them, and the servant converts the same, he is indictable under the statute for embezzlement.<sup>1</sup>

It is held that an indictment for embezzlement lies against a clerk or servant for converting to his own use the money, goods, etc., of any other person as well as for converting to his own use the money, goods, etc., of his master or employer, which shall have come into possession or under his care by virtue of his employment; the words "any other person," in the statute, mean any person other than he who is guilty of embezzlement.<sup>2</sup> A servant who merely has the possession of goods, but not the care and control of them, and they do not come into his possession by virtue of his office as clerk or servant, and are not intrusted to him by his master or employer for some specific purpose, a felonious appropriation of them is not embezzlement.<sup>3</sup> one employed by the maker of a note, not as a broker, but merely to sell it, and receive the proceeds, and pay them over specially to a third person, fraudulently converts them to his own use, he is guilty of embezzlement, although upon receiving the note he gave the maker his own note for the same amount, if it was agreed that his note should be deposited with a third person beneficially interested as a receipt, to be surrendered when the proceeds are paid over. Com. v. Foster, 107 Mass. 222; Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 185. The case is also cited and distinguished in Com. v. Tuckerman, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 173, where it is held that the treasurer of a railroad company is an "officer, agent, clerk, or servant" of the corporation within the meaning of the statute relating to embezzlement, and that where he receives money of the corporation, and deposits it in a bank, and afterwards draws it out in bills or coin, which he fraudulently converts to his own use, he is liable for embezzlement under that statute.

New York Doctrine. — In New York an indictment for embezzlement, under 2 Rev. Stat. 678, sect. 59, lies against one taking to his own use the money, goods, etc., of his master, and those of other persons coming under his care by reason of his employment. People v. Hennessey, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 147. The act to prevent servants embezzling their master's goods (Rev. Stat. vol. i. p. 413) extends to those cases only where the servant or apprentice has the custody of the goods. People v. Sheahan, 1 Wheel. Cr. Cas. 226. See 3 Rev. Stat. (5th ed.) 957.

By the True Construction of Nevada Compiled Laws, sect. 2380, money received by a clerk, who is intrusted by his employer with bills to collect, in the ordinary course of his business as a clerk, is money intrusted to him by his employer. Ex parte Ricord, 11 Nev. 287.

1. State v. Costin, 89 N. C. 511; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616.

2. People v. Hennessey, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 147.

Indiana Doctrine. — Under provisions of the act of Dec. 21, 1865 (2 Rev. Stat. 1876, p. 449; Rev. Stat. 81, 1944) defining the crime of embezzlement where money or other property or article of value has been intrusted by the master to his servant, and such money, etc., belonged to, or had been deposited with, the master in whose employment the servant then was, if such servant has fraudulently appropriated such money, etc., so intrusted to him, to his own use, he will be guilty only of embezzlement, and cannot be convicted of larceny. Jones v. State, 59 Ind. 229.

3. See Commonwealth v. Davis, 104 Mass. 548; Commonwealth v. Berry, 99 Mass. 428; People v. Robinson (N. Y.), 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611; 16 N. Y. Week. Dig. 355; Cobletz v. State, 36 Tex. 353; Reg. v. Reed, Dears. C. C. 257; s. c., 23 L. J. M. C. 25; 18 Jur. 67.

The Felonious Taking of Goods from the Owner's Shop by a Clerk and packer in their employ, who had keys by means of which, at the time in question, he entered the shop after it was closed, but who was not a salesman, although the owners had occasionally allowed him to take and sell goods for them, is larceny, and not embezzlement. Com. v. Davis, 104 Mass. 548.

The defendant, on the first night after his employment as clerk, was left in charge of the store, and carried off from it a

c. Employer's Money; Failure to account for; False Entries, etc.
— It is the duty of a servant authorized to receive money to account to his employer therefor; and a failure to pay over to the employer or to the government is evidence of embezzlement.<sup>1</sup> quantity of money and goods. The next day he was apprehended, while leaving the country, at some distance from the place where the act was committed, and the money and goods were found upon him. Held, that under Pasch. Dig. art. 2385, the facts constituted theft, and not embezzlement. Cobletz v. State, 36 Tex. 353.

Where Defendant was employed to deliver Goods from a store, and also helped in the store to arrange the goods, and to clean and dust, held that the goods in the store were not in his possession or under his control within the statute relating to embezzlement. People v. Robinson (N. Y.), 4 Cr. L. Mag. 11; s. c., 16 N. Y. Week. Dig. 355.

The Prisoner was sent with his Master's Cart for some Coals. The coals were delivered to the prisoner, and deposited in the cart. On the road home the prisoner disposed of a portion of them; held, no embezzlement, as the prisoner having determined his exclusive possession of the coals when they were deposited in the cart, the possession from that time became the master's. Reg. v. Reed, Dears. C. C. 257; s. c., 2 C. L. R. 607; 23 L. J. M. C. 25; 18 Jur. 67.

The Servant of a Copartnership fraudulently appropriated Money which he had received from one member of the firm under the direction to carry it to another member. Held, that an indictment for embezzlement would not lie. Goods in the servant's custody, received from the master for a specific purpose, and the appropriation, animus furandi, is larceny. Com. v. Berry, 99 Mass. 428.

The Cashier of a Mercantile House, having charge of the money of the concern, being about to leave their employment, took of the money of the firm in his hands the amount due him as the balance of his salary, without the knowledge and against the wish of his employers, and charged the same to himself on their books. Held, that the employee was not guilty of embezzlement, and did only what he had a right to do. Ross v. Innis, 35 Ill. 488.

1. See State v. Cameron, 3 Heisk. (Tenn.) 78. Compare ex parte Ricord, 11 Nev. 287; State v. Snell, 9 R. I. 112. See also Reg. v. Jackson, 1 C. & K. 384; Reg. v. Lister, Dears. & B. C. C. 118; s. c., 26 L. J. M. C. 26; 2 Jur. N. S. 1124; Reg. v. White, 8 Car. & P. 742; Reg. v. Betts, Bell, C. C. 90; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C. 140; 28 L. J. M. C. 69; 5 Jur. N. S. 274; 32 L. T.

O. S. 339; 7 W. R. 239; Reg. v. Masters, 1 Den. C. C. 332; s. c., T. & M. 1; 2 C. & K. 930; 3 New Sess. Cas. 326; 3 Cox, C. C. 178; 18 L. J. M. C. 2; 12 Jur. 942; Rex v. Beacall, 1 C. & P. 312; Rex v. Wellings 1 C. & P. 454, 457.

Wilful Omission to account. — It was the duty of a servant authorized to receive money from his employer to account to his employer the evening of every day for the money received during the day by him for his employer, and to pay over the amount. He received three sums for his employer on three different days, and neither accounted for those sums nor paid them over. He never denied the receipt of them, or tendered any written account in which they were omitted. Held, that if he wilfully omitted to account for these sums and pay them over on the respective days on which he received them, these were embezzlements, and that such wilful omission to account and pay over were equivalent to a denial of the receipt of them. Reg. v. Jackson, 1 C. & K. 384.

A Miller's Foreman employed to sell goods for his master, sold some to a customer, received the money, but did not account for the money in any way. Held, that the prisoner was guilty of embezzlement. Reg. v. Betts, Bell, C. C., 90; 8 Cox, C. C., 140; 28 L. J. M. C. 69; 5 Jur. N. S. 274; 32 L. T. O. S. 339; 7 W. R. 239.

Servant of Corporation. — If the party embezzling is employed as the servant of a corporation, although not duly appointed their servant, even under their common seal. Rex v. Beacall, 1 Car. & P. 312; and Rex v. Wellings, 1 Car. & P. 454, 457.

Money received from Fellow-Servant. — If the prisoner had, as a servant, in the course of his duty, received from a fellow-servant money paid to that servant for his master by another servant, who had received it from the customers, it was the duty of the prisoner, after such receipt, to hand the money to another servant (the cashier) of his master; but, instead of handing it over, he fraudulently retained it. Held, that this was embezzlement. Reg. v. Masters, 1 Den. C. C. 332; s. c., T. & M. 1; 2 C. & K. 930; 3 New Sess. Cas. 326; 3 Cox, C. C. 178; 18 L. J., N. C. 2; 12 Jur. 942.

Where Master has no Right to Money received. — If a servant receives money on his employer's account, and embezzles it, he is guilty of felony, although they had Embezzlement necessarily involves secrecy and concealment. If, therefore, instead of denying the appropriation of property, the prisoner, in rendering his account, admits the appropriation, alleging a right in himself, no matter how unfounded, or setting up an excuse, no matter how frivolous, his offence in taking and keeping is no embezzlement.<sup>1</sup> And if a person whose duty it is to receive money for his employer receives money, and renders a true account of all the money he has received, he is not guilty of embezzlement if he absconds and does not pay over the money; but if he had received the money, and had rendered an account in which it was omitted, this would be evidence to show that he had embezzled the amount.<sup>2</sup> Where a servant, in the discharge no right to it, and were wrong-doers in receiving it. Rex v. Wellings, 1 Car. & P. 454, 457; Rex v. Beacall, 1 Car. & P. 312.

Entries correct, but Less paid over. — B. was employed to drive a coach, and it was his duty to inform a bookkeeper how much he had received during the day; the bookkeeper then entered the amount in a book and on the day-bill. B.'s duty then was to pay over the amount he had received to his employer. B. gave true account to the bookkeeper who made these entries, but B. accounted to his employer for smaller sums, and paid them over to him, saying that they were all he received. Held, that this was embezzlement. Reg. v. White, 8 Car. & P. 742.

Entry in Ledger Remittance. — No Entry of Receipt. — The prisoner was convicted of embezzlement. It was his duty to receive remittances from the customers of his master, to enter them to the credit of such customers in a day or cash book, and to enter the whole amount received by him on the credit side of a banker's deposit account, and to pay in the amount to the credit of the prosecutors with their bankers; and it was his duty afterwards to post the amounts in a ledger, which contained the account of the different customers. The prisoner received a remittance, which he appropriated to his own use; he made an entry of this amount in the ledger to the credit of the customer, but he made no entry of its receipt. Held, that the conviction was right, as the entry made in the ledger did not exempt the prisoner from the operation of the 47th section of the 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 29. Reg. v. Lister, Dears. & B. C. C. 118; 26 L. J. M. C. 26; 2 Jur. N. S. 1124.

Receipt by Servant by Virtue of Employment. — Embezzlement of money by a servant not authorized to receive it, was not within 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 29, sect. 47; Rex v. Thorley, 1 M. C. C. 343. If a servant generally employed by his master to receive sums of one description, and at one place only, is employed by him in a particular instance to receive a sum of a different description, and at a different place, this latter sum was to be considered as received by him by virtue of his employment, within 39 Geo. III. c. 85; Rex v. Smith, R. & R. C. C. 516.

Grounds of Defence. — One who has collected money under color of authority for an employer, cannot defend a prosecution for embezzlement in not paying it over to him, on the ground that he was not authorized. Ex parte Ricord, 11 Nev. 287.

1. Reg. v. Norman, 1 Car. & M. 501.

A different rule, however, prevails in some of the States, where it is held that a claim against his principal, which the agent knows to be unfounded, raises no presumption that the withholding of the money was to save himself from loss, and not with felonious intent. State v. Reilly, 4 Mo. App. 392.

2. Reg. v. Creed, 1 C. & K. 63; Rex v. Hodgson, 3 Car. & P. 422; Reg. v. Winnall, 5 Cox, C. C., 326.

Entries Correct, but no Remittance. — It was the duty of a clerk to receive moneys daily at N., to enter all such moneys so received in a book, and to remit the amount weekly to L. His entries were all correct, and admitted the receipt of all the moneys, but he did not remit them to L. as was his duty. Held, no embezzlement. Rex v. Hodgson, 3 C. & P. 422.

Goods given by Master to Servant to sell.

— Servant deferring Payment. — A person hired by a market-gardener to do a day's work, was requested by him to take some vegetables to market, sell them, and bring back the money; the prisoner thereupon sold four pots of potatoes, and received the money. He sold four other pots, but did not receive the money. On his return to his master, he stated correctly the price he sold the potatoes for, but said that he would settle with him on a subsequent day, as he had not received the money, and did not offer the sum received, or say he had of his regular duty, receives money belonging to and for his master, and enters a less sum on the books than he received, and converts the balance to his own use, he will be guilty of embezzlement;<sup>1</sup> and if an entry is made on the books of the proper amount, but a smaller sum accounted for to the employer, the servant will be guilty of embezzlement.<sup>2</sup> But if a clerk receives money from his master to pay away on his master's account, and he states in his account that one of the payments was to a greater amount than it really was, this will not be embezzlement.<sup>3</sup>

Under the English statute,<sup>4</sup> embezzlement of money by a servant must be in respect of money delivered to or received, or taken into possession by the servant for, or in the name of, or on the account of, his master.<sup>5</sup>

A clerk may commit more than one embezzlement of his employer's money, and, if he does, he may be separately indicted for each separate offence; but, if the money from different parties was all collected before any portion of it was converted, then been paid for a part, and subsequently made the excuse, and never paid any part of the money. Held, that this was not embezzlement, unless he, when he said he had not received the money, meant that he had not received any part of it. Reg. v. Winnall, 5 Cox, C. C., 326.

1. See Reg. v. Guelder, Bell, C. C., 284; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 372; 30 L. J. M. C. 34; 6 Jur. N. S. 1214; 3 L. T. 337; Rex v. Hall, R. & R. C. C. 463; s. c. 2 Stark. 67; Rex v. Hammon, R. & R. C. C. 221; s. c. 2 Leach, C. C., 1083; 4 Taunt. 304.

Entry of Smaller Sum.—If a servant, immediately on receiving a sum for his master, enters a smaller sum in his master's books, and ultimately accounts to his master for the smaller sum, he may be considered as embezzling the difference at the time he makes the entry; and it will make no difference though he received other sums for his master on the same day, and in paying those and the smaller sum to his master together, he might give his master every piece of money or note he received at the time he made the false entry. Rex v. Hall, R. & R. C. C. 463; 2 Stark. 67.

Entry in Ledger by Banker's Clerk.—A banker's clerk taking money from the till, intending to embezzle it, is guilty of felony, although the check of a customer is left in lieu of it, if that customer has really no cash in the banker's hands, though both he and the banker may suppose he has, and if the check is drawn by the customer, not to pledge his own credit with the bank or draw out money of his own, but to draw out money the prisoner falsely pretends to have in his name. Rex v. Hammon, R. & R. C. C. 221; 2 Leach, C. C., 1083; 4 Taunt. 304.

Entries in Books.—Fraudulently obtaining Receipts.—G. was convicted upon an indictment for embezzlement. It was his duty, as the assistant overseer of a township, to collect the rates; and the course was, upon receipt, to pay them into a bank to the account of the overseer's receipts for the same sums so paid. It was his duty also to enter the rates when received in a book; and at the audit he charged himself by the entries in his book, and discharged himself by the receipts of the overseers. Having misappropriated certain moneys, which he duly entered in the book when received, he fraudulently obtained from the overseers receipts for the several sums stated in the indictment by falsely telling that he had paid the money into the bank. These receipts he produced to the auditor, and so deceived him as to his having handed over the moneys. Held, that he was rightly convicted, and that the fact of his entering the sums, when received, in his book, did not alter the character of his offence. Reg. v. Guelder, Bell, C. C., 284; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 372; 30 L. J. M. C. 34; 6 Jur. N. S. 1214; 3 L. T. 337.

2. Reg. v. White, 8 Car. & P. 742.
3. Rex v. Murray, 5 Car. & P. 145; 1 Mood. C. C. 276.
4. 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 68.
5. Reg. v. Thorpe, Dears. & B. C. C. 62; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 29; 27 L. J., M. C. 264; 4 Jur. N. S. 466; Reg. v. Harris, Dears. C. C. 344; 6 Cox, C. C., 363; 2 C. L. R. 464; 23 L. J. M. C. 110; 18 Jur. 408; Reg. v. Beaumont, Dears. C. C. 270; s. c., 6 Cox, C. C., 269; 2 C. L. R. 614; 23 L. J. M. C. 54; 18 Jur. 159; Reg. v. Cullum, 2 L. R. C. C. 28; 42 L. J. M. C. 64; 28 L. T. 571; 21 W. R. 687; Reg. v. Gale, 2 Q. B. D.

petitioner committed but one offence.<sup>1</sup> It seems that a servant is liable on an indictment for embezzlement only for the particular sum taken; and it must be shown that a particular sum received, or a part thereof, has been converted to his own use.<sup>2</sup>

V. Agents. — 1. Who are Agents: Generally. — The word "agent," as employed in the statute, is used in its popular sense, meaning one who undertakes to transact some business, or to manage some affair, for another, by authority and on account of the latter, and to render an account of it. It imports a principal, and implies employment, service, delegated authority to do something in the name and stead of the principal; and it does not include a mere naked bailee, who holds possession wholly and exclusively for the benefit of the bailor.<sup>3</sup>

141; s. c. 46 L. J. M. C. 134; 35 L. T. 526; 13 Cox, C. C., 340.

Thus, a clerk intrusted to receive money at home from out-door collectors, received it abroad from out-door customers. Held, that such a receipt of money might be considered by virtue of his employment, within 39 Geo. III. c. 85, although it was beyond the limits to which he was authorized to receive money for his employers. Rex v. Beechey, R. & R. C. C. 319. But where A. was employed to lead a stallion, and he was to charge 30s. a mare, and not to take less than 20s., he received the sum of 6s. for the covering of a mare, held, no embezzlement, as the sum was not received by virtue of his employment. Rex v. Snowley, 4 Car. & P. 390.

1. Ex parte Ricord, 11 Nev. 287.

2. See Reg. v. Chapman, 1 C. & K. 119; Rex v. Tyers, R. & R. C. C. 402.

Thus a person received £7. 2s. 6d. in his capacity of a clerk to overseer of a parish, and made an entry in a book of the receipt of that sum accordingly, and placed money with other sums in his possession, the entry of £7. 2s. 6d. was afterwards erased, and £5. 6s. 10½d. substituted for it, and the prisoner only accounted to the parish officers for £5. 6s. 10½d. On the indictment for embezzling £1. 15s. 7d., and conviction thereon, held, that as the prisoner might have paid over the whole of what he received for the £7. 2s. 6d. and have taken the £1. 15s. 7d. from the other moneys he received, he was improperly convicted. Rex v. Tyers, R. & R. C. C. 402.

Particular Sum or Part thereof must be Proved. — It was the duty of a clerk to receive money for his employer, and pay wages out of it, and to make entries of all moneys he received and paid in a book, and to enter the weekly totals of receipts and payments in another book, upon which last book he from time to time paid over his balances to his employer. The clerk having entries of weekly payment in his first book amounting to £25, he entered them in the second book as £35; and two months after, in accounting with his employer, by these means made his balance £10 too little, and paid it over accordingly. Held, that he could not be convicted of embezzlement, without it being shown that he had received some particular sum on account of his employer, and had converted either the whole or a part of that sum to his own use. Reg. v. Chapman, 1 C. & K. 119.

3. Pullam v. State, 78 Ala. 31; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 21; State v. Shadd, 80 Mo. 358; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795; State v. Healy, 48 Mo. 531; State v. Barter, 58 N. H. 604; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; Campbell v. State, 35 Ohio St. 70; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528; Rex v. Hartley, R. & R. 139; Ala. Code, sect. 4377.

Who is an "Agent" within the Statute.

— One may be an agent within the statute of embezzlement (Gen. Stat. ch. 257, sect. 8), who is not engaged in a general or continuous agency or service, but is authorized on a single occasion by the maker of certain notes to exchange them in renewal of others. State v. Barter, 58 N. H. 604; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

The person authorized to make the exchange may be an agent for that purpose, although the notes are made for his accommodation, and he is acting for himself as well as for his maker. State v. Barter, 58 N. H. 604; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

Where Money is intrusted to one to purchase Land, and is converted to the private use of the person so intrusted with it, this constitutes embezzlement. State v. Healy, 48 Mo. 531. And the case is not changed by reason of the fact that the title to the land which he contracted to purchase was in litigation, and for that reason the money could not be paid over to the vendor.

Person employed to collect Notes. — A person having in his possession certain

To render a person a servant, and to sustain the charge of embezzlement, the agent, etc., must be in the regular employment of the master, and it must be by virtue of such employment that the money or property appropriated comes to his hands. A mere casual employment does not fall within the statute.<sup>1</sup> When a person is employed to render special services as agent for another, his agency ceases with performance of the service and payment of the compensation therefor, unless there is an express understanding between them, or it may be implied from the circumstances, that, as to the matters growing out of the original purpose of the agency, the relations between the parties survived; and as to this question, the jury is to decide.<sup>2</sup> Where the relation of master and servant does not exist, there can be no embezzlement, because, where parties are conducting independent business, a misappropriation of goods or moneys coming into their hands by reason of such business, but which belongs rightfully to another, is not embezzlement.<sup>3</sup> promissory notes as indorsee, who employs an agent to collect the same, and account to him for the proceeds, is an employer within the meaning of the act against embezzlement; and upon the trial of the person so employed, for the embezzlement of the proceeds, it is no defence to show that his employer was bound to account to another for the moneys. Campbell v. State, 35 Ohio St. 70; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528.

One who auctions off "Pools" upon a Horse-Race, and receives the money of the purchaser, and gives a receipt therefor, is the agent of such purchaser; and if he converts such money to his own use, with intent to deprive the owner of its use and value, he is guilty of embezzlement, although the money was placed in his hands for an immoral purpose. But where such agent is to receive a per cent of the money bid, and placed in his hands, such per cent should be deducted from the amount, and the offence will not be a felony, if such deduction reduces it below thirty dollars. State v. Shadd, 80 Mo. 358; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795.

Captain of Barge employed to sell Coal.—In Rex v. Hartley, R. & R. 139, the owner of a colliery employed the prisoner as captain of one of the barges, to carry out and sell coal, and paid him for his labor by allowing him two-thirds of the price for which he sold the coal, after deducting the price charged at the colliery. He was held to be an agent. The court said, "He had no interest in the boat or coal; he was merely the servant of the owner, employed to take the coal to market to sell, and bring back the money to his employer; and the mode for paying him for his labor was by allowing him a fixed proportion of the profit made on the sale, beyond the price charged at the colliery. This did not vary the nature of the employment, nor make him less a servant, than if he had been paid a certain price per caldron or day."

1. Johnson v. State, 9 Baxt. (Tenn.) 279; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 883.

2. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 354; 10 Pac. Rep. 502; Cal. Code, 2355.

3. See Com. v. Young, 75 Mass. (9 Gray) 5; Rex v. White, 4 Car. & P. 46; Reg. v. Cosser, 13 Cox, C. C. 187; Rex v. Mason, D. & R. N. P. C. 22.

Thus, a mechanic receiving leather to be made into shoes at his own shop, is not an agent or servant of the person furnishing the leather within the meaning of Mass. Rev. Stat. ch. 126, sect. 29, against embezzlement. Com. v. Young, 75 Mass. (9 Gray) 5.

Whilst in treaty with Messrs. G. & P. for the sale and transfer of a public-house license, the prisoner was required by them to give security for the purchase-money before they would assist him in procuring a transfer. To enable him to give the required security, the prosecutor accepted three bills of exchange drawn upon him by the prisoner, which the latter was to deposit with G. & P. by way of security, and not negotiate or use for any other purpose, and if the transfer was not effected, was to return them to the prosecutor. The prisoner, instead of depositing them with G. & P., converted two of them to his own use. Held, that he was not an agent within sect. 75 of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, and could not be convicted under that section. Reg. v. Cosser, 13 Cox, C. C., 187.

2. What constitutes Embezzlement by; Intent; Possession of Property. — To warrant the conviction of an agent for the embezzlement of his principal's money, four facts must be established beyond a reasonable doubt: to wit, first, the agency whereby the defendant was charged with the duty of receiving the money; second, his receipt of his principal's money; third, that he received it in the course of his employment; and, fourth, that he embezzled, misapplied, or converted it to his own use.<sup>1</sup>

A. placed valuable securities in the hands of B., with a written direction to invest the proceeds in the funds, "in case of any unexpected accident happening to A." No accident did happen to A., and the proceeds were by B. converted to his own use. Held, that B. was not indictable under 52 Geo. III. c. 63 (repealed); and it seemed that he would not be so under 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 29, sect. 49; Rex v. White, 4 C. & P. 46.

Where a Party established a Savings Bank, consisting of 130 members, each of whom paid a weekly subscription of 2s. 1d., the odd penny being paid to him for the trouble of managing the affairs of the bank, the funds of which were to be disposed of once a week by a lottery, consisting of 129 blanks, and one prize amounting to £13, which was to go to the holder of the fortunate ticket, and the defendant having absconded, after receiving from one of the subscribers deposits to the amount of £10. 8s., without receiving any benefit therefrom. Held, that he was not indictable under the 52 Geo. III. c. 63, for embezzling the money as an agent, or as a person having the possession of money for safe custody. Rex v. Mason, D. & B. N. P. C. 22.

1. See Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 202; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611; ex parte Hedley, 31 Cal. 108; State v. Goode, 68 Iowa, 593; Lee v. Com. (Ky.); 8 Cr. L. Mag. 354; 1 S. W. Rep. 4; Com. v. Foster, 107 Mass. 221; State v. Healy, 48 Mo. 531; Campbell v. State, 35 Ohio St. 70; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528; Brady v. State, 21 Tex. App. 659; Webb v. State, 8 Tex. App. 310; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 802; Rex v. Prince, 2 Car. & P. 517; Reg. v. Tatlock, L. R. 2 Q. B. Div. 157; s. c., 46 L. J. M. C. 7; 35 L. T. 520; 13 Cox, C. C., 328. What constitutes embezzlement cannot be charged with reference to funds acquired and spent before the party assumed the fiduciary capacity. Lee v. Com. (Ky.); 8 Cr. L. Mag. 838; 1 S. W. Rep. 4.

Agents intrusted in Course of Business. — The 52 Geo. III. c. 63, applied only to persons to whom securities were intrusted in the exercise of their functions or business. Rex v. Prince, 2 Car. & P. 517.

An Insurance Broker was employed to effect three policies upon a vessel, which he did, advancing the premiums. A total loss having occurred, the broker received the necessary documents to collect the moneys insured, and thereupon collected the amounts due upon two of the policies, by checks payable to his order, which he paid into his own bank to his own credit. The premiums advanced by the broker and his commission on effecting the policies and receiving the losses were unpaid to him. The broker, on being asked for the moneys after they had been received, said they were not due until a future day, and subsequently made excuses, and did not pay over the sums received on account of the losses to the prosecutor. The jury, in answer to a question left to them, found that the policies had been intrusted to the broker for a special purpose; viz., that he should receive the moneys due on them, and forthwith pay them over to the prosecutor. There was no evidence to support such a finding in the case. Held, that there was a miscarriage, and, as the court had no power to direct a new trial, the conviction should be quashed. Reg. v. Tatlock, L. R. 2 Q. B. Div. 157; 46 L. J. M. C. 7; 35 L. T. 520; 13 Cox, C. C. 328.

Direction as to Application of Money received. — An agent was employed to sell goods on commission, and, as soon as he received moneys from customers, he was to remit them to his employers. During his employment, his employers wrote to him, "We will send H., B., & P. their bills at the end of the month, and the same day that you receive money from the customers you remit it to us. We will attend to your order, as our arrangements were to remit as soon as you received it, as you said they would not pay much before the 20th of each month." Held, that this letter was not a direction in writing as to the application or disposition of moneys received by the agent within sect. 75 of the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96. Reg. v. Brownlow, 39 L. T. 479.

Sale by Agent after Authority countermanded. — If any chattel, or valuable security, is intrusted to any broker or agent originally for the purpose of sale, but the authority to sell it is afterwards counter-

In order to constitute an embezzlement of money collected by an agent, and not paid over, there must be a felonious intent at the time of the collection to deprive the owner thereof.<sup>1</sup>

3. Working on Commissions.—Not every breach of trust is embezzlement. Thus a person having a mere commission to sell does not render himself guilty of embezzlement by converting the money obtained to his own use;<sup>2</sup> and one gratuitously engaging to procure the discount of a bill, not being himself in any business in which such employment regularly falls, cannot be convicted of embezzling the bill intrusted to him for the purpose of such discount.<sup>3</sup>

An agent selling goods on commission,<sup>4</sup> or collecting claims on commission, is not liable for embezzlement, if he converts the manded, and the broker or agent, notwithstanding that countermand, sells the goods in violation of the orders of his principal, such broker or agent might be convicted of misdemeanor, under 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 29, sect. 49; Reg. v. Gomm, 3 Cox, C. C., 64.

Conversion of Money to buy Land.—An agent who converts to his own use money intrusted to him by his principal for the purchase of land, is guilty of embezzlement. And the case is not altered by reason of the fact that the land contracted for proved to be in litigation, and that the title was, for that cause, in abeyance. State v. Healy, 48 Mo. 531.

Matters of Defence.—When an agent is prosecuted for the embezzlement of his employer's money, in a certain county, wherein he had possession of the money, and in which it was his duty to account to his employer upon demand being made, it is no defence to show that he expended the money for his own use in another county. Campbell v. State, 35 Ohio St. 70; s. c. 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528.

What constitutes the Offence.—The larceny of an ox being made a felony (Alabama Code, sect. 4328), without regard to its value, its embezzlement by an agent who acquired possession by virtue of his employment or agency (Ala. Code, sect. 4377), is also a felony. Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 202; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611.

Where one employed by a maker of a promissory note, to sell it and receive the proceeds and pay them over specifically to a third person, fraudulently converts them to his own use, it amounts to embezzlement. And the fact, that, upon receiving the note, he gave to the maker his own note for the same amount, will make no difference, if it was agreed that his note should be deposited with the third person as a receipt, to be given up to him upon his paying over the proceeds. Com. v. Foster, 107 Mass. 221.

Where one by agreement received of another a watch to trade for a wagon, and was to have five dollars as compensation for his services, but converted the watch to his own use, held, that this was embezzlement. State v. Foster, 37 Iowa, 404.

Under the Iowa Code, sect. 8909, embezzlement from a corporation may be committed by an agent, though he be under sixteen years of age; and an allegation in an indictment that he was over that age was superfluous, and a proof of it was not necessary to conviction. State v. Goode, 68 Iowa, 593.

In Missouri.—Embezzlement by the agent of an individual, or of a private company, is not an offence for which the agent can be indicted under the Missouri statute of 1836, concerning crimes and punishments. Hamuel v. State, 5 Mo. 260.

To constitute Embezzlement under the Code of Texas, the conversion must be of money or other property of the principal or employer, and it must have come into the possession of the agent or employee by virtue of his agency or employment. Evidence held insufficient to support a conviction for embezzlement, inasmuch as it does not establish the necessary fact that the money converted was the property of the employer. Brady v. State, 21 Tex. App. 659.

1. State v. Reilly, 4 Mo. App. 392; United States v. Sander, 6 McL. C. C. 598.

Thus, an agent authorized to receive letters of another cannot be charged with embezzling one which he received as such agent, unless he took it with a criminal intent. United States v. Sander, 6 McL. C. C. 598.

2. Regina v. Goodbody, 8 Car. & P. 665.

3. Rex v. Prince, M. & M. 21; s. c., 2 Car. & P. 517.

4. Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64; Miller v. State, 16 Neb. 179; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 910.

Working on Commission.—In Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64, the court money so received to his own use,<sup>1</sup> because in all cases where a person receives money, a portion of which belongs to himself as a commission on the whole amount, he is not guilty of embezzlement, though he converts the whole to his own use.<sup>2</sup>

4. Collecting Agents.—While it is true that an agent who collects claims for commission on the sums collected, and pursues the calling as a separate business, is not liable for embezzlement if he converts the money so received to his own use;<sup>3</sup> yet said that, "In case of a domestic servant, and, to some extent, in a case of special agency, the right of property and the possession continue in the principal, and a disposal of the property would be a violation of the trust, and an act of embezzlement. But cases of commission merchants, auctioneers, and attorneys, authorized to collect demands, stand upon a different footing; and a failure to pay over the balance due to their employers upon their collection will not, under the ordinary circumstances attending such agency, subject them to the heavy penalties consequent upon a conviction of the crime of embezzlement."

In Miller v. State, 16 Neb. 179; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 910, the plaintiff in error was indicted for the embezzlement, as agent, of certain moneys belonging to the M. M. Company, a corporation, received by him on sales of their machinery. The contract of agency, introduced in evidence on the part of the State, contained the following clause: "To remit to the said party of the first part the proceeds of each and every sale as early as the day following the delivery of the machinery to the purchaser. If the said sale was for all cash, the full commissions, as per article 3d, may be retained, or if a time sale, the full settlement for the same shall be remitted, less the proportion of commissions due on the cash received; the balance of the commission shall be due pro rata as the cash is paid on the notes. If any cash received on sales of machines is not remitted, as agreed in this section, the party of the second part shall not only be legally liable, but agrees that the settlement shall be made on the time sale basis, and ten per cent interest shall be paid on all cash so retained." Held, that money so retained was not embezzled, and that no conviction could be had therefor.

But it has been said that if such an agent receives in payment for goods so sold a check payable to his own order, and fraudulently converts it or its proceeds, he is guilty of embezzlement under the statute, notwithstanding a custom between him and his employer for him to deposit such checks in his own name, and send his employer his own checks in lieu thereof. Com. v.

Smith, 129 Mass. 104; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 707.

On the trial of an agent employed to sell goods, and authorized to receive payment, for embezzlement of money so received,—Mass. Gen. Stat., ch. 161, sec. 38,—the fact that he is paid in part by commissions on the sales made, is immaterial. Com. v. Smith, 129 Mass. 104; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706.

1. See Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64; Com. v. Stearns, 43 Mass. (2 Metc.) 343; State v. Kent, 22 Minn. 41; Miller v. State, 16 Neb. 179; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 910; Reg. v. White, 8 Car. & P. 742; Rex v. Carr, R. & R. 108; Reg. v. McDonald, 1 Leigh & C. 85; Reg. v. May, 1 Leigh & C. 13.

Collecting on Commission.—Under a statute punishing embezzlement of the "property of another," a collector employed under an agreement that, as compensation for his service as general collector of moneys in question, he shall be entitled to a percentage of all such moneys, no matter who collects them, cannot be convicted, for this agreement makes him a joint owner of the fund; hence it is not the property of another. State v. Kent, 22 Minn. 41. In Reg. v. May, 1 Leigh & C. 13, the prisoner was employed by an iron company to obtain orders at M., and was to receive a commission upon the orders obtained. It was his duty to account to the company for any money which he might receive for them, but it did not appear that it was his duty to receive money for them. It was held that he was not a clerk or servant within the statute, and was not held for embezzlement. In Reg. v. McDonald, 1 Leigh & C. 85, the servant was partly paid by salary and partly by percentage on the profits, but he was not to contribute to the losses, and had no control over the management of the business. The court held him to be a servant within the meaning of the statute. Rex v. White, 8 Car. & P. 742; Rex v. Carr, R. & R. 108.

2. Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64.

3. Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64; Com. v. Stearns, 43 Mass. (2 Metc.) 343; State v. Kent, 22 Minn. 41; Reg. v. White, 8 Car. & P. 742; Reg. v. McDonald, 1 Leigh & C. 85; Reg. v. May, 1

when a person not engaged in the business of collecting moneys for others as an independent employment is employed to collect moneys for another, subject to his direction and control, the relation of principal and agent is thereby created; and in such case the agent may be guilty of embezzlement, although he was to receive for his services a percentage of the moneys collected.<sup>1</sup>

5. Stockbrokers. — Stockbrokers, it seems, may be convicted of embezzlement where they receive money in the course of their employment which they fraudulently convert to their own use.<sup>2</sup>

6. Railroad and Express Agents. — Railroad and express agents who convert to their own use moneys which come into their possession as such agents, and by virtue of their employment, and in the discharge of their duties, are guilty of embezzlement.<sup>3</sup>

Leigh & C. 13; Rex v. Carr, R. & R. 198.

A person who is employed to collect bills for the proprietors of a newspaper establishment, and converts to his own use the money which he collects for them, is not such an agent or servant as is intended by Mass. Rev. Stat., ch. 126, sect. 29, which prescribes the punishment of embezzlement by agents and servants. Com. v. Libbey, 52 Mass. (11 Metc.) 64.

In Missouri. — The statute remedy (Wagn. Stat. 170b, sects. 7, 25) for an agent's failure to pay over collections to the commissioners at the North-western Insane Asylum, held to be concurrent with the common-law remedy. State v. Bittinger, 55 Mo. 596.

1. Campbell v. State, 35 Ohio St. 70; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528.

General Statute Kentucky, c. 39, art. 13, sect. 2, punishing person who, being intrusted with money or other property (which might be the subject of larceny) to be delivered to another, embezzles, or fraudulently converts it to his own use, does not apply to the act of an agent in converting money collected by him for his principal. And therefore, where a church appoints one as its agent to solicit and collect subscriptions for repairing the church, and the agent collects money from various persons, which he fails to pay over to the church, held, he cannot be indicted under the statute for embezzlement. The money could not be considered as paid to one to be delivered to another; but payment to the agent was equivalent to payment directly to the church. Shelburn v. Com. (Ky.) 9 Cr. L. Mag. 398; s. c., 3 S. W. Rep. 7.

2. See Reg. v. Christian, L. R. 2 C. C. 94; s. c., 12 L. J. M. C. 26; 29 L. T. 654; 22 W. R. 132; 12 Cox, C. C., 502; Reg. v. Cronmire, 55 L. T. 580; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

A stockbroker received an order to buy stock, together with a check for "cover and commission;" he did not buy, but paid the check into his bank, and spent the money. Held, rightly convicted under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 75. Reg. v. Cronmire, 54 L. T. 580; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

A stock and share dealer was employed by a lady to purchase securities for her. He bought in his own name, and received money from her from time to time to cover the amounts he had paid or had to pay for the securities. Such payments were not made against any particular item, but in checks for round sums. On one occasion he wrote to her, "I enclose a contract-note for £300 Japanese bonds at 112, £336;" and the contract-note ran, "sold to Mrs. S. £300 J. at 112, £336," and was signed by him. She wrote in reply, "I have just received your note and contract-note for the Japanese shares, and enclose a check for £336 in payment." The dealer never paid for the bonds, but in violation of good faith appropriated to his own use the proceeds of the check. Held, that the letter was a direction in writing to apply the proceeds of the check to pay for the bonds, if they had still to be paid for, within the meaning of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 75; and that he was rightly convicted of misdemeanor under that section. Reg. v. Christian, 2 L. R. C. C. 94; 12 L. J. M. C. 26; 29 L. T. 654; 22 W. R. 132.

Written Direction. — An indictment under 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 29, sect. 49 against a broker for embezzlement of a security for money, must have alleged a written direction to him as to the application of the proceeds. Reg. v. Golde, 2 M. & Rob. 425.

3. See ex parte Hedley, 31 Cal. 108; State v. Baldwin, 70 Iowa, 180; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 115; State v. Porter, 26 Mo. 201.

Defendant was charged with embezzling the funds of a railway company; but it appeared from the evidence that he had been a trusted employee of the company for many years, and was a man of unblemished reputation for honesty, and that the circum-

VI. By Directors, Members, and Officers of Corporations, etc. — I. By Officers generally. — It is a general rule that if any officer, agent, or clerk of an incorporated company or institution, or of any city, town, or county, or of any clerk, agent of any private person or co-partnership, or if any consignee or bailee of money or property, shall employ or fraudulently misapply or convert to his own use, without the consent of his principal or employer, any money or property of such principal or employer, or the proceeds of such property after sale which shall have come into his possession, or shall be under his control by virtue of such office, agency, or employment, he will be guilty of embezzlement.<sup>1</sup> It is a breach of trust which constitutes the gist of the offence. It is not every officer of an incorporated institution who is held to be liable under statute, but only such officers, clerks, or agents as have the money of their principal or employer (the institution) which shall have come into their possession or shall be under their control by stances were such that others might have embezzled the money, and that the only evidence against him was the fact that he tried for a time to conceal the loss of the money; but that fact he explained in a manner consistent with honest motives. Held, that a verdict of guilty could not be sustained. State v. Baldwin, 70 Iowa, 180; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 115.

In an indictment against a station-agent of a railroad company for the embezzlement of money which came into his hands, his suppression of way-bills is competent evidence from which the jury may infer an attempt to defraud; but where the testimony shows that he was a person of good character, and that others in the employ of the company had access to the money also, his explanation of his conduct in keeping back the way-bills, for the purpose of discovering the theft, should be accepted by the jury as true. State v. Baldwin, 70 Iowa, 180; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 115.

It is not necessary that the Prosecution should prove by direct and positive evidence the conversion charged if, without the consent of a railroad corporation, the alleged master, or employer. State v. Porter, 26 Mo. 201.

An Agent authorized to draw "Telegraphic" Checks. — When an agent of an express company, who was authorized to draw "telegraphic" checks on the company for its use, and was furnished with a secret word to identify them, drew such checks, and appropriated the money to his own use, which he was not authorized to do, he was held to have received the money in the course of his employment. Ex parte Hedley, 31 Cal. 108.

3. Henderson v. Gilliam, 12 Tex. 74; Castro v. Gentiley, 11 Tex. 31; Hanchett

v. Gray, 7 Tex. 552. See Com. v. Tuckerman, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 173; Coats v. People, 22 N. Y. 245; Hamilton v. Van Hook, 26 Tex. 305; Reg. v. Stainer, L. R. 1 C. C. 230; s. c., 21 L. T. 758; 18 W. R. 439.

Clerk of a Friendly Society. — It is embezzlement in the clerk of a friendly society fraudulently to withhold the rents of a house collected in the course of his duty as clerk. It is no defence that the business of the society has not been conducted according to the statute. Reg. v. Miller, 2 Mood. C. C. 249.

An officer of a friendly society, some of the rules of which were in restraint of trade, embezzled its money. Held, that the rules in restraint of trade are not criminal, although they may be void as being against public policy, and that a society having such rules is entitled to the protection of the criminal law for its funds, and consequently, that the officer might legally be convicted of embezzlement. Reg. v. Stainer, 1 L. R., C. C. 230; s. c., 21 L. T. 758; 18 W. R. 439.

The Treasurer of a Railroad Corporation is an "officer, agent, clerk, or servant, of an incorporated company," within the statute relating to embezzlement by such persons. Com. v. Tuckerman, 76 Mass. (10 Gray), 173, 196.

In order to sustain an indictment under the statute relating to embezzlements (2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. 678, sec. 59, as amended by Laws 1874, ch. 207), against the treasurer of a corporation, for the alleged conversion to his own use of money of the corporation, it must be made to appear that the money in question came into his possession or under his care by virtue of his office. Bartow v. People, 78 N. Y. 377; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 802.

virtue of said office, agency, or clerkship.<sup>1</sup> Embezzlement cannot be charged with reference to funds acquired and spent before the party assumed the fiduciary capacity.<sup>2</sup>

2. By Servants.—The servants and members of a corporation or society will be guilty of embezzlement where they appropriate to their own use moneys or property coming into their hands as servants or members of the corporation or society in the course of their employment or duty.<sup>3</sup>

Upon the trial of such an indictment it appeared that B., the prisoner, was treasurer of a savings institute, and was also cashier of a bank, the two corporations occupying the same room, and doing business over the same counter. By the by-laws of the institute it was provided that its president should have charge of its securities and property; also that the money of the institute should be deposited with the bank; it was so deposited, credit being given to the institute. A bond of a thousand dollars belonging to the institute was placed in the hands of F., its attorney, for collection; by whom, did not appear. F. collected the bond, and retained the money for the purpose of making another investment, depositing it to his own credit in said bank; subsequently he drew, on his own check, six hundred dollars from the bank; this, with other moneys, all amounting to fifteen hundred dollars, he placed in a package addressed to B., whether officially or personally did not appear. This package was delivered to S., who handed it to B. on the street after banking hours. B., in accordance with the custom of business of the bank, was going to New York with a package of money to deposit with its correspondent bank; he deposited both packages there to the credit of his bank, and on the next day wrote to F., acknowledging receipt of the money, using the letterhead of the bank, and signing in his usual manner as cashier. The money so deposited in New York was drawn out by the bank, which subsequently suspended. This item of fifteen hundred dollars was not entered on the books of the institute, or credited to it on the bank-books, and it did not appear that F. was credited with it on the books of either corporation. Held, that the evidence failed to show, as matter of law, that the money came into the hands of B. as treasurer of the institute, and that a charge to that effect was error. Bartow v. People, 78 N. Y. 377; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 802.

The Secretary of a Company.—A was secretary and cashier to a company calling themselves "The R. M. & H. Coal Co. (Limited);" the number of members exceeded twenty, but no certificate of incorporation was put in evidence. Held, that

A. was rightly convicted of embezzlement as servant of B. and others, there being no evidence which ought to have been left to the jury that the company was incorporated. Reg. v. Frankland, L. & C. 276; 9 Cox, C. C., 475; 32 L. J. M. C. 69; 9 Jur. N. S.; 7 L. T. 799; 11 W. R. 346.

The Clerk of an Institution, who has nothing to do with its fiscal affairs, but who happens to be in possession of its money, or has it under his guard, otherwise than by virtue of his office or clerkship, is not indictable for its conversion to his own use under article 771 of the Penal Code. State v. Johnson, 21 Tex. 776.

Under the New York Statute, it seems, by "incorporated companies" is intended only those which are composed of individuals associated together for private purposes. (2 R. S. 678, sect. 59; 3 R. S. (5th ed.) 975; Coats v. People, 22 N. Y. 245.

1. State v. Johnson, 21 Tex. 776.

2. In a case where a party is upon trial for embezzlement, his report that he had—meaning that he owed the corporation—a certain sum of money at the time of his election as treasurer, should have been submitted to the jury, for their determination, whether it was before or after such election that the money was spent by him. Lee v. Com. (Ky.), 8 Cr. L. Mag. 828; 1 S. W. Rep. 4.

3. See Reg. v. Atkinson, Car. & M. 525; s. c., 2 M. C. C. 278; Reg. v. Bren, L. & C. 346; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 398; 33 L. J. M. C. 59; 9 L. T. 452; 12 W. R. 107; Reg. v. Proud, L. & C. 97; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 22; 31 L. J. M. C. 71, 142; 5 L. T. 331; 10 W. R. 62; Reg. v. M'Donald, L. & C. 85; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 10; 31 L. J. M. C. 67; 7 Jur. N. S. 1127; 5 L. T. 330; 10 W. R. 21; Reg. v. Tyree, L. R. 1 C. C. 177; 38 L. J. M. C. 58; 19 L. T. 657; 17 W. R. 334; 11 Cox, C. C., 241; Reg. v. Marsh, 3 F. & F. 523.

A Clerk of a Banking Company, established under 7 Geo. IV. c. 46, may be convicted of embezzling the money of the company, although he is a shareholder or partner in such company. Reg. v. Atkinson, Car. & M. 525; 2 M. C. C. 215.

Servant of Commission Agents.—A was a cashier and collector to commission agents. He was paid partly by salary and

VII. By Partners.—Partners sustain the character of principals as well as agents, and have a community of property and interest in partnership effects, and therefore cannot embezzle the funds of the partnership which they wrongfully apply to their individual uses without mutual consent. But this immunity does not attach as long as the partnership contract is executory only, or dependent upon unperformed conditions precedent.<sup>1</sup> partly by percentage on the profits, but was not to contribute to the losses, and had no control over the management of the business. Held, that he was a servant within the 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 29, sect. 47, and not a partner. Reg. v. McDonald, L. & C. 85; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 10; 31 L. J. M. C. 67; 7 Jur. N. S. 1127; 5 L. T. 330; 10 W. R. 21.

Officers and Servants of Friendly Societies.—Two friendly societies appointed a committee, of which the defendant was a member, to conduct an excursion; the committee employed him and several others to sell tickets. It was his duty to pay over the money so received, which was to belong to the two societies, to a person appointed by the committee, but he received no remuneration for his services. Held, that he was joint owner of the money, and not a clerk or servant within 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 68, liable to be indicted for embezzlement. Reg. v. Bren, L. & C. 346; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 398; 33 L. J. M. C. 59; 9 L. T. 452; 12 W. R. 107.

A member of a friendly society was employed to receive the weekly payments made by the members. He gave correct receipts to the members, but omitted to enter in the contribution and cash books a large number of the sums so received. On being called upon for an explanation, he admitted that he had received the sums so omitted. Held, that he was guilty of embezzlement. Reg. v. Proud, L. & C. 97; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 22; 31 L. J. M. C. 71; 5 L. T. 331; 10 W. R. 62.

A treasurer, who was also a member of a friendly society, whose duty it was to receive the moneys paid into the society, hold them to the order of the secretary countersigned by the chairman or a trustee, and to account whenever called upon, to which office no salary was attached, is not a clerk or servant liable to be indicted for embezzlement under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, sect. 68. Reg. v. Tyree, 1 L. R. C. C. 177; 38 L. J. M. C. 58; 19 L. T. 657; 17 W. R. 334; 11 Cox, C. C., 241.

But a member of two unenrolled benefit clubs, paid as secretary, and intrusted with the funds to deposit in the bank, in the joint names of himself and the treasurer, dishonestly appropriated the sums so intrusted to him; it was held, that he could not be convicted of embezzlement as a servant. Reg. v. Marsh, 3 F. & F. 523.

Servant or Independent Officer.—Under an order of the poor-law commissioners, in pursuance of 4 & 5 Will. IV. c. 76, sect. 46, the board of guardians of a union appointed A. to the office of collector of rates for the S. district, which district formed a part of the union. In the order of the poor-law commissioners, the duties of the collector, and the compensation he was to receive, were fully set forth, and upon the receipt of the order the guardians appointed him verbally, which appointment was afterwards submitted for approval to the poor-law commissioners, and ratified by them. The power of dismissal rested with the poor-law commissioners alone. The collector, on his appointment, gave a bond for the proper performance of his duties to the guardians, and to them he was bound to give in a statement of his accounts weekly. There were separate rates for each parish or district of the union, and the duty of the collector was to collect the rates of the S. district, and pay in the amount to a banker, to the credit of the overseers of that district, they alone having the right of disposing of it. Out of this sum, the overseers paid the collector a percentage for his services. Held, that an indictment for embezzlement was not sustainable, there being no such service to any one as the 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 29, sect. 47, required, the collector being, under the circumstances, an independent officer. Reg. v. Truman, 2 Cox, C. C., 306.

1. Napoleon v. State, 3 Tex. App. 522; s. c., 1 Tex. L. J. 302; 6 Cent. L. J. 457. See Reg. v. Balls, L. R. 1 C. C. 328; s. c., 40 L. J. M. C. 148; 24 L. T. 760; 19 W. R. 876; 12 Cox, C. C., 96; Reg. v. Wortley, T. & M. 636; s. c., 2 Den. C. C. 333; 5 Cox, C. C., 382; 21 L. J. M. C. 44; 15 Jur. 1137.

Agreement for Joint Enterprise.—Where A. and B. agree together to raise an equal sum of money for the purpose of engaging in a joint enterprise, and A. places in the possession of B. his part of the joint capital with the understanding that B. will add thereto a like sum, and will proceed to the execution of the joint undertaking, and B. wholly fails to comply with his part of the agreement, and converts the money so placed in his possession by A. to his own use and benefit, he is guilty of embezzlement. Napoleon v. State, 3 Tex. App. 522; s. c., 1 Tex. L. J. 302; 6 Cent. L. J. 457.

VIII. By Bailee.—The statute denouncing embezzlement was directed at the bailee who stands in a fiduciary relation to his bailor,—those having possession wholly and exclusively for the benefit of the bailor; but it is not operative against that class of bailees who hire a chattel for a term.<sup>1</sup>

The Prisoner was a Member of a Co-partnership, and it was his duty to receive money for the co-partnership, and once a week to render an account, and pay over the gross amount received during the previous week. During each of three several weeks within six months the prisoner received various small sums, and failed to account for them at the end of the week, or to pay over the gross amount, but embezzled the money. Held, that he might properly be charged with embezzling the weekly aggregates; that three acts of embezzlement of such weekly aggregates within six months might be charged and proved under one indictment; and that evidence of the small sums received during each week was admissible to show how these aggregates were made up. Reg. v. Balls, 1 L. R. C. C. 328; s. c., 40 L. J. M. C. 148; 24 L. T. 760; 19 W. R. 876; 12 Cox, C. C., 96.

Servant or Partner.—An instrument in the following form is a contract for service by a laborer, and not a contract of partnership: "S. W. engages to take charge of the glebe land of the Rev. A. B., his wife undertaking the dairy and poultry, at 15s. a week, till Michaelmas, 1850, and afterwards at a salary of £25 a year, and a third of the clear annual profits, after all the expenses of rent, rate, labor, and interest on capital, etc., are paid, on a fair valuation made from Michaelmas to Michaelmas, three months' notice on either side to be given, at the expiration of which the cottage to be vacated by S. W., who occupies it as a bailiff, in addition to his salary. March 12, 1850. (Signed) A. B., S. W." The prisoner was directed to account, and was in the habit of accounting, with the wife of the prosecutor. On the 4th of October, the prisoner, in accounting with her, denied the receipt of two sums of money which he had received for and on account of his master, and appropriated them to his own use. Held, that he was properly convicted of embezzlement, although Michaelmas was the time agreed upon when a valuation was to take place, and the profits were to be ascertained. Reg. v. Wortley, T. & M. 636; s. c., 2 Den. C. C. 333; 5 Cox, C. C., 382; 21 L. J. M. C. 44; 15 Jur. 1137.

1. Watson v. State, 70 Ala. 13; s. c., 45

Am. Rep. 70; 3 Cr. L. Mag. 581; State v. Small, 26 Kan. 209; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759; Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1; State v. Grisham, 90 Mo. 163; People v. Cruger, 102 N. Y. 510; People v. Burr, 41 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 293. See also, Hutchison v. Com., 82 Pa. St. 472; Epperson v. State, 22 Tex. App. 694; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 556; Reg. v. DeBanks (Eng.) 5 Cr. L. Mag. 844, 910.

On trial of an indictment for embezzlement and larceny as bailees, a delivery of accepted orders for oil, held to be a delivery of the oil, and to constitute a bailment, and the defendants, having converted the oil to their own use, to be guilty. Hutchison v. Com., 82 Pa. St. 472.

What constitutes the Offence.—If, at the time he sold the property intrusted to his care as a bailment, the bailee had conceived and had the intent to defraud his bailor of the value of the property, and appropriate the same to his own use, it is immaterial whether or not he had authority to sell the property. Harboring the intent at the time of the sale, his subsequent sale of the property and conversion to his own use of the proceeds, whether or not he had authority to make the sale, was an embezzlement of the property. Epperson v. State, 22 Tex. App. 694; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 556.

Same.—Conversion of Manufactured Article.—A tradesman to whom raw materials are given to be converted into manufactured articles, who contracts and receives them in good faith, is not guilty of embezzlement by a subsequent wrongful conversion of the manufactured articles. The employment of the tradesman as such does not create the relation of master and servant, but that of bailor and bailee. People v. Burr, 41 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 293.

Appropriation of Chattel Mortgage by Maker.—Where the owners of a chattel mortgage deliver it to the maker of the instrument as bailee, to be by him carried and delivered to the recorder of deeds for the county, who did not deliver it to such recorder, or leave it for the recorder at the recorder's office, but converted it to his own use, it is not the offence of stealing or embezzling defined in R. S. sect. 1322, it not having been an instrument purporting to be the "act of another," but his own act, and therefore not within the terms of that section. State v. Grisham, 90 Mo. 163.

Disposal of Collateral Security before Debt due.—The disposal of collateral security by the holder before the debt, to secure the payment of which it was deposited with him to secure, becomes due and payable to him, punishable under Mass. Gen. Stat. ch. 161, sect. 64, is not indictable as embezzlement under sect. 35. Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1.

IX. By Attorneys.—An attorney-at-law who fraudulently keeps money collected for his client, and uses the same for his own purposes, without informing his client of its collection, is guilty of embezzlement.<sup>1</sup>

Fraudulently pledging Collateral.—An indictment for embezzlement will lie for fraudulently pledging, as security for one's own debt, property which may be the subject of larceny held as collateral security for the payment of the note of another, if the wrongful conversion is committed after payment of the note. Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1.

What Bailees are within Statute.—The statute which declares that "any private banker, commission-merchant, factor, broker, attorney, bailee, or other agent, who embezzles or fraudulently converts to his own use," etc., "any money, property, or effects, deposited with him, or the proceeds of any property sold by him for another, must be punished as if he had stolen it" (Code, sect. 4384), applies only to bailments in which the parties stand to each other in a fiduciary relation, the bailee having the possession wholly and exclusively for the benefit of the bailor; and a conviction cannot be had under it against the hirer of a domestic animal who sells the same during the term. Watson v. State, 70 Ala. 13; s. c., 45 Am. Rep. 70.

Where a person fraudulently removes and secretes a gelding, with which he has been intrusted as bailee, with intent to embezzle and convert the property to his own use, he may be convicted therefor under the provision of Comp. L. 1879, ch. 31, sect. 90. State v. Small, 26 Kan. 209; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759.

On the trial of an indictment charging the servant of the prosecutor with receiving money and fraudulently embezzling it, and so stealing it, the evidence was that the prisoner was only employed to sell a horse for him, with the price of which he had absconded. It having been ruled at the trial that he was not a servant, held, he was a bailee, and might be convicted of stealing the money. Reg. v. DeBanks (Eng.), 5 Cr. L. Mag. 844, 910.

Failure to Pay over the Proceeds of a Sale or Pledge of a Diamond Pin left with the defendant, by the owner, for the purpose of sale or pledge, will not sustain an indictment for larceny of the pin. People v. Cruger, 102 N. Y. 510.

6 C. of L.—31

1. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 10 West. Coast Rep. 181; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795; Reg. v. Fullagar, 14 Cox, C. C., 370; s. c., 44 J. P. 57; Reg. v. Cooper, L. R. 2, C. C. 123; s. c., 43 L. J. M. C. 89; 30 L. T. 306; 22 W. R. 555; 12 Cox, C. C., 600; Reg. v. Newman, L. R. 8, Q. B. Div. 706; s. c., 51 L. J. M. C. 87; 46 L. T. 394; 30 W. R. 550; 46 J. P. 617.

Embezzlement by Attorney.—Using Money received. — A verdict of embezzlement would be fully warranted in a case where an attorney at law, acting as agent for the payee of a note, received the amount from the drawee, and used the same for his own purposes, concealing from his principal the fact of the payment of the note. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 354.

Trust money having been invested on mortgage, the mortgage was paid off, and the money left in the hands of the family solicitor, and was subsequently appropriated by him. Held, that this was a fraudulent conversion to his own use of property intrusted to the solicitor for safe custody with s. 70 of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, Reg. v. Fullagar, 14 Cox, C. C., 370; s. c., 44 J. P. 57.

In a protection for such embezzlement, the questions, whether at the time the money was collected the attorney was acting in behalf of the person on whose account it was paid, or whether such person had any property in the money, are for the jury. If, at such time, the attorney represented himself to the debtor as so acting, he is estopped to deny his authority. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795.

An Attorney was employed to raise a Loan of Money on a Mortgage, of which he was to employ a part in paying off an earlier mortgage, and to hand over the rest to the mortgagor. He prepared the mortgage deed, received the mortgage money, and handed over the deed to the mortgagee in exchange. He then misappropriated a part of the money to his own use. Held, that no offence had been committed under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 75 or 76; Reg. v. Cooper, 2 L. R. C. C. 123; s. c., 43 L. J. M. C. 89; 30 L. T. 306; 22 W. R. 555; 12 Cox, C. C., 600.

Misappropriation of Property intrusted for Safe Custody.—N., a solicitor, was intrusted by a client with money to invest on mortgage on the client's behalf; he, instead of so doing, fraudulently appropriated the money to his own use. Held, that N. was not intrusted with such money for "safe custody" within s. 76 of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96; Reg. v. Newman, 8 Q. B. Div. 706; s. c., 51 L. J. M. C. 87; 46 L. T. 394; 30 W. R. 550; 46 J. P. 617.

X. By Trustee. — A trustee fraudulently appropriating trust money or property to his own use is guilty of embezzlement.<sup>1</sup>

"Direction in Writing to apply Money."

— Trust money had been invested on a mortgage. The mortgage was paid off, and the money left in the hands of the family solicitor, who wrote to the person beneficially interested, "R.'s money was paid on Saturday the 6th day of April, £2,500 and interest. Let me know how you would like to have the £2,500 invested, whether in the funds or on the mortgage. I can get you four per cent on a good security, but no more. More than five per cent is not to be obtained upon such securities as trustees would be justified in investing." The answer was dated the 9th of April: "Will consult C. at once about the money, and let you know. I do not wish it placed in the funds. I am very glad it is paid over, and hope it is well secured by this time." At or near the date of these letters, it was clear that the money had been fraudulently appropriated to his own use by the solicitor. Quære whether the above letters amounted to a direction in writing to apply the money within s. 75 of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96; Reg. v. Fullagar, 14 Cox, C. C. 370; s. c., 44 J. P. 57.

1. See Baker v. State, 6 Tex. App. 344; Keeller v. State, 4 Tex. App. 527; Reg. v. Gibbs, Dears. C. C. 445; s. c., 6 Cox, C. C. 455; 24 L. J. M. C. 62; 1 Jur. N. S. 118; Wadham v. Rigg, 1 Drew & Sm. 216; Reg. v. Fletcher, L. & C., C. C. 180; 9 Cox, C. C., 189; 31 L. J. M. C. 206; 8 Jur. N. S. 649; 6 L. T. N. S. 545; 10 W. R. 753.

Conversion of Money advanced on an Executory Contract. — Texas Doctrine. — A conviction for embezzlement or theft under Paschal's Tex. Dig. art. 2423, prohibiting fraudulent conversion of trust-money, is not sustained by mere proof that the money was an advanced payment on a contract which the accused wholly failed to perform. Keeller v. State, 4 Tex. App. 527. The definition of embezzlement in Paschal's Tex. Dig. art. 2421, does not apply to the proceeds of trust property other than such as have accrued from a sale of it. Baker v. State, 6 Tex. App. 344.

Servant or Trustee. — A. was a carrier, residing at Somerton, and going from that place to Stoke and back, employed, however, only between the glove-sewers at Somerton and the manufacturers at Stoke, in carrying the gloves from and to the one and the other. The manufacturers knew nothing of the sewers, but A. gave the name of and took out a number for any woman desiring to be employed, received unsewn gloves from the manufacturers, and conveyed them to the women at Somerton, taking back the gloves when finished, and receiving the amount due to the women for their work. The manufacturers looked to the women for their work; but if any were missing, and the women not found, they held the prisoner accountable for it. In accordance with this course of proceedings, A. received sewn gloves from two of the women, delivered them to the manufacturers, and received the amount due for the work, but fraudulently applied the money so received to his own use. He was tried for, and convicted of, embezzling the money of the two women. Held, that the relation of master and servant did not subsist, but A. was a mere trustee, and was only guilty of a breach of trust, and not of embezzlement; and therefore the conviction was wrong. Reg. v. Gibbs, Dears. C. C. 445; s. c., 6 Cox, C. C., 455; 24 L. J. M. C. 62; 1 Jur. N. S. 118.

Who is Trustee. — A person, who was trustee, treasurer, and secretary of a savings bank, was indicted for misappropriation as trustee. As secretary he received the money deposited, which, by the rules of the savings bank, it was his duty to hand over to the treasurer, who was required by the savings bank Acts to pay it over, when demanded, to the trustees, whose duty, as defined by the rules, was to vest it in the public funds in the names of the commissioners for the reduction of the national debt. He falsified his accounts, and appropriated to his own purposes part of the money so deposited with him as secretary, with intent to defraud. Held, first, that he was a trustee for the benefit of other persons. Held, secondly, that there was an express trust created by the rules, although they were made before the appointment of the trustee and the existence of the trust-fund. Held, thirdly, that the rules of the savings bank were an instrument in writing. Reg. v. Fletcher, L. & C., C. C. 180; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 189; 31 L. J. M. C. 206; 8 Jur. N. S. 649; 6 L. T. N. S. 545; 10 W. R. 753.

Sanction of Court of Chancery to Proceedings. — The Court of Chancery sanctioned criminal proceedings upon an affidavit, stating that a trustee had paid £1,409 into his private bankers, had drawn out the whole, with the exception of £28, and had paid a private debt of a hundred

XI. By Guardian. — A guardian who feloniously appropriates the property or money of his ward, will be guilty of embezzlement;<sup>1</sup> but where he uses or occupies the property of his ward, and becomes indebted to his ward for such use or occupation, the non-payment of such sum will not be embezzlement.<sup>2</sup>

XII. By Carrier. — A common carrier may be guilty of embezzlement by appropriating to his own use property intrusted to his care to be carried from one point to another.<sup>3</sup> But it is otherwise when he separates the bulk, and appropriates a portion thereof. In the latter case he is guilty of larceny, and not embezzlement.<sup>4</sup>

XIII. By Banks, Private and National. — I. Private Banks. — a. By Officers generally. — The officers of a banking corporation, or savings society, may be indicted and punished for embezzlement, where they assign the property without authority, or convert it to their own use.<sup>5</sup> An authorized loan to a bank-officer may be a conversion, and punishable as embezzlement. But it is not any and fifty pounds out of the trust funds. Wadham v. Rigg, 1 Drew & Sm. 216.

1. Embezzlement of Pension Money. — The act of Congress (Rev. Stat. sect. 4783) which defines the offence of embezzlement by a guardian of a ward's pension money is valid and constitutional; and the circuit court is vested with the jurisdiction to try a person charged with such offence, and sentence him to the punishment imposed by such act. United States v. Hall, 93 U. S. (8 Otto) 343; bk. 25, L. ed. 180.

2. See Bingham v. Beckwith, 3 How. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 166; s. c., 19 Week. Dig. 422; 6 Cr. L. Mag. 125.

3. Johnson v. Brown, 25 Tex. App. 120; Smith v. Com., 4 Gratt. (Va.) 532; White v. State, 20 Wis. 233.

4. Nichols v. People, 17 N. Y. 114.

Conversion by Carrier. — The separation and conversion to his own use, by a carrier, without the assent of the owner, of sundry bars of pig-iron, part of a large number of which had been delivered to him for transportation, and loaded upon his canal-boat, is larceny, and not embezzlement. Nichols v. People, 17 N. Y. 114.

Where the commodity, a part of which is separated by the carrier from the rest, is transferred in commerce by weight, and not by count, the severance is a trespass which determines the privity of contract, and a breaking of bulk equivalent to the opening of a bale or package. Nichols v. People, 17 N. Y. 114.

5. See Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98; People v. Clements, 42 Hun (N. Y.), 286; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; 25 Week. Dig. 184; Bartow v. People, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 22; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 261. State v. Duggan (R. I.), Index Z. 17; s. c., 3 New Eng. 137.

Unauthorized Assignment on Delivery of Mortgage. — An unauthorized assignment and delivery of mortgage, the property of a savings bank, by its treasurer, is an embezzlement of the mortgage, although his act did not pass the title of the bank (Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98), and although the treasurer believed that he had authority to assign the same for the benefit of the bank. Id.

What constitutes the Offence. — To convict under section 600, Penal Code, declaring a bank officer who knowingly overdraws his account, and thereby obtains money, etc., of the bank, guilty of misdemeanor, the obtaining of the money must be actually shown. It is not enough that the account is overdrawn, and that the bank is or has been in possession of the check of said officer for the amount alleged to have been wrongfully obtained by him, nor even that said officer has repaid the said amount to the bank. People v. Clements, 42 Hun (N. Y.), 286; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; 25 Week. Dig. 184.

Where Cashier is also Treasurer. — As to what facts are sufficient to constitute embezzlement by a bank cashier of the funds of a savings institution of which he was also treasurer, and which funds were placed in his hands for deposit in the bank, but not credited on the books of the bank. See Bartow v. People, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 22; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 261.

The treasurer of a savings bank is indictable for embezzlement of the property of the bank, under Mass. Gen. Stats. c. 161, sect. 28. Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98.

Act applying to a Particular Bank Unconstitutional. — An act making it a felony for an officer or servant of a particular bank to embezzle its funds, and which does not apply to the officers and servants of all banking corporations, is unconstitutional. State v. Duggan (R. I.), Index Z. 17; s. c., 3 New Eng. Rep. 137.

and every loan to a bank-officer whose account is overdrawn, which constitutes the statutory offence; to support conviction it must be made to appear that the obtaining was wrongful.<sup>1</sup>

b. By Clerk and Cashier. — Where a clerk or cashier in a bank or savings institution converts to his own use money placed under his care or management as such officer, he will be guilty of embezzlement.<sup>2</sup>

c. Private Bankers and Managers. — Where a banker, known to be doing business, in part at least, upon the profits arising from the use of deposits in his bank, is unable to meet his obligations, and fails, the depositor is a creditor of the bank, and there is nothing about his relation with the bank that can make its failure an embezzlement of the funds deposited. The deposit is considered a loan, and a mere failure to pay a loan can never be an embezzlement.<sup>3</sup>

1. People v. Clements, 42 Hun (N. Y.), 286; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; 25 Week. Dig. 184.

2. See Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629; First Nat. Bank of Monmouth v. Dunbar, 118 Ill. 625; s. c., 6 West Rep. 530; Barclay v. Breckinridge, 4 Met. (Ky.) 374.

Conversion by Clerk or Cashier; Larceny at Common Law. — The fact that the felonious taking of moneys and securities out of a bank vault by a bank clerk, and converting them to his own use, may be larceny at common law, makes it no less embezzlement under the statute. It is entirely competent for the legislature to declare what acts shall constitute the crime of embezzlement, and fix the punishment. Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629.

Where the clerk of a private banker converts to his own use money which he charges on the books to a depositor, the offence is not a felony. Barclay v. Breckinridge, 4 Met. (Ky.) 374. Ky. Rev. Stat. ch. 28, art. 12, sect. 1, declares the agent of a corporation who fraudulently converts to his own use money "placed under his care or management as such officer" guilty of felony, but the rule is different as to the agent of an individual. In the latter case the agent does not commit a felony unless he converts to his own use money intrusted to him for delivery at some place or to some person. Barclay v. Breckinridge, 4 Met. (Ky.) 374.

Where a Person employs a Cashier of a Bank to purchase Certain Railroad Aid Bonds for him, the cashier is his agent in the purchase of the bonds; but when the bonds are deposited as a special deposit, he ceases to be agent of the purchaser, and becomes agent of the bank; and if he afterwards embezzles the funds of the bank, and, to hide his embezzlement, takes the bonds from the special deposit, and places them among and reports them as assets of the bank, the depositor may recover their value from the bank. First Nat. Bank of Monmouth v. Dunbar, 118 Ill. 625; s. c., 6 West Rep. 530.

3. People v. Wadsworth (Mich.), 9 Cr. L. Mag. 114; s. c., 6 West. Rep. 180; 30 N. W. Rep. 99.

Thus, where, for a number of years, it had been the practice of banks in the city of Ishpeming to supply the money necessary to secure the nomination and election of the city treasurer, and after election to furnish his bonds, and thereafter the successful bank transacted all business of the city treasurer, and held the city funds on deposit, the manager of such a banking-house is not liable for embezzlement, where the funds were used to pay other depositors, and the bank immediately thereafter made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. In this case respondent assented to the request of the mayor that the funds should be kept separate from other funds; but it did not appear that there was any agreement that the bank should abstain from using the money, or that the city treasurer was party to such agreement; and there was no evidence tending to show that defendant used the money for his own private gain or advantage, or that he knew of the insolvent condition of the bank. People v. Wadsworth (Mich.), 9 Cr. L. Mag. 114; s. c., 6 West. Rep. 180; 30 N. W. Rep. 99.

However, it is different under the United States statute providing that "every banker, broker, or other person not an authorized depository of public moneys, who knowingly receives from any disbursing officer . . . any public money on deposit, or by way of loan, . . . is guilty of an act of embezzlement." See United States v. Conant, 9 Rep. 36; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 261; 9 Cent. L. J. 129.

2. National Banks. — a. Generally. — Under the United States statute, the officers, servants, and agents of national banks will be guilty of embezzlement, if they misappropriate or misapply the moneys, funds, or other assets of the bank.<sup>1</sup>

b. By Officers. — (1) By President. — A national-bank president, or other officer, who converts funds of the bank in his charge to his own use, is chargeable with embezzlement, unless he show authority for so doing.<sup>2</sup>

1. U. S. Rev. Stat. § 5209.

The National Banking Act, which provides that "every president, director, cashier, teller, clerk, or agent of any association who embezzles, abstracts, or wilfully misapplies any of the moneys, funds, or credits of the association, or who, without authority from the directors, issues or puts in circulation any of the notes of the association, or who, without such authority, issues or puts forth any certificate of deposit, draws any order or bill of exchange, makes any acceptance, assigns any note, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment, or decree, or who makes any false entry in any book, report, or statement of the association, with intent in either case to injure or defraud the association, or any other company, body politic or corporate, or any individual person, or to deceive any officer of the association, or any agent appointed to examine the affairs of any such association, and any person who, with like intent, aids or abets any officer, clerk, or agent in any violation of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor," is construed in United States v. Conant, 1 Cr. L. Mag. 261; 9 Rep. 36; 9 Cent. L. J. 129; and in a charge to the jury in United States v. Lee, 12 Fed. Rep. 316.

The word "Embezzle," as found in the United States Revised Statutes, is used to describe a crime which a person has an opportunity to commit by reason of some office or employment, and which may include some breach of confidence or trust. United States v. Conant, 1 Cr. L. Mag. 261; 9 Rep. 36; s. c., 9 Cent. L. J. 129.

The word "Moneys" in the United States Revised Statutes, § 5209, includes bills of national banks as well as legal-tender notes. United States v. Johnson, 4 Cin. L. Bul. 361; s. c., 1 N. J. L. J. 162.

Money has been construed to mean gold or silver, or the lawful currency of the country, or bank-notes. Seawell v. Henry, 6 Ala. 226; Bush v. Baldrey, 93 Mass. (11 Allen) 367; Wood v. Bullens, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 516; Buchegger v. Shultz, 13 Mich. 420; Green v. Sizer, 40 Miss. 530, 543; Williams v. Roser, 7 Mo. 556; Frothingham v. Morse, 45 N. H. 545; Smith v. Burch, 92 N. Y. 228, 234; Frank v. Wessels, 64 N. Y. 155; Dusenberry v.

Woodward, 1 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. 454; Beck v. McGillis, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 35, 59; Judah v. Harris, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 145; Legal Tender Case, 52 Pa. St. 9; Cooley v. Weeks, 10 Verg. (Tenn.) 141; Danville v. Sutherlin, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 583; Klauber v. Biggerstaff, 47 Wis. 551, 560; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 773, 778; Legal Tender Cases, 79 U. S. (12 Wall.) 457; bk. 20, L. ed. 287; Hepburn v. Griswold, 75 U. S. (8 Wall.) 603; bk. 19, L. ed. 513; Veazie Bank v. Fenno, 75 U. S. (8 Wall.) 533; bk. 19, L. ed. 482; Thompson v. Riggs, 72 U. S. (5 Wall.) 663; bk. 18 L. ed. 704.

The Wilful Misapplication of the Moneys and Funds of a Banking Association, which is made an offence by Rev. Stat. sec. 5209, is a different offence from the acts of official maladministration referred to in section 5239. To constitute a violation of the first-mentioned provision, there must be a wilful misapplication for the use or benefit of the party charged, or of some person or company other than the association, with intent to injure and defraud the association, or some other body corporate, or some natural person, and the indictment must charge that such misapplication was so made. Where the indictment charges the fraudulent purchase by the defendant, as president of a banking association, of certain shares of stock "in trust for the use of said association, and which shares of stock were not purchased as aforesaid in order to prevent loss upon any debts theretofore contracted with said association in good faith," it does not charge a criminal misapplication of funds, but a mere maladministration of the affairs of the bank. United States v. Britton, 107 U. S. (17 Otto) 655; bk. 27, L. ed. 520.

2. Matter of Van Campen, 2 Ben. (U. S. D. C.) 419. See United States v. Conant, 1 Cr. L. Mag. 261; s. c., 9 Cent. L. J. 120; 9 Rep. 36; United States v. Johnson, 4 Cin. L. Bul. 361; United States v. Fish, 24 Fed. Rep. 585; United States v. Voorhees, 19 Fed. Rep. 143; United States v. Lee, 12 Fed. Rep. 816; United States v. Taintor, 11 Blatchf. C. C. 374; s. c., 19 Int. Rev. Rec. 4; United States v. Bartow, 20 Blatchf. C. C. 351.

Unauthorised Use of Money. — The fact that the funds of the bank have been used

(2) By Directors. — A director of a national bank, who, knowing that he has no money to his credit in the bank, and no right to draw money therefrom, obtains money from the bank to which he has no right, by means of an over draft, made with the intent to defraud, and converts the same to his own use, in fraud of the bank, is guilty of a misapplication of the funds of the bank.<sup>1</sup>

(3) By Cashier or Teller. — Embezzlement by the cashier of a bank is not a common-law offence. An indictment therefor must rest upon some statute or it cannot be sustained.<sup>2</sup>

Embezzlement by a cashier of a national bank is punishable under section fifty-two hundred and nine of the United States Revised Statutes only;<sup>3</sup> therefore the punishment provided by a State law for embezzlement by any "officer, director, or member of any bank," cannot be imposed upon a national-bank cashier, his crime being punishable only under the United States statutes.<sup>4</sup> by the president or other officer of the bank in a manner not authorized by the statute is in itself proof conclusive of guilty intent, and proof of a generous motive does not disprove such intent; the guilty intent required by the statute may still exist, although it be shown that no personal pecuniary benefit was anticipated. The requirement of the statute is fulfilled by proof of general guilty intent, involved in the act knowingly committed. United States v. Taintor, 11 Blatchf. C. C. 374; s. c., 19 Int. Rev. Rec. 4.

Where an Officer of a Banking Association, being Insolvent, submits his own Note, with an Insolvent Indorser as Security, to the Board of Directors for discount, and they, knowing the facts, order it to be discounted, the use by the officer of the proceeds of the discount for his own purposes will not be a wilful misapplication of the funds of the bank, and subject him to a criminal prosecution under Rev. Stat. sect. 5209. United States v. Britton, 107 U. S. (17 Otto) 655; bk. 25, L. ed. 520.

1. United States v. Warner, 26 Fed. Rep. 616; s. c., 7 Crim. L. Mag. 795.

2. Com. ex rel. Torrey v. Ketner, 92 Pa. St. 372; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 692, 10 Cent. L. J. 345.

3. Embezzlement by a Cashier of a National Bank is punishable solely under sect. 5209, Revised Statutes of the United States. The acts of March 31, 1860, May 1, 1861, and June 12, 1878, of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, were not intended to provide a punishment for such officers, and the penalties of said acts cannot be imposed upon them. Com. ex rel. Torrey v. Ketner, 94 Pa. St. 372; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 692; 10 Cent. L. J. 345.

A national-bank cashier, under an indictment drawn on the statute of the United States punishing such an one for embezzling, abstracting, and wilfully misapplying the moneys and funds of a national bank, with intent to injure and defraud the bank, cannot, in order to disprove the intent, prove that his taking of the funds of the bank, and using them in stock speculations, were known to the president and some of the directors, and were sanctioned by them, and that his dealings therewith were intended for the account and benefit of the bank, and were believed by him to have been sanctioned by the president and some of the directors, although there was no resolution of the board of directors authorizing or sanctioning them. United States v. Taintor, 11 Blatchf. C. C. 374; s. c., 19 Int. Rev. Rec. 4. See Noble v. State, 59 Ala. 73. The violation of a statute cannot be justified by custom. Consequently, in a prosecution for a violation of the excise law, evidence as to what the revenue officer told other applicants as to the kind of license they should procure, or what the universal practice in that regard was, held to be inadmissible. People v. Schewe (N. Y.), 16 Week. Dig. 554. See Haines v. State, 7 Tex. App. 30.

4. Com. v. Ketner, 92 Pa. St. 372; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 692; 10 Cent. L. J. 345; People v. Fonda, 29 N. W. Rep. 26.

By Teller of a National Bank. — But in the case of State v. Tuller, 34 Conn. 280, it was held an "agent," "officer," or "servant," within the Connecticut statute (Conn. Gen. Stat. tit. 12, sec. 191) relating to embezzlement by the officers of a bank, applies to the case of a teller in a national bank who has taken and appropriated to his own use a special deposit made by one of the customers of the bank. State v. Tuller, 34 Conn. 280.

XIV. By Public Officers.—1. Of United States Officers.—(a) Generally.—Any officer of the United States, or his assistant, who steals, purloins, converts, or otherwise appropriates, any money or other property of the United States, or belonging to any person, coming into his custody or possession in the execution of his office or employment, is guilty of embezzlement.<sup>1</sup> But in order to sustain an indictment, under an act of Congress for embezzlement, the defendant must have violated some specific provision of the various acts of Congress.<sup>2</sup>

Under the various acts of Congress, any officer or agent of the Government who fails to deposit public moneys when required,<sup>3</sup> or a treasurer or public depositary who fails to safely keep the same,<sup>4</sup> is guilty of embezzlement. And under these statutes it has been held that consular officers,<sup>5</sup> a clerk in the post-office,<sup>6</sup> a clerk in the office of an assistant treasurer of the United States,<sup>7</sup> a paymaster,<sup>8</sup> and an additional paymaster in the army,<sup>9</sup> and any conversion of property by persons in the military<sup>10</sup> or naval<sup>11</sup> service of the United States, is embezzlement.

1. See U. S. Rev. Stats. § 5497; Act of Feb. 3, 1879; 20 Stat. at Large, 281; 1 Sup. U. S. Rev. Stat. 406.

2. See United States v. Forsythe, 6 McL. C. C. 584.

Thus, where the expenditures of a collector's office are greater than its receipts, to convict of embezzlement, the evidence must show beyond a reasonable doubt that the collector has used the public money, or refused to pay it over in violation of the law. United States v. Forsythe, 6 McL. C. C. 584.

The Acts of Aug. 13, 1841, and Aug. 7, 1846, refer only to persons intrusted, under some act of Congress, with the possession of public moneys, and not to subordinates not specially intrusted, and who are punishable for fraudulent conversion without any congressional legislation. A clerk for the treasurer of the mint, appointed under the act of Jan. 18, 1837, cannot be indicted under the acts of 1841 and 1846 for embezzlement of public moneys. The act of 1846 does not apply to clerks, workmen, or other servants. United States v. Hutchinson, 7 Pa. L. J. 365; s. c., 4 Pa. L. J. Rep. 211.

The Third Act of April 14, 1866, is confined to officers of banks and banking associations, and does not embrace such a clerk in the office of an assistant treasurer. United States v. Hartwell, 73 U. S. (6 Wall.) 385; bk. 18, L. ed. 830.

3. See U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 5489-5496; Act of Feb. 3, 1879; 20 Stat. at Large, 280; 1 Sup. U. S. Rev. Stat. 406.

4. See U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 5489, 5496; Act of Feb. 3, 1879, 20 Stat. at Large, 280; 1 Sup. U. S. Rev. Stat. 406.

5. U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1734.

6. A Clerk in a Post-Office, acting as a cashier, is a public officer within the meaning of the acts of 1841 and 1846. 5 Opp. Atty-Gen. 685.

7. A Clerk in the Office of an Assistant Treasurer of the United States is liable to indictment under the act of Aug. 6, 1846, sect. 16, as an "officer or other person" charged "with the safe keeping, transfer, and disbursement of the public money." United States v. Hartwell, 73 U. S. (6 Wall.) 385; bk. 18, L. ed. 830.

8. Paymaster in Army.—No exception or proviso of any kind is contained in the act of Aug. 6, 1846 (9 Stat. 63), making a paymaster in the army who embezzles public money guilty of felony. The only limitation applicable to the offence is enacted in the act of April 30, 1790, sect. 32. United States v. Cook, 84 U. S. (17 Wall.) 168; bk. 21, L. ed. 538.

9. An Additional Paymaster of the Army is an officer charged with the safe keeping of public moneys, within the act of Aug. 6, 1846, sect. 16, and punishable under that section for embezzlement of public money. United States v. Cook, 84 U. S. (17 Wall.) 168; bk. 21, L. ed. 838.

Such paymaster is amenable to be indicted and punished under the provisions of said act of Aug. 6, 1846, by reason of embezzlement of public money, whereof he had the safe keeping and disbursement, solely and exclusively, by acts of Congress enacted subsequently to the date of said act of Aug. 6, 1846. United States v. Cook, 84 U. S. (17 Wall.) 168; bk. 21, L. ed. 838.

10. See U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1342, art. 60.

11. See U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1624, art. 14.

The persons embraced in the act of March 2, 1863, § 1,<sup>1</sup> providing that any person in the land or naval forces, etc., who embezzles money of the United States, shall be subject to criminal punishment, are not liable to the penalties imposed by § 3 of the act. That section applies only to persons not in the military or naval forces.<sup>2</sup>

2. By State, County, and Municipal Officers.—Statutes punishing the felonious appropriation or conversion by an officer of property which comes into his possession in the course of his employment, and by reason of his official position have been passed in the various States, to which special reference must be made for detailed statements of the doctrine and rules of the various States.

a. What constitutes Offence by, generally.—The improper neglect or refusal of a public officer to deliver to his successor in office all money remaining in his hands, upon demand therefor, is, under the statute, embezzlement per se of such moneys, although no particular sum was demanded.<sup>3</sup>

b. De facto Officers.—An indictment will lie for the embezzlement of public moneys against one who is an officer de facto only, as well as against a de jure officer.<sup>4</sup>

1. 12 U. S. Statutes at Large, 696.

2. United States v. Bogart, 3 Ben. (U. S. D. C.) 257.

Inmates of the National Military Home at Dayton, O., are not in the military service of the United States, and clothing issued to them is not used in such service, within Rev. Stat. sects. 5438, 5439, forbidding sale, or use by any other person, of clothing furnished to a person in the military service. United States v. Murphy, 9 Fed. Rep. 26.

3. State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762. See State v. Hunnicut, 34 Ark. 562. Hollingsworth v. State, 111 Ind. 289. Stat. v. Mason, 108 Ind. 48; Com. v. Hussey, 111 Mass. 432; Com. v. Tuckerman, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 173.

Failure to pay over—Evidence of Conversion.—Thus a failure by an officer to pay over money found due from him upon settlement, is, without a good or satisfactory reason, evidence in proof of a conversion; but where there has been no conversion or misapplication of the money or funds, a failure to pay over is not of itself sufficient to constitute the offence of embezzlement by an officer. State v. Hunnicut, 34 Ark. 562.

Demand of Retiring Treasurer.—A demand by a successor of a treasurer who has been removed from office for the funds officially received by the treasurer, is not necessary to establish a conversion and embezzlement of the funds. Hollingsworth

v. State, 111 Ind. 289; State v. Mason, 108 Ind. 48; Com. v. Hussey, 111 Mass. 432; Com. v. Tuckerman, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 173.

The Failure or Refusal of a County Trustee to pay over Money in his hands belonging to the county is, unexplained, evidence of a conversion of the money to his own use; and, if proved, will establish the allegation in the indictment that the defendant did embezzle and convert the money to his own use. The defendant may introduce evidence relieving his refusal of its felonious intent. State v. Leonard, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 307.

Matters of Defence.—The unlawful expenditure by a public officer of public moneys intrusted to him as such cannot be excused, or justified by him, merely because he believed that their expenditure was necessary or proper; he is bound to know the law, and cannot escape responsibility for his acts, when they are unlawful, by asserting his good faith. United States v. Adams, 2 Dak. 305; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448.

4. State v. Goss, 69 Me. 22; s. c., 3 Am. Cr. L. Rep. 66; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124; 8 Rep. 558; Fortenberry v. State, 56 Miss. 286; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 405; State v. Goss, 69 Me. 22; s. c., 3 Am. Cr. L. Rep. 66; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124; 8 Rep. 558; State v. Sellers, 7 Rich. (S. C.) 368; State v. Maberry, 3 Strobb. (S. C.) 144; State v. McEntyre, 3 Ired. (N. C.) L. 171; Diggs v. State, 49 Ala. 311; Rex v. Borrett, 6 Car.

c. State Treasurer. — The State treasurer is an "officer" within the terms of a statute<sup>1</sup> making any officer, clerk, or other person employed in the treasury of the State, liable to punishment for embezzlement.<sup>2</sup>

d. County Officers. — (1) Treasurer — A county treasurer will be guilty of embezzlement, if he fraudulently appropriates to his own use moneys belonging to the State;<sup>3</sup> and a failure of the county treasurer to pay over to the proper officer, on demand, a draft upon him by the State auditor, in favor of the State treasurer for moneys in his hands belonging to the State, as evidenced by the last certificate of settlement between him and the county auditor, is prima facie evidence of an embezzlement.<sup>4</sup>

(2) County Auditor. — It would seem that a county auditor is not an officer charged with the custody of moneys belonging to

& P. 124; Rex v. Gardner, 2 Camp. N. P. 513.

There is no conflict in the authorities as to whether a de facto officer is liable criminally for embezzlement of funds in his hands. In Maine it is held that he is (State v. Goss, 69 Me.; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124; 8 Rep. 558; 3 Am. Cr. L. Rep. 66); and in Mississippi (Fortenberry v. State, 56 Miss. 236; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 405). It is generally true that a de facto officer is liable criminally for a violation of his official duties. State v. Sellers, 7 Rich. (S. C.) 368; State v. Maberry, 3 Strobb. (S. C.) 144; State v. McEntyre, 3 Ired. (N. C.) L. 171; Diggs v. State, 49 Ala. 311; Rex v. Barrett, 6 Car. & P. 124; Rex v. Gardner, 2 Camp. N. P. 513.

1. See Mich. Comp. Laws, § 5771.

2. People v. McKinney, 10 Mich. 54.

If the State Treasurer omits to charge himself, in the county where his office is kept, with the receipt of money, or if he denies its receipt there, it is evidence of an embezzlement in that county. People v. McKinney, 10 Mich. 54.

Under Michigan Comp. Laws, sect. 5771, the word "Treasury" refers to no particular building or locality; and money is "in the treasury" when within the custody or control of the treasurer; and if embezzled when so within his custody or control, it is an embezzlement in the treasury. People v. McKinney, 10 Mich. 54.

Payment of Taxes by Drafts maturing at Different Times. — A corporation gave to the State treasurer, in payment of taxes, divers drafts maturing at different times. Held, that on payment of each one of these drafts the amount thereof was money paid into the treasury, for the embezzlement of which the treasurer would be liable, and that it was an incorrect view to claim that, until the entire amount had been received, no payment into the treasury had been made, but that the treasurer held the instalments as trustee for the company. People v. McKinney, 10 Mich. 54.

3. See State v. Smith, 13 Kan. 274.

4. State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 83; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 261; 3 Cr. L. Mag. 259.

Indiana Rev. Stats. 1881, Section 1943, was enacted upon the theory that the fraudulent failure or refusal of a county treasurer to account for and pay over to his successor the public funds in his hands constituted sufficient evidence of misappropriation or conversion of such funds to his own use, no proof of subsequent demand and refusal being required. A refusal to deliver up on demand is not a conversion, but only evidence thereof. State v. Mason, 108 Ind. 48; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 123.

When Statute of Limitations begins to run. — Under § 1943, Rev. Stat. Ind. 1881, the crime of embezzlement was committed, and the statute of limitations began to run, when the treasurer of a county failed to pay over the county's money in his hands to his successor in office, and the mere fact of a subsequent demand and refusal did not take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitations. State v. Mason, 108 Ind. 48; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 123.

Prosecution for Embezzlement. — Repeal of Law. — When a law authorizing a prosecution has been repealed, there can be no further prosecutions under it, unless the law contains a saving clause authorizing it. An indictment against a county treasurer for embezzlement, therefore, which charged an offence under R. S. 1881, sect. 1943, after the repeal of that section by act of March 5, 1883, was properly quashed on motion. State v. Mason, 108 Ind. 48; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 123.

the State within the meaning of a statute defining and punishing embezzlement.<sup>1</sup>

(3) Deputy Sheriff. — A deputy sheriff is an officer within the meaning of the law punishing the embezzlement of public money.<sup>2</sup>

e. Township Trustees. — A township trustee is an officer liable under a law providing for the punishment of public officers converting to their own use the public money.<sup>3</sup>

f. Municipal Officers. — (1) School Treasurer. — A school treasurer is an officer of a municipality of specific statutory creation, and is indictable under a statute punishing defaulters.<sup>4</sup>

(2) City Clerk. — A city clerk is an officer within the meaning of, and liable under, a statute punishing public officers for the conversion of public moneys coming into his hands as such officer.<sup>5</sup>

(3) Town Treasurer. — A town treasurer will be liable under a statute punishing for embezzlement conversion of public moneys.<sup>6</sup> But where the treasurer of a town obtains money from a bank on

1. State v. Newton, 26 Ohio St. 265. See State v. Heath, 70 Mo. 565; reversing s. c., 8 Mo. App. 99.

Embezzlement by Auditor. — Instructions. — Upon the trial of an indictment for embezzlement, alleged to have been committed by the defendant in the capacity of servant and agent of the county, the proof showed that he held the position of county auditor, and that, in addition to his salary as auditor, he was allowed by the county court, and drew, a salary as custodian of the funds embezzled. The defence was that these funds came into his hands as auditor; and the court instructed the jury that if they so found they should acquit. The court further instructed the jury as follows: "If he received them (the funds embezzled) whilst he actually held the dual official relation to the county of auditor and agent, or auditor and servant, and it was his duty to receive them, not as auditor, but as agent or servant, it is immaterial whether he received them as auditor or agent, or as auditor or servant, for the law will not in such case heed such a distinction." Held, that taking the instructions together, the latter instruction could not be understood as submitting to the jury the question whether it was the duty of the defendant to receive the money as auditor, or as agent or servant. State v. Heath, 70 Mo. 565; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 262.

2. State v. Brooks, 42 Tex. 63.

3. State v. Cleveland, 80 Mo. 108; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 840; State v. Hays, 78 Mo. 600; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 910.

Who deemed a "Public Officer." — Section 47 of article iii., chapter 42, Wagner's Missouri Statutes (p. 459), providing for the punishment of public officers embezzling public funds, was applicable as well to officials whose offices were created afte.

that section became law as to those already existing. It included in its operation the "township trustee," provided for by the township organization law of 1873 (Acts 1873, p. 100), and under it that officer was liable for school funds misappropriated. State v. Hays, 78 Mo. 600; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 910.

4. Com. v. Morrissey, 86 Pa. St. 416. See Pennsylvania Act, 1860, § 65.

5. Thus in a case where the defendant was city clerk, and by ordinance it was his duty to prepare and seal city licenses upon production to him of the receipt of the city treasurer showing that the license-money had been paid. In fact, for years the custom had been for the licensee to pay the money directly to the clerk, and receive from him the license, and the clerk thereafter handed the money to the treasurer. The entire business was transacted by the clerk. This was done to the knowledge of the mayor, council, and other officers of the city. Defendant embezzled certain of the moneys thus received by him. It did not appear that the city ever disavowed this authority, or ever made any effort to recollect from the licensees these moneys. Held, that a conviction under an information charging the embezzlement of these as the moneys of the city must be sustained; and that though neither the city nor the licensees might have been concluded by his acts, yet that he, by the issue of the license, was estopped from denying that the moneys which he had received in payment thereof were the moneys of the city. State v. Spaulding, 24 Kans. 1; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566.

6. See Com. v. Este, 140 Mass. 279; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 380; Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5; Pollock v. Hatch, 2 Dism. (Ohio) 181.

a promissory note of the town, and uses the money in paying proper town charges, he cannot be convicted of an embezzlement of the money, although he does not account for it to the town, and although such use of the money is contrived as a part of a scheme to defraud the town, to cover up an embezzlement of money already made, or one intended to be made.<sup>1</sup>

(4) Comptroller. — A comptroller who is ex officio secretary of the Board of County Commissioners, and, as such, has the custody of certain municipal bonds, has such a possession thereof as will render a wrongful conversion of them embezzlement.<sup>2</sup>

g. Tax Collector. — A town collector of taxes is a "public officer," within the meaning of the statute, and is liable to an indictment for the conversion to his own use of money which has come under his control by virtue of his office, although it be not the town's money until it is paid into the treasury, and his bond renders him liable to account to the town.<sup>3</sup>

1. Com. v. Este, 140 Mass. 279; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 380.

Evidence to Convict. — The fact that a town treasurer paid certain town notes given by him, while in office, out of his private funds after he ceased to be treasurer, does not of itself constitute sufficient proof to warrant a conviction on an indictment charging him with embezzlement; neither do false entries in the books of the town, which could only have been a step in the direction of the crime. To constitute the crime of embezzlement, it is essential that the owner should be deprived of the property embezzled by an adverse holding or use. Com. v. Este, 140 Mass. 279; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 380.

On the trial of an indictment under N. Y. Laws, 1875, c. 19, it appeared that the prisoner, who was treasurer of the city of Buffalo, as such received for sale, in accordance with the usual custom, certain negotiable bonds of the city, which the common council had authorized to be issued and sold for city purposes; these he put into the hands of a broker, with directions to sell and credit the proceeds to a firm of which the prisoner was a member, which was done. Said firm was at the time indebted to the broker in a sum exceeding the sum realized from the sale of the bonds. No entry of the sale was made in any manner in the treasurer's books. The indictment charged that the accused "feloniously, wickedly, and wrongfully did obtain and receive . . . and convert" to his own use, bonds, and, assuming that the prisoner did not wrongfully receive or obtain them, his wrongful conversion thereof was sufficient to sustain a conviction. Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5.

2. State v. White, 66 Wis. 343; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 354.

Unissued Negotiable Bonds of a City in the custody of the city comptroller are property for the taking and conversion of which he may be found guilty of embezzlement under sect. 4418, Wisconsin R. S., even though the city may not be liable on such bonds. State v. White, 66 Wis. 343; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 354.

3. State v. Walton, 62 Me. 106; following People v. Bedell, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 196. See also Britton v. State, 77 Ala. 202; Fuller v. State, 73 Ga. 408.

Embezzlement by Tax-Collector. — The Failure to "make Returns and forward the tax-money in his hands, from time to time, to the proper authorities, as provided by law," as these words are used in the statute (Ala. Code, § 4266), "comprises the duty of making monthly reports of collections, and monthly payments of taxes collected, both State and county, in the manner and at the times specified in sects. 417-18;" and this is made a felony, without regard to the amount of default. although the failure to make a final settlement on or before the first day of May in each year is only a misdemeanor under sect. 4265. Britton v. State, 77 Ala. 202.

If a tax-collector received money from taxpayers, and with it speculated upon jury scrip, and then made up the deficit resulting from such use, or any part of it, with scrip so procured at a discount; or if, before the deficit was made known to the grand jury, he had collected money from the people, and turned it into scrip to make payment, buying the scrip at a discount; or if, after having collected moneys for the county taxes, he bought up with them county orders, and passed them to the county authorities, or their attorneys or collecting officer, in lieu of the money collected for taxes which he had appropriated

h. Clerks and Servants of Public Officers. — Clerks and servants of public officers who convert to their own use public moneys coming into their hands as such clerks and servants, and by reason of their employment as such, are punishable for embezzlement.<sup>1</sup>

i. Persons aiding or abetting Public Officers in Embezzlement. — Under a statute defining and punishing the offence of embezzling public money, and making any participation in the act itself an act of embezzlement, any person aiding or participating in the conversion of public money by an officer intrusted with it, is guilty of embezzlement, though such person is not himself an officer intrusted therewith.<sup>2</sup> to buy such orders at a discount; or, in general, if he used money collected as county taxes in any way whatever for his own profit, of any sort, he is guilty of embezzlement. But if he did not collect any money for the county, but waited on the people, and had executions issued, and not collected, or waited on them without issuing executions, and all the deficit arose from this failure of duty, he would be guilty of another offence, but not of embezzlement. Fuller v. State, 73 Ga. 408.

1. See Coats v. People, 22 N. Y. 245; s. c., 4 Park Cr. Cas. 662; Culp v. Com., 109 Pa. St. 363; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 791; 42 Leg. Int. 288; Reg. v. Welch, 2 C. & K. 296; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 199; 2 Cox C. C. 85; Rex v. Squire, 2 Stark. 349; s. c., R. & R. 349; Reg. v. Adey, 2 New Sess. Cas. 360; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 571; T. & M. 296; 3 C. & K. 339; 4 Cox C. C. 208; 19 L. J. M. C. 149; 14 Jur. 556.

Clerk at Gas-Works. — A clerk in the employment of the gas trustees of the city of Philadelphia is an employee of a municipal corporation under the act of June 12, 1878, and can be convicted of embezzlement under the provisions of that act. Culp v. Com., 109 Pa. St. 363; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 791; 42 Leg. Int. 288; 41 Leg. Int. 134.

The Keeper of a County Poorhouse is not the servant of a "private" person or of an "incorporated company," though his employer, the superintendent of the poor, may be a corporation; and embezzlement by him is not within 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. 678, sec. 59. Coats v. People, 22 N. Y. 245.

Where the keeper of a county poorhouse, employed for that purpose by the superintendent of the poor of the county, and holding under him, secretly sold and converted to his own use articles of food provided for the support of the county poorhouse, held, that he was guilty of embezzlement within the statute (2 R. S. 678; 3 R. S. 5th ed. 957), and could be convicted of that offence under an indictment charging that the articles embezzled were the property of such superintendent of the poor. Coats v. Peo- ple, 22 N. Y. 245; s. c., 4 Park Cr. Cas. 662.

The relation between the keeper of a county poorhouse and the superintendent who employs him is of a public nature, and the former cannot be deemed the agent or servant of a private person within the statute of embezzlement. 2 R. S. 678, sect. 59; 3 R. S. 5th ed. 957; Coats v. The People, 22 N. Y. 245; s. c., 4 Park Cr. Cas. 662. Nor is such keeper the agent or servant of an incorporated company within the same statute. Though the superintendents of the poor, or the sole superintendent, be a corporation, they or he are not an incorporated company. (2 R. S. 678, sect. 59; 3 R. S. 5th ed. 957.) Coats v. The People, 22 N. Y. 245; s. c., 4 Park. Cr. Cas. 662.

Accountant and Treasurer to Overseers.

— One who was employed at a yearly salary under the appellation of accountant and treasurer to the overseers of a township whose duty it was to receive all moneys receivable or payable by them, was a clerk and servant within 39 Geo. 3, c. 85. Rex v. Squire, 2 Stark. 348; s. c., R. & R. 349.

A Collector of Poor-Rates, as a servant of the overseers, has authority to receive the rates from the landlord, if he will pay them to him, and therefore receives such sums by virtue of his employment. Reg. v. Adey, 2 New Sess. Cas. 360; 1 Den. C. C. 571; T. & M. 296; 3 C. & K. 339; 4 Cox, C. C. 208; 19 L. J. M. C. 149; 14 Jur. 556.

Time of Embezzlement not fixed. — A treasurer to guardians of the poor, not accounting for a portion of money received for the guardians, is an embezzlement, although no precise time could be fixed at which it was the prisoner's duty to pay over the money alleged to be embezzled. Reg. v. Welch, 2 C. & K. 296; 1 Den. C. C. 199; 2 Cox, C. C. 85.

2. Brown v. State, 18 Ohio St. 496. See Noble v. State, 59 Ala. 73.

A person who, representing the State auditor, and acting for him in his official character, receives national currency as a part of the revenue of the State, and, sub-

XV. Justices of the Peace. — A justice of peace is a county officer within the purview of a statute providing for the punishment of county officers for misapplication of funds.<sup>1</sup>

XVI. Constables. — Constables are not within the purviews of a statute punishing for embezzlement conversion to their own use moneys coming into the hands of a public officer as such officer, and by reason of his position;<sup>2</sup> and where employed to make collections, he is not a servant within the statute punishing for embezzlement conversion of money of master or employer by servants or agents.<sup>3</sup>

XVII. Assignee in Bankruptcy. — There is no statute making it embezzlement for an assignee in bankruptcy to convert to his own use trust funds which come into his hands.<sup>4</sup>

XVIII. Public Administrator. — A failure of a public administrator to pay over funds collected by him in his official capacity, pursuant to his duty, is punishable as embezzlement.<sup>5</sup>

XIX. From the Mails. — 1. Generally. — Abstracting and secreting a letter from the mails, and a fraudulent conversion of the same, or of its contents, by any one connected with a post-office or in the postal service, and having possession, charge, custody, or access to such a letter, by reason of such position or employment, stituting for it a currency of less value, knowingly converts or applies any part of it to his own use, or to the use of another person, is guilty of a felony. Noble v. State, 59 Ala. 73.

1. Edwards v. State, 2 Tex. App. 525; Crump v. State, 23 Tex. App. 615; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973.

Instructions to the Jury. — On the trial of an indictment for the misapplication of public moneys, an instruction that it was the duty of the defendant (a justice of the peace), having collected a fine, "to forthwith pay the same over" to the county treasurer, though technically incorrect, is not ground for reversal, where the evidence shows that the defendant had never accounted for the money received. Crump v. State, 23 Tex. App. 615; s. c., 9 Crim. L. Mag. 974.

2. See Stoker v. People, 114 Ill. 320; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 379, 380; People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 76.

3. People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 76.

If a Constable appropriates to his own Use and fails to pay over money collected by him in his official capacity as constable, upon an execution which came into his hands as an officer, he cannot be proceeded against under section 74 of the Criminal Code of Illinois. Stoker v. People, 114 Ill. 320; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 379, 380.

Where a constable was employed to collect certain demands without suit, if the debtors would pay, and by procuring and serving process before a justice of the peace, if they would not, held, that he was not a servant of the creditor within the meaning of the statute concerning embezzlement. People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.), 76.

The fact that money was collected by a constable without a levy does not bring his offence, in case he appropriates the same, within the terms of section 74 of the Criminal Code. Stoker v. People, 114 Ill. 320; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 380.

4. United States v. Bixby, 10 Biss. C. C. 238; s. c., 6 Fed. Rep. 375; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762; 27 Int. Rev. Rec. 163.

While an Assignee in Bankruptcy is an Officer of the Court, he is not an officer within the purview of United States Rev. Stat. sect. 5504, defining the offence of embezzlement by court officers, and there seems to be no other statute embracing assignees in bankruptcy for the specific offence of embezzlement. United States v. Bixby, 10 Biss. C. C. 238; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762; 6 Fed. Rep. 375; 27 Int. Rev. Rec. 163.

Under that section an officer can only be guilty of embezzling such moneys as he is required to deposit with the treasurer, assistant treasurer, or a designated depository of the United States in the name and to the credit of the court. United States v. Bixby, 10 Biss. C. C. 238; s. c., 6 Fed. Rep. 375; 27 Int. Rev. Rec. 163; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566.

5. State v. Borowsky, 11 Nev. 119.

and which shall have come into his possession in the regular course of his official duties, or in any other manner whatever, is embezzlement;<sup>1</sup> and any person who takes a letter from the post-office containing any thing of value, and converts such letter or its contents to his own use, is guilty of embezzlement under the statute.<sup>2</sup>

The United States statute<sup>3</sup> relating to the funds of the post-office, intends that those funds should be kept absolutely separate and sacred, as the best method not only of keeping the funds themselves secure, but of guarding the officers from temptation and delinquency. The diversion of money-order funds in any way prohibited by this section for any time, however short, constitutes embezzlement under this act, and is punishable as such.<sup>4</sup>

1. U. S. Rev. Stat. sects. 5467, 5468; Act June 8, 1872, c. 335, sects. 279, 280. See also United States v. Hardyman, 38 U. S. (13 Pet.) 176; bk. 10 L. ed. 113; United States v. Wilson, Baldw. C. C. 78, 102; United States v. Hamilton, 11 Biss. C. C. 85; United States v. Pelletreau, 14 Blatchf. C. C. 126; United States v. Jenther, 13 Blatchf. C. C. 335; United States v. Okie, 5 Blatchf. C. C. 516; United States v. Winter, 13 Blatchf. C. C. 333; United States v. Marselis, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 108; United States v. Crow, 1 Bond. C. C., 51; United States v. Belew, 2 Brock. C. C. 280; United States v. Clark, Crabbe, C. C., 584; United States v. Golding, 2 Cr. C. C. 212; United States v. Foye, 1 Curt. C. C. 365; United States v. Randall, Deady U. S. D. C. 524; United States v. Bramham, 3 Hughes, C. C., 557; United States v. Taylor, 1 Hughes, C. C., 514; United States v. Laws, 2 Low. C. C. 115; United States v. Sander, 6 McL. C. C. 598; United States v. Patterson, 6 McL. C. C. 466; United States v. Emerson, 6 McL. C. C. 406; United States v. Whitaker, 6 McL. C. C. 342; United States v. Lancaster, 2 McL. C. C. 431; United States v. Martin, 2 McL. C. C. 256; United States v. Nott, 1 McL. C. C. 499; United States v. Long, 4 Woods, C. C., 454; s. c., 17 Fed. Rep. 879; United States v. Brent, 17 Int. Rev. Rec. 53; United States v. Hamilton, 9 Fed. Rep. 442, 449; United States v. Baugh, 1 Fed. Rep. 784.

United States Revised Statutes, sect. 5467, defines two distinct offences,—embezzlement of a letter, and stealing the contents of a letter. An indictment which charges embezzlement of a letter only is good, although it does not allege that the accused also stole its contents. United States v. Taylor, 1 Hughes, C. C., 514.

Under Revised Statutes, sect. 5467, declaring the offence of taking any article of value from a letter to be conveyed by mail, by a post-office employee, it is not material whether such employee received the letter from a private individual. United States v. Hamilton, 9 Fed. Rep. 442; s. c., 27 Int. Rev. Rec. 394.

It is not material under section 5467, Revised Statutes, how a letter, intended to be conveyed by mail, comes into the possession of a post-office employee. United States v. Hamilton, 9 Fed. Rep. 442; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 259.

Embezzling Letters from the Mail.—Sect. 279 of the act approved June 8, 1872, itself a revision, has been transcribed verbatim into section 5467 of the Revised Statutes until the latter and concluding part of the section is reached, when the words "every such person shall, on conviction thereof, for every such offence," have been omitted, and no penalty is prescribed for any offence under the section, save for stealing the valuable contents of a letter. United States v. Long, 17 Fed. Rep. 879; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 607.

The section does not punish the offence of embezzling a letter with valuable contents. United States v. Long, 4 Woods, C. C., 454; s. c., 17 Fed. Rep. 879. Under the post-office law of 1825, sect. 21 (4 Stat. at L. 107), to convict a person who is employed in the department of the post-office, etc., of stealing a letter, such employment must be distinctly alleged and proved. United States v. Nott, 1 McL. C. C. 499.

2. U. S. Rev. Stat. sect. 5469; Act June 8, 1872, c. 335, sect. 281. See also United States v. Parsons, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 104; United States v. Cottingham, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 470; United States v. Marselis, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 108; United States v. Parsons, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 104; United States v. Pond, 2 Curt. C. C. 265; United States v. Foye, 1 Curt. C. C. 364; United States v. Driscoll, 1 Low. C. C. 303; United States v. Sander, 6 McL. C. C. 598; United States v. Fisher, 5 McL. C. C. 23; United States v. Pearce, 2 McL. C. C. 14.

3. Act of June 8, 1872, c. 335, sect. 122.

4. United States v. Gilbert, 17 Int. Rev. Rec. 54.

2. Postal Clerks generally.—A postmaster cannot defend a prosecution for opening a letter addressed to an individual and using money enclosed therein by proof of an agency to do so, because such an agency would be contrary to the spirit of the postal laws.<sup>1</sup>

3. Mail Carriers and Riders.—Under the statute punishing embezzlement of letters, etc., or of valuables enclosed, by persons in the postal service, a person may be convicted as a "mail-carrier" for stealing from the mails, although he has not taken the oath of office.<sup>2</sup>

4. By Individuals.—A bar-keeper in an inn, intrusted to carry letters to and from the post-office, who fraudulently converts to his own use a letter enclosing money, given to him to carry to the post-office, is guilty of embezzlement; and to convict him it is not necessary to show that he broke open the letter or fled after the commission of the offence, or to show the dissent of his employer; it is enough that there be a fraudulent conversion, and that being shown, a felonious intent is established.<sup>3</sup>

XX. Indictment.—1. In General.—a. Sufficiency, Certainty.—An indictment for embezzlement must set forth the actual fiduciary relation and its breaches.<sup>4</sup> Every thing must be averred which is necessary to bring the case within the statute.<sup>5</sup>

1. United States v. Bramham, 3 Hughes, C. C. 557.

2. United States v. Wilson, Baldw. C. C. 78, 102; United States v. Foye, 1 Curt. C. C., 365. Compare United States v. Marselis, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 108.

Embezzlement by Carrier.—Overcharge.—If a wife of a party to whom a letter is directed pays the postage of the letter, she is entitled to demand an overcharge made for it; and a refusal on the part of the letter-carrier to account for it to her is evidence of an embezzlement by him. Rex v. Borrett, 6 C. & P. 124.

Embezzlement from the Mails.—The offence of embezzlement by mail-carriers, under Rev. Stat. sect. 5467, is not confined to taking things out of a letter, packet, or bag; an indictment which charges a carrier with having embezzled a letter which was intended to be conveyed by mail and contain an article of value, and had been intrusted to him as such letter-carrier, is good. United States v. Pelletreau, 14 Blatchf. C. C. 126.

Evidence of Service.—On an indictment for embezzlement against a letter-carrier, as a person employed in the public service of her Majesty, it is not necessary to prove his appointment as a letter-carrier, but evidence of his having acted as such is sufficient. Rex v. Borrett, 6 C. & P. 124.

3. People v. Dalton, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 582. See also authorities cited, supra, xix. note 2.

4. McCann v. United States, 2 Wyom. T. 267; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762. See also State v. Messenger, 58 N. H. 348; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

Sufficiency of the Indictment, generally.—An indictment must set forth facts sufficient to constitute the given offence, so as to notify the accused of the issue he has to meet; and unless it does this, it charges nothing on which an issue can be raised by a plea of not guilty. This rule is founded on a principle that inheres in all criminal cases. McCann v. United States, 2 Wyom. T. 267; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

A count in an indictment which alleges that by one and the same act the defendant embezzled and stole the property, by one act committed upon it two dissimilar crimes, the commission of one of which negatives the possibility of the commission of the other, nullifies itself and charges nothing, tenders no issue, and will not support a verdict of guilty. McCann v. United States, 2 Wyom. T. 267; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

An indictment containing in one count so much of the language of two sections of the statute of embezzlement as to leave it uncertain which of the two different crimes of embezzlement is charged is insufficient. State v. Messenger, 58 N. H. 348; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

5. People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 76. See Hoyt v. State, 50 Ga. 313; State v. Sweet, 2 Oreg. 127; Com. v. Leisenring, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 389; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566; 32 Leg.

b. In Language of Statute, negating Exceptions.—An indictment for embezzlement charging the crime substantially in the terms of the statute is sufficient.<sup>1</sup>

Where an exception is contained in the same clause of the act creating the offence, the indictment must show, negatively, that the defendant does not come within the exception.<sup>2</sup>

c. Averment of Intent.—An indictment for embezzlement must contain an allegation of intent to injure and defraud.<sup>3</sup>

d. Averment as to Demand.—An indictment for embezzlement, alleged to consist in neglecting to account for and pay over money, must allege that a demand for the money was made.<sup>4</sup>

Int. 160, 168; Golden v. State, 22 Tex. App. 1; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; State v. Longworth, 41 Tex. 162; Wise v. State, 41 Tex. 139; Coats v. People, 4 Park Cr. Cas. N. Y. 662.

Money received for Benefit of Master.—An indictment charging a defendant with having received a certain amount of money to be applied for the use or benefit of his principal, with an allegation that on a certain day the defendant fraudulently converted a specific portion thereof to his own use, is not demurrable on the ground that it is too general, vague, and indefinite, or that it does not give the accused notice of what he is called on to answer. Proof which clearly and definitely shows such a fraudulent conversion as that charged would be admissible under such an indictment, and would sustain a conviction. Hoyt v. State, 50 Ga. 313.

Charging Theft and Embezzlement in same Count.—The first count of the indictment charged the appellant with the theft of a certain money, and the second count charged him with the embezzlement of the same money. He was convicted under the second count, and objects because the evidence sufficed to prove him guilty of theft as charged in the first count. Held, that the objection is not maintainable, and the conviction is sustained. Golden v. State, 22 Tex. App. 1; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267.

Defendant was bound over by an alderman for embezzlement. The indictment found by the grand jury charged him with embezzlement under the penal code, secs. 114, 116, and in the second count under sec. 117. Held, that the indictment was not irregular, as it did not describe another and different offence, but only the particular form of the same offence. Com. v. Leisenring, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 389; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566; 32 Leg. Int. 160, 168.

Under Oregon Rev. Stat. 216, sect. 23, which calls embezzlement "larceny," an indictment is good which, after describing in the words of that statute the act of an agent fraudulently converting the money of his employer, names the offence "embezzlement." State v. Sweet, 2 Oreg. 127.

1. Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629; People v. Tomlinson, 66 Cal. 344; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 425; Golden v. State, 22 Tex. App. 1; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; Lowenthal v. State, 32 Ala. 589; Crump v. State, 23 Tex. App. 615; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; Com. v. Bennett, 118 Mass. 443.

An Indictment upon a Statute must state all the Circumstances which constitute the statutory offence, no case being brought within a statute unless it is completely within its words. The precise words of the statute need not be followed. Words of equivalent import, or more extensive signification, which necessarily include the words of the statute, may be sustained. Wood v. State, 47 Ark. 488.

2. State v. Lanier, 88 N. C. 658; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448.

Hence, an indictment for embezzlement under Bat. Rev. Stat. (N. C.) ch. 32, sect. 16, must aver that the defendant is not an apprentice or within the age of eighteen years; and, if drawn under section 136 of same chapter, it must be averred that he is not an apprentice or under the age of sixteen years. The latter act makes the offence a felony, punishable as in case of larceny. State v. Lanier, 88 N. C. 658; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448.

3. See State v. Lyon, 45 N. J. L. (16 Vr.) 272; State v. Hill, 91 N. C. 561; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795; United States v. Voorhees, 9 Fed. Rep. 143; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 259; 12 Rep. 713.

Failure to pay over School Funds.—An indictment framed under section 3678 of the code, charging the defendant with embezzlement in "wilfully, knowingly, and corruptly" failing to pay over a fine to the school fund, is sufficient. Such offence is a misdemeanor, and therefore it was error in the court to arrest judgment upon the ground that the word "feloniously" was omitted. State v. Hill, 91 N. C. 561; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795.

4. State v. Munch, 22 Minn. 67. Com- e. Averment in Case of Embezzlement of Several Articles.—Where several articles have been embezzled at different times they may all be included in one count of an indictment,<sup>1</sup> or the defendant may be indicted and convicted of embezzling each article separately.<sup>2</sup>

2. Averment as to whose Service.—a. In General.—Relation of Master and Servant; Principal and Agent.—An indictment for embezzlement must set out the service, and allege that the money or property came into the defendant's possession because of, and by reason of, such employment or service, and was by him converted to his own use,<sup>3</sup> without the knowledge or consent of the part State v. New, 22 Minn. 76. And see State v. Porter, 26 Mo. 201.

Missouri Doctrine.—It is not necessary in a count for embezzlement based on sect. 37 of the Missouri act concerning railroad corporations, to aver or prove a demand or a refusal to pay on the part of the defendant. State v. Porter, 26 Mo. 201.

1. See Coats v. People, 4 Park Cr. Cas. (N. Y.) 662; Gravatt v. State, 25 Ohio St. 162; s. c., 3 Cent. L. J. 392.

On the Trial of an Indictment for Embezzlement, the fact that the money alleged to have been embezzled was received in several sums at different times, and from different persons, affords no ground for requiring the prosecutor to elect on which sum he will rely for conviction. Gravatt v. State, 25 Ohio St. 162; s. c., 3 Cent. L. J. 392.

2. Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98; Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1; Com. v. Conannon, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 502.

3. See Record v. Cent. Pac. R. R. Co., 15 Nev. 168; People v. Bailey, 23 Cal. 577; State v. Johnson, 21 Tex. 775; Lycan v. People, 107 Ill. 423; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 911; Ritter v. State, 111 Ind. 324; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795; 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; Gravatt v. State, 25 Ohio St. 162; s. c., 3 Cent. L. J. 393; State v. Meyers, 68 Mo. 266; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 665; State v. Dodson, 72 Mo. 283; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 120; People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 76; Griffin v. State, 4 Tex. App. 390; Reg. v. Frankland, L. & C. 276; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 273; 32 L. J. M. C. 69; 9 Jur. N. S. 388; 7 L. T. 799; 11 W. R. 346; Rex v. Leech, 3 Stark 70; Reg. v. White, 8 C. & P. 742; Reg. v. Adey, 1 Den. C. C. 571; s. c., 4 New Sess. Cas. 360; T. & M. 296; 3 C. & K. 339; 4 Cox, C. C., 208; 19 L. J. M. C. 149; 14 Jur. 556; Reg. v. Carpenter, L. R. 1 C. C. 29; s. c., 35 L. J. M. C. 169; 12 Jur. N. S. 380; 14 L. T. 572; 14 W. R. 773; Reg. v. Townsend, 2 C. & K. 168; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 167; 2 Cox, C. C., 24; Reg. v. Welch, 2 C. & K. 296; 1 Den. C. C. 199; 2 Cox, C. C., 85; Reg. v. Glover, L. & C.

466; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 509; 33 L. J. M. C. 169; 10 Jur. N. S. 710; 10 L. T. 582; 12 W. R. 885.

Sufficiency of the Indictment.—A count in an indictment charging that the defendant, as the agent of the prosecutor, by virtue of his employment, received moneys of the prosecutor, stating the amount, which he did feloniously embezzle, and fraudulently convert to his own use, with intent to steal the same, without the consent of the owner, is substantially good as a count for embezzlement under the statute. Lycan v. People, 107 Ill. 423; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 911.

An Indictment under Rev. Stat. Ind. 1881, sect. 1944, defining and prescribing the punishment for embezzlement by an "officer, agent, attorney, clerk, servant, or employee of any person or persons," is not bad, upon motion to quash, for simply charging that the accused was an "employee" of a certain person, without stating the position held by him, or the capacity in which he was engaged. Ritter v. State, 111 Ind. 324; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973.

An Averment in an Information that the defendant received the money as "agent and servant," is a sufficient allegation of the capacity in which it was received. People v. Treadwell, 96 Cal. 226; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795.

Designating "Agent" as "Servant."—In the sense of service, an agent is the servant of his principal; hence designating him in an information or indictment for embezzlement, as agent and servant, is not such a misnomer of his capacity as affects any of his substantial rights. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

Under New York Statute.—An indictment for embezzlement, under 2 N. Y. Rev. Stat. 678, sect. 59, must aver that the defendant was a "clerk" or "servant" of some person (or an officer or agent of a corporation), and that the property he is charged with embezzling came to his possession or under his care by virtue of such employment; and a count charging that the defendant received the property as the "agent" of an individual is bad. So also is such a count bad, although it afterwards proceeds to aver that the property came to the defendant's possession and under his care "as such servant as aforesaid," and that, while he was "such servant," he converted it, the construction being that "such servant" meant such a servant as an agent may be. People v. Allen, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 76.

Indictment charging Two Crimes. — An information charging in one count the embezzlement by the defendant of certain property received by him as the "agent, servant, employee, and bailee," of the owner, is not objectionable as charging two separate and distinct crimes. State v. Lillie, 21 Kans 728; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 405.

An Indictment of an Express-Agent for Embezzlement of ten thousand dollars, alleging the same to be the property of a certain bank, and not alleging that the express company had any property therein, nor that any fiduciary relation existed between the bank and the accused. Held to be fatally defective. Griffin v. State, 4 Tex. App. 390.

Against Persons employed by Partners. — A servant in the employment of two persons, as partners, must be considered as the servant of each. Rex v. Leech, 3 Stark. 70.

Whilst Prisoner a Clerk. — An indictment for embezzlement of money received by a clerk, whilst such, was good under 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 4, without alleging the embezzling to have taken place whilst he was clerk. Reg. v. Lovell, 2 M. & R. 236.

Nature of the Crime. — A person employed at a monthly salary, who, in the discharge of his duties, is subject to the immediate direction and control of his employer, is, in an indictment for embezzlement, properly described as a servant. Gravatt v. State, 25 Ohio St. 162; s. c., 3 Cent. L. J. 392.

A., being one of several proprietors of a coach, employed B. to drive it when he did not himself drive it. It was B.'s duty, on each day he drove, to tell a bookkeeper how much money he had taken, the bookkeeper entering that sum in a book, and also on the way-bill; B.'s duty then was to pay over the sums to A. B. gave true accounts to the bookkeeper, who made true entries; but B. accounted for smaller sums to A., saying that those were all, and paid over to A. these smaller sums. All the proprietors were interested in the money, but A. was the person to receive it, and he was accountable to his co-proprietors. Held, on an indictment for embezzlement, that B. was rightly described in the indictment as the servant of A. Reg. v. White, 8 C. & P. 742.

Under an order of the Poor Law Commissioners, founded on 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 76, s. 46, the board of guardians of a union appointed A. an assistant overseer of a district in the union, of which the township of F. formed a part, and his duty was to assist the overseers of each of the townships of the district. A. was paid a salary by the guardians. A. received sums for the poor-rate from rate-payers of the township of F., which he ought to have paid over to the bankers of the overseers of that township, instead of which he embezzled them. Held, that A. was not indictable for embezzling this money as the money of the overseers, as he was not their servant; and that he was not indictable for this embezzlement as the servant of the guardians, because if he was their servant it was not their money. Reg. v. Townsend, 2 C. & K. 168; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 167; 2 Cox, C. C., 24.

Clerks of Joint Stock Companies. — A. was indicted for embezzlement whilst the clerk to B. and others. A. was secretary and cashier to a company calling themselves "The R., M. & H. Coal Company (limited);" the number of members exceeded twenty; the name of the company was over the door; the shares were transferable without the consent of the other shareholders; and a minute-book, in which the resolutions were entered, was kept. No certificate of incorporation was put in evidence. Held, that he was rightly convicted as the servant of B. and others, there being no evidence which ought to have been left to the jury that the company was incorporated. Reg. v. Frankland, L. & C. 276; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C., 273; 32 L. J. M. C. 69; 9 Jur. N. S. 388; 7 L. T. 799; 11 W. R. 346.

Servant of Joint Committee. — A. was employed at a railway station belonging to four different companies, and which was maintained out of a joint fund. The servants at this station were appointed and paid, and might be dismissed by a committee of directors of the several companies. A.'s duty was to deliver parcels which arrived at the station by the trains of the different companies, and to pay over the money received for them to the chief clerk of the parcels office. The chief clerk then paid over such money to the cashier of the committee, who kept a separate account for each company, and paid the money over directly to the company to which it belonged or its bankers. A. having embezzled money received by him in the course of his duty, he was charged in different counts of an indictment as being the servant of the particular company whose money he had embezzled, of the four companies, of the committee, and of the station-master. Held, that, at all events, he was properly charged as being the servant owner, his master or employer.<sup>1</sup> But it is not necessary to set out in detail the nature and purposes of the agency. The proof, however, must establish an agency within the meaning of the statute, and not an ordinary bailment.<sup>2</sup>

b. In Case of Officers of Societies.—The officers of a friendly society, or other voluntary association, may be indicted for embezzlement as a servant in case the fraudulent conversion of moneys belonging to the society and which came into his hands as such officer and by reason of his employment and duties as such officer.<sup>3</sup> of the four companies. Reg. v. Bayley, Dears. & B. C. C. 121; s. c., 7 Cox, C. C., 179; 26 L. J. M. C. 4; 2 Jur. N. S. 1171.

Collector of Poor-Rates.—A collector of poor-rates, employed by the overseers, is properly charged with embezzlement, as servant to the overseers, although there are church-wardens for the same parish, who took part in making the rate. Reg. v. Adey, 1 Den. C. C. 571; s. c., 4 New Sess. Cas. 360; T. & M. 296; 3 C. & K. 339; 4 Cox, C. C., 208; 19 L. J. M. C. 149; 14 Jur. 556.

Bailiff of County Court.—A bailiff of a county court who has fraudulently appropriated the proceeds of levies made under the process of the county court, cannot for this misconduct be convicted as a servant of the high bailiff with having embezzled the moneys of the high bailiff his master. Reg. v. Glover, L. & C. 466; s. c., 9 Cox, C. C. 500; 33 L. J. M. C. 169; 10 Jur. N. S. 710; 10 L. T. 582; 12 W. R. 885.

Treasurer to Guardians.—The treasurer to the guardians of the poor of Birmingham, appointed under a local and personal act, is a servant of the guardians, and as such is indictable for embezzlement. Reg. v. Welch, C. & K. 296; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 199; 2 Cox, C. C., 85.

Assistant Overseer.—An assistant overseer of a parish, elected by the parishioners in vestry, under 59 Geo. 3, c. 12, s. 7, who fix his duties and salary, is to be deemed the servant of the inhabitants of the parish, and to receive money collected by him for the poor-rate levied upon the parish as such servant, and such servant may be so described in an indictment for embezzling such moneys so received. Reg. v. Carpenter, 1 L. R. C. C. 29; s. c., 35 L. J. M. C. 169; 12 Jur. N. S. 380; 14 L. T. 572; 14 W. R. 773.

Effect of Re-assignment by Creditor's Trustee to Debtor.—The prisoner was engaged by U. at weekly wages to manage a shop. U. assigned all his estate and effects to R., and a notice was served on the prisoner to act as the agent of R. in the management of the shop. For fourteen days afterwards R. received from U. the shop money. Then the shop money was taken by U. as before. The prisoner received his weekly wages from U. during the whole time. Some time after a composition deed was executed by R. and U. and U.'s creditors, by which R. reconveyed the estate and effects to U.; but this deed was not registered until after the embezzlement charged against the prisoner. Held, that he was the servant of U. at the time of the embezzlement. Reg. v. Dixon, 11 Cox, C. C., 178; s. c., 19 L. T. 324; 17 W. R. 180.

1. State v. Foster, 11 Iowa, 291.

2. State v. Meyers, 68 Mo. 266; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 665.

Missouri Doctrine.—An indictment for embezzlement, framed under § 35, p. 458, Wagner's Statutes, need not directly aver the defendant's agency: it is sufficient if the agency distinctly appears. State v. Dodson, 72 Mo. 283; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 120.

3. See Com. v. Leisenring, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 389; s. c., 32 Leg. Int. 160; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566; Reg. v. Stanfields (Can.), 8 Montreal Leg. News, 123; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 618; Reg. v. Redford, 11 Cox, C. C., 367; 21 L. T. 508; Reg. v. Proud, 9 Cox, C. C., 22; L. & C. 97; 37 L. J. M. C. 71. 5 L. T. 331; 10 W. R. 62; Reg. v. Miller, 2 W. C. C. 249; Reg. v. Woolley, 4 Cox, C. C., 251; Reg. v. Diprose, 11 Cox, C. C., 185; s. c., 19 L. T. 292; 17 W. R. 180; Reg. v. Blackburn, 11 Cox, C. C., 157; Reg. v. Taffs, 4 Cox, C. C., 169.

Secretary of a Society Servant of Members.—Thus, where the trustees of a benefit building society borrowed money for the purposes of their society on their individual responsibility (there being no rule of the society authorizing them to borrow money), the money on one occasion was received by the secretary and embezzled by him. Held, that he might be charged in an indictment for embezzlement as the servant of W. and others, W. being one of the trustees and a member of the society. Reg. v. Redford, 11 Cox, C. C., 367; s. c., 21 L. T. 508.

A member of and secretary to a society, fraudulently withholding money received from a member to be paid over to the trustees, may be indicted for embezzlement, and may be alleged to be the clerk and ser-

c. In Cases of Bailment. — To charge a bailee with embezzlement the indictment must, by direct averment, allege that the embezzled property came into his possession, or was under his care or control, by virtue of his agency or of the bailment.<sup>1</sup> vant of the trustees; and the money may be properly stated to be their property, though the society is not enrolled, and though the money ought in the ordinary course to have been received by a steward. Rex v. Hall, 1 M. C. C. 474.

A member of and secretary to a benefit society, deriving a percentage from the funds of the society, receiving in the course of his duty certain money from the members of the society, which it was his duty to pay into an account in the savings bank kept in the names of certain other members of the society. Instead of paying the money into the bank he appropriated it. Held, that he could not be convicted of embezzling the money upon an indictment charging him to be the servant of "A. B. and others," and laying the money to be that of "A. B. and others," A. B. being an ordinary member of the society. Reg. v. Taffs, 4 Cox, C. C., 169.

Trustee. — Sufficiency of Indictment. — In an indictment of a trustee for fraudulently converting property, it is sufficient to set out that A., "being a trustee," did, etc. Instead of that, A. was a trustee; and "being such trustee," did, etc. It is necessary to set out the trust in the indictment. Reg. v. Stanfield (Can.), 8 Montreal Leg. News, 123; 6 Cr. L. Mag. 618.

A Secretary of a Friendly Society under 18 & 19 Vict. c. 63, in which no trustee had ever been appointed, was convicted on an indictment for embezzlement, the indictment describing him as the servant of the treasurer, and also as the servant of C. (a member) and others. Held, that the conviction was wrong. Reg. v. Diprose, 11 Cox, C. C., 185; s. c., 19 L. T. 292; 17 W. R. 180; Reg. v. Blackburn, 11 Cox, C. C., 157.

Indictment. — Surplusage. — An indictment charged defendant with embezzlement as secretary and treasurer, an officer. Held, that the words, an officer, were mere surplusage, and not fatal. Under the penal procedure act, sect. 28, the description of the money embezzled need not be very specific. Com. v. Leisenring, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 389; s. c., 32 Leg. Int. 160; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566.

The Secretary of an Unenrolled Friendly Society, whose duty it is to receive the weekly contributions of the members, to enter them in a book, and hand over the amount to the treasurer who, in his turn, pays it into a bank in the names of the trustees of the society, may be properly described as the servant of the trustees in an indictment charging him with embezzling sums so received, and he cannot be described as the servant of the treasurer. Reg. v. Woolley, 4 Cox, C. C., 251.

Clerk of Savings Bank. — In an indictment against the clerk of a savings bank for embezzlement, he is properly described as clerk to the trustees, though elected by the managers. Rex v. Jenson, 1 M. C. C. 434.

Clerk of Society withholding Rents. — It is embezzlement in a clerk of a friendly society fraudulently to withhold the rents of a house collected in the course of his duty as clerk, and he may be laid to be the clerk or servant of the trustees to whom the house was conveyed, if appointed either by them or the society. Reg. v. Miller, 2 M. C. C. 249.

A. was indicted for embezzlement as being a clerk and a servant of B., C. & D. A. was a member of and secretary to a properly certified friendly society, of which B., C. & D. were the trustees, and had, from time to time, received (though not in his capacity of secretary) funds belonging to the society, some part of which he appropriated. Held, that A. was properly convicted of embezzlement as the clerk and servant of B., C. & D. Reg. v. Proud, 9 Cox, C. C., 22; s. c., L. & C. 97; 31 L. J. M. C. 71; 5 L. T. 331; 10 W. R. 62.

1. See Gaddy v. State, 8 Tex. App. 127; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 801; People v. Johnson, 71 Cal. 384; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 114; People v. Flores, 64 Cal. 426; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 285; Alderman v. State, 57 Ga. 367; Com. v. Doherty, 127 Mass. 20; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 802; State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 191; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 259; State v. Grisham, 90 Mo. 163; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267.

Sufficiency of the Information or Indictment. — An information charging the defendant with the crime of embezzlement is not demurrable for describing him as a "bailee accommodatum," if otherwise unobjectionable. People v. Flores, 64 Cal. 426; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 285; 1 West Coast Rep. 137.

If the terms of the contract between the defendant and the person alleged to have been specially injured are specifically set forth, and the contract clearly shows that the defendant was thereby constituted a bailee, and received the property in that capacity, an information or indictment will not be demurrable (under sect. 507 of the Penal Code of California), because the

It has been said that an indictment, framed in the language of the statute, charging the embezzlement of property intrusted to the defendant "as bailee," without setting forth the facts and circumstances of the bailment, is sufficient.<sup>1</sup>

But it seems that an indictment against a bailee for felonious defendant is not named as "bailee," or "tenant," or "lodger," as the case may be. People v. Johnson, 71 Cal. 384; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 114.

Sufficiency of Indictment. — How tested. — The sufficiency of an indictment is to be tested by the requirements of the criminal practice act, and not by the rules of the common law. Under such an act an indictment for embezzlement by a bailee is sufficient, which charges that the defendant, on a day and at a place certain, "having been intrusted as bailee by one Hill with two certificates of deposit of money in a certain bank, — to wit, one for the sum of five thousand dollars and the other for the sum of four thousand dollars, both payable to the order of, and both being the property of, said Hill, — did collect and receive thereon and therefore from said bank; and as bailee, was by said bank and said Hill intrusted to carry and convey from said bank to Hill money to the amount and value of nine thousand dollars, proceeds of said two certificates; and said defendant being so as aforesaid intrusted as bailee with said certificates and said money to said amount of nine thousand dollars, the property of said Hill, afterward on, etc., at, etc., did fraudulently and feloniously convert the same and the proceeds thereof to his own use, contrary," etc. Such indictment does not charge more than one offence, and need not specify the nature of the bailment. People v. Hill, 3 Utah, 334; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616.

An indictment which alleges the delivery to the defendant at D., in the county of N., of a deed of mortgage, on, etc., to be carried by him to the grantee named therein, and to be delivered by him to said grantee at B., in the county of S., and that the defendant did then and there take and receive the same into his possession, to be by him carried and delivered as aforesaid, and that he afterwards, on the same day, at D., in the county of N., and before the same was by him delivered to the grantee at B., feloniously did embezzle and fraudulently convert the same to his own use, sufficiently sets forth the general facts necessary to constitute the crime of embezzlement in the county of N. Com. v. Concannon, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 502.

Larceny after Trust. — Georgia Code. — An indictment for larceny after trust, under Georgia Code, sect. 4422 or 4224, which charges that defendant did fraudulently convert the goods intrusted to him to his own use, need not charge that the same was done without the consent of the owner or bailor, and to his injury, and without paying him on demand the full value thereof. These clauses of the sections, or either of them, apply to other disposition of the goods than to the bailee's fraudulent conversion to his own use, and need only be charged and proved in such cases. Alderman v. State, 57 Ga. 367.

Failure to deliver Bank-Book. — Massachusetts Statute. — An indictment under Mass. Gen. Stat. ch. 161, sect. 35, charging defendant with having embezzled a bank-book, the property of A., delivered to defendant on a day named by A., "in the trust and confidence with the direction that the defendant would and should thereby receive only the custody of said book, and would and should hold the same until said book was demanded by A., when the defendant would and should deliver up and return said book to A." sufficiently alleges the possession of the bank-book, at the time of its embezzlement, to have been in the defendant. Com. v. Doherty, 127 Mass. 20; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 802.

By Carrier of Money. — Minnesota Statute. — To maintain an indictment under the provisions of Minnesota General Statutes, ch. 95, sect. 24, as amended by Laws of 1876, ch. 55 (Gen. Stat. 1878, ch. 95, sec. 33), for an embezzlement of money received by defendant from the owner, for the purpose of being sent and delivered to another, when the wrongful act complained of consisted in "the use and disposal of such money by defendant to his own use and benefit," it must allege that such use and disposition were without the consent of owner. State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 191; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 259.

Of Written Instrument. — Missouri Statute. — Missouri Revised Statutes, sect. 1312, applies only to the theft or embezzlement of an instrument of writing that is or purports to be the act of another; and an indictment that charges a party who has executed a chattel mortgage, and had the same intrusted to him to deliver to the recorder of deeds for registration, with failure to deliver it to the recorder, is sufficient. State v. Grisham, 90 Mo. 163; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267.

1. People v. Hill, 3 Utah, 334; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616.

conversion of coin must state the character of the bailment and the description of the coin.<sup>1</sup>

3. Averment as to Ownership. — In an indictment for embezzlement, where known, the ownership of the property should be alleged;<sup>2</sup>

1. People v. Cohen, 8 Cal. 42. See also People v. Peterson, 9 Cal. 313.

2. See State v. Lyon, 45 N. J. L. (16 Vr.) 272; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616; 17 Rep. 598; Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 272; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611; 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289; State v. Mohr, 68 Mo. 303; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 262; Alden v. State, 18 Fla. 187; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762; People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; Com. v. Doherty, 127 Mass. 20; s. c., 9 Cent. L. J. 77.

Rule in England. — The same rule prevails in England. See Rex v. McGregor, 3 Bos. & P. 106; s. c., R. & R. 23; Rex v. Beacall, 1 M. C. C. 15; Reg. v. Adey, 4 New Sess. Cas. 360; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 571; T. & M. 296; 3 C. & K. 339; 4 Cox, C. C., 208; 19 L. J. M. C. 149; 14 Jur. 556; Reg. v. Pritchard, 1 L. & C. 34; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 461; 30 L. J. M. C. 169; 7 Jur. N. S. 557; Reg. v. Woolley, 4 Cox, C. C., 255; Rex v. Jensen, 1 M. C. C. 434; Rex v. McGregor, R. & R. 23.

In an indictment for Embezzlement by an Agent, the name of the principal must be alleged; and it is the safer practice, though it may be unnecessary, to allege the ownership of the property as a fact distinct from the necessary inference of ownership by the named principal; yet, when such ownership is alleged, it becomes material, and must be proved as laid. Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 272; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611.

In Case of Corporations. — In an indictment against an officer of a corporation for embezzlement of the property of such corporation, the corporation name, as fixed by law, should appear in such indictment as the owner of the property, and the name of office by such officer, as prescribed by law, should be set out therein. Alden v. State, 18 Fla. 187; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

Embezzlement from Copartnership. — In an indictment under Mo. Wagn. Stat. 458, sect. 35, for embezzling the money of a copartnership, the names of the individual partners need not be set out. State v. Mohr, 68 Mo. 303; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 262.

Misnomer. — Judgment will be arrested when it appears that there is a misnomer in either the name of the corporation or in the title of the officer of the corporation so charged with embezzlement. Alden v. State, 18 Fla. 187; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

That the company from which the alleged embezzlement was made was called "Railroad Company" in the indictment and instructions, while its corporate name was "Railway Company," held to be immaterial. State v. Goode, 68 Iowa, 593.

Indictment against Trustees. — An indictment for embezzlement which alleges that a bank-book was delivered to the defendant by the owner in trust and confidence, and with the direction that the defendant should thereby receive only the custody of it and should hold it until demanded by the owner and should then deliver it up and return it to him, sufficiently states that the actual and legal possession was parted with by the owner, and vested in the defendant. Com. v. Doherty, 127 Mass. 20; s. c., 9 Cent. L. J. 77.

Indorsement of Note. — The absolute indorsement of a promissory note does not relieve the indorser from liability upon it. He has still an interest in it to see that any agent of his authorized to collect and pay it over performs his duty; and if, after his indorsement, the indorsee gives such indorser the possession and control of the note to collect interest upon it for his benefit, or to otherwise control it, that would be sufficient to sustain an averment of an ownership in an information for embezzlement. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

"Clerk or Servant," or "In the Capacity of Clerk or Servant." — The secretary of an unenrolled friendly society, who is paid a yearly salary out of its funds, is properly described in the indictment as clerk and servant to the trustees, and it would be incorrect to designate him as employed in the capacity of clerk and servant. The latter description only applies where the prisoner is employed on temporary occasions, and does not usually fill the situation of clerk or servant. Reg. v. Woolley, 4 Cox, C. C., 255.

Friendly Societies. — Where, by the rules of certain unenrolled friendly societies, the members of one lodge were at liberty to pay their contributions to another lodge, if more convenient to them to do so, in an indictment against the secretary of a lodge for embezzling moneys received from a member of another lodge, it was held that the moneys may be laid as the property of the trustees of his lodge, to whose account all moneys received by him ought to be paid, although the trustees, in their turn, would, in this instance, have to account to the other lodge for the particular sum received on its behalf. Reg. v. Woolley, 4 Cox, C. C., 255.

but the indictment need not set out from whom the money embezzled was received.<sup>1</sup>

4. Description, Nature, and Value of Money and Property. — a. Generally. — An indictment for embezzlement or larceny should describe the goods, at least in part, with such certainty as to identify them, and show judicially that they could be the subject of the offence, and enable the defendant to plead in bar on a subsequent indictment for the same chattels.<sup>2</sup>

Amendment of Allegation — The secretary of a friendly society, of which A., B., and others were trustees, was charged with embezzling money belonging to the society. In the indictment the property was laid as "of A., B., and others," without alleging that they were trustees of the society. The court held that the indictment might be amended by adding the words "trustees of," etc. Reg. v. Marks, 10 Cox, C. C., 367.

That Money embezzled is Property of Master. — In an indictment under 39 Geo. 3, c. 85, against a servant for embezzling money received on his master's account, it is not sufficient to follow the words of the statute, but there must be a positive allegation that the money was the property of the master. Rex v. McGregor, 3 Bos. & P. 106; s. c., R. & R. 23; Rex v. Beacall, 1 M. C. C. 15.

Embezzling Funds of Joint-Stock Banking Company. — It is sufficient in an indictment for embezzling the property of a joint-stock banking company to allege the stolen property to belong to one of the partners named and others, under 7 Geo. 4, c. 64, s. 14; Reg. v. Pritchard, 1 L. & C. 34; s. c., 8 Cox, C. C., 461; 30 L. J. M. C. 169; 7 Jur. N. S. 557.

Against Servant employed by Partners. — A., being one of several proprietors of a Hereford and Birmingham coach, horsed it from Hereford to Worcester, and employed B. to drive it when he did not himself drive it; B. having all the gratuities as well when A. drove as when B. himself did so. It was the duty of B., on each day when he drove, to tell the bookkeeper at Malvern how much money he had taken, the bookkeeper entering that sum in a book and on the way-bill, together with what he had taken himself; and he then had to pay over the latter to B., who was to give the two sums to A. B. gave true accounts to the bookkeeper, who made true entries; but B. accounted for smaller sums to A., saying that those were all, and paid over to A. these smaller sums. All the proprietors were interested in the money; but A. was the person to receive it, and he was accountable to his co-proprietors. The court held that the money embezzled was properly laid as the money of A. Reg. v. White, 8 Car. & P. 742.

Against Collectors of Rates. — A. was employed by the overseers of a parish to collect poor-rates on their account. As their agent he demanded the amount of the rate from the landlord of a house who usually paid his tenants' poor-rates: he entered the amount in his book as uncollected and as legally excused, and embezzled the sum. Held, that although the overseers might not have been able to enforce the payment of the sum so embezzled, he received it in virtue of his employment, and on account of his employers, and that it was not necessary to lay the money as the joint property of the church-wardens and overseers. Reg. v. Adey, 4 New Sess. Cas. 360; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 571; T. & M. 296; 3 C. & K. 339; 4 Cox, C. C., 208; 19 L. J. M. C. 149; 14 Jur. 556.

In such case it is sufficient to describe the money received by the collector for the rate as the property of the overseers only, naming them. Reg. v. Adey, 4 New Sess. Cas. 360; s. c., 1 Den. C. C. 571; T. & M. 296; 3 C. & K. 339; 4 Cox, C. C., 208; 19 L. J. M. C. 149; 14 Jur. 556.

1. State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616; Rex v. Jensen, 1 M. C. C. 454; Rex v. McGregor, R. & R. 23. However, it is said that if the judge should consider it fair to the person charged to order the persecutor to furnish particulars of the crime alleged against him, such particulars ought at least to state the names of the persons from whom the money is claimed to have been received. Rex v. Jensen, 1 M. C. C. 454.

In North Carolina. — An indictment for embezzlement of money need not state the name of the person from whom the money was received; and the averment that the defendant is neither an apprentice nor under the age of sixteen is a substantial compliance with the statute. State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616.

2. State v. Edson, 10 La. An. 229. See State v. Thompson, 42 Ark. 517; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289; State v. Ward, 48 Ark. 36; Woodward v. State, 103 Ind. 127; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 380; People v. Cox, 40 Cal. 275; People v. Cohen, 8 Cal. 42; Com. v. Leisenring, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 392; s. c., 32 Leg. Int. 160-168; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566.

The indictment should give a description of the property embezzled with the same particularity as is required in an indictment for larceny.<sup>1</sup> The omission in an indictment for embezzlement to state any description or character whatever of the money stolen is fatal, whenever presented during the progress of the trial.<sup>2</sup>

It is not necessary, however, that the property or money embezzled should be fully described;<sup>3</sup> but the object for which the money embezzled was originally received by the accused should be set out.<sup>4</sup>

b. Certainty. — An indictment must be specific and certain in description; but words constitute a sufficient description.<sup>5</sup>

1. State v. Thompson, 42 Ark. 517; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289; People v. Cox, 40 Cal. 275.

2. State v. Ward, 48 Ark. 36; People v. Cox, 40 Cal. 275.

The indictment should set out specifically some article of property embezzled, and the evidence should support the statement. Rex v. Tyers, R. & R. 402; Rex v. Furneaux, R. & R. 334.

Description of Money embezzled. — An indictment for the embezzlement of money must definitely describe the money embezzled. A general description by amount, as so many dollars of good and lawful money of the United States, is not sufficient. State v. Ward, 48 Ark. 36.

An indictment for embezzlement describing the property as "certain money to a large amount, to wit, to the amount of one hundred dollars," was held insufficient. State v. Thompson, 42 Ark. 517.

In Louisiana. — The description of money, as contained in the indictment, being "a general allegation of the amount and the thing," is sufficient in a proceeding under the same section (Rev. Stat. sect. 907), as provided in sect. 906 of the same. State v. Palmer, 32 La. An. 565; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706.

3. See Com. v. Leisenring, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 392; s. c., 32 Leg. Int. 160-168; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 566; Woodward v. State, 103 Ind. 127; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355. 7 Cr. L. Mag. 380.

Embezzlement of Lottery-Ticket. — It is not necessary in an indictment for the embezzlement of the proceeds of a lottery-ticket to set out the ticket in full. Woodward v. State, 103 Ind. 127; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 380.

4. Territory v. Maxwell, 2 N. M. Ter. 250; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

5. People v. Dorr, 39 Cal. 428. See Hollingsworth v. State, 111 Ind. 289; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; 12 N. E. Rep. 490; Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1; Com. v. Bennett, 118 Mass. 443; State v. Meyers, 68 Mo. 266; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 665; Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98; Com. v. Concannon, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 502; Mayo v. State, 30 Ala. 32.

An indictment for embezzlement, describing the property as "certain books, letter-files, knives, bank-shears, slates, and sealing-wax, to about the value of forty dollars," is sufficiently certain and definite, under the forms prescribed by the Alabama Code. Mayo v. State, 30 Ala. 32.

An Indictment for Embezzlement of "a Deed of Mortgage of certain land situated in R., in the county of N., before then made and executed by the said C. (the defendant) to one D., and delivered to said D. by said C. of the property, goods, and chattels of the said D. and of the value," etc., sufficiently describes the article embezzled. Com. v. Concannon, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 502.

An indictment (under Mass. Gen. Stat. chap. 161, § 12) charging one with embezzling, at time and place stated, "certain money to the amount and value of $25,000," sufficiently describes the property embezzled. Com. v. Bennett, 118 Mass. 443.

An Indictment against a County Treasurer for Embezzlement is not bad for failure to particularly specify each fund charged to have been embezzled, especially when attacked after verdict. Hollingsworth v. State, 111 Ind. 289; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973.

Against Treasurer of Savings Bank. — In an indictment (under the Massachusetts Gen. Stats. chap. 161, § 38) against the treasurer of a savings bank, for embezzlement of its property, an allegation of the embezzlement of money to a certain amount, and of mortgages and notes, so described as to identify them, is a sufficient description of the property alleged to have been embezzled. Commonwealth v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98.

Bonds of United States. — In an indictment for embezzlement, a description of the property taken as "bonds of the United States of America for the payment of

Thus if an indictment alleges the embezzlement of certain mortgages and notes, and certain "pieces of paper writing," and the mortgages and notes are so described as to identify them, it is immaterial, on a motion to quash, whether the pieces of paper writing are so described.<sup>1</sup>

But the indictment must allege intent or it will be bad.<sup>2</sup>

c. Description of Coin or Money; Character of Funds, etc. — An information for embezzlement of money need not specify the coin, number, or kind of money embezzled; nor is it necessary to prove such facts on the trial.<sup>3</sup>

It is no defect in the indictment that it does not describe the sum of money alleged to be embezzled in coin or bank-notes,<sup>4</sup> because all that is required is the best description which the circumstances will permit, both in the indictment and upon the trial.<sup>5</sup> money, issued by authority of law," and of an aggregate value of $1,000, is held to be sufficiently specific. No greater particularity is requisite than in an indictment for larceny. Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1.

An indictment for embezzlement described the property embezzled as "certain United States five-twenty Government bonds, which were valuable securities, of the value of $5,000." Held, a sufficiently particular description. State v. Meyers, 68 Mo. 266; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 665.

It was necessary to set out in detail the nature and purpose of the agency, the agency and the receipt of the bonds by the defendant in his capacity of agent being distinctly averred. The contract between defendant and owner of the bonds need not be set out; but such contract, when proven, must establish an agency within the meaning of the statute under which he was indicted, and not an ordinary bailment. State v. Meyers, 68 Mo. 266; s. c., 7 Cent. L. J. 49.

1. Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98.

Description as so many Dollars Bad. — When, in the trial of an indictment for the embezzlement of money, the only description given of the money is so many dollars, good and lawful money of the United States, in the absence of an excuse alleged in the indictment for the want of a more full and definite description of the money embezzled, the description given is bad for uncertainty. State v. Ward, 48 Ark. 36; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; 2 S. W. Rep. 191.

2. "Certainty to a Common Intent." — Thus an indictment charging that the accused "knowingly converted or applied to his own use one hundred and eighty dollars, or other large sum of money," held, to be bad for want of "certainty to a common intent." Noble v. State, 59 Ala. 73.

3. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Crim. L. Mag. 796.

See Territory v. Maxwell, 2 New Mex. Tr. 250; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762; State v. Thompson, 32 La. An. 796; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706; State v. Munch, 22 Minn. 67; State v. New, 22 Minn. 76; State v. Smith, 13 Kans. 274; State v. Carrick, 16 Nev. 120; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 883.

4. State v. Thompson, 32 La. An. 796; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706.

5. Territory v. Maxwell, 2 New Mex. Tr. 250; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762; State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 763.

It is not necessary that an indictment for embezzlement of money set forth the whole amount of money received by defendant, a part of which is alleged to have been embezzled. Under an indictment alleging the receipt of a gross sum "exceeding" a sum named, proof may be made of the receipt of any amount, although it greatly exceed the sum thus named. State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 763.

An Indictment against a State Treasurer for Embezzlement of State funds need not state the character or amounts of the various funds embezzled, nor that the same is unknown to the grand jury. State v. Munch, 22 Minn. 67. Compare State v. New, 22 Minn. 76.

In an information against a county treasurer for embezzling public funds in the county treasury, it is impossible and unnecessary to set forth the particular kind of funds embezzled, whether United States treasury notes, or bank-notes, or gold, or silver. State v. Smith, 13 Kan. 274; State v. Carrick, 16 Nev. 120; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 883.

When Indictment insufficient. — An indictment for the conversion of $400,000, moneys, goods, and chattels, not specifying which, nor alleging the amount to be lawful currency of the United States, is not sufficiently certain. People v. Cohen, 8 Cal. 42. The indictment must describe the coin. Id., People v. Peterson, 9 Cal. 313.

d. Averment of Value or Amount. — An indictment for embezzlement must allege the value or amount of the money or property embezzled;<sup>1</sup> but the exact amount need not be specified.<sup>2</sup>

e. Averments as to Directions for Application of Proceeds. — An indictment for embezzlement, where the money or property was intrusted for a particular purpose, such as safe-keeping, or to deliver to a third person, or the like, must set out the purpose for which the same was intrusted to the defendant,<sup>3</sup> and allege a written direction as to the application.<sup>4</sup>

5. Averment as to Time. — The time of the commission of the

1. Reside v. State, 10 Tex. App. 675; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 424; People v. Donald, 48 Mich. 491; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; Bork v. People, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 476; Britton v. State, 77 Ala. 202. Compare McDaniels v. People, 118 Ill. 301; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 115; 8 N. E. Rep. 687; 5 West. Rep. 903; State v. Small, 26 Kans. 209; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759.

Allegation of Value. — The value is not sufficiently alleged by describing the embezzled property as "eight dollars in money, consisting of one five-dollar bill, one two-dollar bill, and one one-dollar bill, circulating medium current as money." Reside v. State, 10 Tex. App. 675; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 424.

An information for the embezzlement or statutory larceny of "money" is defective for not stating its value, if the money embezzled consists of checks and certificates of deposit. But the defect is open to amendment. People v. Donald, 48 Mich. 491; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759.

An indictment for embezzlement of "a large sum of money, to wit, the sum of $1,100." Held, to be fatally defective in not stating the value. Bork v. People, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 476.

There is no legal presumption for the purposes of a criminal prosecution that bank-notes, checks, bills of exchange, and other securities for money are worth the sums which they represent, or any sum. People v. Donald, 48 Mich. 491; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459.

Averment as to Amount embezzled. — An indictment against a tax-collector for the embezzlement of public funds, in failing to make returns and forward the tax-money in his hands, from time to time, to the proper authorities, as provided by law, must allege some particular sum or amount as to which the offence is charged, but it is sufficient to allege that it is "about" a named sum, and it is not necessary to prove the precise sum specified. Britton v. State, 77 Ala. 202.

Illinois Doctrine. — Embezzlement of Railroad Ticket. — In an indictment for larceny, at common law, under sects. 167, 168 of the Criminal Code, it would be necessary to allege the value of the property stolen, and to prove the same on the trial; but it is otherwise in an indictment under sect. 77 of the Crim. Code, which provides for the punishment of stealing or embezzling any coupon or other railroad ticket or pass, without any provision in regard to the value of the article stolen. McDaniels v. People, 118 Ill. 301; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 115.

Same. — Embezzlement of Gelding. —

Where the information charges the embezzlement of a gelding which has been delivered to the accused as bailee, the information need not allege the value of the property, as the statute provides that upon conviction therefor, the party so charged shall be adjudged guilty of larceny, and punished in the manner prescribed by law for stealing property of the nature so embezzled; and the punishment for persons convicted of stealing a horse or gelding is by confinement and hard labor not exceeding seven years. State v. Small, 26 Kans. 209; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759.

2. Rex v. Carson, R. & R. 303; Rex v. Grove, 1 M. C. C. 447.

3. An indictment for embezzlement, which avers that the defendant "was intrusted by J. S. with certain property, the same being the subject of larceny (described), and to deliver the same to said S. on demand," and afterwards "refused to deliver said property to S., and feloniously did embezzle and fraudulently convert to his own use, the same then and there being demanded of him by said S." is fatally defective, by reason of omitting to state the purpose for which the defendant was intrusted with the property, or what property he fraudulently converted to his own use. Com. v. Smart, 72 Mass. (6 Gray) 15.

4. An indictment under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 49, against a banker for embezzling a security for money, must allege a written direction to him as to the application of the proceeds. Reg. v. Golde, 2 M. & Rob. 425.

act must be alleged in an indictment for embezzlement.<sup>1</sup> But in an indictment for embezzlement, or in one for aiding and counselling embezzlement, the day named for the commission of the offence is not material, and evidence may be given, referring to any other day before the finding of the indictment.<sup>2</sup>

6. Time when must be found—Statute of Limitations.—The time within which an indictment for embezzlement must be found is regulated in most of the States by statute.<sup>3</sup> Where the statutory period has expired before the finding of an indictment for embezzlement, the better practice is to allege the time of commission of offence, and set forth the facts which avoid the bar of the statutes of limitations as an excuse for not having preferred the indictment sooner, though it has been held that the offence may be alleged to have been committed within the time fixed by the statute, and that the facts which suspend the running of the statute may be proved at the trial.<sup>4</sup>

7. Counts.—a. Joinder.—In an indictment for embezzlement, the conversion should be distinctly set forth in an independent count;<sup>5</sup> but the fact that the money alleged to have been em-

1. State v. Lyon, 45 N. J. L. (16 Vr.) 272.

Embezzlement by County Treasurer.—Yet it has been said that in an indictment against a county treasurer for embezzlement, it is sufficient to allege and prove the felonious conversion to his own use of any money that came into his possession, or was under his control by virtue of his office, without specifying with certainty the particular kind of funds embezzled, or the time when the money was received. State v. Carrick, 16 Nev. 120; s. c., 3 Cr. L. J. 883.

2. State v. Cushing, 11 R. I. 313.

3. The 32d Section of the Original Crimes Act of April 30, 1790, enacts the only statute of limitation applicable to the offence of embezzlement by a public officer, and requires an indictment to be found in two years. United States v. Cook, 84 U. S. (17 Wall.) 168; bk. 21 L. ed. 538.

Embezzlement of Money-Order.—On an indictment for embezzlement of money from a money-order office, the defendant cannot be prosecuted or punished, unless the indictment is found within two years from the committing of the offences, under the act of April 30, 1790. It is not a crime under the revenue laws, for which five years is allowed, under the act of March 26, 1804. United States v. Norton, 91 U. S. (1 Otto) 566; bk. 23 L. ed. 454.

Statute of Limitations.—How raised.—The defence of the statute of limitations under that section cannot be taken under a demurrer to the indictment. United States v. Cook, 84 U. S. (17 Wall.) 168; bk. 21 L. ed. 538.

A Prosecution of a Clerk for Embezzlement is not barred by the fact that he was witness for the commonwealth in the prosecution of a fellow clerk of the same employer for larceny in the same shop. Com. v. Woodside, 105 Mass. 594.

4. State v. Meyers, 68 Mo. 266; s. c., 7 Cent. L. J. 499.

5. But where an indictment for embezzlement contains several counts, if some of the several counts are good, the indictment will not be quashed for defects in the other counts. Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98.

Inconsistent Allegations.—A charge of secreting and making away with public moneys is inconsistent with a charge of investing it in property in the sense of the statute, and, if it is intended to arraign the accused on each, they must be inserted in different counts. State v. Flint, 62 Mo. 393.

Charging Offences.—Different Forms.—Charging the accused, in the first count of the indictment, with embezzling and converting to his own use money belonging to the bank, and in the second count with embezzling and converting to his own use money deposited with the bank, thus charging, conjunctively, both embezzlement and conversion, and the embezzlement and conversion of both money belonging to the bank and money deposited with it, does not render the indictment obnoxious to the objection of either duplicity or uncertainty under the provisions of Rev. Stat. sect. 907. State v. Palmer, 32 La. An. 565; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706.

Charging One Offence in Two Counts.—An indictment for embezzlement contained bezzled by the accused was received in several sums, at different times, and from different persons, affords no ground for requiring the prosecutor to elect on which sum he will rely for conviction.<sup>1</sup>

b. Joinder of Embezzlement and Larceny.—Counts for larceny and embezzlement may be included in the same indictment, and the court will not compel the prosecutor to elect on which count he will proceed, if one offence only is charged.<sup>2</sup> two counts, each identical as to the time and place, names of persons, and description of property. Held, that the indictment charged but one offence. State v. Malim, 14 Nev. 288; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 113.

Surplusage—Rejection.—Where, in an indictment for embezzlement, there is a second count charging another act of embezzlement within six months from the first, under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 48, but alleging the money to be the property of a different person from that mentioned in the first count, the words connecting the second count with the first may be rejected as surplusage, and the second count dealt with as an independent count. Reg. v. Woolley, 4 Cox, C. C., 251.

1. Gravatt v. State, 25 Ohio St. 162; s. c., 3 Cent. L. J. 392.

2. Mayo v. State, 30 Ala. 32; State v. Porter, 26 Mo. 201; Murphy v. People, 104 Ill. 528; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; 15 Rep. 300; Coats v. People, 4 Park. Cr. Cas. (N. Y.) 662; Com. v. Simpson, 50 Mass. (9 Metc.) 138; State v. Walton, 62 Me. 106; Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629. See Rex v. Johnson, 3 M. & S. 539; Reg. v. Holman, 9 Cox, C. C., 201; s. c., L. & C. 177, 10 W. R. 718; 8 Jur. (N. S.) 1082.

Joinder of Counts.—Embezzlement and larceny from a storehouse may be joined, in different counts, in the same indictment. Mayo v. State, 30 Ala. 32. A count for embezzling bank-notes upon the statute may be joined with a count for larceny. Rex v. Johnson, 3 M. & S. 539. An indictment under Maine Rev. Stat. ch. 120, sec. 7, designating three classes of principals and abettors in embezzlement or breach of trust as guilty of larceny, need only allege the acts and facts therein declared to be deemed larceny. State v. Walton, 62 Me. 106. In Com. v. Simpson, 50 Mass. (9 Metc.) 138, it was held that an indictment alleging that the defendant "did embezzle, steal, and carry away," etc., was not bad for duplicity because it charged the two offences of embezzlement and larceny; embezzlement being rejected as surplusage. It is customary to add a separate count for larceny, in order that, should the count for embezzlement not be sustained, the prisoner may be convicted of simple larceny.

Compelling an Election as to a Single Act.—On an indictment for embezzlement and larceny of moneys, funds, and securities, there is no error in the court refusing to compel the prosecution to elect upon what alleged act of embezzlement or larceny a conviction will be asked, as embezzlement may, and most often does, consist of many acts done in a series of years by virtue of the confidential relations existing between the employer and employee. Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629.

A prisoner was indicted in the first count for embezzlement, and in the second for larceny, as a bailee. After plea pleaded and the jury was charged, and in the course of the trial it was objected for the prisoner that the indictment was bad for misjoinder of counts. The court overruled the objection, and directed the prosecutor to elect upon which count he would proceed; and the prosecutor having elected to proceed upon the second count, the prisoner was found guilty thereon. Held, that the conviction was right. Reg. v. Holman, 9 Cox, C. C., 201; L. & C. 177; 6 L. T. 474; 10 W. R. 718; 8 Jur. (N. S.) 1082.

When Indictment defective.—Under the statute of Texas, embezzlement is punishable as theft. The minimum and maximum punishment for horse theft is respectively five and fifteen years. The minimum and maximum punishment for the theft of property of or exceeding the value of $20 is respectively two and ten years. A count in an indictment which charges two distinct offences is bad—burglary and theft being an exception to this rule. The indictment in this case charged in a single count the embezzlement of a horse, and also a gun and pistol of the combined value of twenty dollars. Held, that the two kinds of theft charged constitute two separate offences, and the indictment was bad for duplicity. Heineman v. State, 22 Text. App. 44.

If a count in an indictment (under the Mass. Gen. Sts. c. 161) against the treasurer of a savings bank, for embezzlement of its property, after describing the acts done, alleges that, by force of the statute, the defendant "is deemed to have committed the crime of simple larceny," and that he did steal, take, and carry away the property "in the banking-house aforesaid," thus leaving it in doubt whether the count is framed under § 38 or § 39, the count is

8. Averments necessary in Embezzlement from National Banks. — An indictment of a president, or other officer or servant, of a national bank, under the statute<sup>1</sup> for embezzling the moneys thereof, must show that such moneys were lawfully intrusted to his possession.<sup>2</sup>

The indictment should also show the facts relied upon as constituting the offence. To use the word "embezzle" alone is not enough; for this is not a word of definite common-law meaning, but is used in the statutes to designate a variety of crimes which a person has the opportunity to commit, by reason of his being in some office or confidential employment.<sup>3</sup>

An indictment seeking to charge defendants with embezzling or aiding and abetting a director, or other officer, of a national bank in misapplying the funds of the bank, must state facts showing a misapplication of money of the bank by such officer or director.<sup>4</sup>

9. Public Officers. — a. Averment as to Official Capacity. — In an indictment for embezzlement by a public officer it must be set forth that he was a public officer in the discharge of his duties;<sup>5</sup> bad, and will be quashed on motion. Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98.

Where an indictment for embezzlement could not be supported because the offence was not an embezzlement but a larceny, and the larceny count stated the larceny to have been committed "in manner and form aforesaid," held, that the prisoner could not be convicted. Rex v. Murray, 5 C. & P. 145; 1 M. C. C. 276.

1. U. S. Rev. Stat. sect. 5309.

2. United States v. Johnson, 4 Cin. L. Bul. 361.

But it is not necessary that the indictment should charge that the president or other officer of the bank had the actual custody or possession of the money embezzled or converted. In that section, which applies only to bank officers, the ingredient of "custody," "possession" or "being intrusted with," is not mentioned as a requisite to constitute the offence therein denounced, as it is in other statutes defining and punishing of embezzlement. State v. Palmer, 32 La. An. 565; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 706.

3. United States v. Conant, 9 Cent. L. J. 129.

4. United States v. Warner, 26 Fed. Rep. 616; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 795; United States v. Britton, 107 U. S. (17 Otto) 655; bk. 27 L. ed. 520.

A count that charges that defendant, the president of a banking association, failed to apply certain funds standing to the credit of a debtor of such association to the payment of his indebtedness, and permitted such debtor to withdraw his funds from the association and transfer them to another bank, does not charge a criminal misapplication by defendant of the moneys and funds of the association, and is bad. United States v. Britton, 107 U. S. (17 Otto) 655; bk. 27 L. ed. 520.

"Wilfully misapplied." — The words "wilfully misapplied" have no settled technical meaning. Hence an averment in such an indictment, that defendant, "being president of the association, wilfully misapplied its moneys and funds by buying therewith certain shares of its stock with intent to injure and defraud the association, and certain persons to grand jurors unknown," is not sufficient; the manner in which the application was made, and that it was an unlawful one must be shown. United States v. Britton, 107 U. S. (17 Otto) 655; bk. 27 L. ed. 520; s. c., 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 512.

5. See People v. Potter, 35 Cal. 110; State v. Parsons, 54 Iowa, 405; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 802; State v. Goss, 60 Me. 22; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 405.

By Municipal Officer. — Where the act of incorporation of a city vested the municipal government in certain officers, including "a city marshal," held that an indictment charging a person with embezzling moneys of the city, alleging that he was at the time of the act "the city marshal of," etc., sufficiently averred that he was then an officer of the corporation. People v. Potter, 35 Cal. 110.

"Treasurer of the Board of Directors" of an independent school-district is an officer recognized by the law, and may be indicted by that name for embezzlement of district-school funds. An indictment for the embezzlement of public funds should allege that the funds appropriated are also, "un-but it is held that in an indictment under the New-York statute for the unlawful conversion of property or funds belonging to a municipal corporation by an officer thereof, it is not necessary to aver the fiduciary character of the accused.<sup>1</sup>

b. Averment as to Manner of Acquisition of Office.—The manner of acquisition of office by a public officer charged with embezzlement is an unimportant matter, and need not be averred in the indictment.<sup>2</sup> In some States, however, it is held that an indictment against an agent of the State and county for embezzlement should allege when and how he was appointed and the authority for his appointment.<sup>3</sup>

c. Averment as to Ownership of Money.—Where the substance of the offence of embezzlement by a public officer, as defined by statute, consists in the conversion of public money, an indictment for the embezzlement of money belonging to several municipalities need not state the amount belonging to each. It is sufficient to allege that the money was public money, belonging to the municipalities named in the statute, or to one or more of them.<sup>4</sup> accounted for." State v. Parsons, 54 Iowa, 405; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 802.

Collector of Taxes.—An indictment which avers that the accused, "being a public officer, to wit, the collector of taxes of the town of M.," did embezzle, etc., sufficiently describes the official character of the accused, without stating how he came into the office, or that he was duly qualified to act by taking the oath and giving the bond required by law. State v. Goss, 69 Me. 22; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 405.

1. Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5.

The same is true of an indictment under the statutes of many of the States.

This is a fact, however, proper to be proved on the trial. Bork v. People, 91 N. Y. 5.

2. See State v. Goss, 69 Me. 22; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124; 8 Rep. 558; State v. Nicholson, 67 Md. 1; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 556; 6 Atl. Rep. 817; State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment for the embezzlement of public moneys need not set out the manner in which the party charged came into office. State v. Goss, 69 Me. 22; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124; 8 Rep. 558. Thus it need not be averred that the defendant had duly been appointed tax-collector, if it contain an averment in express terms that he was collector of the State and county taxes for a certain county, and, as such, did collect a specified sum on account of taxes due the State. State v. Nicholson, 67 Md. 1; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 556.

And in an indictment for embezzlement by a county treasurer, committed by a refusal to deliver to his successor in office the moneys in his hands, it is not necessary to set forth all the steps by which such successor became county treasurer. It is enough to allege that he was properly appointed by the board of county commissioners, duly qualified, and thereby became the successor in office of the defendant, without alleging that a vacancy existed in the office by reason of which the right to make such appointment existed. But, if the indictment purports to set forth, particularly, the means by which the appointee became county treasurer, and some event, legally necessary to that end, is not averred, the particular allegations modify and control the general averment of the ultimate fact, and such fact is not well pleaded. State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

3. State v. Flint, 62 Mo. 393.

4. Brown v. State, 18 Ohio St. 496. See also State v. Arnold, (Mo.), 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; 2 S. W. Rep. 269; 7 West. Rep. 283; State v. Flint, 62 Mo. 393; State v. Hays, 78 Mo. 600; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 911; People v. Potter, 35 Cal. 110; People v. De La Guerra, 31 Cal. 416.

Under section 243 of the Cal. Crim. Pract. Act, an indictment charging one with embezzling moneys of the "city of J., a municipal corporation of C. County," etc., is not fatally defective, although the act of incorporation of the city of J. provides for a city government to be a body politic and corporate by the name and style of "the mayor and common council of the city of J." People v. Potter, 35 Cal. 110.

Tax-Collector.—Where an indictment against a tax-collector for embezzlement

d. Averment as to Failure to Account. — The crime of embezzlement by the custodian of public funds, under the statute, consists of the conversion of public money to his own use and a failure to account for the same, and an indictment for the offence must charge not only the conversion but also the failure to account.<sup>1</sup> alleged the receiving certain moneys due the county and certain moneys due the State, and the embezzlement charged was of the sum total, held, that the indictment charged but one offence. People v. De La Guerra, 31 Cal. 416.

Revenue Collector — Indictment — When sufficient. — An indictment that charges that defendant, being a duly elected and qualified collector of State and county revenue of a county named, by virtue of his office was intrusted with the custody of the revenue belonging to such county, and, on a day named, did of such public moneys, the sum of $12,000 good and lawful money, the denomination and particular description of which were to the grand jurors unknown, unlawfully, fraudulently, and feloniously make way with and convert to his own use, and feloniously embezzle, steal, and carry away, is sufficient, under Rev. Stat. Mo. sect. 1326. State v. Arnold (Mo.), 2 S. W. Rep. 269; s. c., 7 West. Rep. 283; 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267.

Township Trustee. — An indictment against a township trustee charged that he had embezzled "public moneys belonging to the school fund of North Township," in Dade County. Strictly speaking, the moneys belonged to the sub-districts of North Township, rather than the township itself. Held, however, that this did not invalidate the indictment. It was sufficient to allege that the funds embezzled were "public moneys," and the amplification in the charge did not vitiate or limit the proof. State v. Hays, 78 Mo. 600; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 911.

Sheriff. — An indictment under the Missouri statute (Wagn. Stat. 1872, 459, sect. 41) against a sheriff for embezzling public money of the State and county need not state from whom he received the money, nor the proportion that belonged respectively to the State and county. It is sufficient to allege that it was public money belonging to the State or county or both. State v. Flint, 62 Mo. 393.

1. State v. Parsons, 54 Iowa, 405; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 706. See also State v. Govan, 48 Ark. 76; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267; State v. Hebel, 72 Ind. 361; State v. Nicholson, 67 Md. 1; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 556; 8 Atl. Rep. 817.

But it has been held that an indictment against a county treasurer for embezzlement, which charges that the defendant on, etc., then and there being county treasurer of said county, duly elected in pursuance of law to said office of public trust in said State, did feloniously and fraudulently embezzle a large sum of money, to wit, the sum of $4,508.37, then and there in possession of such officer by virtue of his said office, contrary, etc., is sufficient even on motion to quash. Goodhue v. People, 94 Ill. 37; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 113.

An Indictment against a County Treasurer for Embezzlement of public funds must allege a settlement of his accounts by the county court, and a failure by him to pay over the amount found due. State v. Govan, 48 Ark. 76; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 267.

An indictment against a county treasurer for an alleged defalcation, in failing to pay over certain moneys to his successor in office, under the statute in relation thereto, 2 R. S. 1876, p. 450, must charge that at the expiration of such officer's term there remained in his hands, either actually or constructively, a sum of money received by him by virtue of his office, which, upon proper demand, after his term had expired, he fraudulently failed or refused to account for and pay over to his successor in office. But such statute does not require any officer named therein to account to his successor until the expiration of his term. State v. Hebel, 72 Ind. 361.

Tax-Collector. — Maryland Statute. — An indictment under the Maryland Act of 1872, c. 329, which provides that any collector shall, when there is no fixed date for the payment of taxes collected by him to the State treasurer, "neglect to pay the same for the space of six months," he shall be liable to punishment, is sufficient, if he alleges that the collector failed to pay moneys into the treasury for the space of "six months after he had collected and received" the same. State v. Nicholson, 67 Md. 1; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 556; 3 Atl. Rep. 817. Nor is it necessary to aver that the taxes collected were levied by the county commissioners, or that the taxes were placed in the hands of the defendant for collection; these averments being implied in the averment that he was collector and had collected a specified sum on account of taxes. Id. And under the provision of the statute that upon payment of the money for which the collector is in default, he shall be charged, the collector must plead such payment as a defence, and the indictment need not aver that the money is still detained. Id.

10. In Embezzlement from Mails.—In an indictment it is not necessary to give a particular description of a letter charged to have been secreted and embezzled by a postmaster, or other person in the postal service, nor particularly to describe bank-notes, or other articles, alleged to have been enclosed in and stolen with the letters.<sup>1</sup> But if either the letter or the articles it

1. United States v. Lancaster, 2 McL. C. C. 431; United States v. Patterson, 6 McL. C. C. 466. See United States v. Martin, 2 McL. C. C. 256; United States v. Jenther, 13 Blatchf. C. C. 335; United States v. Okie, 5 Blatchf. C. C. 516; United States v. Clark, Crabbe (U. S. D. C.), 584.

In an indictment under the act of March 3, 1825 (4 Stat. 102), for embezzling a letter containing a bank-note, it is not necessary to state the particular office held by the accused, nor to allege the note to have been of an incorporated bank, or of any value. United States v. Clark, Crabbe (U. S. D. C.), 584.

Sufficient Allegation.—Charging Offence in Words of Statute.—It is sufficient to allege that the letter came into the hands of the postmaster, in the words of the statute of March 3, 1825 (4 Stat. 102), without showing where it was mailed, or on what route it was conveyed. United States v. Lancaster, 2 McL. C. C. 431.

In an indictment for unlawfully abstracting from the mail a letter containing bank-notes, it is sufficient to allege that the letter was put into the post-office to be conveyed by post, and came into the possession of the defendant as a driver of a mail-stage. United States v. Martin, 2 McL. C. C. 256.

Sufficiency of indictments against persons in the postal service for embezzling, destroying, and stealing from letters. United States v. Jenther, 13 Blatchf. C. C. 335; United States v. Okie, 5 Blatchf. C. C. 516; United States v. Golding, 2 Cr. C. C. 212; United States v. Laws, 2 Low. C. C. 115.

Insufficient Allegation.—An indictment under Rev. Stat. sect. 5467 against an employee in a post-office for stealing money from a letter, which does not aver that the letter was one intended to be conveyed by mail, or that it had been deposited in any post-office, or was in the charge of the defendant, or that it came into his possession in the regular course of his official duty is bad. United States v. Winter, 13 Blatchf. C. C. 333. To same effect under act of March 3, 1825, sect. 21 (4 Stat. 102), United States v. Foye, 1 Curt. C. C. 364. But see, under act of April 30, 1810, sec. 18 (2 Stat. 597), United States v. Golding, 2 Cr. C. C. 212.

Charging Several Distinct Acts as One Count.—Where a statute made it an offence to “secrete, embezzle, or destroy” any letter, etc., a count in an indictment on such statute, alleging that the defendant did “secrete and embezzle” is good. Generally, when a statute makes one or more distinct acts connected with the same transaction indictable, they may be charged as one act. United States v. Sander, 6 McL. C. C. 598.

Charging Distinct Offences.—Where several letters were embezzled from the post-office by the same person, the several offences of stealing may be charged in the separate counts of the same indictment; and if separate indictments are found, the court may order them consolidated. The court will protect the prisoner from being prejudiced in his defence by joinder of offences, and if satisfied that the prisoner was so prejudiced, a new trial will be granted. United States v. Brent, 17 Int. Rev. Rec. 53.

Stealing Matter not Lawfully Mailable.—The fact that an article contained in a letter in course of transmission is not lawfully “mailable matter” is no defence to an indictment for stealing it, under the act of July 1, 1864, sect. 12 (13 Stat. 337). United States v. Randall, Deady (U. S. D. C.), 524.

Letter-Carrier embezzling Letter.—An indictment against a letter-carrier for embezzling a letter need not negative in terms that the letter had been delivered to the true owner. If it was fully delivered so as to be beyond the purview of the postal law before the acts charged against defendant were committed. This is a matter of affirmative defence to be shown by him. United States v. Jenther, 13 Blatchf. C. C. 335.

Dead-letter Clerk.—In an indictment, under section 12 of act July 1, 1864, for embezzling and destroying a letter containing money which had come into defendant's hands as dead-letter clerk in a post-office, an averment that the letter was intended to be conveyed by post is sufficient, without designating the place to which it was to be conveyed. United States v. Okie, 5 Blatchf. C. C. 516.

In such an indictment an averment that the letter was intended to be conveyed by post, without fixing the termini of the conveyance, followed by an averment that the letter was addressed and directed to a man at Philadelphia, does not charge that the letter was intended to be conveyed to that city. United States v. Okie, 5 Blatchf. C. C. 516.

contained be particularly described in the indictment, they must be proved as laid.<sup>1</sup>

In an indictment for embezzlement from the mails the official character of the accused should be alleged; but it will be sufficient to charge "that the defendant was a person employed in one of the departments of the post-office establishment of the United States."<sup>2</sup> It is not necessary that the particular office held by the accused be stated.<sup>3</sup> The indictment should also set out the ownership of the letter embezzled, and of the bank-notes or other articles it contained, must allege that it was the property of some person,<sup>4</sup> except in cases of the embezzlement of dead letters from the dead-letter office, when no averment as to the ownership is necessary.<sup>5</sup>

XXI. The Venue and Jurisdiction. — 1. Venue. — An indictment for embezzlement may be laid either in the county in which the money or property was received, or in the county into which it has been taken, or where the prisoner disowned having received the same.<sup>6</sup> It is not essential that the venue of the offence be

1. United States v. Lancaster, 2 McL. C. C. 431.

2. United States v. Patterson, 6 McL. C. C. 466.

3. United States v. Clark, Crabbe (U. S. D. C.), 584.

Descriptive Words are Surplusage. — "Carrier." — In an indictment for stealing from the mails, the defendant being charged as "carrier," held, that the word "carrier" should be considered descriptive of his person, and as surplusage. United States v. Burroughs, 3 McL. C. C. 405; s. c., 2 West. L. J. 119.

4. United States v. Cummins (Pa.), 3 Pittsb. L. J. 405. Compare United States v. Bangh, 4 Hughes, C. C., 501; s. c., 1 Fed. Rep. 784.

Allegation as to Ownership. — Where A. deposited certain bank-notes with C., to be forwarded to a bank, with certain other notes on the same bank, owned by C., and all the notes were stolen from the mail, held, that they might be laid in the indictment as the property of C. United States v. Burroughs, 3 McL. C. C. 405; s. c., 2 West. L. J. 119.

5. United States v. Okie, 5 Blatchf. C. C. 516.

6. See Beaty v. State, 82 Ind. 228; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; People v. Murphy, 51 Cal. 376; Brown v. State, 23 Tex. App. 214; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; 4 S. W. Rep. 588; State v. Small, 26 Kans. 209; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759; Rex v. Hobson, R. & R. C. C. 56; s. c., 1 East P. C. Add. xxiv; 2 Leach, C. C., 975; Rex v. Taylor, 3 B. & P. 596; Reg. v. Murdock, 2 Den. C. C. 298; s. c., 5 Cox C. C. 360; T. & M. 604; 21 L. J. M. C. 22; 16 Jur. 19; Reg. v.

Treadgold, 39 L. T. 291; Reg. v. Rogers, L. R. 3 Q. B. Div. 28; 47 L. J. M. C. 11; 37 L. T. 473; 26 W. R. 61; 14 Cox C. C. 22.

Embezzlement, like theft, may be prosecuted in any county through or into which the property was transported by the accused; and the fact of transportation may, like any other fact, be proved by circumstantial evidence. Brown v. State, 23 Tex. App. 214; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; 4 S. W. Rep. 588.

Where Case triable. — If a person in one county is intrusted by another with personal property, to be returned to the owner, and afterwards takes it to another county, and there embezzles it, he cannot be tried for the crime in the county where he received it, unless he had conceived the intent of committing the crime when he received it. People v. Murphy, 51 Cal. 376.

Embezzlement by Bailee. — Demand in County where received the Property. — Where an accused charged with embezzlement of a gelding had such gelding delivered to him as bailee, in Sedgwick County, and thereafter fraudulently removed the animal, for the purpose of applying it to his own use, from Sedgwick to Sumner County, and traded off the same in that county, and then, upon demand in Sedgwick County, refused to return the animal to the person entitled thereto, in accordance with the terms of the bailment, and falsely represented and stated that the animal had strayed away from him, held, the offence of embezzlement was complete in Sedgwick County, and the accused properly tried and convicted in that county. State v. Small, 26 Kans. 209; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759.

laid in the body of the indictment; when the indictment is otherwise sufficiently drawn, if the venue is on the margin, it is sufficiently alleged.<sup>1</sup>

2. Jurisdiction.—A State court has jurisdiction of a case of alleged embezzlement where the offence was committed in whole or in part in that State,<sup>2</sup> except in those cases where the United

Embezzlement by Servant.—Property received in one County, Demand in Another.

—If a servant receives money for his master in the county of A., and being called upon to account for it in the county of B., there denies the receipt of it, he may be indicted for the embezzlement in the latter county. Rex v. Taylor, 3 B. & P. 596.

Appellant's principal lived in B. County, whence he directed his business throughout the State, and in that county employed appellant as travelling agent. Appellant sold goods in R. County, and received the money for same in the said R. County. Thence he returned to B. County, and, in liquidating with his principal, his embezzlement of the money he received in R. County was disclosed. Held, that at common law, and without reference to our code, the proper court of B. County had jurisdiction of the offence, inasmuch as the code, if it does not provide for such jurisdiction, does not exclude it. Brown v. State, 23 Tex. App. 214; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; 4 S. W. Rep. 588.

Same.—A Clerk, whose duty it was to remit at once to his employers, collected by him as their clerk, collected at York, on the 18th of April, a sum of money as such clerk, but never remitted any portion of it. On the 19th and 20th of April he wrote and posted from places in Yorkshire to his employers in Middlesex, letters making no mention of the money so collected; and on 21st of April he wrote and posted at Doncaster, in Yorkshire, to his employers in Middlesex, a letter which was then intended to make them believe that he had not then in fact collected the money in question. These letters were duly received by the employers in Middlesex. Held, that the receipt of the letter of the 21st of April in Middlesex was sufficient to give jurisdiction to try the prisoner in Middlesex. Reg. v. Rogers, 3 Q. B. Div. 28; s. c., 47 L. J. M. C. 11; 37 L. T. 473, 26 W. R. 61; 14 Cox C. C. 22.

Embezzlement by Travelling Salesman.

—A prisoner, who was employed as a travelling salesman by a tradesman living at Nottingham, received two sums of money for his master in the county of Derbyshire, and, having appropriated them to his own use, neglected to return and account to his master for the money, as it was his duty to do; and having been, about two months after the receipt of the money, met by his master in Nottingham, and on being asked by him respecting the two sums of money, said he was sorry for what he had done—that he had spent the money. Held, that there was evidence to go to the jury of an embezzlement in Nottingham, and that the prisoner was rightly tried there. Reg. v. Murdock, 2 Den. C. C. 298; s. c., 5 Cox, C. C., 360; T. & M. 604; 21 L. J. M. C. 22; 16 Jur. 19.

It was his duty as a commercial traveller to remit daily to his employers, who resided in London, the moneys which he collected, without reduction. He, on the 1st and 2d of March, 1878, collected at Newark two sums of money, which he did not remit or account for till the first week in April, when one of his employers went to Grantham, where the prisoner resided, saw him and taxed him with receiving moneys and not accounting to them for them. The prisoner then and there handed to his employer a list of moneys he had collected and not accounted for, including the above two sums. There was no evidence that the prisoner returned to Grantham on either of the days or at what time of the respective days, he received the two sums of money. He was indicted and convicted at the borough of Grantham Quarter Sessions for embezzling the above two sums of money. Held, that the conviction was bad, as there was no evidence of any embezzlement within the borough of Grantham. Reg. v. Treadgold, 39 L. T. 291.

1. State v. Arnold (Mo.), 7 West. Rep. 283; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 261; 2 S. W. Rep. 269.

2. See Ex parte Hedley, 31 Cal. 108; State v. Haskell, 33 Me. 127.

Jurisdiction exists at common law. See State v. Ellis, 3 Conn. 186; Ferrill v. Com., 1 Duv. (Ky.) 153; Myers v. People, 26 Ill. 173; State v. Bennett, 14 Iowa, 479; State v. Underwood, 49 Me. 181; Cummings v. State, 1 Har. & J. (Md.) 340; Com. v. Andrews, 2 Mass. 14; Com. v. Holder, 75 Mass. (9 Gray) 7; Watson v. State, 36 Miss. 593; State v. Williams, 35 Mo. 229; People v. Williams, 24 Mich. 156; State v. Newman, 9 Nev. 48; State v. Brown, 1 Hayw. (N. C.) 100; Stanley v. State, 24 Ohio St. 166; Hamilton v. State, 11 Ohio, 435; State v. Johnson, 2 Oreg. 115. Compare State v. Reonnals, 14 La. An. 276; People v. Gardner, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 747; People v. Schenck, 2 (Johns. N. Y.)

States courts have exclusive jurisdiction, such as embezzlement by the cashier or other officer or servant of a national bank.<sup>1</sup> And it is held that in cases to which the jurisdiction of the State courts might extend, in the absence of any action by Congress, where Congress does assume jurisdiction, its control then becomes paramount and exclusive.<sup>2</sup>

XXII. Defences.—Pleas in Bar.—The general rules as to defences in criminal prosecutions apply to a prosecution for embezzlement.<sup>3</sup> Any defence which excuses or justifies the use or conversion will be a sufficient defence. Thus, where the defendant was authorized to use the money he cannot be convicted of embezzlement;<sup>4</sup> 479; State v. La Blanche, 2 Brown (Mich.), 8; Simmons v. Com. 5 Bin, (Pa.) 617.

Offence committed partly in one State, and partly in Another.—Where an agent of a company in California embezzled its money by drawing a check in another State, in his official capacity, in favor of his broker, who obtained the money in California, and converted it to his principal's use, it was held that the California courts have jurisdiction of the offence, the agent having been arrested here. Ex parte Hedley, 31 Cal. 108.

Under Maine Rev. Stat. ch. 156, sec. 7, if a person to whom property is intrusted in Maine, to be by him carried for hire, and delivered in another State, shall, before such delivery, fraudulently convert the same to his own use, the offence is punishable in Maine, whether the act of conversion be in that State or another. State v. Haskell, 33 Me. 127.

1. See Com. ex rel. Torrey v. Ketner, 92 Pa. St. 372; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 692; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 227; People v. Fonda (Mich.), 8 Cr. L. Mag. 281, 828; Com. v. Tenney, 97 Mass. 50.

Exclusive Jurisdiction of Federal Courts.—The embezzlement of the funds of a national bank being an offence over which the Federal courts have jurisdiction, any prosecution thereof by the State courts is in violation of U. S. Rev. St. sec. 711; People v. Fonda (Mich.), 8 Cr. L. Mag. 281, 828.

The offence of fraudulent conversion, by an officer or person in the employment of a bank, incorporated under the laws of the United States and located in Massachusetts, of property of individuals deposited in such bank, is not punishable under any existing law of the United States, and the courts of the commonwealth have jurisdiction thereof under Gen. Stat. ch. 161, sec. 39; Com. v. Tenney, 97 Mass. 50.

Person employed in United-States Mint.—The act of Congress of 1825, making it a crime for any person employed in the United-States mint to embezzle any of the metals used in coining, or in the process of being coined, does not apply to a clerk or servant employed in the mint who has nothing to do with those articles in relation to coinage. If he feloniously takes the money of the Government after it is coined and set apart for use, the common law or local statutes, as administered by the State courts, gives authority for the punishment of such clerk or servant when, from his employment, he is not brought within the act of Congress. Com. v. Hutchinson, 2 Pars. Sel. Cas. (Pa.) 384.

Discharge on Habeas Corpus.—Where a person is being prosecuted in a court for a matter which is not an indictable offence by the law of Pennsylvania, or is one over which the court below has no jurisdiction, the Supreme Court will discharge such person on habeas corpus. Com. ex rel. Torrey v. Ketner, 92 Pa. St. 372; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 692; 1 Cr. L. Mag. 227.

2. The Moses Taylor, 71 U. S. (4 Wall.) 411; bk. 18, L. ed. 397; Ex parte Bridges, 2 Woods C. C. 428; Ex parte Houghton, 7 Fed. Rep. 657; Brown v. United States, 14 Am. Law Reg. (N. S.) 566; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 17 U. S. (4 Wheat.) 139; bk. 4, L. ed. 529; Prigg v. Com., 41 U. S. (16 Pet.) 539; bk. 10, L. ed. 1060; Martin v. Hunter, 14 U. S. (1 Wheat.) 304; bk. 4, L. ed. 97; Houston v. Moore, 18 U. S. (5 Wheat.) 1; bk. 5, L. ed. 19; State v. Pike, 15 N. H. 83; State v. Adams, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 146; Com. v. Fuller, 49 Mass. (8 Metc.) 313; Com. v. Tenney, 97 Mass. 50; Com. v. Felton, 101 Mass. 204; People v. Kelly, 38 Cal. 145; 3 Story Const. Law. 623.

3. See, for a full discussion of this subject, 4 Am. & Eng. Encyc. of L. 729, tit. "Criminal Procedure."

4. On trial of the accused for embezzlement of money intrusted to him by the prosecutrix, he introduced evidence to prove that the prosecutrix authorized him to use it, and he asked the court to instruct the jury to acquit him if they believed from the evidence that he was so authorized. Held, that the refusal of the in-but any defence which falls short of showing authority, that is excusing or justifying the use or conversion, must fail.<sup>1</sup>

Pleas in abatement and pleas in bar in prosecutions for embezzlement are regulated by the general rules governing these subjects.<sup>2</sup>

XXIII. Bill of Particulars.—If a prisoner does not know the specific acts of embezzlement intended to be charged against him, he should apply to the prosecutor for a particular of the charges; and, if it is refused, the judge will, on motion supported by proper affidavits, grant an order for such particular to be given, and postpone the trial if necessary. Such particular ought at least to state the persons from whom money is alleged to have been received.<sup>3</sup>

XXIV. The Trial.—1. Practice.—The conduct of a trial for embezzlement is governed by the general rules regulating criminal struction was error. Henderson v. State, 1 Tex. App. 432.

1. Thus, where in defence to an indictment for embezzlement of cotton, alleged to belong to a national bank, it was urged that the national banking law disables such banks from owning personal property or taking mortgages or liens thereon, and therefore the alleged ownership was an impossibility, incapable of proof, it was held that the doctrine of ultra vires cannot thus avail as a defence in cases of theft, embezzlement, and the like. Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528.

Conclusive Presumptions and Estoppels have no place in the criminal law in establishing the body of the crime charged; and a defendant in a criminal prosecution is not estopped from proving the actual fact in dispute, notwithstanding admissions or confessions may have been made to the contrary. State v. Hutchinson, 60 Iowa, 478; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 612; 15 N. W. Rep. 298.

But where a county treasurer, is prosecuted for embezzlement of county funds, he may, in order to establish a defence that the embezzlement in fact occurred more than three years previous to the finding of the indictment, impeach the previous settlements made by him, and show that in such settlements, the certificates of deposit and other vouchers produced by him were false, and that the amounts of cash represented thereby were not to his credit in the banks at the time of such settlements. State v. Hutchinson, 60 Iowa, 478; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 612; 15 N. W. Rep. 298, distinguishing Boone Co. v. Jones, 58 Iowa, 373; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 612; 2 N. W. Rep. 987, and Webster Co. v. Hutchinson, 60 Iowa, 721; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 612; 9 N. W. Rep. 901.

2. See 4 Am. & Eng. Encyc. of L. 780, passim.

Prosecution of County Treasurer.—A defendant in a prosecution for embezzlement of county funds while acting as treasurer will not be permitted to impeach his own settlements, in order to show that the bar of limitations has run against the prosecution for the offence. State v. Hutchinson, 60 Iowa, 478; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 612; 15 N. W. Rep. 298.

Pleading Settlement in Bar.—When money is embezzled, the owner has a right to settle as for a debt upon an implied contract; and such settlement is no bar to a criminal prosecution. Fagnan v. Knox, 66 N. Y. 526.

Plea of Former Acquittal.—Where by statute a defendant under a charge of theft cannot be convicted of embezzlement, a conviction of embezzlement under such a charge is not a good plea in bar of a second prosecution charging him with embezzlement. Simco v. State, 9 Tex. App. 338; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 27.

Plea to Jurisdiction—Value of Property Embezzled.—The fact that, in an indictment for embezzlement or larceny, the value of the property is alleged to be a sum exceeding the jurisdiction of the inferior court, does not prevent a plea of former acquittal therein from being a good bar thereto, if the value did not in fact exceed the sum named in the statute defining the jurisdiction. Com. v. Bosworth, 113 Mass. 200.

3. Rex v. Hodgson, 3 C. & P. 422; Rex v. Bootyman, 5 C. & P. 300.

In New Jersey, however, a motion for a bill of particulars is rarely granted in the criminal practice of that State; and where a defendant has had ample time to go over his books, which are to prove his embezzlement, and to prepare his case for trial, the motion for a bill of particulars will be denied. State v. Miller (N. J.), 3 N. J. L. J. 381; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 113.

procedure generally, which has already been fully treated in this series.<sup>1</sup>

2. Charge to Jury.—In a prosecution for embezzlement, where no felony is made out, the defendant is entitled to have the benefit of defects in the proof by an instruction that, on the evidence, the defendant is entitled to an acquittal.<sup>2</sup> An instruction as to what constitutes the offence and fraudulent intent, given substantially in the language of the statute, is not error.<sup>3</sup>

3. Evidence.<sup>4</sup>—a. Presumptions.—Burden of Proof.—Where a person is charged with the duty of receiving public moneys, in a prosecution for embezzlement of such money, if it be shown that the amount was actually paid, it will be presumed that it was paid in money.<sup>5</sup> But the burden of proof is on the person making the charge of embezzlement to sustain it. It is not incumbent on the other party to show what has become of the money, even though it be traced to his hands.<sup>6</sup>

b. Of Venue.—Proof that the defendant received the money or property in question from his employer in the county named in the indictment is, in the first instance, sufficient proof of venue, in embezzlement, in the absence of evidence from defendant

1. See 4 Am. & Eng. Encycl. of L. 840, passim.

On the trial of an indictment charging a bookkeeper, as "clerk, servant, or agent," with embezzling the money of his employer on Sept. 1, the Government put in evidence the books of the employer containing entries by the defendant from Oct. 1, of the same year, to Feb. 6 of the next year; also evidence of admissions by the defendant, in regard to the false entries of said Feb. 2 and 6, to the effect that he took seventy-five dollars on Feb. 2, and three hundred dollars on Feb. 6; but there was no evidence that he took money on any of the previous dates, except what appeared upon the books as introduced. The judge ruled, as requested by the defendant, that the evidence presented by the books would not in itself amount to an embezzlement, or alone warrant a conviction. The Government was then allowed to elect and rely upon the transaction of Feb. 6 as the principal embezzlement, and that of Feb. 2 as evidence of the intent with which that act was done. Held, that the defendant had no ground of exception. Com. v. Bennett, 118 Mass. 443.

2. People v. Parkhurst, 49 Mich. 22; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759; 12 N. W. Rep. 894.

3. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 10 West Coast Rep. 181; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 796; 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

Upon a trial for embezzlement, an instruction as to what constitutes embezzlement, and another relating to the question of fraudulent intent in the offence, both in substance containing the provisions of sections 506 and 508 of the Penal Code, were proper to be given by the court to the jury for their information. People v. Treadwell, 69 Cal. 226; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 796.

Instruction as to Formation of Intent.—Where the jury had been instructed as to what was necessary to constitute embezzlement, and that in order to convict the accused the offence must have been committed in the county laid as the venue, instructions directing the jury to inquire as to the county in which the accused formed the criminal intent, disconnected from acts designed to carry such intent into execution, were immaterial and calculated to mislead, and were therefore properly refused. Gravatt v. State, 25 Ohio St. 162; s. c., 3 Cent. L. J. 392.

4. The general rules of evidence applicable in criminal proceedings generally apply to cases of prosecutions for embezzlement. For a full discussion of this subject see tit. "Criminal Procedure," XV., 4 Am. & Eng. Encycl. of L. 842, passim.

5. Thus a county treasurer is, under the law, chargeable as with money to the amount of all taxes paid to him, although he may receive payment in certain orders. The amount so charged to him, and upon trial proved to have been paid, is presumed, prima facie, to have been received in money; and it is for the defendant, if he would overcome this presumption, to present proof of the manner of payment. State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 763.

6. Thomas v. Dunaway, 30 Ill. 373.

that he carried the money into another county, in the course of his duty and before any unlawful conversion of it.<sup>1</sup>

c. Documentary Evidence. — (1) Transcripts from Public Offices. — Written Statements, etc. — In a prosecution for embezzlement, transcripts from official records, required by law to be kept by the officer from periodical report of defendant as a public officer, and the like, are admissible in evidence; but where such records are made up by hearsay they are not competent.<sup>2</sup> And it has been held that the written indorsement of a county treasurer officially as such county treasurer, upon a certificate of settlement had between him and the county auditor, pursuant to law, made at the time of the settlement, and acknowledging its correctness, is competent evidence against him as an admission of the truth of the matters stated in the certificate. When such certificate of settlement is properly admitted in evidence to prove the facts therein stated, the basis upon which the settlement was made may also be shown as part of the res gestæ.<sup>3</sup>

(2) Books of Account; Receipts, etc. — In a prosecution for embezzlement against an officer, servant, or agent, entries in books of account made by the defendant, or under his direction, and receipts given by him, are competent evidence,<sup>4</sup> where such

1. State v. New, 22 Minn. 76.

2. See Shivers v. State, 53 Ga. 149; State v. Ring, 28 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 763; Bork v. People, 16 Hun (N.Y.), 476; United States v. Adams, 2 Dak. 305; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 823; 9 N. W. Rep. 718; United States v. Forsythe, 6 McL. C. C. 584.

Transcripts from Treasurer's Office. — By the sub-treasury law a duly certified transcript from the treasury is made competent and prima facie evidence of embezzlement; but where its items were made up by hearsay, they are not admissible. United States v. Forsythe, 6 McL. C. C. 584.

Prosecution of City Treasurer. — On trial for an indictment against a city treasurer for embezzlement, tax-rolls placed in his hands for collection, and receipts given by him therefor, held not to be admissible in evidence, without evidence that he had received the money thereby authorized to be collected. Bork v. People, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 476.

The Stub Duplicates of Tax-Receipts, made by a county treasurer, as required by law, are evidence of the receipt of the tax presented thereby, although they have never been returned by him to the auditor, as he is required to do. State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 763.

Upon the Trial of a Tax-Collector for Embezzlement, transcripts from the books of the comptroller-general and treasurer of the State, certified under sect. 3816 of the Georgia Code, are admissible in evidence to show a failure on the part of such defendant to pay over the taxes collected by him. Shivers v. State, 53 Ga. 149.

The Semi-annual Statement of Moneys in the County Treasury, required by statute to be made by county treasurers, and shown to have been executed by defendant, is competent evidence of the amount of money in his hands, although the amount of money therein expressed is only indicated by figures, without other index of denomination than the separating of the two right-hand figures in a column from the others by a perpendicular line. State v. Ring, 29 Minn. 78; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 763.

Transcripts of Quarterly Account. — Upon the trial of an indictment of a postmaster for embezzlement of public moneys, transcripts of the defendant's quarterly accounts to the department, accompanying vouchers of settlement by auditors for post-office department, statements of defendant's account from books and proceedings of the treasury department, order appointing person to make demand for the balance due, and return thereon, properly certified, held, properly admitted in evidence. United States v. Adams (Dak.), 2 Cr. L. Mag. 823; 9 N. W. Rep. 718.

3. State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 183; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 260.

4. See Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98; Com. v. Smith, 129 Mass. 104; Humphrey v. People, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 393; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 262.

In Prosecution of Officer of Savings Bank. — At the trial of an indictment against the entry was made, or receipt given, before the finding of the indictment, otherwise it will be inadmissible.<sup>1</sup>

d. Parol Evidence.—Where there has been a written agreement between master and servant, in which the nature of the service is defined, on an indictment for embezzlement against the latter, parol evidence of the service is not admissible, unless notice has been given to produce the agreement.<sup>2</sup> But in the trial of an alleged bailee for embezzlement of his bailor's property, there being no agreement in writing, it is competent for the State to prove the terms of the contract of bailment, by virtue of which the property went into the defendant's possession.<sup>3</sup>

Where the prosecution is by a company employing the accused, its incorporation may be proved by parol.<sup>4</sup>

e. Confessions, Admissions, and Statements made by the Accused.—On the trial of an indictment for embezzlement, the confessions of the accused, when voluntarily made and properly corroborated, are admissible in evidence against him;<sup>5</sup> and an admission by the treasurer of a savings bank, for embezzlement of its property, the defendant has no ground of exception to the admission in evidence of a book of records of the bank, kept by the defendant as its secretary, containing the record of a vote authorizing the treasurer of the bank to release and discharge the mortgages of the bank, which the Government contends has been fraudulently altered by striking out the word "and" before "discharge," and by adding the words "and assign" before the words "the mortgages." Com. v. Pratt, 137 Mass. 98.

The plaintiff in error was indicted and convicted of embezzling the funds of a savings bank of which he was the secretary. Upon the trial, the books of the bank, which were kept by the accused, and in his handwriting, and also a book kept by the treasurer of the bank, showing the amounts paid over to the bank by the accused, were received in evidence. Held, that as the treasurer's book was kept in the regular course of business of the bank, and as the accused was an officer thereof, it was admissible against the accused to show the amounts received. Humphrey v. People, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 393; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 262.

Check as Evidence.—At the trial of an indictment for embezzlement, there was evidence that the defendant, an agent, was authorized to receive payment for goods sold by him, and was entitled to receive commissions on such sales; that he received a check, deposited it to his credit, and sent his own check for the amount to his employer, which was not paid. Held, that the check sent by him was admissible in evidence, and that evidence was also admissible to show that his commissions were always paid by his employer, and that he was not authorized to deduct them from the proceeds of sales. Com. v. Smith, 129 Mass. 104.

1. Thus, in a prosecution for embezzlement, the receipt of the prosecuting witness for the amount alleged to have been embezzled, given subsequently to the indictment and arrest of the prisoner, is not admissible in evidence. State v. Thompson, 32 La. An. 796; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 706.

2. Re Clapton, 3 Cox, C. C., 126.

3. Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528. See Hoyt v. State, 50 Ga. 313.

4. State v. Cheek, 63 Mo. 364.

5. See Com. v. Sawtelle, 141 Mass. 140; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

A Confession which relates to a Course of Conduct pursued by the defendant during his whole employment in the service of a person whose property he is alleged to have embezzled, necessarily has reference to and characterizes all the acts and matters charged to have been done within that time. Com. v. Sawtelle, 141 Mass. 140; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

What does not amount to a Confession.—The confessions of a party, not made in open court or on examination before a magistrate, but to an individual, uncorroborated by circumstances, and without proof aliunde that a crime has been committed, will not justify a conviction. People v. Hennessey, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 147.

Thus at the trial of an indictment for embezzlement containing several counts, where there was evidence that, in a conversation between the defendant and his employer, the defendant admitted that he had been taking money from his employer "all defendant of a material fact, in support of the indictment against him, is competent evidence at the trial, when the fact itself and the admission both occurred before the commission of the offence charged, and neither involves any criminal intent or conduct, or any acknowledgment of guilt on his part.<sup>1</sup>

f. Declarations of Owner of Property.—The declarations of the owner of the property are admissible to show non-consent to the conversion of the property;<sup>2</sup> but the declarations of the person alleged to be the owner of the property, though deceased, are inadmissible to disprove his title.<sup>3</sup>

g. Proof of Service.—In a prosecution for embezzlement, the service or relation of trust and confidence must be shown.<sup>4</sup> along, ever since he began to work for him, and could not say how much he had taken," but no allusion was made to the specific matters charged in the indictment by name, words, or figures, and the judge instructed the jury that they should not consider this confession, unless it had reference to some of the specific matters charged in the indictment. Held, that the defendant had no ground of exception. Com. v. Sawtelle, 141 Mass. 140; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 762.

1. State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 183; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 259. See Com. v. Sawtelle, 141 Mass. 140; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 726; State v. Carrick, 16 Nev. 120; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 883.

In a conversation subsequent to the Alleged Acts of Embezzlement, there was evidence that the defendant admitted that he had been taking money from his employer ever since he began to work for him, but could not tell how much he had taken; no allusion being made to the specific matter charged in the indictment in words or figures. Held, that the instruction of the presiding judge that the jury should not consider the confession, unless it had reference to some of the specific matters charged in the indictment, was sufficiently favorable to the defendant. Com. v. Sawtelle, 141 Mass. 140; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 762; 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355.

Statement made by County Treasurer.—A statement made by the defendant, a county treasurer, to two of his bondsmen that he was short in his accounts, at a time when he was not charged with crime, or under arrest, when no proceedings were threatened, or any promise made to shield him from a criminal prosecution, held, admissible in evidence. State v. Carrick, 16 Nev. 120; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 883.

2. It is competent to prove by the employer that he never authorized the defendant to do the acts complained of, and that the defendant has never accounted or reported to him for the property charged to have been embezzled; and such evidence may be given before the proving of the secreting or converting to his own use, by the defendant, of the property in question. Coats v. People, 4 Park. Cr. Cas. (N. Y.) 662.

In the Prosecution of a Clerk or Servant for Embezzlement of the goods of his master, the testimony of the master is not exclusively primary evidence of his non-consent to the conversion, but it may be inferred by the jury from the circumstances of the transaction. State v. Porter, 26 Mo. 201.

3. Com. v. Sanders, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 394.

4. See Calkins v. State, 18 Ohio St. 366; Rex v. Beacall, 1 C. & P. 312; Rex v. Wellings, 1 C. & P. 454, 457; Reg. v. Welch, 1 Den. C. C. 199; s. c., 2 C. & K. 296.

An Allegation that the Accused was a Clerk of an Incorporated Railroad Company is sufficiently established by proof that the company so employing him assumed to be, and notoriously exercised the franchise of, a railroad corporation. Calkins v. State, 18 Ohio St. 366.

If a Person receives Money as Steward of another, proof of that circumstance is sufficient evidence of his being a steward to support an indictment for embezzling such money. Rex v. Beacall, 1 C. & P. 312, and Rex v. Wellings, 1 C. & P. 454, 457.

A Person indicted as Servant to Guardians of the Poor of a Parish.—Held, that the admission by him contained in the condition of his bond for the performance of his duties as treasurer, coupled with an act of Parliament specifying those duties, was sufficient evidence of the nature of his appointment; viz., that he was to receive money for the guardians, and account to them for his receipts. Reg. v. Welch, 1 Den. C. C. 199; s. c., 2 C. & K. 296.

Embezzlement of Wheat.—An allegation that one fraudulently embezzled and converted to his own use wheat, the property of a certain corporation then under his care by virtue of his employment as clerk thereof, held, to be established by proof that the wheat could not leave the warehouse except upon a "shipping order" issued by him to the foreman, and that he clandestinely set afloat in the market fictitious "grain orders," and thereupon issued "shipping orders," and appropriated the proceeds to his own use. Calkins v. State, 18 Ohio St. 366.

h. To show Intent. — Similar Acts.<sup>1</sup> — In a prosecution for embezzlement, evidence as to similar transactions of the same general character is admissible to show criminal intent, although it does not in terms refer to the specific matters charged in the indictment.<sup>2</sup>

i. Of Time. — Days stated. — Formerly it was necessary to show the exact day on which the crime was committed, and the exact property that was taken;<sup>3</sup> the tendency, however, in many of the States is to relax the old rule.<sup>4</sup>

1. As to evidence of intent generally see 4 Am. & Eng. Encycl. of L. 858, passim.

2. Com. v. Sawtelle, 141 Mass. 140; s. c., 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 726. See People v. Gray, 66 Cal. 271; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289; 4 West Coast Rep. 69. Com. v. Shepard, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 575, Reg. v. Richardson, 8 Cox, C. C., 448; s. c., 2 F. & F. 343; Reg. v. Proud, 9 Cox, C. C., 22, s. c., L. & C. 97; 31 L. J. M. C. 71; 5 L. T. 331; 10 W. R. 62; Reg. v. Williams, 7 C. & P. 338.

Evidence of Another Act of Embezzlement, committed by a defendant in the same week with one charged against him in an indictment, is competent only for the purpose of proving a guilty intent on his part in the commission of the principal act, and the admission of such evidence in a case which, after a verdict of guilty, is reported by a judge of the Superior Court for the determination of this court, is sufficient ground for a new trial, if it does not appear that it was limited to its legitimate effect by instructions to the jury. Com. v. Shepard, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 575.

In a Prosecution for Embezzlement of Public Moneys, evidence of similar acts of embezzlement is admissible for the purpose of showing a guilty knowledge and a criminal intent on the part of the accused. The court should instruct the jury as to the purpose of such evidence, if so requested by the defence; but, in the absence of such a request, a failure to so instruct is not ground for a reversal. People v. Gray, 66 Cal. 271; s. c., 4 West Coast Rep. 69; 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289.

A Member of a Friendly Society was employed to receive weekly payments made by other members, and appropriated certain sums thus paid. Upon the trial, the books of the society were tendered generally in evidence, and received, although it was objected that the evidence ought to be confined to the entries forming the subject of the indictment. Held, that they were rightly admitted. Reg. v. Proud, 9 Cox, C. C., 22; s. c., L. & C. 97; 31 L. J. M. C. 71; 5 L. T. 331; 10 W. R. 62.

Embezzlement by Clerk. — Sums of Money unaccounted for. — An indictment charged the prisoner with having embezzled three sums of twenty-one pounds, the moneys of his employers, he being a clerk or servant. Evidence was given of the embezzlement of these sums; and it was then proposed to give evidence of other sums not charged in the indictment, but which had also been embezzled, to show that if it should be contended the sums charged in the indictment were subjects of a mistake in keeping the accounts, there being many other sums unaccounted for, admitting evidence of such sums would assist the jury in determining what value was to be attached to the suggestion. Held, that such evidence was admissible. Reg. v. Richardson, 8 Cox, C. C., 448; s. c., 2 F. & F. 343.

When Evidence of Like Transaction not admissible. — On the trial of an indictment under the national banking act of 1864, June 3 (13 Stat. at L. 116), for embezzling, abstracting, and wilfully misapplying the moneys and funds of a bank, of which defendant was cashier, with intent to injure and defraud the bank, the defendant cannot, in order to disprove the averment of intent, prove that his taking the funds of the bank and using them in stock speculations were known to the president and some of the directors of the bank and were sanctioned by them, and that his dealings therewith were intended for the account and benefit of the bank, and were believed by him to have been sanctioned by the president and some of the directors, although there was no resolution of the board of directors authorizing or sanctioning them. United States v. Taintor, 11 Blatchf. C. C. 374.

3. See Rex v. Williams, 6 Car. & P. 626; Rex v. Tyers, R. & R. 402.

4. See Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629; Com.

j. To show obtaining of Money, and Application of Proceeds. — A prosecution for embezzlement will fail, unless it is shown that the defendant received the property, and converted it or the proceeds to his own use.<sup>1</sup>

k. Of Demand and Refusal. — Demand and refusal, in case of embezzlement, are prima facie evidence of embezzlement,<sup>2</sup> and not necessary to conviction;<sup>3</sup> and where it appears that a demand would have been ineffectual, proof of such demand is not necessary.<sup>4</sup>

l. Of Custom. — Evidence of custom may be admissible to disprove intent; but a custom by which a broker on receipt of an

v. O'Malley, 97 Mass. 584; Green v. Tanner, 49 Mass. (8 Metc.) 417.

Under Compiled Laws of Michigan (1871), § 7811, providing that, in a prosecution for embezzlement, evidence may be given of "any such embezzlement committed within six months next after the time stated in the indictment." Held, that under this statute an information for embezzlement cannot be sustained by evidence of acts committed before the time stated. People v. Donald, 48 Mich. 491; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 459; 3 Cr. L. Mag. 759; 12 N. W. Rep. 660.

Whether confined to Days stated. — A. was indicted for embezzlement as being clerk and a servant of B., C., and D. A first count laid the offence, to wit, on the 18th of August, 1861. A second count laid a second act of embezzlement within six months, to wit, on the 1st of September. A third count laid a third act of embezzlement, also within six months, under the same indictment. A. was a member of and secretary to a properly certified friendly society, of which B., C., and D. were the trustees, and had from time to time received, though not in his capacity of secretary, funds belonging to the society, some part of which he had appropriated. Held, that the evidence of the acts of embezzlement need not be confined to the days stated under the videlicits. Reg. v. Proud, 9 Cox, C. C., 22; L. & C. 97; 31 L. J. M. C. 71; 5 L. T. 331; 10 W. R. 62.

1. See Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1; State v. Dodson, 72 Mo. 283; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 120; United States v. Forsythe, 6 McL. C. C. 584; Reg. v. Keena, L. R. 1 C. C. 113; s. c., 37 L. J. M. C. 43; 17 L. T. 515; 16 W. R. 375, 11 Cox, C. C., 123.

Evidence. — Where the expenditures of a collector's office are greater than his receipts, in order to convict him of embezzlement under the sub-treasury law, it must be clearly shown that he has used the money, or refused to pay it over, contrary to the law. An offer to deposit a certain sum to secure the Government for any balance found due from him is no evidence of indebtment. United States v. Forsythe, 6 McL. C. C. 584.

In Embezzlement of Horses. — Under an indictment charging embezzlement of horses, it is error to admit evidence, or to instruct the jury in regard to embezzlement of the proceeds of the horses. State v. Dodson, 72 Mo. 283; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 120.

An Indictment for Embezzlement of a Note taken to be discounted at a bank for another person, held to be sustained by proof that the accused got it discounted on his own account, and the proceeds passed to his own credit, although he afterwards paid part of the proceeds on the other's account at the other's request. Com. v. Butterick, 100 Mass. 1.

In Embezzlement of Check. — An indictment for embezzling money under 24 & 25 Vict. c. s. 68, is not proved by showing merely that the prisoner embezzled a check, without evidence that he has converted the check into money. Reg. v. Keena, 1 L. R. C. C. 113; s. c., 37 L. J. M. C. 43; 17 L. T. 515; 16 W. R. 375; 11 Cox, C. C., 123.

2. United States v. Adams, 2 Dak. 305; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 823; 9 N. W. Rep. 718; State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 198; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 260.

3. Hollingsworth v. State, 111 Ind. 289; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; 12 N. E. Rep. 490; State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 191; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 260.

In Prosecution of County Treasurer. — On the trial of an indictment against defendant for the embezzlement of public moneys received by him as county treasurer, his refusal to pay over the moneys shown so to have been received, on the demand of claiming to be his successor in office, on the sole grounds that no such moneys were in his possession or under his control, may be shown as evidence upon the question of embezzlement, without proof that the party making the demand was rightfully entitled to the office. State v. Mims, 191; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 260.

4. United States v. Adams, 2 Dak. 305; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 448; 2 Cr. L. Mag. 823.

order "to buy stocks on margin," assumes the contract himself, instead of making it with a third person, is illegal<sup>1</sup> and not admissible in a prosecution against the broker for the embezzlement of the money deposited with him for the purchase.<sup>2</sup>

m. Of Value.—The value of property stolen or embezzled must be proved in order to disclose whether the offence be a felony or a misdemeanor;<sup>3</sup> but the prosecution need not prove that the exact amount, as laid in the information, was embezzled;<sup>4</sup> for proof that a part of the amount charged was embezzled is sufficient to sustain the indictment or information.<sup>5</sup> n. Of Defendant's Financial Condition.—Evidence of the pecuniary condition of a defendant charged with embezzlement, immediately prior to the time and during the time the offence is alleged to have been committed, is competent.<sup>6</sup>

o. Competency.—Relevancy.—The general rules as to competency and relevancy are applicable in prosecutions under indictments for embezzlement.<sup>7</sup>

1. See Farnsworth v. Hemmer, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 494; Com. v. Cooper, 130 Mass. 285.

2. Com. v. Cooper, 130 Mass. 285.

3. Gerard v. State, 10 Tex. App. 690; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 424. See United States v. Nott, 1 McL. C. C. 499; Harris v. State, 21 Tex. App. 478; State v. Mook, 40 Ohio St. 588; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616; 11 Week. L. Bull. (Sup.) 157.

Where an indictment charged the embezzlement of numerous articles of property, and alleged an aggregate value thereof, it was competent for the State to prove the embezzlement of any one or more of the articles of property charged, and the value of the same, although the value of each article of property was not separately stated in the indictment. State v. Mook, 40 Ohio, 588; s. c., 5 Cr. L. Mag. 616; 11 Week. L. Bull. (Sup.) 157.

The indictment having been read to the jury as a Pleading in the Case, became a record in the case, of which the court was authorized to take judicial notice, and which sufficed to inform the jury that the alleged aggregate value of the goods embezzled exceeded twenty dollars, and to admit evidence that the articles were of the value charged, and amounted in the aggregate to a sum exceeding twenty dollars. Harris v. State, 21 Tex. App. 478.

Bank-Notes.—Some evidence is necessary, of the genuineness and value of bank-notes said to have been stolen out of a letter. United States v. Nott, 1 McL. C. C. 499.

4. People v. Gray, 23 Cal. 125; s. c., 4 West Coast Rep. 69; 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289.

5. People v. Gray, 23 Cal. 125; s. c., 4 West Coast Rep. 69; 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289.

See Gerard v. State, 10 Tex. App. 690; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 424.

Evidence as to Value of Goods embezzled.

—Testimony of a witness that goods embezzled "were about the value alleged [in the indictment], amounting to more than twenty dollars," is sufficient legal proof of the value of the goods embezzled, although the indictment was not formally read in evidence to the jury, but only as part of the pleadings in the case. As a pleading, it is part of the record of which the court will take judicial notice on appeal. Harris v. State, 21 Tex. App. 478; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 398, 2 S. W. Rep. 830.

Evidence must support Indictment—

Variance Fatal.—But where the indictment alleges the embezzlement of "one hundred and fifty-five dollars, then and there of the value of one hundred and fifty-five dollars, current money of the United States of America," it was incumbent on the State, in order to warrant a conviction for a felony, to prove that the embezzled property was, as alleged in the indictment, current money of the United States of America, and of value, at least, to the extent of twenty dollars. Gerard v. State, 10 Tex. App. 690; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 424.

6. United States v. Camp (Idaho), 8 Cr. L. Mag. 355; 7 Cr. L. Mag. 796; 10 Pac. Rep. 226; 10 West Coast Rep. 127.

7. See this subject discussed in 4 Am. & Eng. Encycl. of L. 842, 846 et seq.

In Embezzlement of Mortgage Deed.—No exception lies to the admission of evidence to prove that the defendant, in an indictment for embezzling a deed of mortgage which was executed by him, and which, after its delivery, but before it had been recorded, was intrusted to him by a p. Sufficiency.—The amount of proof required to establish the offence of embezzlement is similar in kind and quantity to that required to establish any other offence of a like grade. The commission of the offence must be clearly established, and the act brought within the statute.<sup>1</sup> person with whom it had been deposited, for the purpose of being carried to the mortgagee, has executed and put upon record a deed of the premises since the mortgage came into his possession, although it was not introduced until after the evidence had been put in. Com. v. Concanon, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 502.

False Entries in Bank-Books—Knowledge of Directors—Intent.—In a prosecution for embezzlement, the accused offered to show that other officers of the bank were in complicity with him, and that he made the false entries in the books with their knowledge and approval, for the purpose of deceiving the bank department at Albany. Held, that the evidence was properly rejected. Humphrey v. People, 18 Hun (N. Y.), 393; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 262.

In Embezzlement of State Moneys.—On the trial of an indictment against defendant for an embezzlement of State moneys received by him as a county treasurer, under the provisions of Gen. Stat. ch. 38, proof of the execution of the bond, required by sect. 39 of that chapter, is not essential to maintain the charge. State v. Mims, 26 Minn. 183; s. c., 3 Cr. L. Mag. 259.

In Embezzlement by Post-office Official.—The power to fix the salary and allowance for a post-office is in the postal department; and, on an indictment for embezzlement, evidence that amounts in excess of such allowances were expended by the postmaster for the expenses of the office, is not competent; nor can the postmaster shield himself from criminal liability for unlawful use of the money by the claim that, as to such extra expenditures, his accounts are "unsettled." United States v. Adams, 2 Dak. 305; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 823; 9 N. W. Rep. 718.

1. See Com. v. O'Malley, 97 Mass. 584; Com. v. Shepard, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 575; Perry v. State, 22 Tex. App. 19; Golden v. State, 22 Tex. App. 1; Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528; United States v. Crow, 1 Bond, C. C., 51; Reg. v. King, 12 Cox, C. C., 73; s. c., 24 L. T. 670; Reg. v. Moah, 7 Cox, C. C., 60; s. c., Dears. C. C. 626; 25 L. J. M. C. 66; 2 Jur. N. S. 213; Reg. v. Wolstenholme, 11 Cox, C. C., 313; Rex v. Joiner, 7 C. & P. 33; Rex v. Grove, 7 C. & P. 635; s. c., 1 M. C. C. 447; Reg. v. Aston, 2 Cox, C. C., 234; s. c., 2 C. & K. 413.

In Prosecution of Officer of Bank.—An indictment under Mass. Stat. 1846, ch. 171, sect. 1, against an officer of a bank for fraudulently taking and secreting particular and designated moneys with intent to convert the same to his own use, is not supported by proof that he received the moneys in question as a deposit in the bank, from a depositor, and entered the same in the name of the depositor in an account-book kept for that purpose, and that he afterwards fraudulently erased the entry, altered the footing of the column so as to make it appear that no such sum had been received, and entered the amount so deposited upon the account of the depositor in the ledger as having been received two months before the time of its actual receipt, if there is also evidence from which it may reasonably be inferred that the erasure, alteration, and false entry were not made until several days after the receipt of the money, and the making of the original and true entry thereof, during which time there is no proof of any fraudulent intent on his part respecting it, or that it was not put, kept, and used with other funds of the bank. Com. v. Shepard, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 575.

Against Secretary of a Company.—To support a charge of embezzlement against the secretary of a company, whose duty it was to receive moneys and pay wages, etc., out of the moneys, and to account for the balance, proof must be given of a specific appropriation of a particular sum of money. Reg. v. Wolstenholme, 11 Cox, C. C., 313.

In Stealing Letters from Mails.—What evidence is necessary and sufficient to warrant a conviction for stealing letters from the United-States mail, explained in a charge to a jury, with reference to the facts of a particular case. United States v. Crow, 1 Bond, C. C., 51.

Against Banking Clerk.—It was the duty of a banking clerk to receive money, and to pay it either into a box or a till, of each of which he kept the key, and to make entries of his receipts in a book, the balance of each evening being the first item with which he debited himself in the book the next morning. On the morning of the day in question, he had thus debited himself with £1,762; and, on being called on in the evening by his employer to produce his money, he threw himself on his employer's mercy, and said he was about £900 short. Upon an indictment for embezzling, held, that this was evidence upon which the jury might convict, although no

Thus it suffices to prove a qualified ownership in the alleged owner of the property appropriated by the defendant, and that such owner had the right to the possession and control of it.<sup>1</sup>

3. Witnesses. — Experts. — Credibility. — The rules of law relating to witnesses, experts, credibility, and admissibility are applicable to trials for embezzlement.<sup>2</sup> evidence was given of the persons from whom the money was received, or of the coin of which it consisted. Rex v. Grove, 7 C. & P. 635; s. c., 1 M. C. C. 447.

Against Receiver of Taxes. — Upon the trial of an indictment under 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 4, s. 1, charging that A., being intrusted by virtue of his employment in the public service with the receipt and custody of certain money, the property of the Government, did fraudulently and feloniously apply the same to his own use, it was proved that A., being a receiver of taxes, had kept in his own hands a balance very much exceeding that which he was allowed to retain; and, upon being asked whether he was prepared to pay over that balance or any part of it, he replied that he was not. He was then reminded that there was a balance of excise duties alone of about £300 standing against him from the previous Monday, which was a receipt-day at a particular place in his district. He then produced £255, and said that was all he had in the world, and that the rest he had spent in an unfortunate speculation. Held, that there was evidence of the receipt of a particular sum of £300 by virtue of his employment, and of a misapplication by him of a part of it, and that therefore the conviction was right, even if evidence of a general deficiency on a balance of accounts would not alone have supported such an indictment. Reg. v. Moah, 7 Cox, C. C., 60; s. c., Dears. C. C. 626; 25 L. J. M. C. 66; 2 Jur. N. S. 213.

Failure to pay over Money. — A conductor of a tramway car was charged with embezzling 3s. It was proved that on a certain journey there were fifteen threepenny fares and twenty-five twopenny fares, and the conductor was seen to give tickets to each fare, and to receive money from each, but what sum did not appear. He made out a way-bill for the journey, debiting himself with only nine threepenny fares and sixteen twopenny fares. The mode of accounting was to deliver the way-bills for each journey to a clerk, and to hand him all the money received during each day on the following morning. The prisoner's money should have been £3. 1s. 9d. according to his way-bill for the day, but he paid in only £3. or 8d. Held, that there was sufficient evidence of the receipt of 7s. 11d., the total amount of fares of the particular journey, and of the embezzlement of 3s.

part thereof. Reg. v. King, 12 Cox, C. C., 73; s. c., 24 L. T. 670.

Upon an indictment for embezzling 6s., it was proved that the prisoner was a drayman in the employment of the prosecutors, who were brewers, and that his duty was to sell porter at a certain fixed price only; viz., 9s. 6d. per dozen. He sold some at 6s., but did not receive the money for some time. In the interval the customer had informed the prosecutors of the transaction, and they told him to pay the money when the prisoner came for it. The prisoner accordingly received it, and did not account for it. Held, that the evidence was sufficient to support the indictment. Reg. v. Aston, 2 Cox, C. C., 234; s. c., 2 C. & K. 413.

What Insufficient Evidence. — A charge of embezzlement is not sustained by proof that the accused asked a girl to lend him a small sum of money, that she thereupon handed him a larger amount to count in her presence, and that he refused to return her any, and fled with the whole; such a conversion, animo furandi, would be larceny. Com. v. O'Malley, 97 Mass. 584.

It is not enough to prove that a clerk has received a sum of money, and not entered it in his book, unless there is also evidence that he was denied the receipt of it, or the like. Rex v. Jones, 7 C. & P. 833.

1. Leonard v. State, 7 Tex. App. 417; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 528.

2. Where the evidence of the defendant's embezzlement was circumstantial, and his mother testified to an improbable story to account for large sums of money found deposited in banks in her name, held, that her testimony might be rejected by the court, as against common experience and observation. New York, etc., Ferry Co. v. Moore, 102 N. Y. 667.

Upon the trial of a county treasurer for embezzlement, evidence of expert accountants, who have examined the books and papers of the office, as to the totals of the amounts received and paid out by him, as shown by such books and records, is admissible. Hollingsworth v. State, 111 Ind. 289; s. c., 9 Cr. L. Mag. 973; 12 N. E. Rep. 490.

Upon a charge against a postmaster of abstracting a letter from the mails, all the postmasters and clerks through whose hands the letter would pass in the regular course of business should be examined as

4. Variance. — A variance in the evidence is fatal in a prosecution for embezzlement.<sup>1</sup>

5. Verdict. — a. In General. — One of the counts for embezzlement being good, the verdict means that the defendant is guilty of the offence as charged therein.<sup>2</sup> And upon an indictment containing various counts for embezzlement of different grades, and others for larceny, a verdict "guilty of embezzlement" is equivalent to an acquittal of the larcenies charged, and a bar to any subsequent prosecution.<sup>3</sup>

But on an indictment for embezzlement the jury cannot find the accused guilty of a breach of trust.<sup>4</sup>

b. Conviction of, under an Indictment for Theft. — Embezzlement being a purely statutory crime, — a sort of statutory theft, — witnesses. And this is especially necessary when the accused proves a good character. United States v. Whitaker, 6 McL. C. C. 342.

1. See Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 272; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611; 2 Ala. L. J. 63; Carter v. State, 53 Ga. 326; State v. Hinckley, 38 Me. 21; Com. v. Merrifield, 45 Mass. (4 Metc.) 468; Rex v. White, 4 C. & P. 46.

Thus an indictment which charges a larceny or embezzlement of the printed sheets of a certain publication is not supported by evidence that those sheets were delivered to the defendant by the owner to be bound, and that the defendant, after he had folded, stitched, bound, and trimmed them, embezzled and fraudulently converted them to his own use. In such case, the indictment should charge a larceny or embezzlement of books. Com. v. Merrifield, 45 Mass. (4 Metc.) 468.

Variance as to Owner of Property. — Where the indictment alleges that the defendant embezzled property which came to his possession as the agent of S., while the proof shows that the property was placed in his possession by one T., who was the bailee of S., to be delivered to S., the variance is fatal, unless it is shown that S. ratified or recognized the appointment. Washington v. State, 72 Ala. 272; s. c., 6 Cr. L. Mag. 289; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 611; 2 Ala. L. J. 63.

An indictment for embezzlement and larceny charged the money, funds, and securities embezzled and stolen, as the goods and personal property of A., B., and C., partners under the name of A., B., & Co. The proof showed that before the alleged offence the firm was composed of A., B., C., and D., doing business under the same name, the latter being a special partner, and that the articles of partnership were a matter of record; but that before the alleged offence, D. retired from the firm, although the dissolution of the firm of the four was not made a matter of record, and notice given, as required by law. Held, that there was no variance, as, after D. retired, the property in fact belonged only to A., B., and C. Ker v. People, 110 Ill. 629.

Variance as to Person delivering. — An indictment, stating that B. was possessed of the property and delivered it to H., who embezzled it, is supported by proof that B. delivered it to an agent of H., who delivered it to B. State v. Hinckley, 38 Me. 21.

Variance as to Object of Delivery. — An allegation in an indictment that A. placed valuable securities in the hands of B., "with an order in writing to invest the proceeds in the Government funds," is not supported by proof of an order in writing, directing B. to invest the proceeds in the Government funds, in case of any unexpected accident happening to A. Rex v. White, 4 C. & P. 46.

Where an indictment charges that the defendant was intrusted by the owner with certain melons, "for the purpose of applying the same to the sole use and benefit of the said owner," a verdict of guilty is not sustained by proof that the melons were delivered to the defendant for the purpose of selling the same and bringing the money to the owner, less what he charged for his services. Carter v. State, 53 Ga. 326.

2. Guenther v. The People, 24 N. Y. 100.

3. Guenther v. The people, 24 N. Y. 100.

In 1876, defendant Myers was indicted under sect. 35, art. 2, ch. 42, Wag. Stat., for embezzling certain United-States bonds, charged to have been received by him as agent of one Zumbro, and was convicted at February term, 1878, of Newton Circuit Court, to which venue had been awarded. It appears from the record that only eleven jurors were present when the verdict of the jury was received by the court. Held, this was a fatal defect, and the judgment must be reversed. State v. Myers, 68 Mo. 266; s. c., 7 Cent. L. J. 499. See State v. Mansfield, 41 Mo. 470.

4. State v. Keonnals, 14 La. An. 276.

EMBEZZLEMENT—EMBLEMETS—EMBRACERY.

there cannot be a conviction of embezzlement under a common-law indictment for larceny.<sup>1</sup>

6. The Punishment.—The offence of embezzlement being purely statutory, there is no punishment for its commission other than that provided for in the statute creating the offence. Under most, if not all, the statutes, the punishment is inflicted without regard to the amount of money taken or the value of the property converted.<sup>2</sup>

But it would seem that the court has no power to sentence the prisoner to pay a fine, and “stand committed,” until the fine imposed is paid.<sup>3</sup>

EMBLEMETS.—See CROPS; LANDLORD AND TENANT.

EMBRACERY.—1. Definition.—Embracery is a species of maintenance,<sup>4</sup> and consists in an attempt by either party to a suit, or by a stranger, to corrupt or influence or instruct a juror or jury,<sup>5</sup> to incline him or them to favor one side rather than the other by gifts or promises, threats or persuasions, words or letters, except by opening or enforcing the evidence by arguments at the trial, whether the jurors give a verdict or not, and whether the verdict given be true or false.<sup>6</sup> It is an offence at common law as well as

1. Texas Rule.—In Texas, however, there is an exception to this rule, for their Revised Code of Criminal Procedure, article 714 authorizes a conviction for embezzlement under an indictment for theft. But a retroactive operation cannot be allowed to this new provision; and, therefore, in a trial for theft alleged to have been committed before the Revised Codes took effect, it was held error to instruct the jury to convict for embezzlement if they found that the possession of the converted property was lawfully acquired by the accused. Simco v. State, 8 Tex. App. 406; s. c., 2 Cr. L. Mag. 113. See Whitworth v. State, 11 Tex. App. 414; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 119; Huntsman v. State, 12 Tex. App. 619; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 284.

The Texas court has held that this article is not violative of the constitutional guaranty that a party “shall have the right to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him.” Whitworth v. State, 11 Tex. App. 414; s. c., 4 Cr. L. Mag. 119.

Verdict.—The court say in Whitworth v. State, 11 Tex. App. 414; 4 Cr. L. Mag. 119, that the Revised Code of Procedure, art. 714, not only re-enacts the provision of the original code, which made the offence of theft to include all unlawful acquisition of personal property punishable by the Penal Code, but so enlarges the offence of theft as to include within it the offence of swindling and embezzlement. Therefore, under an ordinary indictment for theft, a conviction may be had for embezzlement, provided the offence was committed since the Revised Codes took effect.

2. See People v. Leehey (Cal.), 1 Cr. L. Mag. 124; 4 Pac. Coast L. J. 75.

3. Mims v. State, 26 Minn. 494; s. c., 3 Cr. L. J. 260.

4. Harris, Cr. L. 95; Roscoe's Cr. Ev. 721; 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th ed.) 360.

5. Solicitations by Juror.—In State v. Sales, 2 Nev. 268, the defendant, while acting as a juror in a civil action, approached one of the attorneys in the case, and offered to secure and return a verdict for the defendant in consideration of the payment of the sum of a hundred dollars. There was no charge that he was corruptly influenced, or that he attempted in any way to corruptly influence his fellows; and the court held that the facts set forth did not constitute an offence. It is intimated, however, that, if properly indicted, the defendant might have been punished for soliciting and inciting another to commit the crime of embracery if it could be shown that he did so. The court say, “If the defendant solicited the attorney to employ money to corruptly influence the jury, he is indictable for inciting or soliciting another to commit the crime of embracery.”

6. Grannis v. Branden, 5 Day (Conn.), 260, 274; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 143; State v. Sales, 2 Nev. 268; Gibbs v. Dewey, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 503; Anon. Dy. 48 a, pl. 19; Hussey v. Cooke, Hob. 294; Herbert v. Shaw, 11 Mod. 111, 118; 1 v. F., Noy, 102; Snell v. Timbrill, 1 Str. 643; 1 Hawk. P. C. ch. 85, under the statute,<sup>1</sup> and is punishable by fine and imprisonment.<sup>2</sup>

The bare giving of money to another to be distributed among jurors is an offence of the nature of embracery, whether any of it be afterwards actually distributed or not;<sup>3</sup> and so also is the giving of money to a juror after verdict without any preceding contract, however it has been said to be otherwise of the payment of a juror's travelling expenses.<sup>4</sup>

An attempt to influence or corrupt a jury or juror is a consummated act of embracery, although the attempt is frustrated, and the object thwarted.<sup>5</sup>

Analogous to the offence of embracery is that of persuading, or endeavoring to persuade, a witness not to attend and give evidence, and is an offence punishable with fine and imprisonment. It is not material that the attempt was unsuccessful.<sup>6</sup> sect. 1; Co. Litt. 157 b, 369, 369 a; 4 Bl. Com. 140.

Bribery. — Embracery is a special kind of bribery. Harris, Cr. L. 95.

Who may be guilty of the offence. — The offence of embracery may be committed by a party to an action or a stranger. Gibbs v. Dewey, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 503. And a jurymen himself may be guilty of the offence by corruptly endeavoring to bring over his fellows to his side. Harris, Cr. L. 95; 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th ed.) 360. Or a witness may be guilty of the crime. A witness has no right to deliver a paper to a jury. Gibbs v. Dewey, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 503.

It is said that the law will not suffer a mere stranger so much as to labor a juror to appear and act according to his conscience, but that it seems clear that a person who may justify any other act of maintenance — see 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th ed.) 352 et seq. — may safely labor a juror to appear and give a verdict according to his conscience, but that no other person is justified in intermeddling so far. 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th ed.) 360.

Hawkins says, that, "The law so abhors all corruptions of this kind that it prohibits every thing which has the least tendency to it, what spacious pretence soever it may be covered with; and, therefore, it will not suffer a mere stranger so much as to labor a juror to appear and act according to his conscience." Hawk. P. C. (Curw. ed.) 466, sec. 2.

1. Gibbs v. Dewey, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 503; 1 Hawk. P. C. 85; Co. Litt. 369; 4 Bl. Com. 140.

Attempt to commit. — It was held in the case of State v. Sales, 2 Nev. 268, that an attempt to commit embracery is not a crime at common law. See 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th ed.) 360; 2 Bish. Cr. L. (7th ed.) § 386 et seq.

2. Gibbs v. Dewey, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 503; 1 Hawk. P. C. ch. 85, sect. 1; Harris, Cr. L. 95; Roscoe's Cr. Ev. 721; 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th ed.) 361.

3. 1 Russ. on Cr. 360.

4. Hawk. P. C. 85, sect. 3; Roscoe's Cr. Ev. 721.

Compensation to Juror. — The compensation of the jury in criminal as well as in civil cases is now regulated by statute in this country; and, as Bishop says, "consequently there is no room for suffering any other compensation to be given by the parties." 2 Bish. Cr. L. (7th ed.) sect. 386.

5. State v. Sales, 2 Nev. 268; 2 Bish. Cr. L. (7th ed.) sect. 389; 2 Bish. Cr. Proc. (3d ed.) sect. 347.

6. Rex v. Lawley, 2 Str. 904; 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th ed.) 361; Hawk. P. C. b. 1, c. 21, s. 15; Roscoe's Cr. Ev. 721.

What constitutes Embracery. — Requisites of Indictment. — An allegation that C. B. unlawfully furnished money to one A. R., for the use of P. E., to absent himself from the circuit court of the county at a certain term to which he, P. E., had been summoned as a witness against said C. B. in a trial on an indictment against C. B. then pending in said court, whereby the said C. B. attempted to obstruct and impede the administration of justice, the court held fatally defective in not alleging that A. R. paid, or offered to pay, said money to the witness P. E. to induce him to absent himself as such witness at said time from the circuit court; that without this, the act done by the defendant is not of such a nature as to constitute an attempt to commit the offence mentioned in the indictment, and, therefore, on motion of the defendant, the court ought to have quashed this indictment. State v. Baller, 26 W. Va. 90; s. c., 7 Cr. L. Mag. 796; s. c., 53 Am. Rep. 66.

EMIGRANT—EMIGRATION—EMINENT DOMAIN.

EMIGRANT.—An emigrant is one who quits his country for any lawful reason, with a design to settle elsewhere, and takes his family and property with him. (Vattel, b. I, c. 19, s. 224.<sup>1</sup>)

EMIGRATION.<sup>2</sup>—See EXPATRIATION.

EMINENT DOMAIN.<sup>3</sup>

- I. Definition, 511.
- II. Nature of the Right, 512.
  1. In whom vested, 512.
  2. Conditions of Exercise, 515.
- III. Delegation of Power, 517.
  1. Generally, 517.
  2. To Municipal Corporations, 518.
  3. To Railroad Companies, 518.
  4. To other Corporate Bodies, 520.
  5. To Individuals, 521.
  6. Method of Delegation, 521.
  7. Conditions Precedent, 521.
  8. Construction of Grant, 522.
  9. When Delegated Power exhausted, 523.
- IV. Public Uses, 524.
  1. General Requisites, 524.
  2. Streets, Parks, and Highways, 524.
  3. Railroads, Depots, Branches, etc., 524.
  4. Telegraph and Telephone Lines, 525.
  5. Wharves, Canals, and Ferries, 525.
  6. Water and Gas Works, 526.
  7. Drains and Sewers, 526.
  8. Mills, 526.
  9. Logging Booms, 527.
  10. Irrigation, 527.
  11. Cemeteries, 528.
  12. Mining, 528.
  13. Private Roads, 529.
  14. Right to change Use, 529.
- V. What may be appropriated, 530.
  1. In General, 530.
  2. Nature and Quality of Interest, 530.
  3. Private Property, 531.
    - a. Land and Appurtenances, 531.
    - b. Materials for Construction, 531.
    - c. Mines and Minerals, 532.
  4. Public Property, 532.
    - a. Public Lands, 532.
    - b. Public Institutions, 533.
  5. Property already devoted to Public Use, 533.
    - a. In General, 533.
    - b. Streets and Highways, 534.
    6. Corporate Property and Franchises, 535.
      - a. Power to authorize Appropriation, 535.
      - b. Uses for which Corporate Property may be taken, 537.
      - c. Railroad Crossings, 537.
    7. Rights in Waters and Water-Courses, 538.
      - a. Riparian Rights, 538.
        - (1) Navigable Waters, 538.
        - (2) Non-navigable Waters, 538.
        - (3) Milldams and Water-Power Privileges, 539.
      - b. Surface Waters, 539.
      - c. Wharves, 540.
    8. Extent of Appropriation, 540.
      - a. Necessity, 540.
      - b. Statutory Limit, 541.
      - c. Part of Tract, 541.
    9. Exemptions, 542.
  - VI. What amounts to taking or injuriously affecting Property, 542.
    1. In General, 542.
    2. Entry for Permanent Occupation, 543.
    3. Seizure for Military Purposes, 544.
    4. Interruption of Use, 544.
    5. Injurious affecting Property, 544.
      - a. Incidental Injuries, 544.
      - b. Premises not taken, 545.
      - c. By granting Rival Franchises, 545.
      - d. Injuries to Business, 546.
      - e. Smoke and Dust, 546.
      - f. Noise and Vibration, 547.
      - g. Obstruction of Light, 547.
      - h. Injury to Residue of Tract, 547.
      - i. Change of Grade, 548.
      - j. Injury to Access, 550.
      - k. Injuries to Crops, 550.
      - l. Danger of Fire, 550.
      - m. Exposure of Property during Construction, 551.
      - n. Injuries to Fences, 551.

1. It seems that a representation made to a physician in the course of negotiations with him looking forward to his employment as the ship's physician, that the ship "will carry emigrant laborers not over forty," is satisfied if no more than forty laboring men are taken, although with their wives and children that number is exceeded. Richards v. Hayward, 2 Man. & G. 574.

2. Emigration is frequently used as synonymous with expatriation; but a distinction is sometimes made in their use, emigration being used to signify a simple removal for the purpose of residence from one country to another; while expatriation signifies, in addition to a removal, a renunciation of allegiance. Argument of Counsel in McIlvaine v. Coxe's Lessee, 2 Cranch. (U. S.) 302; 2 Kent, Com. 44.

3. In the preparation of this title the cases and notes on the subject in the American and English Railroad Cases and the American and English Corporation Cases have largely been made use of.

- o. Injuries from Improper Construction, 552.
  - 6. Imposition of Additional Burden, 552.
    - a. Construction of Railroads in Streets, 552.
      - (1) Where Fee in abutting Land-Owner, 552.
      - (2) Where Fee vested in Public, 553.
      - (3) Railroad Crossings, 554.
    - b. Construction of Horse-Railways in Street, 555.
    - c. Erection of Telegraph-Poles, 556.
    - d. Use of Highways for Gas-Works, etc., 557.
    - e. Other Instances, 557.
  - 7. User of Another's Property, 557.
  - 8. Appropriation, Diversion, and Obstruction of Waters, 557.
    - a. Appropriation, 557.
    - b. Diversion, 558.
    - c. Obstruction, 559.
      - (1) Water-Courses, 559.
      - (2) Of Surface Waters, 559.
    - d. Destruction of Wells and Springs, 562.
  - 9. Temporary User, 562.
    - a. For Surveys, 562.
    - b. To aid Construction, 562.
  - 10. Taxation, 562.
  - 11. Destruction from Public Necessity, 563.
  - 12. Exercise of Governmental and Police Powers, 563.
- VII. Damages, 563.
- 1. Necessity of Provision for, 563.
  - 2. Time of Computation, 564.
  - 3. For Improvements made before Assessment, 567.
  - 4. Measure, 567.
    - a. Where Entire Tract taken, 567.
      - (1) Market Value, 567.
      - (2) Uses to which Land is adapted, 569.
    - b. Where Part of Tract taken, 571.
      - (1) Depreciation in Market Value, 571.
      - (2) Depreciation for Specific Purpose, 573.
      - (3) Injuries affecting Whole Tract, 574.
      - (4) Inconvenience in working Minerals, 577.
      - (5) What is considered a Single Tract, 577.
    - c. Property injuriously affected, 578.
    - d. Property abutting on Street, 579.
    - e. For Running Powers over Another Railroad, 579.
    - f. For Railroad Crossings, 580.
    - g. Limited Estates, 581.
      - (1) Lessee, 581.
      - (2) Life-Tenants, 581.
    - h. Exemplary Damages for Trespass, 581.
    - i. Benefits, 581.
  - 5. Interest on Award, 584.
  - 6. Payment, 585.
    - a. As prerequisite to Entry, 585.
      - (1) Actual Payment, 585.
      - (2) Security for Payment, 586.
      - (3) Judgment, 587.
      - (4) Waiver of Pre-payment, 587.
    - b. To whom payable, 587.
      - (1) Owner in Fee, 587.
      - (2) Vendor and Vendee, 588.
      - (3) Partners and Tenants in Common, 589.
      - (4) Married Woman 'or Right of Dower, 589.
      - (5) Mortgagee, 589.
      - (6) Tenants and Lessees, 590.
      - (7) Tenants for Life, and Remainder-men, 590.
      - (8) Heir or Administrator, 590.
      - (9) Payment into Court, 590.
    - c. Who liable for Damages, 590.
    - d. How made, 591.
    - e. Effect of Payment, 591.
    - f. Protection and Enforcement of Right, 591.
      - (1) By Action at Law, 591.
      - (2) Injunction, 592.
      - (3) Ejectment, 593.
      - (4) Trespass, 594.
      - (5) Mandatory Proceedings, 595.
      - (6) Effect of License to enter, 596.
  - 7. Lien for Damages, 596.
  - 8. Waiver of Damages, 597.
- VIII. Consequential Damages, 597.
- IX. Title and Rights retained, 598.
- 1. Fee, 598.
  - 2. Reversion in Cesser of Public Use, 598.
  - 3. Minerals, and Right to work Same, 599.
- X. Title and Rights acquired, 599.
- 1. Estate acquired, 599.
  - 2. Rights when Fee acquired, 600.
  - 3. Rights when Easement acquired, 600.
- XI. Contracts, 601.
- XII. Transfer of Franchises, 603.
- XIII. Abandonment of Public Use, 603.
- XIV. Procedure, 604.
- 1. How far Statutory Remedy exclusive, 604.
  - 2. Jurisdiction, 606.
  - 3. Commencement of Proceedings, 607.
    - a. Who may commence, 607.
    - b. Notice, 607.
      - (1) Necessity for, 607.
      - (2) Requisites and Sufficiency, 608.
  - 4. Parties, 608.
  - 5. Pleading, 609.
    - a. Petition or Complaint, 609.
      - (1) Necessary Averments, 609.
      - (2) Description of Premises, 610.
      - (3) Joinder of Claims, 611.
    - b. Answers, 611.
    - c. Cross-Petition, 611.
    - d. Amendment, 612.
  - 6. Practice, 612.

7. Jury, 613.
  - a. Right to Jury Trial, 613.
  - b. Selection, Qualification, and Empanelling, 614.
  - c. View, 615.
8. Viewers and Commissioners, 616.
  - a. Appointment and Qualification, 616.
  - b. Powers and Duties, 617.
9. Evidence, 618.
  - a. Competency, 618.
    - (1) In General, 618.
    - (2) Sales of Other Lands, 619.
  - b. Declarations and Admissions, 620.
  - c. Opinion Evidence, 620.
  - d. Documentary Evidence, 622.
  - e. Burden of Proof, 622.
10. Verdict, Award, and Judgment, 622.
  - a. Verdict, 622.
    - (1) Requisites and Validity, 622.
    - (2) Setting aside, 623.
  - b. Award, 624.
    - (1) Form and Requisites, 624.
- (2) Exceptions and Confirmation, 625.
- (3) Conclusiveness and Effect, 626.
- c. Judgment, 627.
  - (1) Entry and Requisites, 627.
  - (2) Conclusiveness and Effect, 627.
- d. Interest, 627.
11. Appeal and Review, 627.
  - a. When Appeal lies, 627.
  - b. Who may appeal, 628.
  - c. Notice of Appeal, 629.
  - d. Entry on Lands pending an Appeal, 629.
    - (1) Security required, 629.
    - (2) Withdrawal of Deposit, 630.
  - e. Practice, 630.
  - f. What considered an Appeal, 630.
  - g. Judgment on Appeal, 631.
  - h. Certiorari, 631.
12. Costs, 632.
13. Limitations, 633.
14. Abandonment, 634.
15. Arbitration, 634.

I. Definition.—Eminent Domain is that sovereign power vested in the people, by which they can, for any public purpose, take possession of the property of any individual upon just compensation paid to him.<sup>1</sup>

1. Warren v. First Division St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 384; Bonaparte v. Camden & Amboy R. R. Co., Baldw. C. C. 205; DeVraigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95; 1 Bouv. Law Dict. (15th ed.) 588.

The Theory of Eminent Domain finds its earliest authoritative expression in the great work of Grotius. He says, "We have elsewhere said that the property of subjects is under the eminent dominion of the State, so that the State, or he who acts for it, may use or even alienate or destroy such property, not only in cases of extreme necessity, in which even private persons have a right over the property of others, but for ends of public utility, to which ends those who founded civil society must be supposed to have intended that private ends should give way. But it is to be observed that when this is done the State is bound to make good the loss to those who lose their property, and to this public purpose those who have suffered the loss must, if needs be, contribute." Whewell's trs., book iii., c. 20, § 7; cf. iii., c. 19, and ii., c. 14, § 7, 8.

Eminent domain, as contemplated by Grotius, is evidently to be exercised for the benefit of the State alone, for the compensation is treated as a charge on the general revenue. The State being thus at once actor and beneficiary in the exercise of this power, it follows that its duty to make compensation is moral rather than legal, for the immunity sovereign from the suit by the subject is generally admitted. 3 Law Quarterly Review, 316.

Nature of Power.—The power to take private property for public uses belongs to every independent government. It is an incident of sovereignty, and requires no constitutional recognition. Beeckman v. The Saratoga & S. R. Co., 3 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 45; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 13; Buffalo & N. Y. R. R. Co. v. Brainard, 9 N. Y. 100; Wier v. The St. Paul, S., & T. F. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155; Baring v. Erdman, 14 Haz. Pa. Reg. 129; United States v. Jones, 109 U. S. 513; bk. 27 L. ed. 1015; Bonaparte v. Camden & Amboy R. R. Co., Baldw. C. C. 205; Jones v. Walker, 2 Paine, C. C. 688; s. c., 8 Op. Att. Gen. 333.

Manner of Exercise.—There is nothing, then, in the term "eminent domain" which implies any restriction as to the manner in which this power of the sovereign to take private property for public uses may be exercised. If there are any restrictions as to the manner of its exercise, they must be found, then, in the constitution; for nothing of less authority than the organic and fundamental law, which lays out the very frame of government, could impose on them. But the constitution contains no such restrictions, except as to the matter of compensation, which is not here important. There is no reason, then, why the legislature, representing the state, may not enact laws by which the eminent domain

II. Nature of the Right. — 1. In Whom vested. — The power of eminent domain is vested in the several States of the Union,<sup>1</sup> and may be exercised by a private corporation. Beekman v. S. & S. R. R. Co., 3 Paige Ch. (N. Y.), 45; Bloodgood v. M. & H. R. R. Co., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 13; Buffalo & N. Y. R. R. Co. v. Brainard, 9 N. Y. 100; Boston W. P. Co. v. Boston & W. R. R. Co., 40 Mass. (23 Pick.) 360.

The supreme court of Minnesota say, in the case of Wier v. St. Paul, S., & T. F. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155, 163, that "there is no reason why the Legislature may not, by a general law, authorize the formation of private corporations for the construction of railroads. Nor is there any greater reason why the Legislature may not, by a general law, provide that any such corporation may for itself select a route upon which to build a railroad, and, having selected it, may proceed to take and obtain land needed for its purposes by an exercise of the power of eminent domain. These propositions follow inevitably from the propositions before established, to wit: that the state possesses the eminent domain, and that the manner of its exercise is, except as to compensation, unrestrained. It is no objection to this conclusion to say that the Legislature cannot do this, because it cannot delegate to another the authority delegated to itself. Its authority is to legislate, to pass laws; and the passage of the general laws spoken of, by virtue of which private corporations are authorized to exercise the eminent domain, is in no sense a delegation of this authority. From the foregoing conclusion it follows that the question as to the manner in which the eminent domain shall be exercised addresses itself to the Legislature as a question of propriety, fitness, expediency, rather than as a question of power."

Authority of the State. — The right of eminent domain, which is possessed by the State as a necessary attribute of sovereignty, is the right to resume the possession of private property for public use. There is nothing in the term which implies any restriction as to the manner in which this power of the sovereign to take private property for public uses may be exercised. If there are any restrictions as to the manner of its exercise they must be found in the Constitution, for nothing of less authority than the organic and fundamental law which lays out the very frame of government could impose them. Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 40; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 716; Weir v. St. Paul, S., & T. F. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155.

The Right of Taking Property for Public Use is exercised by a State, subject to no power vested in the Federal Government. The proprietary right of the United States can in no respect restrict or modify the exercise of this sovereign power by a State. West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12 L. ed. 535; United States v. Railroad Bridge Co., 6 McL. C. C. 517; s. c., 3 Liv. L. Mag. 568; 10 L. Rep. N. S. 630; Backus v. Lebanon, 11 N. H. 19; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 466; Armington v. Barnet, 15 Vt. 745; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 705. See also Alabama & F. R. R. Co. v. Kenney, 39 Ala. 311; Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 59; Baltimore & H. de G. T. Co. v. Union R. Co. of Baltimore, 35 Md. 231; Northern R. R. Co. v. Concord & C. R. R. Co., 27 N. H. 194; Crosby v. Hanover, 36 N. H. 420; Ash v. Cummings, 50 N. H. 613; Adden v. Railroad, 55 N. H. 415. In re N. Y. C. & H. R. R. Co. v. M. G. L. Co., 63 N. Y. 334; State v. S. P. R. R. Co., 24 Tex. 127.

In a Proceeding to condemn Property for Public Use there is nothing in the nature of a contract between the owner and a State, or the corporation which the State authorizes to take the property. If just compensation be made to the owner, his property can then be taken without his consent. Garrison v. N. Y. City, 88 U. S. (21 Wall.) 196; bk. 22 L. ed. 612; Richmond, F., & P. R. R. Co. v. Louisa R. R. Co., 54 U. S. (13 How.) 71; bk. 14 L. ed. 55; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12 L. ed. 535.

Individual Property is exclusive as against individuals, but not as against society. Individual rights must yield to social ones. Patten v. Northern Cent. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 436; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 612.

The Constitution protects property against arbitrary seizure or divestiture, not against seizure or divestiture by legal process, and on compensation made. But a law cannot authorize the taking of private property for any other public use. Bona parte v. Camden & Amboy R. R. Co., Baldw. C. C. 205.

2. Central B. U. P. R. Co. v. Atchison, T., & S. F. R. R. Co., 28 Kan. 453; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 528; Nichols v. Somerset & K. R. R. Co., 43 Me. 356; Eastern R. R. Co. v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 111 Mass. 125; s. c., 15 Am. Rep. 13; Trombley v. Humphrey, 23 Mich. 471; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 94; Leisse v. St. Louis, etc., R. R. Co., 2 Mo. App. 105; People v. Smith, 21 N. Y. 595; Commonwealth v. Erie R. R. Co., 62 Pa. St. 286; s. c., 1 Am. Rep. 399; Alexandria & F. R. R. Co. v. Alexandria & W. R. R. Co., the Legislature cannot by any statute divest the State of its power.<sup>1</sup> By virtue of the delegation to the Federal Government, 75 Va. 780; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 743; 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23; DeVaigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95; Grand Rapids, N., & L. S. R. R. Co. v. Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co., 35 Mich. 265; Chicago, etc., R. R. Co. v. Town of Lake, 71 Ill. 333; New York, etc., R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196; City of Bridgeport v. New York, etc., R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 255; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 63; Evergreen Cemetery Assoc. v. New Haven, 43 Conn. 234; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 643. In re Kerr, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 119; Backus v. Lebanon, 11 N. H. 19. But to authorize the taking of land already actually devoted to a public use, there must be an express statutory authority. In re Boston & A. R. R. Co., 53 N. Y. 574. Thus, in Central City Horse R. Co. v. Fort Clark Horse R. Co., 81 Ill. 523, it was held that a part of the line of one railroad could not be taken by a competing road acting under an ordinance of a city council.

The Power of the State to take Private Property for the Public Use reaches every description of property within its jurisdiction, even when acquired by grant from the State. It is an inherent element of sovereignty; and from the necessity of the case, and the highest considerations of public welfare, it must continue unimpaired in the State. It is impliedly reserved in every grant. It cannot be abridged so as to bind future legislation. The franchise of a corporation is not exempt. As an incorporeal hereditament, it may be taken, in whole or in part, and, with the other property of the corporation, devoted to other or similar public uses. The purposes of government would be so far defeated, if any single owner, corporation, or individual could, in this respect control its action. It belongs exclusively to the Legislature to determine whether the public benefit to be secured is sufficient to warrant the taking; and this is not a judicial question. The necessity may be left to the adjudication of designated officers or tribunals; but when not so delegated it may be declared by the Legislature itself. The right itself may be delegated to corporate bodies, public or private; and when the enjoyment of two public rights would to some extent interfere, it is, in the language of Chief Justice Shaw, "for the Legislature to determine which shall yield, and to what extent, and whether wholly or in part only, to the other; and such question will ordinarily be determined by the Legislature according to their conviction of the greater preponderance of public necessity and convenience." Commonwealth v. Essex Co., 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 239, 247; Boston Water Power Co. v. Boston &

Worcester R. R. Co., 40 Mass. (23 Pick.) 360; Boston & Lowell R. R. Co. v. Salem & Lowell R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1; Central Bridge Co. v. Lowell, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 474; Hingham & Quincy Bridge Co. v. County of Norfolk, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 353, 360; Haverhill Bridge v. County Commissioners, 103 Mass. 120; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 518. See also New York, Housatonic, & Northern R. R. Co. v. Boston, Hartford, & Erie R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196; White River Turnpike Co. v. Vermont Central R. R. Co., 21 Vt. 590; People v. Smith, 21 N. Y. 595, 598; Eastern R. R. Co. v. Boston & M. R., 111 Mass. 125, s. c., 15 Am. Rep. 13.

1. Hyde Park v. Oakwoods Cemetery Association, 119 Ill. 141; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 417.

The Legislature cannot divest the State of its Power of Eminent Domain.—In the case of the Village of Hyde Park v. Oak Woods Cemetery, supra, the court say, "It is claimed that the acts of the Legislature creating the cemetery association, when accepted, and the purchase of the lands under said acts, and the dedication of the same to public use, constituted a contract between the State and the corporators of the association within the provision of section 10 of article 1 of the constitution of the United States, which prohibits legislation impairing the obligation of contracts. If this position was correct, it is plain that any future legislation authorizing the taking of the lands could not be sustained, as the Legislature has no authority to enact a law impairing the obligation of a contract. But the rule invoked has no application to a case of this character. The right of eminent domain is an element of sovereignty, and a contract in restraint of a free exercise of this right is not obligatory on the State, and does not fall within the inhibition of the Constitution of the United States. Cooley, in his work on "Constitutional Limitations" (5th ed., 281, 525), in the discussion of this question, says that any legislative bargain in restraint of the complete, continuous, and repeated exercise of the right of eminent domain is unwarranted and void (see Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 40, 454; Matter of Kerr, 42 Barb. 119; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 16 Vt. 446; s. c., 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12 L. ed. 535), and that provision of the Constitution of the United States which forbids the State violating the obligation of contracts could not be so construed as to render valid and effectual such a bargain, which originally was in excess of proper author-of certain of the sovereign powers vested in a State, the Federal Government has the right to condemn lands for any purpose necessary to the due exercise of the power so delegated;<sup>1</sup> and the exercise of the power so delegated cannot be curtailed, nor the manner prescribed by the State wherein the property is situated.<sup>2</sup> It has been held that the right of eminent domain in a State exists only for its own purposes, and that therefore a statute

ity. See also Railroad Co. v. Railroad Co., 97 Ill. 506; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 531; bk. 12 L. ed. 535. There are cases where the State might bind itself, and where it would be powerless, under the provisions of the Constitution cited, to pass future laws releasing itself from assumed obligations; but this is not one of them. The State had no power to divest itself of the right of eminent domain by any act it might pass which would prevent the exercise of that right in the future, when, in the opinion of the Legislature, a case arose wherein the public interest demanded the exercise of the power. But, while we hold that the State cannot divest itself of the power of eminent domain, it by no means follows that the village of Hyde Park has the right to condemn the lands in question. The necessity or propriety of exercising the right of eminent domain is a political question, one which belongs exclusively with the Legislature to determine. Chicago, R. I., & P. R. v. Town of Lake, 71 Ill. 333. It is a question with which the courts have no concern, as it is not judicial."

1. Dickey v. Maysville W. P. & L. Turnpike Co., 7 Dana (Ky.), 113; Trombley v. Humphrey, 23 Mich. 471; Darlington v. United States, 82 Pa. St. 382; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 766; Kohl v. United States, 91 U. S. (1 Otto) 367; bk. 23 L. ed. 449; New Orleans v. United States, 35 U. S. (10 Pet.) 723; bk. 9 L. ed. 597; McCulloch v. Maryland, 17 U. S. (4 Wheat.) 429; bk. 4 L. ed. 579; United States v. Inlotts, 2 Am. L. Rec. 315, 513, 577; United States v. Oregon R. R. & N. Co., 16 Fed. Rep. 524; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23; Decker v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. R. Co., 1 Interstate Com. Rep. 434; Stockton v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. R. Co., 1 Interstate Com. Rep. 411.

Exercise of Eminent Domain by Federal Government.—It is said in the case of United States v. The Oregon R. & Nav. R. Co., supra, that "the government of the United States has the right of eminent domain, and may exercise it within a State whenever necessary to the exercise of any of the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution; and no question is made but that the construction of this canal and locks is an exercise of such power. In the exercise of this right it is not restrained by any constitutional limitation, except that it is bound to make or provide a just compensation to the owner for the property taken. Kohl v. United States, 91 U. S. (1 Otto) 367; bk. 23 L. ed. 449; Cooley, Con. Lim. 526; Fifth Amendment to the Constitution."

In the earlier cases it was intimated that a proper method of proceeding in such cases was that the State should appropriate the property, and donate it to the general government. In a Massachusetts case the State statute was entitled, "An Act giving the consent of the Commonwealth to the United States for the purchase of additional land in the city of Boston, for the sub-treasury and post-office site." Darlington v. United States, 82 Pa. St. 382; Burt v. Merchant's Ins. Co., 106 Mass. 356; and in Gilmer v. Lime Point, 18 Cal. 229, it is made a query whether the federal government can take and appropriate land within a State for "forts," etc., without the aid or sanction of the State. See also Beddall v. Bryan, 14 Md. 444. In Trombley v. Humphrey, 23 Mich. 471, Cooley, J., delivers an able and interesting opinion, which was subsequently adopted by the United States Supreme Court in Kohl v. United States, 91 U. S. (1 Otto) 367; bk. 25 L. ed. 449. According to these decisions, the proper view of the right of eminent domain seems to be, that it is a right belonging to a sovereignty to take private property for its own proper uses, and not for those of another. Beyond that there exists no necessity, which alone is the foundation of the right. If the United States have the power, it must be complete in itself. It can neither be enlarged nor diminished by a State. Nor can any State prescribe the manner in which it must be exercised. The consent of a State can never be a condition precedent to its enjoyment. Such consent is needed only, if at all, for the transfer of jurisdiction and of the right of exclusive legislation after the land shall have been acquired. Field, J., dissented, however, from this decision. See, also, Darlington v. United States, 82 Pa. St. 382; Jones v. United States, 48 Wis. 385.

2. Great Falls Manuf. Co. v. United States, 16 Ct. of Cl. 160. See also Grant v. United States, 1 Ct. of Cl. 41.

authorizing the condemnation of lands to be turned over to the United States, for a purpose connected with the Federal Government, is unconstitutional and void.<sup>1</sup> On the formation of any Territory into a State, the right of eminent domain immediately passes from the Federal Government to the newly formed State.<sup>2</sup>

2. Conditions of Exercise.—Although the power of eminent domain is a sovereign power vested in a State, it cannot be exercised unconditionally. It can only be exercised where the property taken is taken for public use,<sup>3</sup> and when the property

1. People v. Humphrey, 23 Mich. 471; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 94; Darlington v. United States, 82 Pa. St. 382; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 766; Jones v. United States, 48 Wis. 385. Compare Burt v. Merchants Ins. Co., 106 Mass. 356; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 339.

Exercise of Power by State for Federal Purposes.—However, a different doctrine is held in some of the States. Thus, in Burt v. Merchants Ins. Co., 106 Mass. 356; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 339, the Supreme Court of Massachusetts held that a State Legislature may delegate the right of eminent domain to an agent of the United States for the purpose of obtaining land in such State as a site for a post-office. The Supreme Court of Maryland, in the case of Reddall v. Bryan, 14 Md. 444, held, that under the right of eminent domain the Legislature of that State might authorize a taking of water to supply the City of Washington. And in the case of Gilmer v. Lime Point, 18 Cal. 229, an Act of the Legislature of California authorized the agents of the United States to take certain land for fortifications; and if the owners were unknown, or were incapable of conveying, or refused to convey, the agent of the United States might apply for an appraisement by a jury, and upon tender or payment of the amount of the verdict and costs, the sheriff of the county might convey the land. The validity of the statute was contested, the case was elaborately discussed, and the court held that it was a valid exercise of the power of eminent domain.

2. Swan v. Williams, 2 Mich. 427; Warren v. First Div. St. Paul & P. R. R., 18 Minn. 384; Weber v. Harbor Commrs., 85 U. S. (18 Wall.) 57; bk. 21 L. ed. 798; Doe v. Beebe, 54 U. S. (13 How.) 25; bk. 14 L. ed. 35; Goodtitle v. Kibbe, 50 U. S. (9 How.) 471; bk. 13 L. ed. 220; Pollard v. Hagan, 44 U. S. (3 How.) 212; bk. 11 L. ed. 565; United States v. Railroad Bridge Co., 6 McL. C. C. 517; s. c., 3 Liv. L. Mag. 568; 10 L. Rep. N. S. 630.

3. Chicago & W. Ind. R. R. Co. v. Dunbar, 100 Ill. 110; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 253; Boston & L. R. R. v. Salem & L. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1; Grand Rapids N. & L. S. R. R. Co. v. Van Driele, 24 Mich. 409; Leisse v. St. Louis, etc.,

R. R. Co., 2 Mo. App. 105; Petition of Mt. Washington R. R. Co., 35 N. H. 134; Matter of Hamilton Ave., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 405; Matter of Flatbush Ave., 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 286; Varick v. Smith, 5 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 137; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 417; Edgewood R. R. Co. App., 79 Pa. St. 257; Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co. v. P. W. & K. R. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444; Smith v. Gould, 61 Wis. 31; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 424; Secombe v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 90 U. S. (23 Wall.) 108; bk. 23 L. ed. 67.

Transferring Property of one Citizen to another.—In the case of Varrick v. Smith, 5 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 137; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 417, Chancellor Walworth says, "I had occasion in another case to say that the right of eminent domain did not imply a right, in the sovereign power of the state, to take the property of one citizen and transfer it to another, where the public interest would be in no way promoted by such a transfer; even if a full compensation for such property was awarded the owner thereof. In this opinion I am fully sustained by the decision of the supreme court, in the recent case as to the extension of Albany Street in the city of New York, in the Matter of Albany St., 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 149; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 618. The principles upon which forced sales of private property were compelled by the civil law, for the public good, were certainly as extended as any government can ever claim consistently with the private rights of its citizens. And it is not pretended that, even under the arbitrary government of the Roman emperors, it was lawful or justifiable for the sovereign to take the property of one citizen and give it to another where the public interest was not concerned in such transfer. 1 Domat. Civ. L., b. 1, tit. 2, sect. 13. A recent English writer, who admits the general right of the sovereign power to control or dispose of private property, paying a just compensation therefor, and to regulate and control the enjoyment of things before existing in common, considers a causeless or corrupt limitation of pre-existing rights as an abuse of the power. Thomas, Univ. Jurisp. 171. Perhaps in England, where the power of Par-condemned is necessary to enable the public use to be carried into effect.<sup>1</sup> It is also a condition, that compensation must be made to the owner.<sup>2</sup> It is generally held that payment of the liament is said to be omnipotent, so far as the exercise of mere human power is concerned, there may be no remedy for such an abuse of power, where it is by a concurrent act of the three estates of the realm; but in a State which is governed by a written Constitution, like ours, if the Legislature should so far forget its duty and the natural rights of an individual as to take his private property and transfer it to another, where there was no foundation for a pretence that the public was to be benefited thereby, I should not hesitate to declare that such an abuse of the right of eminent domain was an infringement of the spirit of the Constitution, and, therefore, not within the general powers delegated by the people to the Legislature.

"But, while I deny to the legislative power the right thus to take private property for the mere purpose of transferring it to another, I admit that the two branches of the Legislature, subject only to the qualified veto of the executive, are the sole judges as to the expediency of making police regulations interfering with the natural rights of our citizens, which regulations are not prohibited by the Constitution; and also as to the expediency of exercising the right of eminent domain for the purpose of making public improvements, either for the benefit of the inhabitants of the State generally, or of any particular section thereof."

1. Horton v. Grand Haven, 24 Mich. 465; People v. Salem, 20 Mich. 452; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 400. In re New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; Giesy v. Cincinnati, W., & Z. R. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 308; DeVraigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95.

2. Colton v. Rossi, 9 Cal. 595; Evansville & C. R. R. Co. v. Dick, 9 Ind. 433; Stewart v. Supervisors of Polk Co., 30 Iowa, 9; s. c., 1 Am. Rep. 238; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Iowa, 28; s. c., 1 Am. Rep. 215; Perkins v. Maine Cent. R. R. Co., 72 Me. 95; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 608; Nichols v. Somerset & K. R. R., 43 Me. 356; Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Boston & L. R. R. Co. v. Salem & L. R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1; Hursh v. First Div. St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 439; Ash v. Cummings, 50 N. H. 591; Petition of Mt. Washington R. R. Co., 35 N. H. 134; Doughty v. Somerville & E. R. R. Co., 7 N. J. Eq. (3 Halst.) 51; s. c. 51 Am. Dec. 267; Blodgett v. Utica & Black R. R. Co., 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 580; Craig v. Rochester C. & B. R. R. Co., 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 494; University v. N. C. R. R. Co., 76 N. C. 103; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 671; Palai- rets App., 67 Pa. St. 479; s. c., 5 Am. Rep. 450; East Tennessee & Va. R. R. Co. v. Love, 3 Head (Tenn.), 63; Gulf Colorado & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Fuller, 63 Tex. 467; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 154; Bohlman v. Green Bay & L. P. R. R. Co., 30 Wis. 105; Shepardson v. Milwaukee & B. R. R. Co., 6 Wis. 605; United States v. Jones, 109 U. S. 513; bk. 27 L. ed. 1015; Secombe v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 90 U. S. (23 Wall.) 108; bk. 23 L. ed. 67; United States v. Russell, 80 U. S. (13 Wall.) 623; bk. 20 L. ed. 474; Pumpelly v. Green Bay & M. Canal Co., 80 U. S. (13 Wall.) 166; bk. 20 L. ed. 557; Withers v. Buckley, 61 U. S. (20 How.) 84; bk. 15 L. ed. 816; Barron v. Baltimore, 32 U. S. (7 Pet.) 243; bk. 8 L. ed. 672; Vanhorn v. Dorrance, 2 U. S. (2 Dall.) 314; bk. 1 L. ed. 395; New Orleans Water Works v. St. Tammany W. W. Co., 4 Woods, C. C., 134.

Legislature Sole Judge.—The necessity, utility, expediency, and extent of the exercise of the power of eminent domain in a particular case where the use is in fact public, are to be determined exclusively by the Legislature. Napa, etc., R. R. Co. v. Napa County, 30 Cal. 437; Stockton, etc., R. R. Co. v. City of Stockton, 41 Cal. 147; Parksham v. Justices, 9 Ga. 341; Water Works Co. v. Burkhardt, 41 Ind. 364; Challis v. Atchison, 16 Kan. 117; New Central Coal Co. v. George's Creek Coal and Iron Co., 37 Md. 537; Hingham, etc., Corporation v. County of Norfolk, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 353; Talbot v. Hudson, 82 Mass. (16 Gray) 417; Haverhill Bridge Proprietors v. County Commissioners, 103 Mass. 120; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 518; County Court of St. Louis Co. v. Griswold, 58 Mo. 175; Concord R. R. Co. v. Greeley, 17 N. H. 47; Harris v. Thompson, 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 350; Brooklyn Park Commissioners v. Armstrong, 45 N. Y. 234. In re Dansville Cemetery Assoc., 66 N. Y. 569; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 86; Pittsburgh v. Scott, 1 Pa. St. 309; Smedley v. Irwin, 51 Pa. St. 445; Memphis Freight Co. v. Mayor of Memphis, 4 Cold. (Tenn.) 419; Anderson v. Tuberville, 6 Cold. (Tenn.) 150; De Varaigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95; Varick v. Smith, 5 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 137; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 417; Aldridge v. Tusculumbia R. R. Co., 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 199; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 307; Scudder v. Trenton, Delaware Falls Co., 1 N. J. Eq. (1 Saxt.) 694; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 756; In re Wellington, 33 Mass. (16 Pick.) 87; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 631; Heyward v. Mayor of N. Y., 7 N. Y. 325; Dingley v. Boston, 100 Mass. 558. In re Dansville Cemetery B. Assoc., 66 N. Y. 572; s. c., compensation or provision made therefor<sup>1</sup> is a condition precedent to the right to enter upon and take possession of the property taken.<sup>2</sup>

III. Delegation of Power. — 1. Generally. — The manner in which the right of eminent domain shall be exercised rests within the discretion of the Legislature; it may be, and in point of fact generally is, effected by a delegation of its power to an agent. That agent may be a corporate body, carrying on a work of public utility, though for the purposes of private gain;<sup>3</sup> and it is no objection that the corporation is chartered under the laws of another state.<sup>4</sup> The power delegated to acquire lands for a purpose specifying the authorization in general terms will be construed to authorize the acquisition of every thing necessary to carry out the public use contemplated.<sup>5</sup> Where the use is public, the Legislature is the sole judge of the necessity for the improvement or work for which the property is appropriated.<sup>6</sup> But where any act seems to confer an authority on another to take property, but the grant is not clear and explicit, and no compensation is provided by it for the owner or party whose rights are injuriously affected, the law will conclude that it was not the intent of the Legislature to delegate the power of eminent domain, but simply to confer a right to do the act, and exercise the power given on first obtaining the consent of those affected.<sup>7</sup>

23 Am. Rep. 86; Coster v. Tidewater Co., 18 N. J. Eq. (3 C. E. Gr.) 67; Sadler v. Langham, 34 Ala. 327. However, it is different where the power to determine the questions in particular instances has been delegated by statute to the courts or to other tribunals. Powers's Appeal, 29 Mich. 504; Milwaukee, etc., R. R. Co. v. Fairbault, 23 Minn. 167; In re New York Cent. R. R. Co., 66 N. Y. 407; Rensselaer v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137. There is another conception of the general rule laid down, and that is found in those cases where the power to make such determination has been transferred to the courts by the State Constitution. Lecoul v. Police Jury, 20 La. An. 308.

The Provision of the Federal Constitution declaring that private property shall not be taken without just compensation, is intended solely as a limitation on the exercise of the power by the Government of the United States, and is not applicable to the Legislature of the States. Concord R. R. Co. v. Greeley, 17 N. H. 47; Withers v. Buckley, 61 U. S. (20 How.) 84; bk. 15 L. ed. 816; Barron v. Baltimore, 32 U. S. (7 Pet.) 243; bk. 8 L. ed. 672.

1. Stirling's Appeal (Pa.), 2 Cent. Rep. 51.

2. See post, VII., 3, a, and authorities there cited.

3. Swan v. Williams, 2 Mich. 427; War- ren v. First Division St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 384; Weir v. St. Paul S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155; Leisse v. St. Louis, etc., R. R. Co., 2 Mo. App. 105; Ash v. Cummings, 50 N. H. 591; Tinsman v. Belvidere Del. R. R. Co., 26 N. J. L. (2 Dutch.) 148; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 565; Matter Bloomfield, etc., Gas Light Co. v. Richardson, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 437; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; s. c., 31 Am. Dec. 313; Alexandria & F. R. R. v. Alexandria & W. R. R. Co., 75 Va. 780; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23; Secombe v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. Co., 90 U. S. (23 Wall.) 108; bk. 23 L. ed. 67.

4. Gray v. St. Louis & S. F. R. R. Co., 81 Mo. 126; Matter of Townsend, 39 N. Y. 171; Morris C. & B. Co. v. Townsend, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 658. Compare Holbert v. St. Louis, K. C., & N. R. R. Co., 45 Iowa, 23.

5. Peavey v. Calais R. R. Co., 30 Me. 498; s. c., 1 Am. Ry. Cas. 147; In re Boston & A. R. R. Co., 53 N. Y. 574; In re New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. v. Metropolitan Gas Light Co., 5 Hun (N. Y.), 201; s. c., 63 N. Y. 326.

6. Matter of Fowler, 53 N. Y. 60. See "Legislature Sole Judge," ante, 508, note 2.

7. Boston & L. R. R. Co. v. Salem & L. R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1. And see

2. To Municipal Corporations.—The authority to condemn property for public uses is often delegated to municipal corporations, for purposes connected with the city government. It is under this right that cities are authorized to lay out and appropriate lands for public parks, streets, and highways. Closely akin to the right of the municipality to open streets is the power to authorize the use of the streets for railroad tracks. This power, when it exists in the municipality, is derived from the Legislature by express grants. No right to authorize such use of the city streets by the railroad company or to regulate the same is inherent in the municipality.<sup>1</sup>

3. To Railroad Companies.—The instances of the delegation of the power of eminent domain of most frequent occurrence are to be found in the case of railroad companies, coupled to the general powers conferred by their charters. There is usually an authority granted to appropriate lands so far as required for the construction of their tracks. By virtue of this general power they will be deemed entitled to enter upon and appropriate lands for all purposes reasonably necessary to the carrying on of their business. They may therefore take ground for passenger stations and approaches thereto, for engine-houses, for warehouses, intended to receive and store goods which have been, or are about to be, transported,<sup>2</sup> for cattle-yards for stock transported on the rail-

Matter of Hamilton Ave., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 405; Matter of Flatbush Ave., 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 286.

1. Polack v. Trustees of San Francisco Orphan Asylum, 48 Cal. 490; Southern P. R. R. Co. v. Reed, 41 Cal. 256; Geiger v. Filor, 8 Fla. 325; Savannah & T. R. R. Co. v. Savannah, 45 Ga. 602; Wiggins Ferry Co. v. East St. Louis R. R. Co., 107 Ill. 450; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 9; Chicago, R. I., & P. R. R. Co. v. Joliet, 79 Ill. 25; Murphy v. Chicago, 29 Ill. 279; Moses v. Pittsburgh, Ft. W., & C. R. R. Co., 21 Ill. 516; Indianapolis & C. R. R. Co. v. State, 37 Ind. 489; Slatten v. Des Moines V. R. R. Co., 29 Iowa, 148; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 205; Cosby v. Owensboro & R. R. Co., 10 Bush (Ky.) 288; Wolfe v. Covington & L. R. R. Co., 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 404; Hoyle v. New Orleans R. R. Co., 23 La. An. 535; Knight v. Carrollton R. R. Co., 9 La. An. 284; New Orleans & C. R. R. Co. v. Municipality, 1 La. An. 128; Mathews v. Kelsey, 58 Me. 56; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 248; Springfield v. Connecticut R. R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 63; State v. Hoboken, 35 N. J. L. (6 Vr.) 205; Paterson & P. H. R. v. Paterson, 24 N. J. Eq. (9 C. E. Gr.) 158; Jersey City & H. H. R. R. v. Jersey C. & B. R. R. Co., 21 N. J. Eq. (6 C. E. Gr.) 550; Morris & E. R. R. Co. v. Newark, 10 N. J. Eq. (2 Stockt.) 352; Carpenter v. Oswego & S. R. R., 24 N. Y. 655; Portland

v. Multnomah Co., 6 Oreg. 62; Black v. Phil. & R. R. Co., 58 Pa. St. 249; Mercer v. Pittsburgh, Ft. W., & C. R. R. Co., 36 Pa. St. 99; Commonwealth v. Erie & N. E. R. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 471; O'Connor v. Pittsburgh, 18 Pa. St. 187; Green v. Reading, 9 Watts (Pa.), 382; Henry v. Pittsburgh & A. Bridge Co., 8 Watts & S. (Pa.) 85; In re Philadelphia & T. R. R., 6 Whart. (Pa.) 25; Tennessee & A. R. R. Co. v. Adams, 3 Head (Tenn.), 506; Richmond, F., & P. R. R. v. City of Richmond, 96 U. S. (6 Otto) 521; bk. 24 L. ed. 734; Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S. (4 Otto) 324; bk. 24 L. ed. 224; s. c., 4 Dill. C. C. 593; People's R. R. v. Memphis R. R., 77 U. S. (10 Wall.) 38; bk. 19 L. ed. 844; Pacific R. R. Co. v. Leavenworth, 1 Dill. C. C. 393. Compare City of Quincy v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R., 92 Ill. 21; Chicago & N. W. R. R. v. Elgin, 91 Ill. 251; Lexington & O. R. R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.), 289; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 497; Louisville & F. R. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 763.

2. Graham v. Connorsville & N. C. J. R. R. Co., 36 Ind. 463; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 56; Protzman v. Indiana & C. R. R. Co., 9 Ind. 467; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 650; Reed v. Louisville Bridge Co., 8 Bush (Ky.), 69; Hamilton v. Annapolis & E. R. R. Co., 1 Md. 553; Mansfield, C. & L. M. R. R. Co. v. Clark, 23 Mich. 519; In re New road,<sup>1</sup> for shops to repair cars and engines used on the road,<sup>2</sup> for turn-outs and side-tracks, incidental to the road's business,<sup>3</sup> for springs to supply water-tanks,<sup>4</sup> for a dumping-place to deposit waste earth,<sup>5</sup> for the accommodation of additional tracks on a whole line of railway,<sup>6</sup> and for the purpose of obtaining sufficient space on the side of the road to erect a telegraph wire.<sup>7</sup> But for purposes not directly connected with the business of the company no such power is reasonably to be inferred. Hence a railroad company has been held not to derive from the general terms of its charter power to build a lateral railroad,<sup>8</sup> nor to take lands for speculation, nor to prevent competition, nor to aid collateral enterprises remotely connected with the road, nor to facilitate business not reasonably to be expected,<sup>9</sup> nor for dwellings of workmen employed by the road,<sup>10</sup> nor for shops to manufacture cars,<sup>11</sup> nor for the purpose of obtaining gravel to construct the road,<sup>12</sup> nor for a wharf,<sup>13</sup> nor for a temporary right of way during the building of the main track.<sup>14</sup> Reference is in every case had to what are the legitimate requirements of the company in carrying on its legitimate business.<sup>15</sup>

A power delegated to a railroad company is not lost through the leasing of the road for a term of years; and the right of its exercise does not vest in the lessee, but remains in the lessor.<sup>16</sup>

York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 77 N. Y. 248; Weir v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155; Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co. v. Muder, 49 Mo. 165; New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; 67 N. Y. 227; Rensselaer & S. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137; Giesy v. Cincinnati, W. & Z. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 308; Cumberland Valley R. R. Co. v. McLanahan, 59 Pa. St. 23; South Carolina R. R. Co. v. Blake, 9 Rich. (S. C.), 228; Nashville & C. R. R. Co. v. Cowardin, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 348.

1. In re New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. v. Metropolitan Gas Light Co., 63 N. Y. 326.

2. Southern Pac. R. R. v. Raymond, 53 Cal. 223; Low v. Galena & C. U. R. R. Co., 18 Ill. 324; Chicago, B., & Q. R. R. Co. v. Wilson, 17 Ill. 123; Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co. v. Muder, 49 Mo. 165; Virginia & T. R. R. Co. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 358; State v. Mansfield, 23 N. J. L. (3 Zab.) 510.

3. Protzman v. Indianapolis & C. R. R. Co., 9 Ind. 467; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 650; Toledo & W. R. R. Co. v. Daniels, 16 Ohio St. 390; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. Co. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103.

4. Strohecker v. Alabama & C. R. R. Co., 42 Ga. 509.

5. Lodge v. Philadelphia, W., & B. R. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 345.

6. In re New York Cent. R. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 426.

7. Prather v. Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. R. Co., 52 Ind. 16.

8. Baltimore & H. Turnp. Co. v. Union R. R. Co., 35 Md. 224.

9. Rensselaer & S. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137.

10. State v. Mansfield, 23 N. J. L. (3 Zab.) 510; Nashville & C. R. R. Co. v. Cowardin, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 348; Eldridge v. Smith, 34 Vt. 484.

11. New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; Eldridge v. Smith, 34 Vt. 484; Vermont & Can. R. Co. v. Vermont Cent. R. Co., 34 Vt. 2.

12. New York & C. R. R. Co. v. Gunnison, 1 Hun (N. Y.), 496.

13. Iron R. R. Co. v. Ironton, 19 Ohio St. 299.

14. Currier v. Marietta & C. R. R. Co., 11 Ohio St. 228; Gray v. Liverpool & Bury, R., 9 Beav. 391.

15. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co. v. Wilson, 17 Ill. 123; Prather v. Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. R. Co., 52 Ind. 16; Beck v. United N. J. R. R. Co., 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 45; In re New York Cent. Ry. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 426; Toledo & W. R. R. Co. v. Daniels, 16 Ohio St. 390; Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. Co. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103; Lodge v. Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 345; South Carolina R. R. Co. v. Blake, 9 Rich. (S. C.) 228. See also Rensselaer & S. R. Co. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137.

16. Mayor of W. v. Norwich & W. R. R. Co., 109 Mass. 103; Dietrichs v. L. & N. W.

But the power may be exercised by trustees, under a mortgage, who have entered into possession.<sup>1</sup> A consolidation, which constitutes the consolidated company the successor to the rights and powers of the companies consolidated, vests in the consolidated company the power to institute proceedings for the condemnation of lands.<sup>2</sup> A sale of a railway and the franchises of the company, under a general act authorizing the purchase and sale of railways, will entitle the purchaser to exercise the power of eminent domain.<sup>3</sup> The right to question the existence of a corporate body being vested in the State alone, a de facto railroad corporation may, in the absence of any such proceeding, exercise the right of eminent domain, notwithstanding any objection raised by the land-owner.<sup>4</sup>

4. To Other Corporate Bodies.—Delegations of the right to exercise the power of eminent domain are often made to other corporate bodies than municipalities and railroads. Such delegations are, as a general rule, governed by the principles applicable to the case of grants to railroad companies. The power given is usually construed to be sufficiently wide to authorize the appropriation of any property required by the corporation to carry out the object in view. Thus a grant of power to a corporation to construct a road and bridges between given termini, the natural and convenient route of which would pass several navigable streams, authorizes the corporation to construct bridges over such streams in a manner that will not destroy the navigation.<sup>5</sup> It has been held that a grant of power to condemn a dock for a ferry slip is not a breach of the constitutional provision in force in many States, prohibiting the Legislature from passing a private or local bill, "granting to any private corporation, association, or individual, any exclusive privileges, immunity, or franchise whatever."<sup>6</sup> The principle that the charter of a corporation is a contract which the Legislature cannot impair against the company's assent does not preclude the Legislature from taking other franchises and property for public use upon making compensation; their powers and privileges, including every thing which constitutes other franchises, are held and engaged in the same manner and by the like tenure as all other property and rights under the constitution and laws of the States.<sup>7</sup> It is essential to

R. R. Co., 13 Neb. 361. In re Petition of New York, Lack. & W. R. R. Co., 99 N. Y. 12; s. c., 23 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 44; Kip v. New York & H. R. R., 67 N. Y. 227; s. c., 15 Am. Ry. Rep. 98; 6 Hun (N. Y.), 24.

1. Williams v. Orleans, M. & T. R. R. Co., 60 Miss. 689; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 378.

2. North Carolina & R. R. Co. v. Carolina Cent. R. R. 83 N. C. 489.

3. Chicago, St. Paul, & O. R. R. Co. v. Lundstrom, 16 Neb. 254; s. c., 21 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 528.

4. McAuley v. Columbus, C. & I. C. R. R. Co., 83 Ill. 348; Reisner v. Strong, 24 Kan. 410; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 335.

5. Attorney General v. Stevens, 1 N. J. Eq. (Saxt.) 369; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 526.

6. In re Union Ferry Co., 98 N. Y. 139; s. c., 13 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 383.

7. Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 40, 454; Noll v. Dubuque, B. & M. R. R. Co., 32 Iowa, 66; Central B. Co. v. City of Lowell, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 474; Boston & L. R. R.

a judgment of condemnation that the corporation exercising the right prove its corporate existence, that it was fully organized by the election of directors.<sup>1</sup>

5. To Individuals. — There are no adjudicated cases holding that the right of eminent domain can be delegated to individuals or private persons, although there is a line of decisions which may be thought to favor such a doctrine,<sup>2</sup> and it is believed that there can be no such delegation; however, if individuals can in any instance exercise the power of eminent domain, it will be under the same conditions and with the same limitations imposed upon corporations.<sup>3</sup>

6. Method of Delegation. — The right of eminent domain may be delegated either by a general act applicable to all corporations or individuals engaged in undertakings of a specified public nature, or by special charter granted to a single corporation. In some cases the Legislature has passed both a general act and a special charter. It has been held that when the provisions of the general statute are inconsistent with the provisions of the special charter of a company, incorporated before its passage, the company may acquire a title in a manner prescribed by the charter.<sup>4</sup> But it has also been held that a company with a special charter may condemn lands, under the general law.<sup>5</sup>

7. Conditions Precedent. — In some cases a condition precedent is attached to the right to exercise the power of eminent domain. Thus where a general statute requires that the Legislature shall approve of the route and termini of the roads to be constructed, the company cannot proceed to condemn lands until it has obtained such legislative approval.<sup>6</sup> And where it is so provided, the railroad corporation must make and file its survey before taking land.<sup>7</sup>

Co. v. Salem & L. R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1, 35 Springfield v. Connecticut R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 63; Crosby v. Hanover, 36 N. H. 404; Backus v. Lebanon, 11 N. H. 19; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 466; Peirce v. Somersworth, 10 N. H. 370; Barber v. Andover, 8 N. H. 398; Piscataqua Br. Co. v. New Hampshire Br., 7 N. H. 35; In re Union Ferry Co., 98 N. Y. 139; s. c., 13 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 383; Newcastle & R. R. v. Peru & I. R., 3 Ind. 464; Red River Bridge Co. v. Mayor, &c., of Clarksville, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 176; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 143; White River Turnpike Co. v. Vermont Cent. R. R. Co., 21 Vt. 590; James River & K. Co. v. Thompson, 3 Gratt. (Va.) 270; Tuckahoe Canal Co. v. Tuckahoe & James R. R., 11 Leigh (Va.), 42; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 374; Richmond F. & P. R. Co. v. Louisa R. R. Co., 54 U. S. (13 How.) 71; bk. 14, L. ed. 55; West R. Bridge Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12, L. ed. 535; Bonaparte v. Camden & Amboy R. R. Co., 1 Bald. C. C. 205.

1. Powers v. Hazelton & L. R. R. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429.

2. See Crittenden v. Wilson, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 165; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 462; Young v. Buckingham, 5 Ohio, 485.

3. See Reisner v. Strong, 24 Kan. 410; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 335; Brown v. Beatty, 34 Miss. 127; s. d., 69 Am. Dec. 389.

4. Clarkson v. Hudson R. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 304; Viischer v. Hudson R. R. Co., 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 37. Compare McCrea v. Port Royal R. R. Co., 3 S. C. N. S. 381; Wisconsin Cent. R. R. Co. v. Cornell University, 52 Wis. 537; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 108.

5. Central Branch U. P. R. R. Co. v. Atchison T. & S. F. R. R. Co., 26 Kan. 669; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 389; 28 Kan. 453; 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 528.

6. Gilliwater v. Mississippi & A. R. R. Co., 13 Ill. 1.

7. Morris Canal, etc., Co. v. Central R. R. Co., 16 N. J. Eq. (1 C. E. Gr.) 419.

It is in some cases also made a condition that the power shall not be exercised until the parties have attempted and failed to agree upon the price.<sup>1</sup> Under the latter condition it is a sufficient fulfillment that the agent holding the delegated authority offered, and the owner refused, a reasonable price for the property sought to be condemned. The selection of the lands being intrusted to the Secretary of War, it would seem that any offer which the Secretary, in the exercise of his judgment, may have made, is to be construed a reasonable one.<sup>2</sup> It would also seem that the attempted purchase need not have been made previous to the application for an appointment of commissioners for the appraisal of the compensation; but it is enough if the judge to whom the application is made is satisfied at the time of the appointment that the parties are unable to agree as to the price.<sup>3</sup>

8. Construction of Grant.—Statutes delegating the right of eminent domain to railroad and other corporations for public use, being in derogation of common rights, are not to be extended by an implication, but are to be strictly construed.<sup>4</sup> Yet they are not to be construed so strictly as to defeat the evident purposes of the Legislature.<sup>5</sup> Such statutes are to be construed most strongly against the grantee of the power.<sup>6</sup> But except in a proceeding instituted at the instance of the attorney on behalf of

1. Lincoln v. Colusa Co., 28 Cal. 663; Gilmer v. Lime Point, 19 Cal. 47; Hall v. People, 57 Ill. 307; Terre Haute & I. R. R. Co. v. Scott, 74 Ind. 29; Burt v. Merchants' Ins. Co., 106 Mass. 356; s. c., 8 Am. Rep. 339; Powers v. Hazelton & L. Ry. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429; Oregon Cascades R. R. Co. v. Oregon Steam Navigation Co., 3 Oreg. 178; In re Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. Co., 7 Phila. (Pa.) 461; Bigelow v. Mississippi Cent. & T. R. R. R., 2 Head (Tenn.), 624.

2. United States v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 16 Fed. Rep. 524; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23.

3. Coster v. New Jersey R. R. Co., 23 N. J. L. (3 Zab.) 227.

4. Spring Valley Water Works v. San Mateo Water Works, 64 Cal. 123; Southern Pac. R. R. Co. v. Wilson, 49 Cal. 396; s. c., 8 Am. Ry. Rep. 37; Mississippi River Bridge Co. v. Ring, 58 Mo. 491; State v. Jersey City, 25 N. J. L. (1 Dutch.) 309; Doughty v. Somerville & E. R. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. (1 Zab.) 442; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 267; New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; Adams v. Saratoga & W. R. R. Co., 10 N. Y. 328; In re New York & B. R. R. Co., 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 85; Doughty v. Hope, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 249; Platt v. Pennsylvania Co., 43 Ohio, 228; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 130; Moorhead v. Little M. Railroad, 17 Ohio, 340, 350; Kemper v. Cincinnati, C.

& W. Turnpike Co., 11 Ohio, 392; Cleveland & M. R. R. Co. v. Furnace Co., 37 Ohio St. 321, 329; Bowersox v. Watson, 20 Ohio St. 496, 588; Toledo & W. R. R. Co. v. Daniels, 16 Ohio St. 390, 396; Curier v. Marietta, etc., R. R. Co., 11 Ohio St. 228; Kramer v. Cleveland & P. R. R., 5 Ohio St. 140, 147; Straus v. Eagle Ins. Co., 5 Ohio St. 59; Oregonian R. Co. v. Hill, 9 Oreg. 377; Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. Co. v. Bruce, 102 Pa. St. 23; Lance's Appeal, 55 Pa. St. 16; Zack v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 25 Pa. St. 394; Alexandria & F. R. Co. v. Alexandria & W. R. R. Co., 75 Va. 780; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23; Walker v. London & B. R. Co., 3 Ad. & El. N. S. 744; s. c., 43 Eng. C. L. 954; Gray v. Liverpool & B. R. Co., 9 Beav. 391; s. c., 10 Jur. 364; 4 Eng. Ry. & C. Cas. 235; Mayor of Liverpool v. Chorley W. W. Co., 21 Eng. L. & Eq. 620; s. c., 2 DeG. M. & G. 852; Webb v. Manchester & Leeds Ry. Co., 4 Mylne & C. 116; s. c., 1 Eng. R. R. & C. Cas. 576.

5. New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; In re New York & B. R. R. Co., 62 Barb. (N. Y.) 85.

6. New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; Mayor of Alleghany v. Ohio & P. R. R. Co., 26 Pa. St. 355; Walker v. London & B. R. Co., 3 Ad. & El. N. S. 744; s. c., 43 Eng. C. L. 954.

the State, any one seeking to restrain the violation of such a delegation of power is bound to show that he has a private interest in the matter.<sup>1</sup>

9. When Delegated Power exhausted. — In the case of railroads the law does not require a railroad company to acquire by condemnation all the lands necessary for the construction and operation of its road at the same time. It may increase its facilities as the business of the country may require.<sup>2</sup> In some States provision is made by statute for the subsequent exercise of the power.<sup>3</sup> While individuals may resist the condemnation of their lands for a right of way, after the expiration of the time given by the charter of the company for the completion of the road, they cannot interfere to prevent the company extending its road, after the expiration, over a right of way acquired before the expiration. The State alone can proceed to arrest the work on that ground.<sup>4</sup>

1. Mayor of Liverpool v. Chorley W. W. Co., 2 DeG. M. & G. 852; 21 Eng. L. & Eq. 620; s. c., Lee v. Milner, 2 Younge & C. 611; s. c., 2 Mees. & W. 824; Mur. & H. 275.

2. Fisher v. Chicago & S. R. R. Co., 104 Ill. 323; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 14; Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co. v. Wilson, 17 Ill. 123; Peck v. Louisville N. A. & C. R. R. Co., 101 Ind. 366; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 193; Prather v. Jeffersonville M. & I. R. R., 52 Ind. 16; Central B. U. P. R. R. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R. Co., 26 Kan. 669; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 389; Hamilton v. Annapolis & E. R. R. Co., 1 Md. 553; Mississippi & T. R. R. Co. v. Devaney, 42 Miss. 555; s. c., 2 Am. Rep. 608; Atlantic & Pac. R. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228; Deitrichs v. Lincoln & N. R. R. Co., 13 Neb. 361; Virginia & T. R. R. Co. v. Lovejoy, 8 Nev. 100; Beck v. United N. J. R. R. & C. Cos., 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 45; Childs v. Central R. R. Co., 33 N. J. L. (4 Vr.) 323; Selden v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 29 N. Y. 634; In re New York Central, etc., R. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 426; Johnson v. Utica W. W. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 415; Toledo & W. R. R. Co. v. Daniels, 16 Ohio St. 390; Farnham v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 61 Pa. St. 265; Philadelphia W. & B. R. R. Co. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103; In re South Carolina R. R. Co. v. Blake, 9 Rich. (S. C.) 228. Ex parte South Carolina R. R. Co., 2 Rich. (S. C.) 434; Webb v. Manchester & Leeds R. Co., 4 Mylne & C. 116; s. c., 1 Eng. R. R. & C. Cas. 576; Simpson v. Lancaster & C. R. Co., 4 Eng. Ry. Cas. 625; Williams v. South Wales R. Co., 13 Jur. 443; s. c., 3 DeG. & S. 354; Stamps v. Birmingham W. & S. V. Ry., 17 L. J. Eq. N. S. 431; s. c., 7 Hare, 251.

Exhaustion of Power by Single Users. — It has, however, been held in the following cases that the power to take lands is limited by the expiration of the time as fixed by the charter, or is exhausted after the first use. New York, H. & N. R. R. Co. v. Boston, H. & E. R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196; Illinois Cent. R. R. Co. v. Rucker, 14 Ill. 353; Atlantic & P. R. R. Co. v. St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228; Peavey v. Calais R. R. Co., 30 Me. 498; Beck v. United N. J. R. R. Co., 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 45; Morris & E. R. R. Co. v. Central R. R. Co., 31 N. J. L. (2 Vr.) 205; In re Brooklyn W. & N. R. R. Co., 72 N. Y. 245; Mason v. Brooklyn & N. R. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 373; Brooklyn Cent. R. R. Co. v. Brooklyn City R. R. Co., 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 358; Hudson & Del. Canal Co. v. New York & E. R. R. Co., 9 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 323; Lodge v. Philadelphia W. & B. R. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 345.

3. Derby v. Framingham & L. R. R. Co., 119 Mass. 516; Rensselaer & S. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137; In re New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.), 381. See also Prather v. Jeffersonville M. & I. R. R. Co., 52 Ind. 16; Childs v. Central R. R. Co., 33 N. J. L. (4 Vr.) 323; Bentley v. Rotherham, etc., L. R. 4 Ch. Div. 588; Rangeley v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 3 Ch. App. 306; Ystalyfera Iron Co. v. Neath & B. Ry. Co., L. R. 17 Eq. 142; Seymour v. London & S. W. Ry. Co., 5 Jur. N. S. 753; Stamps v. Birmingham W. & S. V. Ry. Co., 17 L. J. Eq. 431; Sadd v. Maldon & B. Ry. Co., 20 L. J. Ex. 102; Reg. v. Lancashire & Y. Ry. Co., 20 L. J. Q. B. 507 n.; Thicknesse v. Lancaster Canal Co., 4 Mees. & W. 472; Salisbury v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 17 Q. B. 840; Reg. v. York N. & B. Ry. Co., 16 Q. B. 886; Reg. v. London & N. W. Ry. Co., 16 Q. B. 864; Reg. v. Birmingham & O. Ry. Co., 15 Q. B. 647.

4. Atlantic & P. R. R. v. City of St. Louis, 66 Mo. 228.

IV. Public Uses. — 1. General Requisites. — If there be a direct public benefit, it is not necessary, in order to constitute a public use, that the improvement contemplated should directly benefit the people of the whole State. The benefit contemplated may be confined to a particular community.<sup>1</sup> And the Legislature is the sole and exclusive judge whether the exigency exists which calls on it to exercise or to delegate the power of eminent domain.<sup>2</sup> What is such public use as will justify the exercise of the power of eminent domain, is a question for the courts; but if the improvement be declared to be for a public use by the Legislature, the courts will hold the use to be public, unless it manifestly appears by the provisions in the act that they can have no tendency to advance and promote such public use.<sup>3</sup>

2. Streets, Parks, and Highways. — One of the commonest of public uses for which private property is taken is for the laying out of streets and roads;<sup>4</sup> and land taken in cities for public parks and squares by authority of law, where the advantages are to the public for recreation, health, or business, is a public use.<sup>5</sup>

3. Railroads, Depots, Branches, etc. — A railway is in general such a public use as affords just ground for the taking of private property and appropriating it to that use;<sup>6</sup> and land or property taken for the safety of the travelling public is likewise deemed to be taken by a railroad as a part of the public use to

1. Ross v. Davis, 97 Ind. 79; O'Reiley v. Draining Co., 32 Ind. 169; Riche v. Bar Harbor Co., 75 Me. 91; Talbot v. Hudson, 82 Mass. (16 Gray) 417; DeCamp v. Hibernia R. R., 47 N. J. L. (18 Vr.) 43; Matter of Bloomfield & R. Gas Light Co., 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 437; Chesbrough v. Commissioners, 37 Ohio St. 508.

2. Chicago R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Town of Lake, 71 Ill. 333; Talbot v. Hudson, 82 Mass. (16 Gray) 417; Petition of Mt. Washington R. Co., 35 N. H. 134; In re Brooklyn F. Co., 98 N. Y. 139; s. c., 13 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 383; Powers v. Hazelton & L. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Pittsburgh, W. & K. R. R., 17 W. Va. 812; Smith v. Gould, 61 Wis. 31; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 424; United States v. Oregon Ry. & Nav. Co., 16 Fed. Rep. 524.

3. Bankhead v. Brown, 25 Iowa, 540; Hazen v. Essex Co., 56 Mass. (12 Cush.) 475. See also Challiss v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R., 16 Kan. 117; County Court of St. Louis Co. v. Griswold, 58 Mo. 175; Giesy v. Cincinnati, W. & Z. Ry. Co., 4 Ohio St. 308; Smith v. Gould, 61 Wis. 31; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 424.

4. Dorgan v. Boston, 94 Mass. (12 Allen) 223; Plant v. Long Island R. R. Co., 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 26; Seaman v. Hicks, 8 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 655; Watson v. South Kingstown, 5 R. I. 562; Patrick v. Commissioners, 4 McC. (S. C.) 541; United States v. Railroad Bridge, 6 McL. C. C. 517; s. c., 3 Liv. L. Mag. 568; 10 L. Rep. N. S. 630.

5. Matter of Commissioners of Cent. Park, 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 282. See also County of St. Louis v. Griswold, 58 Mo. 175.

6. Aldridge v. Tuscumbia C. & D. R. R. Co., 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 199; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 307; 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 421; San Francisco A. & S. R. R. Co. v. Caldwell, 31 Cal. 367; Bradley v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 21 Conn. 294; Whiteman v. Wilmington & S. R. R. Co., 2 Harr. (Del.) 514; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 411; Swan v. Williams, 2 Mich. 427; Weir v. St. Paul, S. & T. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155; Concord R. R. Co. v. Greely, 17 N. H. 47; Buffalo & N. Y. R. R. Co. v. Brainard, 9 N. Y. 100; Secomb v. Milwaukee & St. P. Ry. Co., 49 How. (N. Y.) 75; Beekman v. Saratoga & S. R. R. Co., 3 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 45; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 679; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 52; s. c., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; 31 Am. Dec. 313; Louisville, C. & C. R. R. Co. v. Chappell, Rice (S. C.), 1 L. 383; Buffalo B. B. & C. R. R. Co. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Secomb v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 90 U. S. (23 Wall.) 108; bk. 23, L. ed. 67; Olcott v. Fond du Lac Co., 83 U. S. (16 Wall.) 678; bk. 21, L. ed. 382; Bonaparte v. Camden & Amboy R. R. Co., 1 Baldw. C. C. 205; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Van Ness, 4 Cr. C. C. 595.

which it is devoted.<sup>1</sup> Depots, engine-houses, and repair-shops required for the purposes of enabling the company to properly conduct its business, are public uses for which property may be taken against the owner's consent.<sup>2</sup> But the manufacture of railroad cars is not so legitimately and necessarily connected with the management of the railroad that the company may condemn land therefor.<sup>3</sup> The question whether a railroad company may be authorized to condemn land for side-tracks leading to private manufactories, established for the convenience thereof, does not appear to be definitely settled. Many cases support the right of the railroad company to do so,<sup>4</sup> but, on the other hand, there are decisions holding that a railroad company cannot appropriate land for such purposes.<sup>5</sup>

4. Telegraph and Telephone Lines.—The transmission of intelligence by electricity is a business of public character to be exercised under public control, in the same manner as transportation of goods or passengers by railroads. It has accordingly been held that the construction of telegraph lines is a public use, for which the right of eminent domain may be exercised.<sup>6</sup> It has been expressly held that telephones are within the meaning of the word "telegraph" as used in a statute, and within the scope of laws enacted for the regulation of telegraphic communication, even though such laws were passed before the telephone was invented.<sup>7</sup>

5. Wharves, Canals, and Ferries.—A canal is a public use if the public have a right of passage thereon, and though a reasonable stipulated and uniform toll may be exacted.<sup>8</sup> Wharves are

1. Reusch v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R., 57 Iowa, 687; s. c., 15 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 359.

2. Hannibal & St. Joseph R. R. Co. v. Muder, 49 Mo. 165.

3. Eldridge v. Smith, 34 Vt. 484.

4. Sherman v. Buick, 32 Cal. 241; Brewer v. Bowman, 9 Ga. 37; Robinson v. Swope, 12 Bush (Ky.) 21; News Cent. Coal Co. v. George's Creek Coal Co., 37 Md. 537; Pittsburgh v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 48 Pa. St. 359; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; Pocopson v. Road, 16 Pa. St. 15; Getz's Cases, 105 Pa. St. 547; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 186; Harvey v. Thomas, 10 Watts (Pa.), 63; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 141.

5. Bradley v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co. 21 Conn. 305; Young v. McKenzie, 3 Ga. 31; South Chicago R. R. Co. v. Dix, 109 Ill. 237; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 157; Buffalo & N. Y. R. R. v. Brainard, 9 N. Y. 100; Taylor v. Porter, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 140; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 274; Reeves v. Treasurer of Wood Co., 8 Ohio St. 333.

6. New Orleans, M. & T. R. R. Co. v. Southern & Atlantic Telegraph Co., 53 Ala. 211; Pierce v. Drew, 136 Mass. 75;

s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 7; 8 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 83; Turnpike Co. v. News Co., 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 381.

7. Wisconsin Tel. Co. v. Oshkosh, 62 Wis. 32; Attorney General v. Edison Tel. Co. of London, L. R. 6 Q. B. Div. 244.

8. Denslow v. New Haven & N. Co., 16 Conn. 98; People v. Wells, 12 Ill. 102; Van Vlaricum v. State, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 209; State v. Beackmo, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 488; Harness v. Chesapeake & O. C. Co., 1 Md. Ch. 246; Leopard v. Chesapeake & O. C. Co., 1 Gill (Md.), 223; Chesapeake & O. Canal Co. v. Baltimore & O. Railroad Co., 4 Gill & J. (Md.) 1; Van Schoick v. Delaware & R. C. Co., 20 N. J. L. (1 Spen.) 249; Morris, etc., Co. v. Central R. R. Co., 16 N. J. Eq. (1 C. E. Gr.) 419; Rogers v. Bradshaw, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 735; Steel v. Inland, etc., Nav. Co., 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 283; Jackson v. Daley, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 526; Buckingham v. Smith, 10 Ohio, 288; Willyard v. Hamilton, 7 Ohio (II. pt.) 111; s. c., 30 Am. Dec. 195; Commonwealth v. Fisher, 1 Pen. & W. (Pa.) 462; Chesapeake & O. C. Co. v. Hoyer, 2 Gratt. (Va.) 511; Binney v. Chesapeake & O. C. Co., 33 U. S. (8 Pet.) 201; bk. 8 L. ed. 917; Bonaparte v. Camden & Amboy R. R. Co., Baldw.

subservient to the public by facilitating the transfer of passengers and freight by land and water, and thus may be constructed for a public use.<sup>1</sup> But it has been held that the privilege of constructing a wharf in a public highway does not authorize the erection of a warehouse.<sup>2</sup> The right of ferries usually belongs to the riparian proprietor, but ferries in general are public uses, for the development of which the State may appropriate private property.<sup>3</sup>

6. Water and Gas Works. — Water-works for the supply of a town with water is a proper use for the exercise of the power of eminent domain;<sup>4</sup> and it has been held that taking water for distribution and sale is ipso facto devoting it to a public use.<sup>5</sup> The laying of gas-pipes is a "public use" for which private property may be appropriated by condemnation.<sup>6</sup> The transportation and sale of natural gas for public consumption has been held to be a public use within the meaning of the Constitution.<sup>7</sup>

7. Drains and Sewers. — Ditches, drains, and sewers come within the principle allowing private property to be taken for public use, where the public health, convenience, or welfare demands it;<sup>8</sup> but the work must not be undertaken solely for the advantage of the land-owners or residents of the neighborhood, but for the good of the public generally.<sup>9</sup>

8. Mills. — It is within the power of the Legislature to declare the existence of public exigency for the establishment of a mill, for which the right of eminent domain may be properly exercised.<sup>10</sup>

C. C. 205; Chesapeake & O. Can. Co. v. Key, 3 Cr. C. C. 599; Farnham v. Blackstone C. Corp., 1 Sumn. C. C. 46.

1. Jeffersonville v. Louisville & J. Ferry Co., 27 Ind. 100; Bingham v. Doane, 9 Ohio, 165.

2. Bingham v. Doane, 9 Ohio, 165.

3. Jacksonville v. Louisville & J. F. Co., 27 Ind. 100; Day v. Stetson, 8 Me. (8 Greenl.) 365; Pipkin v. Wynns, 2 Dev. (N. C.) L. 402; Bowman v. Wathen, 2 McL. C. C. 376.

4. Burden v. Stein, 25 Ala. 455; s. c., 24 Ala. 130; St. Helena W. Co. v. Forbes, 62 Cal. 182; s. c., 46 Am. Rep. 659; Kane v. Baltimore, 15 Md. 240; Reddall v. Bryan, 14 Md. 444; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 550; Graff v. Mayor, etc., of Baltimore, 16 Md. 544; Ipswich Mills v. County Commissioners, 108 Mass. 363; Wayland v. County Commissioners, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 500; Thorn v. Sweeney, 12 Nev. 251; In re Rochester Water Commissioners, 66 N. Y. 413; Mayor, etc., of New York v. Bailey, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 433; Gardner v. Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526; Fleming's Appeal, 65 Pa. St. 444.

5. McCrary v. Beaudry, 67 Cal. 120; s. c., 7 Pac. Rep. 264.

6. In re Bloomfield & R. Nat. Gas Light Co. v. Richardson, 63 Barb. (N.Y.) 437. See also St. Louis v. St. Louis Gas Light

Co., 70 Mo. 69; In re Deering, 93 N. Y. 361; People of New York v. Bowen, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 24; s. c., 21 N. Y. 517; Williamsport W. Co. v. Lycoming Gas & W. Co., 95 Pa. St. 35; Providence Gas Co. v. Thurber, 2 R. I. 15; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 621.

7. Johnston v. People's Natural Gas Co. (Pa.), 5 Cent. Rep. 564.

Natural Gas — Transportation of, for Consumption. — In Johnston v. People's Natural Gas Co., supra, the court said, "Natural gas has become a public necessity; but as it cannot be used except it be piped to the manufacturers and residences of the people, it follows that as the piping of it is necessary to its use, the means so used for its transportation must be of prime importance to the public, and directly affect its welfare."

8. Paterson v. Baumer, 43 Iowa, 477; Norfleet v. Cromwell, 70 N. C. 634; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 787; Zimmerman v. Canfield, 42 Ohio St. 463; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 382; Sessions v. Crunkilton, 20 Ohio St. 349.

9. Paterson v. Baumer, 43 Iowa, 477; Reeves v. Treasurer of Wood Co., 8 Ohio St. 333.

10. Lowell v. Boston, 111 Mass. 454, 464; s. c., 15 Am. Rep. 39.

The Massachusetts "Mill Acts." — In Lowell v. Boston, supra, the court says,

9. Logging Booms.—It has been uniformly held that the construction of dams and booms for the purpose of floating lumber down the rivers of the States having large lumber interests, is a valid exercise of the power of eminent domain.<sup>1</sup>

10. Irrigation.—It has been held that the taking of a riparian owner's interest in the waters of a stream to supply "farming neighborhoods" with water for irrigation is a public use.<sup>2</sup>

with reference to the Massachusetts Mill Acts, "The Mill Acts, so called, are often referred to as authorizing the exercise of the right of eminent domain by private parties for their exclusive private benefit. And the language of the court used arguendo has been sometimes such as to imply that the growth and prosperity of manufacturing and other industrial enterprises were of such importance to the public welfare as to justify the exercise of the right to eminent domain in their behalf as a public use. Talbot v. Hudson, 82 Mass. (16 Gray) 417, 426; Hazen v. Essex Co., 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 475, 478; Boston & Roxbury Mill Co. v. Newman, 29 Mass. (12 Pick.) 467; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 622. That mills for the sawing of lumber for purposes of building, grinding grain for food, and the manufacture of material for clothing, may be of such necessity to a community, especially in the early settlement of a country, as to make their establishment a provision for public use, we do not question. . . . What the limits of legislative power in that direction are, whether there are any limits, except in the discretion of the sound Legislature, it is needless to inquire. We are satisfied that the Mill Acts are not founded upon that power, and do not authorize its exercise."

The court refer with approval to the dictum of Chief Justice Shaw in Murdock v. Stickney, 62 Mass. (8 Cush.) 113, in which he says, with reference to the Massachusetts Mill Acts, "The principle on which the law is founded is not, as has sometimes been supposed, the right of eminent domain, or the sovereign right of taking property for public use; it is not in any proper sense a taking of the property from an owner of the land flowed, nor is any compensation awarded by the public." It also approves of the dictum of the same judge in Bates v. Weymouth Iron Co., 62 Mass. (8 Cush.) 548, 553, where he says, "It is a provision by law for regulating the rights of proprietors on one and the same stream, from its rise to its outlet, in a manner best calculated, on the whole, to promote and secure their common rights in it."

In Maine the same considerations have supported a grant of the power of eminent domain. Jordan v. Woodward, 40 Me. 317.

In New Hampshire the taking of land for mill-dam purposes has been justified on the ground that statutes existed for the purpose when the Constitution was adopted, and it is reasonable to construe that instrument as promoting them. Great Falls Man. Co. v. Farnald, 47 N. H. 444. See also Ash v. Cummings, 50 N. H. 591.

In Other States.—In Tennessee, Indiana, Connecticut, Kansas, New Jersey, Minnesota, such statutes are sustained. Olmstead v. Camp, 33 Conn. 532; Hankins v. Lawrence, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 266; Harding v. Funk, 8 Kan. 315; Venard v. Cross, 8 Kan. 248; Miller v. Troost, 14 Minn. 365; Scudder v. Trenton D. Falls Co., 1 N. J. Eq. (1 Sact.) 694; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 756; Harding v. Goodlett, 3 Verg. (Tenn.) 41; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 546. In Wisconsin the public use has been sustained. Pratt v. Brown, 3 Wis. 603; Thien v. Voegtlander, 3 Wis. 461; Newcomb v. Smith, 1 Chand. (Wis.) 71. But the correctness of these decisions has since been doubted, and the court has declared that if the questions were new a different conclusion would doubtless be reached. Fisher v. Horicon Iron Man. Co., 10 Wis. 351.

Condemnation for Mills—Not a taking for Public Use.—In Georgia, New York, Alabama, Vermont, and Michigan, it is held, that the taking of lands for mill-dams was not a taking for a public use. Sadler v. Langham, 34 Ala. 311; Loughbridge v. Harris, 42 Ga. 500; Hay v. Cohoes Co., 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 47.

In Alabama it is assumed that if the mills were compelled to grind grain for toll, and required to serve the public impartially, the power of eminent domain might be delegated to take them. Sadler v. Langham, 34 Ala. 311.

1. Lancaster v. Kennebec Co., 62 Me. 272; Cotton v. Mississippi Boom Co., 22 Minn. 372; Finney v. Somerville, 80 Pa. St. 59; Borchardt v. Wausau Boom Co., 54 Wis. 107; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 12; Cohn v. Wausau Boom Co., 47 Wis. 314; Patterson v. Miss. & R. R. Boom Co., 3 Dill. C. C. 465.

2. Lux v. Haggin, 69 Cal. 255, 300. Appropriating Waters for Irrigation.—Colorado Doctrine.—Statutes authorizing the appropriation of waters for irrigation by private individuals, and also the con-

11. Cemeteries. — Lands may be condemned for the purpose of a public cemetery where the public in general have a right to obtain interment;<sup>1</sup> but lands cannot be condemned for the purposes of a private cemetery.<sup>2</sup> It has also been held that lands taken for the purposes of enlarging a public cemetery is devoting them to public use;<sup>3</sup> and that a private cemetery may be condemned for use as a place of public burial.<sup>4</sup>

12. Mining. — Statutes authorizing companies of individuals to condemn lands for the encouragement of the mining industry have been enacted, and in some cases have been sustained as a constitutional exercise of the power of eminent domain.<sup>5</sup> There are, however, decisions in which such an exercise of the power is held to be unconstitutional.<sup>6</sup> There would seem to be no denomination of land for a right of way for flumes, exist in Colorado, and the courts have rendered decisions thereon without making any reference to the question whether the use authorized was public and the statutes constitutional. See Golden C. Co. v. Bright, 8 Colo. 144; Coffin v. Left-hand Ditch Co., 6 Colo. 443; Schilling v. Rominger, 4 Colo. 100. But it must be kept in view, that in the cases in which the question arose, the waters appropriated were those of streams flowing through the public domain, and the appropriation was made by grantees of the United States. This right to appropriate does not exist by virtue of the right of eminent domain, but depends upon an implied contract or a license by the Federal Government that settlers upon the public lands may use for any useful purpose, whether public or private, connected with the lands upon which they have settled, the waters of streams flowing through the public lands. The right of way in favor of the individual appropriating to convey water over another's land already exists, and is inseparably connected with the enjoyment of the land which the United States confers on its grantees. Davis v. Gale, 32 Cal. 26; Butte Canal & D. Co. v. Vaughn, 11 Cal. 143; s. c., 70 Am. Dec. 769; Maeris v. Bicknell, 7 Cal. 261; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 257; Sims v. Smith, 7 Cal. 148; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 233; Kelly v. Natoma Water Co., 6 Cal. 105; Schilling v. Rominger, 4 Colo. 100; Yunker v. Nichols, 1 Colo. 551; Shoemaker v. Hatch, 13 Nev. 261.

1. Evergreen Cemetery Co. v. Beecher, 53 Conn. 551; Edwards v. Stonington Cemetery Co., 20 Conn. 466; Balch v. County Commissioners, 103 Mass. 106; Edgecumbe v. Burlington, 46 Vt. 218.

2. Evergreen Cemetery Co. v. Beecher, 53 Conn. 551; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 121.

What are Private Cemeteries. — In Matter of Deansville Cemetery Association, 66 N. Y. 569; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 86, the court held that where the land is to be vested in trustees, with power to divide it into lots, and sell these lots to individual owners at prices to be fixed by private agreement, the lots or the right of the owners to descend as private property to the heirs of these owners, who are also to have power to sell, and by whom the trustees were to be elected, was devoting lands to the purposes of private burial, and not to any public use.

3. Edwards v. Stonington Cemetery Association, 20 Conn. 466.

4. Balch v. County Commissioners, 103 Mass. 106.

5. Hand Gold Mining Co. v. Parker, 59 Ga. 419; New Cent. Coal Co. v. George's Creek Coal Co., 37 Md. 537; Getz's Cases, 105 Pa. 547; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 186.

Condemnation for Private Mines. — Necessity. — In one case lands sought to be condemned were the most eligible and convenient for the erection of expensive machinery and sinking shafts; no other lands could have been selected except at great distance and inaccessible to the railroad and wagon-roads, without which the business of a mining company could not be conducted. It was held that a necessity existed for the condemnation of the land for the protection and advancement of the mining interests of the country. Overman Silver M. Co. v. Corcoran, 15 Nev. 147.

6. Taking Private Property for Private Industry. — In Consolidated Channel Co. v. Central Pac. R. R. Co., 51 Cal. 269, it was held that the Legislature cannot, in the exercise of the power of eminent domain, take private property for a purely private industry, such as to enable a person to build a flume on the land of another to carry off the tailings from his land, or to enable him to deposit the tailings on such land.

Condemnation for Benefit of Private Coal Co. — Where a coal company, in order to doubt that a statute authorizing an establishment of public ways to mines is not unconstitutional, although such mines be private, for ways for the general use of the public are contemplated.<sup>1</sup>

13. Private Roads.—Statutes providing for the opening of private roads or ways over highways to the premises of individuals over the property of others, by the process of condemnation, have been held unconstitutional as authorizing the condemnation of private property for the private use or accommodation of an individual.<sup>2</sup> On the other hand, it is held that such a road, though primarily for the benefit of an individual, is a public road in the sense that the public have the right to travel on it, and that therefore the right of eminent domain may properly be exercised in opening such a road without infringing on constitutional rights.<sup>3</sup>

14. Right to change Use.—Where land is condemned for a special purpose on the score of public utility, the sequestration is limited to that particular use.<sup>4</sup> But the mode of using the prop-

secure convenient transportation for its coal, incorporated a railroad company, and the articles of incorporation declared the purposes of a new company to be, to transport freight and passengers, and upon this representation and in the belief that the land was required for public use, the court, by the usual judicial proceedings, authorized the corporation to take the land, and the railway, when constructed, was operated exclusively for the transportation of the coal, it was held that the proceedings in condemnation amounted to an imposition upon the court, and that it was competent for the State, on discovering the imposition of its authority, to interpose to correct the abuse. People v. Pittsburgh R. R. Co., 53 Cal. 604.

In Sholl v. German Coal Co., 118 Ill. 427; s. c., 59 Am. Rep. 379; 8 West. Rep. 94, it was held that a coal company cannot condemn lands for facilitating the transportation of coal from its works, the public having no interest in either the tramway or the works more than any other strictly private business.

1. Phillips v. Watson, 63 Iowa, 28.

2. Sadler v. Langham, 34 Ala. 311; Crear v. Crossly, 40 Ill. 175; Nesbitt v. Trumbo, 39 Ill. 110; Stewart v. Hartman, 46 Ind. 331; Wild v. Deig, 43 Ind. 455; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 399; Bankhead v. Brown, 25 Iowa, 540; Com. v. Sawin, 19 Mass. (2 Pick.) 547; Com. v. Cambridge, 7 Mass. 158; Dickey v. Tennison, 27 Mo. 373; Powers v. Bergen, 6 N. Y. 368; Embury v. Conner, 3 N. Y. 511; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 525; Baker v. Brame, 6 Hill (N. Y.) 47; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 387; Taylor v. Porter, 4 Hill (N. Y.), 140; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 274; Witham v. Osburn, 4 Oreg. 318; s. c., 18 Am. Rep.

287; Clark v. White, 2 Swan (Tenn.), 540; Osborn v. Hart, 24 Wis. 89; s. c., 1 Am. Rep. 161; Pell v. Boswell, 8 Ont. (Can.) 680; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 358.

3. Sherman v. Buick, 32 Cal. 241; Hickman Case, 4 Harr. (Del.) 580; Brewer v. Bowman, 9 Ga. 37; Kissinger v. Hansleman, 33 Ind. 80; Johnson v. Supervisor of Clayton Co., 61 Iowa, 89; Robinson v. Swope, 12 Bush (Ky.) 21; Snyder v. Warford, 11 Mo. 513; s. c., 49 Am. Dec. 94; Proctor v. Andover, 42 N. H. 348; Metcalf v. Bingham, 3 N. H. 459; Allen v. Stevens, 29 N. J. L. 65 (5 Dutch.) 509; Perrine v. Farr, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 356; Feris v. Bramble, 5 Ohio St. 109; Shaver v. Starrett, 4 Ohio St. 494; Pocopson Road, 16 Pa. St. 15; Harvey v. Thomas, 10 Watts (Pa.), 65; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 141; Bell v. Prouty, 43 Vt. 279; Whitingham v. Bowen, 22 Vt. 317.

4. Imlay v. Union Branch R. R. Co., 26 Conn. 255; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 392; Warren v. Lyons, 22 Iowa, 357; Louisville v. Louisville Rolling Mill, 3 Bush (Ky.), 416; Price v. Thompson, 48 Mo. 363; Rutherford v. Taylor, 38 Mo. 315; Williams v. Natural Bridge Plank R. Co., 21 Mo. 583; Belcher, etc., Co. v. St. Louis, etc., Co., 82 Mo. 121; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 417; State v. Laverock, 34 N. J. L. (5 Vr.) 202; Pres. Soc. v. Auburn R. R. Co., 3 Hill (N. Y.), 567; Trenor v. Jackson, 46 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 389; Board of Education v. Edson, 18 Ohio St. 225; Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S. (4 Otto) 324; bk. 24 L. ed. 224; Barclay v. Howell's Lessee, 31 U. S. (6 Pet.) 498; bk. 8 L. ed. 477; Galloway v. Mayor, etc., of London, L. R. 1 H. L. 34; s. c., 35 L. J. Ch. N. S. 477; 12 Jur. N. S. 747; 14 L. T. N. S. 865.

erty may change from time to time, as the wants of commerce or the public may require.<sup>1</sup> And the Legislature have the power by an express enactment to authorize the property condemned to be devoted to another kind of public use, so long as the property continues to be devoted to public use.<sup>2</sup>

V. What may be Appropriated. — 1. In General. — The right to appropriate "property" includes not only the tangible thing owned, but every right and incident which accompanies ownership.<sup>3</sup> In the case of land, it includes any right or easement;<sup>4</sup> and it has been held that it even includes the right of action for injuries to land.<sup>5</sup> The power to appropriate may be exercised where the corporation or individual to whom it is directed is already in possession of the property under a limited title. Thus a railroad may acquire title to lands to which it already holds an unexercised lease,<sup>6</sup> or under a license from the proprietor.<sup>7</sup> So, too, the right may be exercised where the property has been entered upon without any legal right.<sup>8</sup> The particular property to be condemned may be pointed out by the Legislature; and, where this is done, the courts have no right to review its action.<sup>9</sup>

2. Nature and Quality of Interest. — The Legislature are the exclusive judges of the degree and quality of property to be taken from the individual and dedicated to the public use.<sup>10</sup> It may exercise or delegate the power of taking lands in fee whenever it may please to do so; and, as a rule, the acts granting such power contain express clauses to that effect.<sup>11</sup>

Use of the words "fee simple" is not essential to a grant of the right to take an entire interest;<sup>12</sup> but it does not necessarily

1. Illinois, etc., Canal Co. v. St. Louis, 2 Dill. C. C. 82.

2. Lexington & O. R. R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.), 289; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 497; People v. Kerr, 27 N. Y. 188; Malone v. City of Toledo, 28 Ohio St. 643; Hatch v. Cincinnati & I. R. Co., 18 Ohio St. 452; Street Railway v. Cummins, 14 Ohio St. 533; Chagrin Falls & C. P. R. Co. v. Cane, 2 Ohio St. 419.

3. Dunlap v. Toledo, A. A. & G. T. R. R. Co., 50 Mich. 470; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 185; Gulf, Colorado, & St. Fé Ry. Co. v. Fuller, 63 Tex. 467.

4. Nichols v. Somerset & Kennebec Ry. Co., 43 Me. 356; Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Arnold v. Hudson River Ry. Co., 55 N. Y. 661; People v. Haines, 49 N. Y. 587; Williams v. New York Central R. R. Co., 16 N. Y. 97; Troy & B. R. Co. v. Turnpike Co., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 100.

5. Morris C. & B. Co. v. Townsend, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 658. See also Erwin v. United States, 97 U. S. (7 Otto) 392; bk. 24, L. ed. 1065.

6. In re New York & H. R. R. Co., 11 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 91.

7. See infra, "Damages, Waiver of;" "Damages, Protection of the Right."

8. See infra, "Procedure;" "Commencement of proceeding."

9. In re Brooklyn U. Ferry Co., 98 N. Y. 139; Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co. v. Pittsburgh, W., & Ky. R. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444; De Varaigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95.

10. De Varaigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95.

11. State v. Evans, 3 Ill. (2 Scam.) 208; Nelson v. Fleming, 56 Ind. 310; Dingley v. Boston, 100 Mass. 544; Cotton v. Mississippi & R. R. Boom Co., 22 Minn. 372; Wyoming Coal Co. v. Price, 81 Pa. St. 156; De Varaigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95; Chesapeake & O. Canal v. Union Bank, 4 Cr. C. C. 75.

12. New Orleans Pac. Ry. v. Gay, 31 La. An. 430; Holt v. Somerville, 127 Mass. 408; Gardner v. Brookline, 127 Mass. 358; Dingley v. Boston, 100 Mass. 544; Washington Cemetery v. Prospect P. & C. I. Ry. Co., 68 N. Y. 591; Watson v. New York C. R. R. Co., 47 N. Y. 157; Brooklyn P. C. v. Armstrong, 45 N. Y. 234; Rexford v. Knight, 11 N. Y. 308; Malone v.

follow that a grant in fee simple will give any thing more than a base and determinable fee, limited to the purposes of the grant, and expiring when the property ceases to be used for those purposes.<sup>1</sup> Where the grant is of a right to take land "for the purposes of a railroad," this conveys an easement only.<sup>2</sup> A "right of way" in legal meaning is a mere easement in the lands of others.<sup>3</sup>

A provision in the charter that a company shall, on taking land, be "seised and possessed" thereof, does not of itself confer the power to acquire a fee.<sup>4</sup>

3. Private Property. — a. Land and Appurtenances. — Not only an absolute fee in or right of way over land may be taken, but also any easement or right connected with it. Thus it has been held that the power of eminent domain may be exercised over a right of reversion;<sup>5</sup> the right to use water-power;<sup>6</sup> an easement over the land of another,<sup>7</sup> and the lien of a mortgage;<sup>8</sup> a riparian right to use running water;<sup>9</sup> a right in land subject to the easement of a public highway;<sup>10</sup> a contested claim to unliquidated damages;<sup>11</sup> the right of a commoner in a common;<sup>12</sup> a bridge belonging to a private individual;<sup>13</sup> and unimproved lands.<sup>14</sup>

b. Materials for Construction. — Authority may be given to a person or corporation engaged in the construction of a public improvement to enter upon adjoining lands and take therefrom materials required for the construction.<sup>15</sup> Where land is condemned for a right of way for a railroad, by some statutes authority is given to excavate earth, gravel, and trees, from the land

Toledo, 34 Ohio St. 541; s. c., 28 Ohio St. 643.

1. People v. White, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 26; Hooker v. Utica & M. Turnpike R. Co., 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 371; Malone v. Toledo, 28 Ohio St. 643; s. c., 34 Ohio St. 541.

2. Beach v. Miller, 51 Ill. 206; Barlow v. McKinley, 24 Iowa, 69; New Orleans Pac. Ry. v. Gay, 32 La. An. 471; Proprietors of Locks & Canals v. Nashua & L. R. R. Co., 104 Mass. 1; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 181; Kellogg v. Malin, 50 Mo. 496; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 426; Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282; Taylor v. New York & L. B. R. R., 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 28; State v. Brown, 27 N. J. L. (3 Dutch.) 13; Heard v. Brooklyn, 60 N. Y. 242; Western P. R. R. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290; Troy & B. R. R. v. Potter, 42 Vt. 265; s. c., 1 Am. Rep. 325; Quimby v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 23 Vt. 387.

3. Williams v. Western Union Ry. Co., 50 Wis. 71.

4. Quimby v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 23 Vt. 387.

5. Heard v. Brooklyn, 60 N. Y. 242.

6. Bank of Auburn v. Roberts, 44 N. Y. 192.

7. Arnold v. Hudson R. R. R. Co., 55

N. Y. 661; People v. Haines, 49 N. Y. 587.

8. Astor v. Hoyt, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 603.

9. Harding v. Stamford Water Co., 41 Conn. 87; Gardner v. Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 161; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526; Yates v. Milwaukee, 77 U. S. (10 Wall.) 497; bk. 19 L. ed. 498.

10. Williams v. New York Cent. R. R. Co., 16 N. Y. 97; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 651.

11. Erwin v. United States, 97 U. S. (7 Otto) 392; bk. 24 L. ed. 1065.

12. Bell v. Ohio & P. R. R. Co., 1 Grant Cas. (Pa.) 105.

13. Haverhill Bridge Proprietors v. Commissioners, 103 Mass. 120; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 518.

14. Wallace v. Karlenowefski, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 118.

15. Parsons v. Howe, 41 Me. 218; Jerome v. Ross, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 315; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 484; Lyon v. Jerome, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 485; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 277; Wheelock v. Young, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 647; Bliss v. Hosmer, 15 Ohio, 44; Vermont Cent. R. R. Co. v. Baxter, 22 Vt. 365. Compare, In re New York C. Ry. Co. v. Gunnison, 3 T. & C. (N. Y.) 632; s. c., 1 Hun (N. Y.), 496.

so taken, and to remove trees growing thereon, for the purpose of aiding in the construction of the road. It has been held that the use of such materials is not limited to the land from which they are taken, that they may be employed on any part of the track.<sup>1</sup> The right to remove timber is not confined simply to that actually growing upon the track. Any timber that interferes with the safe and convenient running of cars may be removed.<sup>2</sup> It has been held that the right to trees, herbage, and minerals not essential to the use of the railroad remains vested in the land-owner.<sup>3</sup>

c. Mines and Minerals. — Where a public road is established over land, the owner parts with the use only, and, while it is used as a highway, he is entitled to the native minerals which may be found buried in it.<sup>4</sup>

4. Public Property. — a. Public Lands. — It is within the authority of the States to appropriate the property of the United States; and this may be done under a general State statute authorizing the condemnation of land for railroad purposes.<sup>5</sup> But where

1. Preston v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 11 Iowa, 15; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Taylor v. New York & L. B. R. R. Co., 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 28.

2. Preston v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 11 Iowa, 15.

3. Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282; Barclay v. Howell's Lessee, 31 U. S. (6 Pet.) 498; bk. 8 L. ed. 477. Compare Brainard v. Clapp, 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 6; s. c., 57 Am. Dec. 74.

4. Barclay v. Howell's Lessee, 31 U. S. (6 Pet.) 498; bk. 8 L. ed. 477.

Minerals in Lands condemned. — In England a railway company may purchase lands compulsorily, if it is necessary and proper for the support of the track. Errington v. Metropolitan D. Ry. Co., L. R. 19 Ch. Div. 559; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 562. See also Jenkins v. Central Ontario R. R. Co., 4 Ont. Ch. Div. 593; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 116. By the English statutes, where land is condemned for a canal or a railway, the owner of the minerals beneath it is required to give notice of his intention to work them before actually doing so; upon receiving such notice, the railway or canal company can, if it so desires, have the value of the minerals assessed, and, upon payment thereof, the owner must allow them to remain. Great Western Ry. Co. v. Smith, L. R. 2 Ch. Div. 235; Birmingham C. Co. v. Cartwright, L. R. 11 Ch. Div. 421; Midland Ry. Co. v. Checkley, L. R. 4 Eq. Cas. 19; Barnsley Canal Co. v. Twibell, 13 L. J. N. S. Eq. 434. But where the railway company has elected to take lands without the minerals thereunder, the land-owner may work the mines in the usual and proper manner (Pountney v. Clayton, L. R. 11 Q. B. Div. 820; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 476), subject, however, to the right of the company to stop the working at any time that it fears danger to the land, by notice of its willingness to pay compensation for the minerals they desire left standing. Dixon v. Caledonia & G. S. W. R. Co., L. R. 5 App. Cas. 820.

Distinction between Mines and Minerals — In Davell v. Roper, 24 L. J. Ch. 779, a distinction was drawn between mines and minerals in the following terms: "The best definition of a mineral is, that which was worked by means of a mine," as distinguished from a quarry. The distinction between quarrying and mining is: "that where you are working sub dio, after having removed the surface so as not to leave any roof, that is what is called quarrying. Mining is when you begin on the surface, and by sinking shafts you work under ground in a horizontal direction, making a channel as you proceed, and leaving a roof overhead." See also Bell v. Wilson, L. R. 1 Ch. App. 303; Micklethwait v. Winter, 20 L. J. Ex. 313; Brown v. Chadwick, 7 Ir. C. L. 101; Listowel v. Givings, 9 Ir. C. L. 223. But this definition of the "mineral" was authoritatively repudiated in a subsequent case where the substance in dispute was china clay, obtainable only by destroying the surface, and it was stated that the result of the authorities appeared to be that a reservation in a deed of "minerals" "includes every substance which can be got from underneath the surface of the earth, for the purpose of profit; unless there is something in the context or in the nature of the transaction to induce the court to give it a more limited meaning." Hext v. Gill, L. R. 7 Ch. App. 699, 712.

5. United States v. Railroad Bridge Co., 6 McL. C. C. 517; s. c., 3 Liv. L. Mag. 568;

the land is already devoted to a public use in connection with the Federal Government, the State has no power to authorize its condemnation.<sup>1</sup> It has been held that the State may grant its own lands to a corporation desiring to devote them to a public use, without making any provision for compensation.<sup>2</sup>

b. Public Institutions. — Lands vested in the State and devised to the use of a public institution, such as the education of the blind, will not be included in a grant of right of way over "all lands belonging to the State," although adjoining the road and convenient for its use.<sup>3</sup> Where, however, the lands are not used or held for public purposes, and are not contiguous to the institution, they may be appropriated in the same manner as the lands of private persons.<sup>4</sup>

5. Property already devoted to Public Use. — a. In General. — Property already devoted to public use, although held by a municipal or other corporation, may be condemned under the power of eminent domain.<sup>5</sup> And such land may, by express statutory authority, be afterwards devoted to another use.<sup>6</sup>

10 L. R. N. S. 630; Union Pac. R. R. Co. v. Burlington & M. R. R. Co., 1 McC. C. C. 452; s. c., 10 Rep. 357; Northern Pac. R. R. Co. v. St. Paul & M. R. R. Co., 1 McCr. C. C. 302; s. c., 3 Fed. Rep. 702.

By Revised Statutes of United States, sect. 2477, the right of way for the construction of "highways" over public lands not preserved for public uses, is granted. It has been held that a railroad is a "highway" within the meaning of this section. Flint & P. M. R. R. Co. v. Gordon, 41 Mich. 420.

1. United States v. Chicago, 48 U. S. (7 How.) 185; bk. 12 L. ed. 660; United States v. Railroad Bridge Co., 6 McL. C. C. 517; s. c., 3 Liv. L. Mag. 568; 10 L. R. N. S. 630; United States v. Ames, 1 Woodb. & M. C. C. 76.

2. Washington Cemetery v. Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co., 4 Abb. (N. Y.) N. C. 15; s. c., 68 N. Y. 591; Chagrin Falls & C. P. R. Co. v. Cane, 2 Ohio St. 420; Indiana Cent. R. R. Co. v. State, 3 Ind. 421.

In the last case it was held, that where a company is authorized by an act of the Legislature to construct a railroad between two designated points, it has a right to occupy, in the construction of the road, any land between those points on the general route authorized, which may be necessary for the purpose. See also Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. New York & L. B. R. R. Co., 23 N. J. Eq. (8 C. E. Gr.) 157; Davis v. East Tennessee & Ga. R. R. Co., 1 Sneed. (Tenn.) 94.

Grant to construct Road over Lands of State. — Damages. — In Com. v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 47 Mass. (3 Cush.) 25, it was held, that a grant of authority to construct a railroad over lands held by the Commonwealth for a particular purpose, would not be presumed to be a donation, but the Commonwealth might institute proceedings, and prosecute a claim for damages. See also Mayor of Atlanta v. Central R. R. & B. Co., 53 Ga. 120.

3. St. Louis, J. & C. R. R. Co. v. Trustees of Blind Asylum, 43 Ill. 303. Compare Indiana Cent. R. R. Co. v. State, 3 Ind. 421.

4. State v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. R. Co., 30 Minn. 311; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 94.

5. Evergreen Cemetery Association v. City of N. H., 43 Conn. 234; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 643; New York, H. & N. R. R. Co. v. Boston, H. & E. R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196; City of Jacksonville v. Jacksonville R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 540; Illinois & M. C. v. Chicago & R. I. R. R. Co., 14 Ill. 314; Baltimore & O. C. R. R. Co. v. North, 103 Ind. 486; s. c., 23 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 36; Inhabitants of Springfield v. Connecticut R. R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 63; Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co. v. Williamson, 91 N. Y. 552; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 34; In re Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co., 67 N. Y. 371; s. c., 15 Am. Ry. Rep. 102; aff'm. 8 Hun (N. Y.), 30; In re New York & B. B. R. R. Co., 20 Hun (N. Y.), 201; Little Miami C. & Z. R. R. Co. v. Dayton, 23 Ohio St. 510.

6. Evergreen Cemetery v. City of N. H., 43 Conn. 234; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 643; Cook v. City of Burlington, 30 Iowa, 94; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 679; Springfield v. Inhabitants of Connecticut R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 63; Stevens v. Patterson & N. R. R. Co., 34 N. J. L. (5 Vr.) 532;

b. Streets and Highways.—The appropriation of a street for the purpose of laying a railroad-track is not a perversion from its original purpose so long as such use does not interfere with the use of it by the public as a highway for passage and repassage.<sup>1</sup> The right to authorize such an appropriation is vested in the Legislature.<sup>2</sup> Such power can be, and often is, delegated to the municipal authorities,<sup>3</sup> but only by express legislative enactment.<sup>4</sup> The right to construct a railroad in a public street must be conferred by express legislative grant,<sup>5</sup> or by the consent or grant of the municipal authority to whom the power of control is delegated.<sup>6</sup> Under a grant of authority to construct its track along a street, a s. c., 3 Am. Rep. 269; In re City of Buffalo, 68 N. Y. 167; In re Boston & A. R. R. Co., 53 N. Y. 574; State v. Cincinnati Cent. R. R. Co., 37 Ohio St. 157, 176; Hickok v. Hine, 23 Ohio St. 523; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 255; Little Miami C. & Z. R. R. Co. v. Dayton, 23 Ohio St. 510; Alexandria & F. R. R. Co. v. Alexandria & W. R. R. Co., 75 Va. 780; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23.

1. Milburn v. Cedar Rapids, 12 Iowa, 246; Lexington & O. R. R. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.) 289; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 497; Porter v. North Missouri R. R. Co., 33 Mo. 128; Chapman v. Albany & S. R. R. Co., 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 360; Plant v. Long Island R. R. Co., 10 Barb. (N. Y.) 26.

2. Perry v. New Orleans, M. & C. R. R. Co., 55 Ala. 413; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 740; Savannah & T. R. R. Co. v. Savannah, 45 Ga. 602; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. v. Joliet, 79 Ill. 25; Indianapolis & C. R. R. v. State, 37 Ind. 489; Council Bluffs v. Kansas C., St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 45 Iowa, 338; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 773; Ingram v. C. D. & M. R. R. Co., 38 Iowa, 669; Clinton City v. Cedar R. & M. R. R. Co., 24 Iowa, 455; Hughes v. Mississippi & M. R. R. Co., 12 Iowa, 261; Tate v. Missouri, K. & T. R. R., 64 Mo. 149; State v. Hoboken, 35 N. J. L. (6 Vr.) 205; Carpenter v. Oswego & S. R. R., 24 N. Y. 655; Davis v. Mayor of N. Y., 14 N. Y. 506; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 186; Com. v. Erie & N. E. R. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 471; Philadelphia v. Empire Passenger R. R. Co., 3 Brewst. (Pa.) 547; Faust v. Passenger R. R. Co., 3 Phila. (Pa.) 164; In re Philadelphia & T. R. R., 6 Whart. (Pa.) 25; District of Columbia v. Baltimore & P. R. R. Co., 114 U. S. 453; bk. 29 L. ed. 216; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 38; Jackson Co. Horse Ry. v. Interstate Rapid Transit Ry., 24 Fed. Rep. 306.

3. Atchison St. R. R. Co. v. Missouri P. R. R. Co., 31 Kan. 660; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 439; Covington St. R. R. Co. v. Covington, 9 Bush (Ky.), 127; Donaher v. State, 16 Miss. (8 Smed. & M.)

649; Milbau v. Sharp, 27 N. Y. 611; s. c., 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 193; 17 Barb. (N. Y.) 435; 9 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 102; Mercer v. Pittsburgh, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co., 36 Pa. St. 99; In re Philadelphia & T. R. R. Co., 6 Whart. (Pa.) 25.

4. Perry v. New Orleans, M. & C. R. R. Co., 55 Ala. 413; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 740; Polack v. Trustees, 48 Cal. 490; State v. Hoboken, 35 N. J. L. (6 Vr.) 205; Davis v. Mayor of N. Y., 14 N. Y. 506; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 186; Lawrence R. R. v. William, 35 Ohio St. 168; East Portland v. Multnomah Co., 6 Oreg. 62.

5. St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Haller, 82 Ill. 208; State v. Davenport & St. P. R. R., 47 Iowa, 507; Hine v. Keokuk & D. M. R. R. Co., 42 Iowa, 636; Chicago, N. & S. W. v. Newton, 36 Iowa, 299; Attorney General v. Morris & E. R. R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. (4 C. E. Gr.) 386; Pennsylvania R. R. Co.'s Appeal, 93 Pa. St. 150; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 507; Cake v. Philadelphia & E. R. R. Co., 87 Pa. St. 307; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; Com. v. Erie & N. E. R. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339; Houston & Tex. Cent. R. R. Co. v. Odum, 53 Tex. 343; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 503.

6. Savannah, A. & G. R. R. v. Shiels, 33 Ga. 601; City of Quincy v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co., 92 Ill. 21; Stetson v. Chicago & E. R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 74; Indianapolis, B. & W. R. R. Co. v. Hartley, 67 Ill. 439; Cook v. Burlington, 36 Iowa, 357; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 649; Lexington & O. R. R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.), 289; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 497; Wolfe v. Covington & L. R. R. Co., 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 404; Wiggins F. Co. v. East St. Louis U. R. R. Co., 107 Ill. 450; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 9; Harrison v. New Orleans P. R. R. Co., 34 La. An. 462; Hovelman v. Kansas City Horse R. R. Co., 79 Mo. 632; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 17; Paterson & P. H. R. R. Co. v. Paterson, 24 N. J. Eq. (9 C. E. Gr.) 158; Pacific R. R. Co. v. Leavenworth, 1 Dill. C. C. 393; Pembroke v. Canada C. R. R. Co., 3 Ont. (Can.) 503; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 117.

railroad company cannot monopolize a street to the exclusion of the public and private uses to which it is applied.<sup>1</sup> Where once authority to construct a railroad has been given by a municipality, the repeal of the ordinance granting such authority will not render the railroad a nuisance;<sup>2</sup> and it is not within the power of the Legislature to attach a condition to a grant already made by a municipality properly authorized to confer the right to use the city streets.<sup>3</sup> As in the case of streets, the Legislature may authorize the building of a railroad on a public highway.<sup>4</sup> The grant in a charter of a right to construct a railroad on a specified route gives the right without express words to appropriate public highways, which said route may intersect, but only where this is necessary for the route, as authorized.<sup>5</sup>

6. Corporate Property and Franchises.—a. Power to authorize Appropriation.—The property of a corporation is equally liable with the property of a private citizen to be taken for public uses on the payment of just compensation.<sup>6</sup> But further than this the

1 Tate v. Ohio & M. R. R. Co., 7 Ind. 479; New Orleans & C. R. R. Co. v. Second Municipality of N. O., 1 La. An. 128; Lackland v. North Missouri R. R. Co., 31 Mo. 180; s. c., 34 Mo. 259; Farrand v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 21 Wis. 435; Janesville v. Milwaukee & M. R. R. Co., 7 Wis. 484.

2 Ingram v. Chicago D. & M. R. R. Co., 38 Iowa, 669.

3 Hovelman v. Kansas City Horse Ry. Co., 79 Mo. 632; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 17.

4 Easton & A. R. R. Co. v. Inhabitants of Greenwich, 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 565; In re Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co., 8 Hun (N. Y.), 30; Danville H. & W. R. R. Co. v. Com., 73 Pa. St. 29.

Turnpike a Public Highway.—A turnpike has been held to be a public road or highway within the meaning of the statute authorizing a corporation in constructing a canal to occupy roads and highways. Rodgers v. Bradshaw, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 735.

5 Attorney General v. Morris & E. R. R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. (4 C. E. Gr.) 386, 575.

6 Alabama & F. R. R. Co. v. Kenney, 39 Ala. 307; New York H. & N. R. R. Co. v. Boston, H. & E. R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196; Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 40; Hyde Park v. Oakwoods Cemetery Assoc., 119 Ill. 141; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 417; Lake Shore & M. S. R. R. Co. v. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co., 97 Ill. 506; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 440; Metropolitan City R. R. Co. v. Chicago W. D. R. Co., 87 Ill. 317; Peoria P. & J. R. R. v. Peoria & S. R. R. Co., 66 Ill. 174; Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. R. Co. v. Daugherty, 40 Ind. 33; Lafayette Plank Road Co. v. New Albany & S. R. R. Co., 13 Ind. 90; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 246; New- castle & R. R. R. Co. v. Peru & I. R. R. Co., 3 Ind. 464; Lexington & O. R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.), 289; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 497; Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Trustees of Belfast Academy v. Salmond, 11 Me. 109; Baltimore & H. G. Turnpike Co. v. Union R. R. Co., 35 Md. 224; Bellona Co.'s Case, 3 Bland Ch. (Md.) 442; Eastern R. Co. v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 111 Mass. 125; s. c., 15 Am. Rep. 13; Grand Junction R. R. v. Middlesex, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 553; Backus v. Lebanon, 11 N. H. 19; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 466; Peirce v. Somersworth, 10 N. H. 369; Barber v. Andover, 8 N. H. 398; Prop. of P. Bridge v. New Hampshire Bridge, 7 N. H. 35; State v. Hudson Tunnel R. Co., 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 548; Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co. v. Williamson, 91 N. Y. 552; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 34; Miller v. New York & E. R. R. Co., 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 513; Iron R. R. v. Ironton, 19 Ohio St. 299; Philadelphia & G. F. P. Ry. Co.'s Appeal, 102 Pa. St. 123; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Com. v. Pennsylvania Canal Co., 66 Pa. St. 41; Com. v. Pittsburg & C. R. Co., 58 Pa. St. 26; White Riv. Turnpike Co. v. Vermont C. R. R., 21 Vt. 590; Alexandria & F. Ry. Co. v. Alexandria & W. R. R. Co., 75 Va. 780; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 743; 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23; Tuckahoe Canal Co. v. Tuckahoe & J. R. R. Co., 11 Leigh (Va.), 42; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 374; Richmond F. & P. R. R. Co. v. Louisa R. R. Co., 54 U. S. (13 How.) 71; bk. 14, L. ed. 55; West River Bridge v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12, L. ed. 535; Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 36 U. S. (11 Pet.) 420; bk. 9, L. ed. 773; Union P. R. R. Co. v. Burlington & M. R. R. Co., 1 McCr. C. C. 452; United States v. Railroad Bridge Co., 6 McL. C. C. 517; s. c., 3 Liv. L. Mag. 568; franchises of a corporation, even though originally granted to it for the public advantage, are equally liable to be interfered with, or even to be wholly abrogated, by virtue of the exercise of the power of eminent domain.<sup>1</sup> And even the fact that the franchises have been irrevocably or exclusively granted will not protect them from subsequent condemnation for what the Legislature may deem a more beneficial public use.<sup>2</sup> But a grant of the power to take property for any purpose will not, in the absence of express authority, be stretched so far as to allow the taking of corporate franchises, unless absolutely essential to the carrying-out of the purposes which the Legislature have contemplated.<sup>3</sup>

10 L. R. N. S. 630; San Mateo v. Southern Pac. R. R. Co., 8 Sawy. C. C. 238; 13 Fed. Rep. 722.

1. New York, H. & N. R. R. v. Boston, H. & E. R. R., 36 Conn. 106; Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 40; Metropolitan City Ry. Co. v. Chicago W. D. Ry., 87 Ill. 317; Lafayette Plank Road v. New Albany & S. R. R. Co., 13 Ind. 90; Newcastle & R. R. R. Co. v. Peru & I. R. R., 3 Ind. 464; State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 189; Baltimore & H. G. T. Co. v. Union Ry. Co., 35 Md. 224; Chesapeake & O. Canal Co. v. Baltimore & O. R. R., 4 Gill. and J. (Md.) 5; Eastern R. R. Co. v. Boston & M. R. R., 111 Mass. 125; s. c., 15 Am. Rep. 13; Central Bridge Corp. v. Lowell, 81 Mass. (15 Gray) 106; Central Bridge Co. v. City of Lowell, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 474; Boston & L. R. R. Co. v. Salem & L. R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1, 35; Springfield v. Connecticut R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 63; Boston Water Power Co. v. Boston & W. R. R. Co., 40 Mass. (23 Pick.) 360; Forward v. Hampshire & H. Canal Co., 39 Mass. (22 Pick.) 462; Crosby v. Hanover, 36 N. H. 404; Northern R. R. v. Concord & C. R. R., 27 N. H. 183; Peirce v. Somersworth, 10 N. H. 370; Backus v. Lebanon, 11 N. H. 20; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 466; Barber v. Andover, 8 N. H. 398; Piscataqua Bridge v. New Hampshire Bridge, 7 N. H. 35; State v. Canterbury, 28 N. H. 195; In re Rochester Water Commissioners, 66 N. Y. 413; In re New York Co. & H. R. R. v. Metropolitan Gas Light Co., 63 N. Y. 326; In re Kerr, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 119; Newcastle & R. Ry. v. P. & J. Ry., 3 Ind. 464; Lake Shore & M. S. R. R. v. Cincinnati S. & C. R. R. Co., 30 Ohio St. 604; Pennsylvania R. R. Co.'s Appeal, 93 Pa. St. 150; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 507; In re Towanda Bridge Co., 91 Pa. St. 216; Com. v. Pittsburg & C. R. R., 58 Pa. St. 26; Red River Bridge v. Clarksville, 1 Sneed. (Tenn.) 176; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 143; White River Turnpike Co. v. Vermont C. R. R., 21 Vt. 590; Armington v. Barnett, 15 Vt. 745; s. c., 40 Am. Dec. 705; James River & K. Co. v. Thompson, 3 Gratt. (Va.)

270; Tuckahoe Canal Co. v. Tuckahoe & J. R. Ry., 11 Leigh (Va.) 42; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 374; Greenwood v. Union F. R. R. Co., 105 U. S. (15 Otto) 13; bk. 26, L. ed. 961; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 526; Richmond F. & P. R. R. Co. v. Louisa R. R. Co., 54 U. S. (13 How.) 71; bk. 14, L. ed. 55; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12, L. ed. 535; Bonaparte v. Camden & A. R. R. Co., 1 Baldw. C. C. 205.

2. Alabama & F. R. R. Co. v. Kenney, 39 Ala. 307; New Orleans M. & T. R. Co. v. Southern & A. Tel. Co., 53 Ala. 211; Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. Co., 17 Conn. 40; Atlantic & G. R. R. v. Mann, 43 Ga. 200; St. Louis J. & C. R. R. v. Blind Institution, 43 Ill. 303; Newcastle & R. R. v. Peru & I. R. R., 3 Ind. 464; Baltimore & H. G. Turnpike v. Union R. R., 35 Md. 224; Lexington & O. R. R. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.) 289; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 497; Housatonic R. R. Co. v. Lee & H. R. R. Co., 118 Mass. 391; Troy v. Cheshire R. R. Co., 23 N. H. (3 Fost.) 83; Backus v. Lebanon, 11 N. H. 19; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 466; Piscataqua Bridge v. New Hampshire B. Co., 7 N. H. 35; New Jersey S. R. R. Co. v. Long Branch Commissioners, 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 28; State v. Easton & A. R. R., 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 181; State v. Montclair Ry., 35 N. J. L. (6 Vr.) 328; Stevens v. Patterson & N. R. R. Co., 34 N. J. L. (5 Vr.) 532; s. c., 3 Am. Rep. 269; Starr v. Camden & A. R. R. Co., 24 N. J. L. (4 Zab.) 592; Raritan & D. B. R. R. Co. v. Delaware & R. C. Co., 18 N. J. Eq. (3 C. E. Gr.) 546; Delaware R. Can. Co. v. Camden & A. R. R. Co., 16 N. J. Eq. (1 C. E. Gr.) 321; In re Boston & A. R. R. Co., 53 N. Y. 574; In re Kerr, 42 Barb. (N. Y.) 119; In re Towanda Bridge Co., 91 Pa. St. 216; s. c., 37 Leg. Int. 389; Com. v. Pennsylvania Canal Co., 66 Pa. St. 41; Cleveland & P. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; Tuckahoe Canal v. Tuckahoe & I. R. R., 11 Leigh (Va.) 42; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 374; Richmond F. & P. R. R. Co. v. Louisa R. R. Co., 54 U. S. (13 How.) 71; bk. 14, L. ed. 55.

3. Bridgeport v. New York & N. H. R. R.

b. Uses for which Corporate Property may be taken. — Where one corporation is duly authorized to condemn the property of another, it may be taken for a dissimilar use,<sup>1</sup> or even for any similar purpose, as in the case of one railroad company appropriating the property of another.<sup>2</sup> And a right of way may be taken by a railroad company chartered by a State, over the track of a company chartered by the Federal Government.<sup>3</sup>

c. Railroad Crossings. — Every railroad corporation takes its right of way subject to the right of the public to have other roads, both common highways and railways, constructed across its track whenever the public exigency demands it;<sup>4</sup> and it has been held that it is not necessary that any express power should be given.<sup>5</sup>

Co., 36 Conn. 253; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 63; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Joliet, 79 Ill. 25; State v. Noyes, 47 Me. 189; Worcester & N. R. R. Co. v. Railroad Commissioners, 118 Mass. 561; Commissioners v. Holyoke Water Power Co., 104 Mass. 446; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 247; Boston & L. R. R. Co. v. Salem & L. R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1; West Boston Bridge Co. v. Middlesex, 37 Mass. (10 Pick.) 270; Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. v. Faribault, 23 Minn. 167; In re New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 77 N. Y. 248; Matter of City of Buffalo, 68 N. Y. 167; Matter of Ninth Ave. & Fifteenth Street, 45 N. Y. 729; Matter of Hamilton Ave., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 405; Matter of Flatbush Ave., 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 286; New York City & N. R. Co. v. Central Union Tel. Co., 21 Hun (N. Y.), 261; Hickok v. Hine, 23 Ohio St. 523; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 255; Hatch v. Cincinnati & I. R. R. Co., 18 Ohio St. 92; Parker v. Sunbury & E. R. R. Co., 19 Pa. St. 211; Rex v. Pease, 4 Barn. & Ad. 30; Attorney General v. Ely H. & S. Ry. Co., L. R. 4 Ch. App. 194; Pugh v. Golden Valley Ry. Co., L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 274; Reg. v. Wycombe R. R. Co., L. R. 2 Q. B. 310.

1. Illinois & M. C. v. Chicago & R. I. R. R. Co., 14 Ill. 314; Bellona Co.'s Case, 3 Bland Ch. (Md.) 442; In re New York L. & W. R. R. Co., 99 N. Y. 12; s. c., 23 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 43; In re New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. v. Metropolitan G. L. Co., 63 N. Y. 326; West R. B. Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12 L. ed. 535.

2. City of Bridgeport v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 256; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 63; New York, H. & N. R. R. Co. v. Boston, H. & E. R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 196; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co. v. Town of Lake, 71 Ill. 333; Providence & W. R. R. Co. v. Norwich & W. R. R. Co., 138 Mass. 277; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 493; Easton R. R. Co. v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 111 Mass. 125; s. c., 15 Am. Rep. 13; Lowell & L. R. R. v. Boston & L. R. R. Co., 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 27; Grand Rapids N. & L. S. R. R. Co. v. Grand Rapids & I. R. R.

Co., 35 Mich. 265; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 545; Northern R. R. v. Concord & C. R. R., 27 N. H. (7 Fost.) 183; Kinsman St. R. R. Co. v. Broadway & N. S. R. R. Co., 36 Ohio St. 239; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 327; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Pittsburg W. & K. R. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444; Denver & R. G. R. R. Co. v. Denver & S. P. R. R. Co., 17 Fed. Rep. 867; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 83. Compare Lake Shore & M. S. R. R. v. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co., 96 Ill. 125; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 440, 445, where the court say, "To warrant the taking of property of one party, already appropriated to a public use, and placing it wholly or in part in the hands of another party for a public use, it is essential that the new use be a different use, and also that the change from the present use to the new shall be for the benefit of the public. Whether the new use be different from the present use, is a judicial question, which the courts may decide; but where the new use in its nature may be a public benefit, whether the change will be for the benefit of the public is a political question to be determined by a political department of the government, and generally, if not always, by the law-making power."

3. North Pac. R. R. Co. v. St. Paul, M. & M. Ry. Co., 1 McCr. C. C. 302; 3 Fed. Rep. 702; 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 12.

4. Contra Costa R. R. Co. v. Moss, 23 Cal. 324; East St. Louis C. R. Co. v. E. St. Louis U. R. Co., 108 Ill. 265; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 163; Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Joliet, L. & A. R. R. Co., 105 Ill. 389; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 799; 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 62; Massachusetts C. R. R. v. Boston, C. & F. R. R., 121 Mass. 125; New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Forty-second St. R. R. Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 285, 309; s. c., 26 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 68; 32 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 481; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Cincinnati, S., & C. Ry., 30 Ohio St. 604.

5. Morris & E. R. R. Co. v. Central R. R., 31 N. J. L. (2 Vr.) 205.

7. Rights in Waters and Water-Courses. — a. Riparian Rights. — (1) Navigable Waters. — There is no private property in lands under navigable waters. The Legislature may authorize such land to be taken for a public use, without providing for any compensation to a riparian owner.<sup>1</sup> The right to authorize such appropriation is vested in the State; but the Federal Government may, by virtue of the powers delegated by the several States to it, also exercise the right of eminent domain over such navigable waters;<sup>2</sup> and such right may be exercised without any consent or authority from the State on whose land, under navigable waters, the proposed structure is to rest, and without compensation to the State.<sup>3</sup> The right of a riparian owner to lands bordering upon navigable waters, whether tide-waters, or streams and lakes where the tide does not ebb or flow, extends only to high-water mark.<sup>4</sup> And the State may appropriate lands between low and high water mark for railroad tracks, wharves, or any other public purpose, without compensation to riparian owners.<sup>5</sup> When a riparian owner makes an erection amounting to a purpresture, he is not entitled to damages for such erection on the taking of his land for public use.<sup>6</sup>

(2) Non-navigable Waters. — The owner of land is entitled to the use of a non-navigable stream of water which has been accustomed from time immemorial to flow through it, and cannot be appropriated or diverted for public use without his consent, or a just compensation.<sup>7</sup>

1. Davidson v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 91; Sugar Refining Co. v. Mayer, etc., Jersey City, 26 N. J. Eq. (11 C. E. Gr.) 247; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. New York & L. B. R. R. Co., 23 N. J. Eq. (8 C. E. Gr.) 157; Gould v. Hudson R. R. Co., 6 N. Y. 522; Champlain & St. L. Ry. v. Valentine, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 484; Lansing v. Smith, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 89; Abraham v. Great N. Ry. Co., 16 Q. B. 586; s. c., 5 Eng. L. & Eq. 258; 20 L. J. N. S. (Q. B.) 322; 15 Jur. 855.

2. Mississippi R. Bridge Co. v. Loneragan, 91 Ill. 508; Talbot Co. v. Queen Anne's Co., 50 Md. 245; Wisconsin River Imp. Co. v. Manson, 43 Wis. 255; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 542; Pound v. Turck, 95 U. S. (5 Otto) 459; bk. 24 L. ed. 525; South Carolina v. Georgia, 93 U. S. (3 Otto) 4; bk. 23 L. ed. 782; In re Clinton Bridge, 77 U. S. (10 Wall.) 454; bk. 19 L. ed. 969; Gilman v. Philadelphia, 70 U. S. (3 Wall.) 713; bk. 18 L. ed. 96; Pennsylvania v. Wheeling & B. Bridge Co., 59 U. S. (18 How.) 421; bk. 15 L. ed. 435; s. c., 54 U. S. (13 How.) 318; bk. 14 L. ed. 249; United States v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R., 5 Biss. C. C. 410; Ormerod v. New York, W., & S. R. R. Co., 13 Fed. Rep. 370; s. c., 14 Rep. 424; Stockton v. Baltimore R. R. Co., 1 Interstate Commerce Rep. 411.

3. Stockton v. Baltimore R. R. Co., 1 Interstate Commerce Rep. 411.

4. Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S. (4 Otto) 324; bk. 24 L. ed. 224; aff'm. 4 Dill. C. C. 593.

5. Davidson v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 91; Getty v. Hudson R. R. Co., 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 628; Champlain St. L. R. R. v. Valentine, 19 Barb. (N. Y.) 484; Gould v. Hudson R. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 628; s. c., 6 N. Y. 526.

6. Brunswick v. Union D. S. Ry. & T. Co. (Minn.); 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 233; Diedrich v. North Western U. R. R. Co., 47 Wis. 662.

7. St. Helena W. Co. v. Forbes, 62 Cal. 182; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 659; Chicago, R. I., & P. R. R. v. Moffitt, 75 Ill. 524; Van Orsdol v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. R., 56 Iowa, 470; Stodghill v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R., 43 Iowa, 26; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 211; Fowle v. New Haven & N. Co., 112 Mass. 334; s. c., 17 Am. Rep. 106; Estabrooks v. Peterborough & S. R. R. Co., 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 224; Proprietors of Locks & C. v. Nashua & L. R. R. Corp., 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 385; Van Hoozier v. Hannibal & St. J. R. R., 70 Mo. 145; Johnson v. Atlantic & St. L. R. R., 35 N. H. 569; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 560; March v. Portsmouth & C. R. R., 19 N. H. 372; Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. McFarlan, 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 605;

(3) Milldams and Water-Power Privileges. — Where a person has acquired a right to maintain a dam, or to use a water-power, such right is property which may be taken for public uses.<sup>1</sup> But where the right to build and maintain a dam is held under the statute, which is, in fact, only a license which the State may revoke at any time, the owner of such milldam has no such interest as constitutes a right of property, but is simply a license.<sup>2</sup>

b. Surface Waters. — The right of land-owners in the case of surplus waters differs from the right which he holds in the case of waters flowing through water-courses.<sup>3</sup> It would seem that there exists no natural servitude in favor of the owner of the superior or higher ground as to mere surface water, or such as flows or accumulates by rain or melting of snow, and that the proprietor of the inferior or lower estate may, if he chooses, lawfully obstruct or hinder the natural flow of such water thereon, and, in so doing, may turn the same back upon the lands of other proprietors, without liability for injuries resulting from such obstruction or diversion.<sup>4</sup> But notwithstanding this fact land-owners have Garwood v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co., 83 N. Y. 400; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 452; 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 490; Gardner v. Trustees of Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526; Whitaker v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 87 Pa. St. 34; Spencer v. Hartford, P. & F. R. R., 10 R. I. 14; Waterman v. Connecticut & P. R. Ry., 30 Vt. 610; s. c., 73 Am. Dec. 326; Hatch v. Vermont C. R. R., 25 Vt. 49; Smith v. Gould, 61 Wis. 31; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 424; Lyon v. Green Bay & M. R. R., 42 Wis. 538; Young v. Chicago & N. W. R. R., 28 Wis. 171.

Diversion of Stream. — But a power conferred upon a railway company to divert the course of a river "in order to more conveniently carry the same over or under or by the side of the railway, as its officers may think proper, only authorizes such a diversion when the river presents an actual obstacle to the construction of the land, and not in the case where the diversion is merely for the purpose of saving expenses." Pugh v. Golden Valley R. R. Co., L. R. 15 Ch. Div. 330. See also Valley R. R. Co. v. Bohm, 34 Ohio St. 114; s. c., 21 Am. Ry. Rep. 30.

Right to Use of Water "Property." — In the case of St. Helena Co. v. Forbes, 62 Cal. 182; s. c., 45 Am. Dec. 659, the court say that the right of the riparian owner to the use of the water is "property," an "incident of property in the land inseparably annexed to the soil," "an incorporeal hereditament appertaining to the land," and falls within the term "property," used in a statute providing for the condemnation of "real property" for a public use.

A person accustomed to take water from a public river and not claiming its use as an easement, a particular tenement has no right in the water which can be taken. Jubb v. Hull Dock Co., 9 Ad. & El. N. S. 443; Rex v. Bristol Dock Co., 12 East. 429; Reg. v. Hull Dock Co., 11 Jur. 15; s. c., 3 Eng. R. R. Cas. 795.

1. Galena & S. W. R. R. Co. v. Haslam, 73 Ill. 494; White v. South S. R. R. Co., 60 Mass. (6 Cush.) 412; Barclay R. R. & C. Co. v. Ingham, 36 Pa. St. 194.

2. Barclay R. R. & C. Co. v. Ingham, 36 Pa. St. 194; New York & E. R. R. Co. v. Young, 33 Pa. St. 175. See also Squehanna C. Co. v. Wright, 9 Watts & S. (Pa.) 9; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 315; Monongahela Nav. Co. v. Coons, 6 Watts & S. (Pa.) 101.

3. A Water-Course may be defined as a place where water flows in a certain direction through a regular channel with fixed bed and banks, the flow of which is defined though not necessarily continuous. Howard v. Ingersoll, 17 Ala. 780; Gillett v. Johnson, 30 Conn. 180; Morrison v. Bucksport & B. R. R. Co., 67 Me. 353; Macomber v. Godfrey, 108 Mass. 219; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 349; Starr v. Child, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 149; Wagner v. Long Island R. R. Co., 2 Hun (N. Y.), 633; s. c., 5 T. & C. (N. Y.) 163; Reynolds v. McArthur, 27 U. S. (2 Pet.) 417; bk. 7 L. ed. 470; Rex v. Oxfordshire, 1 Barn. & Ad. 301.

4. Adams v. Walker, 34 Conn. 466; Gillett v. Johnson, 30 Conn. 180; Wadsworth v. Tillotson, 15 Conn. 366; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 391; Cairo & V. R. R. Co. v. Houry, 77 Ind. 364; Cairo & V. R. R. Co. v. Stevens, 73 Ind. 278; Schlichter v. Phillipy, 67 Ind. 201; Taylor v. Fickas, 64 Ind. 168; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 114; Atchison, been held entitled to recover as for property injured, where the construction of a railroad lessens the value of adjoining property by reason of the detention, diversion, or accumulation of surface water.<sup>1</sup>

c. Wharves. — Wharves, of which the owners have the right of wharfage, are property which may be taken for a public purpose.<sup>2</sup>

8. Extent of Appropriation. — a. Necessity. — Only property which is necessary for the undertaking can be appropriated for public use.<sup>3</sup> But the necessity is not to be confined to the present

- T. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Hammer, 22 Kan. 763; Murphy v. Kelly, 68 Me. 521; Morrison v. Bucksport & B. R. Co., 67 Me. 353; Greeley v. Maine C. R. Co., 53 Me. 200; Bangor v. Lansil, 51 Me. 521; Macomber v. Godfrey, 108 Mass. 219; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 349; Emery v. Lowell, 104 Mass. 16; Bates v. Smith, 100 Mass. 181; Hawkesworth v. Thompson, 98 Mass. 77; Curtis v. Eastern R. R. Co., 96 Mass. (14 Allen) 55; Turner v. Inhabitants of Dartmouth, 95 Mass. (13 Allen) 291; Gannon v. Hargadon, 92 Mass. (10 Allen) 106; Dickinson v. Worcester, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 19; Flagger v. Worcester, 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 601; Parks v. Newburyport, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 28; Ashley v. Wolcott, 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 192; Luther v. Winnisimmet Co., 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 171; Munkers v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 72 Mo. 514; s. c., 60 Mo. 334; Hoshier v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 60 Mo. 329; McCormick v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 57 Mo. 433; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 431; 70 Mo. 359; Imler v. City of Springfield, 55 Mo. 119; Swett v. Cutts, 50 N. H. 439; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 276; Bowlsby v. Spear, 31 N. J. L. (2 Vr.) 351; Gould v. Booth, 66 N. Y. 62; Conhocton Stone R. Co. v. Buffalo, N. Y. & E. R. R. Co. 51 N. Y. 573; Curtiss v. Ayrault, 47 N. Y. 73; Cott v. Lewiston R. R. Co., 36 N. Y. 214, 217; Pixley v. Clark, 35 N. Y. 520, 532; Brown v. Bowen, 30 N. Y. 538; Goodale v. Tuttle, 29 N. Y. 459; Bellinger v. New York C. R. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 42; Waffle v. Porter, 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 130; Waffle v. New York C. R. R. 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 413; Trustees v. Youmans, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 316; Ellis v. Duncan, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 230; Sleight v. Kingston, 11 Hun (N. Y.), 594; Wagner v. Long Island R. R. Co., 2 Hun (N. Y.), 633; Gardner v. Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526; Limerick & C. Turnpike Co.'s Appeal, 80 Pa. St. 425; Wakefield v. Newell, 12 R. I. 75, s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 598; Buffum v. Harris, 5 R. I. 253; Beard v. Murphy, 37 Vt. 104; Chatfield v. Wilson, 28 Vt. 49; Davis v. Fuller, 12 Vt. 178; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 334; O'Connor v. Fond du Lac & P. Ry. Co., 52 Wis. 526; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 753; Fryer v. Warne, 29 Wis. 511; Hoyt v. Hudson, 27 Wis. 656; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 473; Pettigrew v. Evansville, 25 Wis. 223; s. c., 3 Am. Rep. 50; Broadbent v. Ramsbotham, 11 Ex. 602; s. c., 34 Eng. L. & Eq. 553; 25 L. J. Ex. 115; Rawstron v. Taylor, 11 Ex. 369; s. c., 33 Eng. L. & Eq. 428; 25 L. J. Ex. 33. Compare Ogburn v. Connor, 46 Cal. 346; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 213; Jacksonville, N. W. & S. E. R. R. Co. v. Cox, 91 Ill. 500; St. Louis V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Capps, 72 Ill. 188; Toledo, W. & W. R. R. Co. v. Morrison, 71 Ill. 616; Gormley v. Sanford, 52 Ill. 158; Gillham v. Madison Co. R. R. Co., 49 Ill. 484; Hooper v. Wilkinson, 15 La. An. 497; s. c., 77 Am. Dec. 194; Minor v. Wright, 16 La. An. 151; Shane v. Kansas City, St. J., & C. B. R. R. Co., 71 Mo. 237; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 480; 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 64; Porter v. Durham, 74 N. C. 767; Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; Overton v. Sawyer, 1 Jones (N. C.), L. 308; Tootle v. Clifton, 22 Ohio St. 247; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 732; Hurdman v. North Eastern R. R. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. Div. 168.
1. Morrison v. Bucksport & B. R. R. Co., 67 Me. 353; Walker v. Old Colony & N. R. R. Co., 103 Mass. 10; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 509; Adams v. Hastings & D. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 260; Eaton v. Boston C. & M. R. R. Co., 51 N. H. 504; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 147; Oregon & C. R. R. Co. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311; Pfeigar v. Hastings & D. R. R., 28 Minn. 510; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 85; Hurdman v. North Eastern Ry. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. Div. 168; s. c., 30 Moak Eng. Rep. 81.
  2. Fitchburg R. R. Co. v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 58; Murray v. Sharp, 1 Bosw. (N. Y.) 539; Davenport & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Renwick, 102 U. S. (12 Otto) 180; bk. 26, L. ed. 51; Van Dolsen v. New York, 17 Fed. Rep. 817.
  3. Smith v. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co., 105 Ill. 511; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 384; Bowman v. Venice & C. R. R., 102 Ill. 459; Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co. v. Dunbar, 100 Ill. 110; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 253; Indianapolis, P. & C. Ry. Co. v. Rayl, 69 Ind. 424; Nelson v. Fleming, 56 Ind. 310; Protzman v. Indianapolis needs of the undertaking, but may include reasonable provision for future development.<sup>1</sup> The corporation to whom the power is delegated to take lands necessary for a public purpose is, to some extent, the judge of what is required.<sup>2</sup> But such right is subject to the review and control of the court in the case of abuse.<sup>3</sup>

b. Statutory Limit. — In some cases the General Statute, authorizing the condemnation of land for railroad purposes, imposes a limit upon the width of the strip to be taken.<sup>4</sup> With a provision authorizing the company to condemn a greater width, where necessary for excavation, embankment, or depositing waste earth,<sup>5</sup> where the company claims that the statutory limit is not sufficient in view of excavations, etc., the burden of proof is upon the company to prove the necessity for taking a greater quantity.<sup>6</sup> Where a company has obtained the condemnation of more land than it is authorized by law to acquire, the proceeding will be set aside in toto.<sup>7</sup>

c. Part of Tract. — A statute which authorizes the taking of a whole lot, where a part only is needed, is unconstitutional and void, in so far as it authorizes the taking of more than is necessary for use, without the owner's consent.<sup>8</sup>

& C. R. R., 9 Ind. 467; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 650; Preston v. Dubuque & P. R. R., 11 Iowa, 15; New Orleans P. R. R. Co. v. Gay, 32 La. An. 471; Knight v. Carrollton R. R., 9 La. An. 284; New Orleans & C. R. R. v. Second Municipality, 1 La. An. 128; Worcester v. Western R. R. Co. 45 Mass. (4 Metc.) 564; Grand Rapids N. & L. S. R. R. Co. v. Van Driele, 24 Mich. 409; Beck v. United New Jersey R. R. & C. Co.'s, 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 45; In re New York C. & H. R. R. v. Metropolitan G. L. Co., 63 N. Y. 326; In re New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 385; In re Rensselaer & S. R. R. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 157; Toledo & W. R. R. v. Daniels, 16 Ohio St. 390; Cleveland & P. R. R. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; Lance's Appeal, 55 Pa. St. 16; Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103; Hill v. Western Vermont R. R., 32 Vt. 68; Stacey v. Vermont C. R. R., 27 Vt. 39; United States v. Harris, 1 Sumn. C. C. 21; Webb v. Manchester & L. R. R. Co., 4 Mylne & Cr. 116.

1. Lodge v. Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 345.

2. Hays v. Risher, 32 Pa. St. 169; Richards v. Scarborough P. M. Co., 23 L. J. Ch. N. S. 110; s. c., 23 Eng. L. & Eq. 343.

3. Southern P. R. R. Co. v. Raymond, 53 Cal. 223; Smith v. Chicago & W. I. Co., 105 Ill. 511; Tracy v. Elizabethtown L. & B. S. R. R. Co., 80 Ky. 259; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 407; In re New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. Metropolitan G. L. Co., 5 Hun (N. Y.), 201; s. c., 63 N. Y.

326; Brown v. Peterson, 40 Pa. St. 373; Horner & R. L. R. R. Co., 37 Pa. St. 333.

4. State v. Hudson Ter. R. R. Co., 46 N. J. L. (17 Vr.) 289; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 294.

5. Johnson v. Chicago M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 58 Iowa, 537.

6. Johnson v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 58 Iowa, 537; In re New York C. R. R. Co., 66 N. Y. 407; Rensselaer & S. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 43 N. Y. 137; Wisconsin C. R. R. Co. v. Cornell University, 52 Wis. 537.

7. State v. Hudson Ter. R. R. Co., 46 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 289; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 294.

8. Embury v. Connor, 3 N. Y. 511; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 525; Matter of Albany St., 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 149.

English Doctrine. — By the English statutes wherever a railroad corporation proposes taking the part of any dwelling-house, manufactory, etc., the owner can by serving the notice upon the company compel it to take the whole. Many questions arise as to what will be considered a part of said dwelling-house or manufactory; see Reg. v. London & S. W. R. R. Co., 12 Ad. & El. N. S. 775; s. c., 64 Eng. C. L. 774; Reg. v. London & G. Ry. Co., 3 Ad. & El. (N. S.) 166; s. c., 43 Eng. C. L. 681; Fergusson v. London, B. & S. C. R. R. Co., 3 DeG. J. & S. 653; s. c., 68 Eng. Ch. 652; Pulling v. London C. & D. Ry. Co., 33 Beav. 644; s. c., 10 Jur. N. S. 665; 10 L. T. 393, 740; 12 W. R. 770, 969; 3 DeG. J. & S. 661; Rex v. Wycombe Ry. Co., 28 Beav. 104; Cole v. West

9. Exemptions. — It is within the discretion of the Legislature in conferring the power to appropriate property for any public use, to make such exemptions as it shall deem fit. In some States it has been provided that the improvement shall not take in dwelling-houses;<sup>1</sup> but the exemption must be asked in good faith. It will not be granted where the building has been put upon the line of a railway, and occupied wholly for the purpose of enabling the owner to claim the exemption.<sup>2</sup>

VI. What amounts to taking or injuriously affecting Property. —

1. In General. — To constitute a taking of property within the meaning of the constitutional provision requiring compensation to be made therefor, it is not necessary that there should have been any actual dissiezor of the owner: it is a "taking" to invade his property by superinduced additions of water, earth, sand, or other material, or by having any artificial structure placed upon it so as to effectually destroy or impair its usefulness.<sup>3</sup> Any gross burden or additional expense placed upon property for the benefit of the public is within the constitutional inhibition, where it is

London & C. P. Ry. Co., 27 Beav. 242; s. c., 28 L. J. N. S. 767; 5 Jur. N. S. 1114; Reddin v. Metropolitan B. of W., 4 DeG. F. & J. 532; s. c., 31 L. J. Ch. 660; Stone v. Commercial Ry. Co., 9 Sim. 621; s. c., 1 Eng. Ry. Cas. 375.

1. Wells v. Somerset & K. R. R. Co., 47 Me. 345; State v. Troth, 34 N. J. L. (5 Vr.) 377; McConiha v. Guthrie, 21 W. Va. 134; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1.

Exemption of Dwelling-Houses. — It has been held that the exemption of a dwelling-house would not include a garden and orchard or the curtilage. Wells v. Somerset & K. R. R. Co., 47 Me. 345. But a billiard-room attached to a hotel is within the exemption. State v. Troth, 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 422.

Under the English Statutes the exemption is to be construed liberally in favor of the owner of the property. Reddin v. Metropolitan B. of W., 31 L. J. Ch. 660. The word "house" includes court-yard, office, out-houses (whether finished or not), garden, and all that is necessary to the enjoyment of the house, if within the same ambit or circuit, whether attached to the main building or not, and though purchased subsequently to the erection of the main building. McConiha v. Guthrie, 21 W. Va. 134; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Cole v. West London & C. P. R. Co., 27 Beav. 242; Reg. v. Wycombe R. R. Co., 59 L. J. Ch. 462; s. c., L. R. 2 Q. B. 310; Marston v. London, C. & D. R. R. Co., 37 L. J. Ch. 483; Alexander v. West End & C. P. R. R. Co., 31 L. J. Ch. 500; Governors, etc., v. Charing Cross, R. R. Co., 30 L. J. Ch. 395; Dakin v. London, etc., R. R.

Co., 26 L. J. Ch. 734; Grosvenor v. Hampstead, J. R. R. Co., 26 L. J. Ch. 731.

2. Morris v. Schallsville B. R. R. Co., 4 Bush (Ky.) 448; Carris v. Commissioners of W., 2 Hill (N. Y.) 443.

3. Dodson v. Cincinnati, 34 Ohio St. 276; East Pennsylvania Ry. Co. v. Schollenberger, 54 Pa. St. 144; Pumpelly v. Green Bay Co., 80 U. S. (13 Wall.) 166; bk. 21 L. ed. 557.

A Mining Company engaged in Mining in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, in the course of its operations, washed away a large amount of debris, which was carried into the head waters of the Yuba River, whence it was carried on by the ordinary current and by floods into the lower portion of that stream, and into the Feather and Sacramento Rivers. The quantity of debris was so great that it filled the natural channel of the Yuba above the level of the banks and surrounding country, and buried with sand and gravel the farms of the riparian owners, on either side of the Yuba River, over a space two miles wide and twelve miles long. It was held, that a statute of the State of California expressly authorizing the acts which resulted in the damage, would be in conflict with the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution, — the Yuba, Feather, and Sacramento Rivers having been navigable, — and also in conflict with similar provisions of the State Constitution, and that such legislation would either deprive the riparian owners of their property without due process of law, or take or damage their property for alleged public use without compensation. Woodruff v. North Broomfield Gravel Mining Co., 81 Fed. Rep. 753.

not imposed as a tax applicable to the property of all the citizens of the State.<sup>1</sup> But where the right taken is held by a mere licensee, and is subject to defeasance by the State at any time, there is no taking within the meaning of the Constitution.<sup>2</sup>

2. Entry for Permanent Occupation. — Entry upon land with the intention of permanently occupying, is a taking. There must, however, be an intention to permanently occupy the land: mere temporary user is not sufficient.<sup>3</sup>

1. Requiring weighing Coal at Mines — A "Taking of Private Property for Public Use." — An Illinois Act provided for the weighing of coal at the mines. It required the owners and operators of mines to provide scales, and weigh all coal taken out, and to make such weight the basis of wages paid to miners. It also provided that a record of all coal weighed at the mines should be kept, such record to be open to public inspection. A penalty of fine and imprisonment was prescribed to be enforced against any owner or operator failing to comply with the provisions of the Act. It was held that the requirement that a record be kept for public information is a taking of property for public uses, and invalid unless compensation be made therefor. Millett v. People, 117 Ill. 294; s. c., 57 Am. Rep. 869; 15 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 1.

Fishway in Dam. — A railway company to which the absolute sale of a State dam on a navigable river was made, held a charter from the State, in which there was no power of change or revocation reserved. Subsequently the Legislature passed an Act requiring every individual or corporation, having or maintaining any dam on the river, to construct or maintain a sluice, or other device, for the free passage of fish. The railroad company assigned its interest in the dam to a canal company formed after the passage of the Fish Act. On an indictment against the canal company for a failure to comply with the Act, it was held, that the power to cause the changes to be made in the dam was within the right of eminent domain; but that the Act was unconstitutional in so far as it imposed the burden of expenses of the changes upon the canal company, because it authorized the "taking of private property for public use without compensation." Com. v. Pennsylvania Canal Co., 66 Pa. St. 41; s. c., 5 Am. Rep. 329.

2. Rights of Lessees. — Pursuant to authority conferred by law, the board of public works of a State leased the surplus water of her canals, but reserved the right to resume the use of it, when it should be needed for the purpose of navigation. A statute was subsequently passed whereby one of the canals within certain limits was granted to, and appropriated by, a city for a highway. Held, that the lessee was not thereby deprived of his property without due process of law, as the State, so far from assuming an obligation to maintain the canals to supply water-power, had the right, of which every lessee was bound to take notice, to discontinue them, whenever the Legislature deemed expedient. Fox v. Cincinnati, 104 U. S. (14 Otto) 783; bk. 26 L. ed. 928.

3. Mere Selection of Land and Institution of Proceedings to ascertain Value is not a Taking, so that a payment or securing of compensation must precede the same. United States v. Oregon Ry. & Nav. Co., 9 Sawy. C. C. 61; 16 Fed. Rep. 524; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23. Compare Marion & M. V. R. R. Co. v. Ward, 9 Ind. 123, where it was held that the right of the owner to obtain an easement of damages is perfected by the location of the road without any other act of appropriation on the part of the company.

A corporation having under the Act of Parliament right to take land for certain public works, gave notice to the owner of the inheritance of an intention to take it. They then entered regularly upon the land for the purpose of surveys, etc.; and afterwards their contractors, without the knowledge of the corporation, but with the assent of the occupying tenants, brought some wagons and rails and other implements on the land, and there left them, but did not commence the work, or do any damage. This was done without obtaining the assent of the plaintiff, but it became known to his agent in the end of December. In the beginning of the following February, without any previous communication with the defendants, he filed his bill for an injunction to restrain them from allowing the wagons, etc., to remain on the land, and from taking possession of the land until they had complied with the provisions of the Land Clauses consolidation Act. Held, that though the corporation were bound by the acts of their contractors, the acts done were not a taking possession within the meaning of the Act, and that the bill was improperly filed. Standish v. Mayor, etc., of Liverpool, 1 Drew, 1; s. c., 15 Eng. L. & Eq. 255.

3. Seizure for Military Purposes. — Where the government takes the use of property for the purpose of facilitating military operations, it is under an implied contract to compensate the owner.<sup>1</sup>

4. Interruption of Use. — It is not necessary that property should be taken in a literal sense to entitle the owner to compensation: a serious interruption to the common and necessary use of property may amount to a taking within the meaning of the constitutional provision, and entitle the owner to compensation.<sup>2</sup>

5. Injuriously affecting Property. — a. Incidental Injuries. — To entitle the owner to recover, the injury to his property must be of a special direct nature, affecting the owner only, and not differing, only in degree, from those suffered by the rest of the community.<sup>3</sup> It must also, in the absence of the statute authorizing the payment of damages for other injuries, be an injury for which, if committed without the authority of the sovereign power, would

When Land "taken." — But it has been held that land is not "taken for public use," in the sense of the word "taken" as used in the Constitution, until the last act is done which is required to transfer the title or subject it to servitude. Fox v. Western P. R. R. Co., 31 Cal. 538.

1. United States v. Russell, 80 U. S. (13 Wall.) 623; bk. 20 L. ed. 474.

The Owner of a Hay-Press offered to sell it to a Quartermaster, and the officer subsequently put the machine to use in the government service. It was held that it must be considered as property taken for public use, and that the owner might recover its reasonable value, and could not be required to take back the machine and accept compensation for its use. Peck v. United States, 14 Ct. of Cl. 84.

Destruction under Public Necessity. — Public "taking." — In Gilbert v. United States, 1 Ct. of Cl. 28, it was laid down that in respect to the obligation to make compensation, there is no difference between the taking of private property to be used for public purposes, and the taking of it to be destroyed under a public necessity, e. g., where buildings and stores belonging to an individual are necessarily burned by army officers in carrying on hostilities in time of war.

2. Pumpelly v. Green Bay Co., 80 U. S. (13 Wall.) 166; bk. 20 L. ed. 557; Crocker v. New York, 15 Rep. 135.

Interference with an Easement. — In Eagle v. Charing Cross Ry. Co., L. R. 2 C. P. 638, it was held that an interference of an easement, in that case a diminution of light in plaintiff's premises, caused by the erection of a railway and the works connected therewith, was a taking within the meaning of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act.

3. City of Pekin v. Winkel, 77 Ill. 57;

Stone v. Fairbury, P. & N. W. R. R. Co., 68 Ill. 396; City of Pekin v. Brereton, 67 Ill. 479; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 629; Wesson v. Washburn Iron Co. 95 Mass. (13 Allen) 95; Blood v. Nashua & L. R. R. Corp., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 140; s. c., 61 Am. Dec. 444; Hoffman v. Hoffman, 26 N. J. L. (2 Dutch.) 174; Baron v. Mayor of Baltimore, 2 Am. Jur. 103; Beckett v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 82; s. c., 17 L. T. N. S. 499; 37 L. J. C. P. 11; Duke of Buccleuch v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 3 Ex. 306; s. c., L. R. 5 Ex. 231; 5 H. L. Cas. Eng. & Ir. App. 418; Reg. v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 4 Q. B. 358; Chamberlain v. West End of London & C. P. Ry. Co., 2 Best & S. 605; s. c., 110 Eng. C. L. 605; Wood v. Stourbridge Ry. Co., 16 C. B. N. S. 236; Metropolitan Board of Works v. McCarthy, L. R. 7 H. L. Cas. 243, 256.

English Cases under "Land Clauses Consolidation Act" in Point. — In Delaplaine v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 42 Wis. 214, it was insisted, in argument, that a leading case arising under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act was not authority for the construction of the Constitution of Wisconsin, for the reason that the Act allows damages when lands are "injuriously affected." To this the Supreme Court replied, "But the test applied to determine the proper meaning of the words 'injuriously affected' as giving a right to compensation was, whether the act done in carrying out the works in question was an act which would have given a right of action if the works had not been authorized by an Act of Parliament. In other words, if the act affecting the land had been done by an individual he would be liable for the damages. This remark shows that the decisions made under that Act are in point."

have given a right of action against the corporation or individual.<sup>1</sup> Compensation can be claimed for any personal inconvenience or injury not connected with real property.<sup>2</sup>

b. Premises not taken.—Owners of property adjoining a railroad are not usually entitled to damages for injury done to their property by the usual and necessary operation of the railroad. All damage done in this way is considered consequential, and is damnum absque injuria.<sup>3</sup> In some of the States, however, consequential damages are provided for by the constitution or by the statute. In such cases the owner of the property injured, though not taken, is entitled to compensation.<sup>4</sup>

c. By granting Rival Franchises.—A franchise granted by the Legislature which is not exclusive in its terms may be injured or affected by another franchise, granted by the Legislature, without

1. Eaton v. Boston, C. & M. R. R. Co., 51 N. H. 519; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 147; McCarthy v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 8 C. P. 209; s. c., L. R. 7 H. L. Cas. 243; Beckett v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 82; s. c., 17 L. T. N. S. 499; 37 L. J. C. P. 11; Hall v. Mayor of Bristol, L. R. 2 C. P. 322; Hammersmith & C. Ry. Co. v. Brand, L. R. 4 H. L. Cas. Eng. & Ir. App. 171; Rickett v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 5 Best & S. 156; s. c., 34 L. J. Q. B. 257; L. R. 2 H. L. Cas. 187; Chamberlain v. West End of London & C. P. Ry. Co., 2 Best & S. 605; s. c., 110 Eng. C. L. 605; Cameron v. Charing Cross Ry. Co., 16 C. B. N. S. 430; s. c., 111 Eng. C. L. 430; In re Penny & S. E. Ry. Co., 7 El. & Bl. 660; s. c., 90 Eng. C. L. 660; Glover v. North Staffordshire Ry., 16 Ad. & El. N. S. 923; s. c., 71 Eng. C. L. 923; Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Ogilvy, MacQueen's Sc. App. 229.

"Act injuriously affecting."—What amounts to.—In McCarthy v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 8 C. P. 209, Bramwell, C. B., said, "The act therefore injuriously affecting must be that which would be wrongful but for the statute, but I agree that it need not be that for which an action would lie: it is enough that it would be indictable, or might be prevented by injunction."

2. Beckett v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 82; s. c., 17 L. T. N. S. 499; 37 L. J. C. P. 11; 16 W. R. 221; Metropolitan Board of Works v. McCarthy, L. R. 7 H. L. Cas. Eng. & Ir. App. 256; Wilkes v. Hungerford Market Co., 2 Bing. N. C. 291; Bird v. Great Eastern R. R. Co., 34 L. J. C. P. 366; Ricketts v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 34 L. J. Q. B. 257.

3. Colorado C. R. R. Co. v. Mollandin, 4 Colo. 154; Hyde Park v. Dunham, 85 Ill. 569; Patterson v. Chicago, D. & V. R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 588; Stetson v. Chicago & E.

R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 74; Page v. Chicago, M., & St. P. R. R. Co., 70 Ill. 324; Nichols v. Somerset & K. R. R. Co., 43 Me. 356; Whittier v. Portland & K. R. R. Co., 38 Me. 26; Rogers v. Kennebec & P. R. R. Co., 35 Me. 319; Rochette v. Chicago, M., & St. P. R. R. Co., 32 Minn. 201; Shaubut v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 502, s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 192; Thompson v. Androscoggin R. I. Co., 54 N. H. 545; s. c., 58 N. H. 108; Eaton v. Boston, C. & M. R. R. Co., 51 N. H. 504; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 147; Morris & Essex R. R. Co. v. Newark, 10 N. J. Eq. (2 Stockt.) 352; Selden v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 29 N. Y. 634; Bellinger v. New York C. R. R. Co., 23 N. Y. 42; Arnold v. Hudson R. R. R. Co., 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 108; Struthers v. Dunkirk, W. & P. R. R. Co., 87 Pa. St. 282; Hornstein v. Atlantic & G. W. R. R. Co., 51 Pa. St. 87; Case of Philadelphia & T. R. R. Co., 6 Whart. (Pa.) 25; Richardson v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 465; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 283; Alexander v. City of Milwaukee, 16 Wis. 247.

4. Chicago & W. I. Ry. v. Ayres, 106 Ill. 511; Chicago v. Union B. Assoc., 102 Ill. 379; Rigney v. Chicago, 102 Ill. 64; Pittsburg, Ft. W., & C. R. R. v. Reich, 101 Ill. 157; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. v. Hall, 90 Ill. 42; Brown v. Providence, W. & B. R. R. Co., 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 35; Dodge v. Essex, 44 Mass. (3 Metc.) 380; Republican Valley R. Co. v. Fellers, 16 Neb. 169; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 256; Gottschalk v. Chicago, B., & Q. R. R., 14 Neb. 550; Dearborn v. Boston, C., & M. R. R. Co., 24 N. H. 179; Clark v. Boston, C. & M. R. R. Co., 24 N. H. 114; Watson v. Pittsburg & C. R. R. Co., 37 Pa. St. 469; Schuylkill Navigation Co. v. Thoburn, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411; Smith v. Gould, 61 Wis. 31; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 472.

any compensation being made.<sup>1</sup> But where the grant has been exclusive in its terms compensation must be made.<sup>2</sup>

d. Injuries to Business.—In some cases it has been held that loss of profits, business, and good-will are not grounds for the recovery of damages.<sup>3</sup> But damages therefor have been allowed, where the business was in some way connected with the land upon which it was carried on.<sup>4</sup> And in a number of cases it has been held that evidence is admissible to show the effect of the construction of the railroad upon the business, as an aid in the assessment of damages.<sup>5</sup>

e. Smoke and Dust.—Where the construction of a public improvement has, by loading the atmosphere with smoke, gases, ashes, cinders, or other foreign substances, the effect of impairing the natural easement which every land-owner has in the passage of pure air, this is considered to be an injury affecting his property, for which he can recover compensation.<sup>6</sup>

1. Dyer v. Tuscaloosa B. Co., 2 Port. (Ala.) 296; s. c., 25 Am. Dec. 655; Enfield Toll Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 454; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 954; Troy & B. R. R. Co. v. North Turnpike Co., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 100; Matter of Hamilton Ave., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 405; Mohawk B. Co. v. Utica & S. R. R. Co., 6 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 554; Red River Bridge Co. v. Mayor, etc., of Clarksville, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 176; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 143; White River Turnpike v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 21 Vt. 590; Charles River Bridge Co. v. Warren Bridge Co., 24 Mass. (7 Pick.) 344; Hopkins v. Great Northern Ry. Co., L. R. 2 Q. B. Div. 224; s. c., 20 Moak's Eng. Rep. 295.

2. Piscataqua B. Co. v. New Hampshire B. Co., 7 N. H. 35; Mason v. Harper's Ferry B. Co., 17 W. Va. 396; Reg. v. Cambrian R. R. Co., L. R. 6 Q. B. 422.

3. Jacksonville & S. E. R. Co. v. Walsh, 106 Ill. 253; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 245; Cobb v. Boston, 109 Mass. 438; Edmands v. Boston, 108 Mass. 535; Whitman v. Boston & M. R. R., 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 133; Eaton v. Boston, C. & M. R. R., 51 N. H. 504; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 147; In re Mount Washington Road, 35 N. H. 134; Union V. & J. R. R. v. Akin, 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 457; Canandaigua & N. F. R. R. v. Payne, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 273; Eddings v. Seabrook, 12 Rich. (S. C.) L. 504; Rickett v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 5 Best & S. 149; s. c., 117 Eng. C. L. 149; Metropolitan Board of Works v. McCarthy, L. R. 7 H. L. Cas. E. & I. App. 256; Reg. v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 4 Q. B. 358; Queen v. Vaughan, L. R. 4 Q. B. 190.

4. South Carolina R. R. Co. v. Steiner, 44 Ga. 559; Chamberlain v. West End of London & C. P. Ry. Co., 2 Best & S. 605;

s. c., 110 Eng. C. L. 605; Wood v. Stourbridge Ry. Co., 16 C. B. N. S. 222; Senior v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 2 Hurl. & C. 258.

Damage to Business carried on on Land condemned or affected.—In Cameron v. Charing Cross Ry. Co., 16 C. B. N. S. 430, 447, the court said, "Damage to a man's interest in land necessarily includes damage to the business which he carries on upon the land, by diverting it from its accustomed channel. Such an interest is not merely personal, it is an interest which a man enjoys in respect of land; a reasonable expectation of profit is commonly called 'good-will,' and is a 'marketable thing.' . . . Then, if an action would have lain for this injury against a person doing it without the sanction of an Act of Parliament, the party injured is entitled to claim compensation for it under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act."

5. Lafayette, M., & B. R. R. v. Murdock, 68 Ind. 137; St. Louis V. & T. H. R. R. v. Capps, 67 Ill. 607; s. c., 72 Ill. 188; Edmands v. Boston, 108 Mass. 535; Boston & W. R. R. v. Old Colony R. R., 67 Mass. (12 Cush.) 605; s. c., 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 142; Sherwood v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 127; Western Pennsylvania R. R. v. Hill, 56 Pa. St. 460; Driver v. Western Union R. R., 32 Wis. 569.

Good-will of Business.—In Edmands v. Boston, 108 Mass. 535, 549, the court say, "Good-will of the business of a lessee or other owner is not property for which damages can be included, and is to be considered only so far as it tends to enhance the market value of the estate that is injured," thus admitting that such evidence should properly be considered where it does tend to enhance the market value.

6. Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. R. Co. v. Esterle, 13 Bush (Ky.) 667; Bangor & P.

f. Noise and Vibration. — It has been held that the vibration and jarring of property by the construction of a railroad are proper subjects of compensation.<sup>1</sup> Inconvenience and annoyance occasioned by noise and confusion of passing trains has also been allowed an injury for which compensation may be claimed.<sup>2</sup> But anticipated inconvenience, arising from noise in the highway, caused by people brought there by means of the improvement, will not be a ground for damages.<sup>3</sup>

g. Obstruction of Light. — Any improvement which impairs the easement of light, whether by reason of the structure itself or either the passage of cars or other vehicles along it, injuriously affects property, and compensation must be made therefor.<sup>4</sup>

h. Injury to Residue of Tract. — Where a part of a tract of land of a city or village lot is taken, the owner is entitled to recover for the injuries inflicted upon the residue of the property.<sup>5</sup> But

R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Lahr v. Metropolitan E. Ry. Co., 104 N. Y. 268, 295; Drucker v. Manhattan R. R. Co., 106 N. Y. 157; s. c., 60 Am. Rep. 437; Caro v. Metropolitan E. R. R. Co., 46 N. Y. Super. Ct. (14 J. & S.) 138; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; Brand v. Hammersmith & C. R. R., L. R. 2 Q. B. 223; East & West India Docks, etc., v. Gattke, 3 Mac. & G. 155. Contra, Mix v. Lafayette B. & M. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 319; Dimmick v. Council Bluffs & St. L. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 409; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 105; Atchison & N. R. R. Co. v. Garside, 10 Kans. 552; Cogswell v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R. Co., 48 N. Y. Super. Ct. (16 J. & S.) 31; Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Odum, 53 Tex. 343; City of Glasgow U. Ry. Co. v. Hunter, L. R. 2 H. L. Sc. App. 78.

Noise, Smoke, Soot, etc. — In Walker v. Old Colony & N. R. R. Co., 103 Mass. 10; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 509, the court held that the effects of noise, smoke, soot, and the like are not distinct elements of damages in estimating the depreciation in value of the entire tract; these causes may be considered, in so far as the annoyance and inconvenience arising therefrom are increased by reason of, and as incident to, the taking of a part of the land. Dimmick v. Council Bluffs & St. L. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 409; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 105; Bowen v. Atlantic & F. B. V. R. Co., 17 S. C. 574; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 332.

1. Henderson v. New York C. R. R. Co., 17 Hun (N. Y.), 344; In re New York C. & H. R. R. Co., 15 Hun (N. Y.), 63; Cohen v. City of Cleveland, 43 Ohio St. 190; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 405; Croft v. London & N. W. Ry. Co., 3 Best & S. 436; s. c., 113 Eng. C. L. 435.

Vibration — Actual Injury — English Doctrine. — But in Penny v. South E. Ry. Co.,

7 El. & Bl. 660; s. c., 90 Eng. C. L. 658, the court held, under the English statute, that actual injury to the premises from the vibration caused by ballast-trains on the railway during the construction of the works is a ground for compensation; but Lord Campbell indicated that injury from that cause, after the construction had been completed, is not.

2. Little Rock, M. R. & T. Ry. v. Allen, 41 Ark. 431; Mix v. Lafayette B. & M. Ry. Co., 67 Ill. 319; Wilson v. Des Moines, O. & S. R. Co., 67 Iowa, 509; Bangor & P. R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; County of Blue Earth v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 28 Minn. 503; First Baptist Church of S. v. Schenectady & T. R. R. Co., 5 Barb. (N. Y.) 79; White v. Charlotte & S. C., R. R. Co., 6 Rich. (S. C.) L. 47; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. R. v. Eddins, 60 Tex. 656. Contra, Republican V. R. R. Co. v. Linn, 15 Neb. 234; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 108; Hammersmith & C. Ry. Co. v. Brand, L. R. 4 H. L. Cas. 176; s. c., 38 L. J. Q. B. 265; 21 L. T. N. S. 238; City of Glasgow U. Ry. Co. v. Hunter, L. R. 2 H. L. Sc. App. 78.

3. St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Haller, 82 Ill. 208; First Parish v. Middlesex, 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 106.

4. Lahr v. Metropolitan E. Ry. Co., 104 N. Y. 268; Drucker v. Manhattan Ry. Co., 106 N. Y. 157; s. c., 60 Am. Rep. 437; Cohen v. City of Cleveland, 43 Ohio St. 190; s. c., 9 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 405.

Destruction of Privacy of Premises. — The Court of King's Bench holds that mere destruction of the privacy of premises, which might be overlooked by a railway, was not such an injury as entitled the owner to compensation under the English statutes. In re Penny, 7 El. & Bl. 660.

5. Injury to Residue of Tract. — St. Louis, A. & T. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 39 Ark.

he can only recover for those injuries which are direct in their nature, and can in no case recover for those which he shares in common with the rest of the public;<sup>1</sup> and his recovery is limited to cases where the improvement, if properly constructed and managed, will, with reasonable certainty, injure his property.<sup>2</sup> Thus in the case of farms, the owners can recover for the inconvenience caused by dividing the farm into parts,<sup>3</sup> or from cuts, ditches, and embankments;<sup>4</sup> but the adjoining land to which the injury has been done must have been used in connection with the part taken. Thus, when a portion of a village property is taken the owner is not entitled to compensation for injuries affected upon adjacent farm land.<sup>5</sup>

i. Change of Grade.—Injuries resulting from the change of the grade of a street, made in accordance with the statute, do not afford a ground for the recovery of damages against municipal corporations, in the absence of a statute rendering such corporation liable therefor.<sup>6</sup> But under the provisions of the constitu-

- 167; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Redwine, 51 Ga. 470; Keithsburg & E. R. R. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Peoria, A. & D. R. Co. v. Sawyer, 71 Ill. 361; Mix v. Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 319; Tonica & P. R. R. Co. v. Unsicker, 22 Ill. 221; Baltimore, P. & C. R. R. v. Lansing, 52 Ind. 229; Montmorency G. Road Co. v. Stockton, 43 Ind. 328; Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co. v. Horn, 41 Ind. 479; White W. V. R. Co. v. McClure, 29 Ind. 536; Kucheman v. C. C. & D. R. R. Co., 46 Iowa, 366; Reisner v. Atchison, U. D. & R. Co., 27 Kans. 382; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 155; Kansas C. E. & S. R. R. v. Merrill, 25 Kans. 421; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 485; Atchison & N. R. R. v. Gough, 29 Kans. 94; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 151; Richmond & L. T. Road Co. v. Rogers, 1 Duv. (Ky.) 135; Walker v. Old Colony & N. R. Co., 103 Mass. 10; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 509; First Church in Boston v. Boston, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 214; Commonwealth v. Coombs, 2 Mass. 489; Scott v. St. Paul & C. R. R., 21 Minn. 322; Simmons v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 184; Lake Superior & M. R. R. Co. v. Greve, 17 Minn. 322; Winona & St. P. R. Co. v. Waldron, 11 Minn. 515; Winona & St. P. R. R. v. Denman, 10 Minn. 267; Wilmes v. Minneapolis & N. R. R., 29 Minn. 242; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 161; Board of County Comm'rs of Blue Earth Co. v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R., 28 Minn. 503; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 209; Wyandotte, K. C. & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Waldo, 70 Mo. 629; Pacific R. R. v. Chrystal, 25 Mo. 544; Missouri, P. R. R. Co. v. Hays, 15 Neb. 224; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 177; Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. v. Lamb, 11 Neb. 592; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 367; In re Mount Washington, 35 N. H. 134; Dearborn v. Boston C. & M. R. R. Co., 24 N. H. (4 Fost.) 179; Virginia & T. R. R. v. Henry, 8 Nev. 165; Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Ball, 5 Ohio St. 568; East Pennsylvania R. R. v. Hiestler, 40 Pa. St. 53; Watson v. Pittsburg & C. R. R., 37 Pa. St. 469; White v. Charlotte & S. C. R. R. Co., 6 Rich. (S. C.) 47; Baltimore & O. R. R. v. Pittsburg, W. & K. R. R., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444; Chapman v. Oshkosh & M. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 629; Parks v. Wisconsin C. R. R., 33 Wis. 413; Robbins v. Milwaukee & H. R. R., 6 Wis. 636.
1. Keithsburg & E. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Presbrey v. Old Colony & N. R. R., 103 Mass. 1.
2. Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. Co. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 592; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364.
3. McReynolds v. Burlington & O. Ry. Co., 106 Ill. 152; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 172; Peoria, A. & D. R. R. Co. v. Sawyer, 71 Ill. 566; Tucker v. Massachusetts C. R. R. Co., 118 Mass. 546; s. c., 9 Am. Ry. Rep. 279.
4. St. Louis A. & T. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 39 Ark. 167; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Blackshire, 10 Kans. 477; Missouri P. R. R. Co. v. Hays, 15 Neb. 224; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 177; Pittsburgh V. & C. R. R. Co. v. Rose, 74 Pa. St. 362; Wilmington, etc., R. R. Co. v. Stauffer, 60 Pa. St. 374.
5. Haines v. St. Louis, DesM. & N. R. R., 65 Iowa, 216; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 260.
6. Change of Grade of Street—Injuries resulting from.—Simmons v. Camden, 26

tions and statutes of many States, municipal corporations are bound to respond in damages.<sup>1</sup> If in making changes in the Ark. 276; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 620; Shaw v. Crocker, 42 Cal. 435; Fellowes v. New Haven, 44 Conn. 240; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 447; Burritt v. New Haven, 42 Conn. 174; Skinner v. Bridge Co., 29 Conn. 523; Clark v. Saybrook, 21 Conn. 313; Bradley v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 21 Conn. 294; Hooker v. New Haven & N. Co., 14 Conn. 146; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 477; Dorman v. Jacksonville, 13 Fla. 538; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 523; Fuller v. Atlanta, 66 Ga. 80; Mitchell v. Rome, 49 Ga. 29; Roll v. Augusta, 34 Ga. 326; Rome v. Ömberg, 28 Ga. 46; s. c., 73 Am. Dec. 748; Markham v. Mayor, etc., 23 Ga. 402; Quincy v. Jones, 76 Ill. 231; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 243; Nevins v. Peoria, 41 Ill. 502; Murphy v. Chicago, 29 Ill. 279; Roberts v. Chicago, 26 Ill. 249; Terre Haute v. Turner, 36 Ind. 522; City of Delphi v. Evans, 36 Ind. 90; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 12; Lafayette v. Fowler, 34 Ind. 140; Vincennes v. Richards, 23 Ind. 381; Lafayette v. Bush, 19 Ind. 320; Macy v. Indianapolis, 17 Ind. 267; Lafayette v. Spencer, 14 Ind. 399; Snyder v. Rockport, 6 Ind. 237; Hendershott v. Ottumwa, 46 Iowa, 658; s. c., 26 Am. Rep. 182; Burlington v. Gilbert, 31 Iowa, 356; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 143; Russell v. Burlington, 30 Iowa, 262; Ellis v. Iowa City, 29 Iowa, 229; Cole v. Muscatine, 14 Iowa, 296; Cotes v. Davenport, 9 Iowa, 227; Creal v. Keokuk, 4 G. Greene (Iowa), 47; Newport & C. B. Co. v. Foote, 9 Bush (Ky.), 264; Keasy v. Louisville, 4 Dana (Ky.), 154; Reynolds v. Shreveport, 13 La. An. 426; Hovey v. Mayo, 43 Me. 322; Mason v. Kennebec & P. Co., 31 Me. 215; Burr v. Leicester, 121 Mass. 241, 242; Snow v. Provincetown, 109 Mass. 123; Griggs v. Foot, 86 Mass. (4 Allen) 195; Morse v. Stocker, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 150, 154; Benjamin v. Wheeler, 74 Mass. (8 Gray) 409; Fernald v. Boston, 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 574, 577; Brown v. Lowell, 49 Mass. (8 Metc.) 172; Callender v. Marsh, 18 Mass. (1 Pick.) 418; Thurston v. Hancock, 12 Mass. 220; Pontiac v. Carter, 32 Mich. 164; Alden v. Minneapolis, 24 Minn. 254; Karst v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. Co., 22 Minn. 118; Lee v. Minneapolis, 22 Minn. 13; White v. Yazoo City, 27 Miss. 357; Thomson v. Boonville, 61 Mo. 282; Wegmann v. Jefferson, 61 Mo. 55; Imler v. Springfield, 55 Mo. 119; Schattner v. Kansas City, 53 Mo. 162; Hoffman v. St. Louis, 15 Mo. 651; Taylor v. St. Louis, 14 Mo. 20; St. Louis v. Gurno, 12 Mo. 414; Stickford v. St. Louis, 7 Mo. App. 217; Foster v. St. Louis, 4 Mo. App. 564; Schumacher v. St. Louis, 3 Mo. App. 297; Nebraska City v. Lampkin, 6 Neb. 27; Eaton v. Boston C. & M. R. R. Co., 51 N. H. 504; Trenton W. P. Co. v. Raff, 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 335; Quinn v. Paterson, 27 N. J. L. (3 Dutch.) 35; Plum v. Morris Canal & B. Co., 10 N. J. Eq. (2 Stockt.) 256; People v. Green, 64 N. Y. 606; St. Peter v. Denison, 58 N. Y. 416; Mills v. Brooklyn, 32 N. Y. 489; Radcliff v. Brooklyn, 4 N. Y. 195; Waddell v. Mayor, 8 Barb. (N. Y.) 95; Benedict v. Goit, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 459; Wilson v. Mayor of N. Y., 1 Den. (N. Y.) 595; Graves v. Otis, 2 Hill (N. Y.) 466; Matter of Furman St., 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 667; Pusey v. City of Allegheny, 98 Pa. St. 522; Carr v. Northern Liberties, 35 Pa. St. 324; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 342; In re Ridge Street, 29 Pa. St. 391; O'Connor v. Pittsburgh, 18 Pa. St. 187; Commissioners v. Wood, 10 Pa. St. 93; s. c., 49 Am. Dec. 582; Charlton v. Allegheny City, 1 Grant Cas. (Pa.) 208; Green v. Reading, 9 Watts (Pa.), 382; Henry v. Pittsburgh & A. B. Co., 8 Watts & S. (Pa.) 85; Simmons v. Providence, 12 R. I. 8; Humes v. Mayor, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 403; Tyson v. Milwaukee, 50 Wis. 78; Owens v. Milwaukee, 47 Wis. 461; Stowell v. Milwaukee, 31 Wis. 523; Church v. Milwaukee, 31 Wis. 512; Goodrich v. Milwaukee, 24 Wis. 422; Pearce v. Milwaukee, 18 Wis. 428; Weeks v. Milwaukee, 10 Wis. 242; Goodall v. Milwaukee, 5 Wis. 32; Transportation Co. v. Chicago, 99 U. S. (9 Otto) 635; bk. 25, L. ed. 336; Smith v. Washington, 61 U. S. (20 How.) 135; bk. 15, L. ed. 848; Gossler v. Georgetown, 19 U. S. (6 Wheat.) 593; bk. 5, L. ed. 339.

Ohio Doctrine.—In Ohio the courts hold that damages are recoverable for injuries resulting from a change of grade. Keating v. Cincinnati, 38 Ohio St. 141; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 421; Akron v. Chamberlain Co., 34 Ohio St. 328; Dodson v. Cincinnati, 34 Ohio St. 276; Richards v. Cincinnati, 31 Ohio St. 506; Youngstown v. Moore, 30 Ohio St. 133; Cincinnati v. Penny, 21 Ohio St. 499; Cincinnati Street Ry. v. Cumminsville, 14 Ohio St. 523; Crawford v. Delaware, 7 Ohio St. 459; Little Miami R. Co. v. Naylor, 2 Ohio St. 235; McComb v. Akron, 15 Ohio, 479; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 453; 18 Ohio, 229; Rhodes v. Cleveland, 10 Ohio, 159; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 82; Hickox v. Cleveland, 8 Ohio, 543; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 730; Goodloe v. Cincinnati, 4 Ohio, 500; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 764; Scovil v. Geddings, 7 Ohio, pt. 2, 211.

1. Liability of Corporations under Special Statutes.—Columbus v. Woollen Mills Co., 33 Ind. 435; Cole v. Muscatine, 14 Iowa, 296; Dalzell v. Davenport, 12 Iowa, 437; natural surface of streets the city is negligent in the construction of the new grade, so that adjacent lots are injured by reason thereof, the city is liable for the injury.<sup>1</sup>

j. Injury to Access. — In any operation other than the change of grade, which injures the access to property, is in general to be considered as sufficient to give a claim for damages.<sup>2</sup> But the owner must sustain a private and particular injury; some particular inconvenience, or annoyance, such as is only common to the public, being insufficient.<sup>3</sup>

k. Injuries to Crops. — If growing crops are destroyed by the appropriation of the right of way and entry thereunder, or if they are injured, the owner is entitled to compensation therefor.<sup>4</sup>

l. Danger of Fire. — If the value of a building for the purpose of a residence, for business, or for sale, should be greatly diminished by the effect of constant liability to take fire on account of the proximity of the railroad, such danger amounts to injuriously affecting the owner's property, and he is entitled to recover damages.<sup>5</sup> And the fact that the railroad company is responsible

Freeland v. Muscatine, 9 Iowa, 461; Burr v. Leicester, 121 Mass. 241; Snow v. Provincetown, 109 Mass. 123; Morse v. Stocker, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 150; Fernald v. Boston, 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 574; Flagg v. Worcester, 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 601; McCarthy v. St. Paul, 22 Minn. 527; Nebraska City v. Lampkin, 6 Neb. 27; Hurford v. Omaha, 4 Neb. 336; Harmon v. City of Omaha, 17 Neb. 548; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 474; 52 Am. Rep. 420; Pusey v. City of Allegheny, 98 Pa. St. 522; Crossett v. Janesville, 28 Wis. 420.

1. Shawneetown v. Mason, 82 Ill. 337; Bloomington v. Brokaw, 77 Ill. 194; City of Aurora v. Reed, 57 Ill. 30; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 1; Ellis v. Iowa City, 29 Iowa, 229; Cotes v. Davenport, 9 Iowa, 227; Wallace v. Muscatine, 4 G. Greene (Iowa), 373.

2. Injury to Access. — Hooper v. Savannah & M. R. R. Co., 69 Ala. 529; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 256; Ford v. Santa Cruz R. R. Co., 59 Cal. 290; Mason v. Kennebec & P. R. R. Co., 31 Me. 215; Parker v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 107; Minnesota V. R. R. Co. v. Doran, 17 Minn. 188; Virginia & T. R. R. Co. v. Lynch, 13 Nev. 92; Cohen v. City of Cleveland, 43 Ohio St. 190; Brainard v. Missisquoi R. R. Co., 48 Vt. 107; Delaplaine v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 42 Wis. 214; s. c., 24 Am. Rep. 386; 15 Am. Ry. Rep. 28; Caledonian R. Co. v. Walker, L. R. 7 App. Cas. 259; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 518; Lyon v. Fishmongers' Co., L. R. 1 App. Cas. 662; Rangeley v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 3 Ch. App. 306; Metropolitan B. of Works v. McCarthy, L. R. 7 H. L. Cas. 243; Chamberlain v. West End of London

& C. P. R. R. Co., 2 Best & S. 605; s. c., 9 Jur. N. S. 1051; 32 L. J. Q. B. 173; Reg. v. Eastern Co. Ry. Co., 2 Q. B. 347; Quillinan v. Canada S. R. Co., 6 Ont. C. P. Div. 567; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 31.

3. Special Injuries necessary to Recovery. — Central Br. U. Pac. R. R. Co. v. Andrews, 30 Kans. 590; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 248; Rochette v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 32 Minn. 201; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 192; Patten v. Northern C. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 612; Richardson v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 465; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 283; Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Walker, L. R. 7 App. Cas. 259; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 518; Caledonian R. R. Co. v. Ogilvy, 2 MacQ. 229; Wood v. Stourbridge R. R. Co., 16 C. B. N. S. 236; Glover v. North Staffordshire R. R. Co., 16 Q. B. 912; Law v. Caledonian Ry. Co., 13 Sc. Sess. Cas. (2d series) 1122.

4. Injury to Crops. — Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Redwine, 51 Ga. 470; St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Mollet, 59 Ill. 235; Lance v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 57 Iowa, 636; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 617.

5. Danger from Fire. — St. Louis, J. & C. R. R. Co. v. Springfield & N. W. R. R. Co., 96 Ill. 274; Lafayette, M. & B. R. R. Co. v. Murdock, 68 Ind. 137; Swinney v. Ft. Wayne, M. & C. R. R. Co., 59 Ind. 205; Kansas City & E. R. R. Co. v. Kregelo, 32 Kans. 668; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 241; Pierce v. Worcester & N. R. R., 105 Mass. 199; Colvill v. St. Paul & C. Ry. Co., 19 Minn. 283; Adden v. White Mts. N. H. R. R. Co., 55 N. H. 413; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 220; In re Utica, C. & S. V.

for all damages, whether resulting from negligence or not, will not defeat the land-owner's right of recovery,<sup>1</sup> although such liability may be taken into consideration as affecting the amount of the recovery;<sup>2</sup> but the danger must be real and imminent, and must be to buildings that are not at a distance.<sup>3</sup> But this rule does not appear to be absolute in its application. In some States compensation has been refused.<sup>4</sup>

m. Exposure of Property during Construction.—The inconvenience of having one's land temporarily thrown open in the process of constructing a railway over it is a proper subject of compensation;<sup>5</sup> but such right of recovery is confined to exposure during construction. The land-owner cannot recover for the disadvantage arising from increased numbers of the public frequenting the locality.<sup>6</sup>

n. Injuries to Fences.—If by the construction of a railroad through the owner's premises it becomes necessary to construct fences, the owner is entitled to compensation for doing so.<sup>7</sup> But

R. R., 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 456; Oregon & C. Ry. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311; Wilmington & C. R. R. v. Stauffer, 60 Pa. St. 374.

If the danger is so great as to render it necessary to remove the building, the cost of removing may be considered in assessing the damages. Oregon & C. Ry. Co. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311. The increase of the cost of insurance may be given in evidence as affecting the amount of recovery. Webber v. Eastern R. R., 43 Mass. (2 Metc.) 147; Wooster v. Sugar R. Valley R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 311; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 499.

1. Keithsburg & E. R. R. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Bangor & P. R. R. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Pierce v. Worcester & N. R. R., 105 Mass. 199; Adden v. White Mts. N. H. R. R., 55 N. H. 413; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 220; Somerville & E. R. R. v. Doughty, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 495.

2. Bangor & P. R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290.

3. Jones v. Chicago & I. R. R., 68 Ill. 380; St. Louis & S. R. R. v. Teters, 68 Ill. 144; Proprietors of Locks & Canals v. Nashua & L. R. R. Corp., 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 385; Hatch v. Cincinnati & I. R. R., 18 Ohio St. 92.

4. Lance v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R., 57 Iowa, 636; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 617; Rodemacher v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R., 41 Iowa, 297; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 592; In re Union Village & J. R. R. Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 457; s. c., 35 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 420; Wilmington & C. R. R. v. Stauffer, 60 Pa. St. 374; Patten v. Northern Cent. R. R., 33 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 612; Lehigh Valley R. R. v. Lazarus, 28 Pa. St. 203; Sunbury & E. R. R. v. Hummell, 27 Pa. St. 99; Ontario &

Q. R. Co. v. Taylor, 6 Ont. Q. B. Div. 338; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 100.

5. St. Louis, J., & S. R. R. Co. v. Kirby, 104 Ill. 345; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 214.

6. Patten v. Northern Cent. R. R., 33 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 612; Houston, E. & W. T. R. v. Adams, 63 Tex. 200; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 246. See also Kansas City, C., & E. R. R. Co. v. Kregelo, 32 Kans. 608; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 241.

7. Recovery for Construction of Fences rendered Necessary.—St. Louis, A., & T. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 39 Ark. 167; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; Sacramento V. R. R. Co. v. Moffatt, 6 Cal. 74; Vandegrift v. Delaware R. R. Co., 2 Houst. (Del.) 287; St. Louis, J., & S. R. R. Co. v. Kirby, 104 Ill. 345; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 214; St. Louis, J., & C. R. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 47 Ill. 165; Baltimore, P., & C. R. R. Co. v. Lansing, 52 Ind. 229; Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co. v. Horn, 41 Ind. 479; White Water V. R. R. v. McClure, 29 Ind. 536; Evansville, I., & C. S. L. R. R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 10 Ind. 120; Leavenworth, T. & S. R. R. Co. v. Paul, 28 Kans. 816; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 490; Winona & St. Peters R. R. Co. v. Waldron, 11 Minn. 515; Crowell v. New Orleans & N. E. R. R., 61 Miss. 631; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 306. In re Mt. Washington R. R. Co., 35 N. H. 134; New York & G. L. Ry. Co. v. Stanley, 35 N. J. Eq. (8 Stew.) 283; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 345. In re Rensselaer & S. R. R. Co., 4 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 553; Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; Pennsylvania & N. Y. R. R. & C. Co. v. Bunnell, 81 Pa. St. 414; s. c., 16 Am. Ry. Rep. 1; Delaware, L., & W. R. R. Co. v. Burson, 61 where the owner is not required by law to fence uncleared and uncultivated land, he is not entitled to compensation for the cost of fencing the same along the railroad-track.<sup>1</sup> And where the railway company has fenced its track, it has been held that the obligation to maintain cannot be taken into account in assessing compensation.<sup>2</sup>

o. Injuries from Improper Construction. — A person whose property is injured in any way from negligence or want of skill in the construction of any work authorized under the power of eminent domain may recover for such injuries.<sup>3</sup> Thus a railroad company is liable for damages caused by the negligent removal of support from an adjacent property.<sup>4</sup> But it is not liable for injuries caused by the independent acts of its contractors.<sup>5</sup> Damages resulting from improper construction are not recoverable by assessment as part of the compensation for the taking, but by subsequent action at law.<sup>6</sup>

6. Imposition of Additional Burden. — a. Construction of Railroads in Streets. — (1) Where Fee in abutting Land-Owner. — The appropriation of a street to railway uses imposes a new and additional servitude thereon;<sup>7</sup> and when the fee of the street is in the Pa. St. 369; Watson v. Pittsburg & C. R. R. Co., 37 Pa. St. 469; Danville, H., & W. R. R. v. Gearhart, 32 Leg. Int. (Pa.) 219; s. c., 1 W. N. Cas. 237; Greenville & C. R. R. Co. v. Partlow, 5 Rich (S. C.), L. 428. Compare Alabama & F. R. R. Co. v. Burkett, 46 Ala. 569; Richards v. Des Moines Valley R. R. Co., 18 Iowa, 259; Kennedy v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 521; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288.

It has been held that where damages have been assessed for the cost of fencing, the railroad company may maintain an action against the land-owner, if he neglects to fence, and that the obligation to fence becomes a covenant running with the land. St. Louis, J. & C. R. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 47 Ill. 165.

1. Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; North-Eastern R. R. Co. v. Sineath, 8 Rich (S. C.) L. 185.

2. Jones v. Chicago & I. R. R. Co., 68 Ill. 380.

3. Injuries resulting from Negligence and Want of Skill in Construction. — Terre Haute & I. R. R. Co. v. McKinley, 33 Ind. 274; Lafayette P. R. Co. v. New Albany & S. R. R., 13 Ind. 90; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 246; Miller v. Keokuk & D. M. R. R., 63 Iowa, 680; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 293; Cadle v. Muscatine W. R. R. Co., 44 Iowa, 11; Fleming v. Chicago, D., & M. R. R., 34 Iowa, 353; Perley v. B. C. & M. R. Co., 57 N. H. 212; Brewer v. Boston, C. & F. R. R., 113 Mass. 52; Pittsburgh, F. W. & C. R. R. Co. v. Gilleland, 50 Pa. St. 445; Waterman v.

Connecticut & P. R. R. Co., 30 Vt. 610; s. c., 73 Vt. 326.

4. Removal of Lateral Support. — Rear-don v. San Francisco, 66 Cal. 492; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 109; 7 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 454; Williams v. Natural Br. Plank Road Co., 21 Mo. 580; Richardson v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 465; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 283; Thompson v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 27 Wis. 93. Compare Bradley v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., Conn. 294.

But the railroad company is not liable for damages resulting from a caving in, where the company has been without fault or negligence. Boothby v. Androscoggin & K. R. R., 51 Me. 318.

5. Edmundson v. Pittsburgh, M., & Y. R. R. Co., 111 Pa. St. 316; s. c., 23 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 423; Cunningham v. International R. R. Co., 51 Tex. 503; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 632.

6. Terre Haute & I. R. R. v. McKinley, 33 Ind. 274; Cummins v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 397; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 86; King v. Iowa M. R. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 458; Republican Valley R. R. v. Linn, 15 Neb. 234; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 198; Dearborn v. Boston, C. & M. R. R. Co., 24 N. H. 179; Delaware, L., & W. R. R. Co. v. Salmon, 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 299; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 214; South Side R. R. Co. v. Daniel, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 344.

7. Imlay v. Union Branch R. R. Co., 26 Conn. 249; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 392; Bloomfield, etc., Gas Light Co. v. Calkins, 62 N. Y. 389; Mahon v. New York Cent.

abutting land-owner, the construction of a railroad thereon is a taking of his property within the meaning of the constitutional provision, and he is entitled to compensation therefor.<sup>1</sup>

(2) Where Fee vested in Public.—Where the fee of the street is not in the land-owner, but is vested in the public or the municipality, the construction of a railroad in a street confers no claim to compensation upon an abutting land-owner, if there is no interference or prevention of the public use of the street.<sup>2</sup> Where

R. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 658; Craig v. Rochester C. & B. R. Co., 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 494; Trustees of Presbyterian Society, etc., v. Auburn & R. R. Co., 3 Hill (N. Y.), 567.

1. Fee of Street in Land-Owner—Railway in Street—Damages.—Southern Pacific R. R. Co. v. Reed, 41 Cal. 256; Carson v. Central R. R. Co., 35 Cal. 325; Imlay v. Union Branch R. R. Co., 26 Conn. 249; s. c., 68 Am. Dec. 392; Stetson v. Chicago & E. R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 74; Indianapolis, B. & W. R. R. Co. v. Hartley, 67 Ill. 439; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 624; Eichels v. Evansville S. Ry., 78 Ind. 261; Terre Haute & I. R. R. Co. v. Scott, 74 Ind. 29; Cox v. Louisville, N. A. & C. R. R. Co., 48 Ind. 178; Kucheman v. C. C. & D. Ry. Co., 46 Iowa, 366; Werges v. St. Louis, C. & N. O. R. R., 35 La. An. 641; Harrison v. New Orleans Pac. Ry., 34 La. An. 462; Grand Rapids & I. R. R. v. Heisel, 47 Mich. 393; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 306; Carli v. Stillwater, St. R. & T. Co., 28 Minn. 373; s. c., 25 Alb. L. J. 156; Kaiser v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 22 Minn. 149; Adams v. Hastings & D. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 260; Harrington v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Gray v. First Div. St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 13 Minn. 315; Schurmeier v. St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 10 Minn. 82; State v. Laverack, 34 N. J. L. (5 Vr.) 201; Citizens Coach Co. v. Camden H. R. R., 33 N. J. Eq. (6 Stew.) 267; Morris & E. R. R. Co. v. Hudson Tunnel R. R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 385; Hinchman v. Paterson Horse R. R. Co., 17 N. J. Eq. (2 C. E. Gr.) 75; Story v. New York E. R. R. Co., 90 N. Y. 122; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 146; 7 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 596; Henderson v. New York C. R. R., 78 N. Y. 423; Craig v. Rochester, C. & B. R. R., 39 N. Y. 404; Wager v. Troy U. R. Co., 25 N. Y. 526; Mahon v. New York C. R. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 658; Carpenter v. Oswego & S. R. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 655; Bissell v. New York C. R. R., 23 N. Y. 61; Williams v. New York Cent. R. R., 16 N. Y. 97; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 651; Davis v. Mayor of New York, 14 N. Y. 506; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 186; Presbyterian Society v. Auburn & R. R. R., 3 Hill (N. Y.), 567; Lawrence R. R. Co. v. Williams, 35 Ohio St. 168; Spencer v. Point Pleasant & O. R. R., 23 W. Va. 406; Buchner v. Chicago M. & N. Ry., 60 Wis. 264; Blesch v. Chicago

& N. W. R. R. Co., 43 Wis. 183; Sherman v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R. Co., 40 Wis. 645; Pomeroy v. Milwaukee & C. R. R. Co., 16 Wis. 620; Ford v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 14 Wis. 609; s. c., 80 Am. Dec. 791; Pacific R. R. v. Leavenworth, 1 Dill. C. C. 393. Compare Whittier v. Portland & K. R. R. Co., 38 Me. 26; Peddycord v. Baltimore C. & E. M. P. R. R. Co., 34 Md. 463; Jones v. Keith, 37 Tex. 394; Brainard v. Missisquoi R. R. Co., 48 Vt. 107.

Pennsylvania Doctrine.—But in Pennsylvania it was held that the streets and highways might be used for railroad purposes, with the legislative sanction, without making compensation to abutting land-owners, even though they owned the fee. Struthers v. Dunkirk, W. & P. R. R. Co., 87 Pa. St. 282; s. c., 7 Cent. L. J. 213; Danville, H. & W. R. R. Co. v. Com., 73 Pa. St. 29; Cleveland & P. R. R. v. Speer, 56 Pa. St. 325; Snyder v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 55 Pa. St. 340; Mercer v. Pittsburg, N. F. W. & C. R. R. Co., 36 Pa. St. 99; Com. v. Erie & N. E. R. R. Co., 27 Pa. St. 339; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 471; Mifflin v. Harrisburg, P. M. & L. R. R., 16 Pa. St. 182; Case of "Philadelphia & T. R. Co.", 6 Whart. (Pa.) 25. This rule, however, has been altered by the provision of the present Pennsylvania constitution adopted in 1874, art. 16, sect. 8, of which provides as follows: "Municipal and other corporations and individuals invested with the privilege of taking private property for public use, shall make just compensation for the property taken, injured, or destroyed by the construction or enlargement of their works, highways, or improvements;" and it has been held that this clause gives the right to consequential damages in the cases therein mentioned. Minnig v. New York C. & St. L. R. R. Co., 11 W. N. C. (Pa.) 297; Pusey v. City of Allegheny, 10 W. N. C. (Pa.) 561. See also City of Reading v. Althouse, 93 Pa. St. 400.

2. Fee in City—When Damage recoverable.—Market Street R. R. Co. v. Central R. R. Co., 51 Cal. 583; Carson v. Central R. R. Co., 35 Cal. 325; Elliott v. Fair Haven & W. R. R. Co., 32 Conn. 579; Nicholson v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 22 Conn. 74; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 390; Colorado C. R. R. Co. v. Mollandin, 4 Colo. 154; Savan-

the property is seriously injured by reason of the fact that the use of the street as such is interfered with, there are many cases holding that the owner is entitled to compensation.<sup>1</sup>

(3) Railroad Crossings.—When a highway is laid out by the proper authority across a railroad company's right of way, this is not such a taking of property as entitles the company to damages;<sup>2</sup>

nah & T. R. R. v. Savannah, 45 Ga. 602; Pittsburgh, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co. v. Reich, 101 Ill. 157; Chicago v. Rumsey, 87 Ill. 348; Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co. v. McGinnis, 79 Ill. 269; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co. v. Joliet, 79 Ill. 25; Patterson v. Chicago, D. & V. R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 588; Stetson v. Chicago & E. R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 74; Stone v. Fairbury, P. & N. R. R., 68 Ill. 394; Murphy v. City of Chicago, 29 Ill. 279; Moses v. Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co., 21 Ill. 516; New Albany & S. R. R. Co. v. O'Daily, 12 Ind. 551; Heath v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 61 Iowa, 11; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 313; Franz v. Sioux City & P. Ry., 55 Iowa, 107; Barr v. City of Oskaloosa, 45 Iowa, 275; Ingram v. C. D. & M. R. R. Co., 38 Iowa, 669; Chicago N. & S. R. R. Co. v. Mayor, etc., of Newton, 36 Iowa, 299; Slatten v. Des Moines Valley V. R. Co., 29 Iowa, 148; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 205; City of Clinton v. Cedar Rapids & M. R. R. Co., 24 Iowa, 455; Milburn v. City of Cedar Rapids, 12 Iowa, 246; Atchison & N. R. R. Co. v. Garside, 10 Kans. 552; Cosby v. Owensboro & R. R. R. Co., 10 Bush (Ky.), 288; Newport & C. B. Co. v. Foote, 9 Bush (Ky.), 264; Lexington & O. R. R. Co. v. Applegate, 8 Dana (Ky.), 289; Louisville & F. R. R. Co. v. Brown, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 763; Wolfe v. Covington & L. R. R., 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 404; Hiss v. Baltimore & H. P. R. R. Co., 52 Md. 242; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 371; s. c., 4 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 201; Brown v. Duplessis, 14 La. An. 854; Whittier v. Portland & K. R. R. Co., 38 Me. 26; Attorney-General v. Metropolitan R. R. Co., 125 Mass. 515; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 264; Grand Rapids & I. R. R. v. Heisel, 47 Mich. 393; Lackland v. North Missouri R. R. Co., 34 Mo. 259; Porter v. North Missouri R. R. Co., 33 Mo. 128; Kellinger v. Forty-second St. & Grand St. R. R. Co., 50 N. Y. 206; People v. Kerr, 27 N. Y. 188; Drake v. Hudson R. R. R., 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 508; Cincinnati & S. G. Ave. R. Co. v. Cumminsville, 14 Ohio St. 523; McLaughlin v. Charlotte & S. C. R. R. Co., 5 Rich. (S. C.) 583; Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Odum, 52 Tex. 343; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 503; Brainerd v. Missisquoi R. R. Co., 48 Vt. 107; Spencer v. Point Pleasant & O. R. R., 23 W. Va. 406.

Colorado Doctrine.—But in the case of City of Denver v. Bayer, 7 Colo. 113; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 465, the court discuss this question, and remark, "The position taken in some of the cases is, that, if the adjoining owner have not the fee of the streets, and the value of his property be diminished fifty per cent by the construction of a railroad therein, he has no redress; while, if he be the fortunate owner of this fee, he may recover not only for the taking or appropriation of the street, but also for the interference with his easement, and the decrease occasioned in the value of his premises. Yet, whether he own the fee or not, his rights in connection with the street, while it remains a street, are practically the same. His possession of his fee in no special way contributes to the use or enjoyment of his lot, and enables him to exercise no greater control over the street than he would have without it. The distinction as to the fee seems to rest upon the fact that in one case there is a wrongful incumbrance of his freehold, while in the other there is not. The actual injury is about the same in both. But while, if the fee rests in the city, there may be no wrongful incumbrance of his estate in the sense of these cases, there is, under our Constitution, at least, a damaging thereof for which he is entitled to compensation."

1. Fee in Public Property seriously injured—Damages.—Terre Haute & I. R. R. Co. v. Scott, 74 Ind. 29; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 208; Scott v. Indianapolis & V. R. R. Co. (Ind.); s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 189; Mulholland v. Des Moines A. & W. R. R. Co., 60 Iowa, 740; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 99; Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co. v. Heisel, 47 Mich. 393; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 260; Brakken v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. R. Co., 29 Minn. 41; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 593; Starr v. Camden & A. R. R. Co., 24 N. J. L. (4 Zab.) 592; Scioto Valley R. R. Co. v. Lawrence, 38 Ohio, 41; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 93; Gulf, Colorado & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Graves (Tex.); 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 199; Dixon v. Baltimore & P. R. R. Co., 1 Mackey (D. C.), 78; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 201.

2. Public Road across Railway's Right of Way.—Bridgeport v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 36 Conn. 255; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 63; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co. v. Lake, 71 Ill. 333; Gilman v. Haverhill, 128 Mass. 36; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 20; City of Hannibal v. Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co., 49 Mo. 480; Boston & A. R. R. Co.

but where the company is required to erect sign-posts and maintain the crossing, there is in such case a taking for which compensation must be made.<sup>1</sup> Where a railroad company constructs its track across a turnpike, compensation must be made to the turnpike company.<sup>2</sup> The owner of property which abuts upon a highway cannot recover damages for the mere crossing of the highway by the tracks of the railroad;<sup>3</sup> but if his property is injured by a change of grade made for the purpose of laying said track, he can recover.<sup>4</sup> Where one railroad company is authorized to run its tracks over the land of another, this is a taking for which compensation must be made.<sup>5</sup>

b. Construction of Horse-Railways in Street. — The construction of a horse-railway in a public street is a legitimate use of the highway and an exercise of the right of public travel. It is generally held, therefore, that no additional burden is imposed, and the owner of abutting property is not entitled to recover,<sup>6</sup> even though the land-owner have the fee in the street.<sup>7</sup> But a horse-

v. Greenbush, 52 N. Y. 510; Albany R. R. Co. v. Brownell, 24 N. Y. 345; Sixth Ave. R. R. Co. v. Kerr, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 138; Little Miami & C. & X. R. R. Cos. v. Dayton, 23 Ohio St. 510; Iron R. R. Co. v. Ironton, 19 Ohio St. 299; Philadelphia & R. R. Co. v. City of Philadelphia, 47 Pa. St. 325. Compare Boston & M. R. R. Co. v. Middlesex, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 324; Grand Junction R. & D. Co. v. County Commissioners, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 553; Old Colony & F. R. R. Co. v. Plymouth Co., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 155.

1. Crossley v. O'Brien, 24 Ind. 325; Old Colony & F. R. R. Co. v. Plymouth Co., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 155.

2. Troy & B. R. R. Co. v. Northern Turnpike Co., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 100; Seneca R. Co. v. Albany & R. R. Co., 5 Hill (N. Y.), 170; Mahon v. Utica & S. R. R. Co., Hill & Den. (N. Y.) 156.

3. Morgan v. Des Moines & St. Louis R. R. Co., 64 Iowa, 589; s. c., 52 Am. Rep. 462; 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 67; Morris & E. R. R. Co. v. Newark, 10 N. J. Eq. (2 Stockt.) 352. Compare Starr v. Camden & A. R. R. Co., 22 N. J. L. (4 Zab.) 592.

4. Buchner v. Chicago, M. & N. W. R. R. Co., 60 Wis. 264; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 447.

5. One Railroad crossing Another. — Lake Shore & M. S. R. R. Co. v. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co., 100 Ill. 21; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 454; St. Louis, J. & C. R. R. Co. v. Springfield & N. W. R. R. Co., 96 Ill. 274; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 487; Lake Shore & M. S. Ry. Co. v. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co., 96 Ill. 125; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 437; Grand Junction R. & D. Co. v. County Commissioners, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 553;

East Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Hiester, 40 Pa. St. 53.

The right to recover compensation in such case is entirely denied by some authorities. It is said that a mere crossing is not properly a taking. Eastern R. R. Co. v. Concord & P. R. R. Co., 47 N. H. 108; Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. Dover & R. R. Co., 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 538; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 87; New Jersey S. R. R. Co. v. Long Branch Commissioners, 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 28; State v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 181; New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Forty-second & G. St. F. R. R. Co., 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 309; Lake Shore & M. S. R. R. Co. v. Cincinnati, S. & C. R. R. Co., 30 Ohio St. 604.

The right to recover compensation for such crossing is sometimes conferred by statute. In re Boston, H. T. & W. R. R. Co., 79 N. Y. 64; In re Lockport & B. R. R. Co., 77 N. Y. 557.

6. Railway in Street. — Randall v. Jacksonville St. R. R., 19 Fla. 409; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 184; South Carolina R. R. Co. v. Steiner, 44 Ga. 546; Brown v. Duplessis, 14 La. An. 854; Hiss v. Baltimore & H. P. R. R. Co., 52 Md. 242; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 371; Peddicord v. Baltimore, C. & E. M. P. R. R. Co., 34 Md. 463; Attorney General v. Metropolitan R. R. Co., 125 Mass. 515; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 264; Jersey City & B. R. R. Co. v. Jersey City Hoboken Horse R. R. Co., 20 N. J. Eq. (5 C. E. Gr.) 61; Texas & P. R. R. Co. v. Rosedale St. R. R. Co., 64 Tex. 80; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 160. Compare Craig v. Rochester City & B. R. R. Co., 39 N. Y. 404.

7. Mahady v. Bushwick R. R. Co., 91 N. Y. 148; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 661; 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 142.

railway made in a city street solely as a transfer track between two steam-railways has been held to be such a taking or injuring of property as would entitle abutting proprietors to compensation.<sup>1</sup>

c. Erection of Telegraph-Poles.—The decisions on the question whether the erection of telegraph-poles in a public street and highway constitutes an additional servitude, for which the abutting owner is entitled to compensation, are not unanimous. In Massachusetts it is held that an additional servitude is not imposed, and that therefore no compensation is payable.<sup>2</sup> In Illinois the courts hold that the use of the street for such purposes is a new and additional burden for which the owner of the fee is entitled to compensation.<sup>3</sup> The construction of a telegraph-line along the right of way of a railroad is the taking of a company's railroad property, for which the railroad is entitled to compensation;<sup>4</sup> but the railroad company may construct a telegraph-line along its own route for its own use, and may cut standing trees on its right of way without incurring any additional liability to the original owner of the land for compensation. If, however, the telegraph-line should be erected by another company, that company is liable to the land-owner for the damages to the land caused by the telegraph-line; and if such telegraph-line is constructed by the railroad company and another, for their joint use, the latter, and the latter alone, is liable to such land-owner for the additional damage to the land by the use of the telegraph-line.<sup>5</sup>

1. Carli v. Stillwater St. Ry. & T. R. R. Co., 28 Minn. 373; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 290.

2. Pierce v. Drew, 136 Mass. 75; s. c., 49 Am. Rep. 7.

3. Board of Trade Tel. Co. v. Barnett, 107 Ill. 508; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 453.

Illinois Doctrine.—In the well-known case of Indianapolis, B. & W. R. R. Co. v. Hartley, 67 Ill. 439; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 624, the court say, "A distinction has been taken where the municipality granting the right to lay a track owns the fee in the street, and where the fee remains in the abutting land-owner; and it seems to us it rests on sound principle, and is supported by the highest authority. Where the fee remains in the original proprietor, it is immaterial how the public acquired an easement over the lands, whether by condemnation or by dedication. It is only for the use of ordinary travel such as we are accustomed to see on streets or highways. In case the proprietor dedicated the land, it was for no other purpose; and if it was condemned, his damages were assessed with no other view. A different use of the land cannot be justified on the ground that a railway is an improved highway. Railway companies are only public corporations in a limited sense. The right of way, the road-bed, and the carriages propelled thereon, are owned by private individuals, and not by the public. Fares are charged by travel thereon for the exclusive benefit of the parties owning the road. They are constructed and equipped in the interest of private speculation, but at the same time they are intended to subserve the public good. The travel on them bears no analogy to our notions of travel on an ordinary street or highway, where one travels at his own pleasure, in his own conveyance, without paying tolls or fares. The uses are totally different and even inconsistent. The one is exclusive in favor of private interests, and the other is open and free to all. The doctrine most in consonance with our sense of justice is, when the fee of the street remains in the abutting land-owner, the corporation may grant the right to the railway company to lay its track along or across any street, but the company avails of its privileges at its peril. If, in laying its track, it causes a private injury to him who owns the fee on the adjoining premises, it must make good the damages sustained."

4. Atlantic & P. Tel. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co., 6 Biss. C. C. 153; Southwestern R. R. Co. v. Southern & Atl. Tel. Co., 46 Ga. 43; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 585.

5. Western U. Tel. Co. v. Rich, 19 Kans. 517; s. c., 27 Am. Rep. 159.

d. Use of Highways for Gas-Works, etc. — A corporation organized for the supply of gas for public use has no authority to lay its pipe in a country highway without the consent, or without an appraisal and payment of compensation, to the owner of the land.<sup>1</sup>

e. Other Instances. — The general rule is, that property which has already been so taken or devoted to public use must be used only for the purpose for which it was originally taken, or any purpose incidental thereto. If used for any purpose incongruous with the use to which the land was originally devoted, a further right of compensation accrues to persons injured thereby. Thus it has been held that the Legislature cannot authorize the conversion of a street into a public market without providing for compensation;<sup>2</sup> but the conversion of a turnpike road into a public highway does not impose an additional burden, or divert the turnpike from its original purpose, and no compensation need be made to the owners of the soil.<sup>3</sup>

7. User of Another's Property. — Where one railroad company is authorized to run its cars over the track of another, this is a taking for which compensation must be made.<sup>4</sup>

8. Appropriation, Diversion, and Obstruction of Waters. — a. Appropriation. — Riparian owners have a right in the nature of an easement to have the waters in water-courses flow past their premises undiminished in quantity and quality, and they are entitled to compensation for any act done under the power of eminent domain, which diminishes the volume of the stream;<sup>5</sup>

1. In re Bloomfield & R. Nat. Gaslight Co. v. Calkins, 62 N. Y. 386; s. c., 1 T. & C. (N. Y.) 541; Kelsey v. King, 32 Barb. (N. Y.) 410; People v. Bowen, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 24; Milhau v. Sharp, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 193; Sterling's Appeal, 111 Pa. St. 35; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 246; 12 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 330.

2. Public Highway. — State v. Laverack, 34 N. J. L. (5 Vr.) 201. In this case the court say, "The right of the public in a highway consists in the privilege of passage and such privileges as are annexed as incidents by usage or custom, as the right to make sewers and drains, and lay gas and water pipes. These subordinate privileges are entirely consistent with the primary use of the highway, and are no detriment to the land-holder. But I am not aware of any case in which it has been held that the public has any right in a highway which is incongruous with the purpose for which it was originally created, and which at the same time is injurious to the proprietors of the soil."

3. State v. Maine, 27 Conn. 641; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 89; Hingham & Q. Br. & Turnpike Co. v. Norfolk, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 353. Compare Williams v. Natural Br. Plank Road Co., 21 Mo. 580.

4. Metropolitan R. R. Co. v. Quincy

R. R. Co., 94 Mass. (12 Allen) 262; Boston & W. R. R. Co. v. Western R. R. Co., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 253; Jersey City & B. R. R. Co. v. Jersey City & H. H. R. R. Co., 20 N. J. Eq. (5 C. E. Gr.) 61; Sixth Ave. R. R. Co. v. Kerr, 45 Barb. (N. Y.) 138.

5. Appropriation of Water. — Burden v. Stein, 27 Ala. 104; Stein v. Ashley, 34 Ala. 521; Stein v. Burden, 24 Ala. 130; Charnock v. Rose, 70 Cal. 189; Harding v. Stamford Water Co., 41 Conn. 87; Wells v. Bridgeport Hydraulic Co., 30 Conn. 316; Nevins v. Peoria, 41 Ill. 502; McCord v. High, 24 Iowa, 336; City of Emporia v. Soden, 25 Kans. 588; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 265; Ware v. Allen, 140 Mass. 513; s. c., 60 Am. Rep. 67; Moulton v. Newburyport W. Co., 137 Mass. 163; Bailey v. Woburn, 126 Mass. 416; Dwight Printing Co. v. Boston, 122 Mass. 583; Lund v. New Bedford, 121 Mass. 286; Commissioners v. Withers, 29 Miss. 21; Garwood v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co., 83 N. Y. 400; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 452; Smith v. City of Rochester, 92 N. Y. 463; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 393; Cooper v. Williams, 5 Ohio, 391; s. c., 24 Am. Dec. 299; Weiss v. Oregon Iron & Steel Co., 13 Oreg. 496; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Miller, 112 Pa. St. 34; Hough v. Doyleston, 4 Brewst. (Pa.) 333.

and it has been held that it makes no difference whether the water is withdrawn by means of pipes, conduits, water-galleries, or simply by percolation through the natural soil.<sup>1</sup>

b. Diversion.—A riparian proprietor whose land is bounded by a navigable stream has a right of access to the stream, and a right to make a landing, wharf, or pier for his own use, or for the use of the public.<sup>2</sup> And the owner of lands bordering upon a non-navigable stream usually has a title ad filum aquæ.<sup>3</sup> And in either case, for any diversion, whether effected by cutting an entirely new channel, or by making an erection along the margin of the water, by which the riparian owner's access is cut off, a right of property belonging to the riparian owner is taken or injured, and he must be compensated therefor.<sup>4</sup>

1. Ætna Mills v. Brookline, 127 Mass. 69; Ætna Mills v. Waltham, 126 Mass. 422; Bailey v. Woburn, 126 Mass. 416; Village Delhi v. Youmans, 45 N. Y. 362; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 100; Grand Junction Canal Co. v. Shugar, 6 Ch. App. Cas. 487; Dickinson v. Grand Junc. Canal Co., 7 Ex. 282.

2. Davenport & N. W. R. Co. v. Renwick, 102 U. S. (12 Otto) 180; bk. 21 L. ed. 51; Yates v. Milwaukee, 77 U. S. (10 Wall.) 497; bk. 19 L. ed. 984; Lyon v. Fishmongers Co. L. R. 1 App. Cas. 662; s. c., 46 L. J. Ch. 68; 35 L. T. N. S. 569; 25 W. R. 165; Duke of Buccleuch v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 3 Ex. 306; s. c., L. R. 5 Ex. 221; 5 H. L. Cas. 418.

3. Title to Middle of Stream.—Adams v. Pease, 2 Conn. 481; Bradford v. Cressey, 45 Me. 9; Pike v. Munroe, 36 Me. 309; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 751; Brown v. Chadbourne, 31 Me. 9; Blanchard v. Baker, 8 Me. (8 Greenl.) 253; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 504; Browne v. Kennedy, 5 Har. & J. (Md.) 195, 205; Trustees of Hopkins Academy v. Dickinson, 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 546; Coldspring I. Co. v. Tolland, 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 492; Knight v. Wilder, 56 Mass. (2 Cush.) 200; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 660; Bliss v. Rice, 34 Mass. (17 Pick.) 23; Dearfield v. Arms, 34 Mass. (17 Pick.) 41; Waterman v. Johnson, 30 Mass. (13 Pick.) 261; Ingraham v. Wilkinson, 21 Mass. (4 Pick.) 268; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 342; Hatch v. Dwight, 17 Mass. 289; Lunt v. Holland, 14 Mass. 149; King v. King, 7 Mass. 499; Woodman v. Spencer, 54 N. H. 507; State v. Gilmanton, 9 N. H. 463; Claremont v. Carlton, 2 N. H. 369; Arnold v. Munday, 6 N. J. L. (1 Halst.) 1; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 356; Seneca Nation v. Knight, 23 N. Y. 498; Palmer v. Mulligan, 3 Cai. (N. Y.) 319; s. c., 2 Am. Dec. 270; People v. Seymour, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 579; Child v. Starr, 4 Hill (N. Y.) 369; Hooker v. Cummings, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 91; s. c., 11 Am. Dec. 249; Jackson v. Louw, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 252; Commissioners of Canal Fund

v. Kempshall, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 404; Canal Appraisers v. People, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 590; Canal Commissioners v. People, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 423; Smith v. Ingram, 7 Ired. (N. C.) L. 175; Williams v. Buchanan, 1 Ired. (N. C.) L. 535; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 760; Ingram v. Threadgill, 3 Dev. (N. C.) 59; Poor v. McClure, 77 Pa. St. 214; Barclay R. R. & C. Co. v. Ingham, 36 Pa. St. 194; Coovert v. O'Conner, 8 Watts (Pa.) 470; Ball v. Slack, 2 Whart. (Pa.) 538; Cates v. Wadlington, 1 McC. (S. C.) 580; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 699; Noble v. Cunningham, McMull. (S. C.) Eq. 289; McCullough v. Wall, 4 Rich. (S. C.) 68; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 715; Adams v. Barney, 25 Vt. 225; Home v. Richards, 4 Call (Va.) 441; Mead v. Haynes, 3 Rand. (Va.) 33; Hayes v. Bowman, 1 Rand. (Va.) 417; Camden v. Creel, 4 W. Va. 365; Tyler v. Wilkinson, 4 Mason C. C. 397; Carter v. Murcot, 4 Burr. 2162; Rex v. Wharton, Holt 499; s. c., 12 Mod. 510; Wishart v. Wyllie, 1 McQ. H. L. Cas. 389; Wright v. Howard, 1 Sim. & Stew. 190; Mayo v. Quimby, 3 Dane Abr. 4.

4. Diversion and Injury to Access.—Bottoms v. Brewer, 54 Ala. 288; Carli v. Stillwater, St. R. & T. Co., 28 Minn. 373; s. c., 41 Am. Rep. 290; Tinsman v. Belvidere R. R., 26 N. J. L. (2 Dutch.) 148; s. c., 71 Am. Dec. 514; Gardner v. Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526; Clark v. Peckham, 10 R. I. 35; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 654; Davenport & N. W. R. Co. v. Renwick, 102 U. S. (12 Otto) 180; bk. 21 L. ed. 51; Yates v. Milwaukee, 77 U. S. (10 Wall.) 497; bk. 19 L. ed. 984; Van Dolsen v. New York, 17 Fed. Rep. 817; s. c., 16 Rep. 387; Lyon v. Fishmongers' Co., 1 App. Cas. 662; s. c., 46 L. J. Ch. 68; 35 L. T. N. S. 569; 25 W. R. 165; Ferrand v. Corp. of Bradford, 21 Beav. 412; Little v. Dublin & D. R. R. Co., 7 Ir. C. L. 82; Reg. v. North Midland R. Co., 2 Eng. R. & Corp. Cas. 1. Compare Thayer v. New Bedford R. R. Co., 125

c. Obstruction.—(1) Water Courses.—A riparian owner is entitled to compensation for any obstruction placed in the bed of a stream, whereby an increased burden is imposed upon his lands.<sup>1</sup>

(2) Of Surface Waters.—In those States which follow the doctrine of the civil law, and hold that the owner of higher land has a servitude or natural easement upon the lower adjoining land, for the discharge of all surface waters flowing naturally thereon from the higher land, the owner of the dominant tenement is entitled to compensation for any obstruction to the flow of such surface waters.<sup>2</sup>

Mass. 253; City of Boston v. Richardson, 105 Mass. 353; Commissioners of Canal Fund v. Kempshall, 26 Wend. (N. Y.) 404; Smith v. Gould, 61 Wis. 31.

1. Obstructions Imposing an Additional Burden.—Denslow v. New Haven & N. Co., 16 Conn. 103; Hooker v. New Haven & N. Co., 14 Conn. 147; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 477; Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Reaney, 42 Md. 117; Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Magruder, 34 Md. 79; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 310; Estabrooks v. Peterborough & S. R. Co., 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 224; Turner v. Blodgett, 46 Mass. (5 Metc.) 240, note; Rowe v. Granite B. Corp., 38 Mass. (21 Pick.) 344; Thatcher v. Dartmouth Bridge Co., 35 Mass. (18 Pick.) 501; Cogswell v. Essex Mill Corp., 23 Mass. (6 Pick.) 94; Thunder Bay R. Booming Co. v. Speechly, 31 Mich. 336; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 184; Grand Rapids Booming Co. v. Jarvis, 30 Mich. 308; Dodd v. Williams, 3 Mo. App. 278; Eastman v. Amoskeag Manuf. Co., 44 N. H. 143; March v. Portsmouth & C. R. R. Co., 19 N. H. 372; Trenton W. P. Co. v. Raff, 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 335; Delaware & R. C. Co. v. Lee, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 243; Ten Eyck v. Delaware & R. C. Co., 18 N. J. L. (3 Harr.) 200; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 233; Sinnickson v. Johnson, 17 N. J. L. (2 Harr.) 129; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 184; Cott v. Lewiston R. R. Co., 36 N. Y. 214; People v. Kingman, 24 N. Y. 559; Brown v. Cayuga & S. R. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 486; Robinson v. New York & E. R. R. Co., 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 512; Crittenden v. Wilson, 5 Cow. (N. Y.) 165; s. c., 15 Am. Dec. 462; Gardner v. Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526; Crump v. Mims, 64 N. C. 767; Pisher v. Richards, 9 Ohio St. 495; Henry v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 30 Vt. 638; s. c., 73 Am. Dec. 329; Norris v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 28 Vt. 99; Hatch v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 49; Arlmond v. Green Bay & M. Canal Co., 31 Wis. 316; Harper v. Milwaukee, 30 Wis. 365; Cobb v. Smith, 23 Wis. 261; Sheboygan v. Sheboygan & F. R. R. Co., 21 Wis. 667; Thien v. Voegtlander, 3 Wis. 461; Lawrence v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 20 L. J. N. S. Q. B. 293.

2. Surface Waters.—The decisions of the various courts of the several States concerning surface waters, show an irreconcilable difference of opinion. In a number of States the courts have adopted what is known as the common-law rule, while in others what is known as the civil-law rule has been followed. Referring to the origin of this difference, the Supreme Court of Missouri say, in the case of Shane v. Kansas City, St. J., & C. B. R. R. Co., 71 Mo. 237; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 480; 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 64: "This difference may be traced to the great importance attached by the courts on one side, to the maxim, sic utere tuo, ut alienum non ledas, whilst those adopting a contrary view seem disposed to give unlimited effect to the maxim, cujus est solum, ejus est usque ad calum, and therefore to leave every proprietor to take care of himself except where living streams are concerned."

Common Law Rule.—The common-law rule was stated by the Massachusetts Supreme Court in the case of Gannon v. Hargadon, 92 Mass. (10 Allen) 106, 109, in the following terms: "The right of an owner of land to occupy and improve it in such manner and for such purpose as he may see fit, either by changing the surface or the erection of buildings, or other structures, thereon, is not restricted or modified by the fact that his own land is so situated with reference to that of adjoining owners that an alteration in the mode of its improvement or occupation in any portion of it will cause water, which may accumulate thereon by rains and snows falling on its surface or flowing on it from the surface of adjoining lots, either to stand in unusual quantities on other adjacent lands, or pass into and over the same in greater quantities or in other directions than they were accustomed to flow. . . . Cujus est solum, ejus est usque ad calum, is a general rule applicable to the use and enjoyment of real property and the right of a party to the free and unfettered control of his own land, above, upon, and beneath the surface, cannot be interfered with, or restrained by any consideration of injury to other land, which may be occasioned by the flow of more surface water in consequence of the lawful appropriation of the land by its owner to a particular use or mode of enjoyment; nor is it at all material in the application of this principle of law, whether a party obstructs or changes the direction and flow of surface waters by preventing it from going within the limits of his land or by erecting barriers or changing the level of the soil so as to turn it off in a new course after it has come within his boundaries, the obstruction of surface waters or an alteration in the flow of it affords no cause of action in behalf of a person who may suffer loss or detriment therefrom, against one who does no act consistent with the due exercise of dominion over his own soil." This rule has been adopted in the following States; to wit, —

And in States where no natural servitude or easement for the flow

Connecticut. — Adams v. Walker, 34 Conn. 466; Gillett v. Johnson, 30 Conn. 180; Wadsworth v. Tillotson, 15 Conn. 366; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 391.

Indiana. — Cairo & V. R. R. Co. v. Stevens, 73 Ind. 278; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 139; Schlichter v. Phillipy, 67 Ind. 201; Taylor v. Fickas, 64 Ind. 167; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 114.

Kansas. — Kansas City & E. R. R. Co. v. Riley, 33 Kans. 374; Gibbs v. Williams, 25 Kans. 214; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 241; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hammer, 22 Kans. 763; Palmer v. Waddell, 22 Kans. 352.

Maine. — Murphy v. Kelley, 68 Me. 521; Morrison v. Bucksport & B. R. R. Co., 67 Me. 353; Greeley v. Maine Cent. R. R. Co., 53 Me. 200; Bangor v. Lansil, 51 Me. 521.

Massachusetts. — Jackman v. Allington Mills, 137 Mass. 277; Rathke v. Gardner, 134 Mass. 14; Macomber v. Godfrey, 108 Mass. 219; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 349; Emery v. Lowell, 104 Mass. 13; Bates v. Smith, 100 Mass. 181; Curtis v. Eastern R. R. Co., 96 Mass. (14 Allen) 55; Franklin v. Fisk, 95 Mass. (13 Allen) 211; Gannon v. Hargadon, 92 Mass. (10 Allen) 106; Dickinson v. Worcester, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 19; Flagg v. Worcester, 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 601; Parks v. Newburyport, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 28; Ashley v. Wolcott, 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 192.

New Hampshire. — Swett v. Cutts, 50 N. H. 439; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 276.

New York. — Barkley v. Wilcox, 86 N. Y. 140; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 519; Lynch v. Mayor of N. Y., 76 N. Y. 60; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 271; Gould v. Booth, 66 N. Y. 62; Vanderwiele v. Taylor, 65 N. Y. 341; Co-hocton Stone Road v. Buffalo, N. Y., & E. R. R., 51 N. Y. 573; Curtis v. Ayrault, 47 N. Y. 73; Cott v. Lewiston R. Co., 36 N. Y.

214; Pixley v. Clark, 35 N. Y. 532; Brown v. Bowen, 30 N. Y. 538; Goodale v. Tuttle, 29 N. Y. 459; Bellinger v. New York C. R. R., 23 N. Y. 42; Waffle v. Porter, 61 Barb. (N. Y.) 130; Waffle v. New York C. R. R., 58 Barb. (N. Y.) 413; Trustees v. Youmans, 50 Barb. (N. Y.) 316; Ellis v. Duncan, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 230; Sleight v. Kingston, 11 Hun (N. Y.), 504; Wagner v. Long Island R. R., 2 Hun (N. Y.), 633; Gardner v. Newburgh, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526.

Rhode Island. — Wakefield v. Newell, 12 R. I. 75; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 598; Buf-fum v. Harris, 5 R. I. 253.

Vermont. — Beard v. Murphy, 37 Vt. 104; Chatfield v. Wilson, 28 Vt. 49; Davis v. Fuller, 12 Vt. 178; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 334.

Wisconsin. — Lessard v. Stram, 62 Wis. 112; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 715; Hanlin v. Chicago & N. W. Ry., 61 Wis. 515; O'Con-nor v. Fond du Lac, A., & P. Ry. Co., 52 Wis. 526; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 753; Allen v. Chippewa Falls, 52 Wis. 434; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 748; Eulrich v. Richter, 37 Wis. 226; Fryer v. Warne, 29 Wis. 511; Hoyt v. Hudson, 27 Wis. 566; s. c., 9 Am. Rep. 473; Pettigrew v. Evansville, 25 Wis. 223; s. c., 3 Am. Rep. 50.

Civil-Law Rule. — Under what is known as the civil-law rule, the owner of the higher land has a servitude or natural easement upon the lower adjoining land for the discharge of all surface waters flowing naturally thereon from the higher land, and the owner of the lower land cannot prevent or obstruct the natural passage of such water to the injury of the higher land. The grounds upon which this rule rests are given in the case of Martin v. Riddle, 26 Pa. St. 415, in which the court said, "Where two fields adjoin, and one is lower than the other, the lower must necessarily be subject to all the natural flow of water from the upper one; the inconvenience arising from this position is usually more than compensated by other circumstances, hence the owner of the lower ground has no right to erect embankments, whereby the natural flow of the water from the upper grounds shall be stopped, nor has the owner of the upper ground a right to make any excavations or drains by which the flow of water is diverted from its natural channel, and a new channel made on the lower ground, nor can he collect into one channel waters usually flowing off into his neighbor's fields by several channels, and thus increase the waste upon the lower fields." And in the case of Kauffman v. Grisemer, 26 Pa. St. 407; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 437, it was remarked, "Almost the whole law of water-courses is founded in the maxim of the civil law, of surface water exists, the obstruction of the flow from one part

Aqua currit et debet currere. Because water is descendable by nature, the owner of the dominant or superior heritage has an easement in the servient or inferior tenement, for the discharge of all waters which by nature rise in or fall upon the superior." The rules set out in these two cases have been adopted in the following States; to wit,—

Alabama.—Farris v. Dudley, 78 Ala. 124; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 24; Crabtree v. Baker, 75 Ala. 91; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 424; Nininger v. Norwood, 72 Ala. 277; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 412; Hughes v. Anderson, 68 Ala. 280; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 147.

California.—Ogburn v. Connor, 46 Cal. 346; s. c., 13 Am. Rep. 213.

Illinois.—Peck v. Herrington, 109 Ill. 611; s. c., 50 Am. Rep. 627; Gormley v. Sanford, 52 Ill. 158; Gillham v. Madison R. Co., 49 Ill. 484; Nevins v. City of Peoria, 41 Ill. 502.

Iowa.—Bartle v. City of Des Moines, 38 Iowa, 414; Simpson v. Keokuk, 34 Iowa, 568; Russell v. Burlington, 30 Iowa, 262; Ellis v. Iowa City, 29 Iowa, 229; Livingston v. McDonald, 21 Iowa, 160.

Louisiana.—Lattimore v. Davis, 14 La. 161; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 581; Martin v. Jett, 12 La. 501; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 120; Minor v. Wright, 16 La. An. 151; Hooper v. Wilkinson, 15 La. An. 497; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 194.

Maryland.—Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. Co. v. Davis (Md.), 19 Cent. Rep. 551.

Michigan.—Boyd v. Conklin, 54 Mich. 583; s. c., 52 Am. Rep. 831.

North Carolina.—Porter v. Durham, 74 N. C. 767; Overton v. Sawyer, 1 Jones (N. C.) L. 308; s. c., 52 Am. Dec. 170.

Ohio.—Tootle v. Clifton, 22 Ohio St. 247; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 732; Butler v. Peck, 16 Ohio St. 334; Crawford v. Rambo, 44 Ohio St. 279.

Pennsylvania.—Hays v. Hinkleman, 68 Pa. St. 324; Martin v. Riddle, 26 Pa. St. 415; Kauffman v. Griesemer, 26 Pa. St. 407; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 437.

Tennessee.—Louisville & N. R. R. Co. v. Hays, 11 Lea (Tenn.), 382; Carriger v. East Tennessee, V. & Gr. Co., 7 Lea (Tenn.), 388.

Modified Doctrine.—In Arkansas the court in the case of Little Rock & F. S. R. R. Co. v. Chapman, 39 Ark. 463; s. c., 43 Am. Rep. 280, repudiated the civil-law rule purely as such, and also the common-law rule in its utmost rigidity, and expressed preference for a rule under which each case would be decided upon its merits, with a reasonable regard at once to the right of the lower owner to ward off surface waters from his premises, and of the maxim, sic utere tuo, ut alienum non ladas."

In South Carolina.—In Waldrop v. Greenville, L. & S. R. Co. (S. C.), 34 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas., the South Carolina court has, in an opinion obiter, expressed its preference for the rule of the Arkansas court.

Conflicting Decisions—Missouri.—In Missouri the courts in their earlier decisions followed the common-law rule,—see Hosher v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 60 Mo. 329; Munkers v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 60 Mo. 334; s. c., 72 Mo. 514; 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 79; McCormick v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 57 Mo. 433; Imler v. Springfield, 55 Mo. 119,—but departed therefrom in two subsequent cases, and announced their preference for the civil-law rule. See Shane v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. Ry. Co., 71 Mo. 239; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 480; 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 64; McCormick v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 70 Mo. 359; s. c., 35 Am. Rep. 435. In the later cases it has, however, reverted to the common-law rule. See Benson v. Chicago & A. R. R. Co., 78 Mo. 504; Stewart v. City of Clinton, 79 Mo. 603. And in the case of Abbott v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 83 Mo. 271; s. c., 53 Am. Rep. 581, it expressly overruled the decisions which follow the civil law rule.

New Jersey.—In New Jersey the only decision directly in point adopts the common-law rule. See Bowlsby v. Speer, 31 N. J. L. (2 Vr.) 352. But in the case of Field v. West Orange, 36 N. J. Eq. (9 Stew.) 118; s. c., 37 N. J. Eq. (10 Stew.) 600, the vice-chancellor said, "The broad doctrine declared by some courts that no right of any kind can be claimed in the flow of surface water, and that neither its retention, diversion, repulsion, or altered transmission will constitute an actionable injury, has never been adopted in all its length and breadth in this State."

Obitor Diets—West Virginia.—In this State there is no decision bearing directly upon the point; but in Gillison v. Charleston, 16 W. Va. 284, 303; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 763, the court, after an examination of the authorities, say, "A part of the authorities we have cited seem to recognize the principle that individuals and municipal corporations have the right to dispose of surface water in any manner they please to prevent its flow over adjoining land upon their premises, although the result may be to flood the adjoining land or expel it, throw it upon the lands of their neighbors, of the premises to another by the construction of a public improvement is a proper ground for damages.<sup>1</sup>

d. Destruction of Wells and Springs. — Where a spring is destroyed, the owner will be entitled to compensation therefor,<sup>2</sup> even though no part of such owner's lands have been taken.<sup>3</sup>

9. Temporary User. — a. For Surveys. — An entry for the purpose of making preliminary surveys may be authorized without providing for compensation.<sup>4</sup> The only right the owner has in such case is to compensation for any injury done to his property.<sup>5</sup>

b. To aid Construction. — When it is necessary for the construction of a public work, that there should be a temporary occupation of lands adjoining, such occupation may be authorized; and the compensation of the owner will be measured by the length of the use and the damage done to the owner.<sup>6</sup>

10. Taxation. — Taxation, however great, for a public purpose, is not a taking of private property for public use within the meaning of a constitutional provision prohibiting such taking.<sup>7</sup> and, in either case, are not liable to an action. These cases seem to lose sight entirely of the wholesome principle of ethics, as well as law, that a man may use his own property in any manner he pleases, providing he does not thereby interfere with the rights of his neighbor."

Statutory Provisions. — Texas. — In Texas there has been no decision upon the point; but in the case of railroads there is a statute of that State which provides that railroads shall be liable for any obstruction in the flow of surface waters. See Gulf, Colorado, & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Helsley, 62 Tex. 593.

1. Morrison v. Bucksport & B. R. R. Co., 67 Me. 353; Walker v. Old Colony & N. R. R. Co., 103 Mass. 10, 16; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 509; Pflegar v. Hastings & D. R. R. Co., 28 Minn. 510; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 85.

2. Peoria & R. I. R. R. Co. v. Bryant, 57 Ill. 473; Winkelmans v. Des Moines N. W. Ry. Co., 62 Iowa, 11; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 186; Aldrich v. Cheshire R. R. Co., 21 N. H. (1 Fost.) 359; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 272; Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. Trone, 28 Pa. St. 206.

3. Parker v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 107; s. c., 50 Am. Dec. 709.

4. Nichols v. Somerset, & K. Ry. Co., 43 Me. 357; Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Walther v. Warner, 25 Mo. 289; Orr v. Quimby, 54 N. H. 596; Merritt v. Northern R. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 608; Polly v. Saratoga & W. R. R. Co., 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 449; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & Hudson Ry. Co., 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 52; s. c., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; s. c., 31 Am. Dec. 313.

Compensation for Private Property taken for Public Use. — In Stewart v. Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, 7 Md. 516, the court say, "The constitutional prohibition against taking private property for public use, until compensation is first paid or tendered, means the taking of property from the owner, and actually applying it to the use of the public. It does not mean the preliminary measures necessary in such cases. To hold that compensation must be paid or tendered before a survey should be made, or other preparatory steps taken, would be a construction of the Constitution not required by its language, or necessary for the protection of private rights. It is quite a sufficient protection if the owner is secured in the use and enjoyment of his property until the damages he may sustain are constitutionally ascertained and paid or tendered."

5. Bonaparte v. Camden & A. Ry. Co., Bald. C. C. 205.

6. Lynch v. Stone, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 356; Great North of England C. & N. J. Ry. Co. v. Clarence Ry. Co., 13 M. & W. 706; 1 Coll. Ch. 507; s. c., 3 Eng. & Canal Cas. 605.

Temporary Obstruction. — In Transportation Co. v. Chicago, 99 U. S. (9 Otto) 635; bk. 25, L. ed. 336, it was held that the mere temporary blocking of a street by a city in constructing a tunnel by legislative authority did not vest any right to compensation in the abutting property-owners. Compare Sabin v. Vermont Cent. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 363.

7. Gilman v. Sheboygan, 67 U. S. (2 Black) 510; bk. 17 L. ed. 305.

Bonds for Improvements. — In Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. (12 Otto) 691; bk. 26, L. ed. 238, it is held that a State law authorizing a county to issue its bonds for improvement of a harbor within its territory and to levy, a tax therefor, is not objectionable as involving a taking of pri-

11. Destruction from Public Necessity. — At common law, every one has the right to destroy real or personal property in case of actual necessity to prevent the spreading of fire; and there is no responsibility on the part of such destroyer, and no remedy for the owner.<sup>1</sup> In some of the States the remedy is conferred by statutes, which, being in derogation of the common law, are to be strictly construed.<sup>2</sup>

12. Exercise of Governmental and Police Powers. — Acts done in the proper exercise of governmental and police powers, and not directly encroaching upon private property, although their consequence may be to impair its use, are not a taking within the meaning of the constitutional provision which forbids the taking of such property without just compensation therefor.<sup>3</sup>

VII. Damages. — 1. Necessity of Provision for. — In every case where property is authorized to be taken under the power of eminent domain, it is requisite that there should be some provision requiring the person or corporation taking to make compensation.<sup>4</sup> But a law directing the taking of private property is not void for want of such provision, if it is supplemented by a subsequent law providing therefor.<sup>5</sup> And a statute authorizing the taking is not rendered wholly invalid by the fact that it contains an unconstitutional provision allowing the company to take possession of the land against the owner's will before making compensation.<sup>6</sup> Where vate property by the tax without compensation, although the effect may be to impose on the one county the expense of an improvement in which the whole State is interested. See also Chambers v. Satterlee, 40 Cal. 497; Griffin v. Dogan, 48 Miss. 11; Moran v. Troy, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 540; Norris v. Waco, 57 Tex. 635; Allen v. Drew, 44 Vt. 174.

1. American Print Works v. Lawrence, 23 N. J. L. (3 Zab.) 590; Russell v. Mayor of New York, 2 Den. (N. Y.) 461; Keller v. City of Corpus Christi, 50 Tex. 614; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 613; Bowditch v. Boston, 101 U. S. (11 Otto) 16; bk. 25 L. ed. 908; s. c., 4 Cliff. C. C. 323; Respublica v. Sparhawk, 1 U. S. (1 Dall.) 357; bk. 1 L. ed. 174; Mouse's Case, 12 Co. 63; The Prerogative, 12 Co., 13.

2. Parsons v. Pettingill, 93 Mass. (11 Allen) 507; Ruggles v. Nantucket, 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 436; Taylor v. Plymouth, 49 Mass. (8 Metc.) 462; Russell v. Mayor of New York, 2 Den. 461; Stone v. Mayor of New York, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 157.

3. Green v. Swift, 47 Cal. 536; Markham v. Brown, 37 Ga. 277; Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Joliet, L., & A. R. R. Co., 105 Ill. 388; s. c., 44 Am. Rep. 799; Rodemacher v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 41 Iowa, 297; s. c., 20 Am. Rep. 592; Bancroft v. Cambridge, 126 Mass. 438;

Com. v. Alger, 61 Mass. (7 Cush.) 53; Baker v. Boston, 29 Mass. (12 Pick.) 184; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 421; St. Louis v. Stern, 13 Mo. App. 48; Transportation Co. v. Chicago, 99 U. S. (9 Otto) 635; bk. 25 L. ed. 336; Graham v. United States, 2 Ct. of Cl. 327; United States v. Army, 4 Quart. L. J. 163.

4. Colton v. Rossi, 9 Cal. 595; Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Connecticut River R. Co. v. Commissioners of Franklin County, 127 Mass. 50; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 338; Boston & Lowell R. R. Co. v. Salem & Lowell R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 1; Ash v. Cummings, 50 N. H. 591; Matter of Hamilton Ave., 14 Barb. (N. Y.) 405; Matter of Flatbush Ave., 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 286; University v. North Carolina R. R. Co., 76 N. C. 103; s. c., 22 Am. Rep. 671; McClinton v. Pittsburg, Fort Wayne, & C. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404; Sterling's Appeal, 111 Pa. St. 35; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 246; 12 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 330; Norris v. City of Waco, 57 Tex. 635; Bohlman v. Green Bay & S. P. R. R. Co., 30 Wis. 105; Shepardson v. Milwaukee & Beloit R. R. Co., 6 Wis. 605; Atlantic & Pacific Tel. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co., 6 Biss. C. C. 158.

5. Bonaparte v. Camden & A. R. R. Co., 1 Bald. C. C. 205.

6. Kennedy v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 22 Wis. 581.

property to which the State asserts no title is taken by its officer or agent, pursuant to a statute, as private property for public use, the government is under the implied obligation to make just compensation to the owner.<sup>1</sup> But where private property has been permanently injured, an action lies for the injury, although no statute has ever been enacted for the enforcement of the constitutional provision requiring compensation to be made.<sup>2</sup> Where the Constitution provides a method for the assessment of damages, it is beyond the power of the Legislature to prescribe another;<sup>3</sup> and the Legislature cannot constitutionally determine the value of the land, or the amount of the compensation to be made.<sup>4</sup>

2. Time of Computation. — A rule as to the time at which the damages are to be computed does not appear to be universally settled, many cases holding that the assessment is to be made as at the time of entry,<sup>5</sup> while many others hold that the time of the

1. United States v. Great Falls Man. Co., 112 U. S. (12 Otto) 645; bk. 28 L. ed. 846.

2. Johnson v. City of Parkersburg, 16 W. Va. 402; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 779.

3. Rochester Water Works Co. v. Wood, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 137; House v. Rochester, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 517.

4. Cunningham v. Campbell, 33 Ga. 625; Rich v. Chicago, 59 Ill. 286; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Baltimore & O. R. R. Co., 60 Md. 263; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 79; Langford v. Commissioners, 16 Minn. 375; Kramer v. Cleveland & P. R. R. Co., 5 Ohio St. 140; Palairot's Appeal, 67 Pa. St. 479; s. c., 5 Am. Rep. 450; Vanhorne v. Dorrance, 2 U. S. (2 Dall.) 304, 312; bk. 1, L. ed. 391.

5. Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co., 70 Ala. 227; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217; San Francisco & S. J. R. R. Co. v. Mahoney, 29 Cal. 112; Logansport, C. & S. R. R. Co. v. Buchanan, 52 Ind. 163; Warren v. First Div. St. Paul & Pac. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 424; s. c., 19 Am. Ry. Rep. 227; Williams v. New Orleans, M. & T. R. R. Co., 60 Miss. 689; New York & G. L. Ry. Co. v. Stanley's Heirs, 35 N. J. Eq. (8 Stew.) 283; s. c., 10 Am. Ry. Rep. 345; Driver v. Western Union R. Co., 32 Wis. 569; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 726.

Alabama Doctrine. — It was said by the Supreme Court of Alabama, in Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. Co., 7 Ala. 227; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217, 220, that "it has long been settled in this State that the General Assembly may confer on corporations, created for the construction of railroads, the right to take lands necessary for the use and maintenance of the road, upon making to the owner just compensation." Alabama & F. R. Co. v. Kenney, 39 Ala. 307; Aldridge v. T. C. & D. R. Co., 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 199; Davis v. T. C. & D.

R. Co., 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 421. Whether it was essential to the validity of a law conferring this right on such a corporation, that it should require payment of the compensation to precede, or to be concurrent with, the taking and appropriation of the land, or whether all the demands of the Constitution were not satisfied if adequate remedies were provided by which the owner could secure the compensation, was an unsettled question. Aldridge v. T. C. & D. R. R. Co., 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 199; Sadler v. Langham, 34 Ala. 311. The Constitution of 1868 (Art. xiii. sect. 5) required that the compensation should be paid before or at the time of the taking and appropriation; and a provision similar in substance and effect is incorporated in the present Constitution. Art. xiv. sect. 7; Art. i. sect. 24."

Wisconsin Doctrine. — In Driver v. Western Union R. Co., 22 Wis. 569; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 726, the "plaintiff was notified by defendants that part of certain lands bought by him to erect buildings on would be taken by defendants for their railroad, and proceedings were commenced therefor; plaintiff, notwithstanding, erected his buildings, and defendants afterward took the land. It was held that the damage for the taking of the land was to be estimated as of the day when the defendants acquired the right to the property, and that plaintiff was entitled to damages according to the value of the lands as improved." In the course of the opinion the court say, "It is very clear to our minds that there was no error in the ruling of the court below in holding that the jury, in estimating the damages, should consider the value of the premises as of the seventh day of May, 1870, the time of the taking and condemnation of lot seven for railroad purposes. This is the time the land was actually taken by the company assessment or filing the act of appropriation or award is to govern;<sup>1</sup> and some cases lay down the time as being the date of the under its charter, and when the commissioners appointed to appraise the damages made their award. The charter makes it the duty of the commissioners to view and examine the lands which are taken for the use of the road, with the buildings and improvements thereon, and to estimate the value of the lands so taken or required by the company, and all damages which the owner should or might sustain by reason of the taking of the same for the construction and use of the road, taking into consideration the advantages as well as the disadvantages of the same, by means of the construction of the road, to the owner of the property. Sect. 1, ch. 16, P. & L. Laws of 1854. Upon the commissioners making and filing their report, and payment or legal tender of the appraisement to the owner, or upon the payment of the amount to the clerk of the court to which the appeal has been taken, title vests in the company. Now, the 7th of May was the time the commissioners made and filed their award, and when the company, by depositing the amount thereof with the clerk, acquired, under the charter, the right to lot seven. This, then, was the actual taking of the property for the use of the road, and the time to fix its value, not only within the intent of the charter, but upon general principles applicable to these cases. The Milwaukee & Miss. R. Co. v. Ebel, 4 Chand. 72; Robbins v. Milwaukee & Horicon R. Co., 6 Wis. 636; Kennedy v. The Milwaukee & S. P. R. Co., 22 Wis. 581. The plaintiffs were entitled to recover the value of lot seven at the time it was condemned and appropriated by the company, together with such damages as they sustained by reason of the taking of the same, over and above the advantages to them in consequence of the construction and operation of the road."

1. Lafayette, M. & B. R. R. Co. v. Murdock, 68 Ind. 137; Hampden Paint & C. Co. v. Springfield A. & N. R. R. Co., 124 Mass. 118; Morin v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co., 30 Minn. 100; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 223; Blue Earth County v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 28 Minn. 503; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 209; Sherwood v. St. Paul & Chicago R. Co., 21 Minn. 122; St. Paul & S. C. R. Co. v. Murphy, 19 Minn. 500; Warren v. First Div. St. Paul & P. R. Co., 18 Minn. 384; Winona & St. Peter R. Co. v. Denman, 10 Minn. 267; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Lutheran Cong. of Pittsburgh, 53 Pa. St. 445; Stafford v. Providence, 10 R. I. 567; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 710; Lyon v. Green Bay & M. R. Co., 42 Wis. 538; s. c., 15 Am. Ry. Rep. 91.

Minnesota Doctrine. — It was held by the Supreme Court of Minnesota, in the case of the Board of Commissioners of Blue Earth Co. v. St. Paul & S. C. R., 28 Minn. 503; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 209, that the compensation of a land-owner for property taken for public use is to be estimated as of the time of the award of the commissioners, or, where the assessment is made by a jury, as of the time of the trial; and that this rule is not changed by the fact that a railroad company has, without the consent of the land-owner, entered upon the premises and constructed its road prior to acquiring the right of way by appropriate legal proceedings. The court say, "The universal rule laid down in the books is, that when property is taken for uses by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, the compensation must be fixed as of the date of taking of the property; that is, at the time the public make the appropriation. Isom v. Mississippi, etc., R. R., 36 Miss. 300. That this means the time of taking and appropriating the property by appropriate legal proceedings, and not the time of some previous wrongful and tortious entry, necessarily follows from the constitutional provisions which require compensation to be first made. Until that time the property still belongs to the original owner."

"The fact that a railroad company has, in advance of proper condemnation proceedings, committed a trespass, and wrongfully taken possession of the land, gives it no right to insist that such proceedings, subsequently instituted, shall relate back to the date of the trespass. In accordance with the general doctrine on this subject, this court has adopted, as a convenient practical rule, that compensation must be estimated as of the time of the award of the commissioners. Winona & St. P. R. Co. v. Denman, 10 Minn. 267."

Rhode Island Doctrine. — The Supreme Court of Rhode Island held, in Stafford v. City of Providence, 10 R. I. 567; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 710, that the value of complainants' land was to be estimated as it was at the time it was condemned, and not at the time of the location of the improvement. The court say, in the course of the opinion, "The question is, is the value to be estimated at the time of the location of the works, or at the time the land is condemned? Obviously the latter, otherwise this gross injustice would ensue: If the first location had increased the value of the land in the neighborhood, and the then owner sold for this increased value, and the land was subsequently condemned, the purchaser would lose the difference."

filing the petition for assessment, or of the commencement of action.<sup>1</sup>

Upon any principle of justice, the person whose land is taken, whether in whole or in part, should be no worse off than his neighbors whose land is not taken, otherwise he does not receive that just compensation the Constitution provides for. "The transaction (says Judge Dillon, sect. 487), is a compulsory purchase, the compulsion, however, coming from the public; and the amount to which the owner is entitled is not simply the value of the property at a forced sale, but such a sum as the property is worth in the market, if persons desiring to purchase were found, who were willing to pay its just and full value and no more. Same rule in Somerville, etc., R. R. Co. v. Doughty, 2 Zab. 495."

1. Missouri Pac. R. R. Co. v. Hays, 15 Neb. 224; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 177; Oregon & Cal. R. R. Co. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311. Compare California S. R. Co. v. Colton Land & Water Co. (Cal.), 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 194, affirmed on authority of California S. R. Co. v. Kimball, 61 Cal. 90, no opinion. See 65 Cal. p. xix.

The California Rule, as laid down in California S. R. Co. v. Colton Land & Water Co., published only in 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 194, is that the compensation to which the owner of the land is entitled in a proceeding to condemn the same for the use of a railroad, is the market-value of such land at the time of making the assessment, and not such value at the time of issuing the summons. The court say, "One of the principal objects of condemnatory proceedings is the ascertainment and assessment of such compensation; and the chief element in the compensation is the value of the land required by the public necessity. Upon proof of that necessity the value, according to the constitutional requirement, must be ascertained at the time of making the assessment, for up to the moment of making the assessment the land, or its equivalent value, belongs to the owner, and it is not subject to be taken for public use until the compensation has been first made; the owner is, therefore, entitled to receive its market-value at that time. 'The fact to be ascertained,' said the late Supreme Court, in S. & C. R. R. Co. v. Galgiani, 49 Cal. 139, 'is the value of the land at the time of the taking.' And Mr. Justice Sanderson says, in Fox v. W. P. R. R. Co., 31 Cal. 556, it cannot be said, in any legal sense, that the land has been taken until the act has transpired which divests the title or subjects the land to servitude. So long as the title remains in the individual, or the land remains unchanged by the servitude, there could have been no taking. 'It is a mistake to suppose,' says Mr. Justice Baldwin, in Bensley v. Mountain Lake Water Co., 13 Cal. 317, 'that any title comes from mere appropriation of another's property, or from the taking of the legal proceeding to condemn it. The Constitution is express. Private property shall not be taken for public use without compensation. The compensation precedes the title. The compensation must be adequate. But adequate when? Of course, when the property is so taken. See also S. F. & S. J. R. R. Co. v. Mahoney, 13 Cal. 112, and C. P. R. R. Co. v. Pearson, No. 2654, not reported.'"

Nebraska Rule.—It was held, in Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Hays, 15 Neb. 224; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 177, that the valuation of property, taken for right of way for a railroad, should be made as of the time of the filing of the petition for the assessment of damages. The court say, "The next question in order relates to the assessment of damages,—to the time as of which land taken for right of way should be valued in fixing the amount to be paid to the owner. It is an important question, and a new one in this court. On the part of the plaintiff, it was contended on the trial, and is here, that the assessment should be made as of the time when the proceedings to condemn the property are instituted; in other words, when the petition for the appointment of commissioners to assess the damages is filed with the county judge. The court below, however, held that the jury should make the assessment as of the date of the filing the commissioners' report, which was something over two months later. There was evidence before the jury tending to show that during this time the market-value of the land had materially advanced in consequence of the location of the road. The authorities seem to agree pretty generally that the damages in such cases must be assessed as of the time of taking (Pierce on R. R., 209; Parks v. Boston, 15 Pick. 198; Edmonds v. Boston, 108 Mass. 535; Old Colony R. Co. v. Miller, 125 Mass. 1; Daniels v. C. I. & N. R. Co., 41 Iowa 52; Cook v. South Park Comrs., 61 Ill. 115; Chicago & I. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 90 Ill. 316; Robbins v. Mil. & H. R. Co., 6 Wis. 636; Isom v. Mississippi Cent. R. Co., 36 Miss. 300; Graham v. Connorsville & N. C. J. R. Co., 36 Ind. 463); also that the increased value given to the property by the location of the road should be excluded in making the estimate." See Pierce on R. R. 219, citing New Orleans, O., & G.

3. For Improvements made before Assessment. — Where a railroad company has entered upon the land without obtaining an assessment, and has made improvements thereon, the owner is not entitled to have the value of these improvements included in the amount of damages payable to him.<sup>1</sup> But while the weight of authority supports the rule, as before stated, there are decisions holding that the value of the improvements must be included in the compensation payable.<sup>2</sup> An improvement, erected by the owner, on the property in order to prevent its being taken for public use, was held not to be a proper subject of compensation where the company had instituted proceedings, had filed a bond to secure payment of the compensation, obtained an appraisal, and afterwards all the proceedings except the bond were set aside by the court.<sup>3</sup>

4. Measure. — a. Where Entire Tract taken. — (1) Market Value. — Where property is taken for public purposes the measure of the compensation to be paid to the owner is its market value.<sup>4</sup> Where

W. R. Co. v. Lagarde, 10 La. An. 150; Stater v. Burlington & Mt. P. Plank Road Co., 1 Iowa, 386; Elizabethtown & P. R. Co. v. Helm, 8 Bush (Ky.), 681; Carli v. Stillwater & St. P. R. Co., 16 Minn. 260.

1. Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co., 70 Ala. 227; California Southern R. R. Co. v. Southern Pac. R. R. Co., 65 Cal. 293; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 309; California Pac. R. Co. v. Armstrong, 46 Cal. 85; s. c., 7 Am. Ry. Cas. 259; Emerson v. Western Union R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 176; North Hudson Co. R. R. Co. v. Booraem, 28 N. J. Eq. (1 Stew.) 450; s. c., 14 Am. Ry. Rep. 202; Toledo A. A. & G. T. R. R. Co. v. Dunlap, 47 Mich. 456; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 378; Morgan v. Chicago & N. E. R. R. Co., 39 Mich. 675; Greve v. St. Paul & Pac. R. R. Co., 26 Minn. 66; Justice v. Nesquehoning V. R. Co., 87 Pa. St. 28; Lyon v. Green Bay & M. Ry. Co., 42 Wis. 538; s. c., 15 Am. Ry. Rep. 91; Aspinwall v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 41 Wis. 474.

2. Graham v. Connersville & N. C. J. R. R. Co., 36 Ind. 463; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 56; Stafford v. City of Providence, 10 R. I. 567; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 710.

3. Shick v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 1 Pears. (Pa.) 264. In Cobb v. Boston, 109 Mass. 438, it was held in a case where land was condemned at the instance of the city authorities, that only the value of the land at the taking could be recovered, although the city authorities might have induced the owner to expend money and work thereon for such taking.

4. Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co., 70 Ala. 227; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217; Little Rock & F. S. Ry. v. McGehee, 41 Ark. 202; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 82; St. Louis, A. & T. R. R. v. Anderson, 39 Ark. 167; s. c., 17 Am. &

Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; California S. R. R. v. Colton, L. & W. R. R. (Cal.), 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 194, affirmed on authority California Sou. v. Kimball, 61 Cal. 90; no opinion, see 65 Cal. p. xix; Chicago & E. R. R. Co. v. Jacobs, 110 Ill. 414; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; Jacksonville & S. E. R. R. v. Walsh, 106 Ill. 253; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 245; South Park Com. v. Dunlevy, 91 Ill. 49; St. Louis V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Haller, 82 Ill. 208; Eberhart v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 70 Ill. 347; Chicago & P. R. R. v. Francis, 70 Ill. 238; Page v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R., 70 Ill. 324; Lafayette B. & M. R. R. Co. v. Winslow, 66 Ill. 219; Haslam v. Galena & S. W. R. R. Co., 64 Ill. 535; Sidener v. Essex, 22 Ind. 201; Cummins v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 397; Everett v. Union Pacific R. R., 59 Iowa, 243; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 203; Lance v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R., 57 Iowa, 636; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 617; Henry v. Dubuque & Pac. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Cohen v. St. Louis F. S. & W. R. R. Co., 34 Kans. 158; s. c., 55 Am. Rep. 242; 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 116; Bangor & P. R. R. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Lawrence v. Boston, 119 Mass. 126; Burt v. Brigham, 117 Mass. 307; Cobb v. Boston, 112 Mass. 181; Fall River Works v. Fall River, 110 Mass. 428; Edmands v. City of Boston, 108 Mass. 535; Tufts v. Charlestown, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 537; Davis v. Charles River R. R., 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 506; King v. Minneapolis Union Ry. Co., 32 Minn. 224; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 93; Union Depot S. R. & T. Co. of Stillwater v. Brunswick, 31 Minn. 297; s. c., 47 Am. Rep. 789; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 233; Robbins v. St. Paul S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 22 Minn. 286; Sherwood v. St.

a perpetual easement in the land is appropriated, the rule is the same as when the fee is taken.<sup>1</sup> Where the land taken contains minerals, the measure is the sum that would be given for the land with the minerals in it; and any inquiry as to the profits or the price or value of the minerals, if the minerals themselves had been taken, will not be permitted.<sup>2</sup> Where there are improvements upon the land the owner is not entitled necessarily to recover the cost thereof; he will only be entitled to their reasonable value.<sup>3</sup> By the term "market value" is to be understood not what the land or property would bring at a forced sale, but what it would bring in the hands of a prudent seller, at liberty to fix the time and the conditions of the sale.<sup>4</sup> The value which the owner of the property taken places upon it cannot be considered as the true basis of damages.<sup>5</sup> It is not proper to consider what one would give rather than be turned out of the property;<sup>6</sup> or what would

- Paul & C. R. R., 21 Minn. 122; St. Paul & S. R. R. v. Murphy, 19 Minn. 500; Warren v. First Div. St. P. & P. R. R., 18 Minn. 384; Winona & St. Paul R. R. v. Denman, 10 Minn. 267; Fremont E. & M. V. R. R. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 585; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364; Virginia & T. R. R. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 358; Somerville & E. R. R. Co. v. Doughty, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 495; In re Utica, C. & S. V. R. R., 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 456; In re Union Village & J. R. R., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 457; s. c., 35 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 420; Canandaigua & N. F. R. R. v. Payne, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 273; Troy & Boston R. R. v. Lee, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 169; Hill v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 5 Den. (N. Y.) 206; Rochester & S. R. R. v. Budlong, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 467; Black River M. R. R. Co. v. Barnard, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 106; People v. Mayor, 2 Hun (N. Y.), 433; In re Furman St. 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 649; Pittsburgh V. & C. R. R. Co. v. Rose, 74 Pa. St. 362; Delaware L. & W. R. R. v. Burson, 61 Pa. St. 369; Harvey v. Lackawanna & B. R. R., 47 Pa. St. 428; East Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Hiester, 40 Pa. St. 53; Watson v. Pittsburg & C. R. R. Co., 37 Pa. St. 469; Searle v. Lackawanna & B. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 57; Schuylkill Nav. Co. v. Thoburn, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411; Howard v. Providence, 6 R. I. 514; Memphis v. Bolton, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 508; Chicago & M. C. R. R. Co. v. Ritter, (Tex.), 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 202; Chapman v. Oshkosh & M. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 629; West v. Milwaukee L. S. & W. R. R., 56 Wis. 318; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 415; Driver v. Western Union R. R. Co., 32 Wis. 569; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 726; Neilson v. Chicago, M. & N. Ry. Co., 58 Wis. 164; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 239; Patterson v. Mississippi & R. R. Boom Co., 3 Dill. C. C. 465; Ontario & Q. R. R. v. Taylor, 6 Ont. Rep. Q. B. Div. 338; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 100; Penny v. Penny, 37 L. J. Ch. 340.
1. Hollingsworth v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 443; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 113; Cummins v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 397; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 86; Robbins v. St. Paul S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 22 Minn. 286; s. c., 19 Am. Ry. Rep. 398.
2. Stockton & C. R. R. Co. v. Galgiani, 49 Cal. 139; Searle v. Lackawanna & B. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 57.
3. Jacksonville & S. E. Ry. Co. v. Walsh, 106 Ill. 253; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 245; Lafayette, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Winslow, 66 Ill. 219.
4. Everett v. Union Pac. Ry. Co., 59 Iowa, 243; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 203; Lawrence v. Boston, 119 Mass. 126; Somerville & E. R. R. Co. v. Doughty, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 495; Memphis v. Bolton, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 508; Patterson v. Mississippi & R. R. Boom Co., 3 Dill. C. C. 465. See also Lance v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 57 Iowa, 636; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 617; Cobb v. Boston, 112 Mass. 181; Fall River Works v. Fall River, 110 Mass. 428; Davis v. Charles River R. R., 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 506; Tufts v. Charlestown, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 537; Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 585; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364; Virginia & T. R. R. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 358; Howard v. Providence, 6 R. I. 514; Chicago & M. C. R. R. v. Ritter (Tex.), 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 202; West v. Milwaukee L. S. & W. R. R., 56 Wis. 318; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 415; Penny v. Penny, 37 L. J. Ch. 340.
5. Matter of Furman Street, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 649.
6. Tufts v. Charlestown, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 537.

be given as a compromise price by the public, when there could be no other purchaser, and the seller had the option of selling or awaiting condemnation proceedings to assess the price.<sup>1</sup> The fact that overtures looking to a compromise had been made, and an offer made, cannot be given in evidence.<sup>2</sup> It is not proper to add to the value because the land was indispensable to the railroad.<sup>3</sup> The difference in the rental value of the property, where held for the purpose of renting, may be taken as a criterion.<sup>4</sup> Where the use made of the land is simply temporary, the measure of damages is not the full value of the land, but only a fair recompense to the owner for the use made of it, and for any injury done to it.<sup>5</sup>

(2) Uses to which Land is adapted.—Where property has been improved for carrying on a special business, and such business in fact enhances the value of the site, this fact may be considered in estimating the damages.<sup>6</sup> But the jury are not confined to only the purpose to which land is devoted: they may consider any purpose for which it is adapted, and which enters into and affects its market value.<sup>7</sup>

1. Cobb v. Boston, 112 Mass. 181; Fall River Print Works v. Fall River, 110 Mass. 428; Howard v. Providence, 6 R. I. 514.

2. Davis v. Charles River R. R. Co., 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 506.

3. Virginia & T. R. R. Co. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 358; Penny v. Penny, 37 L. J. Ch. 340.

4. St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Haller, 82 Ill. 208.

5. Griswold v. St. Louis, etc., R. R. Co., 8 Mo. App. 582; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 626.

6. Chicago & Eastern R. R. Co. v. Jacobs, 110 Ill. 414; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; Robb v. Maysville & Mount Sterling T. R. Co., 3 Met. (Ky.) 117; Michigan Air Line Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 44 Mich. 222; King v. Minneapolis U. R. Co., 32 Minn. 224; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 93; Price v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 27 Wis. 98.

View and Assessment by Jury.—It has been held that the jury should value the property without reference to the person of the owner or the actual state of his business. Pittsburgh & Lake E. R. R. Co. v. Robinson, 95 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 468.

Statutory Right to Damages.—By statute the right to recover damages is sometimes confined to the loss resulting from the actual taking without considering the use of the part appropriated. Brooks v. Davenport & St. P. R. R. Co., 37 Iowa, 99; Albany N. R. R. Co. v. Lansing, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 68.

7. Little Rock & F. S. R. R. Co. v. McGehee, 41 Ark. 202; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 82; Selma, R. & D. R. R. v.

Keith, 53 Ga. 178; Young v. Harrison, 17 Ga. 30; Harrison v. Young, 9 Ga. 359; Haslam v. Galena & S. W. R. R., 64 Ill. 353; Bangor & P. R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Burt v. Wigglesworth, 117 Mass. 302; Eastern R. R. v. Boston & M. R. R., 111 Mass. 125; Boston & W. R. R. v. Old Colony R. R., 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 605; King v. Minneapolis Union Ry. Co., 32 Minn. 224; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 93; Sherman v. St. Paul M. & M. Ry. Co., 30 Minn. 227; Brisbane v. St. Paul & S. C. Ry. Co., 23 Minn. 114; Mississippi River Bridge Co. v. King, 58 Mo. 491; Somerville & E. R. v. Doughty, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 495; In re Furman St., 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 649; Shenango & A. R. R. v. Braham, 79 Pa. St. 447; Dorlan v. East Brandywine & W. R. R., 46 Pa. St. 520; Washburn v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 59 Wis. 364; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 225; Mississippi & R. R. Boom Co. v. Paterson, 98 U. S. (8 Otto) 403; bk. 25, L. ed. 206. See also Everett v. Union Pac. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 243; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 203.

Arkansas Doctrine.—In Little Rock & F. S. R. Co. v. McGehee, 41 Ark. 202; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 82, it is held that "in determining the value of lands appropriated for public uses, the same considerations are to be regarded as in sales between private parties; the inquiry being in such cases, what, from their availability for valuable uses, are they worth in the market. As a general rule, compensation to the owner for lands appropriated to public uses is estimated by reference to the uses for which the lands are suitable, having regard to the existing business or wants of the community, or such as may be reasonably expected in the near future." The court say, "The defendant here contends that the adaptability of the land for the purpose of a ferry was not a proper element for consideration in estimating the value of the land condemned, assuming that such adaptability could never be made available to the plaintiff by reason of supposed exclusive privileges in the proprietors of the Van Buren Ferry; or, if it was competent for the county court to license a rival ferry near the town of Van Buren, that it was extremely problematical whether, if the incline had never been built, such license would have been granted, and a ferry established by the present or any future owner of the land, and consequently the damages were too remote, speculative, and inestimable by any standard approximating correctness. A similar question came before the Supreme Court of the United States, in Mississippi & Rum River Boom Co. v. Patterson, 98 U. S. 403; bk. 26 L. ed. 206. The Boom Company was a corporation created under the laws of Minnesota to construct booms between certain designated points on the Mississippi and Rum Rivers in that State. It was authorized to enter upon and occupy any land necessary for properly conducting its business; and where such land was private property, to apply to the district court of the proper county for the appointment of commissioners to appraise its value and take proceedings for its condemnation. Patterson was the owner of an island and parts of two other islands in the Mississippi River. The land owned by him amounted to a little over thirty-four acres, and the position of the islands specially fitted them, in connection with the west bank of the river, to form a boom of extensive dimensions, capable of holding with safety from twenty to thirty millions of feet of logs. This land the Boom Company sought to condemn for its uses, and upon its application commissioners were appointed by the district court to appraise its value. The case finally got into the federal court. The jury found a general verdict assessing the value of the land at $9,358.33, but accompanied it with a special verdict assessing its value, aside from any consideration of its value for boom purposes, at $300, and in view of its adaptability for those purposes, a further and additional value of $9,058.33. The circuit court, under a threat of new trial, compelled the plaintiff to reduce his verdict to 5,500, and judgment was entered for that amount. Upon a writ of error the judgment was affirmed. Mr. Justice Field, in delivering the unanimous opinion of the court, said, 'In determining the value of the land appropriated for public purposes, the same considerations are to be regarded as in the sale of property between private parties. The inquiry in such cases must be, what is the property worth in the market, viewed not merely with reference to the uses to which it is at the time applied, but with reference to the uses to which it is plainly adapted? that is to say, what is it worth from its availability for valuable uses? Property is not to be deemed worthless because the owner allows it to go to waste, or to be regarded as valueless because he is unable to put it to any use. Others may be able to use it and make it subserve the necessities or conveniences of life. Its capability of being made thus available gives it a market-value which can be readily estimated. So many and varied are the circumstances to be taken into consideration in determining the value of property condemned for public purposes, that it is, perhaps, impossible to formulate a rule to govern its appraisal in all cases. Exceptional circumstances will modify the most carefully guarded rule; but, as a general thing, we should say that the compensation to the owner is to be estimated by reference to the uses for which the property is suitable, having regard to the existing business or wants of the community, or such as may be reasonably expected in the immediate future. The position of the three islands in the Mississippi fitting them to form, in connection with the west bank of the river, a boom of immense dimensions, capable of holding in safety over twenty millions of feet of logs, added largely to the value of the lands. This Boom Company would greatly prefer them to more valuable agricultural lands, or to lands situated elsewhere on the river, as by utilizing them in the manner proposed they would save heavy expenditures of money in constructing a boom of equal capacity. Their adaptability for boom purposes was a circumstance, therefore, which the owner had a right to insist upon as an element in estimating the value of his lands."

In Minnesota it is held, in the case of King v. Minneapolis W. R. Co., 32 Minn. 224; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 93, that when property is taken for public uses the owner is entitled to its market-value for the use to which it may be most advantageously applied, and for which it would sell for the highest price in the market; that any evidence is competent, and any fact is proper to be considered which legitimately bears upon the market-value of the property; and that where the property has been improved for a special purpose, for which it is especially suited (as in this case, for the manufacture of ploughs), if the fact that the business has been thereon established and in operation has enhanced the market-value of the property as a site for carrying on such business, it is proper to take this fact into consideration. The court say, "We think it may be stated as elementary that a person is entitled to the fair value of his property for any use to which it is adapted, and for which it is available, and for which it may be sold. He is entitled to the value of his property for any use to which it may be applied, and for which it would ordinarily sell in the market, whether that use be the one to which it is presently applied, or some other to which it is adapted. It is, we think, equally true that any evidence is competent and any fact is proper to be considered which legitimately bears upon the question of the marketable value of the property. In this case evidence was introduced tending to prove that the fact of a business having been established and carried on on the premises for so long a time materially increased the market-value of this property. If this was the fact, it was competent to prove it; and, if proved, we cannot see why it was not proper to take it into consideration in estimating the value. Who can say that this circumstance would not affect its value; that is, what a purchaser would ordinarily be willing to pay? When we speak of the market-value of property as being what purchasers generally would pay for it, we do not mean what men would pay who had no particular object in view in purchasing, and no definite plan as to the use to which to put it. The owner has a right to its value for the use for which it would bring the most in the market. This property was expressly built for a plough-factory, and was especially suited for such a use. And it is not unreasonable to suppose that a purchaser would give more for it than he would if the business had been suspended for a time, or had never been established there. Take, for example, a hotel built expressly as a public house, and not capable of advantageous use for any thing else, might it not be worth more, that is, bring more in the market, by reason of the fact that it had been for years run as a hotel? So with a stand long used for some branch of mercantile business. From that very fact it might be worth more for that kind of business than any other, and a man who wished to buy might give more for it than he otherwise would. If so, why is not that a proper element to take into account in determining its value? To do so is not, as counsel seems to argue, to pay the owner for his loss of business or loss of future profits, but simply to give him the marketable value for his property for the use for which it is best adapted, and for which it would bring the most."

b. Where Part of Tract taken. — (1) Depreciation in Market Value. — Where part of a tract is taken, the owner is entitled to recover not simply the market value of what is taken, but the difference between the market value of the entire tract and the market value of the part which is left.<sup>1</sup>

1. St. Louis, A. & T. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 39 Ark. 167; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; San Francisco, A. & S. R. R. Co. v. Caldwell, 31 Cal. 367; Selma R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Keith, 53 Ga. 178; Village of Hyde Park v. Dunham, 85 Ill. 569; Eberhart v. Chicago M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 70 Ill. 347; Page v. Chicago, M. St. P. R. Co., 70 Ill. 324; Chicago & P. R. R. Co. v. Francis, 70 Ill. 238; Sidener v. Essex, 22 Ind. 201; Lance v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 57 Iowa, 636; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 617; Jewett v. Israel, 35 Iowa, 261; Fleming v. Chicago, D. & M. Ry. Co., 34 Iowa, 353; Henry v. Dubuque Pac. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Missouri River, F. S. & G. R. R. Co. v. Owen, 8 Kans. 409; Bangor & P. R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Edmonds v. City of Boston, 108 Mass. 535; Blue Earth Co. v. St. Paul & S. C. Ry. Co., 28 Minn. 503; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 209; Winona & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Denman, 10 Minn. 267; Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. Co. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 585; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364; Virginia & T. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 8 Nev. 165; Somerville & E. R. R. Co. v. Doughty, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 495; Albany & S. R. R. Co. v. Dayton, 10 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 182; In re Utica, C. & S. V. R. R. Co., 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 456; In re Union Village & J. R. R. Co., 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 457; s. c., 35 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 420; Canandaigua & N. F. R. R. Co. v. Payne, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 273; Troy & Boston R. R. Co. v. Lee, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 169; Rochester & S. R. R. v. Budlong, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 467; In re Black River & M. R. R. v. Barnard, 9 Hun (N. Y.), 104; People v. Mayor, 2 Hun (N. Y.), 433; Putnam v. Douglas County, 6 Oreg. 328; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 527; Pittsburgh, V. & C. Ry. Co. v. Bentley, 88 Pa. St. 178; Danville, H. & W. R. R. Co. v. Gearhart, 81 *Pa. St. 260; East Brandywine & W. R. R. Co. v. Ranck, 78 Pa. St. 454; Pittsburgh, V. & G. R. R. Co. v. Rose, 74 Pa. St. 362; Delaware, L. & W. R. R. Co. v. Burson, 61 Pa. St. 369; Hornstein v. Atlantic & G. W. R. R. Co., 51 Pa. St. 87; Harvey v. Lackawanna & B. R. R. Co., 47 Pa. St. 428; East Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Hottenstein, 47 Pa. St. 28; Watson v. Pittsburgh & C. R. R. Co., 37 Pa. St. 469;

Searle v. Lackawanna & B. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 57; Schuylkill N. Co. v. Thoburn, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411; Chicago & M. R. R. Co. v. Ritter (Tex.), 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 202; Parks v. Wisconsin Cent. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 413; Ontario & Q. R. R. Co. v. Taylor, 16 Ont. Q. B. Div. 338; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 100.

In Arkansas, in the case of St. Louis, A. & T. R. Co. v. Anderson, 39 Ark. 167; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97, it is held that "the elements composing the owner's damages for a right of way over his lands, include not only the value of the land taken for the way, but also the injury to his remaining land, arising from the increased difficulty of communication between the severed parts (see Mason v. Kennebeck & P. R. Co., 31 Me. 215; Clark v. Boston, C., & M. R. Co., 24 N. H. 114; Imlay v. Union Branch R. Co., 26, 249; Utica, C., & S. R. Co., in re, 56 Barb. 456; Somerville & E. R. Co. v. Doughty, 2 Zab. 495; Mifflin v. Harrisburg, P., M. & L. R. Co., 16 Pa. St. 182), the inconvenient shape in which the remaining land is left (see Mifflin v. Harrisburg, P., M. & L. R. Co., 16 Pa. St. 182; White v. Charlotte & S. C. R. Co., 6 Rich. 47), the cost of the new fences required by the road (see Mason v. Kennebeck & P. R. Co., 31 Me. 215; Somerville & E. R. Co. v. Doughty, 2 Zab. 495, 513; Henry v. Pacific R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Sater v. Burlington & Mt. P. R. Co., 1 Iowa, 386, 391; Milwaukee & M. R. Co. v. Eble, 4 Chandler (Wis.), 72; North Eastern R. Co. v. Sineath, 8 Rich. 185. The expense of one-half of the cost of fencing was allowed in Rensselaer & S. R. Co., in re, 4 Paige, 553. See Long Island R. Co., in re, 3 Edw. Ch. 487), and various other causes not of a remote or speculative character (see Boothby v. Androscoggin R. Co., 51 Me. 318; Aldrich v. Cheshire R. Co., 21 N. H. 359; Hoffer v. Penn. Canal Co., 87 Pa. St. 221; Curtis v. Eastern R. Co., 98 Mass. (14 Allen) 55, 428; Estabrooks v. Peterborough & S. R. Co., 12 Cush. 224. See Stodghill v. Chicago, B., & Q. R. Co., 43 Iowa, 26; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Magruder, 34 Md. 79; Chesapeake & O. C. Co. v. Grove, 11 G. & J. 398; Dearborn v. Boston, C., & M. R. Co., 24 N. H. 79; Sabin v. Vt. Cent. R. Co., 25 Vt. 363; Dodge v. County Comrs., 3 Met. 380; Brown v. Providence, W., & B. R. Co., 5 Gray, 35; Curtis v. Eastern R. Co., 14 Allen, 55, 58, 98 Mass. 428; Whitehouse v. Androscoggin R. Co., 52 Me. 208; Hays v. Cohoes Co., 2 N. Y. 159; Tremain v. Cohoes Co., 2 N. Y. 163; Carman v. Steubenville & I. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 399; East Penn. R. Co. v. Schollenberger, 54 Pa. St. 144; Wilmington & R. R. Co. v. Stauffer, 60 Pa. St. 374; Phil. & R. R. Co. v. Yeiser, 8 Pa. St. 366; Somerville & E. R. Co. v.

Doughty, 2 Zab. 495; Colvill v. St. Paul & C. R. Co., 19 Minn. 283; Hatch v. Cincinnati & I. R. Co., 18 Ohio St. 92, 124; Proprietors of Locks & Canals v. Nashua & L. R. Co., 10 Cush. 385, 392; Utica, C., & S. V. R. Co., in re, 56 Barb. 456). Some authorities hold such a risk to be too uncertain and contingent to be considered in an assessment (Sunbury & E. R. Co. v. Hummell, 27 Pa. St. 99; Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Lazarus, 28 Pa. St. 203; Patten v. Northern Cent. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 426. See Fleming v. Chicago, D., & M. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 353; Canandaigua & N. F. R. Co. v. Payne, 16 Barb. 273; Troy & B. R. Co. v. Northern Turnp. Co., 16 Barb. 100; Troy & B. R. Co. v. Lee, 13 Barb. 169; Union Village & J. R. Co., in re 53 Barb. 457; Utica, Mount Washington Road Co., in re, 35 N. H. 134; Proprietors of Locks & Canals v. Nashua & L. R. Co., 10 Cush. 385; Boston & W. R. Co. v. Old Colony R. Co., 12 Cush. 605; Sunbury & E. R. Co. v. Hummell, 27 Pa. St. 99; Searle v. Lackawanna & B. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 57; Fleming v. Chicago, D., & M. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 353; Robbins v. Milwaukee & H. R. Co., 6 Wis. 636). The true measure of damages is the difference between the market-value of the whole tract before the taking, and that of the remainder after the taking, excluding any enhancement of value by the building of the road; and the opinions of witnesses conversant with the land and its value before and after the taking are admissible as evidence."

The Iowa Doctrine, as laid down in Lance v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 57 Iowa, 636; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 617, is that "the measure of compensation for the right of way in such cases is the difference in value of the land immediately before and the value after the right of way is taken, excluding the benefits of the road to the farm."

In Nebraska, where land is condemned for railroad purposes, the owner is entitled to have, as one item of damage, in all cases, the fair market-value of the part actually taken; and where a portion of the tract remains, if it can be said with reasonable certainty that the road, properly constructed and carefully operated, will injure it, he is also entitled to recover for that; but injuries merely speculative and contingent upon the improper construction or negligent operation of the road are too remote and uncertain to be considered. Fremont, E. & M. V. R. Co. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 585; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364.

In Oregon.—It is said in the case of Putnam v. Douglas Co., 6 Oreg. 378; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 527, that "the measure of damages which appears to be established by most of the cases, for building a road through a man's land, is the difference between the value of the land before the road was built, and its value after the road is finished. And this is the rule adopted by our statute. This rule appears to have been sanctioned by the judicial decisions of Indiana, Pennsylvania, New York, and Massachusetts. McIntyre v. The State, 5 Blackf. 384; Hornstein v. A. & G. W. R. R. Co., 51 Penn. St. 87."

(2) Depreciation for Specific Purpose. — Where a part of a tract of land is taken, the owner is entitled to recover by way of compensation any diminution in value caused to the adjoining land, by the fact that it is rendered less available for present or future purposes to which the whole tract was adapted.<sup>1</sup>

1. St. Louis, J. & S. R. R. Co. v. Kirby, 104 Ill. 345; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 214; Montmorency Gravel Road Co. v. Stockton, 43 Ind. 328; Fleming v. Chicago, D. & M. R. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 353; Bangor & P. R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; In re New York, L. & W. Ry. Co., 29 Hun (N. Y.), 1; In re New York, W. & R. R. Co., 21 Hun (N. Y.), 250; Powers v. Hazelton & L. R. R. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429; Cincinnati & S. R. R. Co. v. Longworth, 30 Ohio St. 108; Pittsburg V. & C. R. R. Co. v. Rose, 74 Pa. St. 362; White v. Charlotte & S. C. R. R. Co., 6 Rich. (S. C.) L. 47; Driver v. Western Union R. R. Co., 32 Wis. 569; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 726.

Ohio Doctrine. — The Supreme Court of Ohio, in the case of Powers v. Hazelton & L. R. Co., 33 Ohio St. 429, 435, say that "When the land is appropriated by the State for a public use, a compensatory, not a speculative, remuneration is guaranteed by the law for the land taken, and for the damages occasioned thereby to the remainder of the premises. The difference in the value of the owner's property with the appropriation, and that without it, is the rule of compensation. This difference must be ascertained with reference to the value of the property in view of its present character, situation, and surroundings. It cannot be enhanced by proving facts of a contingent and prospective character, such as the probable rents that may be derived from the property, or its special value as a prospective monopoly of a road-way to the adjoining lands of other persons. Patten v. Railway Co., 33 Penn. St. 426; Rhodes v. Baird, 16 Ohio St. 573; Goodin v. Canal Co., 18 Ohio St. 169; Lake Shore Railway v. Cin. S. & C. Railway, 30 Ohio St. 604."

Damages to Trade or Business, etc. — Damages to the trade or business of a landowner are generally too remote to be a subject of damages, because they depend on contingencies too uncertain and speculative to be allowed. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Cincinnati S. & C. R. Co., 30 Ohio St. 604, 623. In ascertaining the depreciated value of the land out of which the appropriation is made, reference must be had to the immediate consequences, and consequences cannot be heaped on each other. Sater v. Burlington R. R. Co., 1 Iowa, 386; Brannan v. Johnson, 19 Me. 361.

The present value, in consideration of the extent of the right conferred, and the immediate and necessary consequences which depreciate the property, are only to be considered. Henry v. Dubuque R. R. Co., 11 Iowa, 283; The President, etc., v. Thoburn, 7 S. & R. (Pa.) 15; Watson v. The P. & C. R. R., 37 Pa. St. 469.

It is the difference in value of the land, and not the diminished annual rental, that is to determine the damage. Amsden v. The Dubuque R. R. Co., 28 Iowa, 542.

Where a railroad crosses a turnpike, the fact that the future business of the latter will be diminished should be disregarded. Troy & B. R. R. Co. v. The President, etc., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 100.

Damages to a ferry, on the land out of which the right of way for a bridge across a river is taken, cannot be considered in assessing damages for the bridge. Richmond v. Rodgers, 1 Duvall (Ky.), 135.

In the case of the Mount Washington Road, 35 N. H. 134, the land of a Mr. Thompson was condemned for a right of way for a carriage-road to the top of the mountain. He was the proprietor of a hotel on the remainder of the land, called the Glen House, with a large income from letting horses to tourists, who desired to ascend the mountain by a bridle-path. The commissioners, in making the award, allowed him for the probable injury to his business by reason of the competition of a carriage-road to the summit. The actual damage to Thompson's land was small, and the principal allowance was for the injury to his business by the proposed road. It was held "That the land-owner should receive compensation for damages done to the land through which the road may be laid out," and "not for any loss or damage he may suffer incidentally resulting from the operation of the road when completed." "Such remote and consequential damages are not caused by the taking of the land for the road, but the change which the public improvement introduces into the course of business,

(3) Injuries affecting Whole Tract. — In estimating the damages which a property-owner may recover, where a part of the tract is taken, not only the value of the land actually taken may be considered, but also the direct injury to the rest of the tract resulting therefrom.<sup>1</sup> Thus the jury are entitled to know how a railroad and for such damage the public is not bound to make compensation. Every man, when he embarks in any business, must do so at the risk of such changes as time and the progress of the age may introduce. The damages awarded to the land-owner are limited to the direct injury done to the land; and he cannot, as a land-owner, claim damages for a loss which he sustains in his business by the operation of the road."

1. Hooper v. Savannah & M. R. R. Co., 69 Ala. 529; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 256; Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Keith, 53 Ga. 178; Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Redwine, 51 Ga. 470; McReynolds v. Burlington & O. R. R., 106 Ill. 152; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 172; Keithsburg & E. R. R. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Jones v. Chicago and I. R. R. Co., 68 Ill. 380; Mix v. Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 319; Tonica & P. R. R. Co. v. Unsicker, 22 Ill. 221; Baltimore, P. & C. R. R. Co. v. Lansing, 52 Ind. 229; Montmorency Gravel Road Co. v. Stockton, 43 Ind. 328; Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co. v. Horn, 41 Ind. 479; White Water V. R. R. v. McClure, 29 Ind. 536; Ham v. Wisconsin, I. & N. R. R., 61 Iowa, 716; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 204; Kucheman v. C. C. & D. R. R. Co., 46 Iowa, 366; Atchison & N. R. R. v. Gough, 29 Kans. 94; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 151; Reisner v. Atchison U. D. & R. R. Co., 27 Kans. 382; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 155; Kansas City, E. & S. R. R. v. Merrill, 25 Kans. 421; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 485; Richmond & L. Turnpike R. Co. v. Rogers, 11 Duv. (Ky.) 135; Henderson & N. R. R. Co. v. Dickerson, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 173; Walker v. Old Colony & N. R. R. Co., 103 Mass. 10; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 509; First Church v. Boston, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 214; Com. v. Coombs, 2 Mass. 489; Sheldon v. Minneapolis & St. L. Ry. Co., 29 Minn. 318; Wilmes v. Minneapolis & N. R., 29 Minn. 242; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 161; Blue Earth Co. v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R., 28 Minn. 503; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 209; Scott v. St. Paul & C. R. R., 21 Minn. 322; Simmons v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 184; Lake Superior & M. R. R. Co. v. Greve, 17 Minn. 322; Winona & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Waldron, 11 Minn. 515; Winona & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Denman, 10 Minn. 267; Wyandotte, K. C. & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Waldon, 70 Mo. 629; Pacific R. R. Co. v. Chrystal, 25 Mo. 544; Missouri P. R. R. v. Hays, 15 Neb. 224; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng.

R. R. Cas. 177; Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. v. Lamb, 11 Neb. 592; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 367; Dearborn v. Boston, C. & M. R. R. Co., 24 N. H. 179; Virginia & T. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 8 Nev. 165; In re Mount Washington R. Co., 35 N. H. 134; Albany N. R. R. Co. v. Lansing, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 68; Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Ball, 5 Ohio St. 568; East Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Hottenstein, 47 Pa. St. 28; East Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Hiester, 40 Pa. St. 53; Watson v. Pittsburgh & C. R. R., 37 Pa. St. 469; White v. Charlotte & S. C. R. R. Co., 6 Rich. (S. C.) 47; Baltimore & O. R. R. v. Pittsburgh, W. & K. R. R., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444; Washburn v. Milwaukee, L. W. R. R. Co., 59 Wis. 364; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 225; Chapman v. Oshkosh & M. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 629; Parks v. Wisconsin C. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 413; Snyder v. West Union R. R. Co., 25 Wis. 60; Robbins v. Milwaukee & H. R. R. Co., 6 Wis. 636.

In Alabama. — In Hooper v. Savannah & M. R. Co., 69 Ala. 529; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 256, it is said that just compensation, under the Constitution, to the owner of a city lot, for a part of the lot taken and applied to the use of a railroad company, includes not only the value of the part of the lot so taken and applied, but also the injury resulting therefrom to the remaining parts of the lot; and if the ways of access to, and egress from, the lot are obstructed or interrupted thereby, such obstruction or interruption forms a part of the injury, for which the owner is entitled to compensation.

In Illinois. — The Supreme Court of Illinois hold, in the case of McReynolds v. Burlington & O. R. R. Co., 106 Ill. 152; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 172, that "the inconvenience of carrying on a farm divided into two parts by a railroad, is a legitimate element of damages to be considered by the jury in assessing damages for right of way, although such damages may be entirely conjectural, and not susceptible of any thing like definite ascertainment. But damages from danger of crossing the road with teams, and for danger to children and members of the family of the owner, are so unreliable and uncertain as not to form a proper basis in the assessment of damages. The assessment should be confined to such damages only as are reasonably divides a farm, in the case of farm-lands, how it affects it as to water, pastures, improvements, etc., and also the dangers and profitable. See Jones v. Chicago & I. R. Co., 68 Ill. 380."

In Iowa.—In How v. Wisconsin, 1 & N. R. Co., 61 Iowa, 716; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 204, a railroad was constructed through plaintiff's farm, along a road which followed a Government subdivision,—plaintiff's house and other buildings being on the south side of the road, and much, if not the greater part, of the farm lying upon the north side. The court said, "In determining the damage sustained by reason of the construction of the railroad, the injury to the whole farm was considered. Defendant claims that the inquiry should have been confined to the Government subdivision upon which the road is located. The separate tracts of land, as fixed by the Government survey, were used together as one farm, not separately and as distinct farms. The improvements, and some cultivated land are on the south side of the road; the greater quantity of plough and pasture land is on the north, thus constituting the whole one farm, made up of all the separate Government subdivisions. In determining the plaintiff's damage, the court properly held that the injury to the whole farm should be considered. See Hartshorn v. B. C. R. & N. R. Co., 52 Iowa, 613; Rennick v. D. & N. W. R. Co., 49 Iowa, 664."

In Kansas.—G. was the owner of a contiguous and compact tract of two hundred and forty acres, used by him as one farm. Independence Creek ran in a curved and irregular line through the southwestern portion of the farm. This creek was the boundary-line between Atchison and Doniphan Counties, and by it some sixty acres of the farm were in Atchison and the balance in Doniphan County. Proceedings were instituted in Doniphan County to condemn a right of way for the A. & N. R. Co. through this farm. The right of way crossed the farm only in Doniphan County, and touched no part of the farm in Atchison. By whom the condemnation proceedings were instituted, and under what arrangements between the parties, does not appear. The commissioners, in their report, fixed the value of the land taken, and so awarded damages to the balance of the farm as an entirety. The amount of this award was deposited by the railroad company with the treasurer of Doniphan County. On a trial of an appeal from this award to the District Court of Doniphan County, held, that such court did not err in permitting an inquiry as to the damage to the farm as a whole, including that part in Atchison County and in rendering judgment for such damages.

Atchison & N. R. Co. v. Gough, 29 Kan. 94; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 151.

In Reismer v. Atchison Union Depot & R. Co., 27 Kan. 382; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. Cas. 155, it is held that where the land-owner is in the occupation of two lots within the limits of a city, which are occupied and enjoyed as one tract, and commissioners appointed for the purpose condemn a corner of one of the lots for the right of way of a railroad company, and the land-owner appeals from the award of the commissioners, reciting in the bond for appeal the lot referred to in the proceedings of the commissioners, the damages allowed, and alleges that the valuation and assessment of damages are totally inadequate and insufficient; the land-owner, on the hearing upon appeal, is entitled to offer evidence not only of the portion of the land taken, but of the diminution of the value of the whole property from which it is severed, and thereon to recover the actual damages sustained to the whole property by reason of the right of way so appropriated from a portion of one of the lots. The court say, "We think the court ought to have permitted, under the appeal, proof of all actual damages sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the right of way being taken and appropriated by the defendant. 'In such cases the damages must always very much depend upon the use to which the property is appropriated, and its situation and value with reference to other property of the same owner with which it is connected in use; and that rule of assessment or valuation would seem to be the only true one which makes the compensation go hand in hand with the actual loss or injury sustained by the person whose land is thus taken. People may do what they will with their own,—this is the essential idea of property; and whilst speculative damages cannot be allowed, yet actual damages—its value to the owner, his use being considered—must always be.' Welch v. Ry. Co., 27 Wis. 108; R. R. Co. v. Merrill, 25 Kan. 421."

"It was the duty of the commissioners, not only to have appraised the value of the right of way appropriated, but also to have assessed the damages of the owner's interest; and the appeal is had from the determination of the commissioners as to the value of the land, and for all other damages sustained by the owner by reason of such right of way so appropriated. Therefore, if the land-owner is injured as to a whole tract of land, he is entitled to recover damages for the injury to the whole property, not merely for that to the separate lot or piece of land over which the railroad is built. In our view, it is always better for the court, upon appeal, to permit the land-owner to file his petition setting forth his actual damages sustained by reason of the right of way being appropriated over his property, so that the railroad company may be fully informed before the trial of the evidence to be offered. But, independent of the filing of such petition, we think evidence should go to the jury as to all actual damages sustained by the land-owner by reason of the right of way appropriated, as to all the premises used as one tract or piece of property, whether it consists of one or more lots, of one or more quarter-sections of land. In condemnation proceedings, the company is the party that sets in motion the steps whereby the owner is deprived of his land, and if such company only take a few feet from a tract of property consisting of more than one lot, and used together as one property, the damages are to be assessed with reference to the injury to the whole property, and not to the lot alone from which the right of way is taken."

inconveniences arising from the practical use of the tract.<sup>1</sup> In some States the land-owner is by statute entitled to have farm-

"Under the provision of sect. 4, art. 12, of the Constitution of the State, a railway company must pay for the right of way irrespective of any benefit from the proposed improvement of the company, and the compensation for such right of way appropriated to the use of the company includes not only the value of the property taken, but also the loss the land-owner sustains in the value of his property by being deprived of a portion of it. Constitution of Kansas, art. 12, sect. 4; St. Joe & Denver City R. R. Co. v. Orr, 8 Kan. 420; M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Haines, 10 Kan. 439; A. T. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Blackshire, 10 Kan. 477; R. R. Co. v. Merrill, 25 Kan. 423."

The Massachusetts Doctrine is clearly laid down in Walker v. Old Colony & N. R. Co., 103 Mass. 10; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 509, where it is held that in assessing the damages occasioned to the owner of a messuage by the taking of his lands for the construction of a railroad, the depreciation of value arising from the proximity of the road and the running of trains should be considered only so far as it is due to proximity, secured by means, and as a result of such taking. The effects of noise, smoke, soot, and the like, are not distinct elements of damage; but, in estimating the depreciation in value of the entire tract, these causes may be considered, in so far as the annoyance and inconvenience arising therefrom are increased by reason of, and as an incident to, the taking of a part of the land. The turning of surface-water upon land, by the embankment of a railroad, is a proper element in estimating the damage to the land-owner by the construction of a railroad.

Injuries from Surface-Waters as an Element of Damages.—In Walker v. Old Colony & N. R. Co., 103 Mass. 10; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 509, the court says, "The injury from surface-water turned back by the embankment of the railroad, and made to flow upon the petitioner's land, or prevented from escaping therefrom in the usual mode, was proper for the consideration of the jury in estimating his damages. Where there is a public, or even, it would seem, a private, right or easement of drainage, it is the duty of the railroad corporation to make suitable provision for it; and their failure to do so subjects them to an action of tort, but not to damages upon complaint. Proprietors of Locks and Canals v. Nashua & L. R. Co., 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 385; Perry v. Worcester, 72 Mass. (6 Gray), 544. But no such duty exists in regard to surface-water. The cuts and embankments and necessary gutters of the railroad-track will unavoidably modify the flow of surface-water, and sometimes cause damage by keeping it back or projecting it in large quantities upon lands adjoining the road. Injuries to land from such causes would seem clearly to fall within the class of effects which have been held to afford ground for the assessment of damages under the statute." Dodge v. County Commissioners, 44 Mass. (3 Metc.) 380; Babcock v. Western Railroad Co., 50 Mass. (9 Metc.) 553; Parker v. Boston & M. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 107; Chapin v. Boston & P. R. Co., 60 Mass. (6 Cush.) 422; Tower v. Boston, 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 235; Brown v. Providence, W., & B. R. Co., 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 35; Curtis v. Eastern Railroad Co., 96 Mass. (14 Allen) 55.

In Nebraska, damages incident to the taking of land for right of way for a railroad, and for which compensation must be made to the owner, independently of the portion actually appropriated, are the result of facts and circumstances susceptible of proof; and they must be proved before the damages are allowed. Freemont, E., & M. V. R. Co. v. Lamb, 11 Neb. 592; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 367.

1. Hooper v. Savannah & M. R. R. Co., 69 Ala. 529; St. Louis, A. & T. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 38 Ark. 167; Chicago & I. R. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 90 Ill. 316; Galena & S. W. R. R. Co. v. Birkbeck, 70 Ill. 208; Jones v. Chicago & I. R. R. Co., 68 Ill. 382; Rockford R. & I. St. L. R. R. Co. v. McKinley,

crossings constructed across railroad-tracks passing through a farm; and where the obligation to construct the crossing is upon the land-owner, he is entitled to recover compensation therefor;<sup>1</sup> but such an item should not be allowed where the company undertakes to construct the crossings.<sup>2</sup>

(4) Inconvenience in working Minerals.—In England it has been held that where a land-owner is bound to leave minerals sufficient to form an adequate support for the surface, he is entitled not only to the value of the minerals left, but also to the additional profit which could be made by getting them.<sup>3</sup> But it has been held in Pennsylvania that contingent future disadvantages and unopened mines should not be taken into consideration as an element of damages; the value of the land taken, and the actual damage to the lessee of the property, being the limit of recovery.<sup>4</sup>

(5) What is considered a Single Tract.—Where lands are occupied as a single farm, even though consisting of sections, half or quarter sections, eighties or forties, not necessarily belonging to the same legal subdivision, it is, notwithstanding, to be treated as a single tract in estimating the compensation for property taken.<sup>5</sup> And in the case of city property, the fact that the 64 Ill. 338; White Water V. R. R. Co. v. McClure, 29 Ind. 536; Dreher v. Iowa S. W. Ry. Co., 59 Iowa, 599; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 221; Hartshorn v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 52 Iowa, 613; Brooks v. Davenport & S. P. R. R. Co., 37 Iowa, 99; Henderson & N. R. R. v. Dickerson, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 173; In re Mount Washington R. R. Co., 35 N. H. 134; Somerville & E. R. R. Co. v. Doughty, 22 N. J. L. (2 Zab.) 495; Bowen v. Atlantic & F. B. V. R. R. Co., 17 S. C. 574.

1. Horne v. Atlantic & St. L. R. R. Co., 36 N. H. 440; Kittell v. Missisquoi R. R. Co., 56 Vt. 96; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 165.

2. Kansas, C. & E. R. R. Co. v. Kregelo, 32 Kans. 608; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 241; March v. Portsmouth & C. R. R. Co., 19 N. H. 372.

3. Barnsley Can. Co. v. Twibell, 13 L. J. Eq. N. S. 434. See also, Sparrow v. Oxford W. & W. R. R. Co., 13 Eng. L. & Eq. 33; s. c., 21 L. J. Eq. N. S. 731; 16 Jur. 703.

English Statute.—By sect. 81 of 8 Vict., c. 20, it is enacted that a railway company shall "from time to time pay to the owner, lessee, or occupier of the mines extending so as to lie on both sides of the railway, all such additional expenses and losses as shall be incurred by such owner," etc., by reason of the severance of the surface-land, or of the continuous working of the mines being interrupted, or by reason of the same being worked so as not to prejudice the railway; and in case of dispute as to the amount of "such losses or expenses," the same shall be settled by arbitration. Held, that an arbitrator appointed to assess, under this section, the losses or expenses sustained and incurred by a mine-owner by reason of his land being severed, and the working of his mines interrupted, rightly included in his award items of compensation for additional losses or expenses not then incurred, but which would necessarily be sustained or incurred in working the mines, and which were capable of being immediately estimated with reasonable certainty. Whitehouse v. Wolverhampton & W. Ry. Co., L. R. 5 Ex. 6.

4. Searle v. Lackawanna & B. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 57.

5. Keithsburg & E. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Ham v. Wisconsin, I. & N. R. R. Co., 61 Iowa, 716; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 204; Hartshorn v. Burlington C. R. & N. Ry. Co., 52 Iowa, 613; Kansas City, E. & S. R. R. Co. v. Merrill, 25 Kans. 421; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 485; Wilmes v. Minneapolis & N. Ry. Co., 29 Minn. 242; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 161; Minnesota Valley R. R. Co. v. Doran, 15 Minn. 230; Wyandotte K. C. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Walden, 70 Mo. 629; Parks v. Wisconsin Cent. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 413; Bigelow v. West Wisconsin R. R. Co., 27 Wis. 478.

Farm considered as a Unit.—Question for Jury.—Part of the respondent's land lay north, and the rest, being an eighty-acre premises have been platted as distinct lots will not affect the owner's right to recover for an injury to the whole where they are in fact used for the same purpose.<sup>1</sup>

c. Property Injuriously affected.—Where property has been injuriously affected, although no part of it is taken, the owner is only entitled to recover for those injuries which are direct in their nature, and can in no case recover for those which he shares in common with the rest of the public.<sup>2</sup> If the value of the premises tract, lay south of a public road, running on a line between it and the rest. Respondent testified that he bought said eighty-acre tract in 1858 of K., and that K. occupied it as a separate farm, and had a farmhouse on it, and that the road was there when he bought it; that it was tillable, and had been cultivated by a tenant the last two years. It was held that the jury were properly instructed, that, for the purpose of assessing the respondent's damages, his farm must be considered as a unit, but what such unit includes the jury must determine; that the petitioner contended that said eighty acres was a separate parcel of land, and not within the farm, and not to be considered in estimating the damages; that this was a question for them; if it were a part of the farm, they might consider the effect of the road upon respondent's convenience and safety in cultivating it from his dwelling in connection with his other land constituting his farm, otherwise not. St. Paul & S. C. Ry. Co. v. Murphy, 19 Minn. 500.

Same.—Where Land lies in Two Counties.—G. was the owner of a contiguous and compact farm of two hundred and forty acres. Independence Creek ran in a curved and irregular line through the south-western portion of the farm. This creek was the boundary-line between Atchison and Doniphan Counties; and some sixty acres of the farm were in Atchison, and the balance in Doniphan, County. Proceedings were instituted in Doniphan County to condemn a right of way for the A. and N. R. R. Co. through this farm. The right of way crossed the farm only in Doniphan County, and touched no part of the land in Atchison. The commissioners, in their report, fixed the value of the land taken, and also awarded damages to the balance of the farm as an entirety. The amount of this award was deposited by the railroad company with the treasurer of Doniphan County. On the trial of an appeal to the district court of Doniphan County, held, that such court did not err in permitting an inquiry as to damages to the farm as a whole, including that part in Atchison County, and in rendering judgment for such damages. Atchison & N. R. R. Co. v. Gough, 29 Kans. 94; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 151.

1. Cummins v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 397; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 86; Welch v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 27 Wis. 108.

Injury to Homestead.—Division by Alley.—Damages.—Where proceedings are taken to condemn a portion of a city lot, and the lot is part of a homestead lying on both sides of an alley, the award of damages cannot be confined to the land actually taken, but must cover such actual injury as is done to the entire homestead, including the easement in the alley. Port Huron & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Voorheis, 50 Mich. 506.

Town Blocks.—Distinct Parcels of Land for assessing Damages.—Where a town has been laid out in blocks and streets for many years, and the same had always been recognized, treated, and dealt with by the owners and the people as blocks and streets so laid out, such blocks should be treated as distinct tracts of land for the purpose of assessment of damages, although the plat of the town may not have been made according to the statute. Todd v. Kankakee & Ill. R. R. Co., 78 Ill. 530. For the English authorities on the question of what will be deemed a part of a manufactory, see Richards v. Swansea Improvement Co., L. R. 9 Ch. Div. 425; or of a house, see Steele v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 1 Ch. App. 275; Falkner v. Somerset & D. Ry. Co., L. R. 16 Eq. 448; Salter v. Metropolitan D. Ry. Co., L. R. 9 Eq. 432; Marson v. London C. & D. Ry. Co., L. R. 6 Eq. 101; Walker v. London & B. Ry. Co., 3 Ad. & El. N. S. 744; s. c., 43 Eng. C. L. 954; Grosvenor v. Hampsted Junction Ry. Co., 1 D. G. & J. 446; Reg. v. London & G. Ry. Co., 3 Q. B. 166; s. c., 6 Jur. 892; 2 G. & D. 444; 3 Eng. Ry. & Canal Cas. 138.

2. Keithsburg & E. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Ham v. Wisconsin, I. & N. Ry. Co., 61 Iowa, 716; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 204; Rogers v. Kennebec & P. R. R. Co., 35 Me. 319; Presbrey v. Old Colony & N. Ry. Co., 103 Mass. 1; Gulf, Colorado, & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Fuller, 63 Tex. 467; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 154; Chicago & M. E. Ry. Co. v. Ritter (Tex.), 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 202.

has been reduced on account of an obstruction, the measure of damages is the diminution in value caused thereby.<sup>1</sup>

d. Property abutting on Street.—If property abutting on a street is injured by the construction of a railroad therein, the measure of damages, where the owner is entitled to recover at all, is the diminution in value caused by the location of the railroad.<sup>2</sup> Where the property is held for the purpose of renting, the reduction in the rental value is the measure of damages.<sup>3</sup> And the Indiana courts hold that the diminution in rental value may be recovered, although the plaintiff resided on the premises himself.<sup>4</sup> But a proprietor is only entitled to recover for special injuries to his property; he cannot recover for inconvenience and annoyance suffered in common with the rest of the public.<sup>5</sup>

e. For Running Powers over another Railroad.—Where a railroad is granted the privilege of running its cars over the track of another, it is difficult to arrive at any rule for the computation of damages. In California, in the case of street railroads, the rule is that a railroad acquiring the right must pay for the privilege an equal portion of the cost of constructing the track.<sup>6</sup> In Massachusetts the amount of compensation, and the method by which it is to be arrived at, has been left very much to the commissioners. It would seem that the following principles are to regulate the assessment: where different routes, or parts of routes, are specified in the respective charters, such routes, or parts of routes, belong exclusively to that company in whose charter alone they are specified; and where the same route, or part of a route, is specified for two or more companies, that route is the common property of all such companies, and no one of them has an exclusive right to its use, or to the profits of the carriage of passengers over it to and

1. Hot Springs R. R. Co. v. Tyler, 36 Ark. 205; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 145; Blesch v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 43 Wis. 183; Chapman v. Oshkosh & M. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 629.

Private Way.—The owner of a private way may recover damages for its occupancy, but not necessarily to the amount required to construct another. Gear v. C. C. & D. Ry. Co., 39 Iowa, 23.

2. City of Denver v. Bayer, 7 Colo. 113; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 465; St. Louis V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Capps, 72 Ill. 188; Chicago & Pac. R. R. Co. v. Francis, 70 Ill. 238; Jefferson M. & L. R. R. Co. v. Esterle, 13 Bush (Ky.), 637; Elizabethtown, L. & B. S. R. R. Co. v. Combs, 10 Bush (Ky.), 382; Grand Rapids & Ind. R. R. Co. v. Heisel, 38 Mich. 62; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 306; Gottschalk v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co., 14 Neb. 550; In re Prospect Park & Coney Island R. R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 345; Hegar v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 26 Wis. 624. Compare Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co. v. McGinnis, 79 Ill. 269; Newcastle & F. R. R. Co. v. McChesney, 85 Pa. St. 522; s. c., 18 Am. Ry. Rep. 518.

3. Selma & M. R. R. Co. v. Knapp, 42 Ala. N. S. 480; O'Connor v. St. Louis & Kansas City & N. Ry. Co., 56 Iowa, 735; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 325; Grand Rapids & Ind. R. R. Co. v. Heisel, 47 Mich. 393; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 260.

4. Scott v. Indianapolis & V. R. R. Co. (Ind.), 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 189.

5. Chicago & W. R. R. Co. v. Phillips, 10 Ill. App. 648; Chicago & W. R. R. Co. v. George, 10 Ill. App. 646; Chicago & W. Ind. R. R. Co. v. Berg, 10 Ill. App. 607; Dwenger v. Chicago & G. T. Ry. Co., 90 Ind. 152; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 26; Frith v. City of Dubuque, 45 Iowa, 406; Gear v. C. C. & D. R. Co., 43 Iowa, 83; Parrot v. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 624.

6. Omnibus R. R. Co. v. Baldwin, 57 Cal. 160; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 316, 320.

from places included within it; and where the same route or part of route is common to both companies the commissioners held that the compensation must be arrived at by ascertaining the entire expense in the maintenance of the track in question including the interest on its original cost, and dividing such expense of the companies in proportion to the use of the track made by each; that the cost of maintaining switches at all points where the company acquiring the right entered upon and left the track of the other company should be borne by the company so acquiring the right.<sup>1</sup> Where the right to use the track is exclusive to the company which constructed it, the commissioner may prescribe a rate of compensation founded upon the amount of business of the corporation acquiring the right to use the track, over the tracks, and may require accounts to be so kept as to exhibit the amount of such business, which accounts should be open to the inspection of the company owning the track.<sup>2</sup> Where the cars of the company acquiring the right are to be drawn by the company to whom the track belongs, the commissioners may specify the number of trains, and the times at which such trains shall be drawn.<sup>3</sup>

f. For Railroad Crossings.—In a case of the construction of one railroad across the track of another, the company whose track is crossed is entitled to recover not only just compensation for the land taken, but also for such incidental loss, inconvenience, and damage as might reasonably be expected to result from the construction and use of the crossing in a legal and proper manner.<sup>4</sup> It is therefore entitled to damages for the expense of erecting and maintaining cattle guards and signs, where these are necessary.<sup>5</sup> And where a railroad cuts through another company's embankment, the latter can recover the cost of building a bridge and keeping it in repair.<sup>6</sup> And where the construction of the new road constitutes such an obstruction to the old one as materially interferes with or even destroys its capacity to transact business over large parts of its line, the damages should include the injuries sustained.<sup>7</sup> But where land is taken which belongs to a railroad company, and is used by it in connection with its business, but not for right of way, the fact that the company has a road extending far into the interior and does a larger business, which will be materially interfered with, does not enter as an element

1. Metropolitan R. R. Co. v. Highland St. Ry. Co., 118 Mass. 290.

2. Metropolitan R. R. Co. v. Quincy R. R. Co., 94 Mass. (12 Allen) 263.

3. Lexington & W. C. R. R. Co. v. Fitchburg R. R. Co., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 266. See also Boston & W. R. R. Corp. v. Western R. R. Corp., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 253; Jersey City & B. R. R. Co. v. Jersey City & H. R. R. Co., 20 N. J. Eq. (5 C. E. Gr.) 61.

4. Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Springfield & N. W. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 147.

5. Old Colony & F. R. R. Co. v. County of Plymouth, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 155.

6. Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Springfield & N. W. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 142. See also St. Louis, J. & C. R. R. v. Springfield & N. W. R. R. Co., 96 Ill. 274; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 487.

7. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co. v. Englewood C. R. R. Co., 115 Ill. 375; s. c., 56 Am. Rep. 173; 23 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 56; Lake Shore & M. S. R. R. v. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co., 100 Ill. 21.

into the computation of damages.<sup>1</sup> The detention of trains, the loss of future business, and the expenses incident to the future exercise of corporate powers, caused by the construction of a crossing, are purely speculative and cannot be taken into account.<sup>2</sup> Nor can the increased expenses of ringing the bell on approaching the crossing be considered.<sup>3</sup> Where the company desiring the crossing, covenants to construct and maintain it, the cost of constructing and maintaining cannot be considered as an element of damages.<sup>4</sup>

g. Limited Estates. — (1) Lessee. — If the right of the lessee is worth no more than he has agreed to pay in future, the appropriation of that right does not give him a claim to damages, as it is worth nothing. If his lease will bring a greater sum than it will cost the lessee, he is entitled to recover such sum as it will sell for in excess of the amount he agreed to pay for it.<sup>5</sup> A mere hope or expectation of a renewal of a lease is not such a right of property as will give a claim for compensation.<sup>6</sup>

(2) Life-Tenants. — The life-tenant is entitled to the proportion of the whole damages which the value of the life estate bears thereto.<sup>7</sup>

h. Exemplary Damages for Trespass. — Exemplary damages for entering upon land to build a railroad without taking the steps prescribed by statute for the condemnation of the land may be recovered if the act was malicious or oppressive.<sup>8</sup>

i. Benefits. — In estimating the compensation to be made where part of a tract is taken, those benefits which are peculiar to the residue of the tract may be considered in reduction of the damages,<sup>9</sup>

1. Boston & W. R. R. Corp. v. Old Colony R. R. Corp., 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 612.

2. Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Joliet, L. & A. R. R. Co., 105 Ill. 389; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 62; Peoria & P. U. R. R. Co. v. Peoria & F. R. R. Co., 105 Ill. 110; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 129; Lake Shore & M. S. R. R. v. Cincinnati, S. & C. R. R. Co., 30 Ohio St. 604.

3. Old Colony & F. R. R. v. Plymouth Co., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 155.

4. Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Joliet, L. & A. R. R. Co., 105 Ill. 389; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 62.

5. In re Morgan, 32 La. An. 371. See also Chicago & E. R. R. Co. v. Dresel, 110 Ill. 89; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 263.

In Booker v. Venice & C. Ry. Co., 101 Ill. 333; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 357, the lessee was allowed as damages, the rent per acre for the balance of the term.

6. Rex v. Liverpool & M. Ry. Co., 4 Ad. & El. 650; s. c., 31 Eng. C. L. 164. See also In re Stroud, 8 Man. Gr. & S. 502; s. c., 65 Eng. C. L. 500.

7. Life-Tenants.—Value of Estate.—How determined. — Pittsburgh & C. Ry. Co. v. Bentley, 88 Pa. St. 178. In this case it was held that the annual value of the premises, multiplied by the years of the life-tenant's expectancy of life and reduced by calculation to a present cash value, is not a proper mode of determining the value of the life estate as compared with the value of the fee in remainder.

8. Chicago & I. R. R. Co. v. Baker, 73 Ill. 317; Harvey v. Thomas, 10 Watts (Pa.), 63; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 141.

9. San Francisco, A. & S. R. R. Co. v. Caldwell, 31 Cal. 367; Nichols v. City of Bridgeport, 23 Conn. 189; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 636; Nicholson v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 22 Conn. 74; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 390; Atlanta v. Central R. R. & B. Co., 53 Ga. 120; Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Redwine, 51 Ga. 470; Jones v. Wills Valley R. R. Co., 30 Ga. 43; St. Louis, J. & S. R. R. v. Kirby, 104 Ill. 345; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 214; Pittsburgh, Ft. W., & C. R. R. v. Reich, 101 Ill. 157; Keithsburg & E. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Todd v. Kankakee & I. R. R. R. Co., 78 Ill. 530; Wilson v. Rockford, R. I., & St. L. R. R. Co., 59 Ill. 273; St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Brown, 58 Ill. 61; Hayes v. Ottawa, O. & F. R. V. R. R. Co., 54 Ill. 373; Alton & S. R. R. Co. v. Carpenter, 14 Ill. 190; State v. Evans, 3 Ill.

even though such benefits should amount to a sum sufficient to cancel the whole compensation.<sup>1</sup> But the benefits taken into consideration must not be such simply as are common to the general public;<sup>2</sup> and benefits to lands which do not form part of the

- (2 Scam.) 208; Britton v. Des Moines, O. & S. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 540; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 412; Tobie v. Brown Co., 20 Kans. 14; Commissioners of Pottawatomie Co. v. O'Sullivan, 17 Kans. 58; Elizabethtown & P. R. R. Co. v. Helm, 8 Bush (Ky.), 681; Henderson & N. R. R. Co. v. Dickerson, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 173; New Orleans P. R. R. v. Gay, 31 La. An. 430; Vicksburg, S. & T. R. R. Co. v. Calderwood, 15 La. An. 481; New Orleans, O. & G. W. R. R. Co. v. Lagarde, 10 La. An. 150; St. Louis & St. J. R. R. Co. v. Richardson, 45 Mo. 466; Sexton v. North Bridgewater, 116 Mass. 200; Dickenson v. Inhabitants of Fitchburg, 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 546; Farwell v. Cambridge, 77 Mass. (11 Gray) 413; Upton v. South Reading B. R. R. Co., 62 Mass. (8 Cush.) 600; Meacham v. Fitchburg R. R., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 291; Palmer v. Ferrill, 34 Mass. (17 Pick.) 58; Morin v. St. Paul, M. & R. R. Co., 30 Minn. 100; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 223; Winona & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Waldron, 11 Minn. 515; Penrice v. Wallis, 37 Miss. 172; Wyandotte, K. C. & N. W. R. R. v. Waldo, 70 Mo. 629; Mississippi R. B. Co. v. Ring, 58 Mo. 491; Quincy, M. & P. R. R. Co. v. Ridge, 57 Mo. 599; Mayor, etc., of Lexington v. Long, 31 Mo. 369; Pacific R. R. v. Chrystal, 25 Mo. 544; Newby v. Platte Co., 25 Mo. 258; Carpenter v. Landaff, 42 N. H. 218; Mount Washington Co.'s Petition, 35 N. H. 134; Lowerree v. Newark, 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 155; State v. Blauvelt, 34 N. J. L. (5 Vr.) 361; Genet v. City of Brooklyn, 99 N. Y. 296; Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; Columbus, P. & I. R. R. Co. v. Simpson, 5 Ohio St. 251; Putnam v. Douglas Co., 6 Oreg. 328; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 527; Oregon C. R. R. Co. v. Wait, 3 Oreg. 91; Pittsburgh & L. E. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 95 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 468; Philadelphia & E. R. R. Co. v. Cake, 95 Pa. St. 139; Root's Case, 77 Pa. St. 276; East Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Hottenstine, 47 Pa. St. 28; Patten v. Northern C. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 612; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Lippincott (Pa.); s. c., 8 Cent. Rep. 826; Greenville & C. R. R. Co. v. Partlow, 5 Rich. (S. C.) L. 428; Woodfolk v. Nashville & C. R. R. Co., 2 Swan (Tenn.), 422; Gulf, Colorado, & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Fuller, 63 Tex. 467; Buffalo Bayou, B. & C. R. R. Co. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Chicago & M. C. Ry. Co. v. Ritter (Tex.), 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 202; Mitchell v. Thornton, 21 Gratt. (Va.) 178; James River & K. Co. v. Turner, 9 Leigh (Va.), 313; Railroad Co. v. Tyree, 7 W. Va. 699; Holton v. Milwaukee, 31 Wis. 27; Robbins v. Milwaukee & H. R. R. Co., 6 Wis. 636.
1. Trinity College v. Hartford, 32 Conn. 452; Nichols v. Bridgeport, 23 Conn. 189; Guess v. Stone Mountain Granite Ry. Co., 72 Ga. 320; Atlanta v. Green, 67 Ga. 386; Elgin v. Eaton, 83 Ill. 535; Page v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R., 70 Ill. 324; Indiana C. R. R. v. Hunter, 8 Ind. 74; Whitman v. Boston & M. R. R., 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 133; Com. v. Middlesex, 9 Mass. 388; Winona & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Waldron, 11 Minn. 515; Jackson v. Waldo, 85 Mo. 637; Livingston v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 85; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 622; Platt v. Pennsylvania Co., 43 Ohio St. 228; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 130; Putnam v. Douglas Co., 6 Oreg. 328; Livermore v. Jamaica, 23 Vt. 361.
2. Nichols v. Bridgeport, 23 Conn. 189; St. Louis, J. & S. R. R. Co. v. Kirby, 104 Ill. 345; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 214; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Hall, 90 Ill. 42; Keithsburg & E. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Page v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 70 Ill. 324; Mix v. Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 319; Elizabethtown & P. R. R. Co. v. Helm's Heirs, 8 Bush (Ky.), 681; Vicksburg, S. & T. R. R. Co. v. Calderwood, 15 La. An. 481; Bangor & P. R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Green v. Fall River, 113 Mass. 262; Allen v. Charlestown, 109 Mass. 243; Whitman v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 133; s. c., 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 313; Old Colony & F. R. R. Co. v. Plymouth Co., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 155; Dickinson v. Fitchburg, 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 546; Davis v. Charles River Br. R. R. Co., 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 506; Meacham v. Fitchburg R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 291; Com. v. Coombs, 2 Mass. 489; Carli v. Stillwater & St. P. R. R. Co., 16 Minn. 260; Minnesota C. R. R. Co. v. McNamara, 13 Minn. 508; Winona & St. P. R. R. Co. v. Waldron, 11 Minn. 515; Combs v. Smith, 78 Mo. 32; Wyandotte, K. C. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Waldo, 70 Mo. 629; Tebo & N. Ry. Co. v. Kingsbery, 61 Mo. 51; Hosher v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 60 Mo. 303; s. c., 9 Am. Ry. Rep. 230; Mississippi R. B. Co. v. Ring, 58 Mo. 491; Quincy, M. & P. R. R. v. Ridge, 57 Mo. 599; Lee v. Tebo & Neosho R. R. Co., 53 Mo. 178; St. Louis & St. J. R. R. Co. v. Richardson, 45 Mo. 466, 483; Pacific tract, a part of which has been taken, cannot be considered.<sup>1</sup> Any allowance on account of benefits is prohibited in some States either by statute or by a constitutional provision.<sup>2</sup> In many cases

R. R. Co. v. Chrystal, 25 Mo. 544; Adden v. White Mountains N. H. R. R. Co., 55 N. H. 413; s. c., 11 Am. Ry. Rep. 246; Carpenter v. Landaff, 42 N. H. 218; Betts v. Williamsburgh, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 255; Livingston v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 85; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 622; Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; Commissioners of Asheville v. Johnston, 71 N. C. 398; Freedle v. North Carolina R. R. Co., 4 Jones (N. C.) L. 89; Miami R. R. Co. v. Collett, 6 Ohio St. 182; Pittsburgh, L. E. R. R. v. Robinson, 95 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 468; Root's Case, 77 Pa. St. 276; Hornstein v. Atlantic & Gt. W. R. R. Co., 51 Pa. St. 87; Grafton & G. R. R. Co. v. Foreman, 24 W. Va. 662; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 215; Chapman v. Oshkosh & M. R. R. Co., 33 Wis. 629; Robbins v. Milwaukee & H. Ry. Co., 6 Wis. 636.

Increased Value because of Road.—A general advance in the value of land resulting from the construction of the road cannot be considered. Mississippi Ry. Co. v. McDonald, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 54. But a benefit attending the construction of the railway may be considered, even though it also affects other lands in the same vicinity. Credit Valley Ry. Co. v. Spragge, 24 Grant Ch. (Up. Can.) 231. The removal of other buildings which are dangerous to the property may be considered in estimating the benefits. People v. Howlett, 63 N. Y. 22. And also the increase in value by the fact that the minerals in the lands can be worked to greater advantage. Haslem v. Galena & S. W. Ry., 64 Ill. 353. But the location of a depot in the vicinity of the land, part of which is taken, is not a special benefit. Washburn v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R., 59 Wis. 364; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 225. The fact that the proprietor is entitled by statute to connect his premises with the railroad by means of a side-track may be taken into consideration. Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. v. Robinson, 95 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 10 Am. Rep. 468. Any privilege which is merely permissible, and terminable by the will of the company, cannot be considered. Old Colony v. Miller, 125 Mass. 1; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 194.

1. Todd v. Kankakee & I. R. R. Co., 78 Ill. 530; St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Brown, 58 Ill. 61; White Water Valley R. R. Co. v. McClure, 29 Ind. 536; New-castle & R. R. Co. v. Brumback, 5 Ind. 543; Koestenbader v. Peirce, 41 Iowa, 204; Hunt v. Smith, 9 Kans. 137; St. Joseph &

D. C. R. R. Co. v. Orr, 8 Kans. 419; Louisville & N. R. R. Co. v. Glazebrook, 1 Bush (Ky.), 325; Isom v. Mississippi C. R. R. Co., 36 Miss. 300; Giesy v. Cincinnati, W., & Z. R. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 308; Buffalo, B. & C. R. R. Co. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588.

2. Alabama & F. R. R. Co. v. Burkett, 42 Ala. 83; St. Louis, A. & T. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 39 Ark. 167; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; Atlanta v. Central R. R. & B. Co., 53 Ga. 120; St. Louis, J., & S. R. R. Co. v. Kirby, 104 Ill. 345; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 214; Todd v. Kankakee & I. R. R. Co., 78 Ill. 530; Carpenter v. Jennings, 77 Ill. 250; Wilson v. Rockford, R. I., & St. L. R. R. Co., 59 Ill. 273; St. Louis, V., & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Brown, 58 Ill. 61; Evansville, I. & C. S. L. R. R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 10 Ind. 120; Britton v. Des Moines, O. & S. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 540; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 412; Koestenbader v. Peirce, 41 Iowa, 204; Bland v. Hixenbaugh, 39 Iowa, 532; Israel v. Jewett, 29 Iowa, 475; Deaton v. County of Polk, 9 Iowa, 596; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Jacob v. Louisville, 9 Dana (Ky.), 114; Rice v. Danville, L. & N. Turnpike Co., 7 Dana (Ky.), 81; Sutton's Heirs v. Louisville, 5 Dana (Ky.), 28; Henderson & N. R. R. Co. v. Dickerson, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 173; s. c., 66 Am. Dec. 149; Macon v. Patty, 57 Miss. 397; New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Moyer, 39 Miss. 385; Penrice v. Wallis, 37 Miss. 172; Isom v. Mississippi C. R. R. Co., 36 Miss. 300; Brown v. Beatty, 34 Miss. 227; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 389; Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. Co. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 585; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364; Swayze v. New Jersey M. Ry. Co., 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 295; s. c., 12 Am. Ry. Rep. 404; Carson v. Coleman, 11 N. J. Eq. (3 Stockt.) 106; Albany N. R. R. Co. v. Lansing, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 68; Giesy v. Cincinnati, W. & Z. R. R., 4 Ohio St. 308; Paducah & M. R. R. Co. v. Stovall, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 1; Memphis v. Bolton, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 508; Woodfolk v. Nashville & C. R. R., 2 Swan (Tenn.) 422; Milwaukee & N. R. R. Co. v. Strange, 63 Wis. 178; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 413; Robbins v. Milwaukee & H. R. R., 6 Wis. 636.

Statutory or Constitutional Inhibitions.—Construction.—But such statutory or constitutional provisions will not be construed to inhibit an assessment upon lands fronting on a street to reimburse the amount of compensation paid the owner for his other land taken for the use of the street. Cleveland v. Wick, 18 Ohio St. 303.

the rule has been adopted that special benefits may be considered in reduction of damages for injuries to the residue of the tract, but cannot be set off against the value of the part taken.<sup>1</sup>

5. Interest on Award.—The owner of land taken is entitled to interest on the amount of the damages from the time of the taking.<sup>2</sup> Where an appeal is taken by the land-owner from the award of damages, when upon trial the larger sum is awarded, interest ought to be allowed on the sum found due.<sup>3</sup> But if the

1. Atlanta v. Central R. R. & B. Co., 53 Ga. 120; Augusta v. Marks, 50 Ga. 612; Mayor of Savannah v. Hartridge, 37 Ga. 113; Jones v. Wills Valley R. R. Co., 30 Ga. 43; Young v. Harrison, 17 Ga. 30; McReynolds v. Baltimore & O. Ry. Co., 106 Ill. 152; Pittsburgh, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co. v. Reich, 101 Ill. 157; Hyslop v. Finch, 99 Ill. 171; Todd v. Kankakee & I. R. R. Co., 78 Ill. 530; Page v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 70 Ill. 324; Hayes v. Ottawa, O. & F. R. V. R. R., 54 Ill. 373; Swinney v. Fort Wayne, M. & C. R. R. Co., 59 Ind. 205; Newcastle & R. R. v. Brumback, 5 Ind. 543; Britton v. Des Moines Ry., 59 Iowa, 540; Elizabethtown R. R. v. Helm's Heirs, 8 Bush (Ky.), 681; Louisville R. R. v. Glazebrook, 1 Bush (Ky.), 325; Sutton's Heirs v. Louisville, 5 Dana (Ky.), 28; Robinson v. Robinson, 1 Duv. (Ky.) 162; Henderson & N. R. R. Co. v. Dickerson, 17 B. Mon. (Ky.) 173; New Orleans & P. Ry. Co. v. Gay, 31 La. An. 430; Vicksburg S. & T. R. R. Co. v. Calderwood, 15 La. An. 481; New Orleans, O. & G. W. R. R. v. Lagarde, 10 La. An. 150; Shipley v. Baltimore & P. R. R. Co., 34 Md. 336; State v. Leslie, 30 Minn. 533; Isom v. Mississippi R. R., 36 Miss. 300; Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. Co. v. Ward, 11 Neb. 597; Fremont, E. & M. V. R. R. Co. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 585; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364; Wagner v. Gage Co., 3 Neb. 237; State v. Miller, 23 N. J. L. (3 Zab.) 383; Raleigh & A. A. L. R. R. v. Wicker, 74 N. C. 220; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Ball, 5 Ohio St. 568; Memphis v. Bolton, 9 Heisk. (Tenn.) 508; Woodfolk v. Nashville & C. R. R., 2 Swan (Tenn.), 422; Buffalo, B. & C. R. R. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Mitchell v. Thornton, 21 Gratt. (Va.) 178; James River & K. Co. v. Turner, 9 Leigh (Va.), 313; Railroad Co. v. Tyree, 7 W. Va. 693; Chapman v. Oshkosh R. R., 33 Wis. 629.

In Tennessee, even although the courts hold that compensation for land taken must be made in money, and not by way of benefits to the remainder of the land, it has been held that the Legislature made additional award to the owner for incidental damages for the taking, and prescribed the manner of their assessment, and may properly, as an offset against those damages, allow incidental benefits and ameliorations. Paducah & M. R. R. Co. v. Stovall, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 1.

2. Texas & St. L. Ry. v. Cella, 42 Ark. 528; Young v. Harrison, 17 Ga. 30; Chicago v. Palmer, 93 Ill. 125; Illinois & St. L. R. R. Co. v. McClintock, 68 Ill. 296; Cook v. Park Commissioners, 61 Ill. 115; Hayes v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry., 64 Iowa, 733; Hollingsworth v. Des Moines & St. L. Ry. Co., 63 Iowa, 443; Hartshorn v. Burlington C. R. & N. Ry., 52 Iowa, 613; Cohen v. St. Louis, Ft. C. & W. R. R. Co., 34 Kans. 158; Missouri R. F. S. & G. R. R. Co. v. Owen, 8 Kans. 409; Bangor & P. R. R. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Gay v. Gardiner, 54 Me. 477; Boles v. Boston, 136 Mass. 398; Old Colony R. R. v. Miller, 125 Mass. 1; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 194; Chandler v. Jamaica Pond Aqueduct, 125 Mass. 544; Kidder v. Oxford, 116 Mass. 165; Reed v. Hanover B. R. R., 105 Mass. 303; Whitman v. Boston & M. Ry. Co., 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 313; Minneapolis v. Wilkin, 30 Minn. 145; Knauff v. St. Paul S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 22 Minn. 173; Warren v. St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 424; s. c., 19 Am. Ry. Rep. 227; Williams v. New Orleans, M. & T. R. R. Co., 60 Miss. 689; Sioux City R. R. Co. v. Brown, 13 Neb. 317; Fink v. Newark, 40 N. J. L. (11 Vr.) 11; Metler v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 37 N. J. L. (8 Vr.) 222; New York & G. L. Ry. Co. v. Stanley's Heirs, 35 N. J. Eq. (8 Stew.) 283; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 345; Hamersley v. New York, 56 N. Y. 533; Detmold v. Drake, 46 N. Y. 318; Lawrence R. R. Co. v. Cobb, 35 Ohio St. 94; Atlantic & G. W. R. R. Co. v. Koblenz, 21 Ohio St. 334; Getz v. Philadelphia R. R. Co., 105 Pa. St. 547; Delaware, L. & W. R. R. Co. v. Burson, 61 Pa. St. 369; Railroad v. Gesner, 20 Pa. St. 240; Sweeney v. United States, 62 Wis. 396; West v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. Co., 56 Wis. 378; Reed v. Chicago R., 25 Fed. Rep. 886. Compare People v. LeGrange, 2 Mich. 187.

3. Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Gam-mage, 63 Ga. 604; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 41; Hartshorn v. Burlington, C. R. & M. Ry. Co., 52 Iowa, 613; Haverhill Bridge Co. v. County Commissioners, 103 Mass. 120; Whitman v. Boston & N. R. R.

corporation has made a tender, or deposited the money in court, interest will only be given on the increase of damages allowed on appeal.<sup>1</sup> If the corporation obtained a diminution of the award on appeal, it is entitled to obtain from the party withdrawing the amount deposited in court, interest upon the amount of such diminution.<sup>2</sup> Accepting the amount of the award without interest, though under protest, amounts to a waiver of all rights to interest. The interest does not constitute a debt capable of a distinct claim.<sup>3</sup>

6. Payment.—a. As prerequisite to Entry.—(1) Actual Payment.—As a general rule, private property cannot be taken for public use until compensation is actually paid or tendered.<sup>4</sup> And in some States it has been held that even pending an appeal actual payment or tender of the amount found due must be made, deposite in court being insufficient.<sup>5</sup> Where, however, the con-

Co., 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 313; Warren v. St. Paul & Pac. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 424; Sioux City & Cent. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 13 Neb. 317; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 406.

1. Shattuck v. Wilton R. R. Co., 23 N. H. (3 Fost.) 269; Concord R. R. Co. v. Greely, 23 N. H. (3 Fost.) 237; West v. Milwaukee R. Co., 56 Wis. 378.

2. Watson v. Milwaukee & M. R. R., 57 Wis. 332; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 168.

3. Cutter v. New York, 92 N. Y. 166; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 487.

4. Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co., 70 Ala. 227; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217; Sanborn v. Belden, 51 Cal. 266; San Mateo Water Works v. Sharpstein, 50 Cal. 284; Loomis v. Andrews, 49 Cal. 239; California Pac. R. R. Co. v. Central Pac. R. R. Co., 47 Cal. 528; Davis v. San Lorenzo Ry. Co., 47 Cal. 517; Fox v. Western Pac. R. R. Co., 31 Cal. 538; San Francisco & San J. R. R. Co. v. Mahoney, 29 Cal. 112; Gillan v. Hutchinson, 16 Cal. 153; Johnson v. Alameda County, 14 Cal. 106; Colton v. Rossi, 9 Cal. 595; Chambers v. Cincinnati & G. Ry. Co., 69 Ga. 320; People v. McRoberts, 62 Ill. 38; Cook v. South Park Commissioners, 61 Ill. 115; Cox v. Louisville, N. A. & C. R. R. Co., 48 Ind. 178; Graham v. Columbus & C. R. R. Co., 27 Ind. 260; Indianapolis & C. R. R. Co. v. Brower, 12 Ind. 374; Dronberger v. Reed, 11 Ind. 420; Peterson v. Ferrey, 30 Iowa, 327; Gear v. Dubuque & S. C. R. R. Co., 20 Iowa, 523; Richards v. Des Moines Valley R. R. Co., 18 Iowa, 259; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 10 Iowa, 540; Evansville, H. & N. R. R. Co. v. Grady, 6 Bush (Ky.), 144; O'Hara v. Lexington & O. R. R. Co., 1 Dana (Ky.), 232; New Orleans, O. & G. W. R. R. Co. v. Lagarde, 10 La. An. 150; Cushman v.

Smith, 34 Me. 247; Perkins v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 29 Me. 307; State v. Graves, 19 Md. 351; Cameron v. Supervisors of Washington Co., 47 Miss. 264; Memphis & C. R. R. Co. v. Payne, 37 Miss. 700; Stewart v. Raymond R. R. Co., 15 Miss. (7 Smed. & M.) 568; Thompson v. Grand Gulf R. R. & B. Co., 4 Miss. (3 How.) 240; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 81; Walther v. Warner, 25 Mo. 277; Ray v. Atchison R. R. Co., 4 Neb. 439; Lowerre v. Newark, 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 151; Redman v. Philadelphia, M. & M. Ry. Co., 33 N. J. Eq. (6 Stew.) 165; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Mettler v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 214; Blodgett v. Utica & B. R. R. Co., 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 580; Craig v. Rochester City & B. R. R. Co., 39 Barb. (N. Y.) 494; Jamaica & B. P. Co. v. New York & M. B. Ry. Co., 25 Hun (N. Y.) 585; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 19; Ferris v. Bramble, 5 Ohio St. 109; Oregonian Ry. Co. v. Hill, 9 Ore. 377; McClinton v. Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404; Brown v. Powell, 25 Pa. St. 229; Levering v. Philadelphia, G. & N. R. R. Co., 8 Watts & S. (Pa.) 459; Sherman v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. Co., 40 Wis. 645; s. c., 13 Am. Ry. Rep. 459; Lee v. Northwestern U. Ry. Co., 33 Wis. 222; Bohlman v. Green Bay & L. P. R. R. Co., 30 Wis. 105; Kennedy v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 22 Wis. 581; Loop v. Chamberlain, 20 Wis. 135; Powers v. Bears, 12 Wis. 213; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 733; Shepardson v. Milwaukee & B. R. R. Co., 6 Wis. 605; Avery v. Fox, 1 Abb. C. C. 246; Blanchard v. Kansas, 16 Fed. Rep. 444.

5. Chambers v. Cincinnati & G. R. R. Co., 69 Ga. 320; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 376; Mitchell v. Illinois & St. L. C. Co., 68 Ill. 286; Redman v. Philadelphia, M. & M. R. R. Co., 33 N. J. Eq. (6 Stew.)

stitution does not require in express terms that compensation should be first paid, prepayment is not requisite if the land-owner has a sufficient existing remedy.<sup>1</sup> Property may be entered upon for survey or other incipient proceedings, without compensation.<sup>2</sup> And prepayment for consequential injuries is not essential.<sup>3</sup> Where the condemnation is made by the state or by a municipality, some decisions hold that payment of damages need not precede entry upon the land.<sup>4</sup>

(2) Security for Payment. — In States where there is no express constitutional provision requiring actual payment as a prerequisite to entry, a bond approved by the court is considered to be sufficient to confer upon the company the right to enter.<sup>5</sup> Where an

165; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Watson v. Pittsburgh & C. R. R. Co., 2 Pitts. (Pa.) 99. Compare Townsend v. Chicago & A. R. R. Co., 91 Ill. 545.

1. Commissioners of Lowndes Co. v. Bowie, 34 Ala. 461; Cairo & F. R. R. Co. v. Turner, 31 Ark. 494; Fox v. Western Pac. R. R. Co., 31 Cal. 538; Townsend v. Chicago & A. R. R. Co., 91 Ill. 545; Johnson v. Joliet & C. R. R. Co., 23 Ill. 202; Prather v. Western U. T. Co., 89 Ind. 501; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Co., 1; Prather v. Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. R. Co., 52 Ind. 16; Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. Co. v. Daugherty, 40 Ind. 33; New Albany & S. R. R. Co. v. Connelly, 7 Ind. 32; Compton v. Susquehanna R. R., 3 Bland Ch. (Md.) 386; Haverhill Bridge v. County Commissioners, 103 Mass. 120; Weir v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155; Ray v. Atchison & N. R. Co., 4 Neb. 439; Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. McFarlan, 31 N. J. Eq. (4 Stew.) 706; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 51; s. c., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 19; McIntire v. Western & C. R. R. Co., 67 N. C. 678; Raleigh G. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 2 Dev. & B. (N. C.) L. 451; Danville, H. & W. R. R. Co. v. Com., 73 Pa. St. 29; Commonwealth v. Pittsburgh & C. R. R. Co., 58 Pa. St. 26; State v. Dawson, 3 Hill (S. C.) L. 100; Simms v. Memphis C. & L. R. R. Co., 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 621; Hatch v. Vermont Cent. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 49; Northern Pac. R. R. Co. v. Barnesville & M. R. R. Co., 2 McCr. C. C. 224; Northern Pac. R. R. Co. v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co., 1 McCr. C. C. 302; Bonaparte v. Camden & A. R. R. Co., Bald. C. C. 205.

2. Fox v. Western Pac. R. R. Co., 31 Cal. 538; Chambers v. Cincinnati & G. R. R. Co., 69 Ga. 320; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 376; Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Raleigh & G. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 2 Dev. & B. (N. C.) L. 451; Levering v. Philadelphia, G. & M. R. R. Co., 8 Watts & S. (Pa.) 459.

3. Peoria & R. I. R. R. Co. v. Seritz, 84 Ill. 135; Paterson v. Chicago, D. & V. R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 538; Stetson v. Chicago & E. R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 74; Sears v. Marshall Co., 59 Iowa, 603; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 36; Smith v. Gould, 59 Wis. 631; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 424.

4. Talbot v. Hudson, 82 Mass. (16 Gray) 417; State v. Bruggerman, 31 Minn. 493; State v. Messenger, 27 Minn. 119; Walther v. Warner, 25 Mo. 277; Ash v. Cummings, 50 N. H. 591; Wheeler v. Essex Road Board, 39 N. J. L. (10 Vr.) 291; Loweree v. Newark, 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 151; Zimmerman v. Canfield, 42 Ohio St. 463; Long v. Fuller, 68 Pa. St. 170; Keene v. Bristol, 26 Pa. St. 46; Yost's Report, 17 Pa. St. 524; Smith v. Gould, 59 Wis. 631; Powers v. Bears, 12 Wis. 213; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 733; Shepardson v. Milwaukee & B. R. R. Co., 6 Wis. 605. Compare Cushman v. Smith, 34 Me. 247; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Boyd, 63 Md. 325; Connecticut River R. R. v. County Commissioners, 127 Mass. 50; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 338; Matter of First Street, 58 Mich. 641; Woodruff v. Town of Glendale, 26 Minn. 78; Cage v. Trager, 60 Miss. 563; Redman v. Philadelphia M. & M. R. R. Co., 33 N. J. Eq. (6 Stew.) 165; Sage v. City of Brooklyn, 89 N. Y. 189; Oregonian R. v. Hill, 9 Ore. 377.

5. Cairo & F. R. R. Co. v. Turner, 31 Ark. 494; Fox v. Western Pac. R. R. Co., 31 Cal. 533; Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Gammage, 63 Ga. 604; Carr v. Georgia R. R. Co., 1 Ga. 524; Shute v. Chicago & M. R. R. Co., 26 Ill. 436; Johnson v. Joliet & C. R. R. Co., 23 Ill. 202; Curtiss v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 497; Warren v. St. Paul & Pac. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 384; Weir v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 155; Hursh v. St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 439; Gray v. St. Paul R. R. Co., 13 Minn. 315; 1st New York Cent. & H. R. R. R. Co., 60 N. Y. 116; Fries v. Southern Pennsylvania R. R. & M. Co., 85 Pa. St. 73; Demmick

appeal is taken, the company may deposit the amount assessed in the lower court, and will thereupon be entitled to entry.<sup>1</sup>

(3) Judgment. — A mere enter of an award of judgment, against the company taking land, is not compensation which will entitle the company to enter and retain possession.<sup>2</sup>

(4) Waiver of Pre-payment. — Entry upon lands by the consent or acquiescence of the land-owner will operate as a waiver of the right to constitute prepayment, and the land-owner cannot obtain a judgment of ejectment against the company until the damages have been assessed and default made upon the judgment therefor.<sup>3</sup>

b. To whom Payable. — (1) Owner in Fee. — Actual possession and use of real estate by a person are a prima facie evidence of title in fee to the same in him;<sup>4</sup> and it has been held that the damages must be paid to him, although other parties have given notice of their ownership before payment.<sup>5</sup> But if the true owners recover possession before the damages are paid, they then become payable to him, although a trespasser may have been in

v. Broadhead, 75 Pa. St. 464; McClinton v. Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404; Wadhams v. Lackawanna & B. R. R. Co., 42 Pa. St. 303; Harrisburg v. Crangle, 3 Watts & S. (Pa.) 460.

1. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Kinsey, 87 Ind. 514; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 309; Norrison & Cent. T. R. R. Co. v. Burket, 26 Ind. 53; Indiana & Cent. R. R. Co. v. Brower, 12 Ind. 374; Downing v. Des Moines N. W. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 177; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 317; Peterson v. Ferreby, 30 Iowa, 327; Central B. U. R. R. Co. v. Atchison Cent. R. R. Co., 28 Kans. 453; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 528; Kansas City v. Kansas Pac. R. R. Co., 18 Kans. 331; St. Joseph & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Callender, 13 Kans. 496; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Evans & H. F. B. Co., 85 Mo. 307; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 518; Wagner v. New York, C. & St. L. R. Co., 38 Ohio St. 32; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 380; In re New York Cent. & Pac. R. R. Co., 60 N. Y. 116; Eidemiller v. Wyandotte City, 2 Dill, C. C. 376; Northern Pac. R. R. Co. v. St. Paul, M. & M. R., 1 McCr. C. C. 302; s. c., 3 Fed. Rep. 702.

2. Colton v. Rossi, 9 Cal. 595; Enfield Bridge Co. v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 17 Conn. 40; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 716; Moody v. Jacksonville, F. & K. W. R. R., 20 Fla. 597; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 53; Southwestern R. R. v. Southern A. Tel. Co., 46 Ga. 43; Powers v. Armstrong, 19 Ga. 427; Peoria, P. & J. R. R. v. Peoria & S. R. R. Co., 66 Ill. 174; Chicago & M. R. R. Co. v. Bull, 20 Ill. 218; White v. Wabash, St. L. & P. R., 64 Iowa, 281; Irish v. Burlington & S. W. R. R. Co., 44 Iowa, 380; St. Louis & L. & D. R. Co. v. Wilder, 17 Kans. 239;

Stewart v. Raymond R. R. Co., 15 Miss. (7 Smed. & M.) 568; Thompson v. Grand Gulf R. R. & B. Co., 4 Miss. (3 How.) 240; s. c., 34 Am. Dec. 81; Provolt v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co., 57 Mo. 256; Walther v. Warner, 25 Mo. 277; Ray v. Atchison & W. R. R. Co., 4 Neb. 439; Petition of Mount Washington R. R. Co., 35 N. H. 134; Piscataqua Bridge v. New Hampshire Bridge, 7 N. H. 35; Buffalo B. & C. R. R. Co. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Pryzbylowicz v. Missouri R. R. R. Co., 3 McCr. C. C. 586; s. c., 17 Fed. Rep. 492.

3. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co. v. Jones, 68 Ala. 48; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 425; Foot v. New Haven & N. Co., 23 Conn. 214; Nelson v. Fleming, 56 Ind. 310; Leviston v. Junction R. Co., 7 Ind. 597; Cohen v. St. Louis, F. S. & W. R. R. Co., 34 Kans. 158; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 116; 55 Am. Rep. 242; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Thompson, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 735; Provolt v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co., 57 Mo. 256; 5 c., 9 Am. Ry. Rep. 941; Blaisdell v. Portsmouth, G. F. & C. R. R. Co., 51 N. H. 483; Selden v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 29 N. Y. 634; Miller v. Auburn & S. R. R. Co., 6 Hill (N. Y.), 61; Knapp v. McAulay, 39 Vt. 275; McAulay v. Western Vt. R. Co., 33 Vt. 311.

4. Missouri R., Ft. S. & G. R. R. v. Owen, 8 Kans. 409; Hawkins v. County Commis., 84 Mass. (2 Allen) 254; Trustees v. Worcester, 42 Mass. (1 Metc.) 437; Sherwood v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 127; s. c., 11 Am. Ry. Rep. 370; St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co. v. Matthews, 16 Minn. 341.

5. Sacramento Valley R. R. v. Moffatt, 7 Cal. 577.

possession when the damages were assessed.<sup>1</sup> The husband may receive and dispose of compensation for the homestead without the consent of his wife.<sup>2</sup>

(2) Vendor and Vendee. — The vendee of lands is not entitled to claim the payment of damages for lands taken, or for injuries done before he acquired title.<sup>3</sup> The right of the vendor is limited to such permanent depreciations in value as resulted from the first statement, and might then have been considered and estimated in condemnation proceedings. The vendor is entitled to recover for any damages to the land resulting after the acquired title to it.<sup>4</sup> But if the road be surveyed before purchase, but be not located until afterwards, the conveyance will carry the right to damages.<sup>5</sup> If the real owner of land holds an unrequited deed,

1. Rooney v. Sacramento Valley R. R. Co., 6 Cal. 638.

2. Canty v. Latternar, 31 Minn. 239; s. c., 15 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 380.

3. McLendon v. Atlanta & W. P. R. R., 54 Ga. 293; Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Maher, 91 Ill. 312; Toledo, W. & W. R. R. Co. v. Morgan, 72 Ill. 155; Toledo, W. & W. R. R. v. Hunter, 50 Ill. 325; Illinois C. R. R. Co. v. Allen, 39 Ill. 205; Indiana, B. & W. R. v. Allen, 100 Ind. 409; Piper v. Union P. R. R. Co., 14 Kans. 568; Sargent v. Machias, 65 Me. 591; New York & N. E. R. R. v. Drury, 133 Mass. 167; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 518; Haskell v. New Bedford, 108 Mass. 209; Dunlap v. Toledo, A. & G. T. R. R. Co., 50 Mich. 470; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 185; New York & G. L. R. R. Co. v. Stanley, 34 N. J. Eq. (7 Stew.) 55; Tenbrooke v. Jahke, 77 Pa. St. 392; McFadden v. Johnson, 72 Pa. St. 335; Turnpike Road v. Brosi, 22 Pa. St. 29; Dobbins v. Brown, 12 Pa. St. 75; Schuykill & S. N. R. R. v. Decker, 2 Watts (Pa.), 343; Zimmerman v. Union Canal Co., 1 Watts & S. (Pa.) 346; Allyn v. Providence, W. & B. R. R., 4 R. I. 457; Sams v. Port Royal & A. R. R. Co., 15 S. C. 484; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 683; Lewis v. Wilmington & M. R. R. Co., 11 Rich. (S. C.) L. 91; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Pfeuffer, 56 Tex. 66; s. c., 11 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 373; Central R. R. v. Merkel, 32 Tex. 723; Milwaukee & N. R. R. Co. v. Strange, 63 Wis. 178; Pomeroy v. Chicago M. R. R. Co., 25 Wis. 641; Dickison v. Baltimore & P. R. R. Co., 3 McA. C. C. 361; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 201; Dixon v. Baltimore & P. R. R., 1 Mackey (D. C.), 78.

In the case of the Central R. Co. v. Hetfield, 29 N. J. L. (5 Dutch.) 206, this subject is reviewed at length, the court expressing itself as follows: "Where land is thus seized unlawfully, the whole injury is done at the first seizure. The State holds the land. The owner is entitled to the full value. It is seized, if seized at all, for the whole period it is to serve as a public user. The whole injury is to the person who is owner at the first seizure. If a person buys afterwards, he buys subject to the public user, and all his rights are subject thereto. There can be no subsequent trespass against him, and the defendant can defend himself under the general issue without notice. It could never be tolerated, that any private owner could thus, after consent given, sever the sinews of the national strength. He is entitled to his pay either from the government or its agents. If its agents enter without consent or payment, he is entitled to vindictive as well as real damages in trespass, and the whole damage is by the original seizure and to the original owner. It follows that if the defendants seized this land, without payment or consent, they are liable to the person who owned the land at the time of the seizure as for a condemnation, and not to any subsequent owner. The plaintiff and grantor, if anybody, therefore, is the one entitled to damages. The right to these damages has not been, nor could they be (being a mere chase in action), assigned to the plaintiff. So that whether the defendants took possession originally rightfully or wrongfully, it is manifest that the present plaintiff has no legal cause of action."

4. Chicago & A. R. R. Co. v. Maher, 91 Ill. 312; Chicago & E. I. R. R. Co. v. Loeb, 8 Ill. App. 627; Hentz v. Long Island R. R. Co., 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 646; Alexandria C. R. R. & B. Co. v. District of Columbia, 1 Mackey (D. C.), 217; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 531.

5. Paducah & M. R. R. Co. v. Stovall, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 1; Rand v. Townsend, 26 Vt. 670.

But in Roberts v. Williams, 15 Ark. 43, it was held that if the purchaser acquired title at any time before the final condemnation proceedings in the county court, and in consequence, through mistake, the damages are assessed to his grantor, he cannot have the proceeding set aside.<sup>1</sup>

(3) Partners and Tenants in common. — Partners may recover damages jointly for the taking of land by which one of them holds the legal title in trust for the firm.<sup>2</sup> In the case of joint tenants, it is not essential that the jury should apportion the amount payable among the claimants.<sup>3</sup>

(4) Married Woman for Right of Dower. — A married woman is not entitled, by virtue of her right of dower in her husband's land, to compensation if such is taken during her husband's life.<sup>4</sup> If, however, the right of dower is consummated, and the widow has entered upon land which has been apportioned to her, she is entitled to all damages for her interest therein.<sup>5</sup>

(5) Mortgagee. — There is some conflict on the question whether damages are payable to the mortgagor or to the mortgagee; the greater number of cases seem to hold that the mortgagee is entitled to payment.<sup>6</sup> In Massachusetts and Pennsylvania the courts have held that the damages are payable to the mortgagor, and the mortgagee has only a personal claim against the mortgagor.<sup>7</sup> Where the company has entered upon possession of the land without making compensation to the mortgagee, it has a right to redeem the lands from the lien of the mortgage on payment of a ratable proportion of the mortgage debt, which it must do to the full value of the property at the time of its appropriation, with interest if need be, irrespective of the improvements put thereon by the company.<sup>8</sup> On discovering the incumbrances, he was entitled to intervene and recover damages.

In Carli v. Stillwater & St. P. R. R. Co., 16 Minn. 260, it was said as long as the title of the railroad company was inchoate, a simple quit-claim deed of the land would pass the right to recover damages, and the title of the company was held inchoate until the time for an appeal from the report of commissioners assessing damages had expired.

1. Brown v. County Commissioners of Essex, 53 Mass. (12 Metc.) 208.

2. Reed v. Hanover & B. R. R. Co., 105 Mass. 303.

3. Grayville & M. R. R. Co. v. Christy, 92 Ill. 337; Ashby v. Eastern R. R. Co., 46 Mass. (5 Metc.) 368; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 426; Pittsburg & S. R. R. v. Hall, 25 Pa. St. 336.

But it has been held that the damages ought to be awarded separately, if the owner's interests can be ascertained. Reppert v. Chicago, O. & St. J. R. R. Co., 43 Iowa, 490; s. c., 14 Am. Ry. Rep. 470.

4. Moore v. Mayor of New York, 8 N. Y. 110; s. c., 59 Am. Dec. 473; Gwynne v. Cincinnati, 3 Ohio, 24; s. c., 17 Am. Dec. 576. Compare State v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 181.

5. Todemier v. Aspinwall, 43 Ill. 401; In re William & A. St., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 679.

6. Wilson v. European & N. A. R. R. Co., 67 Me. 358; South Park Commissioners v. Todd, 112 Ill. 379; Sherwood v. Lafayette, 109 Ind. 411; s. c., 58 Am. Rep. 414; Sawyer v. Landers, 56 Iowa, 422; Severin v. Cole, 38 Iowa, 463; Bright v. Platt, 32 N. J. Eq. (5 Stew.) 362; s. c., 31 N. J. Eq. (4 Stew.) 81; Bank of Auburn v. Roberts, 44 N. Y. 192; In re John & Cherry Sts., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 659; Astor v. Hoyt, 5 Wend. (N. Y.) 603; Wade v. Hennessey, 55 Vt. 207; Hagar v. Brainard, 44 Vt. 294; Wooster v. Sugar R. Valley R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 311; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 499.

7. Read v. City of Cambridge, 126 Mass. 427; Farnsworth v. City of Boston, 126 Mass. 1; Beed v. Easton R. R. Co., 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 470; Meacham v. Fitchburg R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 291; Schuylkill Co. v. Thoburn, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 411.

8. North Hudson Co. R. R. Co. v. Booraem, 28 N. J. Eq. (1 Stew.) 450; s. c., 14 Am. Ry. Rep. 202; Dows v. Congdon, 16 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 571; Kennedy v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 22 Wis. 581.

the company may proceed immediately to redeem the lands, without waiting until the mortgaged premises are sold under decree of foreclosure.<sup>1</sup>

(6) Tenants and Lessees. — Tenants and lessees are entitled to compensation for their interest in the leased premises.<sup>2</sup> The tenant is entitled to recover compensation for the loss occasioned through being deprived of his rights under a covenant for renewal.<sup>3</sup>

(7) Tenants for Life and Remainder-men. — Tenants for life and remainder-men are entitled to have damages apportioned between them.<sup>4</sup>

(8) Heir or Administrator. — If the owner of lands dies before the land has been taken for public use, his heir and not his administrator is entitled to claim damages.<sup>5</sup> But if the land has been taken during the owner's life, the compensation is payable to the administrator.<sup>6</sup>

(9) Payment into Court. — If the owner is unknown, or if there are conflicting claims, the compensation may be paid into court, and the company will thereupon obtain a clear title.<sup>7</sup>

c. Who Liable for Damages. — Where lands have been condemned, the title does not vest in the corporation condemning until payment of compensation, and the owner may prevent the

1. In re New York C. R. R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 419.

2. Chicago & E. R. R. Co. v. Dresel, 110 Ill. 89; Burbridge v. New Albany & S. R. R. Co., 9 Ind. 546; Baltimore & O. R. R. v. Thompson, 10 Md. 76; Muller v. Earle, 35 N. Y. Super. Ct. (3 J. & S.) 461; Coutant v. Catlin, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 485; In re William & Anthony Sts., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 678; Turner v. Williams, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 140; Dyer v. Wightman, 66 Pa. St. 425; North Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Davis, 26 Pa. St. 238; Brown v. Powell, 25 Pa. St. 229; Turnpike Road v. Brosi, 22 Pa. St. 29; Frost v. Earnest, 4 Whart. (Pa.) 86; Alexandria & F. R. R. Co. v. Faunce, 31 Gratt. (Va.) 761.

When a deduction is made from the landlord's damages, under appropriation by the sovereign for the time the lease has to run, and awarded to the lessee, it in equity belongs to the lessor, as he is deprived of recourse to the land for his rent. Fitzpatrick v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 10 Phila. (Pa.) 107. Compare, Ex parte Carey, 10 L. T. 37.

3. North Pennsylvania R. R. v. Davis, 26 Pa. St. 238.

4. Shelton v. Derby, 27 Conn. 414; Burbridge v. New Albany & N. R. R. Co., 9 Ind. 546; Pittsburgh, V. & C. R. R. v. Bentley, 88 Pa. St. 178; Redding R. R. Co. v. Boyer, 13 Pa. St. 497; Crangle v. Harrisburg, 1 Pa. St. 132; Colcough v. Nashville & N. W. R. R. Co., 2 Head (Tenn.), 171; Austin v. Rutland R. R. Co., 45 Vt. 215; In re Pfleger, L. R. 6 Eq. 426; In re Phillips Trusts, L. R. 6 Eq. 252.

5. Peoria & R. I. R. R. Co. v. Rice, 75 Ill. 329; Satterfield v. Crow, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 553; Neal v. Knox & L. R. R. Co., 61 Me. 298; Boynton v. Peterborough & S. R. R. Co., 88 Mass. (4 Cush.) 467; Boonville v. Ormrod's Adm'r., 26 Mo. 193; Ballou v. Ballou, 78 N. Y. 325.

Purchase-money paid into court by a railway company under sect. 69 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, for land of which an infant is absolutely seized in fee, remains impressed with the character of real estate, and on the death of the infant descends to his heirs-at-law. Kelland v. Fulford, L. R. 6 Ch. Div. 491.

6. Welles v. Cowles, 4 Conn. 182; s. c., 10 Am. Dec. 115; Neal v. Knox & L. R. R., 61 Me. 298; Boynton v. Peterborough R. R., 88 Mass. (4 Cush.) 467; Hotchkiss v. Auburn R. R. Co., 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 600; Howcott's Ex'rs v. Warren, 7 Ired. (N. C.) L. 20.

7. San Francisco & S. J. R. R. Co. v. Mahoney, 29 Cal. 112; South Park Commissioners v. Todd, 112 Ill. 379; In re New York C. R. R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 419; Wiggin v. New York, 9 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 16; Philadelphia v. Dyer, 41 Pa. St. 463; Haswell v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 23 Vt. 228; Wooster v. Sugar R. V. Co., 57 Wis. 311; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas.

mortgagee,<sup>1</sup> or vendee,<sup>2</sup> from exercising any rights thereon, until payment has been made. Two railroad companies which are authorized by statute, jointly or severally, to locate, construct, and maintain a railroad, are, if they file a joint location, jointly liable for damages.<sup>3</sup>

d. How made.—The compensation to be made to the owner cannot include agreements of the conditions imposed upon the company, e.g., for the construction of crossings, bridges, or cattle-guards, but must be the award in money.<sup>4</sup> Nor can the compensation be made in other lands.<sup>5</sup> A statute authorizing the taking of lands for the use of a railroad, owned by the State, and of other roads, without providing for any compensation to the owners except from the earnings of the said road, is unconstitutional.<sup>6</sup>

e. Effect of Payment.—It is only by payment of the compensation that the corporation condemning the lands acquires a vested title in the property.<sup>7</sup> But from the time the compensation is paid or deposited as required by law, the right to the property vests in the corporation, and they have a private right to enter upon and appropriate it.<sup>8</sup> And the payment will be sufficient to estop the owner from making further claims for damages, which it is alleged were not considered.<sup>9</sup> But the award and payment does not preclude the owner from compelling the company to fulfil any contract entered into with reference to the crossings, etc.<sup>10</sup>

f. Protection and Enforcement of Right.—(1) By Action at Law.—If the company alone have power to institute the ordinary statutory proceedings, or is under special obligation to carry it into effect, and is in default for not having done so in a reasonable time, the injured owner is not deprived of his remedy by action.<sup>11</sup>

1. Kendall v. Missisquoi & C. R. R. Co., 55 Vt. 438.

2. Drury v. Midland R. R. Co., 127 Mass. 571.

3. Grand Junction R. R. & D. Co. v. Commissioners of Middlesex, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 553.

4. Chicago & A. R. R. v. Springfield & N. W. R. R., 67 Ill. 142; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., Melville, 66 Ill. 329; Fresbrey v. Old Colony & N. R. R., 103 Mass. 1; Drury v. Midland R. R., 127 Mass. 571; Ham v. Salem, 100 Mass. 350; Central O. R. R. v. Holler, 7 Ohio St. 220; Pittsburgh, V. & C. R. R. v. Rose, 74 Pa. St. 362; Chesapeake & O. R. R. v. Halstead, 7 W. Va. 301; Chesapeake & O. R. R. v. Patton, 6 W. Va. 147; Milwaukee & N. W. R. R. v. Strange, 63 Wis. 178; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 413.

5. Van Horn v. Dooran, 2 U. S. (2 Dall.) 304; bk. 1, L. ed. 391.

6. Connecticut R. R. R. Co. v. County Commissioners, 127 Mass. 50; s. c., 34 Am. Rep. 338.

7. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co. v. Jones, 68 Ala. 48; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas.

425; Chicago v. Barbican, 80 Ill. 482; Mayor & C. of Baltimore v. R. R. Co. v. Hook, 62 Md. 371; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 442.

8. Beekman v. Saratoga & S. R. R. Co., 3 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 45; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Benitos, 59 Tex. 326; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 122.

9. Hitchcock v. Danbury, 25 Conn. 516; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Johnson, 84 Ind. 420; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 408; Lafayette P. Co. v. New Albany & S. R. R. Co., 13 Ind. 90; Perley v. B., C. & M. R. R. Co., 57 N. H. 212; South Side R. R. Co. v. Daniel, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 344; Grafton v. Baltimore & O. R. R. Co., 21 Fed. Rep. 309; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 200; Manning v. Eastern Co. R. R. Co., 12 Mees. & W. 237.

10. Jones v. Seligman, 81 N. Y. 191; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 236.

11. Stein v. Burden, 24 Ala. 130; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 453; Cairo & F. R. R. Co. v. Trout, 32 Ark. 17; Nicholson v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 22 Conn. 74; s. c., 56 Am. Dec. 390; Bradley v. New York & N. H. R. R. Co., 21 Conn. 294; Kansas

As where it occupies property not authorized by its charter.<sup>1</sup>

(2) Injunction. — The owner of land is entitled to an injunction restraining a railroad company from constructing its road, where the company has taken possession without any valid condemnation proceedings,<sup>2</sup> or where after the assessment it has failed to make payment,<sup>3</sup> even though it have already obtained possession,<sup>4</sup> or has failed to fulfil a stipulation by which it was bound to furnish the owner with a crossing.<sup>5</sup> An individual whose property is not actually taken cannot bring an injunction to restrain an appropriation of property alleged to be ultra vires; such action can only be brought by a state.<sup>6</sup> An abutting owner is not entitled to an injunction restraining the construction of a railroad on the street by consent of the city council until damages are assessed.<sup>7</sup> But where the Pacific R. R. Co. v. Streeter, 8 Kans. 133; Blesch v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 43 Wis. 183; Bohlgan v. Green Bay & L. P. R. R., 30 Wis. 105; Loop v. Chamberlain, 20 Wis. 135.

1. Eward v. Lawrenceburgh & U. M. R. R. Co., 7 Ind. 711; Eaton v. European & N. A. R. R. Co., 59 Me. 520; Hazen v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 574.

2. Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co., 70 Ala. 227; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217; Niemeyer v. Little Rock & J. R. R. Co., 43 Ark. 111; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 174; Lafayette v. Bush, 19 Ind. 326; Carpenter v. Easton & A. R. Co., 24 N. J. Eq. (9 C. E. Gr.) 249; Gardner v. Newburg, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 162; s. c., 7 Am. Dec. 526; Sower v. Philadelphia, 35 Pa. St. 231; Bohlgan v. Green Bay & M. R. R. Co., 30 Wis. 105; s. c., 13 Am. Ry. Rep. 421; Eidemiller v. Wyandotte City, 2 Dill. C. C. 376.

3. Shute v. Chicago & M. R. R. Co., 26 Ill. 436; Irish v. Burlington & S. W. R. Co., 44 Iowa, 380; Richards v. Des Moines R. R. Co., 18 Iowa, 259; Stewart v. Raymond R. R. Co., 15 Miss. (7 Smed. & M.) 568; Provolt v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co., 69 Mo. 633; People v. Law, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 494; s. c., 22 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 109; Atchison v. Philadelphia & T. R. R. Co., 14 Haz. Pa. Reg. 10; White v. Nashville & N. W. R. R. Co., 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 518; Kendall v. Missisquoi & C. R. R. Co., 55 Vt. 438; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 423; Ford v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 14 Wis. 609; Davis v. LaCrosse & M. R. R. Co., 12 Wis. 16; Sturtevant v. Milwaukee W. & B. R. R. Co., 11 Wis. 63; Northern Pac. R. R. Co. v. Barnesville & M. R. R. Co., 4 Fed. Rep. 298; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 8.

4. Gammage v. Georgia S. R. R. Co., 65 Ga. 614; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 371; Holbert v. St. Louis, K. C. & N. R. Co., 45 Iowa, 23; Williams v. New Orleans,

M. & T. R. R. Co., 60 Miss. 689; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 378; Ray v. Atchison & N. R. Co., 4 Neb. 439; Omaha & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Menk, 4 Neb. 21; Kittell v. Missisquoi R. R. Co., 56 Vt. 96; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 165; Fresh Water v. Pittsburg, W. & K. R. R. Co., 6 W. Va. 503; Cosens v. Bognor R. R. Co., L. R. 1 Ch. App. 594.

5. Wheeler v. Rochester & S. R. R. Co., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 227.

6. Natoma Water Co. v. Clarkin, 14 Cal. 544; Commonwealth v. Wilder, 127 Mass. 1; Union Nat. Bank v. Hunt, 76 Mo. 439; Kinealy v. St. Louis, K. C. & N. R. Co., 69 Mo. 663; Martindale v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R., 60 Mo. 510; Shewalter v. Pirner, 55 Mo. 218; Land v. Coffman, 50 Mo. 243; Chambers v. St. Louis, 29 Mo. 543; Spear v. Crawford, 14 Wend. (N. Y.) 20; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 513; Ehrman v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 35 Ohio St. 324; Walsh v. Barton, 24 Ohio St. 28; Grant v. Henry Clay C. Co., 80 Pa. St. 208; Goundie v. Northampton Water Co., 7 Pa. St. 233; Leazure v. Hillegas, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 313; Cowell v. Colorado Springs Co., 100 U. S. (10 Otto) 55; bk. 25 L. ed. 547; Jones v. Habersham, 3 Woods C. C. 443.

7. Mills v. Parlin, 106 Ill. 60; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 147; Patterson v. Chicago, D. & R. R. Co., 75 Ill. 588; Moses v. Pittsburgh, F. W. & C. R. R. Co., 21 Ill. 516; New Albany R. R. Co. v. O'Daily, 13 Ind. 353; Drake v. Hudson R. R. Co., 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 508; Hale v. Point Pleasant & O. R. R. Co., 23 W. Va. 454; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 162; Smith v. Point Pleasant & O. R. R. Co., 23 W. Va. 451; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 160; Campbell v. Point Pleasant & O. R. R. Co., 23 W. Va. 448; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 157; Spencer v. Point Pleasant & O. R. R. Co., 23 W. Va. 406; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 125. And some cases hold that the construction of a railroad in a street in such a manner as to damages have been ascertained, an abutting owner has been held entitled to an injunction until payment.<sup>1</sup> The land-owner may have estopped from obtaining an ejectment preventing an entry upon his land, as where he has given his consent, and the company have incurred the expense in reliance thereon.<sup>2</sup>

(3) Ejectment. — If a railroad company enter upon land unlawfully, without a legal appropriation and assessment of damages, the land-owner may bring ejectment.<sup>3</sup> But it has been held that execution for possession should not issue until the company has been granted a reasonable time, fixed by the court, in which to pay the assessed damages and interest thereon.<sup>4</sup> Where a railroad company constructs its track through the streets of a city, and uses the same without any claim of title to or interest in the street beyond the right of way for its cars and locomotives, and the public use and enjoy the street without disturbance, it has been held that the company do not "occupy" the premises within the meaning of the term as used in the statute requiring ejectment to be brought against the "actual occupant."<sup>5</sup> Where, however, do material injury to the abutting land-owners will be restrained by injunction, until the damages have been assessed and paid. Crowley v. Davis, 63 Cal. 460; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 25; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Strauss, 37 Md. 237; Harrington v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Scioto Valley R. R. Co. v. Lawrence, 38 Ohio St. 41; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 93; 43 Am. Rep. 419.

1. Henderson v. New York Cent. R. R. Co., 17 Hun (N. Y.), 345; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 9.

2. Jefferson & L. P. R. R. v. New Orleans, 31 La. An. 478; Bassett v. Salisbury Mfg. Co., 47 N. H. 426; Meredith v. Sayre, 32 N. J. Eq. (5 Stew.) 557; Pickert v. Ridgefield Park R. R., 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 316; Easton v. New York & L. B. R. R., 24 N. J. Eq. (9 C. E. Gr.) 49; Higbee v. Camden & A. R. R., 20 N. J. Eq. (5 C. E. Gr.) 435; Goodin v. Cincinnati & W. C. Co., 18 Ohio St. 169. Compare Harrington v. St. Paul, etc., R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Morris & E. R. R. Co. v. Hudson T. R. R., 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 384.

3. Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co., 70 Ala. 227; Robinson v. Pittsburg R. R., 57 Cal. 417; Chicago & I. R. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 90 Ill. 316; Smith v. Chicago, A. & St. L. R. R., 67 Ill. 191; Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. v. Knox College, 34 Ill. 195; Cox v. Louisville, N. A. & C. R. R., 48 Ind. 178; Graham v. Columbus & I. C. R. R., 27 Ind. 260; Birge v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 65 Iowa, 440; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 291; White v. Wabash, St. L. & P. R. R. Co., 64 Iowa, 28; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 82; Holbert v.

St. Louis, K. C. & N. R. R., 45 Iowa, 23; Conger v. Burlington & S. W. R. R., 41 Iowa, 419; St. Joseph & D. C. R. R. v. Callender, 13 Kans. 496; Harrington v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Carpenter v. Oswego & S. R. R., 24 N. Y. 655; Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. v. Bruce, 102 Pa. St. 23; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Wilmington & R. R. v. High, 89 Pa. St. 282; Phillips v. Dunkirk, W. & P. R. R. Co., 78 Pa. St. 177; McClinton v. Pittsburgh, Ft. W. & C. R. R., 66 Pa. St. 404; Levering v. Philadelphia, G. & N. R. R., 8 Watts & S. (Pa.) 459; Gillison v. Savannah & C. R. R. Co., 7 S. C. 173; International & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Benitos, 59 Tex. 326; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 122; Snell v. Wasatch & J. V. R. R. Co., 3 Utah, 192; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 475; Gilman v. Sheboygan & F. R. R., 40 Wis. 653; Northern Pac. R. R. v. Burlington & M. R. R., 2 McCr. C. C. 203; s. c., 4 Fed. Rep. 298; 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 8. Compare St. Louis, A. & T. H. R. R. v. Karnes, 101 Ill. 402; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 39.

4. Conger v. Burlington & S. W. R. R. Co., 41 Iowa, 419.

5. Redfield v. Utica & S. R. R. Co., 25 Barb. (N. Y.) 54. Compare Brown v. Galley, Hill & Den. (N. Y.) 308; Wiesbrod v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 21 Wis. 602.

A highway was laid out over plaintiff's land, opened, and used by the public. A railway company appropriated the road, and laid its road upon it, without the assessment of damages under the general railway law. The company, under the same law, made a new road to supply its place, and the land-owner allows the company to take possession or construct its track without making any objection thereto, he will be held to have waived his right to bring ejectment.<sup>1</sup>

(4) Trespass.—If a railroad company takes possession of property, claims it by virtue of the power of eminent domain, without condemnation by statutory proceedings, and payment of compensation, the owner may bring an action of trespass.<sup>2</sup> And it is no defence that the company had commenced proceedings for condemnation of the property, and taken an appeal from the report of the commissioners.<sup>3</sup> If, however, the company is authorized by law to enter upon lands, and to occupy the same, and it does so in the manner and form provided by the legislature, no action for trespass will lie against it;<sup>4</sup> unless the law be void or unconstitutional, in which case the action may be maintained.<sup>5</sup> If the company without authority appropriates materials outside of its limits, it is liable to an action of trespass;<sup>6</sup> or uses land not taken for a cartway;<sup>7</sup> or enters on adjoining lands to construct a drain<sup>8</sup> or lawfully obstructs an easement or right of drainage,<sup>9</sup> or the old road was abandoned without a formal vacation. Held, that the owner of the soil of the original road might recover it in an ejectment. Phillips v. Dunkirk, W. & P. R. R. Co., 78 Pa. St. 177.

1. Cairo & F. R. R. Co. v. Turner, 31 Ark. 494; s. c., 25 Am. Rep. 564; Lexington & O. R. R. v. Ormsby, 7 Dana (Ky.), 276; Harlow v. Marquette, H. & O. R. R., 41 Mich. 336; Gray v. St. Louis & S. R. Co., 81 Mo. 126; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 106; Provolt v. Chicago, R. I. & Pac. R. R., 57 Mo. 256; Omaha & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Redick, 16 Neb. 313; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 107; Pickert v. Ridgefield Park R. R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 316; Attorney General v. New York & L. B. R. R., 24 N. J. Eq. (9 C. E. Gr.) 49; Hentz v. Long Island R. R. Co., 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 646; Goodin v. Cincinnati & W. C. Co., 18 Ohio St. 169; Knapp v. McAulay, 39 Vt. 275; McAulay v. Western Vermont R. R., 33 Vt. 311; Andrews v. Farmers' L. & T. Co., 22 Wis. 288; Pettibone v. LaCrosse & M. R. R. Co., 14 Wis. 443; Pryzbylowicz v. Missouri R. R. Co., 3 McCr. C. C. 596; s. c., 17 Fed. Rep. 492.

2. Jones v. New Orleans & S. R. R. Co., 70 Ala. 227; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217; Little Rock & Ft. S. R. R. Co. v. Dyer, 35 Ark. 360; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 33; Hooker v. New Haven & N. Co., 14 Conn. 146; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 477; 15 Conn. 312; South Carolina R. Co. v. Steiner, 44 Ga. 546; Doe, ex dem. v. Georgia R. R. & B. Co., 1 Ga. 524; Graham v. Columbus & I. C. R. R. Co., 27 Ind. 260; Evansville & C. R. R. Co. v. Dick, 9 Ind. 433; Donald v. St. Louis, K. C. & N. R. R. Co., 52 Iowa, 411; Henry v.

Dubuque & P. R. R., 10 Iowa, 540; Hall v. Pickering, 40 Me. 548; Mayo v. City of Springfield, 136 Mass. 10; Murray v. Fitchburg R. R., 130 Mass. 99; Mathews v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R., 18 Minn. 434; Memphis & C. R. R. Co. v. Payne, 37 Miss. 700; Combs v. Smith, 78 Mo. 32; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 209; Eaton v. Boston, C. & M. R. R., 51 N. H. 504; Smart v. Portsmouth & C. R. R., 20 N. H. 233; Tinsman v. Belvidere, D. R. R., 26 N. J. L. (2 Dutch.) 148; Robinson v. New York & E. R. R., 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 512; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Stackhouse, 10 Ohio St. 567; Justice v. Nesquehoning Valley R. R., 87 Pa. St. 28; Buffalo, B. & C. R. R. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Rush v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R., 54 Wis. 136; Sherman v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R., 40 Wis. 645; Loop v. Chamberlain, 20 Wis. 135; Pomerooy v. Chicago & C. R. R. Co., 16 Wis. 640.

3. Ring v. Mississippi Riv. B. Co., 57 Mo. 496. See also Coburn v. Pacific, L. & M. Co., 46 Cal. 31; Missouri, K. & T. R. R. Co. v. Ward, 10 Kans. 352.

4. Mellen v. Western R. R. Co., 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 301; Aldrich v. Cheshire R. R. Co., 21 N. H. 359; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 272; Little Miami R. R. Co. v. Whitacre, 8 Ohio St. 591.

5. Leach v. Day, 27 Cal. 643; Lee v. Pembroke I. Co., 57 Me. 481; s. c., 2 Am. Rep. 521; Ash v. Cummings, 50 N. H. 591. Compare American Print Works v. Lawrence, 23 N. J. L. (3 Zab.) 590.

6. Parsons v. Howe, 41 Me. 218.

7. Sabin v. Vermont Cent. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 363.

8. State v. Armell, 8 Kans. 288.

9. Proprietors of Locks and Canals v.

diverts a stream when not permitted by its charter or by statute.<sup>1</sup> But trespass will not lie if begun during condemnation proceedings, which, though pronounced void subsequently, are immediately reinstated and terminate in award.<sup>2</sup> The owner of land abutting upon the city street whose title extends to the centre, subject to the right of the public, may retain an action of trespass against a company, which without authority takes possession of the street as part of its right of way.<sup>3</sup> The statutory remedy does not include cases of trespass committed by the company before its possession became lawful: he may still recover therefor in an action at law.<sup>4</sup> If the land-owner has been guilty of laches in allowing the railroad company to unlawfully enter upon and remain in possession of his land, he will be deemed to have waived his right to bring trespass.<sup>5</sup> Or he will not be precluded thereby from instituting statutory proceedings for the recovery of damages.<sup>6</sup>

(5) Mandatory Proceedings.—If the officer whose duty it is to Nashua & L. R. R. Co., 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 385; Bell v. Midland R. Co., 10 C. B. N. S. 287.

1. Stodghill v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co., 43 Iowa, 26; Baltimore & P. R. R. Co. v. Magruder, 34 Md. 79; Johnson v. Atlantic & St. L. R. R. Co., 35 N. H. 569; Whitaker v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 87 Pa. St. 34.

2. Dunlap v. Toledo, A. A. & G. T. R. R. Co., 50 Mich. 470; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 185. Compare Rusch v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R. Co., 54 Wis. 136.

3. Hussner v. Brooklyn City R. R. Co., 30 Hun (N. Y.), 409; In re 17th Street, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 262. See also Brakken v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 29 Minn. 41; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 593.

4. Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Keith, 53 Ga. 178; Lafayette, M. & B. R. R. Co. v. Murdock, 68 Ind. 137; Missouri K. & T. R. R. Co. v. Ward, 10 Kans. 352; Mathews v. St. Paul & S. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 434; Proetz v. St. Paul Water Co., 17 Minn. 163; In re Townsend's Case, 39 N. Y. 171; Blodgett v. Utica & B. R. R. Co., 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 580; Oregon & C. R. R. Co. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311; McClinton v. Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404; Pomeroy v. Chicago & M. R. R. Co., 25 Wis. 641; Davis v. LaCrosse & M. R. R. Co., 12 Wis. 16.

And where trespass is brought and damages are recovered, this is no concession of the right of the railroad company. The damages are only for the injury accruing up to the time when suit is brought. It does not include the value of the land. Anderson, L. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Kernodle, 54 Ind. 314; Hartz v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 358; Adams v. Hastings & D. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 260; Harrington v.

St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Blesch v. Chicago & N. R. R. Co., 43 Wis. 183.

And where subsequent proceedings are instituted to condemn the same lands upon which a trespass has been committed, the commissioners in assessing damages cannot include remuneration for the trespass. Hursh v. St. Paul & Pac. R. Co., 17 Minn. 439; Blodgett v. Utica & B. R. R. Co., 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 580; Oregon & C. R. R. Co. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311. See also Jefferson, M. & I. R. R. Co. v. Esterle, 13 Bush (Ky.), 637; Soulard v. St. Louis, 36 Mo. 546; Pomeroy v. Chicago & M. R. R. Co., 25 Wis. 641.

5. Cairo & F. R. R. Co. v. Turner, 31 Ark. 494; Lexington & O. R. R. Co. v. Ormsby, 7 Dana (Ky.), 276; Hall v. Pickering, 40 Me. 548; Harlow v. Marquette, H. & O. R. R. Co., 41 Mich. 336; Provolt v. Chicago, I. R. & P. R. R. Co., 57 Mo. 256; s. c., 69 Mo. 633; Pickert v. Ridgefield Park R. R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 316; Attorney-General v. New York & L. E. R. Co., 24 N. J. Eq. (9 C. E. Gr.) 49; Hentz v. Long Island R. R. Co., 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 646; Goodin v. Cincinnati & W. Can. Co., 18 Ohio St. 169; Knapp v. McAulay, 39 Vt. 275; McAulay v. Western Vermont R. R. Co., 33 Vt. 311; Andrews v. Farmer's L. & T. Co., 22 Wis. 288; Pettibone v. La Crosse & M. R. Co., 14 Wis. 443.

6. Gay v. Maine Cent. R. R. Co., 72 Me. 95; Maxwell v. Bay City B. Co., 41 Mich. 453; Harlow v. Marquette, H. & O. R. R. Co., 41 Mich. 336; Harrington v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Smart v. Portsmouth & C. R. R. Co., 20 N. H. 233; Western Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290; Rusch v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R. Co., 54 Wis. 136.

procure an appraisalment do not proceed to perform that duty, the remedy is by mandamus.<sup>1</sup>

(6) Effect of License to enter.—A parol license to enter upon lands, and construct a railroad thereon, is revocable.<sup>2</sup> But such license will be sufficient to justify an entry and bar an action for trespass.<sup>3</sup> On revocation of the license, the railroad company is entitled to proceed to obtain a condemnation of the premises. And the land-owner may be restrained from interfering with the company's enjoyment of the lands.<sup>4</sup> On revocation of the license, the land-owner's proper course is to take proceedings for the recovery of compensation.<sup>5</sup> And until an easement has been made, he will not be entitled to obtain an injunction restraining the company from using the land.<sup>6</sup>

7. Lien for Damages.—The land-owner has a lien on the land for unpaid compensation, which is good even against a vendee of the company making the entry,<sup>7</sup> or against the mortgagee or lessee of such company.<sup>8</sup>

1. Smith v. Helmer, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 416; People v. Hayden, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 359; Baker v. Johnson, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 342; Bloodgood v. Mohawk & H. R. R. Co., 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 9; Rexford v. Knight, 11 N. Y. 308; Fotherby v. Metropolitan R. R. Co., L. R. 2 C. P. 188; Reg. v. East Lancashire R. R. Co., 9 Ad. & E. N. S. 980; s. c., 58 Eng. C. L. 978; Birmingham & O. J. R. Co. v. Reg., 15 Q. B. 634; s. c., 69 Eng. C. L. 634; 20 L. J. N. S. Q. B. 304.

2. Foot v. New Haven & N. Co., 23 Conn. 214; Cook v. Stearns, 11 Mass. 533; People v. Goodwin, 5 N. Y. 568; Eggleston v. New York & H. R. R. Co., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 162; Mumford v. Whitney, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 380; s. c., 30 Am. Dec. 60; Bridges v. Purcell, 1 Dev. & B. (N. C.) L. 492.

3. New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Moye, 39 Miss. 374; Goodin v. Cincinnati & W. C. Co., 18 Ohio St. 169; Hanlin v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 61 Wis. 515; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 70.

4. Baltimore & H. R. R. Co. v. Algire, 65 Md. 337.

5. Hanlin v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 61 Wis. 515; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 70.

6. Cooper v. Chester R. R. Co., 19 N. J. Eq. (4 C. E. Gr.) 199; Pettibone v. La-Crosse & M. R. R. Co., 14 Wis. 443. See also Gay v. Maine C. R. R. Co., 72 Me. 95; Maxwell v. Bay City B. Co., 41 Mich. 453; Harlow v. Marquette, H. & O. R. R. Co., 41 Mich. 336; Harrington v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Smart v. Portsmouth & C. R. R. Co., 20 N. H. 233; Western P. R. R. Co. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290; Rusch v. Milwaukee L. S. & W. R. R. Co., 54 Wis. 136; s. c., 11 N. W. Rep. 253.

In Hamilton v. Annapolis & E. R. R. Co.,

1 Md. Ch. 107, the court refused an injunction to restrain, where complainant forebore commencing proceedings until after the improvements were erected, but entered a decree directing compensation to be paid out of the revenue of the road.

7. Drury v. Midland R. R. Co., 127 Mass. 571; New Bedford R. R. v. Old Colony R. R., 120 Mass. 397; Boston & P. R. R. v. Midland R. R., 67 Mass. (1 Gray) 340, 359; Williams v. New Orleans, M. & T. R. R. Co., 60 Miss. 689; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 378; New York & G. L. R. R. Co. v. Stanley, 34 N. J. Eq. (7 Stew.) 55; Philadelphia, N. & N. Y. R. R. v. Cooper, 105 Pa. St. 239; Adams v. St. Johnsbury & L. C. R. R. Co., 57 Vt. 240; Kittell v. Missisquoi R. Co., 56 Vt. 96; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 165; Kendall v. Missisquoi & C. R. R. Co., 55 Vt. 438; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 423; Matthews v. Lucia, 55 Vt. 308; Child v. Allen, 33 Vt. 476; Root v. Lord, 23 Vt. 568; Pfeifer v. Sheboygan & F. R. R. Co., 18 Wis. 155; Sedgwick v. Watford & R. R. Co., 36 L. J. Ch. 379; Vyner v. Hoyalake R. Co., 17 W. R. 92.

8. Holbert v. St. Louis, K. C. & N. R. R., 45 Iowa, 23; Hibbs v. Chicago & S. W. R. R., 39 Iowa, 340; Lycoming, G. & W. Co. v. Moyer, 99 Pa. St. 615; White v. Nashville & N. W. R. R., 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 518; Gilman v. Sheboygan & F. R. R., 40 Wis. 653.

In some cases the lien is expressly conferred by charter. Kennedy v. Central R. R. Co., 28 N. J. Eq. (1 Stew.) 389; Frelinghuysen v. Central R. R. Co., 28 N. J. Eq. (1 Stew.) 388. In these cases it was held that the owner had, by virtue of the case, chartered a mortgage lien for the condemnation money.

8. Waiver of Damages. — Land-owner's claim for damages may be effectually waived, either verbally by a statement made before the commissioners to assess damages,<sup>1</sup> or by written agreement.<sup>2</sup> An assent to a change in the line of highway does not imply a waiver of the right to damages already perfected in judgment.<sup>3</sup>

VIII. Consequential Damages. — Under this term as applied to eminent domain, are usually included all damages which result from injuries to land not taken. Such an extended use of the term cannot, however, be properly justified. The term is usually confined to those damages or losses which arise not from the immediate act of the party, but in consequence of such act. It might fairly be questioned whether the obstruction of a water-course, or of surface water, the annoyance from smoke and dust, and the obstruction of lights, can be fairly considered consequential. In many of the cases, where compensation has been held to be recoverable at common law on these grounds, the decisions have been based upon the fact that there had been an actual interference with an easement or servitude in favor of the land-owner,<sup>4</sup> and hence the injury must be considered to be direct, and not consequential. In view

1. Fuller v. Plymouth County Comm'rs., 32 Mass. (15 Pick.) 81. See also Marble v. Whitney, 28 N. Y. 297.

2. In Kansas C. & O. R. R. Co. v. Hicks, 30 Kans. 288; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 100, the city council have passed an ordinance authorizing the construction of a railroad along one of the streets, providing the company should first pay to the city clerk $3,500 to be distributed among the lot-owners as compensation for their damages resulting from the construction, the amount so paid and apportioned as directed in the ordinance. After the stakes had been set in the street in front of plaintiff's lot, and after work had been commenced on the street on either side of the lot, plaintiff received from the city clerk the amount apportioned to him, and executed a receipt which recited that the same was received "in full payment and satisfaction of any claim I may or might have for damages to lots . . . against said road by reason of the construction of said road." The road was thereafter finished in a skillful and proper manner, and though there was a file in front of the lots of five or six feet, such file was necessary to bring the track to a proper grade. It was held that in the absence of fraud, dispensation, or concealment however, the plaintiff did not understand the meaning of the stakes, and did not know that a file was necessary. He was estopped from any further claim against the railroad company for damages on account of the construction of its road, and the obstruction of access to his lots. A release from all claim for damages on account of the construction of the road from the grantor's lien will not discharge his claim for damages resulting from the road being built over the land of another.

3. Kent v. Wallingford, 42 Vt. 651.

4. That the riparian owners have a right in the nature of an easement in the flow of water-courses, see Burden v. Stein, 27 Ala. 104; Hendrick v. Cook, 4 Ga. 241; Davis v. Getchel, 50 Me. 604; Gould v. Boston Dock, 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 433; Hayes v. Waldron, 44 N. H. 584; Holsman v. Boiling Spring Co., 14 N. J. Eq. (1 McCar.) 335; Clinton v. Myers, 46 N. Y. 811; s. c., 7 Am. Rep. 373; Tyler v. Wilkinson, 4 Mason, C. C. 397; Mason v. Hill, 5 Barn. & Ad. 1; Chasemore v. Richards, 7 H. L. Cas. 349.

In those States where the rule of the civil law with reference to surface waters is adopted, there is a natural easement upon lower grounds to receive the flow from the upper. Ogburn v. Connor, 46 Cal. 346; Livingston v. McDonald, 21 Iowa, 160; Minor v. Wright, 16 La. An. 151; Boyd v. Conclin, 54 Mich. 583; Porter v. Durham, 74 N. C. 767; Hayes v. Hinkleman, 68 Pa. St. 324; Martin v. Riddle, 26 Pa. St. 415; Kaufman v. Griesemer, 26 Pa. St. 407; s. c., 67 Am. Dec. 437.

The New-York court holds that the right to recover for an obstruction of light or annoyance arising from smoke and dust must be based upon the interference with the natural easement which every land-owner has. Drecker v. Manhattan R. R. Co., 106 N. Y. 157; s. c., 60 Am. Rep. 137; Lahr v. Metropolitan E. R. R. Co., 104 N. Y. 268.

of these considerations, and of the fact that the decisions vary very much, it has been deemed advisable to discuss what have generally been treated as consequential damages, under another head.<sup>1</sup>

IX. Title and Rights retained. — 1. Fee. — Where merely an easement or right of way over lands is condemned, the former owner of the soil still retains the fee and the right to use the land for every purpose not incompatible with the use to which it has been appropriated.<sup>2</sup> The timber situated on the land taken for the right of way remains the property of the land-owner, and the company has only the right to take and remove so much as may be necessary for the construction and repair of the road.<sup>3</sup> The owner is also entitled to the grass grown on the right of way.<sup>4</sup> And he may drive pipes under the railway for the convenience of oil, etc., such use being shown not to interfere or impair the easement of the company.<sup>5</sup> But he will not be allowed to cross over or under the railroad at pleasure.<sup>6</sup> Nor will he be permitted to enter upon the land with teams and remove the turf therefrom, the effect of such removal being to enhance the danger of cattle going upon the track, and to increase the dust at the time of the passage of cars.<sup>7</sup>

2. Reversion in Cesser of Public Use. — Where a mere easement is acquired, all rights in and to the land will at once terminate as soon as the particular use for which it has been appropriated is discontinued.<sup>8</sup> But when a power is granted to take in fee, an absolute title is acquired, and the original owner has no reversionary interest.<sup>9</sup> A right of way acquired by deed will not be prevented

1. Supra, VI.

2. Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Kansas Central R. R. Co. v. Allen, 22 Kan. 285; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 190; Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. Co. v. Bruce, 102 Pa. St. 23; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Lyon v. Gormley, 53 Pa. St. 261.

3. Preston v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 11 Iowa, 15; Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282.

4. Leavenworth, T. & S. W. R. R. v. Paul, 28 Kan. 816; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 490. Compare Troy & B. R. R. Co. v. Potter, 42 Vt. 265.

5. Hasson v. Oil Creek & A. R. R. Co., 8 Phila. (Pa.) 556.

6. Kansas Central R. R. Co. v. Allen, 22 Kan. 285; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 190.

7. Connecticut & P. R. R. Co. v. Holton, 32 Vt. 43.

8. Washington Cemetery v. Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co., 68 N. Y. 591; People v. White, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 26; Hooker v. Utica & M. T. Co., 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 371; Malone v. Toledo, 28 Ohio St. 643; s. c., 34 Ohio St. 541; Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. Co. v. Bruce, 102 Pa. St. 23; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1.

9. Heard v. Brooklyn, 60 N. Y. 242;

Rexford v. Knight, 11 N. Y. 308; Heyward v. Mayor, etc., of N. Y., 7 N. Y. 314; Sweet v. Buffalo, N. Y. & P. R. R., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 643; Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. v. Bruce, 102 Pa. St. 23; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Haldeman v. Pennsylvania C. R. R. Co., 50 Pa. St. 425; Connecticut & P. R. R. Co. v. Holton, 32 Vt. 43; Jackson v. Rutland & B. R. R., 25 Vt. 150; De Varaigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95. Compare New Orleans P. R. v. Gay, 32 La. An. 371; Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 285. In Heyward v. Mayor of New York, 7 N. Y. 314, land was appropriated by the city of New York for an almshouse. Twenty-seven years afterward it was found necessary to remove the almshouse, whereupon the heirs of the party from whom the property was originally taken claimed that it had reverted, and sued the city for its value, the city having cut the land up into lots, and sold it.

The statutes of New York, under which the property was appropriated, appear to have intended that the city should take all the title and interest that could be owned or held by any one. The preamble to one of the acts recites that the mayor, etc., of the city were desirous of obtaining the by mere non-user.<sup>1</sup> And where the deed containing the grant stipulates that on abandonment of the case the lands shall revert to the grantor, there will be no reversion in the grantor until the fact that the company has forfeited its franchises has been judicially ascertained.<sup>2</sup> A restriction on the use of land, e.g., against buildings, although abrogated by the taking of land for public use, revives upon the sale of the land for private uses.<sup>3</sup>

3. Minerals, and Right to work Same. — Where the fee lies in the owner, he retains his title to the minerals, and may remove them provided he does not interfere with the use to which the lands are put.<sup>4</sup>

X. Title and Rights acquired. — 1. Estate acquired. — Generally railroad companies are authorized to acquire only an easement or right of way in the lands through which their roads pass.<sup>5</sup> But the legislature may, when it deems it necessary, confer a power to take in fee simple.<sup>6</sup> The legislature is an exclusive judge of the land, "with the right of converting and disposing of the said lands and premises for other purposes or otherwise, whenever they or their successors may deem the continuance" of the particular public use for which it was taken unnecessary. The acts also provide that upon the appropriation the city "should become and be seized in fee-simple" absolute of the lands and tenements.

It was held there was no right of reversion to the original owners or their heirs, although the almshouse had been removed, and the land sold to private parties.

1. Barlow v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R. Co., 29 Iowa, 276.

2. Harrison v. Lexington & F. R. Co., 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 470.

3. Bird v. Eggleton, 29 Ch. Div. 1012; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 174.

4. Woodruff v. Neal, 28 Conn. 165; Smith v. Rome, 19 Ga. 89; Dubuque v. Benson, 23 Iowa, 248; West Covington v. Freking, 8 Bush (Ky.) 121; Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282; Winter v. Peterson, 24 N. J. L. (4 Zab.) 524; People v. Eldredge, 3 Hun (N. Y.), 541; Fisher v. Rochester, 6 Lans. (N. Y.) 225; Jackson v. Hathaway, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 447; s. c., 8 Am. Dec. 263; Tucker v. Eldred, 6 R. I. 404; Bolling v. Mayor of Petersburg, 3 Rand. (Va.) 563; Barclay v. Howell's Lessee, 31 U. S. (6 Pet.) 498; bk. 8, L. ed. 477; Midland R. Co. v. Haunchwood B. & T. Co., L. R. 20 Ch. Div. 552; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 555; Errington v. Metropolitan District R. Co., L. R. 19 Ch. Div. 559; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 562.

5. Alabama & F. R. R. Co. v. Burkett, 42 Ala. 83; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Kansas C. R. v. Allen, 22 Kans. 285; Challiss v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R. Co., 16 Kans. 117; Morris v.

Schoolsville B. R. T. R., 6 Bush (Ky.), 671; Proprietors of Locks & Canals v. Nashua & L. R. Co., 104 Mass. 1; Eaton v. Boston, C. & M. R. R. Co., 51 N. H. 504; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 147; Chapin v. Sullivan R. R., 39 N. H. 564; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 207; Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282; Taylor v. New York & L. E. R. R. Co., 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 28; State v. Brown, 27 N. J. L. (3 Dutch.) 13; Heard v. Brooklyn, 60 N. Y. 242; Ellicottville & G. V. Plank Road Co. v. Buffalo & P. R. R., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 644; Junction R. R. Co. v. Rugles, 7 Ohio St. 1; Western Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290; Philadelphia W. & B. R. R. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103; Aldrich v. Drury, 8 R. I. 554; Hill v. Western Vt. R. R., 32 Vt. 68; Williams v. Western U. R. Co., 50 Wis. 71; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 290.

In Oregon R. & N. Co. v. Oregon Real Estate Co., 10 Oreg. 444, it was held that a title that may be freed from public use cannot be acquired by a private corporation by eminent domain: land can only be taken for the particular use for which it is sought to be appropriated. See also New Orleans Pac. R. Co. v. Gay, 32 La. An. 471. Compare Sweet v. Buffalo, N. Y. & P. R. Co., 79 N. Y. 293; aff'm, 13 Hun (N. Y.), 645.

6. State v. Evans, 3 Ill. (2 Scam.) 208; Prather v. W. U. Tel. Co., 89 Ind. 501; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Logansport v. Shirk, 88 Ind. 563; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 456; Indianapolis, P. & C. Ry. Co. v. Rayl, 69 Ind. 424; Nelson v. Fleming, 56 Ind. 310; Water-works Co. v. Burkhardt, 41 Ind. 364; Challiss v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R., 16 Kans. 117; New Orleans P. R. v. Gay, 32 La. An. 471; Dingley v. Boston, 100 Mass. 544; Cotton v. Miss. & R. R. Boom Co., 22 Minn. 372; degree and quality of interest which is proper to be taken ;<sup>1</sup> and if they confer an estate in fee simple absolute, it must be estimated that they judged it necessary to do so to answer the public use contemplated.<sup>2</sup> The presumption is against a larger grant than an easement, where it is sufficient.<sup>3</sup> But this easement is in perpetuity.<sup>4</sup> A probation in a charter that the company shall, on taking land, be "seized and vested thereof," does not of itself confer the power to acquire a fee.<sup>5</sup> The right to take lands in fee may be authorized by statute, not only expressly, but by necessary implication.<sup>6</sup> If, by reason of a constitutional provision, the company is limited to an easement, a statute providing that it shall acquire an absolute estate in fee simple will not be void, but will be limited by the constitutional provision.<sup>7</sup> Where the land is needed for temporary purposes only, the title of the owner is not divested, and his enjoyment is only temporarily interrupted.<sup>8</sup>

2. Rights when Fee acquired.—A corporation has no higher rights to property condemned by the judgment of a court, than to that acquired by purchase without condemnation.<sup>9</sup> In England it has been held that a fee simple is acquired only for the purpose of aiding or furthering the contemplated public use, and that the power of the company over the land is limited thereby.<sup>10</sup>

3. Rights when Easement acquired.—Where only an easement

In re New York & H. R. R. Co. v. Kip, 46 N. Y. 546; Rexford v. Knight, 11 N. Y. 308; Sweet v. Buffalo, N. Y. & P. R. R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 643; Norfleet v. Cromwell, 70 N. C. 634; s. c., 16 Am. Rep. 787; Raleigh & G. R. Co. v. Davis, 2 Dev. & B. (N. C.) L. 451; Malone v. City of Toledo, 34 Ohio St. 541; Wyoming Coal & T. Co. v. Price, 81 Pa. St. 156; Robinson v. West. P. R. Co., 72 Pa. St. 316; Craig v. Mayor of Allegheny, 53 Pa. St. 477; Haldeman v. Pennsylvania C. R. Co., 50 Pa. St. 425; Commonwealth v. McAllister, 2 Watts (Pa.), 190; Burnett v. Nashville & C. R. R., 4 Sneed (Tenn.), 528; Troy & B. R. R. v. Potter, 42 Vt. 265; Mason v. Lake Erie, E. & S. R. R. Co., 9 Biss. C. C. 239; s. c., 1 Fed. Rep. 712; DeVaraigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95; Chesapeake & O. C. Co. v. Union Bank, 4 Cr. C. C. 75.

1. Challiss v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R., 16 Kans. 117.

2. DeVaraigne v. Fox, 2 Blatchf. C. C. 95.

3. New Orleans Pac. R. Co. v. Gay, 32 La. An. 471; Washington Cemetery v. Prospect Park & C. I. R. R., 68 N. Y. 591; State v. Rives, 5 Ired. (N. C.) L. 297; Quimby v. Vermont C. R. R., 23 Vt. 387.

4. Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288.

5. Quimby v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 23 Vt. 387.

6. Prather v. Western Union Tel. Co., 89 Ind. 501; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 1; Indianapolis, P. & C. R. R. Co. v. Rayl, 69 Ind. 424; New Orleans P. R. R. Co. v. Gay, 31 La. An. 430; Holt v. Somerville, 127 Mass. 408; Gardner v. Brookline, 127 Mass. 358; Dingley v. Boston, 100 Mass. 544; Washington Cemetery v. Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co., 68 N. Y. 591; Watson v. New York C. R. R. Co., 47 N. Y. 157; Brooklyn Park Commissioners v. Armstrong, 45 N. Y. 234; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 70; Rexford v. Knight, 11 N. Y. 308; Malone v. Toledo, 34 Ohio St. 541; Pennsylvania & N. Y. C. & R. R. Co. v. Billings, 94 Pa. St. 40; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 72.

7. Scott v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 322; s. c., 18 Am. Ry. Rep. 421.

8. Pennsylvania & N. Y. C. & R. R. Co. v. Billings, 94 Pa. St. 40; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 72, 76.

9. Oregon Cascade R. R. Co. v. Bailly, 3 Oreg. 164.

10. In Norton v. London & N. W. R. R. Co., L. R. 9 Ch. Div. 623; s. c., 26 Moak's Eng. Rep. 394, it was held that a railway company has no right to erect hoardings to prevent prospective rights being acquired for windows looking across the line of railway, if the land condemned was subject to an easement which will still remain subject thereto in the hands of the corporation appropriating it. Cincinnati & I. R. R. Co. v. Zinn, 18 Ohio St. 417.

is condemned, the paramount right is with the corporation condemned.<sup>1</sup> Although the land-owner still retains the fee and may use the land for any purpose not incompatible with the rights of the appropriator, his right must be used in strict subordination to the use of the land for the purposes for which it has been taken.<sup>2</sup> But while this is so, the company cannot use the lands condemned for any purpose not connected with the public use for which they were originally taken.<sup>3</sup> The easement acquired is not limited to the life of the charter, but is intended to be perpetual if the company or its grantees continue to occupy the land for the purpose for which it was taken.<sup>4</sup> Not only are the company entitled to what trees, sand, gravel, and stone from the land for purposes of construction,<sup>5</sup> but the title to the earth and minerals above the grade of the road, an excavation of which is necessary for the construction, passes to the company.<sup>6</sup>

XI. Contracts.—The parties to a judicial proceeding being entitled to waive any statutory or constitutional provision in their favor at pleasure, it is competent for parties to judicial proceedings to determine by agreement who shall act as commissioners for the assessment of damages, and although such agreement may not be binding to the court, yet if the court each appoint the persons named, the parties will be precluded from objecting;<sup>7</sup> or

1. Kansas C. R. R. Co. v. Allen, 22 Kan. 285; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 190.

2. Leavenworth, T. & S. W. R. Co. v. Paul, 28 Kan. 816; Kansas C. R. R. Co. v. Allen, 22 Kan. 285; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 190; Kane v. Mayor of Baltimore, 15 Md. 240; Cassidy v. Old Colony R. R. Co., 141 Mass. 174; s. c., 23 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 83; Lake Superior & M. R. R. Co. v. Greve, 17 Minn. 322; Clark v. Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co., 36 Mo. 203.

3. Cummins v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 397; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 86; West Union T. Co. v. Rich, 19 Kan. 517; s. c., 27 Am. Rep. 159; Cape Girardeau & B. M. & G. R. Co. v. Renfro, 58 Mo. 265; Oregon Cascade R. R. Co. v. Bailly, 3 Oreg. 164; Lance's Appeal, 55 Pa. St. 16.

4. Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R., 2 Iowa, 288.

5. Preston v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co. 11 Iowa, 15; Parsons v. Howe, 41 Me. 218; Chapin v. Sullivan R. R. Co., 39 N. H. 564; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 237; Blake v. Rich, 34 N. H. 282; Taylor v. New York & L. B. R. R. Co., 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 28; Prather v. Ellison, 10 Ohio, 396.

6. Evans v. Haefner, 29 Mo. 141.

7. In re New York L. & W. R. R. Co., 98 N. Y. 447. In this case the court say, "But the claim is made that the parties could not thus hamper and circumscribe the power of the court. It is undoubtedly true that the court at special term was not bound to appoint the three commissioners named by the parties. It could have refused to appoint them, and have left the parties either to abandon their agreement or to carry it out in some other way. But the agreement of the parties bound them, and concluded the court in that proceeding, and the court was bound as between the parties to observe, enforce, and carry out the agreement. Parties by their stipulations may in many ways make the law for any legal proceeding to which they are parties which not only binds them, but which the courts are bound to enforce. They may stipulate away statutory, and even constitutional, rights. They may stipulate for shorter limitations of time for bringing actions for the breach of contracts than are prescribed by the statutes, such limitations being frequently found in insurance policies. They may stipulate that the decision of a court shall be final, and thus waive the right of appeal; and all such stipulations not unreasonable, not against good morals, or sound public policy, have been and will be enforced; and generally, all stipulations made by parties for the government of their conduct, or the control of their rights, in the trial of a cause, or the conduct of a litigation, are enforced by the courts. Stedeker v. Bernard, 93 N. Y. 589; In re Cooper, 93 N. Y. 507; Steen v. Niagara Fire Ins. Co., 89 N. Y. 315; Hilton v. Fonda, 86 N. Y. 339; Baird v. Mayor of New York, 74 N. Y.

they may agree that the damages shall be assessed by the commissioners, and that there shall be no right of appeal whatever.<sup>1</sup> But by an agreement to sell, the seller waives his constitutional right to have his damages assessed and tendered before possession can be taken;<sup>2</sup> and the seller will not be entitled to obtain an injunction against the use of the property by the company under any circumstances.<sup>3</sup> If the company performs its part of a contract for a right of way, it may compel specific performance, and is entitled to an injunction to restrain an assessment of damages under condemnation proceedings.<sup>4</sup> If, from particular circumstances, an agreement as to crossing over a railroad is not carried into effect, the land-owner cannot, upon the ground of any general rights, claim to have other crossings made according to the discretion of the court, for that would be to ask the court to substitute a new agreement, not to enforce the performance of the original.<sup>5</sup> But, on the other hand, a railroad company cannot escape an obligation for the construction of crossings entered into by it as part of a contract for the right of way by condemning the right of way under the provision of the statute.<sup>6</sup>

Where an agreement entered into required that the company, in consideration of the withdrawal of certain claims for damages, should erect and maintain certain fences and crossings, it is a legitimate part of the record and not within the statute of frauds; and such agreement runs with the land, so as to be binding on the assignee and grantees of the railroad company.<sup>7</sup>

382; Wilkinson v. First National Fire Ins. Co., 72 N. Y. 499; s. c., 28 Am. Rep. 166; Ogdensburg & L. C. R. R. Co. v. Vermont & C. R. R. Co., 63 N. Y. 176; De Grove v. Metropolitan Ins. Co., 61 N. Y. 594; Phyfe v. Eimer, 45 N. Y. 102; Vose v. Cockcroft, 44 N. Y. 415; Allen v. Commissioner of New York, 38 N. Y. 312; Sherman v. McKeon, 38 N. Y. 266; Embury v. Conner, 3 N. Y. 511; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 525; Buel v. Trustees of Lockport, 3 N. Y. 197. If in an action not in its nature referable without the consent of the parties, they should agree upon a referee for the trial of the same, the court could not change the referee without their consent."

1. Botkin v. Livingston, 16 Kan. 39.

2. Baltimore, P. & C. R. R. Co. v. Highland, 48 Ind. 381.

3. A party owning lands entered into an agreement with a railway company by which the company was permitted to enter on his lands and build its track. It was agreed that the damages should be assessed by certain persons within sixty days, and that if payment was not made within a certain time, the land and fixtures should become the property of the party the same as if this agreement had not been made, and "said company had, without authority, and in its own wrong, entered upon such land, and made said road through the same." The estimate was made, but the payment was not made within the time, and an injunction was asked restraining the company from using the land. It was held, that an injunction was properly refused, and that the party should be left to his remedy at law. Coe v. Columbus, P. & I. R. R. Co., 10 Ohio St. 372; s. c., 75 Am. Dec. 518. The court said, "When a party voluntarily allows, for a stipulated consideration, such use of his property, he cannot by agreement secure a right to such extraordinary remedy as an injunction. The insertion in the agreement of a stipulation that, in the event of its non-fulfilment, the party thus using the property is to be regarded as using it wrongfully and without authority, cannot make the fact so, in view of such a remedy."

4. Chicago & S. W. R. R. Co. v. Swinney, 38 Iowa, 182.

5. Earl of Darnley v. London, C. & B. Ry. Co., L. R. 2 Eng. & Ir. Ap. Cas. 43.

6. Gray v. Burlington & M. R. R. Co., 37 Iowa, 119.

7. Huston v. Cincinnati & Z. R. R. Co., 21 Ohio St. 235. Compare Morss v. Boston & M. R. R., 56 Mass. (2 Cush.) 536.

In Michigan A. L. R. R. Co. v. Barns, 40 Mich. 383, it was held that a stipulation

An instrument by which a railroad company acknowledges itself bound unto certain persons, nine in number, "according to their relative and respective several interests in the penal sum of $3,000 to this express condition, that the said railroad company shall, on the assessment of damages to be made to secure the right of way for said railroad, pay to the obligees relatively and respectively damages, which may be assessed as aforesaid, then this bond to be void," is a several obligation upon which each of the obligees may sue, but none of them has a right to relative and respective shares of the penalties.<sup>1</sup>

XII. Transfer of Franchises.—In the absence of a provision in the charter authorizing, a transfer cannot be granted away by any act of the company, or transferred by any adverse process against it.<sup>2</sup> And where a subsequent statute is passed authorizing a transfer of the franchises of a corporation, a transfer effected by a majority only of the members of the company is void, if no power to amend was given by the charter to the majority.<sup>3</sup> And the transfer so effected is not binding, even upon members of the corporation by whom it is made.<sup>4</sup> If a railroad company fail to construct its road, the legislature may transfer the right of way to another company.<sup>5</sup> Even where a company is authorized, in general terms, to sell and transfer its property, the right to have the damages for an appropriation of land to its use assessed in a particular mode is not a franchise which passes to the purchaser, such privilege being personal to the company, and not transferable.<sup>6</sup> On a sale of the property of a railroad company, the purchaser is liable for payment of the compensation for property taken for the right of way.<sup>7</sup> Where the land-owner has received compensation for property taken, he has no interest by virtue of which he can call in question the validity of a transfer of the right of way.<sup>8</sup> fixing the amount of damages is not a judicial proceeding, but an agreement between the parties.

XIII. Abandonment of Public Use.—The diversion of property to a use, which is inconsistent with the purposes for which the property was originally taken, will operate as an abandonment.

1. St. Louis, A. & R. I. R. Co. v. Coul-tas, 33 Ill. 188.

2. Arthur v. Commercial & R. R. Bk., 17 Miss. (9 Smed. & M.) 394; s. c., 48 Am. Dec. 719; Stewart v. Jones, 40 Mo. 140; Susquehanna C. Co. v. Bonham, 9 Watts & S. (Pa.) 27; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 315.

3. New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Harris, 27 Miss. 517; Stevens v. Rutland & B. R. Co., 1 Am. L. Reg. 154; Ware v. Grand Junc. W. Co., 13 Eng. Ch. 131; s. c., 2 Russ. & M. 470.

4. New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Harris, 27 Miss. 517.

5. Noll v. Dubuque, B. & M. R. R. Co., 32 Iowa, 66.

6. Little Rock & F. S. R. R. Co. v. Mc-Gehee, 41 Ark. 202; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 82; State v. Morgan, 28 La. An. 482; Wilson v. Gaines, 103 U. S. (13 Otto) 417; bk. 26, L. ed. 401; East Tennessee, V. & G. R. R. Co. v. Hamblin, 102 U. S. (12 Otto) 273; bk. 26, L. ed. 152; Morgan v. Louisiana, 93 U. S. (3 Otto) 217; bk. 23, L. ed. 860.

7. Lake Erie & W. R. R. Co. v. Griffin, 92 Ind. 487; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 235; Gilman v. Sheboygan & F. R. Co., 37 Wis. 317; Pfeifer v. Sheboygan & F. R. R. Co., 18 Wis. 155.

8. Crolley v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. R. Co., 30 Minn. 541.

Thus a diversion of property taken for a railroad, to the purposes of trade and manufacture, will be sufficient, although the corporation derives advantages in its freighting business from the carriage of merchandise for its tenants.<sup>1</sup> A change in the line of a railroad operates as an abandonment of the land upon the line deviated from.<sup>2</sup> A plank road<sup>3</sup> or a canal<sup>4</sup> may be altered into a railroad without any abandonment. If a railroad company fails to complete its road within the time stipulated in its charter, it is considered to abandon its right of way.<sup>5</sup> And being bound to operate each part of its road, if it fails in this respect it forfeits its franchise, and will be held to so abandon its right of way.<sup>6</sup> But where an easement of a right of way is acquired by express grant, it is not extinguished by mere non-user.<sup>7</sup> Sale of the right of way to another company is not an abandonment.<sup>8</sup>

XIV. Procedure. — 1. How far Statutory Remedy exclusive. — The special remedy provided by statute for determining the compensation for property taken is not cumulative, but is exclusive;<sup>9</sup>

1. Proprietor of Locks, etc., v. Nashua & L. R. Co., 104 Mass. 1.

Where a building erected on land taken for the purposes of a railroad-station is used as such, but a private business is carried on by one who is the agent of the road, and receives his compensation in being allowed the use of the building in which railroad freight was stored, it is no such a diversion by the railway from the use for which the land was expropriated as to give the former owner any claim. Hoggatt v. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. R. Co., 34 La. An. 624.

A railroad company erected, on a part of the land which belonged to the complainant, and which the company had caused to be condemned for railroad purposes, a house for the accommodation of passengers waiting for the arrival of cars. Held, that though the house was sometimes used for a tavern and store, the complainant had no claim to the house by reason of an abandonment or cessation of the use for which it was built; nor was he entitled to an injunction to restrain the use of the building as a hotel. Hamilton v. Annapolis & E. R. R. Co., 1 Md. 553.

2. Stacey v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 27 Vt. 39. Compare City of Columbus v. Columbus & S. R. R. Co., 37 Ind. 294, where it was held that there was no abandonment if it appeared that the company might at any time be obliged, through other arrangements, to give up the new track and revert to a right of way.

3. Brainard v. Missisquoi R. R. Co., 48 Vt. 107.

4. Hatch v. Cincinnati & I. R. R. Co., 18 Ohio St. 92.

5. Noll v. Dubuque, B. & M. R. R. Co., 32 Iowa, 66

6. People v. Albany & V. R. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 261.

7. Logan v. Vernon, G. & R. R. R., 90 Ind. 552; Noll v. Dubuque, B. & M. R. R., 32 Iowa, 66; Barlow v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. R., 29 Iowa, 276; Bannon v. Angier, 84 Mass. (2 Allen) 128; Jennison v. Walker, 77 Mass. (11 Gray) 425; Arnold v. Stevens, 41 Mass. (24 Pick.) 106; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 305; White v. Crawford, 10 Mass. 183; Smiles v. Hastings, 24 Barb. (N. Y.) 44; Jewett v. Jewett, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 150; Platt v. Pennsylvania Co., 43 Ohio St. 228; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 129.

8. Noll v. Dubuque, B. & M. R. R., 32 Iowa, 66; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R., 2 Iowa, 288; Harrison v. Lexington & F. R. R., 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 470; Commonwealth v. Tenth Mass. T. Co., 59 Mass. (5 Cush.) 509; State v. Rives, 5 Ired. (N. C.) L. 297; Hatch v. Cincinnati & I. R. R., 18 Ohio St. 29; Junction R. R. v. Ruggles, 7 Ohio St. 1; Commonwealth v. Central Pass. R. Co., 52 Pa. St. 506; United States v. Little Miami, C. & X. R. R., 1 Fed. Rep. 700; s. c., 9 Rep. 676.

9. Johnson v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co., 32 Ark. 758; Cairo & F. R. R. Co. v. Turner, 31 Ark. 494; s. c., 23 Am. Rep. 564; Little Rock & F. S. R. R. Co. v. Dyer, 35 Ark. 360; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 33; Smith v. Chicago, A. & St. L. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 191; Indiana Cent. R. R. Co. v. Oakes, 20 Ind. 9; McCormack v. Terre Haute & R. R. R. Co., 9 Ind. 283; Leviston v. Junction R. R. Co., 7 Ind. 597; Lafayette & I. R. R. Co. v. Smith, 6 Ind. 249; Null v. White Water Valley Canal Co., 4 Ind. 431; Kimble v. White Water Valley Canal Co., 1 Ind. 285; Birge v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 65 Iowa, 440; s. c., but, where the company alone can take the initiative, the land-owner will not be deprived of his right of action at common law.<sup>1</sup> Where, however, the lands have already been taken or appropriated without authority, or have been injured by the construction of a public work, a statute subsequently passed which authorizes the appointment of commissioners to appraise the damages already sustained, and which makes the award and payment or tender of the sum awarded a bar to any action to recover damages, is unconstitutional and void, as depriving the owner of a right to trial by jury in a case in which it has been heretofore used.<sup>2</sup> It has been held that if the lands are entered upon without authority, or without payment of the compensation, the land-owner is not bound to resort to the statutory remedy, but may maintain an action at law, or a suit for injunction.<sup>3</sup> And the special remedy does not include cases of

- 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 414; Daniels v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 35 Iowa, 129; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 490; Boothby v. Andros-coggin & K. R. Co., 51 Me. 318; Gowen v. Penobscot R. R. Co., 44 Me. 140; Mason v. Kennebec & P. R. R. Co., 31 Me. 215; Spring v. Russell, 7 Me. (7 Greenl.) 273, 279; Baltimore & P. R. R. Co. v. Magruder, 34 Md. 79; s. c., 6 Am. Rep. 310; Heard v. Talbot, 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 113; Parker v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 113; s. c., 1 Am. Dec. 709; Babcock v. Western R. R. Corp., 50 Mass. (9 Metc.) 553; s. c., 43 Am. Dec. 411; Ashby v. Eastern R. R. Co., 46 Mass. (5 Metc.) 368; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 426; Heard v. Middlesex, 46 Mass. (5 Metc.) 81; Dodge v. Essex County, 44 Mass. (3 Metc.) 380; Sudbury Meadows v. Middlesex Canal, 40 Mass. (23 Pick.) 36; Stevens v. Middlesex Canal, 12 Mass. 466; Stowell v. Flagg, 11 Mass. 364; Teick v. Carver County, 11 Minn. 292; Memphis & C. R. R. Co. v. Payne, 37 Miss. 700; Brown v. Beatty, 34 Miss. 227; s. c., 69 Am. Dec. 389; Lindell's Adm'r v. Hannibal & St. J. R. R., 36 Mo. 543; Clark v. Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co., 36 Mo. 203; Perley v. Boston, C. & M. R. Co., 57 N. H. 212; Orr v. Quimby, 54 N. H. 590; Henniker v. Contoocook Valley R. R. Co., 29 N. H. 146; Dearborn v. Boston, C. & M. R. R., 24 N. H. 179; Clark v. Boston, C. & M. R. Co., 24 N. H. 114; Troy v. Cheshire R. R. Co., 23 N. H. 83; Aldrich v. Cheshire R. R. Co., 21 N. H. (1 Fost.) 359; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 272; 1 Am. Ry. Cas. 206; Lebanon v. Olcott, 1 N. H. 339; Calking v. Baldwin, 4 Wend. (N. Y.) 667; s. c., 21 Am. Dec. 168; Holloway v. University R. R. Co., 85 N. C. 452; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 36; McIntire v. Western N. C. R. R. Co., 67 N. C. 278; Mumford v. Terry, 2 Car. L. Repos. (N. C.) 308; Gillet v. Jones, 1 Dev. & B. (N. C.) 339; Gilliam v. Canaday, 11 Ired. (N. C.) L. 106; Little Miami R. R. Co. v. Whitacre, 8 Ohio St. 590; Hueston v. Eaton & H. R. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 685; Akron v. McComb, 18 Ohio, 229; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 453; Fehr v. Schuylkill Nav. Co., 69 Pa. St. 161; Koch v. Williamsport Water Co., 65 Pa. St. 288; Cumberland Valley R. R. Co. v. McLanahan, 59 Pa. St. 23; Philadelphia W. & B. R. Co. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103; McKinney v. Monongahela Nav. Co., 14 Pa. St. 65; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 517; Knorr v. Germantown & N. R. R. Co., 5 Whart. (Pa.) 256; Fuller v. Edings, 11 Rich. (S. C.) L. 239; McLauchlin v. Charlotte & S. C. R. R. Co., 5 Rich. (S. C.) L. 583; Colcough v. Nashville & N. W. R. R. Co., 2 Head (Tenn.), 172; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Benitos, 59 Tex. 326; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 122; Vermont Cent. R. R. Co. v. Baxter, 22 Vt. 365; Winchester & P. R. R. Co. v. Washington, 1 Rob. (Va.) 67; Smith v. Gould, 59 Wis. 631; s. c., 2 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 424; Sherman v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. Co., 40 Wis. 645; Kennedy v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 22 Wis. 581; Pettibone v. La Crosse & M. R. R. Co., 14 Wis. 443; Great Laxe Mining Co. v. Clague, L. R. 4 App. 115; Tuohey v. Great S. & W. R. R. Co., 10 Ir. C. L. 98; Moore v. Great S. & W. R. Co., 10 Ir. C. L. 46; Little v. Dublin & D. R. R. Co., 7 Ir. C. L. 82. Compare Atlantic & G. R. R. Co. v. Fuller, 48 Ga. 423; s. c., 11 Am. Ry. Rep. 403; Doe ex dem. v. Georgia R. Co., 1 Ga. 524; Loosemore v. Tiverton & N. D. R. Co., L. R. 22 Ch. Div. 25.
1. Ewer v. Lawrenceburgh & U. M. R. R. Co., 7 Ind. 711.
2. In re Townsend, 39 N. Y. 171.
3. Little Rock & F. S. R. R. Co. v. Dyer, 35 Ark. 360; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 33; Robinson v. Pittsburgh R. Co., 57 Cal. 417; Hooker v. New Haven & N. Co., 14 Conn. 146; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 477; 15 Conn. 312; South Carolina R. Co. v. Steiner, 44 Ga. 546; Chicago & I. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 90 Ill. 316; Peoria & R. I. R.

trespass committed by the company before its possession became lawful, or even at other times.<sup>1</sup>

2. Jurisdiction.—A federal circuit court has jurisdiction of a proceeding to acquire land for the use of the United States.<sup>2</sup> The preliminary proceedings before the commissioners are in nature of an inquest to ascertain the value of the property condemned, and are “not a suit at law, in the ordinary sense of those terms,” and consequently not “a suit” within the meaning of the removal acts, but when they are transferred to the district court by appeal from the award of the commissioners, they take, under the statutes of the States, the form of a suit at law, and may be transferred on any ground which gives the right to transfer a cause from a State to a federal court.<sup>3</sup> Corporations of the United States created by and organized under acts of Congress may remove suits brought against them on the ground that such are suits “arising under the laws of the United States;”<sup>4</sup> but an abuse of the right of eminent domain

Co. v. Seritz, 84 Ill. 135; Smith v. Chicago, A. & St. L. R. Co., 67 Ill. 191; Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. v. President of Knox College, 34 Ill. 195; Lafayette, M. & B. R. R. Co. v. Murdock, 68 Ind. 137; Cox v. Louisville, N. A. & C. R. R. Co., 48 Ind. 178; Graham v. Columbus & I. R. R. Co., 27 Ind. 260; Sidener v. Norristown, H. & St. L. T. Co., 23 Ind. 623; Lafayette Plank Co. v. New Albany & S. R. R. Co., 13 Ind. 90; s. c., 74 Am. Dec. 246; Evansville & C. R. R. Co. v. Dick, 9 Ind. 433; Holbert v. St. Louis, K. & N. R. R. Co., 45 Iowa, 23; Conger v. Burlington & S. W. R. R. Co., 41 Iowa, 419; Daniel v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 35 Iowa, 129; s. c., 14 Am. Rep. 490; 5 Am. Ry. Rep. 82; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 10 Iowa, 540; St. Joseph & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Callender, 13 Kans. 496; Missouri River, F. S. & G. R. R. Co. v. Owen, 8 Kans. 409; Murray v. Fitchburg R. R. Co., 130 Mass. 99; Blaisdell v. Winthrop, 118 Mass. 138; Mathews v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 434; Harrington v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 17 Minn. 215; Memphis & C. R. R. Co. v. Payne, 37 Miss. 700; Eaton v. Boston, C. & M. R. R. Co., 51 N. H. 504; s. c., 12 Am. Rep. 147; Smart v. Portsmouth & C. C. R. R. Co., 20 N. H. 233; Tinsman v. Belvidere, D. R. R. Co., 26 N. J. L. (2 Dutch.) 148; s. c., 64 Am. Dec. 565; Carpenter v. Oswego & S. R. R. Co., 24 N. Y. 655; People v. Law, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 494; Robinson v. New York & E. R. R. Co., 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 512; Wilmington & R. R. Co. v. High, 89 Pa. St. 282; Justice v. Nesquehoning Valley R. R. Co., 87 Pa. St. 28; McClinton v. Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404; Western Pa. R. R. Co. v. Johnston, 59 Pa. St. 290; Levering v. Philadelphia, G. & N. R. R. Co., 8 Watts, & S. (Pa.) 459; Buffalo, B. B. & C. R. R.

Co. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Rusch v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. Co., 54 Wis. 136; Gilman v. Sheboygan & F. du L. R. R. Co., 40 Wis. 653; Sherman v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R. Co., 40 Wis. 645; Ewing v. St. Louis, 72 U. S. (5 Wall.) 413; bk. 18, L. ed. 657.

1. Selma R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Keith, 53 Ga. 178; Stodghill v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co., 43 Iowa, 26; Missouri, K. & T. R. R. Co. v. Ward, 10 Kans. 352; State v. Armell, 8 Kans. 288; Parsons v. Howe, 41 Me. 218; Baltimore & P. R. R. Co. v. Magruder, 34 Md. 79; Proprietors of Locks & Canals v. Nashua & L. R. R. Co., 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 385; Mathews v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 434; Proetz v. St. Paul Water Co., 17 Minn. 163; Johnson v. Atlantic & St. L. R. R. Co., 35 N. H. 569; In re Townsend, 39 N. Y. 171; Blodgett v. Utica & B. R. R. Co., 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 580; Oregon & C. R. R. Co. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311; Whitaker v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 87 Pa. St. 34; McClinton v. Pittsburgh, Ft. W. & C. R. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404; Sabin v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 25 Vt. 363; Pomeroy v. Chicago & M. R. R. Co., 25 Wis. 641; Bell v. Midland R. R. Co., 10 C. B. (N. S.) 287.

2. Kohl v. United States, 91 U. S. (1 Otto) 367; bk. 23, L. ed. 449.

3. Union Pac. R. R. Co. v. Myers, 115 U. S. 1; bk. 29, L. ed. 319; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 324; Mississippi & Rum River Boom Co. v. Patterson, 98 U. S. (8 Otto) 403; bk. 25, L. ed. 206; Warren v. Wisconsin Valley R. R. Co., 6 Biss. C. C. 425; Patterson v. Mississippi & Rum River Boom Co., 3 Dill. C. C. 465; Northern Pac. Terminal Co. v. Lowensburgh, 18 Fed. Rep. 418. Compare United States v. Rock Island Bridge Co., 6 McL. C. C. 517.

4. Union Pac. R. R. Co. v. Myers, 115

by State authorities is not a violation of a contract within the meaning of the Federal Constitution, and gives no jurisdiction to the United States Supreme Court on that ground.<sup>1</sup> A statute which provides that the ordinary courts of law shall have jurisdiction of claims for damages for lands taken does not mean courts where only legal as distinguished from equitable remedies are administered, but includes courts of equity.<sup>2</sup>

3. Commencement of Proceedings. — a. Who may commence. — The proceedings being entirely statutory, the statutory provisions must be strictly followed. In some States, the right to commence is given to either party.<sup>3</sup> In others, the right to commence is only given to the party taking.<sup>4</sup>

b. Notice. — (1) Necessity for. — Generally, notice to the landowner is required before his property can be taken.<sup>5</sup> The notice is sometimes directed by statute to be given to "the persons interested," and a mortgagee will be included within these terms;<sup>6</sup> and also infants, who with their mother possess an estate in common, a notice to the mother alone being insufficient.<sup>7</sup> It has

U. S. 1; bk. 29, L. ed. 319; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 324.

1. Mississippi & Rum River Boom Co. v. Patterson, 98 U. S. (8 Otto) 403; bk. 25, L. ed. 206; Mill v. St. Clair County, 49 U. S. (8 How.) 569; bk. 12, L. ed. 1201; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12, L. ed. 535.

2. Austin v. Rutland R. R. Co., 17 Fed. Rep. 466.

3. Cairo & F. R. R. Co. v. Trout, 32 Ark. 17; Marion & M. R. R. Co. v. Ward, 9 Ind. 123; Republican Valley R. R. Co. v. Fink, 18 Neb. 82; Pittsburgh R. R. Co. v. Commonwealth, 101 Pa. St. 583.

4. Kansas P. R. R. Co. v. Streeter, 8 Kans. 133; Northern Pacific R. R. Co. v. Barnesville & M. R. R. Co., 2 McCr. C. C. 203; s. c., 4 Fed. Rep. 298; 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 8; Lawrence R. R. Co. v. Williams, 35 Ohio St. 168; International & G. N. R. v. Benitos, 59 Tex. 326; Sherman v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R., 40 Wis. 645; s. c., 13 Am. Ry. Rep. 459.

5. Curran v. Shattuck, 24 Cal. 427; Bowman v. Venice & C. R. Co., 102 Ill. 459; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 347; Chicago & A. R. R. v. Smith, 78 Ill. 96; Peoria & R. I. R. R. v. Warner, 61 Ill. 52; s. c., 12 Am. Ry. Rep. 444; Johnson v. Joliet & C. R. R. Co., 23 Ill. 202; Junction C. & F. K. R. Co. v. Silver, 27 Kans. 741; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 324; Missouri R., F. S. & J. K. R. R. v. Shepard, 9 Kans. 647; Tracey v. Elizabethtown, L. & B. S. R. R. Co., 80 Ky. 259; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 407; Morgan, L. & F. R. R. Co. v. Bourdier, 1

McGloin (La.), 232; Atlantic & St. L. R. R. Co. v. County Commissioners, 51 Me. 36; Harlow v. Pike, 3 Me. 438; Baltimore v. Grand Lodge, 44 Md. 436; Morgan v. Chicago & N. E. R. R., 36 Mich. 428; Lohman v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 174; New Orleans, M. & C. R. R. Co. v. Frederick, 46 Miss. 1; Whitcher v. Benton, 48 N. H. 157; State v. Orange, 32 N. J. L. (3 Vr.) 49; Stuart v. Palmer, 74 N. Y. 183; People v. Kniskern, 54 N. Y. 52; Cruger v. Hudson R. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 100; Wallkill V. R. R. Co. v. Norton, 12 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 317; Norton v. Wallkill Valley R. R., 63 Barb. (N. Y.) 77; People v. Tallman, 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 222; Polly v. Saratoga & W. R. R. Co., 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 449; People v. Supervisors of Allegheny Co., 36 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 544; In re New York L. & W. Ry. Co., 29 Hun (N. Y.), 602; People v. Lockport & B. R. R., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 211; Anderson v. Commissioners, 12 Ohio St. 635; O'Hara v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 25 Pa. St. 445; Warwick Inst. for Savings, v. Providence, 12 R. I. 144; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Pittsburgh, W. & K. R. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444; Seifert v. Brooks, 34 Wis. 443; Hood v. Finch, 3 Wis. 381; Burns v. Multnomah R. R. Co., 8 Sawy. C. C. 543; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 289; 15 Fed. Rep. 177; Great Falls Manuf. Co. v. Garland, Attorney-General, 25 Fed. Rep. 521; The J. W. French, 13 Fed. Rep. 916.

6. Pratt v. Bright, 29 N. J. Eq. (2 Stew.) 128; s. c., 19 Am. Ry. Rep. 95.

7. New Orleans, M. & C. R. R. Co. v. Frederic, 46 Miss. 1.

been held that third persons holding liens, by virtue of judgments recovered, ought to have notice.<sup>1</sup>

(2) Requisites and Sufficiency.—In condemning land, notice must be given to the owner by name.<sup>2</sup> A notice to the agent of a land-owner for the sale of lands is not sufficient.<sup>3</sup> It is not, however, essential that there should be a personal service of the notice.<sup>4</sup> Constructive notice by publication is sufficient,<sup>5</sup> but notice sent by mail to an improper address confers no jurisdiction,<sup>6</sup> and if the notice name only a life-tenant who is dead, the proceeding will not be binding upon the remainder-man.<sup>7</sup> A notice which states that the petitioner will make application to the judge of the circuit court at a certain time and place, and the object sought to be accomplished, precisely and plainly, and which describes the land which is the subject of the proceeding, is sufficient.<sup>8</sup> The quantity and location of the land required must be set out with precision.<sup>9</sup> The notice may, however, refer to a plan or map filed by the company.<sup>10</sup> The insufficiency of the notice may be waived by the land-owner appearing and subjecting to the proceeding.<sup>11</sup> The sheriff conducting the condemnation proceedings is not a party, and may serve the notice.<sup>12</sup> Without a sufficient notice the court cannot acquire jurisdiction of the proceedings,<sup>13</sup> but the tribunal to which application is made is, in general, the judge of the sufficiency, and its decision will not be reversed on appeal.<sup>14</sup>

4. Parties.—The owners of the whole tract sought to be condemned, although having separate interests in it, may be made parties in the same proceedings.<sup>15</sup> Within the term "owners," all persons vested with the several interests, which constitute the entire estate, are included.<sup>16</sup> Thus the owner of an estate in fee,

1. Watson v. New York C. R. R. Co., 6 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 91.

2. Birge v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 65 Iowa, 440; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 291.

3. Memphis, K. & C. R. R. Co. v. Parsons R. R. Co., 26 Kans. 503; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 379.

4. Harper v. Lexington & O. R. R. Co., 2 Dana (Ky.), 227.

5. Mason v. Messenger, 17 Iowa, 261; Missouri R. F. S. & G. R. R. v. Shepard, 9 Kans. 647; Salem v. Eastern R. R., 98 Mass. 431; Walker v. Boston & M. R. R., 59 Mass. (3 Cush.) 1; Weir v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R., 18 Minn. 155; Wilkin v. St. Paul & P. R. R., 16 Minn. 271; New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. v. Hemphill, 35 Miss. 17; Stuart v. Palmer, 74 N. Y. 183; In re Empire City Bank, 18 N. Y. 199; Polly v. Saratoga & W. R. R., 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 449; Owners, etc., v. Albany, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 374; Cupp v. Seneca Co., 19 Ohio St. 173; Baltimore & O. R. R. v. Pittsburg, W. & K. R. R., 17 W. Va. 812.

6. Morgan v. Chicago & N. E. R. R. Co., 36 Mich. 428.

7. Chicago & A. R. R. v. Smith, 78 Ill. 96.

8. Quincy & P. R. R. Co. v. Taylor, 43 Mo. 35.

9. Vail v. Morris & E. R. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. (1 Zab.) 189; Strang v. Beloit & M. R. R. Co., 16 Wis. 635.

10. Hazen v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 574.

11. Williams v. Hartford & N. H. R. R. Co., 13 Conn. 397. In this case the appraisers gave notice in writing the day previous to the time appointed. The party interested resided within eighty rods of the place, and, instead of requesting delay, returned a written answer protesting against the appraisers' authority to act, and declared that he would not appear. The court held that the notice was sufficient in point of time.

12. Cedar Rapids, I. F. & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 60 Iowa, 35; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 522.

13. In re New York & O. M. R. R. Co., 40 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 335; Rheiner v. Union D. S. R. & T. Co., 31 Minn. 289; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 373.

14. Coster v. New Jersey R. R. Co., 24 N. J. L. (4 Zab.) 730.

15. Evergreen Cemetery Assoc. v. Beecher, 53 Conn. 551; McKee v. St. Louis, 17 Mo. 184.

16. Gerrard v. Omaha, N. & B. H. R. R. Co., 14 Neb. 270; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 423; Philadelphia, W. & B.

and a person who has given a bond for a deed, may both join in a petition;<sup>1</sup> and the mortgagee ought to be joined in proceeding against the mortgagor.<sup>2</sup> When lands held in common are required, it is necessary to have all of the tenants in common before the court.<sup>3</sup> Lands purchased by partners with partnership funds, and not needed for the payment of debts, being held by the partners as tenants in common, a petition for damages should be brought in the joint names of the partners or of the surviving partner and the administrator of the partner deceased.<sup>4</sup> The landlord and the tenant of a property have distinct estates, and a proceeding against one will not affect the other,<sup>5</sup> nor will proceedings against the holder of contingent dower interest or a tenant-at-will, bind the owner.<sup>6</sup> Where the land-owner dies during the proceedings, the revival must be had in the names of the heirs or devisees;<sup>7</sup> and the guardian of minor children of a deceased land-owner is the proper person to sue for damages although the property has been sold after the damages were taken.<sup>8</sup> Where proceedings are brought against an infant for the condemnation of his land, a guardian ad litem must be appointed to attend to his interest.<sup>9</sup> The trustee, and not the cestui que trust, is the proper party to bring proceedings for the recovery of damages.<sup>10</sup> When a railroad company contracts with a person to furnish the right of way, at the latter's expense, but purchased and condemned in the name of the company, the company is the only responsible party.<sup>11</sup>

5. Pleading.—a. Petition or Complaint.—(1) Necessary Averments.—A petition for a condemnation of lands must allege that the taking is necessary for public use,<sup>12</sup> and set out the corporate

R. R. Co. v. Williams, 54 Pa. St. 103; Colcough v. Nashville & N. W. R. R. Co., 2 Head (Tenn.), 171.

1. Proprietors of Locks & Canals v. Nashua & L. R. R. Co., 64 Mass. (10 Cush.) 385.

2. Wilson v. European & N. A. R. R. Co., 67 Me. 358; s. c., 16 Am. Ry. Rep. 357; Michigan, A. L. R. R. Co. v. Barnes, 40 Mich. 383; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 38 N. J. Eq. (11 Stew.) 132; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 78; Lehigh C. & N. Co. v. Central R. R. Co., 35 N. J. Eq. (8 Stew.) 379; s. c., 12 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 416; Davis v. La Crosse & M. R. R. Co., 12 Wis. 16.

But the mortgagee of the franchises and easements of a railway company need not be made a party to a proceeding to condemn a right of way across its track for a street, if the track is not disturbed, and the company is left in control of the road. Grand Rapids v. Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co., 58 Mich. 642.

3. Grand Rapids, N. & L. S. R. R. Co. v. Alley, 34 Mich. 16, 18; Harrisburg, P. M. & L. Railroad Co. v. Bucher, 7 Watts (Pa.), 33. Compare Bowman v. Venice & C. R. R. Co., 102 Ill. 459; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 338, where it was held that all the tenants in common need not be made parties, except the rights of one depend on the disposition of the case as to the others.

4. Whitman v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 133.

5. Storm Lake v. Iowa Falls & S. C. R. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 218; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 420; Voegtly v. Pittsburgh & F. W. R. R. Co., 2 Grant Cas. (Pa.) 243.

6. Toledo, A. A. & G. T. R. R. Co. v. Dunlap, 47 Mich. 456; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 378.

7. Peoria & R. I. R. Co. v. Rice, 75 Ill. 329; Valley Ry. Co. v. Bohm, 29 Ohio St. 633.

8. Mumma v. Harrisburg, P. M. J. & L. R. R. Co., 1 Pears. (Pa.) 65.

9. Hotchkiss v. Auburn & R. R. R. Co., 36 Barb. (N. Y.) 600.

10. Davis v. Charles R. B. R. R. Co., 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 506.

11. Buchanan Co. Bank v. Cedar Rapids, I. F. & N. W. R. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 494; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 417.

12. Smith v. Chicago & W. I. R. R., 105 Ill. 511; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 384; Atchison & D. R. Co. v. Lyon, 24 Kans. 744; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 295; Grand Rapids N. & L. S. R. R. v. Van Driele, 24 Mich. 409; Valley R. R. Co. v. Bohm, 34 Ohio St. 114; s. c., 21 Am.

existence and the right to exercise the power of eminent domain.<sup>1</sup> Inability to acquire the lands by purchase or voluntary grant has in many cases been held to be a jurisdictional fact which must be set out in the petition.<sup>2</sup> The complaint must be in writing,<sup>3</sup> and should be verified,<sup>4</sup> and should set out the names of the owners,<sup>5</sup> and the extent of the lands intended to be condemned.<sup>6</sup> And where a petition is filed to acquire title to lands used as a street, it must disclose whether the lands are intended to be appropriated as the property of the respondent, or whether they were included in a petition solely by reason of his ownership of the premises fronting on the street,<sup>7</sup> or, in the case of other lands, whether the injury was occasioned by the passing through of an appropriation of the claimant's land, or the taking of timber or other material.<sup>8</sup> It is not necessary that there should be a distinct allegation of the value of the lands secreted for condemnation.<sup>9</sup> Where the proceedings are instituted by the heir of a party deceased, he must allege that his ancestor was the owner at the time of the answer.<sup>10</sup>

(2) Description of Premises.—In a petition for the condemnation of lands, it is essential that the premises intended to be taken should be so described that there can be no question as to their identity.<sup>11</sup>

Ry. Rep. 30; Shick v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 1 Pears. (Pa.) 259; South Carolina R. R. Co. v. Blake, 9 Rich. (S. C.) L. 228.

1. Atkinson v. Marietta & C. R. R. Co., 15 Ohio St. 21.

2. Bowman v. Venice & C. R. R. Co., 102 Ill. 454; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 338; Booker v. Venice & C. R. R. Co., 101 Ill. 333; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 357; Chicago & M. L. S. R. R. Co. v. Sanford, 23 Mich. 418; Cunningham v. Pacific R. R. Co., 61 Mo. 33; Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co. v. Muder, 49 Mo. 165; In re New York Cent. R. R. Co., 67 Barb. (N. Y.) 426; United States v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 9 Sawy. C. C. 61; s. c., 16 Fed. Rep. 524.

3. Church v. Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co., 70 Ind. 161; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 198.

4. Reitenbaugh v. Chester Valley R. R. Co., 21 Pa. St. 100.

5. California S. R. R. Co. v. Colton, L. & W., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 194. Not reported, but affirmed on authority of Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Kimball, 61 Cal. 90. See 64 Cal. xix; Reitenbaugh v. Chester Valley R. Co., 21 Pa. St. 100.

6. Spofford v. Bucksport & B. R. R. Co., 66 Me. 26; Chicago, M. & L. S. R. R. Co. v. Sanford, 23 Mich. 418; In re New York C. & H. R. R. Co., 90 N. Y. 342; s. c., 18 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 542; In re New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 70 N. Y. 191; s. c., 18 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 395; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Porter, 29 Pa. St. 165; Ohio River R. R. Co. v. Harness, 24 W. Va. 511.

7. Mansfield C. & L. M. R. Co. v. Clark, 23 Mich. 519.

8. Martinsville & F. R. R. Co. v. Bridges, 6 Ind. 400.

9. United States v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 16 Fed. Rep. 524; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 23.

10. Church v. Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co., 70 Ind. 161; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 198.

11. Toledo, A. A. & N. M. R. R. v. Munson, 57 Mich. 42; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 410; Chicago & M. L. S. R. R. Co. v. Sanford, 23 Mich. 418; West v. West & E. R. R. Co., 61 Miss. 536; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 402; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Porter, 29 Pa. St. 165; Hussner v. Brooklyn City R. R. Co., 96 N. Y. 18; s. c., sub nom. Brooklyn City R. R. Co. v. Hussner, 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 265; In re New York C. & H. R. R. Co., 90 N. Y. 342; Ohio River R. R. Co. v. Harness, 24 W. Va. 511; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 405.

In a proceeding by the land-owner for the assessment of damages against a railway company which had constructed its line across his farm, the application particularly described the whole tract of land, but that part of it occupied by the defendant's railway was described as "extending diagonally through said tract of land from a point near the north-east corner to a point near the south-west corner." Held, that such description is fatally defective on demurrer. Indianapolis & V. R. R. Co. v. Newsom, 54 Ind. 121.

In a proceeding by a railroad company

(3) Joinder of Claims.—A petition for damages or the taking of land may have joined with it a prayer for damages for previous trespasses.<sup>1</sup> A proceeding by one company to acquire the right to cross the track of another company may be united with a proceeding to acquire land of such other company for track and depot purposes, and proceeding to condemn two or more parcels for the purpose of the right of way may also be united.<sup>2</sup> But it has been held that a claim for damages for taking a street is a separate cause of action from a claim subsequently arising by injury to the same property.<sup>3</sup>

b. Answers.—It has been held that in the absence of a statutory provision requiring the filing of an answer, such a filing was unauthorized, and the answer, in proceedings to condemn lands, could be stricken from the files.<sup>4</sup>

c. Cross-Petition.—In proceedings by a railroad company to under the Ohio Railroad Act of 1884, authorizing an appropriation of lands on which to construct a railroad, the company described the land to be appropriated as "fifty feet wide on each side of said railroad, as last surveyed through subdivision lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, fractional section of township 10 south, of range 7 east, commencing on the north bounds thereof, thence westerly and southerly on and near the boundaries thereof to a point in the west line of said No. 4 near the north-west corner; also lots Nos. 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15, of the subdivision of river-tract No. 87, in said county." It was held that said description was sufficiently certain in the appropriation proceedings. Cleveland & Toledo R. R. Co. v. Prentice, 13 Ohio St. 373.

In a petition and warrant for the assessment of damages occasioned by the crossing of one railroad by another, the place injured is sufficiently described as a "part of the land and bridge heretofore held and occupied by the petitioners for railroad purposes, measuring about five rods in width, and lying a little west of the draw in their bridge from Charlestown to Somerville, and nearly contiguous thereto," with a reference to the field location and actual construction of its road. Grand Junction R. R. & D. Co. v. County of Middlesex, 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 553.

Where condemnation notices describe the land as "a certain number of feet on each side of the centre-line of the railroad," as the same is located, staked, and marked, this description was sufficient; and if any other parts of the description differed therefrom, they must yield to the visible designation. Lower v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 563; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 17.

1. Robertson v. Central R. R. Co., 57 Iowa, 376; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 420. In this case the plaintiff prayed that the court "will order a judgment decree . . . that defendant shall pay the damages sustained by reason of said trespass and usurpation, and for right of way over said lands, to the sum of a thousand dollars. The court held that this was a claim not merely for compensation for the taking of the right of way, but also for damages for trespass."

2. California S. R. R. Co. v. Southern Pacific R. R. Co., 65 Cal. 294.

3. Hall v. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. R. Co., 1 Disney (Ohio), 58.

4. Smith v. Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co., 105 Ill. 511. In this case the court say: "It will be seen that, although the statute is very minute in all its details, specifically setting forth every step to be taken in the progress of a cause, from its inception to its final determination, yet it nowhere contains the slightest allusion to an answer by the defendants. Nor can we, on general principles, conceive the least necessity for such a pleading. The statute having determined specifically what facts must appear on the face of the petition, the court or judge is powerless to take any action in the premises, until a petition is filed containing the statutory requisites, for it is by the petition jurisdiction is obtained of the subject-matter of the suit.

"Every petition, properly framed, must contain all the statutory requirements, and will, therefore, of necessity, show, in every case where such petition is sufficient to confer jurisdiction, the authority of the company to take the specific land sought to be taken, and the object or purpose for which it is required; and from this state of facts it must clearly appear that the use for which it is sought to be condemned is a public one. If the right to take the land at all must affirmatively appear upon the face of the petition itself, as we hold it must, what necessity is there for an answer at all?" See also Jefferson & P. R. R. Co. v. Hazeur, 7 La. An. 182, where it was held that it was not necessary for the owner to raise an objection in his pleading that the company has land enough, and the condemnation of his property is unnecessary.

condemn lands, the damages must be confined to the tract named in the petition, except the owner file a cross-petition.<sup>1</sup>

d. Amendment.—The court may, during the pendency of the proceedings to condemn land, permit the company to amend the description of the land intended to be condemned.<sup>2</sup> But where proceedings are commenced under that statute they cannot by amendment be changed into a proceeding under another act,<sup>3</sup> a petition for the assessment of damages by the construction of a railroad, being in the nature of a civil action over which the commissioners exercised judicial power. The commissioners will hold an amendment after hearing from the parties and before issuing an award for a jury.<sup>4</sup> But they cannot amend their record by inserting as parties, names not embraced in the petition.<sup>5</sup>

6. Practice.—Proceedings to condemn land are special; and in some States, unlike ordinary trials of law, the inquest may be conducted by commissioners or by a jury without aid of counsel.<sup>6</sup> Land-owners may have the preliminary question of the necessity for the taking first tried.<sup>7</sup> But the existence of the power to take private property for public use may be controverted at any stage of the proceedings.<sup>8</sup> But it has been held that the property-owner cannot dispute the legality of the corporation.<sup>9</sup> It is not essential that there should be a separate trial to each owner of an estate or interest in each parcel.<sup>10</sup> And if different parties have several and distinct interests in the same tract, the court may order the damages to be assessed by the same or different jury.<sup>11</sup> The court may, in its discretion, limit the number of witnesses called upon the question of the value of the premises.<sup>12</sup> The courts are not unanimous on the question which of the parties shall open and close. Where the land-owner is the real actor, it has been held that he should be given the opening and closing of the argument, no matter which party has initiated the proceed-

1. Chicago & I. R. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 90 Ill. 316; Mix v. Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co., 67 Ill. 319.

An averment in answer to the petition for the condemnation of a particular lot, that this and certain other specified lots lying together constituted the owner's homestead, and that he occupied them as such, is sufficient to raise the question of injury to the contiguous lots. Port Huron & S. W. R. Co. v. Voorheis, 50 Mich. 506.

2. Hunt v. New York C. & St. L. R. R. Co., 99 Ind. 593; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 436.

3. Peoria, P. & J. R. R. Co. v. Black, 58 Ill. 33. See also, In re New York & W. S. R. R. Co., 89 N. Y. 453; reversing s. c., 27 Hun (N. Y.), 57.

4. Grand Junction R. R. & D. Co. v. Middlesex Commrs., 80 Mass. (14 Gray) 553.

5. Littlefield v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 65 Me. 248; s. c., 10 Am. Ry. Rep. 104.

6. Port Huron & S. W. R. R. Co. v. Voorheis, 50 Mich. 506.

7. South Carolina R. R. Co. v. Blake, 9 Rich (S. C.), L. 228.

8. City of Hopkins v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co., 79 Mo. 98; s. c., sub nom. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co. v. City of Hopkins, 7 Am. & Eng. Corp. Cas. 953.

Parties joined by the company in proceedings, as having an interest in the land, may by certiorari dispute the right of the company to institute the proceedings, without showing that they have any interest. State v. Hudson T. R. Co., 46 N. J. L. (17 Vr.) 289; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 204.

9. Niemeyer v. Little Rock, J. R. R. Co., 43 Ark. 111; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 174.

10. Kohl v. United States, 91 U. S. (1 Otto) 367; bk. 23 L. ed. 449.

11. Bowman v. Venice & C. R. R. Co., 102 Ill. 459; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 338.

12. Everett v. Union Pacific R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 243; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 203; Sheldon v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. R. Co., 29 Minn. 318.

ings.<sup>1</sup> And it has been held that the land-owner has the affirmative of the issue as to the value of the land, and ought to be allowed to open and close.<sup>2</sup> In other cases the party taking the initiative has been held entitled to open and close.<sup>3</sup> In New York the right is within the discretion of the commissioners, and their decision is final.<sup>4</sup>

7. Jury. — a. Right to Jury Trial. — Proceedings in exercise of the power of eminent domain are not "suits at common law" for which "the right of trial by jury shall be preserved" as required by the constitutional provision, and hence a statute providing for the assessment of damages by a tribunal other than a jury is not unconstitutional.<sup>5</sup> But the right of a trial by jury has in some States been secured by constitutional amendment.<sup>6</sup> And where the constitution grants the right it is generally held to imply a jury of twelve men, who must agree unanimously upon a verdict.<sup>7</sup>

1. Springfield & M. R. R. Co. v. Rhea, 44 Ark. 258; Indiana, B. & W. R. R. Co. v. Cook, 102 Ind. 133.

2. Right of Land-Owner to open and close. — Indiana, B. & W. R. R. Co. v. Cook, 102 Ind. 133; Swinney v. Ft. Wayne, M. & C. R. R. Co., 59 Ind. 205; Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co. v. Horn, 41 Ind. 479; Evansville & C. R. R. Co. v. Miller, 30 Ind. 209; McMahon v. Cincinnati & C. S. L. R. R. Co., 5 Ind. 413; Burt v. Wigglesworth, 117 Mass. 302; Connecticut R. R. Co. v. Clapp, 55 Mass. (1 Cush.) 559; Winnisimmet Co. v. Grueby, 111 Mass. 543; Minnesota V. R. R. Co. v. Doran, 17 Minn. 188; Omaha, N. & B. H. R. v. Umstead, 17 Neb. 459; Oregon & C. R. R. v. Barlow, 3 Oreg. 311.

3. Right of Party taking the Initiative to open and close. — Harrison v. Young, 9 Ga. 359; McReynolds v. Burlington O. R. R. Co., 106 Ill. 152; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 172; Charleston & S. R. R. Co. v. Blake, 12 Rich. (S. C.) L. 634; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Pittsburgh, W. & K. R. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444.

4. Albany N. R. R. Co. v. Lansing, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 68.

5. Assessment of Damages by a Commission. — Montgomery S. R. v. Sayre, 72 Ala. 443; Heyneman v. Blake, 19 Cal. 579; Koppikus v. State Capitol Commissioners, 16 Cal. 248; Whiteman v. Wilmington & S. R. Co., 2 Harr. (Del.) 514; s. c., 33 Am. Dec. 411; Johnson v. Joliet & C. R. R., 23 Ill. 202; Hymes v. Aydelott, 26 Ind. 431; Norristown, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Burket, 26 Ind. 53; Dronberger v. Reed, 11 Ind. 420; Lake Erie, W. & St. L. R. R. v. Heath, 9 Ind. 558; Tharp v. Witham, 65 Iowa, 566; People v. Michigan S. R. R. Co., 3 Mich. 496; Bruggerman v. True, 25 Minn. 123; Ames v. Lake Superior & M. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 241; New Orleans B. R. V. & M. R. R. Co. v. Drake, 60 Miss. 621; Louisiana & F. P. R. Co. v. Pickett, 25 Mo. 535; In re Mount Washington, 35

N. H. 134; Baker v. Holderness, 26 N. H. 110; Dalton v. North Hampton, 19 N. H. 362; Backus v. Lebanon, 11 N. H. 19; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 466; Scudder v. Trenton D. Falls Co., 1 N. J. Eq. (1 Saxt.) 694; s. c., 23 Am. Dec. 756; People v. Smith, 21 N. Y. 595; Beekman v. Saratoga & S. R. R. Co., 3 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 45; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 679; Livingston v. Mayor of N. Y., 8 Wend. (N. Y.) 86; s. c., 22 Am. Dec. 622; McIntire v. Western N. C. R. R. Co., 67 N. C. 278; Raleigh & G. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 2 Dev. & Bat. (N. C.) L. 451; Willyard v. Hamilton, 7 Ohio, 111, pt. 2; s. c., 30 Am. Dec. 195; Kramer v. Cleveland & P. R. R. Co., 5 Ohio St. 140; Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Lutheran Congregation, 53 Pa. St. 445; Houston, T. & B. R. R. Co. v. Milburn, 34 Tex. 224; Buffalo, Bayou, B. & C. R. R. Co. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Gold v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 19 Vt. 478; West River Bridge Co. v. Dix, 47 U. S. (6 How.) 507; bk. 12 L. ed. 535; Vanhorne's Lessee v. Dorrance, 2 U. S. (2 Dall.) 304; bk. 1 L. ed. 391; Bonaparte v. Camden & Amboy R. R. Co., 1 Bald. C. C. 205; Great Falls Manuf. Co. v. Garland, 25 Fed. Rep. 521.

6. Assessment of Damages by Jury. — Right to. — Whitehead v. Arkansas C. R. R., 28 Ark. 460; Weber v. County of Santa Clara, 59 Cal. 265; Mitchell v. Illinois & St. L. R. R., 68 Ill. 286; People v. Roberts, 62 Ill. 38; s. c., 7 Am. Ry. Rep. 445; Cook v. South Park Commissioners, 61 Ill. 115; Rich v. Chicago, 59 Ill. 286; Louisville, N. A. & St. L. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Dryden, 39 Ind. 393; Lake Erie, W. & St. L. R. Co. v. Heath, 9 Ind. 558; Paul v. Detroit, 32 Mich. 108; Chicago & M. L. S. R. R. v. Sanford, 23 Mich. 418; Isom v. Mississippi C. R. R. Co., 36 Miss. 300; In re Towanda Bridge Co., 91 Pa. St. 216; Williams v. Pittsburgh, 83 Pa. St. 71; Pusey's Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 67.

7. Whitehead v. Arkansas C. R. R. Co., 28 Ark. 460; Mitchell v. Illinois & St. L.

But in New York it has been held that the legislature may constitute a jury of a less number, and authorize it to decide by a majority vote.<sup>1</sup>

b. Selection, Qualification, and Empanelling. — Generally, the selection and qualification of jury in eminent domain proceedings are governed by the same rules as govern the qualification and selection in ordinary actions at law. In some cases, however, it is required that the jurors must be free-holders;<sup>2</sup> and it has been that if the juror holds the title to lands under bond, conditioned that the obligor shall convey a fee title to the purchaser upon the payment of the purchase money; this is sufficient to constitute him a free-holder.<sup>3</sup> By a Massachusetts statute, where a railroad is laid out through a town, the jurors are to be taken from "three nearest towns not interested," and this is to be interpreted to mean the three towns nearest to, and exclusive of, the town in which the land lies,<sup>4</sup> without regard to the constitution of the land within that town;<sup>5</sup> and when the several applications are made at the same time by owners of lands in different towns, the jurors are to be taken from the three towns nearest to the town in which the land or either of the applicants are situated; and when a single application is made by one who owns lands in different towns, the jurors are to be taken from the three towns nearest either of the towns in which the lands are situated.<sup>6</sup> The notice of the drawing may be given to the owner by newspaper advertisement.<sup>7</sup> A drawing required by statute to be made in the presence of the court is evidence, if not so made;<sup>8</sup> and if the statute direct that a precept be issued to a sheriff to summon a jury, the sheriff cannot select a jury from a list of names prepared by his deputy.<sup>9</sup> The jurors may serve in different inquisitions; and where the defendant refuses to strike off the names of jurors, the marshal may do so in his stead.<sup>10</sup> But in filling the panel of a struck jury, the sheriff cannot take as a juror a person whose name has been stricken off.<sup>11</sup> A mere irregularity in the swearing of the jury will not warrant the setting aside of the proceedings;<sup>12</sup> and if the party fail to take objection to the swearing at the time, he will be deemed to have waived no irregularity.<sup>13</sup> There is no

R. R. Co., 68 Ill. 286; Chicago & M. L. S. R. R. Co. v. Sanford, 23 Mich. 418; Lamb v. Lane, 4 Ohio St. 167.

1. Cruger v. Hudson R. R. Co., 12 N. Y. 190.

2. Louisville, N. A. & St. L. A. L. R. R. Co. v. Dryden, 39 Ind. 393; Peninsular R. R. Co. v. Howard, 20 Mich. 18; New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Hemphill, 35 Miss. 17.

3. New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Hemphill, 35 Miss. 17.

4. Meacham v. Fitchburg R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 291.

5. Reed v. Hanover B. R. Co., 105 Mass. 303.

6. Wyman v. Lexington & W. C. R. R. Co., 54 Mass. (13 Metc.) 316.

7. Polly v. Saratoga & W. R. R. Co., 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 449.

8. Convers v. Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co., 18 Mich. 459.

9. Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Heister, 8 Pa. St. 445.

10. Dixon v. Baltimore & P. R. R. Co., 1 Mackey (D. C.), 78; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 201.

11. In re Detroit & P. R. R., 2 Doug. (Mich.) 367.

12. Grafton & G. R. Co. v. Foreman, 24 W. Va. 662; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 215.

13. Rockford, R. I. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. McKinley, 64 Ill. 338.

Swearing of Jury. — Objection, when taken. — The return of the sheriff that the peremptory challenge, unless it be expressly conferred by statute, and a statute allowing peremptory challenges in "civil causes" does not apply to statutory proceedings under the right of eminent domain.<sup>1</sup> The officer summoning the jurors must be unbiassed, and without interest.<sup>2</sup> The jurors must be impartial, and not unduly biassed against either of the parties to the controversy.<sup>3</sup> A stockholder of a railroad corporation is disqualified by reason of interest;<sup>4</sup> and also one who has given his note to the company to aid in the construction of the road.<sup>5</sup> But the mere fact that the juror is a citizen of a county interested in the suit is not sufficient to disqualify him.<sup>6</sup> Any objection to the competency of the jurors will be waived by a failure to object at a proper time.<sup>7</sup>

c. View.—Except when it is specially directed by statute, that the jury shall view the premises, the granting of a view is within the discretion of the court.<sup>8</sup> But in some cases the statute is jury were duly impanelled and sworn according to law, to discharge their duties, "will be construed to be a statement that the jury were properly sworn, and not a recital of the substance of the oath administered." New Orleans, J. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Hemphill, 35 Miss. 17.

1. Peninsular R. R. Co. v. Howard, 20 Mich. 18; Convers v. Grand Rapids & I. R. R. Co., 18 Mich. 459. See also Davis v. Bangor & P. R. R. Co., 60 Me. 303.

2. Interest of Officer.—Where the coroner who summoned the jury was a stockholder, the proceedings were set aside and venire de novo awarded. Woodstock R. Co. v. Tupper, 1 Hannay (N. B.), 454.

What Interest affects Proceedings.—The interest which at common law disqualifies an officer from acting in a judicial inquiry must be direct and certain, and not merely remote or contingent; and in England it has been held that the same principle must be applied to proceedings under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act. Queen v. Manchester, S. & L. R. Co., L. R. 2 Q. B. 336.

Waiver of Objection to Officer because interested.—That the sheriff is an interested party, and thereby disqualified from proceeding with the inquisition, is waived by defendant appearing and taking part in the inquisition. Corrigal v. London & B. R. Co., 5 Man. & Gr. 219; s. c., 44 Eng. C. L. 123.

3. Bias of Jurors.—Donner v. Palmer, 23 Cal. 40; Hessler v. Drainage Commissioners, 53 Ill. 105; Denton v. Lewis, 15 Iowa, 301; Ruble v. McDonald, 7 Iowa, 90; Inge v. Police Jury, 14 La. An. 117; People v. Michigan S. R. R. Co., 3 Mich. 496; Ames v. Lake Superior & M. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 241; St. Martin v. Desnoyer, 1 Minn. 156; Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. R. v. Campbell, 62 Mo. 585; Bryant v. Glidden, 36 Me. 36; Thompson v. Conway, 53 N. H. 622; Newport Highway, 48 N. H. 433; Peavey v. Wolfborough, 37 N. H. 286;

State v. Justice, 24 N. J. L. (4 Zab.) 413; Bennet v. Camden & A. R. R., 14 N. J. L. (2 J. S. Gr.) 145; Giesy v. Cincinnati, W. & Z. R. R. Co., 4 Ohio St. 308; Pennsylvania R. R. v. Lutheran Congregation, 53 Pa. St. 445; Forbes v. Howard, 4 R. I. 364; Buffalo, Bayou, B. & C. R. Co. v. Ferris, 26 Tex. 588; Powers v. Bears, 12 Wis. 213; s. c., 78 Am. Dec. 733; Birchard v. Booth, 4 Wis. 67.

4. Peninsular R. R. Co. v. Howard, 20 Mich. 18. In this case it was held that the railroad company must disclose the fact that the juror is a stockholder, if such fact be known to it.

5. Michigan A. L. R. Co. v. Barnes, 40 Mich. 383.

Who disqualified by Interest.—But a subscriber to a railway aid fund, who takes no stock in the road, acquires no legal interest in another projected road from the fact, merely, that it is to be leased to the road which he has aided, and is not disqualified as a juror in proceedings for condemnation of lands for the use of the latter road. Detroit W. T. & J. R. Co. v. Crane, 50 Mich. 182; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 502.

A fund raised in Detroit by general contribution to aid in the building of a railway to Butler, Ind., was commonly known as the "Butler bonus." But in proceedings to condemn lands for a road to be leased to the Butler line, a court could hardly take judicial notice of what the "Butler bonus" was for the purpose of sustaining a challenge to a juror on the ground that he had subscribed thereto. Detroit, W. T. & J. R. R. Co. v. Crane, 50 Mich. 182; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 502.

6. Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Pittsburg, W. & K. R. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444.

7. Jameson v. Androscoggin R. R. Co., 52 Me. 412; Mansfield, C. & L. M. R. R. Co. v. Clark, 23 Mich. 519.

8. View by Jury.—Galena & S. W. R.

imperative, and a view of the premises must be had, even though the evidence has been closed and the arguments heard.<sup>1</sup> But generally the time at which the view shall be had is in the discretion of the court.<sup>2</sup> The jurors cannot of their own accord view the premises after the evidence is in.<sup>3</sup> Where the view is ordered under the general statute relating to civil causes, its province is not to furnish testimony, but to enable the jury better to understand and comprehend the testimony of the witnesses.<sup>4</sup> By statute relative to the condemnation of lands, the province of the view is often very considerably widened. Thus the functions of the jury in Michigan are in the nature of those exercised by assessors rather than of a jury in ordinary actions.<sup>5</sup> In Louisiana, the jurors are in truth experts, who ought in every case to have a view of the lands, and who are supposed and intended by the legislature to have a personal knowledge of the value of real estate in the vicinage, which entitles them to rely upon their own opinion in forming their judgment.<sup>6</sup> In Massachusetts and Kentucky, the purpose of the view is considered to be to furnish the jury with evidence.<sup>7</sup> In Wisconsin, the jury may resort to their own knowledge of the premises obtained from a view thereof, but their assessment must be supported by the evidence, or it cannot stand.<sup>8</sup>

8. Viewers and Commissioners. — a. Appointment and Qualification. — Where the statute provides that the compensation shall be assessed by viewers or commissioners, it is not necessary that the land-owner should have notice of their appointment.<sup>9</sup> The court may order their appointment subsequent to the hearing,<sup>10</sup> and indeed at any time while damages remain unascertained.<sup>11</sup> And

R. Co. v. Haslam, 73 Ill. 494; Heady v. Vevay, St. S. & V. Turnpike Co., 52 Ind. 117; Evansville, I. & C. S. L. R. R. Co. v. Cochran, 10 Ind. 560; King v. Iowa M. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 458; Kansas C. R. R. Co. v. Allen, 22 Kans. 285; Harper v. Lexington & O. R. R. Co., 2 Dana (Ky.), 227; Remy v. Municipality, 12 La. An. 500; Snow v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 65 Me. 230.

1. Kankakee & S. R. R. Co. v. Straut, 102 Ill. 666; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 440.

2. Galena & S. W. R. R. Co. v. Haslam, 73 Ill. 494.

3. Ortman v. Union P. R. R. Co., 32 Kans. 419; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 136.

4. Heady v. Vevay, St. L. & V. Turnpike Co., 52 Ind. 119; Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. R. Co. v. Bowen, 40 Ind. 545; Harrison v. Iowa & M. R. R. Co., 36 Iowa, 323; Brakken v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. R. Co., 29 Minn. 41.

Iowa Doctrine. — The language of the Iowa court, in Close v. Samms, 27 Iowa, 503, has been generally adopted, and referred to with approval. The court said, "The question then arises as to the purpose and intent of the statute. It seems to us that it was to enable the jury, by the view of the premises or of the place, to better understand and comprehend the testimony of the witnesses respecting the same, and not to make them silent witnesses in the case, burdened with the testimony unknown to both parties, and in respect to which no opportunity for cross-examination or correction of error could be afforded either party."

5. In Michigan, however, the judge is allowed to "attend said jury to decide questions of law, and administer oaths to witnesses." The statute also authorizes the appointment of a commissioner for that purpose, and even permits the jury to proceed without either. Toledo, A. A. & G. T. R. R. Co. v. Dunlap, 47 Mich. 456; Michigan A. L. R. R. Co. v. Barnes, 44 Mich. 227; Howell's Stat. Mich. sect. 3336.

6. Remy v. Municipality, 12 La. An. 509.

7. Harper v. Lexington & O. R. R. Co., 2 Dana (Ky.), 227; Parks v. Boston, 32 Mass. (15 Pick.) 198, 209.

8. Washburn v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 59 Wis. 364.

9. Zack v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 25 Pa. St. 394.

10. Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. Dover & R. R. Co., 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 528; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 87.

11. Kittell v. Missisquoi R. R. Co., 56 Vt. 96; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 165.

their appointment is not confined solely to cases where the lands of private persons are intended to be taken. They may act where rights are deserted to courts or use the tracks of other companies.<sup>1</sup> Where commissioners are directed by the court to make an appraisal, they can act without the necessity of a second appointment and taking oath thereunder.<sup>2</sup> The commissioners are quasi jurors, and should be, like them, free from all legal disability;<sup>3</sup> they must be free from interest or affinity to the parties,<sup>4</sup> and must also be unbiassed,<sup>5</sup> and the provisions of the statute as to the oath to be taken must be strictly observed.<sup>6</sup> Although a charter provides for a compulsory arbitration, the parties may mutually agree upon a greater or less number of persons than is provided by law.

b. Powers and Duties.—The discretion of the commissioners as to the exception and rejection of testimony is very large, and will not be overruled on appeal, unless substantial injustice is done.<sup>7</sup> They may, on their own motion, take testimony in relation

1. Boston, H. T. & W. R. R. Co. v. Troy & B. R. R. Co., 58 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 167; Buffalo & L. R. R. Co. v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co., 15 Hun (N. Y.), 365.

2. Low v. Galena & C. U. R. R. Co., 18 Ill. 324.

3. Rock Island & A. R. R. Co. v. Lynch, 23 Ill. 645; Marquette H. & O. R. R. Co. v. Probate Judge, 53 Mich. 217; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 355.

4. Qualification of Commissioners to assess Damages. — But the relation of cousin existing between the wife of one of the commissioners and a stockholder in the company is not such an affinity as to vitiate the report, no unfairness or injustice being complained of. Albany N. R. R. Co. v. Cramer, 7 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 164.

It is no cause for setting aside the report of commissioners appointed to assess damages, that when they were appointed and made their report, they were stockholders in the company, where the objection is urged by the company itself. Strang v. Beloit & M. R. Co., 16 Wis. 635.

A Report of Viewers to assess the Damages caused by the building of a railroad will not be set aside because one of the viewers had a claim against the company for damages for altering a county road so as to pass through his land. Those persons only are disqualified from acting as viewers whose property immediately adjoins the railroad. Newbecker v. Susquehanna R. R. Co., 1 Pears. (Pa.) 57.

Commissioners may agree with Company condemning Land as to Compensation, and may accept entertainment. Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. Dover & R. R. Co., 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 528; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 87.

The supreme court will not quash the proceedings to assess damages for the reason that the record thereof does not show affirmatively that the viewers were citizens of the county. Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co. v. Morton, 27 Mo. 317.

5. Bias of Commissioners to assess Damages. — But when a viewer has expressed an opinion as to a former and somewhat similar case that does not render him incompetent to serve on the view, objection to a viewer may be waived by appearing at the hearing. Gingrich v. Harrisburgh, P. Mt. J. & L. R. R. Co., 1 Pears. (Pa.) 74.

6. In Wisconsin a Statute required commissioners, before entering on the duties of their office, to take the constitutional oath prescribed for State officers to support the Constitution of the United States and of the State, and faithfully to discharge their duties to the best of their ability. Defendant's charter, under which commissioners were appointed, required of them no oath; but they took one to execute their trust reposed in them, and discharged the duties imposed upon them as enjoined in the charter, pursuant to the provisions of the charter, to the best of their ability. It was held that their proceedings were void for want of jurisdiction. Bohlman v. Green Bay & M. R. Co., 40 Wis. 157; s. c., 13 Am. Ry. Rep. 421.

7. Discussion of Commissioners. — Western Pacific R. R. v. Reed, 35 Cal. 621; Chicago & I. R. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 90 Ill. 316; Evansville, I. & C. S. L. R. R. v. Cochran, 10 Ind. 560; Port Huron & S. W. R. R. Co. v. Voorheis, 50 Mich. 506; Michigan A. L. R. R. v. Barnes, 44 Mich. 222; Virginia & T. R. R. v. Henry, 8 Nev. 165; Coster v. New Jersey R. & T. Co., 23 N. J. L. (3 Zab.) 227; s. c., 24 N. J. L. (4 Zab.) 730; Troy & B. R. R. v. Northern Turnpike Co., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 100; Troy & B. R. R. v. Lee, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 169; In re Prospect Park & C. I. R. R., 20 Hun (N. Y.), 184; In re Williams & A. Streets, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 678; Winebiddle v. Pennsylvania R. R., 2 Grant (Pa.), 32; Willing v. Baltimore R. R., 5 Whart. (Pa.) 460.

to damages,<sup>1</sup> and receive it at their discretion under oath.<sup>2</sup> It has been held that the commissioners cannot assess damages for injuries done to adjoining lands, where the land-owner has not filed a cross complaint asking compensation therefor.<sup>3</sup>

9. Evidence.—a. Competency.—(1) In General.—In proceedings under the power of eminent domain, the general laws relating to evidence govern the admission and rejection of testimony.<sup>4</sup> Any evidence which tends to show the market value of the property taken, or the depreciation in value of property injured, is generally considered competent.<sup>5</sup> Testimony as to the amount of the land taken, how it affects the remainder of the tract, how it divides the farm in the case of farm lands as to pasturage, water, improvements, etc., is competent.<sup>6</sup> And evidence as to the danger of killing stock, and the danger of fire by reason of the construction of the road, may also be admitted.<sup>7</sup> And the noise of passing trains, and the inconvenience and interruption to the use of property, may also be shown as effecting the value of the property.<sup>8</sup> Proof that cars on the track block ingress and egress may be admitted.<sup>9</sup> The purpose for which property was used or was reasonably adopted may be shown.<sup>10</sup> But the annual net profits derived from the land for a particular use cannot competently be shown.<sup>11</sup> Where the claim is made by the owner of property abutting on a street, upon the ground that a railroad therein injuriously affects his property, evidence that the business of the street has fallen off and rental values have seriously decreased is admissible on the question of damages.<sup>12</sup> Proof of the value of the land to the railroad company is not, however, admissible.<sup>13</sup> Where the whole tract is used as a farm, it has been held the questions as to the value of detached parts are

1. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co. v. Covell, Dak. 483.

2. Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. Dover & R. R. Co., 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 528; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 87.

3. Illinois, W. Ex. R. Co. v. Mayrand, 93 Ill. 591; Albany & S. R. R. Co. v. Dayton, 10 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 182; Canandaigua & N. F. R. R. Co. v. Payne, 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 273.

4. Central Pac. R. R. Co. v. Pearson, 35 Cal. 247; Rochester & S. R. R. Co. v. Budlong, 6 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 467; Troy & B. R. R. Co. v. Northern T. Co., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 100; Washington, C. & St. L. Co. v. Switzer, 26 Gratt. (Va.) 661.

5. Rockford, R. I. & St. L. R. Co. v. McKinley, 64 Ill. 338; King v. Minneapolis U. R. Co., 32 Minn. 224; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 93; Russell v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co., 33 Minn. 210; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 191.

6. Rockford, R. I. & St. L. R. Co. v. McKinley, 64 Ill. 338; Dreher v. I. S. W. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 599; Smalley v. Iowa Pac. R. R. Co., 36 Iowa, 571; St. Joseph & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Orr, 8 Kans. 419; Driver v. Western U. R. R. Co., 32 Wis. 69.

7. St. Louis & S. E. R. R. Co. v. Teters, 68 Ill. 144; Wooster v. Sugar R. Valley R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 311; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 499.

8. County of Blue Earth v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 28 Minn. 503; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 209.

9. Union R. R. T. & S. Y. Co. v. Moore, 80 Ind. 458; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 346.

10. Jacksonville & S. E. R. R. Co. v. Walsh, 106 Ill. 253; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 245; Russell v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co., 33 Minn. 210; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 191.

11. Stockton & C. R. R. Co. v. Galgiani, 49 Cal. 139; s. c., 7 Am. & Eng. Ry. Rep. 263; Jacksonville & S. E. R. R. Co. v. Walsh, 106 Ill. 253; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 245.

12. Drucker v. Manhattan R. R. Co., 106 N. Y. 157.

13. Selma, R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Keith, 53 Ga. 178. See also Union Depot, St. R. & T. Co. v. Brunswick, 31 Minn. 297; s. c., sub nom. In re Union Depot St. R. & T. Co., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 233.

properly rejected.<sup>1</sup> Witnesses may, however, state the limits of damages or items that go to make up aggregate depreciation.<sup>2</sup> The price which the owner gave may be put in evidence, and the owner may show under what circumstances he purchased, and the value of the improvements he put upon it.<sup>3</sup> Evidence that the former owner of the land had refused an offer of a certain sum therefor is inadmissible, but a railroad company or other corporation may introduce testimony as to the price for which land was actually sold after the railroad had been constructed across it, for the purpose of showing the real value at that time, and as an admission of such value on the part of the vendors.<sup>4</sup> But evidence of an offer made for land is inadmissible.<sup>5</sup> In the case of land containing minerals, testimony as to the profits to be made by working the minerals is not admissible.<sup>6</sup> It has been held that evidence of the principal engineer of a railroad as to the plan upon which it is to be finished is admissible for the purpose of affecting the amount of damages;<sup>7</sup> although evidence of the benefit to the owner's remaining property to be derived from the construction of the public improvement is admissible that such benefit must be direct and not dependent upon an unreasonable contingency.<sup>8</sup>

(2) Sales of Other Lands. — Evidence of sales of other lands is admissible to aid in estimating the value of the property it is proposed to condemn.<sup>9</sup> It must be shown, however, that the lands

1. Winkleman v. Des Moines N. W. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 11; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 186.

2. Neilson v. Chicago, M. & N. W. R. Co., 58 Wis. 516; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 239.

3. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Smith, 42 Ark. 265; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 190; Sexton v. North Bridgewater, 116 Mass. 200; Swan v. Middlesex, 101 Mass. 177; Edmands v. Boston, 108 Mass. 535; Dickenson v. Fitchburg, 79 Mass. (13 Gray) 546.

4. Watson v. Milwaukee & M. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 332; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 186.

5. St. Joseph & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Orr, 8 Kans. 419.

6. Searle v. Lackawanna & B. R. R. Co., 33 Pa. St. 57.

7. March v. Portsmouth & C. R. R. Co., 19 N. H. 372.

8. Bessett to Property. — Britton v. Des Moines, O. & S. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 540; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 412; Childs v. New Haven & N. Co., 133 Mass. 253; Russell v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. R. Co., 33 Minn. 210; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 191; Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. Co. v. Robinson, 95 Pa. St. 428; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 468.

9. Evidence of Value. — Sales of Other Lands. — Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co. v. Maroney, 95 Ill. 182; St. Louis, V. & T. H.

R. R. Co. v. Haller, 82 Ill. 211; Jones v. Chicago & I. R. R. Co., 68 Ill. 384; Kansas C. R. R. Co. v. Allen, 24 Kans. 33; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 362; Chandler v. Jamaica Pond Co., 122 Mass. 305; Edmands v. Boston, 108 Mass. 535; Shattuck v. Stoneham R. R. Co., 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 115; March v. Portsmouth & C. R. R. Co., 19 N. H. 372; Pittsburg & L. E. R. R. Co. v. Robinson, 95 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 468; Washburn v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 59 Wis. 364; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 225; Watson v. Milwaukee & M. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 332; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 168. Compare Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co. v. Winslow, 66 Ill. 219; Illinois & W. R. R. Co. v. Von Horn, 18 Ill. 257; Union R. R. & T. S. Y. Co. v. Moore, 80 Ind. 458; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 346; Everett v. Union Pac. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 243; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 203; Snow v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 65 Me. 230; Dwight v. Hampden, 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 201; White v. Fitchburg R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 440; Stinson v. Chicago, St. P. & M. R. R. Co., 27 Minn. 284; Lehmick v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 19 Minn. 464; s. c., 10 Am. Ry. Rep. 296; Pennsylvania & N. Y. R. R. & C. Co. v. Bunnell, 81 Pa. St. 414.

Same. — Unaccepted Offer not admissible. — It is not admissible to ask a witness at what price he had offered for sale adjoining sold were similar in locality and character to the lands sought to be condemned.<sup>1</sup> And the sales made must not have been too remote in point of date.<sup>2</sup> The sum paid by a corporation to the owners of adjoining estates may be shown.<sup>3</sup>

b. Declarations and Admissions. — The declarations of the owner as to the value of his land, and his offer of it at a fixed price, may competently be introduced in evidence against him.<sup>4</sup> And if the land-owner dies while the proceedings are pending, his declarations and admissions are competent evidence against his trustees.<sup>5</sup> But the declarations of council on the former occupancy in the course of the trial are not admissible for the purpose of proving malice on the part of the company condemning, and thus enhancing the damages.<sup>6</sup> It has been held that by instituting the proceedings the company admits the title of the parties brought into court.<sup>7</sup> But notwithstanding the admission as to his title, the character of his estate may be inquired into.<sup>8</sup>

c. Opinion Evidence. — The opinion of witnesses as to the value of land taken, the amount of the damage done to the residue of a tract, is properly received.<sup>9</sup> And it is not necessary that such property. Montclair R. Co. v. Benson, 36 N. J. L. (7 Vr.) 557.

1. Cummins v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 397; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 86; La Mont v. St. Louis, D. M. & N. R. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 193; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 192; Kling v. Iowa M. R. Co., 34 Iowa, 458. Evidence of what a witness had offered for other lands on the opposite side of the street has been held to be incompetent. Davis v. Charles R. B. R. R. Co., 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 506.

2. It was held that a witness might be questioned on cross-examination as to sales made in the vicinity four or five years previous. Watson v. Milwaukee & M. R. Co., 57 Wis. 332; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 168. But sales of lands made ten or twelve years before the trial are too remote. Everett v. Union Pac. R. R. Co., 59 Iowa, 243; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 203.

3. Wyman v. Lexington & W. C. R. Co., 54 Mass. (13 Metc.) 316. But it will not be admissible if it appears that the sum paid was a gross sum, and included damages to the entire estate. Presbrey v. Old Colony & N. R. Co., 103 Mass. 1.

4. East Brandywine & W. R. R. Co. v. Ranck, 78 Pa. St. 454.

5. Power v. Savannah S. & S. R. R. Co., 56 Ga. 471.

6. Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Boyd, 67 Md. 32.

7. Admission of Title by Common Consent of Action. — Auditor v. Crise, 20 Ark. 540; Crise v. Auditor, 17 Ark. 572; Selma R. & D. R. Co. v. Camp, 45 Ga. 180; South Park Commissioners v. Todd, 112 Ill. 379; St. Louis & S. E. R. R. Co. v. Teters, 68 Ill. 144; Peoria, P. & J. R. R. Co. v. Laurie, 63 Ill. 264; Peoria & R. I. R. Co. v. Bryant, 57 Ill. 473; Norristown, etc., Turnpike Co. v. Burket, 26 Ind. 53; Rippe v. Chicago, D. & M. R. R. Co., 20 Minn. 187; St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co. v. Matthews, 10 Minn. 341; Wright v. Town of Butler, 64 Mo. 165; Omaha, N. & B. H. R. R. Co. v. Gerrard, 17 Neb. 587; Gerrard v. Omaha, N. & B. H. R. R. Co., 14 Neb. 270.

8. International & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Benitos, 59 Tex. 326; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 122.

9. Opinion of Witness as to Value of Land taken, and Injury to Balance. — McReynolds v. Burlington & O. R. R. Co., 106 Ill. 152; Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co. v. Winslow, 66 Ill. 219; Illinois & W. R. R. Co. v. Von Horn, 18 Ill. 257; Indianapolis, D. & S. R. R. Co. v. Pugh, 85 Ind. 279; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 196; Henry v. Dubuque & P. R. R. Co., 2 Iowa, 288; Snow v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 65 Me. 230; s. c., 10 Am. Ry. Rep. 27; Sherman v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. R. Co., 30 Minn. 227; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 193; Sherwood v. St. Paul & C. R. Co., 21 Minn. 127; Curtis v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 20 Minn. 28; Colvill v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 19 Minn. 283; Fremont E. & M. V. R. R. Co. v. Whalen, 11 Neb. 585; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 364; Republican Valley R. R. Co. v. Arnold, 13 Neb. 485; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 219; Eastern P. R. R. Co. v. Hiester, 40 Pa. St. 53; Watson v. Pitts- witnesses should be experts; it is sufficient if they are acquainted with the value of other lands in the neighborhood.<sup>1</sup> And it has been held that the opinion of the owner may be received.<sup>2</sup> And an opinion as to the value of the land may be based upon the testimony of others.<sup>3</sup> The value of opinion evidence may be impugned on the cross-examination of the witness;<sup>4</sup> and for this purpose he may be required to state the ground upon which he bases his estimate.<sup>5</sup> An insurance agent may competently testify as to the increase risk of fire arising from the construction of a railroad.<sup>6</sup> And the opinion of an expert had been held compe-burgh & C. R. R. Co., 37 Pa. St. 469; Bowen v. Atlantic & F. B. V. R. R. Co., 17 S. C. 574; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 332.

1. Witnesses need not be Experts. — Acquaintance with Property sufficient. — Stein v. Burden, 24 Ala. 130; s. c., 60 Am. Dec. 453; Keithsburg & E. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 79 Ill. 290; Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co. v. Winslow, 66 Ill. 219; Rockford, R. I. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. McKinley, 64 Ill. 338; Jacksonville, A. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Caldwell, 21 Ill. 75; Illinois & W. R. R. Co. v. Von Horn, 18 Ill. 257; Frankfort & K. R. R. Co. v. Windsor, 51 Ind. 238; Kansas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Allen, 24 Kans. 33; Snow v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 65 Me. 230; Boston & M. R. R. Co. v. Montgomery, 119 Mass. 114; Swan v. Middlesex, 101 Mass. 173; Whitman v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 313; Shattuck v. Stoneham, B. R. R. Co., 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 115; Brainard v. Boston & N. Y. C. R. R. Co., 78 Mass. (12 Gray) 407; West Newbury v. Chase, 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 421; Russell v. Horn Pond B. R. R. Co., 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 607; Dwight v. Hampden, 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 201; Walker v. Boston, 62 Mass. (8 Cush.) 279; Wyman v. Lexington & W. C. R. R. Co., 54 Mass. (13 Metc.) 316; Lehmicke v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. Co., 19 Minn. 464; Simmons v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 184; Burlington & M. R. Co. v. Schluntz, 14 Neb. 421; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 182; Republican V. R. Co. v. Arnold, 13 Neb. 485; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 219; Sioux City & P. R. R. Co. v. Weimer, 16 Neb. 272; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 184; Pittsburgh & L. E. R. R. Co. v. Robinson, 95 Pa. St. 426; s. c., 11 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 468; Pennsylvania & N. Y. R. R. Co. v. Bunnell, 81 Pa. St. 414; White Deer C. Co. v. Sassaman, 67 Pa. St. 415; East Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Hottenstine, 47 Pa. St. 28; Brown v. Providence & S. R. R. Co., 12 R. I. 238; St. Louis A. & T. R. R. Co. v. Anderson, 39 Ark. 167; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 97; Diedrich v. Northwestern U. R. Co., 47 Wis. 662; s. c., 24

Am. Rep. 399; Snyder v. Western U. R. Co., 25 Wis. 60. Compare Alabama & F. R. R. Co. v. Burkett, 42 Ala. 83; Montgomery & W. P. R. R. Co. v. Varner, 19 Ala. 185; Brunswick & A. R. R. Co. v. McLaren, 47 Ga. 546; Baltimore, P. & C. R. R. Co. v. Stoner, 59 Ind. 579; Baltimore, P. & C. R. R. Co. v. Johnson, 59 Ind. 247; Evansville, I. & C. S. L. R. R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 10 Ind. 120; Cleveland & P. R. R. Co. v. Ball, 5 Ohio St. 569; Atlantic & G. W. R. R. Co. v. Campbell, 4 Ohio St. 583; s. c., 64 Am. Dec. 607; Buffum v. New York & B. R. R. Co., 4 R. I. 221.

2. Sioux City & P. R. R. Co. v. Weimer, 16 Neb. 272; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 184; Burlington & M. R. R. Co. v. Schluntz, 14 Neb. 421; Wooster v. Sugar R. Valley R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 311; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 499.

3. Winkleman v. Des Moines, N. W. R. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 11; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 186. Compare Grinnell v. Mississippi & M. R. R. Co., 18 Iowa, 570.

4. Lafayette, B. & M. R. R. Co. v. Winslow, 66 Ill. 219; Illinois & W. R. R. Co. v. Von Horn, 18 Ill. 257; Snow v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 65 Me. 230; Dwight v. Hampden, 65 Mass. (11 Cush.) 201; Simmons v. St. Paul & C. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 184; Pennsylvania & N. Y. R. R. Co. v. Bunnell, 81 Pa. St. 414; Wooster v. Sugar R. Valley R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 311; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 499.

5. Smalley v. Iowa Pac. R. R. Co., 36 Iowa, 571.

6. Danger from Fire. — Evidence of Insurance Agent. — Fire. — A witness, who had been for ten years secretary of an insurance company, and as such had been in the practice of examining buildings, with reference to insurance thereof, and who had also, as county commissioner, frequently estimated damages caused to estates by the laying out of highways and railroads, was held to have been rightly permitted, on a hearing before the jury empanelled to appraise damages sustained by a party by the laying out of a railroad over his lands and near to his buildings, to give his opinion that the passage of locomotive engines within tent evidence as to the value of the reversion of land over which a railroad had been constructed.<sup>1</sup>

d. Documentary Evidence.—The special charter under which a company claims to have organized is sufficient evidence to authorize the proceeding when accompanied by evidence of the usury of the franchise granted thereby.<sup>2</sup> And the plans and estimates of the company for the apportionment of the road in question are also admissible.<sup>3</sup> Where the land is adapted for building purposes, a plan with prospective streets laid down thereon and showing the peculiar damage done by the railroad may be admitted for the purpose of effecting the measure of the recovery.<sup>4</sup> The sworn valuation rendered by the land-owner for the purpose of taxation is incompetent as independent evidence of the value of the property, but it may be admitted for the purpose of impeaching his statements.<sup>5</sup> Parley evidence thereof is not admissible.<sup>6</sup> A printed transcript of the assessors' valuation is not admissible evidence.<sup>7</sup>

e. Burden of Proof.—Where the proceeding is instituted by the land-owner for the purpose of recovering damages, he must prove his title.<sup>8</sup> Where the amount of land to be required by the railroad company, except the necessity for taking a greater quantity be shown, the burden is on the railroad company to show such necessity.<sup>9</sup> Where the land-owner claims damages for the embankment and excavation of a street in front of his property, the burden is upon the company to show that there was an established grade to which it conformed.<sup>10</sup>

10. Verdict, Award, and Judgment.—a. Verdict.—(1) Requisites and Validity.—It is essential that there should be a finding in the verdict that the land taken is necessary for a public use, and also that the work itself is one of public importance.<sup>11</sup> It is one hundred feet of a building would diminish the rate of insurance thereof against fire. It was held, also, that he was rightly permitted to testify that the directors of the insurance, of which he was secretary, upon his consulting them as to an application for insurance on a building in the vicinity of the buildings of the party then before the jury, had declined to take the risk at any rate. Webber v. Eastern R. R. Co., 43 Mass. (2 Metc.) 147.

1. Boston & W. R. R. Co. v. Old Colony, F. R. R. Co., 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 142.

2. Peoria & P. U. R. Co. v. Peoria & F. R. Co., 105 Ill. 110; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 129.

3. Jackson & S. R. R. Co. v. Kidder, 21 Ill. 131; Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Hays, 15 Neb. 224; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 177.

4. Cincinnati & S. R. R. Co. v. Longworth, 30 Ohio St. 109. Compare Scott v. Indianapolis & V. R. R. Co. (Ind.); s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 189.

5. Virginia & T. R. R. Co. v. Henry, 8 Nev. 165.

6. Oregon C. R. R. Co. v. Bailey, 3 Oreg. 164.

7. Brown v. Providence, W. & B. R. R. Co., 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 35.

8. International & G. W. R. Co. v. Benitos, 59 Tex. 326; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 122.

9. Wisconsin Cent. R. R. Co. v. Cornell University, 52 Wis. 537; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 108.

10. Pittsburgh, V. & C. R. R. Co. v. Rose, 74 Pa. St. 362; s. c., 6 Am. Ry. Rep. 343.

11. Grand Rapids, N. & L. S. R. R. Co. v. Van Driele, 24 Mich. 479; Mansfield & L. M. R. R. Co. v. Clark, 23 Mich. 519; Chicago & M. L. S. R. R. Co. v. Sanford, 23 Mich. 418.

A Finding by the Jury that they "did ascertain and determine that it was necessary for said company to take said real estate for public use; to wit, for the purpose of said company's incorporation as generally held that a verdict for a specified sum is sufficient without stating the items included therein.<sup>1</sup> The jury cannot, as part of the compensation, direct by their verdict that the company shall do certain work for the benefit of the land-owner.<sup>2</sup> A verdict in the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary must be unanimous.<sup>3</sup> An irregularity occasioned through the fault of one of the party cannot be taken advantage of by that party.<sup>4</sup> If an amendment is made in the description of the premises condemned during the proceedings, the jury will be presumed to have taken this amendment into consideration in making their award.<sup>5</sup> When instruction is to award value of lot at time of taking and nothing more, it will not be presumed that jury included interest in their verdict.<sup>6</sup>

(2) Setting aside. — A motion to set aside the verdict of a jury assessing damages must be addressed to, and adjudicated upon, by the court to which the verdict is returned.<sup>7</sup> Usually any merely technical irregularity will not be considered sufficient: it must be shown that one of the parties has been prejudiced thereby.<sup>8</sup>

and for right of way," is a sufficient finding that the land was necessary and requisite for the public use. East Saginaw & St. C. R. R. Co. v. Benham, 28 Mich. 459; s. c., 12 Am. Ry. Rep. 356.

1. Michigan A. L. R. R. Co. v. Barnes, 44 Mich. 222; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 608; Oregon R. Co. v. Bridwell, 11 Oreg. 282; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 130; Delaware, L. & W. R. R. Co. v. Burson, 61 Pa. St. 369.

Jury to assess Damages. — Sufficiency of Verdict. — A verdict which finds that the land-owner "is entitled as compensation to the sum of $420, and as damages the sum of $411.25, a total sum of $831.25," is sufficiently certain. Illinois W. E. R. R. Co. v. Mayrand, 93 Ill. 591.

Where an act required the assessment to state the value of the land taken and the other damages separately, but neither the company nor the land-owner required the verdict to be thus separately returned, and the jury returned a general verdict only, the court refused to summon a jury for a new assessment, the demand for a new assessment being made by the company. In re London & G. R. Co., 2 Ad. & El. 678; s. c., 29 Eng. C. L. 176.

Joint Interests. — Individual Award. — Where the interest of two owners in the lands sought to be taken is treated as joint by the petition, and they appear jointly, and demand a jury, it is not improper for the jury to award an individual sum to the two; their own action precludes them from insisting that their interests should have been separately regarded. East Saginaw & St. C. R. R. Co. v. Benham, 28 Mich., 459; s. c., 12 Am. Ry. Rep. 356.

An award was sustained where it expressed the gross sum allowed to all the joint claimants, and specified how much of it was for each of those interested as mortgagees. Michigan A. L. R. Co. v. Barnes, 44 Mich. 222.

2. New Orleans P. R. R. Co. v. Murrell, 34 La. An. 536.

3. Chicago & M. L. S. R. R. Co. v. Sanford, 23 Mich. 418.

4. Suppression of Verdict. — When the railroad company induces the messenger to whom verdict has been intrusted to deposit in proper custody, to suppress the same, it cannot insist that an actual return of the verdict was essential to give it validity. West v. West & E. R. R. Co., 61 Miss. 536; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 402.

5. Hunt v. New York C. & St. L. R. R. Co., 99 Ind. 593; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 436.

In an inquisition of damages the schedule mentioned a dwelling. Held, that this description included the yard and garden. Taylor v. Clemson, 2 Ad. & El. (N. S.) 978; s. c., 42 Eng. C. L. 1005.

6. Hollingsworth v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 443; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 113.

7. Burr v. Bucksport & B. R. R. Co., 64 Me. 130.

8. Detroit, W. T. & J. R. R. Co. v. Crane, 50 Mich. 182; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 502; Toledo, A. A. & G. T. R. Co. v. Dunlap, 47 Mich. 456; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 378; Oswold v. Minneapolis & N. W. R. R. Co., 29 Minn. 5.

Consent to View. — The land-owner expressly waived the right to produce and

When there is no evidence of misconduct on the part of the jury, the court will not set aside the verdict on the ground that it is excessive, unless the amount awarded is manifestly wrong,<sup>1</sup> even on the certificate of one of the jury that the verdict is too high.<sup>2</sup>

b. Award.—(1) Form and Requisites.—In arriving at the amount of the compensation, the commissioners may average the sums which each of them considers to be the proper amount.<sup>3</sup> The presumption is in favor of the regularity of the action of the commissioners; and the report need not set out affirmatively that the parties were present at the time of the view.<sup>4</sup> It is essential, however, that the report should find that the appropriation is necessary.<sup>5</sup> The award will be sustained, providing the intention of the commissioners clearly appears.<sup>6</sup> It is not essential that all the commissioners should act and sign the report: a majority of examine witnesses, and consented with the counsel for the railroad company that the commissioners might act upon a view of the premises, which they proceeded to do and make their award. On motion to set aside the award it appeared from the affidavit of the land-owner that in declining to produce witnesses he acted upon a misapprehension as to his legal rights, founded upon erroneous information derived by him from another person, to the effect that he would be entitled to re-hearing, as a matter of right, before other commissioners, and that on such re-hearing he could examine witnesses. It was held, that the land-owner is entitled to the relief asked for by him, on the ground that he was misled to his prejudice by erroneous information as to his legal rights. In re New York, L. & W. R. Co., 63 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 265.

1. In re Beale St., 39 Cal. 495; Tonica & P. R. R. Co. v. Unsicker, 22 Ill. 221; Illinois & W. R. R. v. Van Horn, 18 Ill. 257; Peoria & F. R. R. Co. v. Barnum, 107 Ill. 160; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 331; Bangor & P. R. R. Co. v. McComb, 60 Me. 290; Kansas C., St. J. & C. B. R. R. Co. v. Campbell, 62 Mo. 585; Coster v. New Jersey R. R., 24 N. L. J. (4 Zab.) 730; New Jersey R. R. v. Suydam, 17 N. J. L. (2 Harr.) 25; In re Williams & Anthony Sts., 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 678; Philadelphia, W. & B. R. R. v. Gesner, 20 Pa. St. 240.

Making up Verdict.—Considering Items separately.—A sheriff's jury, in making up their verdict, may, if they think proper, consider each item or charge of damages separately, and state in their verdict what items they allow, and the amounts thereof, severally, and what they reject; and where the verdict is returned in this form, any item of damage, which, in point of law, is objectionable may be remitted or deducted without setting aside the verdict. Fitchburg R. R. Co. v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 57 Mass. (3 Cush.) 58.

2. Carrollton R. R. Co. v. Avart, 11 La. 190.

3. Marquette, H. & O. R. R. Co. v. Probate Judge, 53 Mich. 217; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 355.

4. Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Porter, 29 Pa. St. 165.

5. Shick v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 1 Pears. (Pa.) 259.

A finding "that the taking of said strip or parcel of land was required and necessary for the constructing and operating of said railroad, and a necessary public use thereof," was held sufficient under sect. 22 of art. xviii. of the Michigan constitution. Morgan v. Chicago & N. E. R. R. Co., 39 Mich. 675.

6. Report of Commissioners.—Numerals to represent Dollars.—Where the commissioners in their report use numerals only, where it is evident from the report that the commissioners intended that such numerals should represent dollars and cents, the report is not void because the commissioners omitted to use either the dollar-mark, or the words "dollars" and "cents," or some abbreviation of the same. Hunt v. Smith, 9 Kans. 137.

Award void for Uncertainty.—An award which requires a railroad company to pay four hundred dollars for right of way, and to build fences, the money to be paid at any time fixed upon by the company, by giving the land-owner three days' notice of the time and place of payment, and requires the land-owner, at the same time, to deliver to the company a deed for the right of way, is void for uncertainty as to the time for the payment of the money and the delivery of the deed. Alfred v. Kankakee & S. W. R. R. Co., 92 Ill. 609.

them may validly make the assessment.<sup>1</sup> While the report should not make separate awards for the same tract,<sup>2</sup> it is essential that the several tracts belonging to the different owners should be separately assessed.<sup>3</sup> The compensation awarded must be in money,<sup>4</sup> and not by way of easements upon or across the land taken.<sup>5</sup> The award must state the quantity and quality of the lands or materials taken, with their value.<sup>6</sup> And it has been held that it is essential that it should state the advantages and disadvantages to the owners.<sup>7</sup> A separate sum ought not to be awarded to each tenant in common.<sup>8</sup> Whatever rights would naturally result to any rights of the plaintiff, appurtenant to the land taken, or injuriously affected, is supposed to have been foreseen and included in the judgment of the appraisers.<sup>9</sup> The award presumptively embraces all damages of every kind, naturally to the owner, resulting from the taking of his property.<sup>10</sup>

(2) Exceptions and Confirmation.—No vested right can be acquired by either party until an order of the court has been

1. Quayle v. Missouri, K. & T. R. R. Co., 63 Mo. 465; s. c., 21 Am. Ry. Rep. 220.

Signing of Report.—Although the report must be signed by a majority of the commissioners, it is not necessary that they should all be together at the signing; nor is there any rule of law or principle of public policy requiring it. Rochester & G. V. R. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 10 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 168.

2. Weyer v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 329; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 508.

Provisions of Charter.—Effect of.—The provision of defendant's charter in regard to proceedings for condemnation, in accordance with which the commissioners are to make an appraisal and award "in each case separately," does not require them (or the court or jury in case of an appeal) to make a separate appraisal and award as to each of several town lots appropriated, when such lots together form a compact body of land, and are used and occupied as an entirety. Sherwood v. St. Paul & C. R. Co., 21 Minn. 122; s. c., 11 Am. Ry. Rep. 364.

3. Rusch v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R. Co., 54 Wis. 136; s. c., 6 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 609.

4. Chesapeake & O. R. R. Co. v. Patton, 6 W. Va. 147.

5. Chesapeake & O. R. R. Co. v. Halstead, 7 W. Va. 301. Compare Omaha & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Menk, 4 Neb. 21, where it was held that a provision that the party owning the premises, part of which were taken for a right of way, might move back his house therefrom, was valid.

6. O'Hara v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 25 Pa. St. 445; Zack v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 25 Pa. St. 394; Bigelow v. West Wisconsin R. R. Co., 27 Wis. 478.

6 C. of L. — 40

The Quality is sufficiently described where it appears from the report that the land was in the town of C., and that it was used as a lumber-yard, etc. Pennsylvania R. R. Co. v. Bruner, 55 Pa. St. 318.

Sufficiency of Report.—A report, setting out the adjoiners and boundaries, with a draft showing the length, breadth, courses, and distances of the ground taken, without calculation of the contents, sufficiently sets forth the quantity of land taken. Pennsylvania R. R. v. Bruner, 55 Pa. St. 318.

A description in an award allowed a strip thirty feet wide on each side of a given line across the entire premises, except that, in crossing a specific tract, a strip only twenty-five feet wide was allowed south of the line. It also described another parcel by making the boundary begin and end at the east end of the northerly outside line of the former, and by giving the courses and distances. Held, sufficient. Michigan A. L. R. Co. v. Barnes, 44 Mich. 222.

7. Philadelphia & E. R. R. Co. v. Cake, 95 Pa. St. 139; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 211; O'Hara v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 25 Pa. St. 445; Reitenbough v. Chester V. R. R. Co., 21 Pa. St. 100.

8. Watson v. Milwaukee & M. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 332; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 168.

9. Furniss v. Hudson R. R. R. Co., 5 Sandf. (N. Y.) 551.

10. Chesapeake & O. C. Co. v. Grove, 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 308; Selden v. Delaware & H. C. Co., 29 N. Y. 634; s. c., 24 Barb. N. Y. 362; Radcliff's Exrs. v. Mayor of Brooklyn, 4 N. Y. 195; s. c., 53 Am. Dec. 357; In matter of Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 345; s. c., 16 Hun (N. Y.), 261.

made confirming the report.<sup>1</sup> When the report has been filed objections may be taken thereto by way of exceptions,<sup>2</sup> and a motion to set aside the report, the facts may be brought before the court by affidavit or parol evidence as the court directs.<sup>3</sup> Where it can be shown that the award was made upon illegal evidence, or based upon erroneous principles, or where the jury have been guilty of misconduct, or where the damages are grossly inadequate or excessive, the award may be set aside.<sup>4</sup> Where the report by the viewers is set aside, the judge, in ordering a new view, may appoint a new set of viewers.<sup>5</sup> An omission to set out the benefits and damages separately may be corrected by amendment to the report.<sup>6</sup>

(3) Conclusiveness and Effect. — The final award by the special tribunal is a judicial act, and unless set aside by proper proceedings is like a judgment, res adjudicata, and cannot be impeached collaterally.<sup>7</sup>

1. In re Syracuse, B. & N. Y. R. R. Co., 4 Hun (N. Y.), 311; Hudson R. R. Co. v. Outwater, 3 Sandf. (N. Y.) 689; Wagner v. New York C. & St. L. R. Co., 38 Ohio St. 32; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 380.

2. Mississippi R. B. Co. v. Ring, 58 Mo. 491; Camp v. Cold Creek & W. G. R. R. Co., 11 Lea (Tenn.), 705; Baltimore & O. R. R. Co. v. Pittsburg, W. & K. R. R. Co., 17 W. Va. 812; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 444.

Confirmation of Report. — Where it appears that the commissioners have been regular in their proceedings, and due notice of the motion for confirmation has been given, it is a matter of course under the statutes to confirm the report. New York & E. R. R. Co. v. Corey, 5 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 177.

Statements made by way of bill of exceptions, after the report is made, should be considered as an amendment to the report. Central Pac. R. R. Co. v. Pearson, 35 Cal. 247.

Where, upon a hearing before commissioners, the owner makes default, the supreme court, on motion to confirm the report of the commissioners, has power, the default being excused, to open it, to set aside the report, and order a new hearing. In re New York, L. & W. R. Co., 93 N. Y. 385.

3. Central Pac. R. R. Co. v. Pearson, 35 Cal. 247; Marquette, H. & O. R. R. Co. v. Probate Judge, 53 Mich. 217; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 355.

4. When Award may be set aside. — Central Pac. R. R. v. Pearson, 35 Cal. 247; Piper's Appeal, 32 Cal. 530; Pueblo & A. V. R. R. Co. v. Rudd, 5 Colo. 270; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 404; Marquette, H. & O. R. R. Co. v. Probate Judge, 53 Mich. 217; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R.

Cas. 355; Kansas C., St. J. & C. B. R. R. v. Campbell, 62 Mo. 585; Lee v. Tebo & N. R. R., 53 Mo. 178; Hannibal & St. J. R. R. v. Muder, 49 Mo. 165; St. Louis & St. J. R. R. v. Richardson, 45 Mo. 466; Virginia & T. R. R. v. Henry, 8 Nev. 165; Virginia & T. R. R. v. Elliott, 5 Nev. 358; Eastern R. R. v. Concord & P. R. R., 47 N. H. 108; Troy & B. R. R. v. Lee, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 169; In re Rondout & O. R. R., 38 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 187; In re Prospect Park & C. I. R. R. Co., 13 Hun (N. Y.), 345; s. c., 16 Hun (N. Y.), 261; Pearl St. Case, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 651; Philadelphia & E. R. R. Co. v. Cake, 95 Pa. St. 139; Pennsylvania R. R. v. Lutheran Congregation, 53 Pa. St. 445; Patton v. Susquehanna R. R. Co., 1 Pears. (Pa.) 48.

5. Hannibal & St. J. R. R. Co. v. Rowland, 29 Mo. 327.

6. Greenville & C. R. R. Co. v. Nunnamaker, 4 Rich. (S. C.) L. 107.

7. Conclusiveness and Effect of Award. — Townsend v. Chicago & A. R. R., 91 Ill. 545; Chicago & A. R. v. Springfield & N. W. R., 67 Ill. 142; Port Huron & S. W. R. R. Co. v. Voorheis, 50 Mich. 506; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 227; Evans v. Haefner, 29 Mo. 141; In re Prospect Park & C. I. R. Co., 24 Hun (N. Y.), 199; Butman v. Vermont C. R. R., 27 Vt. 500; Crawford v. Valley R. Co., 25 Gratt. (Va.) 467; Secombe v. Milwaukee & St. P. R., 90 U. S. (23 Wall.) 108; bk. 23 L. ed. 67.

Award Vacated for Irregularity or Fraud. — In proceeding to ascertain the compensation to be made to the owner of property taken for public use, a State may vacate any inquest taken by its direction, and order a new inquest, where the proceeding has been irregularly or fraudulently conducted, or where error has intervened.

c. Judgment. — (1) Entry and Requisites. — A railroad company may, even after the confirmation of the commissioner's report, abandon the proceedings, and no judgment appropriating the land to them can in that case be entered.<sup>1</sup> The proper judgment is that appropriating the right of way to the company's use after payment of the damages authorized by the jury to the land-owner.<sup>2</sup> And it would seem that no judgment in personam should be rendered.<sup>3</sup> But in some cases a personal judgment is authorized by statute.<sup>4</sup> The judgment rendered must be unconditional.<sup>5</sup> The title acquired vests in the corporation condemning, when the statutory requirements have all been filed, and it is not essential in rendering a judgment to provide that a deed shall be executed.<sup>6</sup>

(2) Conclusiveness and Effect. — A judgment of condemnation is conclusive, and cannot be collaterally impeached.<sup>7</sup>

d. Interest. — A mere assessment of damages does not of itself give a right to interest; the date from which interest and such damages have been computed is the time of taking possession of the land.<sup>8</sup>

II. Appeal and Review. — a. When Appeal lies. — In some cases the right of appeal is guaranteed by the constitution.<sup>9</sup> The consolidation of two distinct suits between the same parties, in each of which the matter in dispute is less than the jurisdictional amount, will not give the appellate court jurisdiction.<sup>10</sup> It has

Until the property is actually taken and the compensation is made or provided, the power of the State over the matter is not ended. Garrison v. New York City, 88 U. S. (21 Wall.) 196; bk. 22 L. ed. 612.

1. State v. Cincinnati & I. R. Co., 17 Ohio St. 103; s. c., Hayes v. Cincinnati R. Co., 17 Ohio St. 107.

2. St. Louis, L. & D. R. Co. v. Wilder, 17 Kans. 239; Oregonian R. Co. v. Hill, 9 Oreg. 377; Oregon R. Co. v. Bridwell, 11 Oreg. 282; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 130; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Pack, 6 W. Va. 397; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Bradford, 6 W. Va. 220.

The Proceedings under the Statute for the Condemnation of Lands simply fix the price at which, upon payment, the company may take the right of way. The judgment assessing the damages passes no title to the company before payment, and does not bind it to accept the lands, and pay the amount assessed. Gear v. Dubuque & S. C. R. R. Co., 20 Iowa, 523.

3. Oregon R. Co. v. Bridwell, 11 Oreg. 282; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 130; Oregonian R. Co. v. Hill, 9 Oreg. 377. See also St. Louis, L. & D. R. R. Co. v. Wilder, 17 Kans. 239.

It has been held that an action does not lie on an award of the sheriff's jury unless the right of way has been entered upon and appropriated by the company. Dem- mick v. Council Bluffs & St. L. R. Co., 62 Iowa, 409; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 105.

4. Robbins v. St. Paul, S. & T. F. R. R. Co., 24 Minn. 191.

5. Award in the Alternative. — A judgment cannot be rendered for a certain sum if the railway company shall permit the passage of water at a certain point, and for an additional sum upon the refusal to permit such passage of water. Winchester & P. R. R. Co. v. Washington, 1 Rob. (Va.) 67.

6. Indianapolis & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Smyth, 45 Ind. 322.

7. Hays v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 562; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 110; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Reichert, 58 Md. 261; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 429; Evans v. Haefner, 29 Mo. 141; Butman v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 27 Vt. 500; Secombe v. Milwaukee & St. P. R. R. Co., 90 U. S. (23 Wall.) 108; bk. 23, L. ed. 67; s. c., 11 Am. Ry. Rep. 355.

8. Hays v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 63 Iowa, 562; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 110. Compare East Tennessee Va. & G. R. R. Co. v. Burnett, 11 Lea (Tenn.), 525; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 370.

9. St. Louis & S. E. R. R. Co. v. Lux, 63 Ill. 523.

10. Louisiana W. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 33 La. An. 806.

been held that the final order from which an appeal lies is made where the court has denied a motion to vacate an award,<sup>1</sup> or where it has made an order having an award,<sup>2</sup> or rendered a judgment confirming the verdict.<sup>3</sup> An appeal will always lie from an order of judgment condemning land and fixing the amount of the damages.<sup>4</sup> And it has been held that an order appointing commissioners in condemnation proceeding is appealable.<sup>5</sup>

b. Who may appeal.—One not a party to the original condemnation proceedings cannot appeal.<sup>6</sup> Thus, a person who has purchased the land after the proceedings instituted, but who has not been made a party, cannot appeal.<sup>7</sup> But where a vendor is, by virtue of an agreement for the sale of land in equity, trustee for the vendee, and the lands are condemned by the railroad company under its charter, if the vendee desires to appeal from the award, he may do so in the name of the vendor.<sup>8</sup> One of several parties to an award may appeal without joining other parties.<sup>9</sup> But where the damages for the right of way are assessed jointly to two persons, an appeal can only be prosecuted by one of them by making the other a party thereto by notice or otherwise.<sup>10</sup> A mortgagor may prosecute an appeal without announcing the mortgagee as a party.<sup>11</sup> And the mortgagee on his part may also appeal.<sup>12</sup> The owner of several lands or parcels taken for a railroad, for which damages have been awarded separately, may take a single appeal from the whole award.<sup>13</sup> A railroad company cannot appeal from a judgment distributing the gross amount of the award among the owners of different estates in the land.<sup>14</sup>

But a report which in form made separate awards as to two parcels which together constitute one tract, is in effect a single award as to the whole tract. Weyer v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. Co., 57 Wis. 329; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 508.

1. Denver & N. O. R. Co. v. Jackson, 6 Colo. 340; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 497; Wisconsin Cent. R. Co. v. Cornell University, 52 Wis. 537; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 108. Compare In re Prospect Park & C. I. R. Co., 85 N. Y. 489; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 362.

2. In re New York, W. S. & B. R. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 287; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 145.

3. Tracy v. Elizabethtown, L. & B. S. R. Co., 78 Ky. 309; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 328.

4. Austin v. Belleville & I. R. R. Co., 19 Ill. 310; Cedar Rapids, I. F. & N. W. R. Co. v. Whelan, 64 Iowa, 604; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 395; Roberts v. Central P. R. R. Co., 1 Brewst. (Pa.) 538; Wisconsin Cent. R. R. Co. v. Cornell University, 49 Wis. 162.

5. In re St. Paul & N. P. R. R. Co., 34 Minn. 227; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas.

94. Compare Camp v. Cole, C. & W. G. R. R. Co., 11 Lea (Tenn.), 705; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 372.

6. Cedar Rapids, I. F. & N. W. R. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 60 Iowa, 35; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 522.

7. Connable v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 60 Iowa, 27; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 520.

8. McIntyre v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 26 N. J. Eq. (11 C. E. Gr.) 425.

9. Washburn v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. Co., 59 Wis. 364; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 225.

10. Chicago & R. I. P. R. R. Co. v. Hurst, 30 Iowa, 73.

11. Lance v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. R. Co., 57 Iowa, 636; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 617.

12. Michigan A. L. R. R. Co. v. Barnes, 40 Mich. 383.

13. Larson v. Superior S. L. R. R. Co., 64 Wis. 59; s. c., sub nom. Superior S. L. R. R. Co. v. Larson, 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 165.

14. Spaulding v. Milwaukee, L. S. & W. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 304; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 401.

c. Notice of Appeal.—Generally the statutes require that notice of the appeal should be given. And it has been held that such an appeal is an action, and that the notice may be signed by the attorney of the appellant.<sup>1</sup> The notice may be served upon the attorney of the railroad company.<sup>2</sup> Where two separate awards have been made to the owner of separate parcels of land, one notice of appeal from both awards is sufficient.<sup>3</sup> So, too, a single notice that several persons whose lands have been taken for a railroad, appeal each severally and each for himself from the award of damages made to each, is valid.<sup>4</sup> Notice to parties interested is waived by voluntarily appealing the case.<sup>5</sup>

d. Entry on Lands pending an Appeal.—(1) Security required.—Where an assessment of damages has been made, and the amount thereof has not been paid or deposited, the railroad company has no right to enter pending an appeal;<sup>6</sup> and the land-owner may in such case obtain an injunction to restrain the entry of the company on the land pending the appeal, until payment of the award is made on the amount deposited.<sup>7</sup> This he may even do though he is himself the appellant, and no damages have been awarded him by the commissioners.<sup>8</sup> Where the amount assessed is paid by the company, the mere pendency of the appeal does not debar it of its right of entry.<sup>9</sup> It is frequently provided by statute that, as soon as an assessment of damages is made, the company may, upon making a deposit of the award, enter upon the land and begin the construction of its road, notwithstanding the pending of the appeal.<sup>10</sup> But the mere rendering of a verdict assessing damages does not warrant the making of a deposit: there must first be a judgment confirming the verdict of the jury.<sup>11</sup>

1. Weyer v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 329; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 508.

2. Hartman v. Belville & O. F. R. R. Co., 64 Ill. 24.

3. Neff v. Chicago & N. W. R. R. Co., 14 Wis. 370.

4. Larson v. Superior S. L. R. R. Co., 64 Wis. 59; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 165.

5. East Saginaw & St. C. R. R. Co. v. Benham, 28 Mich. 459; s. c., 12 Am. Ry. Rep. 356.

6. Chambers v. Cincinnati & Ga. R. R. Co., 69 Ga. 320; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 376.

7. Kansas City v. Kansas Pac. R. R. Co., 18 Kans. 331; Wagner v. Railway Co., 38 Ohio St. 32; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 380; Eidemiller v. Wyandotte City, 2 Dill. C. C. 376.

8. Trustees of Iowa College v. City of Davenport, 7 Iowa, 213.

9. Mercer & S. R. R. Co. v. Delaware & B. B. R. Co., 26 N. J. Eq. (11 C. E. Gr.) 464.

10. When Company may enter and construct Road.—Pendency of Appeal.—Chambers v. Cincinnati & Ga. R. R. Co., 69 Ga. 320; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 378; Central B. U. P. Co. v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R. Co., 28 Kans. 453; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 528; St. Joseph & D. C. R. R. Co. v. Callender, 13 Kans. 496; Norristown, etc., T. Co. v. Burket, 26 Ind. 53; Indianapolis & C. R. R. Co. v. Brower, 12 Ind. 374; Colvill v. Langdon, 22 Minn. 565; Doughty v. Somerville & E. R. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. (1 Zab.) 442; Mettler v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 25 N. J. Eq. (10 C. E. Gr.) 214; In re New York Cent. & H. R. R. R. Co., 60 N. Y. 116; Wagner v. New York Cent. R. R. Co., 38 Ohio, 32; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 380; Weyer v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 329; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 508.

11. Wagner v. New York Cent. R. R. Co., 38 Ohio St. 32; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 380.

(2) Withdrawal of Deposit.—Where a railroad company has deposited the amount of the award, and taken possession of the lands, the owner, on giving the requisite bond, may withdraw the amount so deposited without prejudice to an appeal.<sup>1</sup> And a party thus withdrawing the deposit is afterwards estopped to deny that he was a party to the proceedings; and the railroad company is entitled to recover interest upon the amount by which the award is decreased, from the date of the withdrawal.<sup>2</sup>

e. Practice.—When two appeals are taken from the one award they may be consolidated and tried together, although taken by opposing parties.<sup>3</sup> But when the appeals are taken by parties having separate interests, e.g., owner and lessee, they cannot be cancelled when the parties object.<sup>4</sup> An appeal taken by the land-owner from the award of the commissioners is an entry of appearance, and waives all questions as to the sufficiency of the notice of the jurisdiction of the person.<sup>5</sup> And by taking the appeal the owners assume the position of plaintiff.<sup>6</sup> The right to open and close the argument on appeal is in the discretion of the court;<sup>7</sup> but in the event of the court making no order, the land-owner will have the right.<sup>8</sup>

f. What considered an Appeal.—In some States an appeal is substantially the same thing as a certiorari, which simply brings up the record, the appellate tribunal being able to review only such irregularities as appear upon its face with regard to the way in which the proceedings have been carried on.<sup>9</sup> If the record show that the proceedings are substantially correct, the court will not reverse on account of mere irregularity;<sup>10</sup> and it must appear that the objection was taken in the lower court.<sup>11</sup> Where the evi-

1. Meily v. Zurmehly, 23 Ohio St. 627; Weyer v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 329; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 508.

2. Watson v. Milwaukee & M. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 332; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 168.

3. Washburn v. Milwaukee, L. W. R. R. Co., 59 Wis. 364; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 225.

4. Ortman v. Union Pac. R. R. Co., 32 Kans. 419; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 196.

5. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. R. Co. v. Patch, 28 Kans. 470.

6. Minnesota V. R. R. Co. v. Doran, 17 Minn. 188.

7. Charleston & S. R. R. Co. v. Blake, 12 Rich. (S. C.) L. 634.

8. Charleston & S. R. R. Co. v. Blake, 12 Rich. (S. C.) L. 634. See also Omaha & R. V. R. R. Co. v. Walker, 17 Neb. 432; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 396. Compare Montgomery S. R. R. Co. v. Sayre, 72 Ala. 443; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 203.

9. Kroop v. Forman, 31 Mich. 144; New Jersey R. R. v. Suydam, 17 N. J. L. (2 Har.) 25; People v. Town of Seward, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 94; People v. Canal Board, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 220; Reitenbaugh v. Chester V. R. R., 21 Pa. St. 100.

10. Irregularity in Proceedings.—Reversal of Award.—Louisville, N. A. & C. R. R. Co. v. Wunderlich, 81 Ind. 105; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 410; Chicago & W. I. R. R. Co. v. Dooling, 95 Ill. 202. In re Inhabitants of Vassalborough, 19 Me. 338; Cambridge v. Comm'rs of Middlesex, 117 Mass. 79; New Haven & N. Co. v. Northampton, 102 Mass. 116; In re Tucker's Petition, 27 N. H. 405; Lehigh V. R. R. Co. v. Dover R. R. Co., 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 528; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 82; State v. Smith, 21 N. L. J. (1 Zab.) 91; Troy & B. R. R. Co. v. Northern Turnpike Co., 16 Barb. (N. Y.) 100; Road Comm'rs v. Fickinger, 51 Pa. St. 48; Winebiddle v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 2 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 32; Bowen v. Atlantic F. B. V. R. R. Co., 17 S. C. 574; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 332.

11. Booker v. Venice & C. R. R. Co., 101

dence is conflicting, the judgment appealed from will not be interfered with.<sup>1</sup> Where the railroad company has condemned land as the property of the defendant, it cannot on appeal deny his ownership without tendering an issue to that effect.<sup>2</sup>

g. Judgment on Appeal.—The court may, on appeal, amend an error in the judgment to the court below.<sup>3</sup> The deposit of the original award entitles the company in possession until the termination of the appeal;<sup>4</sup> but the mere reversal of judgment condemning land for right of way does not render the possession unlawful and authorize ejectment.<sup>5</sup> But if, on appeal, the damages are increased and are allowed to lie unpaid, the land-owner is entitled to recover back possession.<sup>6</sup> If the amount deposited on taking the land is withdrawn, and subsequently on appeal the award is diminished, the company may recover the diminution and interest.<sup>7</sup> As a general rule, interest and the damages will be held pending an appeal.<sup>8</sup> And it has been held, that even when the compensation is reduced on appeal, interest from the date when the land was taken may be allowed, though a deposit was made pending an appeal.<sup>9</sup>

h. Certiorari.—An unwarranted invasion of an owner's rights, where the proceedings are otherwise valid, and also the constitutionality of the law itself, may be inquired into on certiorari.<sup>10</sup> But certiorari will not lie when an appeal is provided by the statute.<sup>11</sup>

- Ill. 333; s. c., 5 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 357; Detroit, W. T. & J. R. R. Co. v. Crane, 50 Mich. 182; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 602; Republican Valley R. R. v. Hayes, 13 Neb. 489; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217; Chesapeake & O. R. R. Co. v. Patton, 9 W. Va. 648.
1. Smith v. Chicago & W. I. R. Co., 105 Ill. 511; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 384; Louisville & N. A. & C. R. R. v. Wunderlich, 81 Ind. 105; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 410.
2. Gerrard v. Omaha, N. & B. H. R. R. Co., 14 Neb. 270; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 506; Dietrichs v. Lincoln & N. R. R. Co., 14 Neb. 355; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 119; Republican Valley R. R. Co. v. Hayes, 13 Neb. 489; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 217.
3. Ohio R. R. Co. v. Harness, 24 W. Va. 511; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 405.
4. Lake Erie & W. R. R. Co. v. Kinsey, 87 Ind. 514.
5. St. Louis A. & T. H. R. R. Co. v. Karnes, 101 Ill. 402; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 39.
6. Lake Erie & W. R. R. Co. v. Kinsey, 87 Ind. 514.
7. Watson v. Milwaukee & M. R. R. Co., 57 Wis. 332; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 168.
8. Selma R. & D. R. R. Co. v. Gammage, 63 Ga. 604; s. c., 1 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 41; Whitacre v. St. Paul & S. C. R. R. Co., 24 Minn. 311; Warren v. St. Paul & P. R. R. Co., 21 Minn. 424; s. c., 19 Am. Rep. 227; Sioux City, etc., R. R. Co. v. Brown, 13 Neb. 317; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 406; Metler v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 37 N. J. L. (8 Vr.) 222; Ohio R. R. Co. v. Harness, 24 W. Va. 511; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 405. Compare Reisner v. Atchison U. D. & R. R. Co., 27 Kans. 382; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 155.
9. Noble v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 61 Iowa, 637; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 208.
10. California P. R. R. Co. v. Central Pac. R. R. Co., 47 Cal. 528; State, Morris, & E. R. R. Co. v. Hudson Tunnel R. Co., 38 N. J. L. (9 Vr.) 548; State, Mayor, etc., of Jersey City v. Montclair R. Co., 35 N. J. L. (6 Vr.) 328; Doughty v. Somerville & E. R. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. (1 Zab.) 442; Vail v. Morris & E. R. R. Co., 21 N. J. L. (1 Zab.) 189; Central R. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 31 N. J. Eq. (4 Stew.) 492; Van Steenberg v. Bigelow, 3 Wend. (N. Y.) 42.
11. Detroit, W. T. & J. R. R. Co. v. Backus, 48 Mich. 582; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 404; Detroit & B. C. R. R. Co. v. Graham, 46 Mich. 642; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 327.

Irregularity in the usual proceedings to assess damages may be brought up by certiorari.<sup>1</sup>

12. Costs. — It has been held that the costs in eminent domain proceedings are not recoverable unless given by the statute which provides the remedy.<sup>2</sup> It has also been laid down that the company is the losing party within the meaning of the statute, if damages be awarded against it, notwithstanding the amount may have been decreased on appeal.<sup>3</sup> But the general rule is to impose on the appellant the costs of an appeal shown to be useless by a failure to obtain a modification in favor of the appellant.<sup>4</sup> When, on an appeal by the railroad company, the order confirming the award is reversed and new commissioners are appointed, the railroad company, although successful, must pay the costs.<sup>5</sup> Costs as well as damages must be paid before the company can acquire any right to enter upon the premises.<sup>6</sup> Where on appeal the railroad company abandons proceedings, the costs must be taxed to it.<sup>7</sup>

1 Delaware, L. & W. R. v. Burson, 61 Pa. St. 369. See also Reg. v. Manchester & L. R. Co., 8 Ad. & El. 415; s. c., 35 Eng. C. L. 415.

2 Metler v. Easton & A. R. R. Co., 37 N. J. L. (8 Vr.) 222; Herbein v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co., 9 Watts (Pa.), 272.

3 Goodwin v. Boston & M. R. R. Co., 63 Me. 363.

4 Costs of Appeal. — When on Appellant. — Leak v. Selma, R. & D. R. R., 47 Ga. 345; People v. McRoberts, 62 Ill. 38; Noble v. Des Moines & St. L. R. R. Co., 61 Iowa, 637; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 208; Harrison v. Iowa M. R. R., 36 Iowa, 323; Helm v. Short, 7 Bush (Ky.) 623; New Orleans P. R. R. Co. v. Gay, 31 La. An. 430; Vicksburg, S. & T. R. R. v. Calderwood, 15 La. An. 481; Childs v. New Haven & N. Co., 135 Mass. 570; s. c., 17 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 139; Kidder v. Oxford, 116 Mass. 165; Harvard B. R. R. Co. v. Rand, 62 Mass. (8 Cush.) 218; In re Morse, 35 Mass. (18 Pick.) 443; Metler v. Easton & A. R. R., 37 N. J. L. (8 Vr.) 222; People v. Van Alstyne, 3 Keyes (N. Y.), 35; Schuylkill Nav. Co. v. Kittera, 2 Rawle (Pa.) 438; White v. Coleman, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 138; Eppes v. Cralle, 1 Munf. (Va.) 258; Washburn v. Milwaukee & L. W. R. R. Co., 59 Wis. 364; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 225. Compare People v. McRoberts, 62 Ill. 38; s. c., 7 Am. Ry. Rep. 445.

5 In re New York, W. S. & B. R. R. Co., 94 N. Y. 287.

When Appellant Company, though Successful, to pay Costs. — In this case the court said, "We are of opinion that the general term had no power to award these costs. If the appeal to the general term had been taken by the land-owners, and they had been defeated, it may be that the court could, in its discretion, have compelled them to pay the costs to which they had subjected the company by such an appeal. But the appeal was taken by the company because it was dissatisfied with the amount awarded, and was a continuation of the proceeding instituted by it to ascertain the compensation payable to the land-owners, and to acquire their land against their will. In such a case, to compel the land-owners to pay any part of the expenses incurred by the company for the purpose of ascertaining the compensation, which proceedings were an indispensable condition of its right to take the land, would conflict with the constitutional right of the land-owners to just compensation. They are entitled to the full amount of their damages when finally ascertained, and this amount cannot be diminished by allowing to the company its own expenses incurred in ascertaining it, or in endeavoring to reduce it."

6 Chicago & M. R. R. Co. v. Bull, 30 Ill. 218. Compare Evansville & C. S. R. R. v. Fitzpatrick, 10 Ind. 120.

7 Leisse v. St. Louis & I. Mt. R. R. Co., 72 Mo. 561; s. c., 2 Mo. App. 105; North Missouri R. R. Co. v. Raynal, 25 Mo. 534.

Appeal by Railroad Company. — Abandonment of Appeal. — Costs. — In St. Louis, F. S. & W. R. R. Co. v. Martin, 29 Kans. 750; s. c., 10 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 514, the company argued that the appeal having been taken by the land-owner from the assessment of the damages, and as he occupied the position of party plaintiff, the costs could not be taxed against it. The court however held that the company was liable. "In the proceeding as it was originally instituted, the railroad company was substantially the plaintiff and Martin substantially

13. Limitations. — Where land is entered upon by a railroad company, the legislature may properly limit the time within which actions may be brought, and, on a failure to bring the action within a reasonable time, the land-owner will be presumed to have waived his damages.<sup>1</sup> It has been held that, in the absence of an express statutory provision, the railroad company cannot acquire a title by adverse possession which will bar the right to have an inquisition of damages.<sup>2</sup> But other States hold that such right may be acquired by possession for the party required by the general statute of limitations.<sup>3</sup> a defendant. The railroad company proceeded in the case until it procured in legal contemplation a right to the perpetual use of a portion of the plaintiff's land for a right of way for its railroad. Nothing further was to be done on its part to secure its object, except to pay the amount of damages awarded by the board of commissioners. But Martin was not satisfied with the damages awarded to him, and hence he appealed to the district court. His appeal, however, did not disturb any of the other proceedings. His appeal enabled him merely to litigate the question as to the amount of damages which he should recover, and nothing else; and it did not and could not disturb the company's right of way across his land. If that right were to be disturbed or in any manner impaired, it could be so done only with the consent of the railroad company itself. As the railroad company had already obtained all that it sought to obtain by virtue of the condemnation proceedings, it properly ceased to be the plaintiff, and Martin, who was seeking for a greater amount of damages, and who took the appeal to the district court, very properly became the plaintiff in that court. After the condemnation proceedings were taken on appeal to the district court, the railroad company chose to abandon all its rights, obtained by virtue of such proceedings, and to surrender them back to Martin. It virtually chose to dismiss the condemnation proceedings which it had previously instituted, and virtually to accept a nonsuit. The abandonment of all the rights and interests which he had obtained by virtue of the condemnation proceedings is, in effect, very similar to the dismissal of an ordinary action. It is true, that with respect to the damages, and after the case was appealed to the district court, Martin would seem to be the plaintiff and the railroad company the defendant; but with respect to the entire proceedings from the commencement to the conclusion (the whole of the condemnation proceedings), the railroad company would seem more properly to answer to the description and definition of a plaintiff, and Martin to the description and definition of the defendant, and hence the abandonment by the railroad company, of every thing connected with the condemnation proceedings, would more properly seem to be a dismissal or abandonment of the case by the railroad company than by Martin. A dismissal or abandonment by Martin would simply be a dismissal or abandonment of his appeal, leaving the railroad company to enjoy all its rights and privileges obtained under the condemnation proceedings. Martin had nothing else than his appeal to dismiss or abandon. But he did not dismiss or abandon his appeal. He prosecuted it to the end, and until the railroad company agreed on its part to virtually abandon the whole of the condemnation proceedings, and all the right which it had obtained under such proceedings. But if the railroad company, after instituting condemnation proceedings, and after prosecuting the same until it had obtained interests in the property, should then say to the owner of the property, 'We do not want your land; we do not choose to use it for railroad purposes, or for any other purpose, but return it to you;' and if the owner should not wish to prosecute the case any further for the damages already committed by the railroad company, we would think that it would be proper for the court to render a judgment in favor of the owner of the land, and against the railroad company for costs."

1. Harper v. Richardson, 22 Cal. 251; Tileston v. Brookline, 134 Mass. 438; Davis v. New Bedford, 133 Mass. 549; Welsh v. Chicago B., etc., R., 19 Mo. App. 127; Carolina C. R. R. v. McCaskill, 94 N. C. 746; Reckner v. Warner, 22 Ohio St. 275; Anness v. Providence, 13 R. I. 17; McLauchlin v. Charlotte & S. C. R. R., 5 Rich (S. C.), L. 583.

2. Delaware R. R. Co. v. Burson, 61 Pa. St. 369; Dixon v. B. & P. R. R. Co., 1 Mackey (D. C.), 78; s. c., 3 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 201.

3. Oliphant v. Commrs. of Atchison Co., 18 Kans. 386; Gowen v. Penobscot R. R. Co., 44 Me. 140; Bumpus v. Miller, 4 Mich. 159; McClinton v. Pittsburg, F. W. & C.

14. Abandonment. — Until actual payment of the compensation, or until the company has entered into possession of the lands, the land-owner acquires no vested interest in the damages assessed; and hence it has been generally held that the company may abandon it any time prior thereto.<sup>1</sup> Hence it has been held that an appeal from an award, and the overruling of a motion to set the same aside, does not deprive the party seeking to condemn the land from abandoning the proceedings after the proceedings of the Supreme Court.<sup>2</sup> But the right to abandon is lost if the company have reduced the land to possession, and constructed the public improvement thereon,<sup>3</sup> or private rights have attached which would be prejudiced by the abandonment.<sup>4</sup>

15. Arbitration. — The question of the compensation to be made may be submitted to arbitration by officers of the railway company, who were intrusted with the power of making purchases, and, without express authority from the company, were in the habit of agreeing upon a price by a submission to arbitration.<sup>5</sup> The award of the arbitrators need not specify separately the respective sums for the value of the land and for the damages: all that is required is that the whole shall be considered.<sup>6</sup> Even where the question of damages is submitted to arbitration the railroad company cannot, if the time of payment is not agreed upon, acquire any title to the land until payment has been made.<sup>7</sup> An objection taken in statutory proceedings that they are barred by an agreement to submit the matters in dispute between the parties to arbitration will be waived, if not urged before the commissioners for the assessment of damages.<sup>8</sup>

R. R. Co., 66 Pa. St. 404; Hannum v. West Chester, 63 Pa. St. 475; Houston & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Chaffin, 60 Tex. 553; Kendall v. Missisquoi & C. R. R. Co., 55 Vt. 438; s. c., 14 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 423.

1. Abandonment. — Right of. — Denver & N. O. R. R. Co. v. Lamborn, 8 Colo. 380; s. c., 23 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 115; Peoria & R. I. R. R. Co. v. Rice, 75 Ill. 329; Burlington & M. R. R. v. Sater, 1 Iowa, 421; Black v. Mayor of Baltimore, 50 Md. 235; Norris v. Mayor, etc., 44 Md. 508; Graff v. Mayor of Baltimore, 10 Md. 544; Northern Missouri R. R. v. Lackland, 25 Mo. 515; Leisse v. St. Louis & I. Mt. R. R., 2 Mo. App. 105; In re Waverly Water Works Co., 85 N. Y. 478; Matter of Comms. of Washington Park, 56 N. Y. 144; Martin v. Mayor of Brooklyn, 1 Hull (N. Y.), 545; Matter of Anthony St., 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 618; State v. Cincinnati & I. R. R., 17 Ohio St. 103; Dayton & W. R. R. v. Marshall, 11 Ohio St. 497; Stacey v. Vermont C. R. R. Co., 27 Vt. 39; Stiles v. Middlesex, 8 Vt. 436; Reg. v. Comms. of Rochdale Improvement Act, 2 Jur. N. S. (Q. B.) 861.

2. Compare Drath v. Burlington & M. R. Co., 15 Neb. 367; s. c., 20 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 385.

3. Gray v. St. Louis & S. F. R. R. Co., 81 Mo. 126; s. c., 22 Am. & Eng. R. R. Cas. 106.

4. Lafayette v. Shultz, 44 Ind. 97; Duncan v. Louisville, 8 Bush (Ky.), 98; Jones v. Oxford Co., 45 Me. 419; Farnsworth v. Boston, 121 Mass. 173; Pinkerton v. Boston & A. R. R. Co., 109 Mass. 327; Harrington v. Comms. of Berkshire Co., 39 Mass. (22 Pick.) 263; Pollard v. Moore, 51 N. H. 188; O'Neill v. Hudson Co., 41 N. J. L. (12 Vr.) 161; Crowner v. Watertown & R. R. Co., 9 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 457; In re Dover St., 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 506; People v. Brooklyn, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 319; Garrison v. New York, 88 U. S. (21 Wall.) 196; bk. 22 L. ed. 612.

5. Wood v. Auburn & R. R. R. Co., 8 N. Y. 160.

6. Wood v. Auburn & R. R. R. Co., 8 N. Y. 160.

7. Stewart v. Raymond R. R. Co., 15 Miss. (7 Smed. & M.) 568.

8. Field v. Vermont & M. R. R. Co., 58 Mass. (4 Cush.) 150.

EMOLUMENT. — The profit arising from office or employment; that which is received as a compensation for services, or which is annexed to the possession of office, as salary, fees, and perquisites; advantage; gain, public or private.<sup>1</sup>

EMPANEL. (See JURY.) — The writing the names of a jury on a schedule by the sheriff or other officer lawfully authorized.<sup>2</sup>

EMPLOY. — To engage in one's service; to use as an agent or substitute in transacting business; to commission and intrust with the management of one's affairs.<sup>3</sup> When used passively, it

1. Webster's Dict., adopted by the court in Apple v. Crawford Co., 105 Pa. St. 300; s. c., 51 Am. Rep. 205. In this case it was held that where it is the official duty of a sheriff to board the prisoners in the county jail, the sum secured to him by law as a compensation for this service is an emolument, within the meaning of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, Art. III. sec. 13, which provides that no law shall increase or diminish any public officer's "salary or emolument" after his election or appointment. "We think," said Green, J., "the word imports more than the word 'salary' or 'fees,' and because it is contained in the constitution in addition to the word 'salary,' we ought to give it the meaning which it bears in ordinary acceptance. By the definition above given [see text], it imports any perquisite, advantage, profit, or gain arising from the possession of an office." See also Peeling v. York Co., 113 Pa. St. 108; s. c., 8 East. Rep. 261; Fox v. Lebanon Co., 4 Pa. Co. Ct. Rep. 393.

The English Telegraph Act of 31 & 32 Vict. c. 110, enables the Postmaster-General to purchase the undertakings of telegraph companies. By s. 8, sub-s. 7, every officer and clerk of any company, the undertaking of which may be so purchased, who has been a certain time in the service of the company, and who is in receipt of a certain salary, is entitled, if he receive no offer of an appointment by the Postmaster-General in the telegraphic department, to receive an annuity, which, under certain circumstances, shall be equal to two-thirds of the "annual emolument" derived by him from his office on a certain date. Under this act, S., an officer of a telegraph company that had been purchased, claimed as a part of his "annual emolument" the travelling expenses allowed him by the company, by reason of which he saved a large part of the money which he would otherwise have expended at home for board and lodging. It was held by the court of appeal, affirming the judgment of the Queen's Bench Division, that any thing which S.'s allowance enabled him to save from his ordinary expenses was an "emolument," and therefore a subject for compensation.

Says Brett, L. J., "That annual emolument is the value of his appointment. If a person only receives a salary, what is the value of his appointment? If there is nothing to be added to the salary, or deducted from it, the value of the appointment is the salary; but if the salary is subject to his finding certain materials, it would be impossible to say that the salary is the proper measure of the value of the appointment or of his emolument. The emolument would be the amount of the salary, less the cost of the materials he had to supply. Then, if he receives a salary and something additional by way of remuneration, the value of the appointment or of the emolument must be the salary and any thing which he gains by the remuneration."

2. Bouv. Law Dict., adopted in Lyman v. People, 7 Bradw. (Ill.) 345, and Porter v. Cass, 7 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 441; Co. Litt. 158 b.

The act of empanelling has nothing to do with that of drawing, selecting, or swearing those who are to serve as jurors, but simply with making the list of those who have been selected. Porter v. Cass, 7 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 441. Swearing is not a part of the empanelling. State v. Potter, 18 Conn. 175. Nor can it be inferred from the use of the word "empanelled," that the jurors were sworn. Lyman v. People, 7 Bradw. (Ill.) 345.

3. McCluskey v. Cromwell, 11 N. Y. 593. The word, "when used in respect to a servant or hired laborer, is equivalent to hiring, which implies a request and a contract for compensation, and has but this one meaning when used in the ordinary affairs and business of life." Laborers employed by a sub-contractor were held in this case not to be laborers employed by the chief contractor himself, within the meaning of a bond to pay the compensation of such laborers; Ruggles, J., dissenting.

The use of the word implies the relationship of master and servant. State v. Emerson, 72 Me. 455. Says Crompton, J., in Emmens v. Elderton, 4 H. L. Cas. 624, sometimes has a reflexive meaning, signifying only to be engaged in.<sup>1</sup>

"The words 'retain and employ,' as used in the present case, are a mere amplification of the preceding contract of hiring and service. These words are used in the precedents continually as meaning a hiring, engaging, and keeping a person in a service, and do not necessarily imply that the master is bound to supply the servant with any particular work whilst the relation subsists." In this case a contract between a corporation and an attorney by which he was to accept a salary in lieu of rendering an annual bill of costs, and advise and act for the company on all occasions in all matters connected therewith, was held sufficient to support an allegation that the corporation had promised to retain and employ him as attorney. In the Exchequer Chamber, Parke, B., said, "Does it also imply a promise to employ? It depends on the meaning of this word 'employ.' If it means that the company shall be bound to supply him with business as an attorney and solicitor at all events, or to require his advice or use his services as attorney or solicitor whenever they have occasion for the advice or services of an attorney or solicitor, we think it clear that there is no such promise on their part. To hold that there was a promise to the former effect would be to hold that the company must be bound to incur litigation as well as create occasions for legal advice. . . .

"But if the word 'employ' means only 'to engage in his service,'—one of the meanings of that term,—then there appears to us to be a promise to that effect. Many cases of employment may be suggested, in different capacities, where the use of the actual service is optional or conditional, and yet the employment may properly be said to take place or continue." Elderton v. Emmens, 6 C. B. 160.

"Employed" is defined in an act to prevent the employing of children to mean "occupied in any handicraft, whether for wages or not, under a master or servant." A child who was sent to a man to learn to read and to make straw plait, who worked under his superintendence, making from straw furnished by its mother the plait, which it took home to her, and for whose tuition the mother paid, was held to be employed under the act. Bladon v. Parrott, L. R. 8 Q. B. 718.

Where an act required a clerk to have been employed in the business of an attorney for five years before he could be admitted as an attorney, an absence of eleven months on a sea-voyage for his health could not be estimated as a part of the time of his clerkship. Ex parte Moses, L. R. 9 Q. B. 1.

But a ship is in the employ of her freighter where she is hauled off for repairs during the voyage, within the meaning of a charter party wherein he agreed to pay so much for six months and in proportion for any longer time she might be employed by him; and the owner agreed to keep her in repair. Ripley v. Scaife, 5 B. & C. 167.

A vessel intended for the slave trade, on its outward voyage, before any slaves are taken on board, is "employed, or made use of, in the transportation or carrying of slaves from one foreign country to another," within the meaning of an act prohibiting the same. "To be employed in any thing means not only the act of doing it, but also to be engaged to do it, or to be under contract to do it." United States v. Morris, 14 Pet. (U.S.) 464; United States v. Schooner Catherine, 2 Paine (C. C.), 721. The vessel is employed in the trade from the time it is fitted out for it. The brig Alexander, 3 Mason (C. C.), 175. Buildings in course of erection for the custody of arms are employed for public service, within the meaning of a building act, although not completed. The Queen v. Jay, 8 E. & B. 469.

A more restricted meaning was put upon the word in School District v. Dilman, 22 Ohio St. 194. Where, under an act providing that no one should be employed as a teacher unless he had first obtained the certificate required by law, it was held that the employment began, not at the time of the contract, but at the time of entering upon the performance of the duties of the position. If the certificate was obtained in the interval, the contract was valid.

A stipulation in a contract of hiring a slave, that he is not to be employed on water, is not broken by sending him to water horses, with instructions not to ride into deep water. Madre v. Saunders, 3 Jones (N. Car.), 1.

A general order in bankruptcy allowing the assignee fees for an attorney-at-law, where "necessarily employed by the assignee," does not authorize such fees where the assignee is himself an attorney. In re Muldaur, 8 Ben. (C. C.) 65.

1. One may be employed about his own business. In a statutory definition of vagrancy, one "employed as a beer-carrier," may include the proprietor of a saloon, as well as his employees. State v. Canton, 43 Mo. 48. Cf. meaning of employment.

"Persons who are employed, or about to engage, in the cultivation of the soil," in an act providing for the creation of agricultural liens by such, has reference only to the cultivator of the soil on his own

EMPLOY OR EMPLOYMENT—EMPLOYEE.

To select; to designate.<sup>1</sup>

EMPLOY OR EMPLOYMENT. (See BUSINESS; EMBEZZLEMENT; FELLOW-SERVANT; MASTER AND SERVANT.)—Occupation; business; object of industry; engagement; a vocation; calling or profession; service of another.<sup>2</sup>

EMPLOYEE. (See EMBEZZLEMENT; FELLOW-SERVANT; GARNISHMENT; MASTER AND SERVANT.)—One who is employed.<sup>4</sup>

account; i.e., the proprietor, either as land-owner or tenant, and as such owner of the crop to be made. The phrase does not include a mere laborer for wages, engaged as a farm-hand in cultivating the soil. Carpenter v. Strickland, 20 S. Car. 1.

1. Petition of Wm. B. Astor, 50 N. Y. 363. Used of selection of newspapers for advertising by municipalities.

2. State v. Canton, 43 Mo. 48.

A cadetship is an "office, commission, place, or employment" within the meaning of an act making it a misdemeanor to receive money in exchange for such. The Queen v. Charretie, 13 Q. B. 447.

The word does not necessarily mean "a case in which a man is set to work for money by another person. A man may so employ himself in order to earn money as to be said to carry on an employment." The occupation of a bookmaker, who attends horse-races, and bets upon them, is a vocation or employment within the meaning of an income tax act. Partridge v. Malandaine, 56 L. J. R. Q. B. D. 251; s. c., 56 L. T. N. S. 204.

In order to constitute the sale of liquor one's business or employment within the meaning of a license act, it is necessary that more than one sale should be made; employment being that which occupies the time, attention, and labor of men for the purpose of a livelihood or profit. Moore v. State, 16 Ala. 411; Harris v. State, 50 Ala. 127; Lawson v. State, 55 Ala. 118; United States v. Jackson, 1 Hughes (C. C.), 531; Bishop on Staty. Cr. § 1016.

"Professional Employment can only relate to some of those occupations universally classed as professions, the general duties and character of which courts must be expected to understand judicially." A real-estate agent is not engaged in professional employment. Pennock v. Fuller, 41 Mich. 153.

3. In this sense, to which employ, when used as a noun, is confined, the word involves the relationship of master and servant. A contractor who is his own master, and employs men who are under his direction and control, is not "in the employ" of his contractee. State v. Emerson, 72 Me. 455.

4. Webster, adopted in Ritter v. State, 111 Ind. 324; s. c., 12 N. Eastn. Rep. 581; 9 W. Rep. 820, and Stone v. United States, 3 Ct. of Clms. Repts. 360.

An employee is one who renders labor or service to another. A drayman who rendered his entire service to a manufacturing company is an employee in its regular employ, within the meaning of a statute giving preference to wages claims. Watson v. Watson Manfg. Co., 30 N. J. Eq. 588.

An act of Congress increasing the salaries of "civil officers and temporary and all other clerks and employees in the office" of the commissioner of public buildings, includes in its terms a member of the Capitol police—Mallory v. United States, 3 Ct. of Clms. Rep. 257—and a laborer on public grounds. Stone v. United States, 3 Ct. of Clms. Rep. 260. In the latter case Peck, J., said, "Webster in his dictionary says an employee 'is one who is employed,' which is the only definition given by him. Worcester says an employee 'is one who is employed: an official, a clerk, a servant.' Johnson's dictionary does not define the word. It seems to be a word recently adopted into our language from the French, and applies equally to a person within or without the office, whether he be a servant or clerk. . . . A person who is engaged in the performance of the proper duties of an office is an 'employee in the office,' whether his particular duties are carried on within or without the walls of the building in which the chief officer generally transacts his business. . . . The word 'employee' signifies any one in place, or having charge, or using a function, as well as one in office."

An order directing the receiver of a railroad to pay debts "owing to the laborers and employees" of the company "for labor and services actually done in connection with the company's railways," includes a claim for services as counsel. "It is manifest that literally and lexically the claimant was an employee of the company; that is, he was employed by, and rendered important services for, them. . . . This is a word of more comprehensive signification than laborers and operatives" (Church, C. J.).

"The term 'employee' is the correlative

EMPOWER—EMPTY—ENAGENACION—ENCLOSURE.

EMPOWER.<sup>1</sup>

EMPTY.<sup>2</sup>

ENAGENACION. (In Mexican conveyances.)—Alienation.<sup>3</sup>

ENCLOSED LANDS.—Lands surrounded by a fence.<sup>4</sup>

ENCLOSURE.—A tract of land surrounded by a fence; and the fence around the tract.<sup>5</sup>

of 'employer,' and neither term has either technically or in general use a restricted meaning by which any particular employment or service is indicated. The terms are as applicable to attorney and client, physician and patient, as to master and servant, a farmer and day-laborer, or a master-mechanic and his workman. To employ is to engage or use another as an agent or substitute in transacting business or the performance of some service: it may be skilled labor, or the service of the scientist or professional man as well as servile or unskilled manual labor" (Allen, J.). Gurney v. A. & G. W. Ry. Co., 58 N. Y. 358.

But where an act regulating the foreclosure of railroads provided that the purchaser should pay "all sums due or owing . . . to any servant or employee," these terms were held not to include the secretary of the company. They include only "operatives of the grade of servants, who have not a different, proper, and distinctive appellation, such as officers and agents of the company." "The officers of the company are its agents, and, it may be said, are the official masters who direct and control the servants and employees. The former are appointed and elected, and are trustees: the latter are hired, and are the subordinates of the former." Wells v. S. M. Ry. Co., 1 McCrary (C. C.), 18; s. c., 1 Fed. Rep. 270.

The president of a railroad is not an employee within the meaning of a statutory provision excepting wages from garnishment. S. & N. A. R. R. Co. v. Falkner, 49 Ala. 115.

1. An act providing for relief against illegal taxation, by the terms of which boards of supervisors are "authorized and empowered," upon application of any aggrieved party, to hear and determine claims for taxes improperly collected, is mandatory, and does not make it discretionary with the board whether they will hear a claim. People v. Board of Supervisors of Herkimer Co., 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 452. But an act "empowering" a judge of probate to take an administration bond in a special case, in a mode different from that prescribed by the general law, was held not to be imperative in Picquet's App. 5 Pick. (Mass.) 65. And see Binney v. C. & O. Canal Co., 8 Pet. (U. S.) 201. See MAY.

"License and empower" were held to import a grant in a deed creating a right to construct and use fifty patented machines. Washburn v. Gould, 3 Story (C. C.), 162.

2. "Empty boat or vessel" in an act granting and regulating tolls means without cargo, not without passengers. Perrine v. C. & O. Canal Co., 9 How. (U. S.) 189.

3. "According to Escriche, 'enagenacion' means, 'The act by which the property in a thing, by lucrative title, is transferred, as a donation; or by onerous title, as by sale or barter.'"

"This word, taken in a more extended sense, comprises also the enfiteusis (lease), the pledge, the mortgage, and even the creation of a servidumbre (servitude) on an estate." . . .

"Now, what is the plain sense of this definition of the word 'enagenacion'? Obviously, that in its ordinary use it means a transfer of the title, the fee; but taken in its more comprehensive and enlarged sense, it may mean something more than is usually understood by it, and include the six other contracts mentioned. The word as used in the instrument under consideration, has been rendered in all the translations in the record by the English word 'alienation'; and it is manifest from the definition given by Escriche in its most comprehensive sense, that the meaning of the two words 'enagenacion' and 'alienation' are as nearly identical as the significations of any two words in different languages are ordinarily found to be." When no limiting term is used, the use of the term indicates an intention to convey the fee. Mulford v. Le Franc, 26 Cal. 88.

4. Tapsell v. Crosskey, 7 M. & W. 441.

Where a statute required railroad companies to fence their tracks along "enclosed or cultivated fields," it is not necessary, that, in order to be entitled to this protection, the enclosure of the fields should be by lawful fences. Biggerstaff v. St. L. K. C. & N. Ry. Co., 60 Mo. 567.

5. This meaning was adopted in Taylor v. Welbey, 36 Wis. 42, where the word was construed as used in a statute limiting the right of distraining beasts damage feasant, within the enclosure of the distrainer. See Bouv. Law Dict.

In the interpretation of a similar act, it

ENCOURAGE—ENCROACHMENT—ENDOW, ETC.

ENCOURAGE.—To intimate; to incite to any thing; to give courage to; to inspirit; to embolden; to raise confidence; to make confident.<sup>1</sup>

ENCROACHMENT.—See OBSTRUCTION.

ENCUMBRANCE (See COVENANTS OF TITLE.)—Any thing which constitutes a burden upon the title.<sup>2</sup>
Obstruction.<sup>3</sup>

END.—See AT; CURRENT; WILLS.<sup>4</sup>

The action en declaration de simulation is, in the law of Louisiana, an action to have a contract declared judicially a simulation and a nullity, to remove a cloud from the title, and to bring back, for any legal purpose, the thing sold to the estate of the true owner. It is essentially one in revendication, and never of condition.<sup>5</sup> was said, "The word enclosure imports land enclosed with something more than the imaginary boundary-line; that there should be some visible or tangible obstruction, such as a fence, hedge, ditch, or something equivalent, for the protection of the premises against encroachment by cattle." Close is a more extensive word including cases where land is enclosed by only imaginary boundary-lines. Its use in pleading under these statutes instead of enclosure is bad. Porter v. Aldrich, 39 Vt. 326.

ENDOW, ENDOWMENT.—Wealth applied to any person or thing.<sup>6</sup>

A potato-patch is not within the meaning of an act forbidding the laying out of roads or streets through yards or enclosures necessary to the use and enjoyment of any dwelling-house or manufacturing establishment to which it is appurtenant. Lansing v. Caswell, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 519.

1. Huddleston, B., in The Queen v. Most, 7 Q. B. D. 258. And see Rex v. Royce, 4 Burr. 2073.

2. Post v. Campan, 42 Mich. 90. "Every right to, or interest in, the land, to the diminution of the value of the land, but consistent with the passage of the fee by the conveyance." Prescott v. Trueman, 4 Mass. 627.

Webster's definition, "a burden or charge upon property; a legal claim or lien upon an estate," is adopted in Redmon v. Phoenix Fire Ins. Co., 51 Wis. 293; s. c., 37 Am. Rep. 830, where it was decided that a mechanic's lien is an encumbrance within the meaning of a warranty against encumbrances in an insurance policy.

3. Fox v. City of Winona, 23 Minn. 10. The power to prevent the encumbrance of its streets by a municipal corporation, includes the power to remove a wooden awning, which is an obstruction.

4. An entry by the plaintiff of "ended and debt and costs paid" in the docket of a suit, is equivalent to an entry of satisfaction, and may be pleaded in bar of a new suit for the same cause of action. Phillips v. Israel, 10 S. & R. (Pa.) 391.

Where A. shipped on board B.'s fishing-vessel, under an agreement that he should have a certain proportion of the fish taken, and drew an order on B. requesting him to pay C. a certain sum at the end of the voyage, if he should make enough, which was accepted by B., the end of the voyage meant, not the arrival of the vessel at port, but a point of time after the sale of the fish. Bradford v. Drew, 5 Metc. (Mass.) 188.

End on.—Under a regulation, that, if two sailing ships are meeting end on, or nearly end on, so as to involve risk of collision, the helms of both shall be put to port, "sailing ships are meeting end on when they are approaching each other from opposite directions, or on such parallel lines as involve risk of collision on account of their proximity, and when the vessels have advanced so near to each other that the necessity for precaution to prevent such a disaster begins;" and "nearly end on" includes "cases where two sailing ships are approaching from nearly opposite directions, or on lines of approach substantially parallel, and so near to each other as to involve risk of collision." The Nichols, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 656.

5. Edwards v. Ballard, 20 La. Ann. 170. It is to be distinguished from the revocatory action, the object of which is to avoid serious but fraudulent contracts, while that en declaration de simulation aims at declaring simulated, acts which are contrary to truth. Erwin v. Bank of Ky., 5 La. Ann. 1.

6. Whar. Law Lex.; Rapalje & L. Law Dict.

"The word 'endow' means giving a benefit to some existing thing: it supposes something to exist, either at the time when the gift is made, or when the endowment is to take place." Edwards v. Hall, 6 DeG. M. & G. 83.

ENEMY.<sup>1</sup>

A taxation act, after exempting certain lands and chattels, among others, buildings erected and used for religious worship, and the furniture thereof, and personal property used therein, exempted the "endowment or fund" of any religious society. "These words 'endowment or fund' are ejusdem generis, and intended to comprehend a class of property different from the other two, not real estate or chattels. The only difference between the words is, that the fund is a general term including the endowment; while the endowment is that particular fund, or part of the fund, of the institution, bestowed for its more permanent uses, and usually kept sacred for the purposes intended." Endowment does not include real estate, and consequently a parsonage is not exempt from taxation. First Ref. Dutch Ch. v. Lyon, 32 N. J. L. 360. Nor are lots, part of the church property, situated apart from the church edifice. State v. Nevin, 38 N. J. L. 323.

1. Indians at peace with the United States are, in no received sense of the word, an enemy, and cannot be judicially considered as embraced within it. Claim of Col. Thomas, 4 Op. Atty-Gen'l, 8r.

An Enemy under the Rule of Law that permits the Seizure of an Enemy's Property.—If a citizen during the late civil war resided within the lines of the Confederate army, he might have, prima facie, been considered an enemy to the United States, and his property enemy's property, and liable to seizure; and likewise, if he resided within what were only the temporary lines of the Union army. Taylor v. Jenkins, 24 Ark. 337.

An Enemy under the Statute of 25 Ed. III.—By this statute it is declared to be high treason "if a man be adherent to the enemies of our lord the king, in the realm, giving to them aid or comfort in his realm or elsewhere." The word "enemies," in this clause, is not confined to the subjects of a state in amity with the king; for if any of the subjects of state in amity with the king have commenced, or have made preparations for the commencing of, hostilities against the king, these are his enemies. If any subjects of a State in amity with the king are in the service of a state at war with the king, the giving aid or comfort to these is adhering to the king's enemies; for they are to be considered by all states, except that of which they are subjects, as the subjects of the state in whose service they are. It has been holden, that, adhering to the subjects of a state at war with the king, against the king's allies, is an adhering to the king's enemies. Bacon's Abr. "Treason," G.; Vaughan's Case, 5 Salk. 634.

An Enemy under Art. III. Sec. 3, Cl. 1 of the Constitution of the United States.—This clause, which declares that "treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort," was borrowed from the statute of 25 Ed. III. Rebels, being citizens, are not enemies within its meaning; and hence, a conviction for treason in promoting a rebellion cannot be sustained under it. "The term enemies," says Field, J., "as used in the second clause, according to its settled meaning at the time the Constitution was adopted, applies only to the subjects of a foreign power in a state of open hostility with us. It does not embrace rebels in insurrection against their own government. An enemy is always the subject of a foreign power, who owes no allegiance to our government or country." United States v. Greathouse, 1 Abb. (U.S.) 364; s. c., 4 Sawy. (U. S.) 457.

An Enemy under the Rule of Law that exempts Ballees from Liability for Losses occasioned by the Public Enemy.—The defendant was the owner of a steamboat, upon which certain merchandise belonging to the plaintiff was shipped from New Orleans. By the bill of lading, the defendant engaged to deliver it at Louisville, Kentucky, "the dangers of navigation and fire alone excepted." At Memphis, on May 20, 1861, before Tennessee had seceded from the Union, the boat was boarded by a number of armed men, under the command of an officer, and the goods seized. On the trial of the cause, the court, as stated in the opinion of the Supreme Court, charged the jury in substance as follows: "If they find from the evidence, that, at the time and before the seizure of said goods, the citizens of the State of Tennessee were laboring under great excitement; that large numbers of the inhabitants had armed, and organized themselves into military companies and regiments, and that others were rapidly arming and organizing; that the chief offices of the State were in the hands of these organizations, or of persons affiliating or operating with them; that forts were being built, and the United States property being seized by them; that all these things were in open and avowed hostility to the Federal Government, for the purpose of opposing an armed resistance to execution of the laws, or for the purpose of making common cause with the insurgents of the other Southern States; and that these insurrectionary proceedings had been pushed to such an extent within the State of Tennessee, that her power was in fact in the hands and under the control of these conspirators, and the government in their hands, her soil in their possession, the regular course of justice interrupted, so that loyal courts could not be kept open, nor protection given to loyal men without the interference of military power, and that the Federal Government was marshalling her forces for the purpose of asserting the national sovereignty,—if these insurrectionary combinations existed in the State of Tennessee, a civil war was then pending between the General Government and such unlawful combination; and if the jury find such armed force [as] took the goods out of the possession of the defendant was a recognized part of such unlawful combination, that such force will be regarded as public enemies, and they will find for the defendant." The jury found for the defendant. On an appeal to the Supreme Court, this was held to be a just exposition of the law. Lewis v. Ludwick, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 368. Tramps, thieves, and robbers are not public enemies within the meaning of this rule. State v. Moore, 74 Mo. 413. A bill of lading for goods shipped in a Russian port, on board a Mecklenburgh ship, for a port in England, contained an exception of "the king's enemies." It was held that "the king's enemies" meant, or at all events included, the enemies of the sovereign of the person who made the bill of lading, viz., the Duke of Mecklenburgh; and, consequently, that the exception protected the captain against the consequences of a hostile seizure by the Danes, then at war with Mecklenburgh. Russell v. Niemann, 17 C. B. (N. S.) 164.

ENFEOFF.—To make a gift of any corporeal hereditaments to another.<sup>1</sup> See FEOFFMENT.

ENFORCE<sup>2</sup>

An Enemy under an Insurance Policy.—A steamboat insured against perils by "enemies, pirates, and assailing thieves," and "all such losses which shall come to the damage of said steamer according to the true intent and meaning of the policy," was captured by an armed force acting under the authority of the so-called Confederate States of America. In an action on the policy it was held that the loss was without doubt within the general words, "all such losses." It was, however, said by the court, that, if this phrase had been omitted, a recovery might probably have been had under the word "enemies" in the policy. Said Thompson, J., "The term 'enemies,' as used in the policy, means public 'enemies,' and is defined by writers on national law to be 'where the whole body of the nation is at war with another.' Bouv. L. Dic. Vattel says, 'An enemy is he with whom a nation is at war.' Law of Nations, 387. Adhering strictly to these definitions, the loss here would hardly be covered by an insurance against 'enemies.' But this is too narrow a ground to take. Indemnity is the object of all insurance; and in marine policies the rule seems to be, that, where the loss is of a like nature with the specified peril, or in other words, substantially within its meaning, to sustain the liability of underwriters. . . . I am inclined, therefore, to think that the loss in this case might have been covered by the peril 'enemies,' even if placed alone on that ground by the pleadings, which was not the case here." Monongahela Ins. Co. v. Chester, 43 Pa. St. 491.

An Enemy under the Act of Congress of March 2, 1799.—By this act it is declared "That for the ships or goods belonging to the citizens of the United States, or to the citizens, or subjects, of any nation in amity with the United States, if retaken from the enemy," within a certain time, the owners are to allow a certain part for salvage. In March, 1799, Congress had raised an army, stopped all intercourse with France, dissolved our treaty, built and equipped ships of war, and commissioned private armed ships, enjoining the former and authorizing the latter to defend themselves against the armed ships of France, to attack them on the high seas, to subdue and take them as prize, and to recapture armed vessels found in their possession. It was held that this constituted a public qualified war between France and the United States, and that the French were an enemy within the act. "As there may be a public general war, and a public qualified war, so there may upon correspondent principles be a general enemy and a partial enemy. The designation of 'enemy' extends to a case of perfect war; but as a general designation, it surely includes the less, as well as the greater, species of war. If Congress had chosen to declare a general war, France would have been a general enemy: having chosen to wage a partial one, France was, at the time of the capture, only a partial enemy. But still she was an enemy." Chase, J., Bas v. Tingy, 4 Dall. (U. S.) 37.

1. Bouv. L. Dic.

Enfeoff was the technical and proper operative word of a feoffment, so long as a feoffment was in use. 1 Davidson's Conv. 68; Perry v. Price, 1 Mo. 553.

2. A statute of Illinois made it the duty of State's attorneys of the several judicial districts to enforce the collection of all fines, etc., imposed or incurred in the courts of record in their several counties. It was held that the power thus conferred necessarily included the right to receive all fines, etc., and give receipts therefor that should operate as a full discharge to the party paying the same, as well as the right to receive the amount of any judgment that might have been rendered for any such fine, etc., and to execute an acquittance therefor. The People v. Christerson, 59 Ill. 157.

ENGAGE<sup>1</sup>

1. A father signed and delivered to his son therein named, a paper expressed in the following terms: "This [is] to certify that I engage to my son Isaac the farm [on] which he now lives." This was held to be an agreement to convey the farm to his son. "One definition of the word 'engage' is, 'to bind my appointment or contract;' and in common parlance it is often used as synonymous with the word 'promise.' I engage to do, or omit to do, an act, is nothing more than a promise to do or omit it." Rue v. Rue, 21 N. J. L. 379.

To Engage in Business. — The English Trademarks Act provides, "The court may, on the application of any person aggrieved, remove any trademark from the register, on the ground, after the expiration of five years from the date of the registry thereof, that the registered proprietor is not engaged in any business concerned in the goods within the same class as the goods with respect to which a trademark is registered." The owner of a patent for a washing-machine applied to it the name of "The Home Washer," and registered that name as his trademark in respect of it. He did not manufacture the machines, or any other goods in the same class, but granted an exclusive license to a manufacturing firm, who paid him royalties. After the expiration of the patent (six years from the registration of the trademark), this firm continued to manufacture the machines, and to describe them by the old name, but paid no royalties. The former owner of the patent, and the registered proprietor of the name, had not, after a year and nine months from the expiration of the patent, begun to manufacture, though he had been in negotiation with manufacturers, to get them to do so in conjunction with him. It was held that one year and nine months was sufficient cesser to bring the registered proprietor of the mark within the description of a "registered proprietor not engaged in any business concerned in the goods within the same class as the goods with respect to which a trademark is registered," notwithstanding the pending negotiations. It seems that a patentee is "engaged in any business," etc., so long as he receives royalties under his patent, even though he does not himself manufacture. In re Ralph's Trademark, L. J. R. Ch. 188.

When it is said that a corporation is engaged in business in a foreign state, and for that reason has voluntarily subjected itself to the operation of the laws of such foreign state regulating the service of process on foreign corporations, reference is plainly had to business operations carried on within the state, through the medium of agents appointed for that purpose, that are continuous, or at least of some duration, and to business transactions that are merely casual, — such as an occasional purchase of goods or material within the foreign state. St. Louis Wire-mill Co. v. Con. Barb-wire Co., 32 Fed. Rep. 802.

See CARRY, note, Carrying on Business.

To engage in shooting. — Under an act which imposed a fine upon any person "who engages in shooting" on Sunday, it was held, that, "to engage in shooting does not imply that the shooting should be repeated. One act is enough." Smith v. State, 50 Ala. 159.

Engaged in an Unlawful Act. — Where a person who is insured deserts from the army, and is shot by a sheriff who is attempting to arrest him, as alleged, in self-defence, it cannot be held, as matter of law, that he was engaged in an unlawful act, within the meaning of a policy of accident insurance, providing that no claim shall be made "when the death or injury may have happened . . . while engaged in, or in consequence of, an unlawful act." Utter v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 26 Am. L. Reg. 477.

Actually engaged. — An act of Congress of the Confederate States exempted persons engaged in certain occupations from military service in the armies of the Confederate States. There was a proviso that declared "that the exemptions granted under this act shall only continue whilst the persons exempted are actually engaged in their respective pursuits or occupations." It was contended that this must be construed to mean, "that all those persons who are exempted shall continually employ their own personal skill and labor in and about the pursuits or occupations on account of which they are exempted;" so that they are also impliedly exempted from State militia service. But the court took a different view of the matter, saying, "When we say, in common parlance, of a man, that he is 'actually engaged' in farming, or planting, does it necessarily imply that he must give his constant personal supervision to his farm or plantation? Does it mean any thing more than that such a man has a farm or plantation in active operation, on his own account, whether he conducts its daily affairs through an overseer, or in person? The words embrace both cases. And so of many, if not most, other pursuits and occupations. The words 'actually engaged,' in common parlance, mean 'really, or truly engaged,'—engaged 'in fact;' and, according to the same law of common use, are the opposite or antithesis of 'seemingly,' or 'pretendedly,' or 'feignedly engaged.' In the common acceptance of the words, the same man may be 'actually engaged' in two or more pursuits, or occupations, at the same time." State in re Strawbridge & Mays, 39 Ala. 383.

ENGAGEMENT.<sup>1</sup>*ENGINE.<sup>2</sup>

1. In English Practice an engagement is an agreement entered into by a married woman, with the intention of binding her separate estate, that would be a contract, if it were not for the incompetency of a married woman to become a party to a contract. "On principle," says Pollock, "it should seem that a married woman's engagement with respect to her separate estate, while not bound by any peculiar forms, is, on the other hand, bound in every case by the ordinary forms of contract; in other words, that no instrument or transaction can take effect as an engagement binding separate estate which could not take effect as a contract if the party were sui juris. That is to say, the creditor must first produce evidence appropriate to the nature of the transaction which would establish a legal debt against a party sui juris, and then must show, by proof or presumption, as explained above, an intention to make the separate estate the debtor." Poll. Cont. (4th ed.) App. 651.

General engagements are defined in Rap. & Law's Dic. as follows: "The promises or debts of a married woman which are not expressly charged by her on her separate estate, are sometimes called her 'general engagements,' and do not bind her separate estate unless made with reference to and upon the faith and credit of that estate." In London Chartered Bank v. Lempière, L. R. 4 P. C. 593, James, L. J., said, "The term 'general' engagement is an ambiguous and misleading one. If it is meant to say that goods sold to a married woman in the ordinary course of domestic life, that contracts expressed to be made by her in respect of property not her separate estate, e.g., for buying or selling, or letting or hiring, a house, do not necessarily impose a liability to be satisfied out of the separate estate which she may happen to have, in that sense, and to that extent, the proposition that her separate estate is not liable to her general engagements is quite accurate." See also Johnson v. Gallagher, 3 DeG. F. & J. 494; Shattuck v. Shattuck, L. R. 2 Eq. 182; Poll. Cont. (4th ed.) 647 et seq.

An Engagement is not a Bank Note.—A charter of an insurance company contained the following provisions: "Any policy or engagement signed by the president, and attested by the secretary, when done conformably to any by-laws of the directors, shall be valid against, and effectually bind, the said corporation, without the presence of a board of directors, and as effectually as if under the seal of the said corporation; provided, however, that no policies or engagements whatsoever, which shall, as aforesaid, be entered into, by this corporation, with any individual, body corporate or politic, either without the seal of this corporation or otherwise, shall be transferable, negotiable, or assignable, so as to give to such second holder or assignee a claim on the said corporation, either in his own name or the name of the person originally concerned, unless the consent of this corporation shall have been previously obtained, and indorsed in writing on such instrument, or unless such a privilege form a part of the original agreement, and be expressly granted by this corporation." Under these provisions, it was contended that the insurance company had a right to issue bank notes. Said the court, "It is a very strained construction of the term 'engagement' to suppose it means a bank note. This is not the usual and ordinary acceptance of the term. . . . The word 'engagement,' as used in the act, may very fairly be considered as synonymous with policy. Yet a more enlarged sense might be given it, and still limit it to contracts in and about the business of insurance, and the transactions expressly authorized by the charter."

2. In Hornblower v. Boulton, 8 Term, 95, which was an action for the infringement of a patent, in which the question of the validity of the patent arose, Lawrence, J., held that the word "engine," in the act of Parliament extending the term of the patent, signified a contrivance or device. "Some of the difficulties in the case," said he, "have arisen from considering the word 'engine' in its popular sense, namely, some mechanical contrivance to effect that to which human strength, without such assistance, is unequal; but it may also signify 'device;' and that Watt meant to use it in that sense, and that the legislature so understood it, is evident from the words 'engine' and 'method' being used as convertible terms."

The statute 52 G. III. c. 130, makes it a capital offence "if any person . . . shall unlawfully, and with force, demolish or pull down, or begin to demolish or pull down, any erection and building or engine which shall be used . . . in the carrying on . . . of any trade or manufactory;" and provides that the injured person shall be entitled to recover damages from the hundred in which the property may be situated. In an action for damages, under this statute, against a hundred, it was held that movable frames for the manufacture of framework lace are not an engine within the meaning of the act. Said Lord Ellenborough, "The word 'engine,' as it is found in this act, does not apply to all the utensils and tools which afford the means of carrying on the trade, such as are the tools and utensils mentioned in the 52 G. III. c. 16, but is to be accepted in a much more limited sense. . . . The word 'engine' is indeed used in both these acts, and perhaps it is owing to this equivocal use of it that we are engaged with this argument to-day. In the act for the protection of the trade [52 G. III. c. 16], it means the utensil by which the trade is carried on. In the 52 G. III. c. 130, the act with which we are at present concerned, the word 'engine' is also used; but it seems to me to demand a different interpretation from that which it bears in the other act, as much as if it had been a different word. . . . This act [52 G. III. c. 130] constitutes it a felony to demolish or pull down, or begin to demolish or pull down, any erection, building, or engine, which must mean engine ejusdem generis; and there is no remedy against the hundred for damages to engines unless where it is an engine analogous to an erection or building. These frames are, indeed, in some degree, connected with the building; but they are not so necessarily, and only so for a temporary purpose; they are movables, like a bed, although of too large dimensions to be moved away without taking them down; they are not, in their nature, fixed, and therefore not of that description for which this remedy will lie." Orgill v. Smith, 6 M. & S. 1182.

Engine to kill Game. — A gun is not necessarily an engine to kill game. In an action of trover for a gun taken by the defendants from the plaintiff, the defendants, in their plea, alleged that the plaintiff kept the gun to kill game, without being qualified; and they justified the taking on the ground that they were the gamekeeper and servants of J. S., the lord of the manor. But the plea did not state that the plaintiff was out sporting with the gun, nor where it was taken. The court held, sustaining a demurrer to this plea, that "a gun is not necessarily to be taken to be an engine to kill game, as it does not appear upon this record that the plaintiff killed game with it; he might use it to shoot crows, or destroy vermin; and it is not like nets and pointers, which can only be kept for killing the game." Wingfield v. Stratford, 1 Wils. 315.

By 1 & 2 Wm. IV. c. 32, "If any person shall kill or take any game, or use any dog, gun, net, or other engine or instrument of destruction for the purpose of killing or taking any game on a Sunday," he shall, on conviction, be liable to a penalty. It was held that a snare was an engine or instrument within the meaning of the act, and that putting down a snare on a day before Sunday for the purpose of killing game, and keeping it set on Sunday, was using an engine or instrument on Sunday. "The word engine, derived from ingenium, includes a snare, which is a device or contrivance — an engine — for killing game." Allen v. Thompson, L. R. 5 Q. B. 336.

Fixed Engine. — The Salmon Fishery Act, 24 & 25 Vict. c. 109, enacts, "No fixed engine of any description shall be placed or used for catching salmon in any inland or tidal waters; . . . and for the purposes of this section a net that is secured by anchors, or otherwise temporarily fixed to the soil, shall be deemed to be a fixed engine." Three nets were set twelve yards apart, and extended to near the middle of a river: they were fixed at one end to a large stone on the bank, and at the other end they were kept up by corks with lead attached to keep them down. It did not appear whether or not the nets reached to the bottom of the river. Whenever a salmon touched a net, it gave way, gathered together, and entangled and so caught the salmon. It was held that they were not a fixed engine within the act. "It is impossible to say that a net moored at one end of it to a great weight, but so that part of the apparatus gives way when a fish comes to it, is a fixed engine within the statute." Thomas v. Jones, 5 B. & S. 916.

By the 28 & 29 Vict. c. 121, s. 39, it is further provided that "a 'fixed engine' shall include any net or other implement for taking fish fixed to the soil, or made stationary in any other way, not being a fishing weir or fishing milldam." Under this section it was held that a "stop net" is not a "fixed engine." A "stop-net" is used as follows: "The fisherman fixes his boat athwart the current of the river, by lashing it at each end to a pole driven in the bed of the river. The net, which is thirty feet wide at the mouth, and tapers to a point, is stretched by two poles twenty-

ENGINEERING PURPOSES—ENGRAVING, ETC.

ENGINEERING PURPOSES.<sup>1</sup>

ENGLISH.<sup>2</sup>

ENGRAVING.<sup>3</sup>

ENHANCED.<sup>4</sup>

two feet long, which are tied together at the upper end, and kept extended (to the width of the net at the mouth) by a pole lashed across at about seven feet from the upper end. The net is lowered overboard until the two poles rest at about eight feet from the upper end on the side of the boat. The net and poles are thus nearly on the balance, and the fisherman presses slightly on the upper end, and so keeps the net steady at about an angle of twelve degrees; he also holds a string attached to the bottom of the net, and when he feels a fish, he presses down the upper end of the poles with both hands, using the edge of the boat as a fulcrum, and so raises the net out of the water, and catches the fish." Gore v. Commissioners, L. R. 6 Q. B. 561.

1. The legislature of Minnesota granted certain franchises to a railroad company on condition that it would construct a certain portion of its road on its present located line, "except so far as it may be necessary to change the same for engineering purposes." Under this act, it was held that an engineering purpose "can only mean a purpose of constructing the road on that route on which it can be built, operated, or kept in repair, in the best, cheapest, and safest manner." McRoberts v. S. M. R. R. Co., 18 Minn. 108.

2. English Bill. — Formerly an ordinary suit in chancery was called a suit by English bill, by way of distinction from suits on the common-law side of that court, which were conducted in Norman-French or Latin. Rap. & Law, L. D.

An English Education is an education acquired through the medium of the English language. It is the language employed as a medium of instruction that gives distinctive character to the education, and not the particular branches of learning studied, even though a foreign language be one of the branches. Powell v. Board of Education, 97 Ill. 380.

English Information. — A proceeding in the court of exchequer in matters of revenue. See 28 and 29 Vict. c. 104. Rap. & Law, L. D.

English Language. — The mark commonly used to denote dollars, viz., $, is not part of the English language within the meaning of the statute of the State of Vermont, that requires declarations and other pleadings to be drawn in the English language. Clark v. Stoughton, 18 Vt. 50. Neither are the signs of degrees and minutes, viz., °'. State v. Jericho, 40 Vt. 121; s. c., 94 Am. Dec. 387. But the words Anno Domini are English within the statute. State v. Gilbert, 13 Vt. 647.

English Marriage. — The phrase "an English marriage" may refer to the place where the marriage was solemnized, or it may refer to the nationality and domicile of the parties between whom it was solemnized, the place where the union so created was to have been enjoyed. Harvey v. Farnie, L. R. P. D. 51.

3. A picture on paper, made by the art of photography from a glass "negative," is not an engraving within sect. 1 of the Copyright Act of Feb. 3, 1831, which provides that "any person . . . who shall . . . invent; design, etch, engrave, work, or cause to be engraved, etched, or worked, from his own design, any print or engraving, shall have the sole right of printing, reprinting, publishing, and vending such . . . print, cut, or engraving," etc. The word "engraving," as used in the act, means an engraved plate, or an impression from an engraved plate. Wood v. Abbott, 5 Blatchf. (U. S.) 325.

"In Campbell v. Pickford, Guthrie's Sel. Cas. in Sheriffs' Courts, 124, it was said obiter that chromo-lithographs of designs for architecture or decoration are not 'pictures' or 'engravings' within the Carriers' Act of William IV. The court said, 'They can hardly be held engravings, because they are not produced by cutting with sharp tools into a metallic or other plate, and taking impressions from it, but are obtained by a different process altogether, — from stone, on which the design is in the first instance laid down. And, accordingly, engraving and lithography are recognized as different arts. . . .' But the decision was put on the ground that a collection of such lithographs, bound in a volume with letter-press descriptions, such as Jones' 'Grammar of Ornament,' is not an 'engraving' or 'picture.'" Browne's Jud. Interp. 338.

4. By an act of the legislature of Oregon, a widow is entitled to dower in "all the lands whereof her husband was seized of an estate of inheritance at any time during marriage." But if the husband aliens such lands, and they "shall have been enhanced in value after the alienation," the same "shall be estimated in setting forth the widow's dower according to their value at the time they were so aliened." Under these provisions of the act, it was held, that,

ENJOIN.—To command; to require; as private individuals are not only permitted, but enjoined, by law, to arrest an offender when present at the time a felony is committed or a dangerous wound given, on pain of fine and imprisonment if the wrongdoer escape through their negligence; . . . to command or order a defendant in equity to do or not to do a particular thing by writ of injunction.<sup>1</sup> (See INJUNCTION.)

ENJOYMENT.—The exercise of a right. It is to a right what possession is to a corporeal thing, and is therefore divisible, like possession, into simple, rightful, permissive, adverse, etc. Adverse enjoyment is more commonly known in the English books as "enjoyment as of right," and occurs where a person exercises a right which does not belong to him in the same manner as if he were entitled to it, and without the permission of the owner.<sup>2</sup> Enjoyment which is open, peaceable, continuous, and of right, resembles adverse possession in being a mode of acquiring by in estimating the value of a widow's dower, she ought to have the benefit of the increase in value between the date of such alienation and the death of the husband, not arising from improvements made or placed on the land. Said the court, "It may be admitted that the word 'enhanced,' taken in an unqualified sense, is equivalent to 'increased,' and comprehends any increase in value however caused or arising; but under the circumstances it ought to be construed to include only the value caused by the improvements put upon the land by the tenant, or those under whom he claims, and not that which arises fortuitously, or from what may be called natural causes." Thornburn v. Doscher, 32 Fed. Rep. 810.

1. Bouv. Law Dict.

The Use of the Word "Enjoin" in a Will does not necessarily create a Precatory Trust.—A bequest was as follows: "I give to my brother, in trust for my sisters, M., C., and H., 4,000/., . . . on condition that they will support M. M.; at the demise of either or any of the above, the survivors or survivor to receive the increased income produced thereby. They are hereby enjoined to take care of my nephew, J., as may seem best in the future." It was held that the sisters took absolutely as joint tenants, and that there was no precatory or other trust in favor of the nephew. Said the court, "Is the word 'enjoin' sufficient to create a precatory trust? It is obvious on the face of the will that the testator drew a distinction between the quasi obligation which he wished to commend to his sisters to take care of the nephew, and the positive obligation which he made a condition in the case of M. M. The nephew was not placed on the same footing as M. M. Coupling that indication of his meaning with the vague words 'as may seem best in the future,' I do not think that a precatory trust has been sufficiently imposed upon these legatees to enable the nephew to bring an action to have it carried into effect." Moore v. Roche, L. J. R. 55, Ch. Div. 418.

A testator, after having made his daughter, S. C., his residuary devisee and legatee, continued as follows: "I commit my granddaughter, A. L., . . . to the charge and guardianship of my daughter, S. C. . . . I enjoin upon her to make such provision for said grandchild out of my residuary estate now in her hands, in such manner, at such times, and in such amounts, as she may judge to be expedient and conducive to the welfare of my said grandchild, and her own sense of justice and Christian duty shall dictate." It was held that the daughter, S. C., took an absolute title to the residuary estate, and that it was wholly discretionary with her as to what provision should be made for the granddaughter. Lawrence v. Cooke, 10 East. Rep. 429; s. c., 7 Cent. Rep. 101.

2. The phrases "enjoyed by any person claiming right," and "enjoyment as of right," applied to easements in the statute 2 & 3 W. IV. c. 71, in sections 2 and 5 respectively, mean "an enjoyment had, not secretly or by stealth, or by tacit sufferance, or by permission asked from time to time, on each occasion, or on many; but an enjoyment had openly, notoriously, without particular leave at the time, by a person claiming to use without danger of being treated as a trespasser, as a matter of right, whether the right so claimed shall be strictly legal, as by prescription and adverse user, or by deed, or shall have been merely lawful so far as to excuse a trespass." Tickle v. Brown, 4 Ad. & El. 369.

lapse of time the right so enjoyed.<sup>1</sup> (See also ADVERSE POSSESSION; EASEMENTS.)

ENLARGE.<sup>2</sup>

1. Rap. & Law. L. D.

The State constitution of Florida provides that a homestead of a certain size shall be exempt from forced sale under any process of law, with certain specified exceptions; and that "this exemption shall accrue to the heirs of the party having enjoyed or taken the benefit of such exemption." Under this clause it was held that "any one who has owned and occupied with his family the limited amount of land and improvements mentioned, has 'enjoyed' it as exempt from forced sale, whether he has or has not been threatened with executions or other process, because the enjoyment of a homestead consists in the use and occupation of it with his family according to the clear intent and purpose of the provision." Baker v. State, 17 Fla. 408.

The Beneficial Enjoyment mentioned in section 21 of the succession duty act of 16 & 17 Vict. c. 51, means no more than the enjoyment of the possessor in his own right, and for his own benefit, not as trustee for another. Atty.-Gen. v. Sefton, 11 H. L. Cas. 256.

To be enjoyed with and to go with the Title. — A testatrix bequeathed a leasehold house to the sixth Earl of Essex "and to his successors, to be enjoyed with and to go with the title." It was held that the earl was absolutely entitled to the leasehold house, the words "to be enjoyed with and to go with the title" not being sufficient to create an executed or executory trust, or to cut down his interest therein to a life estate. In re Johnson, L. J. 53 Ch. 645.

Enjoyment of an Office. — By the corporation act, 13 Car. II. st. 2, c. 1, s. 12, one who had not taken the sacrament according to the rites of the Church of England within a year before his election, in fact, to a corporate office, was disqualified from being elected; and, if the electors had been notified of such disqualification at the time of the election, votes afterwards given to such person were then thrown away; and any candidate having the most legal votes, though in fact inferior in number to those of the disqualified candidate, was duly elected, and entitled to be sworn in. By the annual indemnity act, 50 G. III. c. 4, it was provided that disqualified persons might qualify themselves within a certain time, and that the said qualification of such persons should be as effectual as if such persons had qualified under the previous acts. It was, however, further provided that the act should not extend "to restore or entitle any person to any office, etc., . . . already legally filled up and enjoyed by any other person." Under these acts it was held that the office of a common councilman of the town of H. W. was not "legally filled up and enjoyed" by a candidate who had received the greatest number of legal though not of actual votes, but who had not been sworn in. Said L. Ellenborough, C. J., "There can be no legal enjoyment of an office, unless there be an enjoyment of it de facto." King v. Parry, 14 East, 549.

2. To enlarge an Estate is to increase the tenant's interest; as where the tenant in remainder conveys to the tenant of the first estate, thus increasing his estate to a fee. Abb. L. D.; 2 Bl. Com. 324.

To enlarge a Prisoner is to set him at large or at liberty. Abb. L. D.

To enlarge a Rule or Order of Court, as used in the old books, is to extend the time within which it is returnable. Rap. & Law. L. D.; Reid v. Fryatt, 1 Man. & Sel. 1.

An Enlarging Statute is one that enlarges or extends the common law as opposed to a restraining statute. For example, "clipping the current coin of the kingdom was an offence not sufficiently guarded against by the common law; therefore it was thought expedient by statute 5 Eliz. c. 11, to make it high treason, which it was not at the common law, so that this was an enlarging statute. At common law also, spiritual corporations might lease out their estates for any term of years, till prevented by the statute 13 Eliz. : . . . this was, therefore, a restraining statute." 1 Bl. Com. 87. "This statute against clipping the coin hardly corresponds with the general notion, either of a remedial or an enlarging statute. . . . An enlarging or an enabling statute is one which increases, not restrains, the power of action; as the 32 Hen. VIII. c. 28, which gave bishops and all other sole ecclesiastical corporations, except parsons and vicars, a power of making leases, which they did not possess before, is always called an enabling statute. The 13 Eliz. c. 10, which afterwards limited that power, is, on the contrary, styled a restraining or disabling statute." Christian's Note; 1 Bl. Com. 87.

ENLIST—ENLISTMENT—ENTER, ENTRY.

ENLIST.—To make a contract<sup>1</sup> to serve the government in a subordinate capacity,<sup>2</sup> either in the army or navy.<sup>3</sup>

ENLISTMENT.—See MILITARY LAW.

ENTER, ENTRY. (See BURGLARY; ENTRY, WRIT OF; JUDGMENT; RE-ENTRY.)—I. To go upon.<sup>4</sup> Entry is the taking possession of lands by the legal owner.<sup>5</sup> It is a remedy for the wrongful

1. Under the act of Congress of 1855, c. 136, s. 11, punishing the enticing of any seaman "who may have enlisted into the naval service of the United States" to desert therefrom, a seaman who has passed the examination at the naval rendezvous merely, but who has not been examined and passed on the receiving-ship, in accordance with the regulations of the navy, is not enlisted. "Enlistment," said the court, "must be deemed to be a contract between the party and the government. . . . Now, if the seaman, on signing the papers, and passing the rendezvous, was not entitled to any thing, then the contract for service on the one hand, and pay on the other, had not been completed; the seaman had not enlisted, and so was not a deserter." United States v. Thompson, 2 Sprague (U. S.), 103. See also Barker v. Chesterfield, 102 Mass. 130. In Tyler v. Pomeroy, 8 Allen (Mass.), 485, it was said, "The words enlist and enlistment in the law, as in common usage, may signify either the complete fact of entering into the military service, or the first step taken by the recruit towards that end."

Does an enlistment resemble a contract in being necessarily a voluntary act? In Babbitt v. U. S., 16 C. of Cl. 213, Davis, J., said in a dictum, "Enlistment is a technical word, derived from Great Britain, with a technical meaning. In the English Cyclopaedia it is defined to be 'a voluntary engagement to serve as a private soldier for a certain number of years.' Chambers defines it as 'the mode by which the English army is supplied with troops as distinguished from the conscription prevailing in many other countries.' Littré, the best French authority, defines conscription as an 'appel au service militaire, par voie du tirage au sort'; and he defines enrolé, which is the equivalent of an 'enlisted man,' as an 'enrolé volontaire.' True to this distinction between a voluntary engagement as distinguished from a conscription or draft, the statutes of the United States allow only persons who are able to contract to enter the army by enlistment (Rev. Stat. §§ 1116, 1117, 1118), and require the contract to be made for a term of years." But it has been held in Massachusetts, that a statute giving to men that had "been duly enlisted, and mustered into the military or naval service of the United States, as part of the quota of any city or town in this Commonwealth," during the civil war, under certain circumstances, a settlement in such city or town, applied to drafted men, as well as to volunteers. "By the primary meaning of the word," said the court, "a person is 'enlisted' whose name is duly entered upon the military rolls; and it applies to those who are drafted, as well as to those who volunteer." Sheffield v. Ohio, 107 Mass. 282.

2. Neither in military nor in popular usage is the term "enlist," or "enlistment," ever used to signify the engagement of a commissioned officer in the military service. It is always limited to the rank and file. Hilliard v. Stewartstown, 48 N. H. 280.

A West Point cadet is not an enlisted man within the statutes of the United States. "The statutes employ the term 'enlist' only with reference to contracts with persons who enter the army as privates, and to certain other classes of men,—like Indian scouts and hospital stewards, who rank like soldiers, and voluntarily put themselves under military law." Rev. Stat. §§ 1099, 1100, 1101, 1102, 1103, 1104, 1107, 1108, 1111, 1112, 1115, 1155, 1162, 1180. Babbitt v. U. S., 16 Ct. of Cl. 214.

3. Bouv. Law Dict., approved in Ericksen v. Beach, 40 Conn. 286.

Officers and Enlisted Men in the Navy.—

It seems to be generally understood the words officers and enlisted men include the whole personnel of the navy, regarding as enlisted men all those who sign articles of agreement called "shipping articles;" and as officers, all others who take the oath of office prescribed by the Revised Statutes, § 1757, to be taken by all persons elected or appointed to any office of honor or trust under the Government of the United States. Monat v. U. S., 22 Ct. of Cl. 298.

4. Under an act prescribing a penalty for entering upon the lands of another for purposes of hunting, a man does not incur the penalty who enters with the owner's consent which is subsequently withdrawn. "The unlawful entry upon the land, which calls down the penalty of the law, is the first crossing of the owner's line. This is one entire and single act. It cannot be divided or multiplied, and it constitutes a complete offence." Kellogg v. Robinson, 32 Conn. 335.

5. Bouv. Law Dict.; Guion v. Anderson, 8 Humph. (Tenn.) 306.

dispossession of lands.<sup>1</sup> Entry also "means that act by which an individual acquires an inceptive right to a portion of the unappropriated soil of the country, by filing his claim in the office of an officer known in the legislation of several States by the epithet of an entry-taker, and corresponding very much in his functions with the registers of land-offices, under the acts of the United States."<sup>2</sup>

2. To set down in writing.<sup>3</sup>

3. For other meanings of the word, see note 4.

1. 3 Bl. Com. 174.

2. Chotard v. Pope, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 588.

3. Bissell v. Beckwith, 32 Conn. 517.

To enter is to make a record of, and not merely to announce. When spoken of a judgment, the word is never synonymous with render. Under a statute authorizing a change without a rehearing of a judgment erroneously entered, the inquiry is confined to whether the judgment as rendered was actually entered, and must not extend to whether the judgment rendered was a correct judgment. Blatchford v. Newberry, 100 Ill. 484. And see McLaughlin v. Doherty, 54 Cal. 519. To enter on a docket, is to write upon or in the docket. Where a statute required an undertaking of replevin bail to be entered on the docket in order to be valid, it is not entered and is void if written upon a separate piece of paper and pinned to the docket. Lockwood v. Dills, 74 Ind. 59.

An action is entered within a statutory provision that a rule for reference to arbitration may be taken at any time after entry, from the time it is placed on the prothonotary's docket. Hertzog v. Ellis, 3 Binn. (Pa.) 209.

Where, in a condition in a policy of insurance that it should be void if the title to the insured property were changed, it was provided that "the entry of a foreclosure of mortgage" should be deemed an alienation; the meaning of this clause is that something short of an actual and complete foreclosure should be considered as a transfer or change of title, and that an entry for foreclosure, or an act which of itself and without any further formality or process on the part of the mortgagee, will deprive the assured of all right and title in the property, unless they pay the debt, shall be deemed sufficient to terminate the risk. McIntire v. Norwich, F. Ins. Co. 102 Mass. 230.

Entering short, or Short Entry.—"It would seem that in London it was a custom (Giles et al. v. Perkins et als., 9 East, 12, and counsel arguendo in Ex parte Thompson, 1 Mont. & Mac. 102, 110) for bankers to receive bills for collection, and to enter them immediately in their customers' accounts, but never to carry out the proceeds in the column to their credit until actually collected; and this was called a 'short entry,' or 'entering short.' And such bills always continued the property of the customer, unless the contrary was to be inferred from some course of dealing, whereas country bankers in England generally credited to their customers at once all bills considered good, and generally allowed drafts upon the proceeds." Blaine v. Bourne, 11 R. I. 119.

4. In construing the word as used in an act of Congress, providing for a forfeiture where an importer makes or attempts to make an entry by a false or fraudulent paper or practice, Hoffman, J., said, "The term entry in the acts of Congress is used in two senses. In many of the acts it refers to the bill of entry,—the paper or declaration which the merchant or importer in the first instance hands to the entry clerk. In other statutes it is used to denote, not a document, but a transaction; a series of acts which are necessary to the end to be accomplished; viz., the entering of the goods. In the latter sense it is used in this statute. . . . The acts which accomplish this result, and which taken together constitute an entry, must have a beginning and an end. There is a moment when the entry is attempted to be made or begun: there is a moment when it is accomplished. The entry may be said to be commenced or attempted when the merchant presents his declaration or bill of entry. When the bill of entry has gone to the requisite clerk's desk, when accompanied by the certificate of the consul, the invoice and the oath, it is delivered to the collector, and accepted by him, then the goods may in a just sense be said to be admitted to entry, and the entry to be accomplished." United States v. Cargo of Sugar, 3 Sawy. (C. C.) 46. "The word 'entry,'" said Blatchford, J., in interpreting the same act, "means the entire transaction by which the importer obtains the entrance of his goods into the body of the merchandise of the United States," including the liquidation and payment of duties. Until the entire transaction between him and the government is closed, the entry of the goods is

ENTERTAINMENT—ENTICE—ENTICING AWAY.

ENTERTAINMENT. (See BALLET; BOARD; DRAMATIC; INN; STAGE.)—The reception and accommodation of guests.<sup>1</sup> Amusement.<sup>2</sup>

ENTICE.<sup>3</sup>

ENTICING AWAY.—See KIDNAPPING.

not to be regarded as completed. United States v. Baker, 5 Ben. (C. C.) 25.

Under an act forbidding British vessels to enter, or attempt to enter, any port of the United States under pain of forfeiture, a libel must not depart from the words of the statute. An allegation that such a vessel came and arrived, is insufficient. "The words 'arrive' and 'enter' are not always synonymous, and there certainly may be an arrival without an actual entry, or attempt to enter. Though, perhaps, an arrival within a port cannot be without an entry into the port." United States v. An Open Boat & Lading, 5 Mason (C. C.), 120.

Under an order directing an arbitrator to make an award within a fixed time after he has entered on the reference, he was held to have entered on the reference, not at the time he gave notice of his intention to proceed, but when he began the real business of the reference. Baker v. Stephens, L. R. 2 Q. B. 523; a. c., 8 B. & S. 445.

1 A café where men and women were supplied with cigars, coffee, and ginger-beer, which they there consumed, is within the meaning of an act providing that "all houses, rooms, shops, or buildings, kept open for public refreshment, resort, and entertainment," during certain hours of the night, are to be deemed refreshment-houses, and require licenses. Muir v. Keay, L. R. 10 Q. B. 595. So is a shop for the sale of lemonade and ginger-beer, consisting of only one room, open in front, and without seats. Howes v. B'rd of Inland Rev., L. R. 1 Ex. D. 385. In the former case, Lusk, J., said, "The main objection is, that there was no public entertainment, for that means a musical or other public performance. I think that is wrong. I think entertainment is something connected with the enjoyment of refreshment-rooms, tables, and the like. It is something beyond refreshment: it is the accommodation provided, whether that includes a musical or other amusement or not." "It does not," said Blackburn, J., "apply to the mere giving of refreshment, nor to the mere fact of persons coming in: it means public reception." In Howes v. B'rd of Inland Rev., it was said, "I do not think that we can decide this case merely upon the interpretation of that word as found in dictionaries; but it may be useful to notice that in Webster's its meaning, amongst others, is said to be, 'the receiving and accommodating of guests, either with or without reward,' and also, 'reception, admission.' Other definitions are given with respect to another sense of the word, namely, when it is applied to amusement; but I do not think that it is used in that sense in the present statute" (Grive, J.). "It seems to me that 'entertainment' qualifies 'refreshment,' and that the two words taken together mean in the statute the receiving of a customer, and the providing him with drink and food of an agreeable nature. When a guest is received into the house of a friend, and drink and food of an agreeable nature are placed before him, he is entertained; and in my opinion a man is not the less entertained because he is not asked to sit down whilst he takes refreshment" (Mellish, L. J.).

An ante-room to a dance-hall where beer was sold, and for admission to which a charge was made, is not open for public entertainment under this act. Taylor v. Oram, 1 H. & C. 370.

Where the phrase "tavern or house of entertainment" was used in a license act, the terms were held to be synonymous, and to mean common inns. Bonner v. Welborn, 7 Ga. 296.

Entertainment was held to be synonymous with board in Scattergood v. Waterman, 2 Miles (Pa.), 323.

2. Meetings of Recreative Religionists held on Sunday evenings, the proceedings at which consisted of sacred music and the delivery of an address, and admission to which was free, a charge being made, however, for reserved seats, are not public entertainments within the meaning of an act making places open for public entertainment or amusement, or for publicly debating on any subject on Sunday, to which persons shall be admitted by the payment of money, disorderly places. Baxter v. Langley, L. R. 4 C. P. 21.

"A place of dramatic entertainment," as used in a copyright law, means a place where a dramatic entertainment is exhibited or performed, even though used but once for that purpose. Russell v. Smith, 12 Q. B. 217; Lee v. Simpson, 871.

Tumbling is not an entertainment of the stage within the meaning of an act forbidding the performance of such without authority. The King v. Handy, 6 T. R. 286.

3. The inducement to travel westward and find new homes, held out by a Chil-

Definition. ENTIRE — ENTITLE — ENTRY, WRIT OF. Degrees.

ENTIRE — Whole ; undivided.<sup>1</sup>

ENTITLE — To give a claim or right to.<sup>2</sup>

ENTRY, WRIT OF. — See also EJECTMENT ; FORECLOSURE ; TITLES.

- I. Definition, 651.
- II. Degrees, 651.
- III. General Principles, 652.

- IV. Under Mortgages, 654.
- V. Mesne Profits, Damages, etc., 654.
- VI. Improvements, 655.

I Definition. — A writ of entry is a real action to recover the possession of land from one who wrongfully withholds possession thereof.<sup>3</sup>

II Degrees. — Anciently much importance was attached to what were called degrees.<sup>4</sup> The writ was said to be in the quibus<sup>5</sup> when it was against the original disseizor ; in the first degree,<sup>6</sup> or in the per<sup>7</sup> when against the heir or alienee of the original disseizor ; in the per and cui<sup>8</sup> when there had been two descents or dren's Aid Society to destitute children, is not an unlawful enticement. It springs from the very nature of, and is incident to, the enterprise, and has its sanction in the act incorporating the society. "The words 'entice,' 'solicit,' 'persuade,' or 'procure,' as used in the pleadings in an action, and acted upon by the courts, have been well defined : they import an initial, active, and wrongful effort." Nash v. Douglass, 12 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 187.

1. A conveyance in trust "for the entire use, benefit, profit, and advantage" of a feme covert, creates a separate use. "The best lexicographers define 'entire' to be, whole, undivided, not participated in by others. If this be the proper meaning of 'entire,' as it certainly is, then it is evident that it was not the intention of the deed that the husband should have any interest in the negroes whatever." Heathman v. Hall, 3 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 414.

Entire Day. — An undivided day ; not parts of two days, but the whole of the twenty-four hours, beginning and ending at twelve o'clock at night. Robertson v. State, 43 Ala. 325 ; Haines v. State, 7 Tex. App. 30 ; Lawrence v. State, 7 Tex. App. 192.

2. Conoly v. Gayle, 54 Ala. 269.

A man cannot be convicted of personating a person entitled to vote, if the person personated be dead at the time. Whitely v. Chappell, L. R. 4 Q. B. 147 ; s. c., 9 B. & S. 1019.

In a covenant in a marriage settlement, that, if either husband or wife should in any way become entitled to any real or personal property, the same should be conveyed to the trustees upon the trusts already declared, "entitled" was held to mean "entitled in possession." In re Clinton's Trusts, L. R. 13 Eq. Ca. 295.

The same construction was put upon the word as used in a devise in Brown v. Rigg, 55 L. J. R. Ch. D. 114.

The cestui que trust, in a separate use, is not "entitled to possession or receipt of the rents and profits," within the meaning of a statute which gives to persons who are so entitled the right to lease for any term not exceeding twenty-one years. Taylor v. Taylor, L. R. 20 Eq. Ca. 297.

3. See Bouv. L. Dict. ; Rapalje & Lawrence's L. Dict.

"This remedial instrument or writ of entry is applicable to all the cases of ouster before mentioned, except that of discontinuance by tenant entail, and some peculiar species of forfeitures. Such is that of forfeiture of dower by not assigning any dower to the widow within the time limited by law. . . . But in general the writ of entry is the universal remedy to recover possession when wrongfully withheld from the owner." 3 Black. Com. *183. See also Webster v. Gilman, 1 Story (U. S.), 499.

4. Co. Litt. 238 b, 239 a.

5. "Præcipe A. quod reddat B. sex acras tenæ, etc., DE QUIBUS idem A., etc. (command A. to restore to B. six acres of land of which the same A., etc.)." Bouv. L. Dict.

6. Co. Litt. 238 b ; 3 Black. Com. *181. Booth makes the original wrong the first degree. Booth, R. A. 172.

7. "Non habuit ingressum nisi PER A., qui se in illud intrusit, etc. (he has had no entry except through A., who is himself an intruder)." 3 Black. Com. *181.

8. "Non habuit ingressum nisi PER B., cui A. illud demisit, qui se in illud intrusit, etc. (he has had no entry except through B., to whom A. demised the same, who was himself an intruder)." 3 Black. Com. *181.

alienations, or a descent and an alienation; in the post<sup>1</sup> when the wrong was removed beyond the per and cui. A writ of entry did not lie in the post;<sup>2</sup> but by the statute of Marlbridge<sup>3</sup> it was provided, that, when the number of degrees exceeded two, a new writ should be allowed without any mention of degrees.

There were many varieties of the writ, depending on the nature of the dispossession, any of which could be brought in any of the degrees mentioned.<sup>4</sup>

III. General Principles. — Writs of entry are abolished in England,<sup>5</sup>

1. "Non habuit ingressum nisi POST, etc. (he has had no entry except after)." 3 Black. Com. *182.

2. 3 Black. Com. *182. But the demandant was driven to a writ of right. Co. Litt. 238 b.

3. 52 Hen. III. c. 30 (A.D. 1267).

4. "The most usual were, 1. The writs of entry sur disseisin, and of intrusion (F. U. B. 191, 203), which are brought to remedy either of those species of ouster.

2. The writs of dum fuit infra atatem, and dum fuit non compos mentis (ibid. 192, 202), which lie for a person of full age, or one who hath recovered his understanding after having (when under age or insane) aliened his lands; or for the heirs of such alienor. 3. The writs of cui in vita and cui ante divortium (ibid. 193, 204) for a woman, when a widow or divorced, whose husband during the coverture (cui in vita sua, vel cui ante divortium, ipsa contradicere non potuit) hath aliened her estate. 4. The writ ad communem legem (ibid. 207) for the reversioner after the alienation and death of the particular tenant for life.

5. The writs in casu proviso and in consimili casu (ibid. 205, 206) which lay not ad communem legem, but are given by stat. Gloc. 6 Edw. I. c. 7, and Westm. 2, 13 Edw. I. c. 24, for the reversioner after the alienation, but during the life, of the tenant in dower or other tenant for life. 6. The writ ad terminum qui præterit (ibid. 201) for the reversioner when the possession is withheld by the lessee or a stranger after the determination of a lease for years. 7. The writ causa matrimonii prælocuti (ibid. 205) for a woman who giveth land to a man in fee or for life to the intent that he may marry her, and he doth not; and the like in case of other forfeitures." 3 Black. Com. *183, note z.

The statute of 3 & 4 Wm. IV. c. 27, which abolishes writs of entry, mentions "writ of entry sur disseisin in the quibus, in the per, in the per and cui, or in the post, writ of entry sur intrusion, writ of entry sur alienation, dum fuit non compos mentis, dum fuit infra atatem, dum fuit in prisona, ad communem legem, in casu proviso, in consimili casu, cui in vita, sur cui in vita, cui ante divortium, or sur cui ante divortium, writ of entry sur abatement, writ of entry quare ejecit infra terminum, or ad terminum qui præterit, or causa matrimonii prælocuti." See Abbott's Law Dict.; Wharton's Law Lexicon.

5. Stat. 3 & 4 Wm. IV. c. 27; Wharton's L. Lex.

On account of its dilatoriness and the niceties required in the pleadings, the writ of entry fell into disuse in England long before it was expressly abolished. It was succeeded by the writ of assise invented by Glanvil, chief justice to Henry II., which was also abolished by stat. 3 & 4 Wm. IV. c. 27. The remedy now is generally by ejectment.

Statutes. — The statutes of Maine and Massachusetts are substantially alike in their main features. They declare that the writ lies to recover any estate in lands in fee-simple, fee-tail, or for life (or for years in Maine); that the demandant shall declare on his own seizin within twenty years, and allege a disseizin; that he shall set forth the estate claimed, but need not state its origin; that no actual entry is necessary, if the right of entry exists; that any person in possession of the demanded premises may be treated as a disseizor (though the tenant may disclaim or plead non-tenure); that the writ lies against one claiming less than a freehold interest, where there has been an actual ouster; that tenants in common, joint tenants, and coparceners, may join in the action or sue alone; that recovery may be for part only of the demanded premises; provisions for rents, profits, and damages for six years for the demandant (and in Maine for mesne profits against others than the tenant); provision for payment for improvements, where there has been possession for six years; provision for the abandonment of the premises to the defendant who has made improvements at the estimated value of the land without the improvements; and for the recovery by the defendant of money so paid, when evicted under title paramount to the demandant's. The Maine statute provides, that no descent or discontinuance shall defeat the right of entry, and that neither death nor marriage shall abate the action. The Massachusetts but are in use, in a modified form, in several of the New-England States.<sup>1</sup>

Formerly the action was strictly possessory,<sup>2</sup> but it now seems that title as well as the right of possession may be in issue.<sup>3</sup> Possession, under claim of title, is sufficient as against one entering under no legal claim.<sup>4</sup>

An equitable title will not support the action,<sup>5</sup> nor will a valid claim of easement either support or defeat it.<sup>6</sup>

The demandant must recover, if at all, upon the strength of his statute provides for continuing the action commenced by a decedent.

1. See statutes of Maine, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire; also Potter v. Baker, 19 N. H. 166; Hodgkins v. Price, 137 Mass. 13; Wilbur v. Ripley, 124 Mass. 468; Sherman v. Galbraith, 141 Mass. 440.

Pleading.—“Under the practice in Maine, four things are necessary in a declaration in a writ of entry. First, The premises must be clearly described. Secondly, The estate which the demandant claims in the premises must be stated, whether it be a fee-simple, a fee-tail, for life or for years; and if for life, then whether for the demandant's own life, or that of another. Thirdly, An allegation that within twenty years the demandant was seized of the estate claimed. Fourthly, A disseizin by the tenant.” Sedgw. & Wait on Tr. Title to Land (2d ed.), sec. 430; Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 139.

For description of premises, see Baker v. Bessey, 73 Me. 472; Willey v. Nichols, 59 Me. 253; Lyman v. Dodge, 13 N. H. 197; Woodman v. Lane, 7 N. H. 241.

Though the demandant must state the nature of his title, he need not show its inception. See Stats. Mass. and Me.; Jordan v. Record, 70 Me. 529. Nor can the defendant show the particular title of the demandant for the purpose of pleading matter in estoppel. Potter v. Baker, 19 N. H. 166.

A trustee holding the legal title need not allege that he is such. Simpson v. Dix, 131 Mass. 179.

The plea of nul disseizin admits the possession by the defendant under claim of a freehold interest. Gammon v. Huff, 67 Me. 184; Swan v. Stephens, 99 Mass. 7; Higbee v. Rice, 5 Mass. 344; Washington Bank v. Brown, 2 Met. (Mass.) 293; Devens v. Bower, 6 Gray (Mass.), 126; Wiggin v. Smith, 54 N. H. 213; Gibson v. Bailey, 9 N. H. 168. And in Maine the defendant admits possession, unless he files a disclaimer. Blake v. Dennett, 49 Me. 102.

Under the general issue the defendant may dispute the demandant's seizin, or show better title in himself. Clarke v. Hilton, 75 Me. 426; Croacher v. Oesting, 143 Mass. 195; Wells v. Jackson, etc., Co., 47 N. H.

235. For matters that cannot be shown under the general issue, see Bennoch v. Whipple, 12 Me. 346; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 186; Kelleran v. Brown, 4 Mass. 443; Pray v. Pierce, 7 Mass. 381; Alden v. Murdock, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 256; Dunbar v. Mitchell, 12 Pick. (Mass.) 373; Melcher v. Flanders, 40 N. H. 139. But in Massachusetts, by statute, any defence may be shown under the plea of nul disseizin, by filing a specification thereof. Wheelwright v. Freeman, 12 Met. (Mass.) 154. See further, on the subject of pleading, Burnham v. Howard, 31 Me. 569; Walcutt v. Spencer, 14 Mass. 309; Waldo v. Mitchell, 24 N. H. 229.

On Amendments, see Howe v. Wildes, 34 Me. 566; Fay v. Taft, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 448; Wyman v. Kilgore, 47 Me. 184.

For Disclaimer, see Pettingell v. Boynton, 139 Mass. 244.

2. 3 Black. Com. *180, 184, 185.

3. See Derby v. Jacques, 1 Cliff. (U. S.) 425; Butrick v. Tilton, 141 Mass. 93.

4. Pettingell v. Boynton, 139 Mass. 244; Provident Institution v. Burnham, 128 Mass. 458; Porter v. Perkins, 5 Mass. 234; Hubbard v. Little, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 475; Wolcott v. Ely, 2 Allen (Mass.), 338; Aldrich v. Parsons, 6 N. H. 555; Gibson v. Bailey, 9 N. H. 168; Mills v. Peirce, 2 N. H. 9. See further, Nichols v. Todd, 2 Gray (Mass.), 568; Blaisdell v. Martin, 9 N. H. 253. One who claims a freehold estate, though his grantor had less, may maintain a writ of entry. Melcher v. Flanders, 40 N. H. 139.

5. Wilson v. Black, 104 Mass. 406; Chapin v. Universalist Soc., 8 Gray (Mass.), 580; Eastman v. Fletcher, 45 Me. 302; Dyer v. Toothaker, 51 Me. 380; Ela v. Pennock, 38 N. H. 154. See also Shaw v. Wise, 10 Me. 113. So where there is an active trust, the trustee may maintain a writ of entry against the cestui que trust. Sawyer v. Skowhegan, 57 Me. 500. But an equitable defence to a writ of entry is made good by statute in Massachusetts. Nott v. Sampson Mfg. Co., 142 Mass. 479.

6. Ayer v. Phillips, 69 Me. 50; Provident Institution v. Burnham, 128 Mass. 458; Cole v. Eastham, 124 Mass. 307; Morgan v. Moore, 3 Gray (Mass.), 319; Elliot v. Heath, 6 N. H. 426; Woodman own right or title,<sup>1</sup> and is bound to show the seizin upon which he counts.<sup>2</sup> Neither can the defendant succeed by showing the right of possession to be in a third person under whom he does not claim.<sup>3</sup>

By statute no entry is necessary if the right of immediate entry exists.<sup>4</sup>

Generally the action will not lie at the instance of one claiming less than a freehold estate,<sup>5</sup> nor against one claiming a less estate,<sup>6</sup> unless there has been an actual ouster.<sup>7</sup>

By statute, one or more joint tenants, tenants in common, or coparceners, may bring a writ of entry to recover the particular estate to which they are entitled.<sup>8</sup>

IV. Under Mortgages. (See FORECLOSURE.) — Where the mortgagee has the right of possession, he may maintain a writ of entry either before or after condition broken against the mortgagor<sup>9</sup> or his alienees.<sup>10</sup>

A writ of entry in the nature of a bill in equity<sup>11</sup> may be maintained by the holder of the legal estate<sup>12</sup> to foreclose a mortgage in Maine<sup>13</sup> and Massachusetts.<sup>14</sup> Judgment for the demandant is conditional.<sup>15</sup> Mortgages are foreclosed by writs of entry in New Hampshire also.<sup>16</sup>

V. Mesne Profits and Damages. — In real actions, at common law, the relief was limited, ordinarily, to the recovery of the demandant's interest in the realty;<sup>17</sup> but by statute he is entitled also to mesne profits and damages.<sup>18</sup>

v. Lane, 7 N. H. 241; Kenniston v. Hannaford, 58 N. H. 268.

1. Wiley v. Williamson, 68 Me. 71; Miller v. Ewer, 27 Me. 509; s. c., 46 Am. Dec. 619; Butrick v. Tilton, 141 Mass. 93; Crouch v. Eveleth, 15 Mass. 305; Bussey v. Grant, 20 Me. 281; Thayer v. M'Lelland, 23 Me. 417. But he need only show a right of possession good as against the defendant. Pettingell v. Boynton, 139 Mass. 244. See also Howard v. College, 116 Mass. 117.

An assignee may maintain the action, if his assignor might. Austin v. Stevens, 24 Me. 520.

2. Bussey v. Grant, 20 Me. 281; Thayer v. M'Lelland, 23 Me. 417.

3. King v. Barns, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 24; Gammon v. Huff, 67 Me. 184; Wiggin v. Smith, 54 N. H. 213; Enfield v. Permit, 8 N. H. 512; s. c., 31 Am. Dec. 207. Compare Kenniston v. Hannaford, 55 N. H. 268. See also Brinley v. Whiting, 5 Pick. (Mass.) 347.

Defendant may plead a subsequently acquired title. Bailey v. March, 3 N. H. 274.

4. See Stats. Me. and Mass. See Wells v. Prince, 4 Mass. 64.

5. Fay v. Taft, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 448.

6. Kerley v. Kerley, 13 Allen (Mass.), 286; Mathews v. Demeritt, 22 Me. 312.

7. So by statute, Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 139; Gregory v. Tozier, 24 Me. 308; Dolby v. Miller, 2 Gray (Mass.), 135.

8. Butrick v. Tilton, 141 Mass. 93. See also Chandler v. Simmons, 97 Mass. 508; Oxnard v. Proprietors of Kennebeck Purchase, 10 Mass. 179. For like principle, see Greenlaw v. Greenlaw, 13 Me. 182; Melvin v. Proprietors, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 161; Williams v. Hilton, 35 Me. 547; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 729.

9. Blaney v. Bearce, 2 Me. 132.

10. Stewart v. Davis, 63 Me. 539.

11. Holbrook v. Bliss, 9 Allen (Mass.), 69; Cochran v. Goodell, 131 Mass. 465.

12. Young v. Miller, 6 Gray (Mass.), 152; Somes v. Skinner, 16 Mass. 348.

13. Treat v. Pierce, 53 Me. 71.

14. Holbrook v. Bliss, 9 Allen (Mass.), 69.

15. Amidown v. Peck, 11 Met. (Mass.) 467; Powers v. Patten, 71 Me. 583; Johnson v. Brown, 31 N. H. 405. But not unless a conditional judgment is moved for. Provident Institution v. Burnham, 128 Mass. 458.

16. Green v. Cross, 45 N. H. 578.

17. Sedgw. & Wait's Tr. Title Land (2d ed.), sec. 646.

18. McMahan v. Bowe, 114 Mass. 140; Raymond v. Andrews, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 265;

ENUMERATE — ENVOY — EQUAL — EQUIPMENT.

VI. Improvements. — So, too, the common law did not usually make any allowance for improvements made by the tenant on the disputed premises,<sup>1</sup> but by statute he is frequently allowed for such improvements.<sup>2</sup>

ENUMERATE.<sup>3</sup>

ENVOY. (See CONSULS and AMBASSADORS.) — An ambassador of second class.<sup>4</sup>

EQUAL.<sup>5</sup>

EQUIPMENT.<sup>6</sup>

Curtis v. Francis, 9 Cush. (Mass.) 427; Richards v. Randall, 4 Gray (Mass.), 53; Larrabee v. Lumbert, 36 Me. 440; Pierce v. Strickland, 25 Me. 277; Withington v. Corey, 2 N. H. 115. Rents and profits need not be demanded in the writ. Provident Institution v. Burnham, 128 Mass. 458.

1. Sedgw. & Wait's Tr. Title to Land (2d ed.), sec. 690.

2. See Backus v. Chapman, 111 Mass. 386; Curtis v. Gay, 15 Gray (Mass.), 36; Saunders v. Robinson, 7 Met. (Mass.) 310; Daggett v. Tracy, 128 Mass. 167; Flanders v. Davis, 19 N. H. 139.

Authorities for Writ of Entry. — Stearns, Real Actions; Jackson, Real Actions; Booth, Real Actions; Coke on Littleton, 238 b, 239 a; 3 Black. Com. *180-185; Sedgwick & Wait on the Trial of Title to Land; Jones on Mortgages (2d ed.), secs. 718, 1276-1316; Boone on Mortgages, secs. 119, 206.

3. In a provision in the Rev. Sts. of N. Y., the terms of which were that "no beneficial power, general or special, hereafter to be created, other than such as are already enumerated and defined in this article, shall be valid," the words "enumerated and defined," it was held, are not to be read literally as limiting beneficial powers to the few specially detailed in the previous sections. "The use of the word 'enumerated' may have been infelicitous and inexact. That it was used in the sense of 'mentioned,' 'indicated,' 'referred to,' 'authorized,' cannot well be doubted: that is the true construction. Cutting v. Cutting, 20 Hun (N. Y.), 360; s. c., 86 N. Y. 522.

4. Heathfield v. Chilton, 4 Burr. 2015.

5. Equal means "not less than" in a contract to keep a number of boats on a steamboat line equal to the number granted in the contract. "It always excludes the idea of inferiority; and therefore when we assert that two things are equal to each other, we give it more of mathematical accuracy, because we deny the inferiority of either to the other; but when we say that one person or thing is equal to another, we do not necessarily nor ordinarily deny its superiority to the other. We, in such assertion, recognize the notion that the greater includes the less, and so do not deny that the greater equals the less, because it contains that which does, in the strictest sense, equal the less. Indeed, this phrase, 'equal to,' when coupled with an adverbial modification, contains a strong implication of superiority. 'Washington was, at least, equal to Arnold in patriotism,' is a statement which, though true, by no means converts the traitor into a lover of his country." Stewart v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 38 N. J. 505.

In a statute of descent and distribution, which, after providing for descent to children, continued, "And if the intestate shall have no child or children at the time of his decease, such estate shall descend equally to the next of kin, in equal degree, and those who represent them, the word is not used in its verbal sense, as it is in the former part of the section, where it is said that 'the portions of all the male children shall be equal,' where it intends that they shall be on a level, or to the same amount; but the term 'equally,' as an adverb, is used in one of its adverbial senses, and intends, in like manner, or in the same manner as has been before provided." Auger v. Taylor, 2 Tyler (Vt.), 260.

The word, however, generally refers to size or quantity, meaning like or same. Bannister v. Bull, 16 S. Car. 220. But in a statutory provision that in a suit prosecuted or defended by the representatives of a deceased person, the opposite party, if examined as a witness in his own behalf, should "not be allowed to testify at all in relation to matters which, if true, must have been equally within the knowledge of such deceased person," "equally" does not relate to the degree of knowledge of the opposite party, but is used in the sense of "alike" to preclude the evidence of the party where the facts to which he is called were known to both. Kimball v. Kimball, 16 Mich. 211.

6. In an act exempting from taxation the buildings and grounds of charitable and

EQUITABLE ASSETS—EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENTS.

EQUITABLE ASSETS.—See ASSETS.

EQUITABLE ASSIGNMENTS.

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| I. Definition, 656.                                | V. Diligence in perfecting Title, 662. |
| II. What constitutes an Equitable Assignment, 656. | VI. Equities of Assignee, 662.         |
| III. What is assignable in Equity, 658.            | VII. Rights of Assignee, 663.          |
| IV. Notice by Assignee, 661.                       | VIII. Remedies of Assignee, 663.       |

I. Definition.—An equitable assignment is such an assignment as gives the assignee a title, which, though not cognizable at law, equity will recognize and protect.<sup>1</sup>

II. What constitutes an Equitable Assignment.—No particular form is necessary in order to constitute a valid equitable assignment of a debt or other chose in action. Any order, writing, or act which makes an appropriation of a fund, amounts to an equitable assignment of that fund.<sup>2</sup> benevolent institutions and their equipments, this term "means the visible, tangible furniture, fixtures, and apparatus on the premises which are usual and necessary for the operations there conducted. In this case it clearly embraces the library and silver vessels, as well as the necessary furniture for the college buildings; but it is a term altogether inappropriate as a description of the endowments or investments by the income from which the charitable work is sustained and its expenses defrayed." App. Tax. Ct. of Baltimore v. St. Peter's Academy, 50 Md. 321.

Under a description of property in a deed of trust, as "all equipments, machinery, implements, tools, instruments, and fixture of whatever kind or nature, that now are, or may hereafter be, belonging or appertaining to said mines, or any of them, or used in connection therewith," "equipments" was held to include the pit-mules that were essential to the operation of the mines. Said Hall, J., "One of the definitions of the word 'equipment,' given by Mr. Webster, is '3 (Civ. Eng.), the necessary adjuncts of a railway, as cars, locomotives.' The equipments of a coal-mine are all its necessary adjuncts, and include pit-mules, which are an essential part of its apparatus, and without which it cannot be operated." In the absence of such a connecting phrase as "such as," "consisting of," or "as follows," the meaning of the general word "equipment" cannot be held to be limited by the particular words which follow it. Rubey v. Mo. Coal & Mining Co., 21 Mo. App. 159.

When a barge becomes necessary in navigating a boat, and one is hired for that purpose, its letting is material furnished for the equipment of the boat within the meaning of a lien law. Gleim v. Steamboat Belmont, 11 Mo. 113.

1. Abbott's L. Dict.

At common law, no possibility, right, title, or thing in action could be granted to third persons, the grounds being that such assignment would violate the rules against champerty and maintenance. Lampet's Case, 10 Coke, 48; Thalhimer v. Brinckerhoff, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 623.

The only exceptions were in case of the king, to whom an assignment of a chose in action could always be made,—Miles v. Williams, 1 P. Will. 252; U. S. v. Buford, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 12,—and in the case of annuities which could be assigned. Gerrard v. Boden, Hill, 80. This is still the general rule at law. But courts of equity have disregarded this rule, and give effect to assignments of contingent interests and expectancies, as well as assignments of choses in action. Bacon v. Bonham, 33 N. J. Eq. 614; East Lewisburg Mfg. Co. v. Marsh, 91 Pa. St. 96; Trull v. Eastman, 3 Met. (Mass.) 121. Sed. cf. In re Duggan L. R. 8 Eq. 697; Patton v. Mfg. Co., 3 Colo. 265.

2. 2 Story Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 365; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 219.

What is necessary to constitute a valid equitable assignment has been well expressed by the Supreme Court of the United States in Christmas v. Russell, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 69.

"To make an equitable assignment, there must be such an appropriation of the subject-matter as to confer a complete and present right on the party intended to be provided for, even where the circumstances do not admit of its immediate exercise. A mere promise, though of the clearest and most solemn kind, to pay a debt out of a particular fund, is not an assignment of the fund, even in equity. If the holder of the fund retains control over it, such as power on his own account to collect it, or to revoke the disposition promised, that is fatal to the transaction as an equitable assignment."

The question was discussed in Bank of Commerce v. Bogy, 44 Mo. 13, and the court said, "A bill drawn upon a debtor does not of itself operate as an assignment in equity of the debt, even if it is negotiated for a good consideration. . . . In Kimball v. Donald, 20 Mo. 577, Judge Leonard clearly states the recognized doctrine: 'Any thing that shows an intention on the one side to make a present irrevocable transfer of the fund, and from which an assent to receive it may be inferred on the other, will operate in equity as an assignment, if supported by a sufficient consideration.' . . . In Dickenson v. Phillips, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 454, the court, in holding that the transaction under consideration did not amount to an assignment, recognize the doctrine in saying that no particular form of words is necessary to constitute an equitable assignment. But there must be evidence of intention to appropriate the fund." See also Shannon v. Hoboken, 37 N. J. Eq. 123; East Lewisburg L. & M. Co. v. Marsh, 91 Pa. St. 96; Row v. Dawson, 1 Ves. Sr. 331; Pass v. McCrea, 36 Miss. 143; Kimball v. Donald, 20 Mo. 577.

No particular form is necessary in order to constitute a valid assignment. An oral or written declaration may be as effectual to constitute an assignment as the most formal instrument. Kessil v. Albetis, 56 Barb. (N. Y.) 362; Spiker v. Nydegger, 30 Md. 315; Noyes v. Brown, 33 Vt. 431; Newby v. Hill, 2 Met. (Ky.) 530; Arpin v. Burch (Wis.), 32 N. W. Rep. 681; Gage v. Dow, 59 N. H. 383; Tingle v. Fisher, 20 W. Va. 497; Bower v. Blue Stone Co., 30 N. J. Eq. 171.

But in Georgia, where the thing assigned is a chose in action, the assignment must be in writing. Ins. Co. v. Walrar, 30 Fed. Rep. 653.

It is sufficient if the intent to appropriate the fund is implied, though not expressed in terms. Garnsey v. Gardiner, 49 Me. 167; Smith v. Sterritt, 24 Mo. 260. But the transfer of the fund to the control of the assignee must be absolute. Dickenson v. Phillips, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 454; Hoyt v. Story, 3 Barb. (N. Y.) 262.

The true test whether an absolute appropriation is made out or not, depends upon the point at whose risk the property is, and, until the creditor has consented, the property will clearly be at the risk of the assignor or remitter. Williams v. Everett, 14 East, 582; Tiernan v. Jackson, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 580; In re Baber L. R. 10 Eq. 554.

The following have been held to constitute Valid Equitable Assignments.—A draft drawn by A. on B., in favor of C., for a value able consideration, when drawn on a designated fund. McWilliams v. Webb, 32 Iowa, 577; Conway v. Cutting, 51 N. H. 407; Walker v. Manro, 18 Mo. 564; McLellan v. Walker, 26 Me. 114; Cutts v. Perkins, 12 Mass. 206; Kirtland v. Moore, 40 N. J. Eq. 106; Code v. Carlton, 18 Neb. 328.

So of a bill of exchange. Kahnweiler v. Anderson, 78 N. Car. 133.

But if the draft be not accepted, it does not amount to an assignment. Grammel v. Carmer, 55 Mich. 201; s. c., 54 Am. Rep. 363; Canton Bank v. D. S. W. Ry. Co., 52 Iowa, 378; Jones v. Pacific, etc., Co., 13 Nev. 359.

Any order, writing, or act which makes an appropriation of the fund. Shannon v. Hoboken, 37 N. J. Eq. 123; Brokaw v. Brokaw, 41 N. J. Eq. 215; Bank of Commerce v. Bogy, 44 Mo. 13; East Lewisburg L. & M. Co., 91 Pa. St. 96; McLellan v. Walker, 26 Me. 114; Cutts v. Perkins, 12 Mass. 206; Wiggins v. McDonald, 18 Cal. 126; Newby v. Hill, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 530.

Where the owner of goods then in the hands of an agent promised a creditor by letter that he would direct the agent to deliver the goods to the creditor, and subsequently gave such direction. Cabada v. De Jorgh, 1 W. N. C. (Pa.) 342.

The delivery of the written evidence of a debt. Mowry v. Todd, 12 Mass. 281.

The symbolical delivery of the evidence of a debt, when an actual transfer is impossible. Gayoso Savings Institution v. Fellows, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 467; Jones v. Witter, 13 Mass. 304; Prescott v. Hull, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 284.

A parol assignment of a debt. Tibbets v. George, 5 Ad. & El. 107; Galway v. Fullerton, 2 C. E. Green (N. J.), 389.

Of a promissory note. Foster v. Emery, 7 Fost. (N. H.) 269.

Of rent. Morton v. Naylor, 1 Hill (N. Y.), 583; Esling v. Zantzinger, 1 Harris (Pa.), 50.

Of a judgment. Ford v. Steuart, 19 Johns. (N. Y.) 342; Braham v. Ragland, 3 Stew. (Ala.) 247.

Of an action for a debt. Brewer v. Mills, 24 N. H. 292.

Agreement to transfer stock as collateral security, followed by a letter of attorney to enforce the same. Lightner's Appeal, 82 Pa. St. 301; Taft v. Bowker, 132 Mass. 277.

A power of attorney to collect a debt, and an order for the amount due. State Bank v. Hastings, 15 Wis. 83; Wallace v. The Chair Co., 16 Gray (Mass.), 209; McEwen v. Johnson, 7 Cal. 258.

The placing of a receipt for goods attached, approved by the plaintiff's attorney, in the hands of that attorney. Jewett v. Dockray, 34 Me. 45.

A deposit of a life policy to secure a sum

III. What is assignable in Equity.—In general, equity favors the transfer of things not in possession.<sup>1</sup> But there are certain of money. Dufaur v. The Professional Life Assurance Co., 25 Beav. 599.

A letter charging a life policy with a debt. Jones v. Consolidated Investment Assurance Co., 26 Beav. 256.

An order drawn by A. on B., who had agreed to purchase land belonging to A., to pay the purchase-money to C., a creditor of A., was held to be a valid equitable assignment of the purchase-money. Yeates v. Groves, 1 Ves. Jr. 281.

So where a firm makes a remittance to its agent for the purpose of paying a particular draft. Harwood v. Tucker, 18 Ill. 544.

So an order drawn for value by a legatee on the executor for the amount of his legacy. Anderson v. DeSoer, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 363.

So where a creditor having a claim against a debtor, placed it in the hands of an attorney, under an agreement by which the latter was to have one-third of what was to be realized. Fairbanks v. Sargent, 104 N. Y. 108.

And the delivery of a savings-bank book, although unaccompanied by a written assignment, and with the intention only that it shall be held as collateral security for the payment of a debt, is an equitable assignment of the deposit represented by the book. Taft v. Bowker, 132 Mass. 277.

As to when a covenant to assign amounts to an assignment. See Townshend v. Windham, 2 Ves. Sr. 1.

The following have been held not to constitute Valid Equitable Assignments.—A simple draft or check not drawn upon a designated fund. Attorney-General v. Continental Life Ins. Co., 71 N. Y. 325; Loyd v. McCaffrey, 46 Pa. St. 410; Bank v. Gish, 22 Pa. St. 13; Leclde Bank v. Schuler, 120 U. S. 511; Kimball v. Donald, 20 Mo. 577; Sands v. Matthews, 27 Ala. 399; Bush v. Foote, 58 Miss. 5; s. c., 38 Am. Rep. 810; Canton Bank v. D. S. W. Ry. Co., 52 Iowa, 378; Jones v. Pacific, etc., Co., 13 Nev. 359.

A covenant by a debtor to pay certain debts owing by him out of a designated fund, when the same shall be received by him. Rogers v. Hosack, 18 Wend. (N. Y.) 319; Christmas v. Griswold, 8 Ohio St. 563; Pearce v. Roberts, 27 Mo. 179.

A bill of exchange drawn by a creditor upon his debtor, even where negotiated for a good consideration. Bank of Commerce v. Bogy, 44 Mo. 13.

A check. Tyler v. Gould, 48 N. Y. 682; But compare Munn v. Burch, 25 Ill. 35; Rhodes v. Childs, 64 Pa. St. 18. Otherwise if the check be so worded as to leave no doubt of the drawer's intention to transfer the entire deposit specifically to the payee. Kingman v. Perkins, 105 Mass. 111.

A mere verbal agreement between a plaintiff and a third person that the latter shall receive the money sued for. Seaver v. Bradley, 6 Me. 60.

A direction to an agent to collect money and hand it over to a third party. Rodick v. Gaudell, 1 De G. M. & G. 763.

An order in the form, "Please pay L. and A. my wages from month to month as they become due, and what may now be due," drawn on the clerk of a corporation. Carrique v. Sidebottom, 3 Met. (Mass.) 297.

An order on funds of a third person, not a banker, not accepted by or presented to the drawee. Pool v. Carhart (Iowa), 32 N. W. Rep. 16.

A promise to pay money when the debtor receives a debt due him from a third person. Field v. Megaw, L. R. 4 C. P. 660; Connely v. Harrison, 16 La. Ann. 41.

An assignment of existing chattels, coupled with words which amount to a mere license to seize after-acquired property, is not a valid assignment of the latter. Reeve v. Whitmore, 4 De G. Jo. & S. 1; s. c., 33 L. J. Ch. N. S. 63.

So, a conveyance of land before the grantor has acquired title, is not an assignment, but operates an agreement to convey, which may be enforced in chancery. Chew v. Barnet, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 389; Vreeland v. Blanveet, 8 C. E. Green (N. J.), 483. See also Dickenson v. Phillips, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 454.

1. The following have been held to be assignable in Equity.—An expected legacy. Bacon v. Bonham, 33 N. J. Eq. 614.

A devise of land upon a contingency. Wright v. Wright, 1 Ves. Sr. 408.

The expectancy of an heir of his father's estate. Hannon v. Christopher, 34 N. J. Eq. 459; Jenkins v. Stetson, 9 Allen (Mass.), 128; Power's Appeal, 63 Pa. St. 443; Stover v. Eycleshimer, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 84; Varrick v. Edwards, 1 Hoff. Ch. (N. Y.) 382; Hobson v. Trevor, 2 P. Wms. 191; Wethered v. Wethered, 1 Sim. (Eng. Ch.) 182; Fitzgerald v. Vestal, 4 Sneed (Tenn.), 258; Steel v. Frierson, 85 Tenn. 430. But compare Meedles v. Meedles, 7 Ohio St. 432.

A widow's interest in her deceased husband's estate. Powell v. Powell, 10 Ala. 900.

A demand which would survive to the personal representatives of the party after his death. Comegys v. Vasse, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 193; Grant v. Ludlow, 8 Ohio St. 1; Zabriskie v. Smith, 13 N. Y. 322. Compare Gray v. McCallister, 50 Iowa, 497, where a claim which would not so survive was held assignable.

exceptions to the rule, generally founded on principles of public policy.<sup>1</sup>

A debt not in existence, but afterwards to accrue. Hassie v. Congregation, 35 Cal. 378; Cutts v. Perkins, 12 Mass. 206; Garland v. Harrington, 51 N. H. 409; Field v. The Mayor, etc., 6 N. Y. 179.

A due bill. Groot v. Story, 41 Vt. 533.

A contract to do work on a street. Taylor v. Palmer, 31 Cal. 240; St. Louis v. Clemens, 42 Mo. 69.

One-half of a contract to build a bridge. Dougherty v. Grouff (Neb. 1888), 36 N. W. Rep. 351.

An executory contract to sell and deliver oil. Tyler v. Barrows, 6 Robt. (N. Y.) 104.

Rights under executory contracts. Hawley v. Bristol, 39 Conn. 26; Bracket v. Blake, 7 Met. (Mass.) 335; Phila. v. Lockhard, 73 Pa. St. 211; Cochran v. Collins, 29 Cal. 129; St. Louis v. Clemens, 42 Mo. 69.

Freight to be earned. Douglas v. Russell, 4 Sim. (Eng. Ch.) 524; Gardner v. Lachlan, 4 My. & Cr. 129; Curtis v. Auber, 1 Jac. & Wal. 506.

The future earnings of a ship. In re Ship Warre, 8 Price (Exch.), 269.

The share in the profits of a voyage which a seaman in a whaling-ship receives in lieu of wages. Gardner v. Hoy, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 168.

The head matter and whale-oil to be caught in a whaling voyage in progress at the time of the assignment. Langton v. Horton, 1 Hare, 549.

Wages due, and to become due. Emery v. Lawrence, 8 Cush. (Mass.) 151; Boyle v. Leonard, 2 Allen (Mass.), 407; Augur v. N. Y. Belting Co., 39 Conn. 536; Garland v. Harrington, 51 N. H. 409; McCormick v. Towns (N. H.), 9 Atl. Rep. 97.

But a person not engaged in any employment of another, and not under contract of employment, cannot, even for a valuable consideration, make a valid assignment of all the wages which he may earn in the future, without limit as to time and amount. Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. v. Woodring (Pa.), 9 Atl. Rep. 58; Herbert v. Bronson, 125 Mass. 475.

So where the assignment is made with fraudulent intent. Runnels v. Bosquet, 60 N. H. 38.

Claims against Indian tribes, which the United States Government was expected to pay. Coquillard v. French, 19 Ind. 274.

Interest in a claim to be established against a foreign government before a mixed commission. Peugh v. Porter, 112 U. S. 737.

A claim not at the time legally enforceable, and the exact amount of which is not known. Jones v. New York, 90 N. Y. 3<sup>d</sup>.

The right given by the statute to a mortgagor to redeem the right in equity after it has been sold on execution. Bigelow v. Willson, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 485.

A bill of lading for a cargo of oil. Ex parte Barber, 3 Mont. Deac. & De G. 174.

Machinery at a future time to be added to, or substituted for, existing machinery. Holroyd v. Marshall, 10 H. L. Cas. 191; s. c., 6 Jur. N. S. 931. Compare Moody v. Wright, 13 Met. (Mass.) 17.

Specific property in controversy in an action of replevin. Taylor v. Galland, 3 Iowa, 17.

The equitable rights of a debtor. Edmeston v. Lyde, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 637.

A lien of an attorney for services. Day v. Bowman, 109 Ind. 383.

A chance in a land lottery authorized by a statute of Georgia. Dugas v. Lawrence, 19 Ga. 557.

An interest created by a pledge of personal property. Russell v. Filmore, 15 Vt. 130.

The interest of the vendee in a contract for the sale of real estate. Brayton v. Sawin, 5 Wis. 117.

The general grant of a mining privilege. McBee v. Loftis, 1 Strobb. (S. Car.) Eq. 90.

Money in the hands of a county treasurer, being part of a tax collected in aid of a railroad company. Manning v. Mathews, 70 Iowa, 503.

The next year's crop. Forman v. Proctor, 9 B. Mon. (Ky.) 124.

Covenants running with the land. Redwine v. Brown, 10 Ga. 311.

A right of action for the value of goods converted where the tort is waived. Hawk v. Thorn, 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 164; Bank v. Clark, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 6; McKee v. Judd, 12 N. Y. 622. See also Ringe v. Coleraine, 11 Gray (Mass.), 157.

The right to proceed against a vendor for fraud or breach of warranty. Haight v. Hoyt, 19 N. Y. 464.

A right of action for damages to property. North v. Turner, 9 S. & R. (Pa.) 244; Butler v. N. Y. & E. R. R. Co., 22 Barb. (N. Y.) 110.

A right of action against a railway company for killing stock. Everett v. Railway Co. (Iowa), 35 N. W. Rep. 609; East Tenn., etc., R. Co. v. Henderson, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 1.

And where a note is owned by two, an assignment by one of his share is valid in equity. Fordyce v. Nelson, 91 Ind. 447. See also Hope v. Hayley, 85 E. C. L. R. (5 El. & Bl.) 829; Hinkle v. Wanzer, 17 How. (U. S.) 353.

1. The following have been held not to be assignable. — The commission of an officer in the army. Calisher v. Forbes, L. R. 7 Ch. 109; Addison v. Cox, L. R. 8 Ch. 76. But compare L'Estrange v. L'Estrange, 1 Eng. L. & E. 153; s. c., 20 L. J. Ch. 355.

The full or half pay of an officer in the army or navy. Davis v. Duke of Marlborough, 1 Swanst. 79.

Salary, not yet due, of a public officer. Beal v. McVickar, 8 Mo. App. 202; King v. Hawkins (Ariz. 1888), 16 Pac. Rep. 434. The profits of a public office. Hill v. Paul, 8 Clark & F. 295.

Claims against the United States in some cases. Becker v. Sweetzer, 15 Minn. 327; Wanless v. U. S., 6 Ct. of Cl. 123; Danklesson v. Braynard, 3 Daly (N. Y.), 183; Bates v. U. S., 4 Ct. of Cl. 569; St. Paul & D. R. R. v. U. S., 112 U. S. 733.

A pre-emption right. Whitney v. Buckman, 13 Cal. 536.

A bare right to file a bill in equity. Dayton v. Fargo, 45 Mich. 153; Marshall v. Means, 12 Ga. 61; Jones v. Babcock, 15 Mo. App. 149.

A right of action to set aside a release from the obligation of a covenant on the ground that such release was fraudulently procured. Milwaukee, etc., R. Co. v. Milwaukee, etc., R. Co., 20 Wis. 174.

A mere right of action for a tort. Dunklin v. Wilkins, 5 Ala. 199; Dickinson v. Seaver, 44 Mich. 624; McKee v. Judd, 12 N. Y. 622; Gardner v. Adams, 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 297; Davis v. Herndon, 39 Miss. 484; Linton v. Hurley, 104 Mass. 353. But compare Gray v. McCallister, 50 Iowa, 497, where it was held that a claim based on a personal tort which dies with the party (in this case malicious prosecution) is assignable.

A right of entry for condition broken. Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 486; Southard v. C. R. R. Co., 2 Dutcher (N. J.) 13; McMahon v. Allen, 34 Barb. (N. Y.) 56; Gwynn v. Jones, 2 Gill & J. (Md.) 173.

A claim against a trustee, where tenant for life of a trust having mortgaged it, and the estate having been sold by the mortgagee, after the sale the purchaser and mortgagee, for a nominal consideration, assigned to the tenant for life certain alleged arrears of interest and profits of part of the trust fund, which, as the plaintiff alleged, the trustee had made in excess of the interest for which he had accounted. Hill v. Boyle, L. R. 4 Eq. 260.

A contract founded in personal trust and confidence. Lansden v. McCarthy, 45 Mo. 106; Boykin v. Campbell, 9 Mo. App. 495.

A contract not yet made, nor right to compensation for services which the would-be assignor is under no obligation to perform. Skipper v. Stokes, 42 Ala. 255; Jermyn v. Moffitt, 75 Pa. St. 399; Farnsworth v. Jackson, 32 Me. 419; Hall v. Jackson, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 194.

The right to cancel usurious contracts by action. Boughton v. Smith, 26 Barb. (N. Y.) 635. Compare Spicer v. Jarrett, 58 Tenn. 454.

A mere inchoate right to a mechanic's lien. Goodman v. Pence, 21 Neb. 459.

The lien of a vendor for purchase-money. Richards v. Leaming, 27 Ill. 431; Keith v. Horner, 32 Ill. 524; Elder v. Jones, 85 Ill. 384; Dunklin v. Wilkins, 5 Ala. 199; Iglehart v. Armiger, 1 Bland (Md.), 519.

A covenant to deliver boards, or do any collateral act, though the words "to order" are inserted. Breen v. Ingram, 1 Bay (S. Car.), 173.

A license to shoot, fish, etc. Cowles v. Kidder, 24 N. H. 364; s. c., 2 Am. Ldg. Cas. (5th ed.) 550. Compare Wickham v. Hawker, 7 M. & W. 63.

See title, "Champerly and Maintenance."

The liability to be sued, the exceptions to the rule being, "The assignment of liabilities or covenants which run with the land; the assignment of liability for a debt, by agreement among all the parties interested; and the assignment of liabilities in consequence of marriage, bankruptcy, or death." Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 227; Dacey on Parties to Actions, 76, 234; Jones v. Walker, 2 Paine (U. S.), 688; Van Scooter v. Lefferts, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 140.

It has also been held "that an order drawn on a fund for only a part thereof does not amount to an assignment of that part, for the reason that a creditor shall not be permitted to split up a single cause of action into many actions, without the assent of the debtor. In other words, . . . a part only of a chose in action cannot be assigned" without the consent of the debtor. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 219; 2 Story Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 363; Mandeville v. Welch, 5 Wheat. (U. S.) 277; Chicago R. Co. v. Nichols, 57 Ill. 467; Moore v. Gravelot, 3 Ill. App. 442; Jermyn v. Moffitt, 75 Pa. St. 399; Tyler v. Tuel, 6 Cranch (C. C.), 324; Beardsen v. Morgan, 70 Me. 22; Gibson v. Cooke, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 15; Walker v. Manro, 18 Mo. 564; Blin v. Pierce, 20 Vt. 25; Stanbery v. Smythe, 13 Ohio St. 495; Gibson v. Finley, 4 Md. Ch. 75; Wilson v. Carson, 12 Md. 55; Westham Granite Co. v. Chandler, 4 Mackey (D. C.), 32. But compare Bank v. McLoon, 73 Me. 498; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 388; Caldwell v. Hartupee, 70 Pa. St. 74; Field v. Mayor, etc., 6 N. Y. 179; McMenomy v. Ferrers, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 72; Superintendent, etc., v. Heath, 15 N. J. Eq. 22; Brown v. Dunn (N. J.), 11 Atl. Rep. 149; Moody v. Kyle, 34 Miss. 506; Whitney v. Cowan, 55 Miss. 626; Stanbery v. Smythe, 13 Ohio St. 499; Campbell v. Hildebrandt (Tex.), 3 S. W. Rep. 243; Godbold v. Kirkpatrick (S. Car.), 1 S. E. Rep. 156.

In Indiana such an assignment may be

IV. Notice by Assignee.—In order to perfect his title as against the debtor, subsequent bona fide purchasers from the assignor, and subsequent assignees, the assignee must give notice of the assignment to the debtor, or the party in whose hands is the fund intended to be assigned.<sup>1</sup> sustained for some purposes. Sapping v. Duffy, 47 Ind. 51.

A municipality is not bound to recognize such a partial assignment of a contract to which it is a party. Philadelphia's Appeal, 86 Pa. St. 179.

1. In Spain v. Hamilton, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 604, Wayne, J., said (p. 624), "But in order to perfect his title against the debtor, it is indispensable that the assignee should immediately give notice of the assignment to the debtor, for otherwise a priority of right may be obtained by a subsequent assignee, or the debt may be discharged by a payment to the assignee before such notice."

So in Loomis v. Loomis, 26 Vt. 198, it was held that until notice of an assignment is given to the debtor, the rights and interests of the debtor are in no way affected by the assignment."

And this seems to be the rule in most of the States. See Cloofelter v. Cox, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 330; Hartford Insurance Co. v. Van Buskirk, 14 Conn. 145; Wood v. Partridge, 11 Mass. 488; Littlefield v. Smith, 17 Me. 327; Beckwith v. Bank, 9 N. Y., 211; State v. Elmore, 35 Cal. 653; Elliott's Appeal, 50 Pa. St. 75; Murdoch v. Finney, 21 Mo. 138.

The rule has not, however, been universally adopted. Thus, in Gayoso Savings Institution v. Fellows, 6 Cold. (Tenn.) 467, Andrews, J., says (p. 471), "Whatever may be the law in regard to the necessity for notice to the debtor, in the case of an assignment of a judgment at law, we have no hesitation in holding that such notice is not necessary, where a bond, bill, note, or like evidence of debt is assigned, and is transferred by actual manual delivery to the assignee; and this, whether the legal title in the instrument passed by the assignment or not."

So in Kennedy v. Parke, 2 C. E. Green (N. J.), 415, it was held that when a legatee has assigned a legacy for a valuable consideration, it is no defence to an action brought by such assignee against the executors to recover the legacy that they have paid it in good faith to a second assignee of the legatee, without notice of the previous assignment.

But the weight of authority is decidedly in favor of the rule as stated. See, however, Newby v. Hill, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 530; Richardson v. Ainsworth, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 521.

And in Massachusetts it is well established that, as to third persons, the assignment of a chase in action is valid without notice to the debtor. Thayer v. Daniels, 113 Mass. 129.

The rule is different as against the assignor, creditors of the assignor, and mere volunteers, as against whom it is immaterial whether notice be given or not. Thus, in Pellman v. Hart, 1 Pa. St. 263, it was held that when a note has been assigned and transferred by a debtor bona fide in payment of a debt, before the service of an attachment execution, the assignee is entitled to the money due by the garnishee, and not the attaching creditor, although the garnishee had no notice of such assignment previous to the service of the attachment. See also Beavan v. Lord Oxford, 6 De G. M. & G. 492; Pickering v. Ilfracombe Ry. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 235; State v. Elmore, 35 Cal. 653; Westoby v. Day, 2 El. & Bl. 605; Kortright v. Buffalo, 20 Wend. (N. Y.) 91; McNeil v. Bank, 46 N. Y. 325; Mount Holly Co. v. Ferree, 2 C. E. Green (N. J.), 117; Sabin v. Bank, 21 Vt. 353; Ullmann v. Kline, 87 Ill. 269. But compare Pinkerton v. M. & L. R. R. Co., 42 N. H. 424; Colt v. Ives, 31 Conn. 25. In the first of these cases it was held, on the transfer of stock the delivery will not be complete until an entry of such transfer is made on the stock record, or it be sent to the office for that purpose, and the omission thus to perfect the delivery will be prima facie and, if unexplained, conclusive evidence of a secret trust, and, therefore, as a matter of law, fraudulent and void as to creditors.

In the second case, the same doctrine is laid down; but it is further said that the presumption may be rebutted by proof that the purchaser did all in his power to complete the transfer, and failed in consequence of the unjustifiable refusal of the corporation. See also Sabin v. Bank, 21 Vt. 353; Robinson v. Marshall, 11 Md. 251; Fort Madison Lumber Co. v. Batavian Bank, 71 Iowa, 270; Moore v. Gravelot, 3 Ill. App. 442.

In Louisiana, the notice must be served on the debtor personally, notice to his attorney being insufficient. Morrison v. Lynch, 36 La. Ann. 611.

In order to charge the defendant with fraudulent payment to the assignor, something equivalent to direct and positive notice of an assignment is necessary. Maghan v. Mills, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 64.

The notice need not be formal or express,

V. Diligence in perfecting Title.—It is the duty of an assignee to be diligent in perfecting his title, and, if guilty of laches, he may be postponed to a subsequent purchaser who has been injured thereby.<sup>1</sup>

VI. Equities of Assignee.—The assignee of a chose in action takes it subject to all the equities existing between the original parties,<sup>2</sup> and it is enough that the debtor has such knowledge and information as will put him on his guard, and enable him to warn subsequent purchasers. Dale v. Kimpton, 46 Vt. 76; Pickering v. Ilfracombe Ry. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 235; Anderson v. Van Alen, 12 Johns. (N. Y.) 343; Kellogg v. Krauser, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 137; Hamilton v. Marks, 52 Mo. 78.

But it was said in Baron v. Porter, 44 Vt. 587, that the notice must emanate from the assignee, or some one authorized by him.

Where all other equities are equal, priority in time will prevail. Fore v. Manlove, 18 Cal. 436; Nuir v. Schenck, 3 Hill (N. Y.), 228; Talbot v. Cook, 7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 438.

1. An assignee who does not give notice to the debtor, until judgment has been rendered against him in an attachment rendered against him by a creditor of the assignor. Richards v. Griggs, 16 Mo. 416.

So it has been held, that an assignee who lies quiescent until a subsequent assignee has proceeded to judgment, loses his priority. Judson v. Corcoran, 17 How. (U. S.) 612; Ins. Co. v. Corcoran, 1 Gray (Mass.), 75.

So in Pennsylvania, it is negligence within the rule not to have the assignment of a judgment marked on the docket. Fraley's Appeal, 76 Pa. St. 42. See also Spain v. Hamilton, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 604; White v. Wiley, 14 Ind. 497; Rives v. Brown, 81 Ky. 636; Wellsburg Bank v. Kimberlands, 16 W. Va. 555.

To protect the title of the assignee against subsequent assignees for value, possession must be taken of personal chattels assigned, and, in the case of choses in action, that which is equivalent to possession. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.), 223; Milroy v. Lord, 4 DeG. F. & J. 264; Martin v. Sedgwick, 9 Beavan, 333; Clemens v. Davidson, 5 Binn. (Pa.) 392.

2. Thus it was held in Barney v. Grover, 28 Vt. 391, that a person will not be holden to an assignee for a debt due from him to the assignor, if he was liable in an equal or greater amount to another person, as surely for the assignor, which he has since paid, though he had not at the time of the assignment.

So in Kamena v. Huelbig, 8 C. E. Green (N. J.), 227; it was held that an assignee takes a mortgage subject to all the equities to which it was liable in the hands of the assignor; and where the mortgage has been pledged as security for the payment of a note, he is entitled in a suit for foreclosure, only to a decree for the balance due on the mortgage after deducting the amount of the note.

In Martin v. Richardson, 68 N. Car. 255, A. was indebted by bond to B., who transferred it without indorsement to C., and at the time of the transfer C. owed A. a bond; after holding it for some time, C. returned A.'s bond to B. In an action by B. against A. upon the bond due B., it was held that it was subject to the set-off of C.'s bond to A., though B. may have had no notice of the indebtedness of C. to A.

And even where there is a secret agreement between the obligor and obligee of a bond, restricting its collection to certain property of the obligor, the assignee of the bond for value, without notice of the agreement, was held to be affected thereby. Lane v. Smith, 103 Pa. St. 415. See also Bebee v. the Bank, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 529; Littlefield v. Bank, 97 N. Y. 581; Boardman v. Hayne, 29 Iowa, 339; Jeffries v. Evans, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 119; Kleeman v. Frisbie, 63 Ill. 482; Andrews v. McCoy, 8 Ala. 920; Ragsdale v. Hagy, 9 Gratt. (Va.) 409; Sutton v. Sutton (S. Car.), 1 S. E. Rep. 19. But compare Farmer's Nat. Bank v. Fletcher, 44 Iowa, 252; Sleeper v. Chapman, 121 Mass. 404.

But the assignee acquires the rights neither more nor less than the assignor, and stands in his position. The assignor can transfer no better right than he possessed. Jack v. Davis, 29 Ga. 219; Thompson v. Allen, 12 Ind. 539; Shotwell v. Webb, 23 Miss. 375; Sutton v. Sutton (S. Car.), 1 S. E. Rep. 19.

And the equities to which he will be subject, must be such as existed at the time of the assignment. He will not be affected by after-arising equities. Daviess v. Newton, 5 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 89; Eldred v. Hazlett, 33 Pa. St. 307; Walker v. Sargeant, 14 Vt. 247; Richardson v. Ainsworth, 20 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 521.

Although according to some authorities it is sufficient if the equity arises before notice of the assignment. Learey v. Reardon, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 1; Dunklee v. Greenfield, etc., Co., 23 N. H. 245; Newman v. Crocker, 1 Bay (S. Car.), 246.

After notice of an assignment given to the debtor, he can do no act prejudicial to but not necessarily subject to existing equities in favor of third persons.<sup>1</sup>

VII. Rights of the Assignee. — An equitable assignment passes to the assignee all the rights of the assignor in the thing assigned, and the latter can from the time of the assignment exercise no control over it.<sup>2</sup>

VIII. Remedy of Assignee. — The assignment of a demand entitles the assignee to every remedy, lien, or security that might have been made available by the assignor as a means of indemnity or payment.<sup>3</sup> the assignee. Brashear v. West, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 608; Bean v. Simpson, 16 Me. 49; Laughlin v. Fairbanks, 8 Mo. 367; Cummings v. Fullam, 13 Vt. 434; Philips v. Bank, 18 Pa. St. 394; Stewart v. Kirkland, 19 Ala. 162.

But it is otherwise before notice. Campbell v. Day, 16 Vt. 558; Hackett v. Martin, 8 Me. 81; Clark v. Boyd, 6 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 294; Randall v. Reynolds, 52 N. Y. Super. Court, 145; McCloskey v. San Francisco, 66 Cal. 104.

The assignee of negotiable paper takes it free from all the equities between the original holders, by the custom of the law merchant. Kleeman v. Frisbie, 63 Ill. 482.

So where the debtor by his statements, or by his silence, when fair dealing demanded that he should speak, has misled the assignee as to the existence of any such equity. Bank v. Jerome, 18 Com. 443; Watson v. McLaren, 19 Wend. (N. Y.) 557; Sargeant v. Sargeant, 18 Vt. 371; Decker v. Eismhauer, 1 P. & W. (Pa.) 476; Atkinson v. Runnells, 60 Me. 440. See title ESTOPPEL.

The assignee cannot be affected by collateral transactions, secret trusts, or acts unconnected with the subject of the contract. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 225; Kountz v. Kirkpatrick, 72 Pa. St. 376; Wright v. Levy, 12 Cal. 257; Bowman v. Halsted, 2 A. K. Marsh (Ky.), 20.

1. In Livingston v. Dean, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 479, Kent, Chancellor, said, "Though the assignee of a bond and mortgage takes it subject to all the equity of the mortgagor, yet as to the latent equity of a third person against the mortgagee, the case is a little different. The assignee does not take the mortgage subject to such an equity, unless he has notice of it expressly or constructively."

This case follows that of Murray v. Lylburn, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 441, in which Chancellor Kent said, "It is a general and well settled principle that the assignee of a chose in action takes it subject to the same equity it was subject to in the hands of the assignor. But this rule is generally understood to mean the equity remaining in the original obligor or debtor, and not an equity residing in some third person against the assignor. The assignee can always go to the debtor and ascertain what claim he may have against the chose in action in question; . . . but he may not be able to ascertain the equity of some third person against the oblige."<sup>4</sup>

Redfearn v. Ferrier, 1 Dow, 50, was decided by Lord Eldon on this ground. See also Mott v. Clark, 9 Pa. St. 399; Welsh v. Bekey, 1 P. & W. (Pa.) 57; Garland v. Harrison, 17 Mo. 282; Anderson v. Baumgartner, 27 Mo. 80; Olds v. Cummings, 31 Ill. 188; Moore v. Holcombe, 3 Leigh (Va.), 597; Ohio Life Insurance Co. v. Ross, 2 Md. Ch. 25. But compare Bush v. Lathrop, 22 N. Y. 535; Schafer v. Reilly, 50 N. Y. 61; Fairbanks v. Sargent, 104 N. Y. 108.

In The United States v. Sturgis, Paine (U. S. C. C.), 525, the rule that latent equities of a third person are not available against an assignee was held not to affect a judgment creditor, claiming to redeem an assigned mortgage.

2. It has been held that an assignment of a legacy passes the whole right of the assignor. After such assignment, there remains in the assignor no distinct subsisting right capable of being assigned. Kennedy v. Park, 2 Green (N. J.), 145. And, generally, that an assignment, though not in all the forms of law, vests the equitable interest in the assignee, and the assignor will not thereafter be permitted to exercise any authority over the property assigned. Buchanan v. Taylor, Add. (Pa.) 155. So of the assignment of a bond for title. Broadwell v. Gantis, 10 Mo. 398. Of a judgment. Beale v. Bank, 5 Watts (Pa.), 529; State v. Herod, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 444. Accordingly, an assignee of a demand may release it. Dade v. Herbert, 1 Cranch (C. C.), 85. While a release by an assignor of his assignee's claim is a nullity. Parker v. Kelley, 18 Miss. 184; Sampson v. Fletcher, 1 Vt. 168; Blin v. Pierce, 20 Vt. 25; Reed v. Nevins, 38 Me. 193.

As to rights of assignee against third parties, see §§ 4, 5, and 6, supra and notes.

3. Note to Ryall v. Rowles, 2 White &

EQUITABLE CONVERSION AND RECONVERSION.

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| I. Conversion: Definition, 664.                   | VII. Reconversion: Definition, 672.                       |
| II. How it may arise, 665.                        | VIII. Who may elect to reconvert and to what extent, 673. |
| III. What is necessary to constitute, 665. [668.] | IX. Manner of making, 674.                                |
| IV. Time at which it takes place,                 | X. Reconversion by Operation of Law, 674.                 |
| V. Effects of, 670.                               |   |
| VI. Effects of Failure of the Purposes of, 671.   |   |

I. Definition.—Equitable conversion is the notional alteration of land into money, or money into land, in accordance with a direction to that effect of a testator or settler, and in pursuance of the equitable doctrine that what is agreed or imperatively directed to be done is already done, or as good as done.<sup>1</sup>

Tudor Ldg. Cases in Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1667; Bank v. Fordy, 1 Pa. St. 454; Craig v. Parkis, 40 N. Y. 181; Wilson v. Bowden, 26 Ark. 151; Coffing v. Taylor, 16 Ill. 457; Perry v. Roberts, 30 Ind. 244; Schlieman v. Bowlin, 36 Minn. 198.

In bringing suit, the assignee should sue, as a general rule, in the name of the assignor, which the assignment gives him the right to do. And this action may now be brought in the courts of common law. Equity, therefore, will not ordinarily entertain a bill in the first instance, filed by the assignee against the debtor, simply for recovering the debt; but if the assignor interferes in the matter for the purpose of preventing the assignee's using his name, this will give rise to the jurisdiction of the court of equity. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 227; Chicago Rd. v. Nichols, 57 Ill. 466; Hayward v. Andrews, 106 U. S. 672; Guarantee Co. v. Water Co., 107 U. S. 205; Goodwyn v. Lloyd, 8 Port. (Ala.) 237; Dickinson v. Burr, 15 Ark. 372; Batchelder v. Jenness, 59 Vt. 104.

If the assignor dies before suit brought, the assignee may substitute the name of the executor or administrator of the assignor. Cutts v. Perkins, 12 Mass. 206. But where the remedy is in equity alone, the assignee can sue in his own name. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 227; Hammond v. Messenger, 9 Lin. 327; Adair v. Winchester, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 114; Hagar v. Buck, 44 Vt. 285; Caldwell v. Meshew, 44 Ark. 564.

In Iowa, one holding under an oral assignment of an account may sue thereon in his own name. White v. Tucker, 9 Iowa, 100. And where there is an express promise by the debtor to pay the assignee, the latter may sue in his own name. Barger v. Collins, 7 Har. & J. (Md.) 213; Currier v. Hodgdon, 3 N. H. 82; Crocker v. Whitney, 10 Mass. 316; Bucklin v. Ward, 7 Vt. 195; Matheson v. Crain, 1 McCord (S. Car.), 219; Lang v. Fiske, 11 Me. 385; Compton v. Jones, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 13.

In the United States courts it has been said, that, though in equity an assignee may sometimes sue in his own name, he cannot sue in the courts of the United States unless his assignee could have sued there. Sere v. Pitot, 6 Cranch (C. C.), 332.

Authorities.—Bispham's Equity (4th ed.); Story's Eq. Juris. (13th ed.); Note to Ryall v. Rowles, 2 Leading Cases in Equity (4th Am. ed.).

1. Brown's Law Dict.

In Rapalje & Lawrence (Law Dict.) it is said, "In equity, conversion is the operation of changing the nature of property. It is either actual or constructive. Actual conversion is the act of converting land or other property into money by selling it, or of converting money into land by buying land with it. . . . Constructive conversion is a fictitious conversion which is assumed, in certain cases, to have taken place in order to carry out the intention of the parties. The constructive or equitable conversion of land into money (realty into personalty), and vice versa, takes place when an actual conversion has been agreed to, but not actually carried out."

Pomeroy (3 Eq. Jur. 126) says, "Conversion has been briefly and accurately defined as 'that change in the nature of property by which, for certain purposes, real estate is considered as personal, and personal estate as real, and transmissible and descendible as such.'"

To the same effect see Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 370; Bouvier's Law Dict.

The leading case is Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 Bro. Ch. Cas. 497; s. c., 1 Leading Cases in Equity (4th Am. ed.), 1118. In that case, Fletcher by will devised his real property to trustees, to permit his widow to enjoy the same during her life or widowhood, and after her decease or marriage to sell the same, and divide the proceeds of the sale between his son and daughter; with the proviso that, should either die before his or her legacy should become due, the legacy should go to the

II. How it may arise.—Equitable conversion may arise in two ways: first, under a will;<sup>1</sup> and secondly, under settlements and other instruments inter vivos.<sup>2</sup>

III. What is necessary to constitute.—Equitable conversion may arise not only from an express, clear, and imperative direction in a will, deed, or settlement, or a clear and imperative agreement in a contract to convert the property, but also from a necessary implication of such express direction or agreement.<sup>3</sup> survivor. William survived Mary, but both died within the lifetime of their mother, who died the widow of the testator. Upon the death of the latter, the heir-at-law of the father and son filed a bill against the trustees and the personal representatives of the testator and the widow to have a conveyance of the real estate. The bill was dismissed, the court holding that, under the terms of the will, the real estate was to be regarded as money, and that therefore it went to the personal representatives of the widow and son, and not to the heir-at-law of the father and son.

Sir Thomas Sewell, M. R., delivering the opinion of the court, said that "Nothing was better established than this principle, that money directed to be employed in the purchase of land, and land directed to be sold and turned into money, are to be considered as that species of property into which they have been directed to be converted."

In Craig v. Leslie, 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 563, Craig by his last will and testament devised all his real estate to trustees, to sell the same, and to remit the proceeds to his brother, an alien. The brother could inherit personal, but not real, estate. Fletcher v. Ashburner, supra, was followed, Washington, J., saying (p. 577), "Were this a new question, it would seem extremely difficult to raise a doubt respecting it. The common sense of mankind would determine that a devise of money,—the proceeds of land directed to be sold is a devise of money,—notwithstanding it is to arise out of land, and that a devise of land, which a testator by his will directs to be purchased, will pass an interest in the land itself, without regard to the character of the fund out of which the purchase is to be made. The settled doctrine of the courts of equity corresponds with this obvious construction of wills as well as of other instruments whereby land is directed to be turned into money, or money into land, for the benefit of those for whose use the conversion is intended to be made. . . . The principle upon which the whole of this doctrine is founded is that a court of equity, regarding the substance, and not the mere forms and circumstances, of agreements and other instruments, considers things directed or agreed to be done as having been actually performed, where nothing has intervened which ought to prevent a performance." See also Rankin v. Rankin, 36 Ill. 293; s. c., 87 Am. Dec. 205, and note.

1. Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 Bro. C. C. 497; s. c., 1 Leading Cases in Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1118; Craig v. Leslie, 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 563.

2. Masterson v. Pullen, 62 Ala. 145; D'Arras v. Keyser, 26 Pa. St. 249; Turner v. Davis, 41 Ark. 270; Evans v. Kingsberry, 2 Rand. (Va.) 120; s. c., 14 Am. Dec. 779.

3. 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 126, 129; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 373.

The question of equitable conversion is one of intention. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 374; 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 127.

In King v. King, 13 R. I. 501, the subject is discussed. Durfee, C. J., delivering the opinion of the court, said (p. 506), "The question submitted in this case is, Did the seventh clause of the will of the late Edward King work a conversion of the real estate therein disposed of into personalty? The question, like all other questions in regard to the effect of testamentary devises or bequests, is a question of what was the testator's intention. . . . Did the testator intend to have his real estate, out and out, converted into personalty? If he did, the court will give his intention effect by treating the real as personal property from the time of his decease. Or did he intend to have it converted for certain purposes only? If so, the court will treat it as converted for those purposes, but beyond what is required for those purposes, as remaining unchanged. . . . Or again, on the other hand, did he intend simply to give the executor or trustees under his will a power to convert, leaving it discretionary with them to convert it or not? If so, the conversion will depend on the will or discretion of the executor or trustees, and will not be regarded as consummated in law till it is consummated in fact."

So in Wurts v. Page, 19 N. J. Eq. 365, it was said, "The question of conversion is a question of intention; and the real question is, Did the testator intend his lands to be converted into money at all events before distribution."

To the same effect see Hunt's Appeal, 105 Pa. St. 128; Dodge v. Williams, 46 Wis. 70; Dodge v. Pond, 23 N. Y. 69; Chamberlain v. Taylor, 105 N. Y. 185.

But this intention must be so clearly expressed as to leave no possible doubt as to its meaning. "The rule for the decision of such a question . . . is, that, in general, courts of equity do not incline to interfere to change the quality of the property, as the testator or intestate has left it, unless there is some clear act or intention by which he has unequivocally fixed upon it throughout a definite character, either as money or land. . . . For the will to operate as an immediate conversion, it must appear in terms, or by necessary implication, that the testator intended the property to be converted absolutely and at all events. The reason for this rigor of construction is, that there is not a spark of equity between the next of kin and the heir, and that, therefore, neither ought to lose the right which the existing character of the property gives him until it is clearly demonstrated that the testator intended to have it changed." Per Duffee, C. J., in King v. King, 13 R. I. at p. 50. And see Hobson v. Hale, 95 N. Y. 589.

As a general rule, it may be stated that the direction to convert in the case of a trust must be imperative, and the agreement in the case of a contract binding. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 372.

In Hunt's Appeal, 105 Pa. St. 128, Parson, J., said, "It ought to be settled by this time, that, in order to work a conversion, there must be either, 1st, A positive direction to sell; or, 2d, An absolute necessity to sell in order to execute the will; or, 3d, Such a blending of the real and personal estate by the testator in his will, as to clearly show that he intended to create a fund out of both real and personal estate, and to bequeath the said fund as money. In each of the two latter cases, an intent to convert will be implied."

"If the directions in the will as to the proceeds require a sale, it is equivalent to a positive direction to sell." Cook v. Cook, 20 N. J. Eq. 375. See also Dominick v. Michael, 4 Sandf. (N. Y.) 374; Hobson v. Hale, 95 N. Y. 588; Kane v. Gott, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 641; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 641; Pratt v. Taliaferro, 3 Leigh (Va.), 419; Hannah v. Swarner, 3 W. & Serg. (Pa.) 223; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 756; Perot's Appeal, 102 Pa. St. 235; Dodge v. Williams, 46 Wis. 70; Ford v. Ford (Wis.), 33 N. W. Rep. 188; Proctor v. Ferebee, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. C.) 143; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 34; Barker v. Copenbarger, 15 Ill. 103; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 600; Collins v. Champ, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 118; s. c., 61 Am. Dec. 179; Janes v. Throckmorton, 57 Cal. 368.

Where there is proper authority to convert, it is immaterial whether the donee of the power is named or not, if the proceeds of the sale are directed to be paid out by some person named Rankin v. Rankin, 36 Ill. 293; School v. Fisher, 30 Me. 353; Going v. Emery, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 107; s. c., 26 Am. Dec. 645; Hale v. Hale, 137 Mass. 168; Haggerty v. Lanterman, 30 N. J. Eq. 37; Mandlebaum v. McDonell, 29 Mich. 78; s. c., 18 Am. Rep. 61.

As to when the executor is vested with the power of sale by implication. See Lippincott v. Lippincott, 19 N. J. Eq. 121; Hollman v. Tigges, 42 N. J. Eq. 127; Gray v. Henderson, 71 Pa. St. 368; Winston v. Jones, 6 Ala. 550. And compare Geroe v. Winter, 5 N. J. Eq. 655; Seeger v. Seeger, 21 N. J. Eq. 90; Mapes v. Tyler, 43 Barb. (N. Y.) 421; Dunn v. Keeling, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) L. 283.

If, therefore, the act of converting is left to the discretion of the trustees, or other parties, conversion will not take place.

In Parker v. Glover, 42 N. J. Eq. 560, the facts were, that Charles Parker, by the fourth clause of his will, directed that the residue of his estate, real and personal, except two houses, should be converted into money, and the proceeds applied to certain trusts. By the fifth clause he authorized his executor to sell the above excepted houses at his discretion, and apply the proceeds to the same trusts. It was held that there was a conversion of all the property except the two houses under the fourth clause, and that there was no conversion of those houses under the fifth clause; Runyon, Ch., saying (p. 562), "The direction to convert the Southard Street property was not absolute, but discretionary only. That property is expressly excepted from the direction to sell in the preceding section. The testator intended that it should, in its then condition as land, be and continue part of the property given to his daughter, and should go to her children, unless the trustee should think it best to sell it. There is no ground for holding that there was a notional conversion of it."

And in Ford v. Ford (Wis.), 33 N. W. Rep. 188, it was held that a clause in a will, directing that the executors "shall at their discretion either sell part of the lands, and invest the proceeds in more desirable rentable property, or use the proceeds in improving the part not sold," did not work an equitable conversion. See to the same effect, Kouvalinka v. Geibel, 40 N. J. Eq. 443; Hunt's Appeal, 105 Pa. St. 128; Perot's Appeal, 102 Pa. St. 235; Taylor v. Maris, 90 N. Car. 619; Lent v. Howard, 89 N. Y. 169; Montgomery v. Milliken, 1 S. & M. (Miss.) 495; Evans v. Kingsberry, 2 Rand. (Va.) 120; s. c., 14 Am. Dec. 779.

If, however, the discretion of the trustees does not extend to the very act itself, but merely to the details of the conversion,—as, for example, the time and place of the sale,—the conversion will still take place. Ford v. Ford (Wis.), 33 N. W. Rep. 188; Wurts v. Page, 19 N. J. Eq. 365.

So, where the discretion extended only to determining the prices at which, and the terms upon which, the sales should be made. Hancox v. Wall, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 214; Ford v. Ford (Wis.), 33 N. W. Rep. 188.

But where the direction was to sell the real estate, but with a subsequent proviso that it was not to be sold until the widow should cease to desire it as her home, and not even then unless it would bring ten thousand dollars, it was held to be no equitable conversion of the real estate. Ford v. Ford (Wis.), 33 N. W. Rep. 188.

But the fact that one of the beneficiaries may be given an option to take the property in an unconverted state, does not prevent a conversion. Pyle's Appeal, 102 Pa. St. 317; Miller v. Com., 111 Pa. St. 321.

An order of probate to sell lands does not work a conversion until the sale has taken place, and no parol agreement can convert it into personalty so as to affect the lien of a third person. Wither's Appeal, 14 S. & R. (Pa.) 185; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 488.

But if the trustees, having been clothed with a discretion, have actually exercised it, the property has generally been held to be converted. Van Vechten v. Keator, 63 N. Y. 52.

So it is necessary that a contract be binding in order to work a conversion. In Turner v. Davis, 41 Ark. 270, Watkins and Quarles jointly conveyed to a trustee certain lands in trust, to sell them, and divide the proceeds between Watkins and Quarles. The deed provided that the trustee should convey to whomsoever the grantors should in writing request, "provided, however, that the price should be fixed by the grantors, and should be fully paid or secured." On efforts being made by judgment creditors of Watkins to have his interest in the land sold to satisfy their judgments, it was held that the deed of trust was an equitable conversion of the land into money. See also Garnet v. Acton, 28 Beav. 145; Masterson v. Pullen, 62 Ala. 145.

In Evans v. Kingsberry there was a deed containing a proviso. It was held not to work a conversion, Green, J., saying, "The deeds of trust . . . did not convert the lands thereby conveyed into personal estate, in the contemplation of a court of equity, because they did not provide that the lands should be converted out and out and at all events into money. On the contrary, the sale was to be made only on the request of Clay, or Bradley (the grantor), and, until a sale was actually made, Bradley or his heirs-at-law could have redeemed the land by the payment of the debts secured by the deed." Evans v. Kingsberry, 2 Rand. (Va.) 120; s. c., 14 Am. Dec. 779.

As to when real property of a partnership is regarded as personalty, see Manufacturing Co. v. Hoyt, 29 Fed. Rep. 421; Allen v. Withrow, 110 U. S. 119; Foster's Appeal, 74 Pa. St. 391; Lindley v. Davis (Mont.), 14 Pac. Rep. 717; Lenow v. Fones (Ark.), 4 S. W. Rep. 56. From these cases it will be seen that the general principle is, that equity converts real estate held for partnership purposes into personalty so far as may be necessary to settle all the equities as between the firm and its creditors, and between the partners themselves. In Lenow v. Fones (Ark.), 4 S. W. Rep. 56, it was said, "This assumed conversion is an equitable fiction devised for the accomplishment of equitable results, and to carry into effect what is presumed to be the intention of the parties themselves; for when they put land into a commercial firm, it must be taken that they intend it to be considered or treated as personalty, since commerce concerns itself with personal property alone."

If the direction is to sell land, and invest the proceeds in other land, there is no conversion. White v. Howard, 46 N. Y. 144.

The following have been held to work Equitable Conversions.—A codicil, as follows: "I, David Jones, make this codicil to my last will and testament; that is, I sell unto Charles H. Smith my tavern house and lot . . . for . . . $6,950, provided he . . . satisfies my executors as to the payment of the same." Jones v. Jones, 13 N. J. Eq. 236.

A direction by a testator "that all the rest and residue of his estate, of what kind soever there might be at the time of his death, should be converted into money by his executors," even as to real estate acquired after the date of the will. Fluke v. Fluke, 16 N. J. Eq. 478.

A provision in a mortgage of real property, directing that, when any amount or any note is due, and, on demand made, the mortgagor shall not pay the same, the mortgagee may sell enough to pay what is due. Hilton v. Devereux, 63 N. Car. 624.

A direction to sell land to pay debts. Magruder v. Peter, 11 Gill & J. (Md.) 217; Foster v. Craig, 2 Dev. & B. Eq. (N. C.) 209; Haggerty v. Lauterman, 30 N. J. Eq. 37.

Otherwise in New York. In re will of Fox, 52 N. Y. 530.

And where the lands are devised, even though the words "after all my debts are paid" be annexed to the devise. Dunn v. Keeling, 2 Dev. (N. Car.) L. 283.

A provision in a will directing that the

IV. Time at which Conversion takes place.—Conversion will, in general, be considered to take place in the case of a will from the death of the testator,<sup>1</sup> in the case of deeds from the time of testator's real estate should be converted into money, when his youngest child should come of age or marry. Massey v. Modawell, 73 Ala. 421.

A direction to sell land seven years after the death of the testator. McWilliam's Appeal (Pa.), 9 Cent. Rep. 773.

A direction to sell land, and apply the proceeds to certain uses. Kane v. Gott, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 641; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 641; Proctor v. Ferebee, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 143; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 34; Smilie v. Biffce, 2 Pa. St. 52; s. c., 44 Am. Dec. 156.

A direction to employ money in the purchase of land, or to sell land and convert it into money, in whatever way the direction is given. Collins v. Champ, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.) 118; s. c., 61 Am. Dec. 179.

A deed of trust transferring certain real estate to raise money from, to an amount not exceeding twelve thousand dollars as called for, and to pay over the amount. Dobson's Estate, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 81.

The following have been held not to operate as Conversions.—A direction in a will giving the executor a discretion to sell a portion of his realty, but not ordering an absolute sale. Montgomery v. Milliken, 1 L. & M. (Miss.) 495.

A direction that, "All the rest, residue, and remainder of all my estate, both real and personal, it is my will that the same be and remain in the care and custody of my said trustees . . . until the decease of the last survivor of the life annuitants, . . . and that then the said residue and remainder, with all the accumulated interest thereof, shall be divided equally among my grandchildren per stirpes." Hobson v. Hale, 95 N. Y. 589.

A direction in a deed to sell land on a certain condition. Evans v. Kingsberry, 2 Randolph (Va.), 120; s. c., 14 Am. Dec. 779.

An order of probate to sell land. Wither's Appeal, 14 L. & R. (Pa.) 185; s. c., 16 Am. Dec. 488.

A clause in a will as follows: "All the rest, residue, and remainder of my estate I give, devise, and bequeath to St. Luke's Hospital, as a fund for the burial of the dead dying at said hospital." Lawrence v. Elliot, 3 Redf. (N. Y.) 235.

So, under a contract, it was held that personal estate necessary to perfect improvements of an intestate's real estate was not converted into real property, where the improvements were not intended to be made as an investment, but merely incident to an object which ceased on the death of the intestate. Gray v. Hawkins, 8 Ohio St. 449; s. c., 72 Am. Dec. 601.

So, where a widow agreed to commute her dower, and the lands of her husband were sold free of all claim of dower, but the widow consented to receive in lieu of money a house and lot, it was held that this did not convert the money which she was to receive in lieu of dower into real estate, so that on her death the house and lot could be sold for her husband's debts. Fisher v. Clements (Va.), 1 S. E. Rep. 182.

So, where a testator directed certain real estate to be sold, and the proceeds to be devoted to certain objects, and the bequest of the proceeds was held void, it was held that there was no such conversion of realty into personalty as to entitle the residuary legatees to take, to the exclusion of the heirs. Rizer v. Perry, 58 Md. 112.

The law never considers a conversion of real into personal property, unless there has been a valid devise of the property in dispute in some form to a specified beneficiary, and the purposes of the will require it to be done. Chamberlain v. Taylor, 105 N. Y. 185.

And where there is no absolute direction to sell lands situated out of the State, but the power of the executors to sell was dependent on the contingencies that co-tenants should sell, and the executors should realize the same price as the co-tenants, it does not work a conversion. Com. v. Gordon (Pa.), 5 Cent. Rep. 276.

1. In Tickel v. Quinn, 1 Dem. (N. Y.) 425, Rollins, Surrogate, said: "It is laid down as a general rule, that the equitable conversion takes place on the death of the testator, unless there is something special in the power of sale, making its exercise or performance depend upon the happening of some event or contingency to arise subsequently."

And in Roland v. Miller, 100 Pa. St. 47, the testatrix directed an equal division of the proceeds of the sale of her real estate, and of the rents of her real estate, among her children. She directed that the executors should not be compelled to sell for fifteen years, and prohibited sales of real estate within ten years after her decease, unless her executors deemed it advisable to make such sales. Held to be a conversion of the real estate from the death of the testatrix.

A similar conclusion was reached in Kane v. Gott, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 641; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 641, where the real estate was directed to be sold, and the income to be devoted to the support of two nieces of delivery,<sup>1</sup> or in the case of other instruments from the time of their execution,<sup>2</sup> unless some specified time is mentioned in the the testator, until they arrived at the age of twenty, or married, after which the income was to be paid to them in equal proportions during their lives, remainder to their children.

So, in Fisher v. Banta, 66 N. Y. 468, where there was a direction to divide the real estate of the testator equally between his two sons when his youngest son reached the age of twenty-three, and a codicil directing the executrix to sell all the real estate. See also Cook v. Cook, 20 N. J. Eq. 375; Jones v. Caldwell, 97 Pa. St. 42; Beauleck v. Mead, 2 Atk. 167.

As to time of conversion when the direction is to sell the land and distribute after the termination of a life estate arising under the will, see infra, note 8, and sect. 5 and notes.

1. As to conversion of real estate into personalty by a deed, see Griffiths v. Ricketts, 7 Hare (Eng. Ch.), 299. In that case Griffiths conveyed his real estate to trustees, upon trust, for sale for the payment of his debts, and the question was, whether this deed operated as a conversion. It was held that it did so operate from the time of delivery. Wigram, V. C., said, giving the ground for the difference of the rule between the case of a will and that of a deed, "A deed differs from a will in this material respect: the will speaks from the death, the deed from delivery. If, then, the author of the deed impresses upon his real estate the character of personalty, that, as between his real and personal representatives, makes it personal and not real estate from the delivery of the deed, and consequently at the time of his death. The deed thus altering the actual character of the property is, so to speak, equivalent to a gift of the expectancy of the heir-at-law to the personal estate of the author of the deed. The principle is the same in the case of a deed as in the case of a will, but the application is different by reason that the deed converts the property in the lifetime of the author of the deed, whereas, in the case of a will, the conversion does not take place until the death of the testator; and there is no principle on which the court, as between the real and personal representatives (between whom there is confessedly no equity), should not be governed by the simple effect of the deed in deciding to which of the two claimants the surplus belongs."

In Loughborough v. Loughborough, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 441, there was a similar deed, and the court reached a similar conclusion, Simpson, J., saying (p. 554), "The application of this equitable doctrine, however, differs in the case of a deed from that of a will in this particular: the will speaks from the death, the deed from the delivery. If, then, the maker of the deed impress upon his real estate the character of personalty, that, for the purposes of distribution after his death, makes it personal and not real estate from the delivery of the deed."

Similarly, where a husband and wife conveyed their equity of redemption in the wife's land to a trustee to sell for their use and benefit, the property thereby was held, in equity, to have become converted into money, and brought under the control of the husband as personalty. Siter v. McClanachan, 2 Gratt. (Va.) 280. See also Turner v. Davis, 41 Ark. 270; Clarke v. Franklin, 4 K. & J. (Eng. Ch.) 257.

2. Masterson v. Pullen, 62 Ala. 145. In this case a vendor sold land, taking notes in payment, and giving bond to convey title upon full payment. It was held that, though the legal title to the lands passed, on the vendor's death, to his heirs, that they held it as trustees for the vendee, and that the notes for the purchase-money passed to the personal representatives, the transaction being an equitable conversion of the land into personal property from the time of the execution of the bond. But in other cases, the time of the conversion in this case is the time at which the agreement largely takes effect. Nagle v. Ingersoll, 7 Pa. St. 185, 196; Washington v. Abraham, 6 Gratt. (Va.) 67.

In a contract of sale which is binding on the vendor, although the purchase is at the option of the vendee, the question whether or not the conversion is effected cannot be determined until the vendee exercises his option. But when he has so exercised it, the conversion relates back to the date of the contract, and the property will be regarded as converted from that time.

Lawes v. Bennett, 1 Cox Ch. 167. In this case Thomas Witterwonge demised a farm to John Douglas for seven years, giving him the option of purchasing at any time between September, 1761, and September, 1765. Witterwonge by his will, dated September, 1761, devised all his real estate to John Bennett, and his personal estate equally to John Bennett and Mary his sister, intermarried with Thomas Lawes. Testator died in 1863. Douglas assigned his interest in the farm to Waller in 1762, and in 1765, Waller exercised his option to purchase; whereupon Thomas Lawes and Mary his wife filed their bill in equity against Bennett, claiming one-half the price will or deed, or the direction is that the conversion shall take place on the happening of some contingency. In the latter case the property will be converted from the specified time, or the happening of the contingency.<sup>1</sup>

V. Effects of Equitable Conversion. — From the time that equitable conversion takes place, under any will, deed, contract, or other instrument, equity will, in general, so far as is necessary to effectuate the lawful purposes of the instrument, carry out the principle to all its legitimate consequences, and will treat the property as that kind into which it should have been changed.<sup>2</sup> paid by Waller, on the ground that the purchase-money received by Bennett was part of the personal estate of the testator, Witterwonge. The Master of the Rolls entered a decree in favor of the plaintiff, saying, "It is very clear that if a man seized of real estate contract to sell it, and die before the contract is carried into execution, it is personal property of him. Then the only possible difficulty in this case is, that it is left to the election of Douglas whether it shall be real or personal. It seems to me to make no difference at all. . . . When the party who has the power of election has elected, the whole is to be referred back to the original agreement." See also Weeding v. Weeding, 4 J. & H. Eng. Ch. 424; Collingwood v. Row, 3 Jur. N. S. 785; Kerr v. Day, 14 Pa. St. 112, 114; D'Arras v. Keyser, 26 Pa. St. 249. But compare Draut v. Vause, 1 Y. & C. Ch. 580; Emuss v. Smith, 2 Deg. & Sm. 722; explained, however, in Weeding v. Weeding, 4 J. & H. Eng. Ch. 424. But until the option is exercised the rents go to the heir as real estate. Townley v. Bedwell, 14 Ves. 591; Ex parte Hardy, 30 Beav. 206. So when land is not specifically devised, but there is a bare power of sale. Lent v. Howard, 89 N. Y. 169.

1. Where a will directs the conversion of the realty after the death of the testator's widow. After that occurs, the trustees must make the conversion; but when made, it usually relates back to the death of the testator. Hancox v. Wall, 28 Hun (N. Y.), 214; Brothers v. Cartwright, 2 Jones Eq. (N. Car.) 113; s. c., 64 Am. Dec. 563. See also Moncrief v. Ross, 50 N. Y. 431; McClure's Appeal, 72 Pa. St. 414; McWilliam's Appeal (Pa.), 9 Cent. Rep. 773; Taylor v. Johnson, 63 N. Car. 381. But compare Jones v. Caldwell, 97 Pa. St. 42; Reading v. Blackwell, Baldw. (U. S.) 166; Rhinehart v. Harrison, Baldw. (U. S.) 177; Loftis v. Glass, 15 Ark. 680.

Accordingly it has been held that a devise of lands to be sold after a life estate arising under the will, and the proceeds distributed to certain persons, is a pecuniary bequest to those persons vesting from the death of the testator. Kline v. Fairly, Penn. (N. J.) 551; Reading v. Blackwell, Baldw. (C. C.) 166; Rhinehart v. Harrison, Baldw. (C. C.) 177.

2. Land directed to be converted into money goes to the personal representatives. Elliot v. Fisher, 12 Sim. Eng. Ch. 505; Wurts v. Page, 19 N. J. Eq. 365; Jacobus v. Jacobus, 36 N. J. Eq. 248; Tickel v. Quinn, 1 Demarest (N. Y.), 425; Kane v. Gott, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 641; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 641; Hood v. Hood, 85 N. Y. 561; Ferguson v. Stuart, 14 Ohio, 140; Smithers v. Hooper, 23 Md. 274; Ex parte McBee, 63 N. Car. 332. Compare Page's Estate, 75 Pa. St. 87.

It will not pass under a general devise of land or of real estate. Elliot v. Fisher, 12 Sim. 505; Wilkins v. Taylor, 8 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 291.

It will pass under a general gift, transfer, or bequest of personalty, or under a residuary bequest of property. Blake v. Blake, L. R. 15 Ch. Div. 481; Fisher v. Banta, 66 N. Y. 468; Dobson's Estate, 11 Phila. (Pa.) 81; Croom v. Herring, 4 Hawks (N. Car.), 398; Brothers v. Cartwright, 2 Jones's Eq. (N. Car.) 113; s. c., 64 Am. Dec. 563.

And when land is directed by will or other instrument to be sold at some future time, and the proceeds divided, the sale cannot take place till that time; but when it does take place the conversion relates back to the death of the testator, or the execution of the instrument, and the proceeds of the sale will be distributed as personalty. Loftis v. Glass, 15 Ark. 680. And if one of the parties dies before an actual sale, or before the expiration of a life estate created by the instrument, the fund will go to his personal representatives as money. Eby's Appeal, 84 Pa. St. 241; Hunt v. Fisher, 1 Har. & G. (Md.) 88; Loftis v. Glass, 15 Ark. 680; Smith v. McCrary, 3 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 204; Pratt v. Taliaferro, 3 Leigh (Va.), 419; Rhinehart v. Harrison, Baldw. (C. C.) 177.

And also the interest acquired in the land under such an instrument is not such an interest as can be bound by the lien of

VI. Effect of Failure of the Purposes of the Conversion.—Where the purposes for which the conversion of land into money, or money into land, was directed by will, contract, or other instrument inter vivos totally fails before the instrument directing the conversion comes into operation, no conversion takes place; the property thus directed to be converted remains in its original condition, and will result in its original unchanged form to the testator, or settler, or his heirs, or personal representatives, as the case may be.<sup>1</sup>

But where the purpose fails only partially, the case is more difficult. When the conversion of land into money is directed by will, the lands must be sold to satisfy the purposes which remain effective. The surplus resulting from the sale results to the heir,<sup>2</sup> a judgment, and consequently a sale of his interest under an execution against the land passes nothing to a purchaser at sheriff's sale. Brolasky v. Gally, 51 Pa. St. 509; Roland v. Miller, 100 Pa. St. 47.

So an alien can take the proceeds of land directed to be sold, though incapable of taking the land itself. Du Hourmelin v. Sheldon, 1 Beav. 79; Craig v. Leslie, 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 563; De Barante v. Gott, 6 Barb. (N. Y.) 492.

So of corporations. Dodge v. Williams, 46 Wis. 70; Gould v. Asylum, 46 Wis. 106.

So the purchase-money of land contracted to be sold during the lifetime of a decedent, whether paid before his death or afterwards, is part of his personal estate. Henson v. Ott, 7 Ind. 512; Hawley v. James, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 318; Drenkle's Estate, 3 Pa. St. 377.

But this notional conversion is not to be understood as being a real conversion. It is held that it is a conversion only so far as is necessary for the purposes of the instrument. The conversion of land held for partnership purposes into personal property is distinctly held in many cases to be a conversion, only so far as the interest of the partners and creditors of the partnership require. Sprague Mfg. Co. v. Hoyt, 29 Fed. Rep. 421; Allen v. Withrow, 110 U. S. 119; Foster's Appeal, 74 Pa. St. 391; Lindley v. Davis (Mont.), 14 Pac. Rep. 717; Lenow v. Fones (Ark.), 4 S. W. Rep. 56; In re Codding, 9 Fed. Rep. 849. And it is treated as personalty till all partnership business is settled. Logan v. Greenlaw, 25 Fed. Rep. 299; Paige v. Paige, 71 Iowa, 318; Mallory v. Russell, 71 Iowa, 63; King v. Remington, 36 Minn. 15; Sherley v. Thomasson (Ky.), 1 S. W. Rep. 530.

So it has been held that an equitable conversion is not to be presumed beyond the purposes of the will. Orrick v. Boehm, 49 Md. 72; Hilton v. Hilton, 2 MacArthur (D. C.), 70; Brome v. Pembroke, 66 Md.

193; Chamberlain v. Taylor, 105 N. Y. 185; s. c., 7 Cent. Rep. 288.

For other limitations of the doctrine see Brook v. Badley, L. R. 3 Ch. 674; Franks v. Bollans, L. R. 3 Ch. 718. And compare Siter v. McClenadian, 2 Gratt. (Va.), 280.

Personal property directed to be converted will descend to the heir. Hawley v. James, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 318, 443; Gott v. Cook, 7 Paige (N. Y.), 521; Collins v. Champ, 15 B. Mon. (Ky.), 118; s. c., 61 Am. Dec. 179. It will pass under a general devise of real estate. Green v. Stephens, 17 Ves. 64. It will not be included in a bequest of money or personal property. Biddulph v. Biddulph, 12 Ves. 164.

If the heir die intestate before the purchase has been made, the fund will descend to his heir. Scudamore v. Scudamore, Prec. Chan. 543; Gillies v. Longlands, 4 De G. & Sm. 372. And the money of a married woman directed to be laid out in land is liable to her husband's curtesy. Sweetapple v. Bindon, 2 Vern. 536.

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 376; 3 Pomero's Eq. Jur. 138; Clarke v. Franklin, 4 K. & I. Eng. Ch. 257; Smith v. McCrary, 3 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 204; Commonwealth v. Martin, 5 Munf. (Va.) 117; Morrow v. Brenizer, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 185; Davis's Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 348; Slocum v. Slocum, 4 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 613; McCarthy v. Deming, 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 440; Giraud v. Giraud, 58 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 175; Rizer v. Perry, 58 Md. 112; Wilkins v. Taylor, 8 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 291. Compare Evan's Appeal, 63 Pa. St. 183.

2. The leading case is Ackroyd v. Smithson, 1 Bro. Ch. C. 503; s. c., 1 Leading Cases in Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1171. In Craig v. Leslie, 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 563, Washington, J., said (p. 581), that it was settled that "land devised to trustees to sell for the payment of debts and legacies is to be deemed as money. That the heir-at-law has a resulting trust in such land, so far as it is of value after the debts and legacies but it results to him as personal property.<sup>1</sup> Where money is directed by will to be laid out in land, and the purpose fails only in part, the rule as to the surplus is the same as when the purpose fails entirely; and the surplus goes as personal estate to the personal representatives, for it could go to them in no other form.<sup>2</sup>

Where the conversion of land into money is directed by deed or other instrument inter vivos, and the purpose partially fails, the author of the instrument takes the undisposed of part of the surplus in his lifetime as personal property, and it descends as part of his personal estate, or it goes to his personal representatives as personal property;<sup>3</sup> and similarly, under a deed directing the conversion of money into land, under the same circumstances, the surplus results to the author, or his heir, as land.<sup>4</sup>

VII. Reconversion: Definition. — Reconversion is that imaginary process by which a prior constructive conversion is annulled, and the converted property restored in contemplation of law to its original state.<sup>5</sup> are paid. . . . The whole of this doctrine rests upon a doctrine which is incontrovertible, that where the testator merely directs the real estate to be converted into money for purposes directed in his will, so much of the estate, or the money arising from it, as is not effectually disposed of by the will (whether it arise from some omission or defect in the will itself, or from any subsequent accident which prevents the devise from taking effect) results to the heir-at-law."

On the same principle it was held in Martin v. Morris, 62 Wis. 418, that the surplus remaining after the sale of partnership land for the settlement of the partnership estate, was, in equity, land, not money. See also Spencer v. Wilson, L. R. 16 Eq. 501; McCarthy v. Deming, 4 Lans. (N. Y.) 440; Newby v. Skinner, 1 Dev. & B. (N. C.) Eq. 488; North v. Valk, Dudley's Eq. (S. Car.) 212; McAvoy's Estate, 12 Phila. (Pa.) 83.

But it is otherwise, if the obvious intention of the will is to stamp upon the land described to be sold the quality of personality, not only for the purposes of the will, but to all intents. Yeates v. Compton, 2 P. Wms. 308; Craig v. Leslie, 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 563, 583; Morrow v. Brenizer, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 185; Wilkins v. Taylor, 8 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 291; Sharpley v. Forwood, 4 Harr. (Del.) 336.

And so of the surplus remaining after a judicial sale, which is to be distributed as money, not as land. Squire's Estate, 13 Phila. (Pa.) 304.

1. Smith v. Claxton, 4 Mad. Ch. 492; Bagster v. Fackerell, 26 Beav. 469; Wall v. Colshead, 2 Deg. & J. 683; Newby v. Skinner, 1 Dev. & B. Eq. (N. Car.) 488.

2. 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 141; Snell's

Eq. (1st Am. ed.) 184; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 378; Cogan v. Stephens, 1 Beav. 482, n.; Hawley v. James, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 318.

3. 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 141; Snell's Eq. (1st Am. ed.) 188; Clarke v. Franklin, 4 K. & J. (Eng. Ch.) 257.

4. 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 142; Snell's Eq. (1st Am. ed.) 188; Lechmere v. Lechmere, Cas. temp. Talb. 80; Palteney v. Earl of Darlington, 1 Bro. Ch. 223.

5. Rapalje & Lawrence's Law. Dict.

Thus if real estate is devised to A. in trust to sell, and pay the proceeds to B., the realty by virtue of this absolute trust is constructively converted into personal estate; but if B., before the property is sold, elects to take it as land, it is then said to be reconverted, and A. is bound to convey the land to him accordingly. Rapalje & Lawrence's Law. Dict.; Haynes Eq. 390; Snell's Eq. (1st Am. ed.) 190; 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 142. "In other words, a reconversion is where the direction to reconvert is countermanded by the parties entitled to the property, or by act of law." Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 382. "The rationale of this doctrine is clearly found in the right which every absolute owner or donee has to dispense with, or forbid the execution of any trust in the performance of which he alone is interested. Reconversion is the result of an election expressly made or inferred by a court of equity. It depends wholly upon the right of election held by the person entitled to the property, to choose whether he will take the property in its converted condition, or in its original and unconverted form. The whole discussion consists of answers to the questions, Who may thus elect? and how may such an election be made?" 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 143.

VIII. Who may elect and to what Extent. — In general, all persons who are sui juris,<sup>1</sup> or at least are not under any incapacity which prevents them from dealing effectively with their own property, and are absolute owners in fee simple in possession of the property elected to be converted, may elect to take the property in whatever form they choose.<sup>2</sup> And such persons, owning only an undivided share or partial interest, can elect only when such election cannot affect the rights of their co-owners, life-tenants, remaindermen, reversioners, and the like.<sup>3</sup>

1. 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 143; Prentice v. Janssen, 79 N. Y. 478.

Accordingly, infants cannot elect. Seely v. Jago, 1 P. Wms. 389; In re Harrop, 3 Drew. 726, 734; Burr v. Sim, 1 Whart. (Pa.) 252; Foreman v. Foreman, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 215; Scull v. Jermigan, 2 Dev. & Bat. (N. Car.) 44. Nor can his guardian. Burr v. Sim, 1 Whart. (Pa.) 252.

But the court may do so for them if it seems to their best interest. Robinson v. Robinson, 19 Beav. 404; Turner v. Street, 2 Rand. (Va.) 404; Pratt v. Saliaferro, 3 Leigh (Va.) 419, 428. Nor can an alien. Commonwealth v. Martin, 5 Munf. (Va.) 117, 126. Nor a lunatic. Ashby v. Palmer, 1 Meriv. 296; In re Barker, L. R. 17 Ch. D. 241.

In regard to married women, the old rule was that they could only elect by means of a fine, or by a consent in open court. Oldham v. Hughes, 2 Alk. 452. But under the statute 3 & 4, William IV., c. 74, s. 77, a married woman is permitted by deed executed in compliance with its provisions, to make her election to take or dispose of money directed to be laid out in land. Forbes v. Adams, 9 Linn. 462.

In the United States, a married woman can doubtless elect by means of any instrument sufficient to enable her to convey real estate. 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 143, n.; Snell's Eq. (1st Am. ed.) 195; Barker v. Copenbarger, 15 Ill. 103; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 600.

In Virginia her husband cannot elect for her, but she may make a valid election, under a commission from the court of chancery, directing her examination separate and apart from her husband. Pratt v. Taliaferro, 3 Leigh (Va.), 419, 429, 432; Liter v. McClanachan, 2 Gratt. (Va.) 280, 296; Turner v. Dawson, 80 Va. 841, 849.

In Kentucky, where a testator's will has made a conversion of land into money, the husband of a femme covert cannot have the property conveyed to him so as to deprive his wife of her equity to a settlement. Samuel v. Samuel, 4 B. Mon. (Ky.) 245, 257.

In Pennsylvania, on the other hand, where land is directed to be sold, and the proceeds given to a femme covert, the right of election is in the husband. But the fee vests in the wife, not in the husband. Hannah v. Swarner, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 223; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 756; Beal v. Stehley, 21 Pa. St. 376; Shallenberger v. Ashworth, 25 Pa. St. 152.

2. To the effect that a married woman can make no election, see High v. Worley, 33 Ala. 196.

See note to Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 Ldg. Cas. Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1169.

Sisson v. Giles, 3 De G. J. & Sm. 614; Prentice v. Janssen, 79 N. Y. 478; Beadle v. Beadle, 2 McCrary (U. S.), 586.

Accordingly, an election can only be made by all the parties interested. A part cannot without the co-operation of the rest change the character of the property, which the testator has fixed upon the property. Pratt v. Taliaferro, 3 Leigh (Va.), 419; Beatty v. Byers, 18 Pa. St. 105; Evan's Appeal, 63 Pa. St. 183; Hannah v. Swarner, 3 W. & S. (Pa.) 223; s. c., 38 Am. Dec. 756; Barker v. Copenbarger, 15 Ill. 103; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 600; Ridgeway v. Underwood, 67 Ill. 419; Heslet v. Heslet, 8 Bradw. (Ill.) 22; High v. Worley, 33 Ala. 196.

And they cannot make such election without showing that the absence of debts renders administration unnecessary. High v. Worley, 33 Ala. 196.

And where a conversion "out and out" is directed, no election can be made even by all those beneficially interested. Proctor v. Ferebee, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 143; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 34.

3. When money is directed to be turned into land, the owner, or owners, of separate, undivided parts may elect to reconvert as to his share. Seeley v. Jago, 1 P. Wms. 389.

But, on the other hand, where the direction is to turn land into money, the co-owner cannot elect to keep his share of the land, the reason being that the others are entitled to have their shares sold so as to receive the money; and plainly the sale of an undivided share would produce a comparatively less amount than would result from the sale of the whole. 3 Pom. Eq.

IX. Manner of making Reconversion.—A reconversion may be effected by express direction, or by any act or writing indicating an unequivocal intention to possess the property in its original condition.<sup>1</sup>

X. Reconversion by Operation of Law is where the property originally directed to be converted comes into the possession of a person absolutely entitled to dispose of it, and is left by him in its original condition without any declaration of his intention regarding it.<sup>2</sup>

Jur. 144, n.; Holloway v. Radcliffe, 23 Beav. 163; Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 Bro. Ch. 497; s. c., 1 Ldg. Cas. Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1118; Barker v. Copenbarger, 15 Ill. 103; s. c., 58 Am. Dec. 600; Ridgeway v. Underwood, 67 Ill. 419; Heslet v. Heslet, 8 Bradw. (Ill.) 22. See preceding note.

A remainderman cannot elect so as to affect the interest of prior estates, although he may make an election binding upon his own real and personal representatives. Walrond v. Rosslyn, L. R. 11 Ch. D. 640; Cookson v. Cookson, 12 Clark & F. 121; Prentice v. Janssen, 79 N. Y. 478.

1. Snell's Eq. (1st Am. ed.) 195 et seq.; 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 144; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 382. By agreement see Baily v. Bank, 104 Pa. St. 425.

But it has been doubted whether a parol agreement would be sufficient. Bradish v. Gee, Ambl. 229. But see Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 Bro. Ch. 237; Wheldale v. Partridge, 8 Ves. 236.

The expression of intention must be unequivocal. Beatty v. Byers, 18 Pa. St. 105; Evan's Appeal, 63 Pa. St. 183.

No inference can be drawn from mere lapse of time. Beatty v. Byers, 18 Pa. St. 105; Kirkman v. Miles, 13 Ves. 337; Foreman v. Foreman, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 215. But compare Griesbach v. Freemantle, 17 Beav. 314; Dixon v. Gayfere, 17 Beav. 314.

It is sufficient to show an intention to take the property in its actual condition. Prentice v. Janssen, 79 N. Y. 478; Beatty v. Byers, 18 Pa. St. 105.

Where lands were directed to be sold, and the proceeds to be held in trust for A., he got possession of the title deeds as well as of the land, and remained in possession till his death; held, that he thereby declared his intention to take the estates as land. Davies v. Ashford, 15 Sim. 42. So, where the person to whose use the proceeds of a house and lot directed to be sold were to be applied, granted a lease of the house. Muttow v. Begg, L. R. 1 Ch. D. 385. So where three of those interested made an agreement to reconvert, and the fourth acquiesced, and continued in the ownership of it as real estate. Prentice v. Janssen, 79 N. Y. 478.

2. Rapalje & Lawrence's Law Dict.

In Chichester v. Bickerstaff, 2 Vern. 295, Chichester on his marriage with the daughter of Bickerstaff, covenanted to advance 1,500*l.* within three years, to be laid out in land, of which the ultimate limitation was to his right heirs. Within a year after the marriage the wife died childless, and Chichester died within a few days after his wife, by his will making Bickerstaff his executor, and his sister his residuary legatee. His heir-at-law then filed a bill against Bickerstaff, claiming that as the 1,500*l.* was to have been laid out in land, it ought to go to him under the limitations in the settlement. But Lord Somers said that the money, though once bound by the articles, when the wife died without issue became free again; in other words, that it was to be considered at home in Chichester's hands. The bill was therefore dismissed. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 384.

In an American case it was said, "When the law has impressed real properties and uses upon moneys, it is necessary, in order to put an end to that impression, that it be shown, either that the party entitled to the property and having a right to elect in what shape he will take it, has declared that election, or done some act denoting his intention in relation thereto, or the property must, according to the expression used in some other cases, be at home; that is, the person being the absolute owner must have in himself the entire qualification of heir and executor. He must not only have the jus in re, but no other person must have an outstanding jus ad rem. In that case, if he makes no declaration of his intention in relation to it, it shall go according to the quality in which it was left at his death." Per Mason, J., in Foreman v. Foreman, 7 Barb. (N. Y.) 215, 220. See also Snell's Eq. (1st Am. ed.) 197; Wheldale v. Partridge, 8 Ves. 235; Pulteney v. Darlington, 1 Bro. Ch. 223; Walrond v. Rosslyn, L. R. 11 Ch. Dev. 640.

Authorities.—Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence; Snell's Equity (1st Am. ed.); Bispham's Equity (4th ed.); Note to Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 Leading Cases in Equity (4th Am. ed.), 1118.

EQUITABLE ESTATE — EQUITABLE MORTGAGES.

EQUITABLE ESTATE. — See USES, TRUSTS, AND POWERS.

EQUITABLE MORTGAGES.

I. Definition, 675.

II. Absolute Conveyance intended as Mortgage, 675.

1. Right of Creditor to show, 676.
2. Grounds of Evidence, 677.
3. Does not violate Statute of Frauds, 678.
4. Nor conflict with Rules of Evidence, 678.

5. What considered, 678.

6. Degree of Proof required, 679.

7. Grantor may redeem, 680.

8. Rights of Purchaser, 680.

III. Informal Mortgages, 680.

1. What considered in construing, 683.

IV. Mortgages by Deposit of Title-deeds, 683.

I. Definition. — An equitable mortgage is one which, by want of some formality, can only be given effect as a mortgage in equity. By this is not meant merely those instruments intended as mortgages, but which, by reason of some defect, cannot have such operation without the aid of equity, but a very great variety of transactions or documents, to numerous of which equity attaches such character without regard to the intention of the parties.

The term is also applied to mortgages of an equitable estate or interest.

II. Absolute Conveyance intended as Mortgage. — One of the most notable instances of an equitable mortgage is that of an absolute conveyance intended as security for a debt, and to have the effect of a mortgage. Such an instrument can have no operation as a mortgage in a court of law;<sup>1</sup> but in a court of equity it may be shown, even by parol evidence,<sup>2</sup> unless forbidden by

1. Benton v. Jones, 8 Conn. 186; Reading v. Weston, 8 Conn. 120; Bryant v. Crosby, 36 Me. 562; Bailey v. Knapp, 79 Me. 205; Hogel v. Lindell, 10 Mo. 483; Webb v. Rice, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 219; Farley v. Goocher, 11 Iowa, 570; McClane v. White, 5 Minn. 178; Belote v. Morrison, 8 Minn. 87; Bragg v. Massie, 38 Ala. 89; Parish v. Gates, 29 Ala. 254; Moore v. Wade, 8 Kan. 380; Ellis v. Higgins, 35 Me. 34. See, however, Coates v. Woodworth, 13 Ill. 654; Miller v. Thomas, 14 Ill. 428; Tillson v. Moulton, 23 Ill. 648; Wilcox v. Bates, 26 Wis. 465; Odenbaugh v. Bradford, 67 Pa. St. 96; Kenton v. Vandergrift, 42 Pa. St. 339; McClurkin v. Thompson, 69 Pa. St. 305; Fessler's Appeal, 75 Pa. St. 483; Moreland v. Barnhart, 44 Tex. 275; Ruffier v. Womack, 30 Tex. 332.

2. Peugh v. Davis, 96 U. S. 332; Russell v. Southard, 12 How. (U. S.) 139; Morris v. Nixon, 1 How. (U. S.) 113; Sprigg v. Bank, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 201, 208; Hughes v. Edwards, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 489; Jenkins v. Eldredge, 3 Story (U. S.), 181; Taylor v. Luther, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 228; Flagg v. Mann, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 486; Wyman v. Babcock, 2 Curtis (U. S. C. C.), 386; Amory v. Lawrence, 3 Cliff. (U. S.) 523; Phillips v. Craft, 42 Ala. 477; Johnson v. Clark, 5 Ark. 321; Scott v. Henry, 13 Ark. 112; McCarron v. Cassidy, 18 Ark. 34; Anthony v. Anthony, 23 Ark. 479; Pierce v. Robinson, 13 Cal. 116; Johnson v. Sherman, 15 Cal. 287, 291; Cunningham v. Hawkins, 24 Cal. 403; Lodge v. Furman, 24 Cal. 390; Kuhn v. Rumpff, 46 Cal. 299; Vance v. Lincoln, 38 Cal. 586; Farmer v. Grose, 42 Cal. 169; Chaires v. Brady, 10 Fla. 133; Matthews v. Porter, 16 Fla. 466; Sutphen v. Cushman, 35 Ill. 186; Knowles v. Knowles, 86 Ill. 1; Hancock v. Harper, 86 Ill. 445; Sharp v. Smitherman, 85 Ill. 153; Block v. Walter, 70 Ill. 416; Heath v. Williams, 30 Ind. 495; Butcher v. Stultz, 60 Ind. 170; Graham v. Graham, 55 Ind. 23; Landers v. Beck, 92 Ind. 49; Berberick v. Fritz, 39 Iowa, 700; Johnson v. Smith, 39 Iowa, 549; Roberts v. McMahan, 4 Greene (Iowa), 34; McAnnulty v. Seick, 59 Iowa, 586; Moore v. Wade, 8 Kan. 380; Skinner v. Miller, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 86; Blanchard v. Kenton, 4 Bibb. (Ky.) 451; Murphy v. Trigg, 1 Mon. (Ky.) 72; Stapp v. Phelps, 7 Dana (Ky.), 296; Knapp v. Bailey, 9 Atl. Rep. (Me. 1887) 122; Bank of Westminster v. Whyte, 1 Md. Ch. 536; s. c., 3 Md. Ch. 508; Baugh v. Merryman, 32 Md. 185; Price v. Gover, 40 Md. 102; Campbell v. Dearborn, 109 Mass. 130; McDonough v. Squire, 111 Mass. 217; Pond v. Eddy, 113 Mass. 149; Emerson v. Atwater, statute,<sup>1</sup> that it was given as a security merely, when it will be speedily declared to be a mortgage;<sup>2</sup> and this is the doctrine of the English as well as of the American cases.<sup>3</sup>

1. Right of Creditor to show.—While the grantee, as to third parties, may generally exercise the rights of an absolute owner regarding the property,<sup>4</sup> nevertheless a judgment creditor of the grantor is entitled, with him, to show the true nature of the transaction.<sup>5</sup>

7 Mich. 12; Swetland v. Swetland, 3 Mich. 482; Curtiss v. Sheldon, 47 Mich. 262; Wadsworth v. Loranger, Har. Ch. (Mich.) 113; Weide v. Gehl, 21 Minn. 449; Phoenix v. Gardner, 13 Minn. 430; Klein v. McNamara, 54 Miss. 90; Littlewort v. Davis, 50 Miss. 403; Freeman v. Wilson, 51 Miss. 329; Oneill v. Capelle, 62 Mo. 202; Schade v. Bessinger, 3 Neb. 140; Cookes v. Culbertson, 9 Nev. 199; Saunders v. Stewart, 7 Nev. 200; Carlyon v. Lannan, 4 Nev. 156; Sweet v. Parker, 22 N. J. Eq. 453, 457; Crane v. DeCamp, 21 N. J. Eq. 414; Vandegrift v. Herbert, 18 N. J. Eq. 466; Condit v. Tichenor, 19 N. J. Eq. 43; King v. Warrington, 2 N. Mex. 318; Horn v. Keteltas, 46 N. Y. 605, 609; Brown v. Clifford, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 46; McDonald v. McLeod, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 221; Sellers v. Stalcup, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 13; Elliot v. Maxwell, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 246; Stell v. Black, 3 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 427; Stall v. City of Cincinnati, 16 Ohio St. 169; Cotterell v. Long, 20 Ohio, 464; Miami Ex. Co. v. U. S. Bank, Wright (Ohio), 249, 252; Hurford v. Harned, 6 Oregon, 362; Odenbaugh v. Bradford, 67 Pa. St. 96; McClurkan v. Thompson, 69 Pa. St. 305; Hartley's Appeal, 103 Pa. St. 23; Nichols v. Reynolds, 1 R. I. 30; Taylor v. Luther, 2 Sumn. (R. I.) 228; Arnold v. Mattison, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 153; Ruggles v. Williams, 1 Head (Tenn.), 141; Nichols v. Cabe, 3 Head (Tenn.), 92; Guinn v. Locke, 1 Head (Tenn.), 110; Hinson v. Partee, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 587; Yarbrough v. Newell, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 376; Gibbs v. Penny, 43 Tex. 560; Moreland v. Barnhart, 44 Tex. 275; Mead v. Randolph, 8 Tex. 191; Crosby v. Leavitt, 50 Vt. 239; Ross v. Norvell, 1 Wash. (Va.) 14; Snively v. Pickle, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 27; Miller v. Ausenig, 2 Wash. 22; Klinck v. Price, 4 W. Va. 4, 9; Wilcox v. Bates, 26 Wis. 465. See also the statutes of California, Colorado, Dakota, Florida, and Illinois. But see Osgood v. Thompson Bank, 30 Conn. 27; Spence v. Steadman, 49 Ga. 133, 139. And the statutes of Georgia provide, that, unless fraud be alleged, parol evidence shall not be admitted to prove an absolute deed accompanied with possession of the property a mortgage only.

Where parol testimony is received for the purpose of showing a deed absolute in form to have been intended as a mortgage, the conditions may likewise be proved by parol testimony,—conditions superadded by the parties after the execution of the mortgage, as well as those contemporaneous with its execution. Walker v. Walker, 17 S. Car. 329.

1. It is provided in New Hampshire that no absolute deed shall be defeated, nor any estate incumbered by any agreement, unless it is made a part of the conveyance, and states the sum to be secured, or other thing to be performed.

2. Cullen v. Cary, 5 N. Eng. Rep. (Mass. 1888) 560; Osgood v. Thompson Bank, 30 Conn. 27; Belton v. Avery, 2 Root (Conn.), 279; French v. Lyon, 2 Root (Conn.), 69; Shear v. Robinson, 18 Fla. 379; Hurst v. Beaver, 50 Mich. 612; Reed v. Reed, 75 Me. 264; Loring v. Milliken, 59 Tex. 423; Madigan v. Mead, 31 Minn. 94. This is the provision of the statutes in California, Colorado, Dakota, Florida, and Illinois. And see Broach v. Barfield, 57 Ga. 601, 604; Biggers v. Bird, 55 Ga. 650, 652; Lackey v. Bostwick, 54 Ga. 45; Richardson v. Woodbury, 43 Me. 206; Howe v. Russell, 36 Me. 115.

On the principle that "he who seeks equity must do equity," it has been held that this remedy will not be extended to one who has made the conveyance to defraud his creditors. Hassam v. Barrett, 115 Mass. 256; Arnold v. Mattison, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 153; May v. May, 33 Ala. 203; Miller v. Marckle, 21 Ill. 152.

3. Sevier v. Greenway, 19 Ves. 413; Allenby v. Dalton, 5 L. J. K. B. 312; Cripps v. Jee, 4 Bro. C. C. 472; Manlove v. Bale, 2 Vern. 84; Lincoln v. Wright, 4 De G. & J. 16; Whitfield v. Parfitt, 15 Jur. 852; England v. Codrington, 1 Eden, 169; Card v. Jaffray, 2 Sch. & Lef. 374; Dixon v. Parker, 2 Ves. Sen. 219; Irnham v. Child, 1 Bro. C. C. 92.

4. Fiedler v. Darrin, 59 Barb. (N. Y.) 651; McCarthy v. McCarthy, 36 Conn. 177.

The grantor in an action for rent of the premises cannot show that he is a mortgagor merely. Abbott v. Hanson, 24 N. J. L. 493.

5. Christie v. Hale, 46 Ill. 117; Dwen v. Blake, 44 Ill. 135; De Wolf v. Strader, 26 Ill. 225; Allen v. Kemp, 29 Iowa, 452;

2. Grounds of Evidence. — In holding that a deed absolute upon its face may nevertheless be shown to be a mortgage, the courts are practically unanimous; but a conflict exists as to when, or upon what grounds, parol evidence may be introduced for such purpose. Some hold that it may be only on the ground of fraud, accident, or mistake;<sup>1</sup> but though it may have been otherwise formerly, the great majority now hold to the broader doctrine, that it is admissible on the ground of showing what the contract between the parties really is, and of promoting the policy of the law by denying effect to that which the parties did not intend, and giving effect to that which they did intend.<sup>2</sup>

Judge v. Reese, 24 N. J. Eq. 387; Clark v. Condit, 17 N. J. Eq. 358; Vandegrift v. Herbert, 18 N. J. Eq. 466; Van Buren v. Olmstead, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 9.

1. English v. Lane, 1 Port. (Ala.) 328; Crews v. Threadgill, 35 Ala. 334; Parish v. Gates, 29 Ala. 254; Locke v. Palmer, 26 Ala. 312; Wells v. Morrow, 38 Ala. 125; French v. Burns, 35 Conn. 359; Mills v. Mills, 26 Conn. 213; Collins v. Tillon, 26 Conn. 368; Bacon v. Brown, 19 Conn. 29; Chaires v. Brady, 10 Fla. 133; Matthews v. Porter, 16 Fla. 466; Skinner v. Miller, 5 Litt. (Ky.) 86; Blanchard v. Kenton, 4 Bibb. (Ky.) 451; Bank of Westminster v. Whyte, 1 Md. Ch. 536; Baugher v. Merryman, 32 Md. 185; Conwell v. Evill, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 67; McDonald v. McLeod, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 221; Elliot v. Maxwell, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 246.

But the fraud or mistake may be inferred from the facts and circumstances of the case. Thompson v. Banks, 2 Md. Ch. 430; Brogden v. Walker, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 285; Davis v. Banks, 3 Md. Ch. 138; Hassam v. Barrett, 115 Mass. 256.

2. Anthony v. Anthony, 23 Ark. 479; Pierce v. Robinson, 13 Cal. 116; Roberts v. McMahan, 4 Greene (Iowa), 34; Berberick v. Fritz, 39 Iowa, 700; Moore v. Wade, 8 Kan. 380; Campbell v. Dearborn, 100 Mass. 130; Emerson v. Atwater, 7 Mich. 12; Weide v. Gehl, 21 Minn. 449; Freeman v. Wilson, 51 Miss. 329; Kline v. McNamara, 54 Miss. 90; O'Neill v. Capelle, 62 Mo. 202; Cookes v. Culbertson, 9 Nev. 199; Sweet v. Parker, 22 N. J. Eq. 453; Strong v. Stewart, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 167; Horn v. Keteltas, 46 N. Y. 605, 609; Cotterell v. Long, 20 Ohio, 464; Hurford v. Harned, 6 Oregon, 362; Kerr v. Gilmore, 6 Watts (Pa.), 405, 414; Taylor v. Luther, 2 Sumn. (R. I.) 228; Nichols v. Reynolds, 1 R. I. 30; Arnold v. Mattison, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 153; Nichols v. Cabe, 3 Head (Tenn.), 92; Hinson v. Partee, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 587; Mead v. Randolph, 8 Tex. 191; Carter v. Carter, 5 Tex. 93; Moreland v. Barnhart, 44 Tex. 275; Wright v. Bates, 13 Vt. 341; Ross v. Norvell, 1

Wash. (Va.) 14; Klinck v. Price, 4 W. Va. 4, 9; Russell v. Southard, 12 How. (U. S.) 139; Peugh v. Davis, 96 U. S. 332.

In Pierce v. Robinson, supra, Mr. Justice Field says, "Unless parol evidence can be admitted, the policy of the law will constantly be evaded. Debtors, under the force of pressing necessities, will submit to almost any exactions for loans of a trifling amount compared with the value of the property; and the equity of redemption will elude the grasp of the court, and rest in the simple good faith of the creditor. A mortgage, as I have observed, is in form a conveyance of the conditional estate; and the assertion of a right to redeem from a forfeiture involves the same departure from the terms of the instrument as in the case of an absolute conveyance executed as security. The conveyance upon condition by its terms purports to invest the entire estate upon the breach of the condition, just as the absolute conveyance does in the first instance. The equity arises and is asserted, in both cases, upon exactly the same principles, and is enforced without reference to the agreement of the parties, but from the nature of the transaction to which the right attaches, from the policy of the law, as an inseparable incident."

This rule seems to be founded on the principle, that, in such case, the proof raises an equity, which does not contradict the writing, or affect its validity, but simply varies its import so far as to show the true intention and object of the parties without a written defeasance, and establish the trust purpose for which the deed was executed. Schade v. Bessinger, 3 Neb. 140.

It is the fraudulent use of the deed which equity interposes to detect and prevent; and, for this purpose, parol proof is admissible, not to vary the deed, but to maintain the equity which attaches to the transaction inherently, and which the deed or contract of the parties does not create, and cannot destroy. If an equity of redemption really attaches to the transaction itself, any attempt to defeat that equity by

3. Does not violate Statute of Frauds. — The admission of parol evidence for this purpose does not violate the statute of frauds.<sup>1</sup>

4. Nor conflict with Rules of Evidence. — Nor does it violate the rule which excludes parol evidence to contradict or vary the terms of a written instrument.<sup>2</sup>

5. What considered. — In determining the question as to whether a deed absolute upon its face is in fact a mortgage, the verbal agreement of the parties at the time of its execution may be proved,<sup>3</sup> as may various matters, — such as the conduct and declarations of the parties,<sup>4</sup> the existence of a debt,<sup>5</sup> inadequacy setting up the deed as absolute is fraudulent. Rogan v. Walker, 1 Wis. 527.

In Ruckman v. Alwood, 71 Ill. 155, it is said, referring to former cases in the same court, "It will be perceived that in none of these cases did the court attempt to range the jurisdiction to turn an absolute deed into a mortgage by parol evidence, under any specific head of equity, such as fraud, accident, or mistake; but the rule seems to have grown into recognition as an independent head of equity. Still, it must have its foundation in this, that where the transaction is shown to have been meant as a security for a loan, the deed will have the character of a mortgage, without other proof of fraud than is implied in showing that a conveyance taken for the mutual benefit of both parties has been appropriated solely to the use of the grantee."

1. Carr v. Carr, 52 N. Y. 251; Sewell v. Price, 32 Ala. 97; Klein v. McNamara, 54 Miss. 90; Moore v. Wade, 8 Kan. 380, 387; Campbell v. Dearborn, 109 Mass. 130; Maffitt v. Rynd, 69 Pa. St. 380, 387; Houser v. Lamont, 55 Pa. St. 311; Raynor v. Lyons, 37 Cal. 452; Lee v. Evans, 8 Cal. 424; Oneill v. Capelle, 62 Mo. 202; Russell v. Southard, 12 How. (U. S.) 139.

2. Peugh v. Davis, 96 U. S. 332.

3. Anding v. Davis, 38 Miss. 574; Anthony v. Anthony, 23 Ark. 479; Reigard v. McNeil, 38 Ill. 400.

4. Russell v. Southard, 12 How. (U. S.) 139; Freeman v. Wilson, 51 Miss. 329; Tibeau v. Tibeau, 22 Mo. 77; Crane v. Bonnell, 2 N. J. Eq. 264; Daubenspeck v. Platt, 22 Cal. 330; Lodge v. Furman, 24 Cal. 385; Ross v. Brusie, 64 Cal. 245; Purviance v. Holt, 8 Ill. 394; Williams v. Bishop, 15 Ill. 553; Whitcomb v. Sutherland, 18 Ill. 578; Reigard v. McNeil, 38 Ill. 400; Bartling v. Brasuhn, 102 Ill. 441; Prewett v. Dobbs, 13 S. & R. (Pa.) 431; Cole v. Bolard, 22 Pa. St. 431; Lane v. Shears, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 433; Overton v. Bigelow, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 513; Eiland v. Radford, 7 Ala. 724; Carter v. Carter, 5 Tex. 93; McIntyre v. Humphreys, 1 Hoffm. (N. Y.) 31; Bentley v. Phelps, 2 Woodb. & M. (U. S.) 426.

But the uncorroborated declarations of the parties is not sufficient. Todd v. Campbell, 32 Pa. St. 250; Brothers v. Harrill, 2 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 209; Glisson v. Hill, 2 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 256; Edwards v. Wall, 79 Va. 321.

5. Ruffier v. Womack, 30 Tex. 332; Eaton v. Green, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 526, 530; Klein v. McNamara, 54 Miss. 90; Westlake v. Horton, 85 Ill. 228; Ennor v. Thompson, 46 Ill. 214; Sutphen v. Cushman, 35 Ill. 186; Wynkoop v. Cowing, 21 Ill. 570; Williams v. Bishop, 15 Ill. 555; Montgomery v. Spect, 55 Cal. 352; Farmer v. Grose, 42 Cal. 169; Davis v. Demming, 12 W. Va. 246.

"One principle has universally been recognized, — that, in order to convert a conveyance absolute upon its face into a mortgage, or security merely, there must be a debt to be secured. Some of the cases go so far as to hold that there must be a debt in such form that it can be enforced by action against the debtor, while others have denied it. We have no occasion now to decide whether the debt must be such that it could be enforced by action against the debtor: the tendency of later cases seems to be against it. But all agree that there must be a debt or loan to be secured, that the relation of debtor and creditor must exist between the grantor and grantee, in order to lay the foundation for converting an absolute deed in form into a mere security. In this case there was no note or bond, or other evidence of debt, executed by the defendants; and though this is by no means conclusive, still it is a circumstance favorable to the orator, as, if the parties intended the conveyance merely as a security for a loan or debt, it would have been natural that the ordinary evidence of a debt should have been required and given." Chief Justice Poland in Rich v. Doane, 35 Vt. 125.

It is not essential that there be written evidence of the debt. Robinson v. Farrelly, 16 Ala. 472; Campbell v. Dearborn, 109 Mass. 130; Flagg v. Mann, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 467; Brown v. Dewey, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 56; Russell v. Southard, 12 of price,<sup>1</sup> possession by the grantor,<sup>2</sup> long delay in asserting the mortgage,<sup>3</sup> the payment of interest on the amount,<sup>4</sup> and other circumstances of the case which tend to show the relation between the parties, and the true nature of the transaction.<sup>5</sup>

6. Degree of Proof required.—The degree of proof should be that of certainty, or, as it has been expressed, should be clear, convincing, and satisfactory.<sup>6</sup>

How. (U. S.) 139; Ennor v. Thompson, 46 Ill. 214.

But a pre-existing debt is not conclusive of the instrument being a mortgage. It may be what it purports to be, and may have been given in satisfaction of such debt. Ford v. Irwin, 18 Cal. 117; Baisch v. Oakeley, 68 Pa. St. 92; Todd v. Campbell, 32 Pa. St. 250; Hogarty v. Lynch, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 138; Snaveley v. Pickle, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 27; Baxter v. Willey, 9 Vt. 276; Bigelow v. Topliff, 25 Vt. 273; Toler v. Pender, 1 Dev. & B. Eq. (N. Car.) 445; Slee v. Manhattan Co., 1 Paige (N. Y.), 48; Conler v. Williams, 23 La. Ann. 281; Hooper v. Bailey, 28 Miss. 328; West v. Hendrix, 28 Ala. 226; Zane v. Fink, 18 W. Va. 693.

"It is not enough that the relation of borrower and lender, or debtor and creditor, existed at the time the transaction was entered upon. Negotiations, begun with a view to a loan or security for a debt, may fairly terminate in a sale of the property originally proposed for security. And if, without fraud, oppression, or unfair advantage taken, a sale is the real result, and not a form adopted as a cover or pretext, it should be sustained by the court. It is to the determination of this question that the parol evidence is mainly directed." Mr. Justice Wells, in Campbell v. Dearborn, 109 Mass. 130.

It is not essential that the conveyance be made by the debtor. It may be by another for his benefit. Barnett v. Nelson, 46 Iowa, 495; Hidden v. Jordan, 21 Cal. 92; Smith v. Knoebil, 82 Ill. 392; Strong v. Shea, 83 Ill. 575.

1. Wilson v. Patrick, 34 Iowa, 362; Trucks v. Lindsey, 18 Iowa, 504; Bridges v. Linder, 60 Iowa, 190; Davis v. Stonestreet, 4 Ind. 101; Klein v. McNamara, 54 Miss. 90; Matthews v. Porter, 16 Fla. 466; Gibbs v. Penny, 43 Tex. 560; Overton v. Bigelow, 3 Yerg. (Tenn.) 513; Crews v. Threadgill, 35 Ala. 334; West v. Hendrix, 28 Ala. 226; Davis v. Demming, 12 W. Va. 246.

2. Crews v. Threadgill, 35 Ala. 334; Ruffier v. Womack, 30 Tex. 332; Daubenspeck v. Platt, 22 Cal. 330; Strong v. Shea, 83 Ill. 575; Thompson v. Banks, 2 Md. Ch. 430; Steel v. Black, 3 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 427; Streater v. Jones, 3 Hawks (N. Car.), 423; Sellers v. Stalcup, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 13; Kemp v. Earp, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 167; Wilson v. Patrick, 34 Iowa, 362; Trucks v. Lindsey, 18 Iowa, 504; Hills v. Loomis, 42 Vt. 562, and many other Vermont cases; Davis v. Demming, 12 W. Va. 246; Hoffman v. Ryan, 21 W. Va. 415; Lincoln v. Wright, 4 De G. & J. 16. But see Edwards v. Wall, 79 Va. 321.

3. De France v. De France, 34 Pa. St. 385; Connor v. Chase, 15 Vt. 764; Anding v. Davis, 38 Miss. 574; Tull v. Owen, Y. & C. 192; Hancock v. Harper, 86 Ill. 445.

4. Sweet v. Parker, 22 N. J. Eq. 453, 557. In this case Vice Chancellor Dodd says, "Any means of proof may be used to show it to be the latter (a mortgage),—the declarations of the parties; the relations subsisting between them; the possession of the premises retained by the complainant; the value of the property compared with the money paid; the understanding that the sums advanced should be repaid; and the payment of interest, meanwhile, on the amount."

5. Moore v. Wade, 8 Kan. 380; Weide v. Gehl, 21 Minn. 449; Phoenix v. Gardner, 13 Minn. 430; Freeman v. Wilson, 51 Miss. 329; Snaveley v. Pickle, 29 Gratt. (Va.) 27, and many other Virginia cases; Hoffman v. Bryan, 21 W. Va. 415; Davis v. Brewster, 59 Tex. 93; Horbach v. Hill, 112 U. S. 144; Stephens v. Allen, 11 Oregon, 188; Wilhelm v. Woodcock, 11 Oregon, 518; Sutphen v. Cushman, 35 Ill. 186; Darst v. Murphy, 119 Ill. 343.

6. Bartling v. Brasuhn, 102 Ill. 441; Hancock v. Harper, 86 Ill. 445; Jones v. Brittan, 1 Woods (U. S.), 667; Cadman v. Peter, 118 U. S. 73; Bingham v. Thompson, 4 Nev. 224; Pierce v. Traver, 13 Nev. 526; Conwell v. Evill, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 67; Williams v. Cheatham, 19 Ark. 278; Matthews v. Porter, 16 Fla. 466; Arnold v. Mattison, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 153; Elliot v. Maxwell, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 246; Moore v. Ivory, 8 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 192; Williams v. Stratton, 18 Miss. 418; Woodworth v. Carman, 43 Iowa, 504; Zuver v. Lyons, 40 Iowa, 510; Crawford v. Taylor, 42 Iowa, 260; Knight v. McCord, 63 Iowa, 429; Miller v. Stokely, 5 Ohio St. 194; Stall v. Cincinnati, 16 Ohio St. 169; Miami Ex. Co. v. U. S. Bank, Wright (Ohio), 249, 252; Todd v. Campbell, 32 Pa. St. 250;

Slight or indefinite evidence will not avail.<sup>1</sup>

7. Grantor may redeem. — It follows from what has been stated, that the grantor of a deed intended as a mortgage may maintain a bill to redeem;<sup>2</sup> but in seeking this relief, or a reconveyance of the premises, he must pay the amount due, or discharge the undertaking which the deed was given to secure.<sup>3</sup> He may, however, have released or waived his right of redemption, in which case it cannot, of course, be exercised.<sup>4</sup>

8. Rights of Purchaser. — A purchaser of premises, the subject of an equitable mortgage, of this sort, is subject in his rights to those of the mortgagor, if at the time of the purchase he had notice thereof, express or implied;<sup>5</sup> but otherwise not.<sup>6</sup>

III. Informal Mortgages. — Mortgages, intended as such, but which lack some formality essential to their validity at law, may in very many instances be given their intended effect in equity.<sup>7</sup>

Plumer v. Guthrie, 76 Pa. St. 441; McClurken v. Thompson, 69 Pa. St. 305; Haynes v. Swann, 6 Heisk. (Tenn.) 560; Nickson v. Toney, 3 Head (Tenn.), 655; Lane v. Dickerson, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 373; Rogan v. Walker, 1 Wis. 527; Butler v. Butler, 46 Wis. 430; Whitsett v. Kershaw, 4 Colo. 419; Coburn v. Anderson, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 268; Cochrane v. Price, 8 Atl. Rep. (Md. 1887) 361.

It should make out the case beyond a reasonable doubt. Tilden v. Streeter, 45 Mich. 533.

One witness is not sufficient unless his testimony be corroborated by the circumstances of the case. Moreland v. Barnhart, 44 Tex. 275, 583, and cases cited. Overruled in Pierce v. Fort, 60 Tex. 464.

1. Hancock v. Harper, 86 Ill. 445; Knowles v. Knowles, 86 Ill. 1; Sharp v. Smitherman, 85 Ill. 153; Magnusson v. Johnson, 73 Ill. 156; Smith v. Cremer, 71 Ill. 185; Price v. Karnes, 59 Ill. 276; Hogarty v. Lynch, 6 Bosw. (N. Y.) 138.

"It will not avail to show that the grantor understood the instrument to be a mortgage." Phœnix v. Gardner, 13 Minn. 430; Holmes v. Fresh, 9 Mo. 201; Jones v. Brittan, 1 Woods (U. S.), 667.

But when it is admitted that the deed was intended merely as security for a debt, the burden is upon the grantee to prove its amount. Freytag v. Hoeland, 23 N. J. Eq. 36.

2. Westlake v. Horton, 85 Ill. 228; Campbell v. Dearborn, 109 Mass. 130; McDonough v. Squire, 111 Mass. 217.

The maxim, "Once a mortgage, always a mortgage," applies to these as well as to formal mortgages, and the right of redemption may be exercised until it is either released or barred by the statute of limitations. Elliott v. Wood, 53 Barb. (N. Y.) 285; Marks v. Pell, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 594, and numerous other New York cases. And the release or waiver must be subsequent to the execution of the deed. Peugh v. Davis, 96 U. S. 332.

The right to redeem and the right to foreclose are, however, reciprocal: where one right is barred by the statute of limitations, the other is barred also. Taylor v. McClain, 60 Cal. 651.

3. White v. Lucas, 46 Iowa, 319; Westfall v. Westfall, 16 Hun (N. Y.), 541; Cowing v. Rogers, 34 Cal. 648; Heacock v. Swartwout, 28 Ill. 291.

4. Maxfield v. Patchen, 29 Ill. 39; Carpenter v. Carpenter, 70 Ill. 457; Woodworth v. Carman, 43 Iowa, 504.

The release or waiver must be clear, must be founded upon sufficient consideration, and must be subsequent to the execution of the deed. Peugh v. Davis, 96 U. S. 332.

5. Hurst v. Beaver, 50 Mich. 612; Smith v. Knoebel, 82 Ill. 392; Houser v. Lamont, 55 Pa. St. 311, and cases cited; Graham v. Graham, 55 Ind. 23; French v. Burns, 35 Conn. 359; Kuhn v. Rumpp, 46 Cal. 299; Amoy v. Lawrence, 3 Cliff. (U. S.) 523; Williams v. Thorn, 11 Paige (N. Y.), 459.

6. Jenkins v. Rosenberg, 105 Ill. 157; Pancake v. Cauffman, 7 Atl. Rep. (Pa. 1886) 67; Sweetzer v. Atterbury, 100 Pa. St. 18.

Contra, where purchaser takes by quitclaim. Schradski v. Albright, 93 Mo. 42.

Where a deed absolute in form was claimed to have been given as a mortgage, and the original owner swore that he so notified one who subsequently bought the property at its full market price from the grantee, which the purchaser flatly denied, held, that notice to such purchaser was not proved, and he would not be declared to hold as mortgagee. Frink v. Adams, 36 N. J. Eq. 485.

7. Daggett v. Rankin, 31 Cal. 321; Flagg

Thus, should a seal be omitted by mistake,<sup>1</sup> or should the instrument not be acknowledged<sup>2</sup> or witnessed as required,<sup>3</sup> or the name of the grantee omitted,<sup>4</sup> equity might nevertheless enforce it.<sup>5</sup>

So there are many instruments not always intended as mortgages, not having the usual form of mortgages, and which the law does not recognize as such, which will be so construed in equity.<sup>6</sup>

Thus, an assignment of a lease for the purpose of securing a v. Mann, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 486; Jones v. Brewington, 58 Mo. 210; Payne v. Wilson, 74 N. Y. 348.

1. Harrington v. Fostner, 58 Mo. 468; Dunn v. Raley, 58 Mo. 134; McClurg v. Phillips, 49 Mo. 315; Gill v. Clark, 54 Mo. 415; Flagg v. Mann, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 467; Eaton v. Green, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 526; Kelleran v. Brown, 4 Mass. 443; Woods v. Wallace, 22 Pa. St. 171.

A loan of money, and a deed given as security therefor, with a contract, not under seal, showing the transaction, will be regarded as an equitable mortgage. Lewis v. Small, 71 Me. 552.

2. Black v. Gregg, 58 Mo. 565.

3. Lake v. Doud, 10 Ohio, 415; Abbott v. Godfrey, 1 Mich. 108. See, however, Thompson v. Morgan, 6 Minn. 292; Parret v. Shaubhut, 5 Minn. 323; Harper v. Barsh, 10 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 149.

4. Burnside v. Wayman, 49 Mo. 356; McQuie v. Peay, 58 Mo. 56.

5. So where an agent or officer having authority to execute a mortgage for the principal by mistake, executes it in his own name, it will be held to be binding on the principal in equity. Love v. Sierra Nevada, etc., M. Co., 32 Cal. 639; Miller v. Rutland, etc., R. Co., 36 Vt. 452.

Equity will not, however, extend a remedy where the mortgagor has not signed. Goodman v. Randall, 44 Conn. 321.

6. For examples, see Newlin v. McAfee, 64 Ala. 357; Parks v. Parks, 66 Ala. 326; Turner v. Wilkinson, 72 Ala. 361; Remington v. Higgins, 54 Cal. 620; Carey v. Rawson, 8 Mass. 159; Moors v. Albro, 129 Mass. 9; Vliet v. Young, 34 N. J. Eq. 15; Blizzard v. Craigmiles, 7 Lea (Tenn.), 693; Starks v. Redfield, 52 Wis. 349; Hoile v. Bailey, 58 Wis. 434; Radford v. Folsom, 58 Iowa, 473; Hall v. Hall, 50 Conn. 104; Beatty v. Brummett, 94 Ind. 76; Brown v. Brown, 103 Ind. 23; Voss v. Eller, 10 N. E. Rep. (Ind. 1887) 74; Bearss v. Ford, 108 Ill. 16; Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Slee, 110 Ill. 35; Ferris v. Wilcox, 51 Mich. 105; Joseph Smith Co. v. McGuinness, 14 R. I. 59; Stewart v. Hutchins, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 485.

Any instrument pledging land for a debt is an equitable mortgage, without regard to its form. Wayt v. Carwithen, 21 W. Va. 516; Dunman v. Coleman, 59 Tex. 199; Overstreet v. Baxter, 30 Kan. 55; McDonald v. Kellogg, 30 Kan. 170; Mellon v. Lemmon, 111 Pa. St. 56. See also Beatty v. Snook, 5 Mich. 231; Cross v. Hepner, 7 Ind. 359; Marshall v. Stewart, 17 Ohio, 356; Read v. Gaillard, 2 Desau. (S. Car.) 552; Hicks v. Hicks, 5 Gill & J. (Md.) 75.

A deed of land, with a power of sale to secure the payment of a debt, whether made to a creditor or a third person, is, in equity, essentially a mortgage, if there is left a right to redeem on payment of such debt. Shillaber v. Robinson, 97 U. S. 68.

An instrument securing a single creditor on property which by its terms can be disposed of only to pay the secured debt, is an equitable mortgage. Parsell v. Thayer, 39 Mich. 467.

Any transaction by which money is lent on the security of real estate granted to the person making the loan, is treated in equity as a mortgage, though the borrower incurs no personal obligation, and the grant is made by the holder of the legal title for the benefit of a borrower having merely a right of redemption. Fisk v. Stewart, 24 Minn. 97.

Where the grantees in a deed executed an instrument providing that, if the grantor paid for certain legal services rendered by them, the land was to be reconveyed to him, held, that this constituted a mortgage. Scott v. Mewhirter, 49 Iowa, 487.

A lease made as security to the lessee for his support by the lessor, is a mortgage. Lanfair v. Lanfair, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 299.

Where the grantee of a deed absolute upon its face executed a declaration of trust acknowledging that the money to be paid by him to the grantor was the proper money of certain creditors of the grantor, held, that such declaration was not in the nature of a defeasance, and did not, with the deed, constitute a mortgage. Frick's Appeal, 87 Pa. St. 327.

If A. conveys land to B. by a deed in form absolute, and B. gives a bond for a reconveyance on payment of a certain sum at a certain time, this, prima facie, is a conditional sale. Buse v. Page, 32 Minn. 111.

debt, with an agreement for a re-assignment on payment thereof, is viewed in equity as a mortgage.<sup>1</sup> So an assignment of the rents and profits of leased premises for a like purpose has been said to be of like effect in equity.<sup>2</sup> Likewise, an assignment of a contract for the purchase of land by the vendee as security for a debt, is treated as a mortgage,<sup>3</sup> as is a reservation in a deed of a lien upon the land conveyed as security for the unpaid purchase-money,<sup>4</sup> or an agreement to give a mortgage.<sup>5</sup>

At law, the defeasance must be to the grantor himself, but in equity it may be in favor of a third party.<sup>6</sup>

1. Jackson v. Green, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 186.

2. Willis, ex parte, 1 Ves. Jr. 162. But see Alexander v. Berry, 54 Miss. 422.

A stipulation in a lease that buildings erected by the lessee are mortgaged as security for the rent, is an equitable mortgage. Barroilhet v. Battelle, 7 Cal. 450.

A written contract to apply the proceeds or rents and profits of a portion of a tract of land to the payment of a debt, creates an equitable lien on such portion. Smith v. Patton, 12 W. Va. 541.

3. Smith v. Lackor, 23 Minn. 454; Fitzhugh v. Smith, 62 Ill. 486; Brockway v. Wells, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 617; Fessler's Appeal, 75 Pa. St. 483; Purdy v. Bullard, 41 Cal. 444.

Even though the contract be conditional. Curtis v. Buckley, 14 Kan. 449.

This is also true of the assignment of a bond for a deed as security. Jones v. Lapham, 15 Kan. 540; Baker v. Bishop Hill Colony, 45 Ill. 264; Bull v. Shepard, 7 Wis. 449; Button v. Schroyer, 5 Wis. 598; Newhouse v. Hill, 7 Blackf. (Ind.) 584; Alderson v. Ames, 6 Md. 52; Fenno v. Sayre, 3 Ala. 458; Neligh v. Michenor, 3 Stock. (N. J.) 539; Christy v. Dana, 34 Cal. 548.

Indeed, the effect of the bond itself has been said by some courts to be that of a mortgage from the vendee to the vendor. Lewis v. Booskins, 27 Ark. 61; Smith v. Robinson, 13 Ark. 533; Shall v. Biscoe, 18 Ark. 142; Tanner v. Hicks, 4 S. & M. (Miss.) 294; Smith v. Moore, 26 Ill. 392; Smith v. Price, 42 Ill. 399; Button v. Schroyer, 5 Wis. 598; Scroggins v. Hoadley, 56 Ga. 165; Relfe v. Relfe, 34 Ala. 504; Lingam v. Henderson, 1 Bland, Ch. (Md.) 236; Irvine v. Muse, 10 Heisk. (Tenn.) 477; Cleveland v. Martin, 2 Head (Tenn.), 128; Richards v. Fisher, 8 W. Va. 55; Merritt v. Judd, 14 Cal. 59; Purdy v. Bullard, 41 Cal. 444; Dukes v. Turner, 44 Iowa, 575.

So it is true of the assignment as security of a certificate of purchase of public land, — Hill v. Eldred, 49 Cal. 398; Stover v. Bounds, 1 Ohio St. 107; Case v. McCabe, 35 Mich. 100; Hays v. Hall, 4 Port. (Ala.) 374; Ross v. Mitchell, 28 Tex. 150; Mowry v. Wood, 12 Wis. 413; Jarvis v. Dutcher, 16 Wis. 307; Dodge v. Silverthorn, 12 Wis. 644, — or of the certificate issued after making final proof under the homestead act, and becoming entitled to a patent. Jones v. Yoakam, 5 Neb. 265.

4. Davis v. Hamilton, 50 Miss. 213; Moore v. Lackey, 53 Miss. 85; Heist v. Baker, 49 Pa. St. 9; White v. Downs, 40 Tex. 226; Masterson v. Cohen, 46 Tex. 520; Markoe v. Andras, 67 Ill. 34; Carpenter v. Mitchell, 54 Ill. 126; King v. Young Men's Ass'n, 1 Woods (C. C.), 386; Thompson v. Heffner, 11 Bush (Ky.), 353; Parsons v. Hoyt, 24 Iowa, 154; Hall v. Mobile, etc., Ry. Co., 58 Ala. 10; Dingley v. Ventura Bank, 57 Cal. 467. Or a provision that the title shall not pass until the purchase-price is paid. Pugh v. Holt, 27 Miss. 461; Carr v. Holbrook, 1 Mo. 240.

If the deed be recorded, or he has other notice of its conditions, a purchaser of the property, or a judgment creditor, will be subject in his rights to such a condition or reservation. Davis v. Hamilton, 50 Miss. 213; Stucklin v. Cooper, 55 Miss. 624; Parsons v. Hoyt, 24 Iowa, 154; Radford v. Folsom, 58 Iowa, 473; Thompson v. Heffner, 11 Bush (Ky.), 353. See, however, Strauss's App. 49 Pa. St. 353; Hiester v. Green, 48 Pa. St. 96; Pierce v. Gardner, 83 Pa. St. 211.

A lien reserved on land in the deed thereof is not waived by accepting other security, — Lusk v. Hopper, 3 Bush (Ky.), 179; Price v. Lauve, 49 Tex. 74; Hines v. Perkins, 2 Heisk. (Tenn.) 395; Bozeman v. Ivey, 49 Ala. 75; McCaslin v. The State, 44 Ind. 151; Strickland v. Somerville, 55 Mo. 164; Lewis v. Pusey, 8 Bush (Ky.), 615; Dunlap v. Shanklin, 10 W. Va. 662; Hurley v. Hollyday, 35 Md. 469, — or other notes, — Chitwood v. Trimble, 58 Tenn. 78; Bradford v. Harper, 25 Ala. 337; Bozeman v. Ivey, 49 Ala. 75.

5. Payne v. Wilson, 74 N. Y. 348.

6. Reigard v. McNeil, 38 Ill. 400; Ryan v. Dox, 34 N. Y. 307; Barton v. May, 3 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 450; Sahler v. Signer,

1. What considered in construing.—In construing these informal documents, courts, as in receiving evidence that a deed absolute upon its face is in fact a mortgage, take into consideration the intention of the parties, their relations, inadequacy of price, the possession of the grantor, and the other circumstances of the case.<sup>1</sup>

IV. Mortgages by Deposit of Title-deeds.—In England it is a generally recognized and thoroughly established doctrine that an equitable mortgage may be created by a deposit of the title-deeds as security for a debt.<sup>2</sup>

There, no general system of registration of title papers exists: title to lands is made to mainly depend upon the possession of the original documents, and there would therefore seem to be good reason for the doctrine there. But its adoption in the United States would be in conflict, both with the universally established system of public registration and the statute of frauds; and the courts have therefore generally rejected it,<sup>3</sup> though some have adopted it.<sup>4</sup>

However, where a written agreement is entered into, and deposited with the title-deeds, stating the purpose of the deposit, it has been considered that the objections are removed, and that the transaction constitutes an equitable mortgage.<sup>5</sup>

EQUITY. See, for subjects not fully treated herein, the various titles and sub-titles of the following analysis.

I. Definition, 684.

1. The Literal Meaning, 684.
2. The Ancient Meaning, 685.
3. The Modern Meaning of Equity as a System of Jurisprudence, 686.

II. Rise of the High Court of Chancery in England, 688.

III. Jurisdiction of Courts of Equity, 692.

1. Generally, 692.
2. Of Courts in England.—Supreme Court Judicature Act, 695.
3. The Federal Courts, 695.
4. The Courts of the Several States, 697.

IV. Maxims in Equity, 704.

1. Equity follows the Law, 705.
2. Equity regards that as done which ought to have been done, 705.
3. Equity looks to the Intent rather than to the Form, 706.
4. Equality is Equity, 707. [707.]
5. He who seeks Equity must do Equity,
6. He who comes into Equity must come with Clean Hands, 708.
7. Between Equal Equities Time shall prevail, 709.
8. Between Equal Equities the Law must prevail, 710.

<sup>44</sup> Barb. (N. Y.) 606; Shillaber v. Robinson, 97 U. S. 68.

1. Page v. Foster, 7 N. H. 392; Flagg v. Mann, 14 Pick. (Mass.) 467; De France v. De France, 34 Pa. St. 385; Rich v. Doane, 35 Vt. 125; Reading v. Weston, 7 Conn. 143; Lokerson v. Stillwell, 13 N. J. 359; Watkins v. Gregory, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 113; Peterson v. Clark, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 205; Holmes v. Grant, 8 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 243; Todd v. Hardie, 5 Ala. 698.

2. Russel v. Russel, 1 Bro. C. C. 269; Whitbread v. Jordan, 1 Y. & C. 303; Pye v. Daubuz, 2 Dick. 759; Lacon v. Allen, 3 Drew, 579, 582; Kensington, ex parte, 2 V. & B. 79. And for details of the subject, see Pryce v. Bury, 2 Drew, 41;

Spoole v. Whayman, 20 Beav. 607; Langston, ex parte, 17 Ves. 227; Baynard v. Woolley, 20 Beav. 586; Roberts v. Croft, 24 Beav. 223; Hockley v. Bantock, 1 Russ. 141; Hooper, ex parte, 1 Mer. 7; Lucas v. Darrien, 1 Moo. 29.

3. Meador v. Meador, 3 Heisk. (Tenn.) 562; Gothard v. Flynn, 25 Miss. 58; Shitz v. Dieffenbach, 3 Pa. St. 233; Vanmeter v. McFaddin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 438.

4. Gale v. Morris, 29 N. J. Eq. 222; Griffin v. Griffin, 18 N. J. Eq. 104. And see Hackett v. Reynolds, 4 R. I. 512; Rockwell v. Hobby, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 9; Jarvis v. Dutcher, 16 Wis. 307.

5. Edward v. Trumbull, 50 Pa. St. 509; Luch's Appeal, 44 Pa. St. 519.

Definition.

EQUITY. Its Broadest, most Literal Sense.

9. Equity aids the Vigilant, 710.
10. Equity imputes an Intention to fulfil an Obligation, 712.
11. No Right without a Remedy, 712.
12. Equity acts in Personam, 712.
13. Equity acts specifically, 713.
- V. Divisions of Equity, 714.
- VI. Equitable Titles, 715.
  1. Trusts, 715.
    - a. Express Trusts, 715.
    - b. Implied Trusts, 715.
      - (1) Resulting Trusts, 715.
      - (2) Constructive Trusts, 715.
    - c. Trusts for Married Women, 716.
    - d. Trusts for Charities, 716.
    - e. Powers and Duties of Trustees, 716.
  2. Mortgages, 716.
  3. Assignments, 716.
- VII. Equitable Rights or Equities, 716.
  1. Accident, 717.
  2. Mistake, 717.
  3. Fraud, 717.
    - a. Actual Fraud, 717.
    - b. Constructive Fraud, 717.
      - (1) Frauds arising from the Nature of the Transaction, 717.
      - (2) Frauds presumed from the Circumstances and Condition of the Parties, 717. [718.
      - (3) Frauds affecting Third Parties,
4. Notice, 718.
5. Equitable Estoppel, 718.
6. Election, 718.
7. Conversion and Reconversion, 718.
8. Set-off, 719.
9. Contribution, 719.
10. Exoneration, 719.
11. Subrogation, 719.
12. Marshalling of Assets, 719.
13. Equitable Liens, 719.
- VIII. Equitable Remedies, 719.
  1. Specific Performance, 719.
  2. Injunctions, 719.
  3. Re-execution, Reformation, Rescission, and Cancellation of Contracts, 720.
  4. Account, 720.
  5. Partition, 722.
  6. Dower, 722.
  7. Boundaries, 722.
  8. Rent, 723.
  9. Partnership Bills, 723.
  10. Creditors' Bills, 723.
  11. Administration Suits, 723.
  12. Protection of Infants, Idiots, and Lunatics, 723.
  13. Discovery, 723.
  14. Bills Quia Timet, 723.
  15. Receivers, 724.
  16. Writs of Ne Exeat, 724.

I. Definition. — I. Its Broadest, most Literal Sense. — The word "equity" is used in three different senses. In its first and broadest sense it is synonymous with natural justice;<sup>1</sup> but this use of the word is far different from its use in modern law.<sup>2</sup> Although natural justice often furnishes a guide to the courts of equity in their administration of relief,<sup>3</sup> it would be impossible for those courts to take cognizance of purely moral rights and obligations; so that in this sense, equity belongs to the science of morals rather than that of jurisprudence.<sup>4</sup>

1. Bouvier's Law Dict. (15th ed.); Burrill's Law Dict. (2d ed.). "Taken broadly and philosophically, equity means to do to all men as we would that they should do unto us — by the Justinian Pandects honeste vivere, alterum non laedere, suum cuique tribuere." Wharton's Law Lex. (6th ed.); 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) § 1.

2. Wharton's Law Lex. (6th ed.); Burrill's Law Dict. (2d ed.).

3. See the following maxims: Equality is equity. He that seeks equity must do equity. He that comes into equity must come with clean hands. Equity imputes an intention to fulfil an obligation.

4. Wharton's Law Lex. (6th ed.) 344; 1 Burrill's Law Dict. (2d ed.) 551; Smith's Man. of Eq. (13th ed.) 3, § 3. "Equity is not synonymous with natural justice, but has a narrower signification; for not only does the court (in order that it may have some rule to proceed by, and not leave the rights of individuals to depend solely on the particular opinion of the party holding the great seal) strictly adhere to principles which have been successively enunciated by its various judges, in adjudicating on the causes which have been brought before them, notwithstanding the enforcement of such principles may, in particular instances, occasion injustice, but it also leaves many matters of natural justice to be disposed of foro conscientia, from the impossibility of framing general rules respecting them, and from the mischief and inconvenience which would arise from attempting judicially to enforce such moral duties as charity, gratitude, or kindness, or even positive engagements which are not founded on a good or valuable consideration." Roberts' Prin. of Eq. To the same effect, see 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 2, § 2.

2. Its Ancient Meaning. — In a second and less universal sense, equity is used in contradistinction to strict law.<sup>1</sup> This is the ancient rather than the modern meaning of the word, and is that of which not only the civilians, but also the common-law writers, are most accustomed to speak; and it is this which has led to the erroneous impression that such is the character of modern equity, and the jurisdiction of the courts of chancery. It assumes that equity is bound by no fixed principles, that it lies entirely within the jurisdiction of the chancellor, that it is higher than the law, with power to reject, modify, or enlarge the latter to meet the exigencies of each particular case.<sup>2</sup> It is, however, manifest that

1. Bouvier defines this sense of the word thus: "In a more limited application, it denotes equal justice between contending parties. This is its moral signification in reference to the rights of parties having conflicting claims; but applied to courts and their jurisdiction, it has a more restrained and limited signification." Law Dict. (15th ed.). See also Wharton's Law Lex. (6th ed.)

"In a stricter sense, the application of the principles of natural right and reason in the actual administration of justice, either by applying rules for cases not provided for by the positive law, by mitigating the rigor of the law itself by a liberal and rational interpretation of its rules, or by adapting its remedies more exactly to the exigencies of particular cases; otherwise termed civil equity." Burrill's Law Dict. (2d ed.).

2. This was the sense in which Aristotle used the word when he defined it as "the correction of the law where it is defective by reason of its universality." This definition is followed by Grotius, De Aequitate, § 3, and by Blackstone, Com. Introd. 61. The latter author subsequently (3 Bl. Com. 429) says, "Equity, then, in its true and genuine meaning, is the soul and spirit of all law: positive law is construed, and rational law is made, by it. In this equity is synonymous to justice; in that, to the true sense and sound interpretation of the rule."

The most obvious application of this use of the word "equity" is in the impossibility of providing for every possible predicament in the express words of a statute. This fault is neither in the law nor the legislature, but in the very nature of the thing itself. When, therefore, a matter arises somewhat different from the case provided for in the statute, the court will supply the deficiency in the law, as the legislator would himself direct were he present, or as he would have included in the law if he had anticipated the matter. This is what is meant by the equity of a statute; i.e., the reason and spirit of the statute, and not its strict letter. Wharton's Law Lex. (6th ed.) 344.

Many other definitions have been given by the older writers to the same effect. Thus, Bacon — Bac. Speech, 4; Bac. Works, 488 — says, "Chancery is ordained to supply the law, and not to subvert the law." Finch — Law, p. 20 — says, that "the nature of equity is to amplify, enlarge, and add to the letter of the law." Lord Kairns — Eq. Introd. p. 12 — holds the same doctrine, and is followed by Sir John Trevor, who goes so far as to say, — Dudley v. Dudley, Preced. in Chancery, 241, — "Now equity is no part of the law, but a moral virtue, which qualifies, moderates, and reforms the rigor, hardness, and edge of the law, and is a universal truth. It does also assist the law where it is defective and weak in the constitution (which is the life of the law), and defends the law from the crafty evasions, delusions, and mere subtleties, whereby such as have undoubted right are made remediless." Francis — Maxims of Equity, preface to the first edition — strongly advocates this view. After reciting the objection that, "not being bound by any established rules or orders, nor circumscribed within the limits of positive laws," the judgments of courts of equity must be arbitrary, he continues, —

"But to this objection it may be answered in general, that where conscience is to direct the judge, that court cannot, with any propriety of sense or speech, be said to be arbitrary. The judge knows, and is sensible, that he sits there, not to dictate according to his will and pleasure, but to be guided by that infallible monitor within his own breast, and surely he who is bound to determine according to the original and eternal rules of justice, is no more arbitrary than he that is bound to judge according to positive laws and statutes; since the one has no more power to alter his own conscience, than the other has to change the law."

For a full discussion of this use of the word "equity," see Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. § 43-46 and notes; 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) pp. 3-19, §§ 3-23.

such an exercise of power by the court of chancery would be little short of legislation; and, as a matter of fact, the jurisdiction of the court of chancery was always bound by certain legal restrictions. In the very essence of equity, it took cognizance of many matters over which the law could not or would not exercise jurisdiction, and in such cases gave remedies where none were given by the common law. But where there was a direct and positive rule of law, equity was obliged to follow it. That equity is largely influenced by the law, and is concurrent with, rather than superior to, the latter, is evidenced by two of its important maxims; viz., "Equity follows the law;" and, "Between equal equities the law must prevail."<sup>1</sup>

3. The Modern Meaning of Equity as a System of Jurisprudence. — But it is in its third and most restricted sense that the word "equity" is used in modern jurisprudence; namely, a particular system of jurisprudence, administered in England by the courts of chancery, in some of the United States by separate courts called courts of chancery, and in others by the courts of common law, according to the course and practice of chancery. In some States, however, the difference between actions at law and in equity has been abolished. This jurisdiction, as administered in the courts of the United States, is based upon the jurisdiction and practice of the High Court of Chancery in England. It is there of gradual growth, the distinction between it and the common law being his-

1. Blackstone (3 Bl. Com. 429), after giving the definition quoted in the preceding note, says, "But the very terms 'court of equity' and 'court of law,' as contrasted with each other, are apt to confound and mislead us: as if one judged without equity, and the other was not bound by the law," proceeds showing conclusively that the courts of equity had no power to correct or mitigate the law; that a court of equity is governed by the same rules of interpretation as a court of law, and that courts of equity are bound by precedents. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. §§ 43-60; Adams, Equity (7th Am. ed.), Introduction.

To ascribe to the court of chancery such great power as is here intended, would be attended with great danger. Selden says (Table Talk, title "Equity"), Equity is a roguish thing. For law we have a measure, and know what to trust to. Equity is according to the conscience of him that is chancellor; and as that is larger or narrower, so is equity. 'Tis all one, as if they should make the standard for the measure, the chancellor's foot. What an uncertain measure would this be! One chancellor has a long foot, another a short foot, a third an indifferent foot. It is the same with the chancellor's conscience."

Francis, on the other hand, holding this idea of equity in its most extreme form, justifies it, as follows: —

"The judges in our courts of law are bound by their oaths to observe the strict rules of law; and, therefore, as upright judges, they must determine according to the known customs and statutes of the realm, although they are sensible, that even in so judging, they do an act of manifest injustice. On the other hand, the judge in a court of equity is not bound to suffer an act of injustice to prevail, though it be warranted by the forms and proceedings at law; and therefore he moderates the rigor of several penalties; relaxes the strict ties of unreasonable conditions; aids against unavoidable losses, clandestine frauds and the like; and thence it is that judgment shall be given in the same case against a man on one side of Westminster Hall, and quite contrary for him on the other; and yet both these agreeable to justice. The narrow-minded person who labors under his great affection for form and order, cannot see the beauty of this contrivance, whereby justice is produced from such jarring jurisdictions; and what neither strict form and order, or absolute latitude in judging, can separately produce, is effected by the excellent temperature of both together. This hath been judiciously compared to the mingling of two herbs, which of themselves are poison, but together make a wholesome medicine." Francis. Maxims of Eq., Preface to 1st ed.

toric rather than philosophic.<sup>1</sup> Hence, in order to a thorough understanding of the word, a study of the history of the rise of the High Court of Equity in England is absolutely essential.<sup>2</sup>

1. Abbott's Law Dict.; Haynes, Eq. § 1.

2. The definitions of equity, in the sense here intended, may be classified into two divisions. The first embraces those which define it by reference to the particular court, and to its historic character: the second includes those which attempt the definition by reference to the essential characteristics of equity, and without reference to the court.

Of the first class, the following are some of the best:—

"Equity is that system of justice which was administered by the High Court of Chancery in England, in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction." Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 1.

"A branch of remedial justice by and through which relief is afforded to suitors in courts of equity. . . . The study of equity jurisprudence, therefore, comprises an inquiry into the origin and history of the courts of equity; the distinctive principles upon which jurisdiction in equity is founded; the nature, character, and extent of the jurisdiction itself; its peculiar remedies; the rules and maxims which regulate its administration, its remedial process and proceedings; and modes of defence; and its rules of evidence and practice." Bouvier's Law Dict. (15th ed.) 596.

"Equity is the phrase commonly used to designate that portion of the law which is administered by the courts of chancery in Lincoln's Inn and at the Rolls. Equity in this sense is wider than law, and narrower than natural justice or natural equity, in the extent of the matters which are the subjects of its jurisdiction. Equity cannot be defined in its content otherwise than by an enumeration of its various subject-matters, being trusts, mortgages, administrations, etc." Brown's Law Dict. 139.

"A system of jurisprudence administered in courts of equity, supplemental to law, properly so called, and complementary of it,—the object of which is to supply the deficiencies of the courts of law, and render the administration of justice more complete, by affording relief where the courts of law, in consequence of imperfections in their machinery, or of their too rigid adherence to peculiar forms, are incompetent to give it, or to give it with effect, whereby certain classes of rights become excluded from the benefit of their protection."—Webster.

Story's definition, or rather description, distinguishes very clearly between common law and equity, saying,—

"In England and in the American States, which have derived their jurisprudence from that parental source, equity has a restrained and qualified meaning. The remedies for the redress of wrongs, and for the enforcement of rights, are distinguished into two classes: first, those which are administered in the courts of common law; and secondly, those which are administered in courts of equity. Rights which are recognized and protected, and wrongs which are redressed by the former courts, are called legal rights and legal injuries. Rights which are recognized and protected, and wrongs which are redressed by the latter courts, only are called equitable rights, and equitable injuries. The former are said to be rights and wrongs at common law, and the remedies therefore are remedies at common law; the latter are said to be rights and wrongs in equity, and the remedies therefore are remedies in equity. Equity jurisprudence may therefore properly be said to be that portion of remedial justice which is exclusively administered by a court of equity, as contradistinguished from that portion of remedial justice which is exclusively administered by a court of common law." 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) § 25.

Of the second class of definitions, the most complete is that of Smith (Man. of Eq. 13th ed. 3):—

"Equity jurisprudence in the specific and technical sense of the term, as contradistinguished from natural, abstract, and universal equity, and from law and the statutory jurisprudence of the courts, may be described to be a portion of justice or natural equity, not embodied in legislative enactments or in the rules of the common law, yet modified by a due regard thereto, and to the complex relations and convenience of an artificial state of society, and administered in regard to cases where the particular rights, in respect whereof relief is sought, come within some general class of rights enforced at law, or may be enforced without detriment or inconvenience to the community, but where, as to such particular rights, the courts of law could not, or originally did not, afford any relief or adequate relief, at least not without circuity of action, or multiplicity of suits, or did not make such restrictions, adjustments, compensations, qualifications, or conditions, as might be necessary in order to take due care of the rights of all who were interested in the property in litigation."

See also Wharton's Law Lex. (6th ed.) 344; 1 Rap. and L. Law Dict. 451; Chute, Eq. 4; Roberts, Prin. of Eq. p. 134.

II. Rise of the High Court of Chancery in England. — Although after the Norman Conquest the local tribunals which had existed under the rule of the Anglo-Saxon kings were retained, yet the supreme judicial power was vested in the king, assisted by his councils.<sup>1</sup> Of these there were two, — the Great Council, which, in the reign of Edward I., obtained the settled name of Parliament; and a council always attendant on the king, which acted as his adviser on matters political and judicial during the intervals between the sessions of the great council, but which appears to have formed part of the latter when in session.<sup>2</sup>

This council was composed of certain officers of the palace, as the constable, marshal, steward, chamberlain; the lord chancellor, whose peculiar business it was to keep the king's seal, and examine all such writs, grants, etc., as were to pass under that authority; and the lord high treasurer, the king's adviser in matters relating to the revenue. It was presided over by the king in person, or by some person delegated by him when absent, originally the chief justiciary of the kingdom.<sup>3</sup> This council, or curia regis, appears to have become, as early as the reign of Henry I., the regular court of ultimate appeal from all the courts of ordinary jurisdiction.<sup>4</sup> Out of this royal court, or council, courts of justice (properly so called) of original jurisdiction gradually arose.

The oldest court whose existence can be distinctly traced is that of the exchequer, which seems to have been set up by William the Conqueror as part of the curia regis, and regulated and reduced to its present order by Edward I., and intended to order the revenues of the crown, and to recover the king's debts and duties. At first the chief justiciary presided; but subsequently two knights, two clerks, and two men learned in the law, were assigned to hear and determine matters arising in this court. In time suits between

This last sense is the one which has been laid down in the few cases in which the word has been defined by the courts in our own country. Thus, the Supreme Court of Maine defines it thus: —

"Equity is not the chancellor's sense of moral right, or his sense of what is equal and just, but is a complex system of established law; and an equitable maxim — as equality is equity — can only be applied according to established rules." Savings Institution v. Makin, 23 Me. 360

So in Georgia "the word 'equity' in the oath administered to the special jury on appeals in common-law cases, under the statute of Georgia, is synonymous with law, meaning a system of jurisprudence governed by established rules, and bound down by fixed precedents. The special jury is sworn to try the cause according to equity and the opinion they entertain of the evidence, and not their opinion of equity, as well as of the evidence." Thornton v. Lane, 11 Ga. 459. And similarly in a later case. Equity as used in the Georgia relief act of 1868, providing that the jury, under certain circumstances, may reduce the plaintiff's claim, according to the equities between the parties, does not mean a whim of the jury, or mere mercy, but that fair and honest duty which each owes to the other, growing out of the contract, or arising between them since. Butler v. Weathers, 39 Ga. 524.

Courts of equity have no power to enforce any vague equities which involve no rules or interests protected by the rules of justice. Hendricks v. Toole, 29 Mich. 340.

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 3.

2. 1 Spence, Eq. 328; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 3.

3. 3 Bl. Com. 37; 1 Spence, Eq. 329; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 4.

4. 1 Spence, Eq. 107

subject and subject came to be brought before the Barons of the Exchequer, as they were called.<sup>1</sup>

The ambulatory character of the curia regis was found to be very burdensome on suitors, since, the court following the king, wherever he might be, they were compelled to travel to different parts of the kingdom to obtain redress. Therefore it was provided by Magna Charta that the common pleas should be held in some certain place, which was afterwards established at Westminster; and hence the Court of Common Pleas arose as a distinct tribunal.<sup>2</sup>

The county courts, which, as has been stated, were retained after the conquest, had originally jurisdiction in both civil and criminal cases. They were presided over by the sheriffs of the various counties, who were appointed by the king. It was customary to appoint these sheriffs from among the justices in attendance on the curia regis, and at times men learned in the law were sent down by special commission to hold these courts. "But one other step was necessary to constitute a distinct tribunal of general jurisdiction; namely, that, before the judge went down to try the cause, the exact matters in dispute should be settled, and the matters of law separated and determined. Hence the king's justices who met for this purpose, and who were afterwards despatched into the different counties to preside over the trial of issues thus made up, came to constitute a distinct tribunal, the King's Bench.<sup>3</sup>

The presiding officer of the curia regis was, until the office was discontinued in the reign of Henry III., the chief justiciary of England, the principal minister of state, the second man in the kingdom, and, by virtue of his office, guardian of the realm in the king's absence.<sup>4</sup>

The chancellor was the secretary of the king, the keeper of the great seal, having many high dignities aside from his judicial capacity in the court of chancery. In this court there were two tribunals,—the one ordinary, being a court of common law; the other extraordinary, being a court of equity.<sup>5</sup> The ordinary court is the more ancient. Its jurisdiction extended to cases in which the crown was concerned. From the office of this court issued the writs permitting subjects to bring their actions before the king's courts; for, in the ordinary course of justice, no suits could be brought in the king's court but such as concerned the king. Causes between subject and subject were originally to be determined in the hundred or county courts; but when dissatisfaction began to be felt with regard to the decisions of those tribunals, and suitors began to desire to have their causes determined by the

1. 3 Bl. Com. 33; 1 Spence, Eq. 102; 4. 3 Bl. Com. 38; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 5.

2. 3 Bl. Com. 38; Spence, Eq. 113; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 5.

3. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 6.

5. 3 Bl. Com. 47; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 7.

king's court, they applied to the office of the chancellor for a writ applicable to their cases, on obtaining which a fine was paid.<sup>1</sup>

But cases constantly arose in which there was no mode of redress in the ordinary courts; and as the council still retained its general supremacy, and had, even as early as the time of Henry I., taken cognizance generally of those cases which the ordinary judges were incapable of determining,<sup>2</sup> applications were frequently made to that body. In these cases the advice of the chancellor was generally followed, principally because, as out of his office the writs issued in common-law actions, he was naturally best able to tell whether any particular action came under the forms already in use, or called for the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction still held in reserve.

It is to be remembered that the jurisdiction of the ordinary courts was circumscribed. There was no elasticity in their practice. Certain strict and rigid forms existed; and where an action did not conform to one of these, there was no remedy. For these injuries the only resource left to the suitor was to seek his remedy from the council, in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction. The circumstances which tended to increase this extraordinary jurisdiction were of a twofold nature: first, those arising from the nature and practice of the courts of common law; namely, the "rigidity of their rules, by reason of the deference paid to precedents, and the refusal of the courts to follow that part of the Roman law which may be called equitable, as distinguished from that which is merely stricti juris;"<sup>3</sup> and secondly, those arising from the desire to increase the dignity of the office of chancellor.<sup>4</sup>

To meet the difficulty caused by the inflexibility of the common law in the matter of writs, the statute of Westminster the second was passed, authorizing the issuing of writs in consimile casu. The clerks of chancery, by their unwillingness or inability to avail themselves of the provisions of this statute to any considerable extent, and the strictness of the judges in the construction of it, prevented its extending the jurisdiction of the courts of common law so as to cover the whole field of remedial justice, and still rendered it necessary for the suitor to apply elsewhere for equitable relief.

These petitions, at first addressed to the council, were afterwards addressed to the chancellor alone; although just at what time the practice commenced, is a matter involved in doubt.<sup>5</sup>

1. 3 Bl. Com. 48; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 7.

2. 1 Spence, Eq. 330.

3. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 8.

4. 3 Bl. Com. 49; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 8; 1 Spence, Eq. 206.

5. Spence says, "In the reign of Edward I. we begin to observe unequivocal marks of an extraordinary jurisdiction exercised in the chancery in civil cases. It was a custom with this monarch to send certain of the petitions addressed to him praying extraordinary remedies, to the chancellor and master of the rolls, or the chancellor, or the master of the rolls alone, by writ under the privy seal (which was the usual mode by which the king delegated the exercise of his prerogative to the council), directing them to give such remedy as should appear consonant to honesty (honestati). There is

The ground for invoking the aid of the chancellor was, that there was no remedy in the courts of common law, either from the failure of those courts to recognize a right, or their inability to enforce it. This seems to have been the case under the Anglo-Saxon kings,<sup>1</sup> and is, at the present day, the ground for asking equitable relief. To the first class of cases, those in which the common-law courts failed to recognize a right, must be referred the subject of trusts; to the second class, those in which those courts were unable to enforce a right which they recognized, must be referred those numerous cases in which "the petitioner was unable to obtain redress, owing to the position or powerful connections of his adversary."<sup>2</sup> There were also numerous other cases which called for the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction of the chancellor.<sup>3</sup>

This growing jurisdiction of the chancellor was watched very jealously by the commons, who from time to time in the reigns of Richard II., Henry IV., Henry V., and Henry VI., presented petitions complaining of the encroachments of the chancellor on the domains of the common law, and inveighing against the writ reason to believe that this was not a novelty. Considering what was the constitution of the council, great inconvenience and uncertainty must have resulted from leaving the correction and extension of the law in civil cases to such a tribunal; though it would appear from an ordinance issued in 8 Edward I., that the chancellor was not necessarily the person to whom the exercise of the prerogative of grace, even in matters purely civil, was committed. When the chancellor administered relief independently of the council, it was by express delegation from the king, and given, as it would seem, by the advice of the council."

<sup>1</sup> Spence, Eq. 335.

Bispham, — Prin. of Equity (4th ed.), 10, — after quoting the ordinance mentioned by Spence, continues as follows: "A more direct recognition of the chancellor as the proper person by whom the extraordinary jurisdiction in matters of grace was to be administered, is contained in a writ of Edward III., addressed to the sheriffs of London, whereby suitors are specially enjoined to prosecute those affairs which are of grace before the chancellor or the keeper of the privy seal. In this reign the court of chancery ceased to follow the king."

"The natural consequences of these efforts on the part of the king to delegate this branch of judicial authority to the chancellor, would be that petitions for relief would come in time to be addressed directly to that officer. This result, in fact, shortly followed; and in the reign of Richard II. the practice of presenting a petition to the chancellor in the first instance was firmly established."

<sup>1</sup> 1 Spence, Eq. 77.

<sup>2</sup> Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 11.

<sup>3</sup> The following cases, taken from the chancery calendar, are cited by Bispham — Prin. of Equity (4th ed.), 11 — "as illustrative of the nature and extent of the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court of Chancery during the period which extended from the termination of the reign of Edward III. to the reign of Henry VIII.: Specific performance of a contract; specific delivery of a ship and cargo wrongfully detained (which appears to have been by virtue of the former jurisdiction of the chancellor in admiralty, long since obsolete); delivery for cancellation of documents obtained by force; relief against a forged power of attorney; injunction to restrain a nuisance, said nuisance being the stoppage of a water-course; for an injunction to stay proceedings at law; to recover deeds and other evidence, unjustly retained by the defendant in his possession; for permission to go on with a suit at law from which the plaintiff had been restrained by an injunction; because the plaintiff is disturbed in his manor by the defendant falsely claiming an annuity charged on the land; to restrain a defendant from the use of witchcraft; to assign dower to a poor widow; because the defendant had, through envy, thrown down the plaintiff's house; for relief against maintenance; for quiet possession; for discovery; to set aside a conveyance obtained from the complainant while intoxicated; for tithes; to restrain harassing litigation; to set aside a release obtained by a trick, and to enjoin the defendant from using it in an action at law.

of subpoena; but under the support of the council, and under the shield of their clerical character, the chancellors persisted in upholding this branch of the prerogative.<sup>1</sup>

III. Jurisdiction of the Courts of Equity. — 1. Generally. — The jurisdiction of the courts of equity has been remodelled in England by statute; and in the courts of most of the States of the United States, as well as in the federal courts, it depends upon special statutory enactments.<sup>2</sup>

In general it may be said, however, that equity will not take jurisdiction where a plaintiff has a complete and adequate remedy at law.<sup>3</sup> Accordingly, a court of equity will not take jurisdiction

1. 1 Spence, Eq. 343; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 17.

In the reign of James I. arose that notable dispute between Lord Ellesmere and Sir Edward Coke, at that time chief justice of the Court of King's Bench. "An action was tried before Coke in which the plaintiff lost the verdict in consequence of one of his witnesses being artfully kept away. He then had recourse to the chancery to compel the defendant to answer on his oath, which the latter refused to do, and was committed for contempt. Coke then had indictments preferred against the parties to the bill, their counsel and solicitors, for suing in another court after judgment obtained at law, which was alleged to be contrary to the statute of præmunire." The matter was brought before the king, was by him referred to his counsel for advice and opinion, who reported so strongly in favor of the courts of equity, that the king gave judgment in their behalf. The Earl of Oxford's Case, 1 Ch. Rep. 1; s. c., 2 Lead. Cases Eq. 504; 3 Bl. Com. 53; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 17. After that time there was no interference with the jurisdiction of the court of chancery until the entire constitution of the English courts was changed by the Supreme Court Judicature Act. 36 & 37 Vict. ch. 66; L. R. 8 Stat. 306.

2. See infra, § 3 (4), and notes.

3. Remedy at Law. — Knight v. Ashland, 61 Wis. 246; Denison Co. v. Robinson Co., 74 Me. 116; Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Hume, 59 Tex. 47; Perkins v. Hendryx, 23 Fed. Rep. 418; Sultan of Turkey v. Tool Co., 23 Fed. Rep. 572; McAlpine v. Tourtelotte, 24 Fed. Rep. 69; Jenkins v. Hannan, 26 Fed. Rep. 657; Allen v. Halliday, 28 Fed. Rep. 261; M., etc., R. Co. v. Woodruff, 26 Ark. 649; Seago v. Harrison, 42 Ga. 189; Huff v. Ripley, 58 Ga. 11; Cavedo v. Billings, 16 Fla. 261; Youngblood v. Youngblood, 54 Ala. 486. But compare Smith v. Griswold, 6 Oregon, 440.

And particularly where questions as to a married woman's separate estate, specific performance, the execution of trusts, or the prevention of frauds, are involved, a suit is properly brought in equity. Bolman v. Overall (Ala.), 2 So. Rep. 624.

So even if fraud is charged. Green v. Spaulding, 76 Va. 411; Youngblood v. Youngblood, 54 Ala. 486; Huff v. Ripley, 58 Ga. 11. But compare Smith v. Griswold, 6 Oreg. 440.

Adequacy. — The remedy at law must be complete and adequate. Hartford v. Chipman, 21 Conn. 488; Scott v. Scott, 33 Ga. 102; Church v. Church, 26 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 72.

The adequate remedy at law which is the test of the jurisdiction in the federal courts, is that which existed when the Judiciary Act of 1789 was adopted, unless subsequently changed by act of Congress; and hence a change in the State laws creating a remedy at law in cases of the nature of a bill of quia timet, cannot of itself curtail the equity jurisdiction of the federal courts in such cases. McConihay v. Wright, 121 U. S. 201.

In Hunt v. Dantorth, 2 Curt. (U. S. C. C.) 592, it was held that the provision in the judiciary act (1 Stat. at Large, 82, § 16), that a suit in equity shall not be sustained when there is a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law, is only declaratory of what would otherwise be held in equity. And in this case it was further held that a feme covert has not such a remedy at law to recover money held for her separate use.

The remedy at law must be as practical and efficient to the ends of justice and its prompt administration as the remedy in equity, to take away the plaintiff's right to the latter in a federal court. Bunce v. Gallagher, 5 Blatchf. (U. S.) 481.

That the same rule applies in the courts of the several States, see Wilter v. Arnett, 8 Ark. 57; McDaniels v. Lee, 37 Mo. 204; Morris v. Thomas, 17 Ill. 112.

Equitable jurisdiction does not depend on the want of a common-law remedy; for, while there may be such a remedy, it may be inadequate to meet all the requirements of a given case, or to effect complete justice between the parties. Hence, of cases arising out of torts,<sup>1</sup> to prevent a mere trespass,<sup>2</sup> in matters of crime,<sup>3</sup> of questions of damages pure and simple,<sup>4</sup> and many other similar cases.<sup>5</sup> But where the jurisdiction has once been properly acquired by a court of equity, it will retain the case, and settle matters between the parties which do not afford original ground of jurisdiction.<sup>6</sup> And it may be said in general the exercise of chancery powers must often depend upon the sound discretion of the court. Appeal of Brush Electric Light Co., 114 Pa. St. 574.

1. Torts.—Meres v. Chrisman, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 422; Brown v. Wabash Ry. Co., 96 Ill. 297.

2. Trespass.—Bank v. Debolt, 1 Ohio St. 591; Foundry v. Ryall, 62 Cal. 416; Scott v. Means, 80 Ky. 460; Kennedy v. Guise, 62 Ga. 171.

3. Crime.—State v. Uhrig, 14 Mo. App. 413. In this case the court refused to restrain the keeping of an unlicensed dram-shop, although a public nuisance.

4. Damages.—Stanford v. Lyon, 37 N. J. Eq. 94.

And this is true, even though the plaintiff might have to resort to equity for a satisfaction of his judgment, if he should obtain one. Brown v. Wabash Ry. Co., 96 Ill. 297.

So a court of equity has no jurisdiction of a claim for damages, although such claim may have been introduced in an action for an account. Osborne v. O'Reilly, 42 N. J. Eq. 467.

And where damages are the sole object of the bill, equity has refused to take cognizance of a suit for damages arising out of fraud. Ferson v. Sanger, Daveis (U. S.), 252.

But where other relief is sought by the bill, which can be obtained only in equity, and damages are claimed as incidental to the relief asked, equity will proceed to determine the whole cause. Ferson v. Sanger, Daveis (U. S.), 252; White v. Fratt, 13 Cal. 521.

5. Other Cases.—The court of chancery will not entertain a suit brought by the assignee of a debt or chose in action which is a mere legal demand, unless special circumstances make it necessary to prevent a failure of justice. Bank v. Mumford, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 596.

So insolvency alone is no ground for equitable interference. Heilman v. Canal Co., 37 Pa. St. 100.

A court of equity will not take jurisdiction of a bill for the mere purpose of settling disputed boundaries. Wolcott v. Robbins, 26 Conn. 236; Doggett v. Hart, 5 Fla. 215; Dickerson v. Stott, 8 N. J. Eq. 294; Topp v. Williams, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 569; Bresler v. Pitts, 58 Mich. 347.

Of a bill against a bona fide purchaser, Behn v. Young, 21 Ga. 207.

Where habeas corpus is an adequate remedy in the question as to the custody of a child. Massee v. Snead, 29 Ga. 51.

For a debt for goods sold and delivered. Coquillard v. Suydam, 8 Blackf. (Ind.) 24.

To annul or revoke charters. Turnpike Co. v. Jewell, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 140.

To create liens on real estate to secure debts established against the person. Perkins v. Perkins, 16 Mich. 161.

Of a suit to declare a forfeiture of real estate for breach of condition subsequent. Raley v. Umatilla County (Oregon), 13 Pac. Rep. 890.

To enforce merely the title to land. Lanier v. Alison, 31 Fed. Rep. 100. And see Leonard v. Hart (N. J.), 7 Atl. Rep. 865.

Of a suit for the recovery of damages sustained by the plaintiff through a fraudulent conspiracy to cheat him out of his interest in an original invention. Ambler v. Choteau, 107 U. S. 586.

Of partition between tenants in common land, whereof partition can be made at law. Husband v. Aldrich, 135 Mass. 317.

6. Jurisdiction once attached retained.—Hawley v. Simons (Ill.), 14 N. E. Rep. 7; Pool v. Docker, 92 Ill. 501; Blakey v. Blakey, 9 Ala. 391; Pearson v. Darrington, 21 Ala. 169; Martin v. Tidwell, 36 Ga. 332; Keeton v. Spradling, 13 Mo. 321; Sounder's Appeal, 57 Pa. St. 498; Sanborn v. Kittredge, 20 Vt. 632; Barnes v. Dow, 59 Vt. 530; McMurray v. Van Gilder, 56 Iowa, 605; Bouldin v. Reynolds, 50 Md. 171.

A court of equity will, therefore, decide all questions of law in the controversy before it, and will not give the party leave to bring an action, where it entertains no reasonable doubt on the legal question. Dodge v. Pond, 23 N. Y. 69.

But this principle has never been adopted by the court of chancery in New Jersey. Little v. Cooper, 10 N. J. Eq. 273. And accordingly in that State, where, after the dissolution of an injunction, the facts alleged to give jurisdiction to a court of equity are not proved, the jurisdiction of the court over all questions properly of law, which remain in the case, is lost. Little v. Cooper, 11 N. J. Eq. 224. But compare the later cases of Trotter v. Hecksher, 42 N. J. Eq. 254; and Collins v. Colley (N. J.), 11 Atl. Rep. 118; which, though they do not that equity will not interfere after judgment at law, except upon some special equitable ground.<sup>1</sup> in terms overrule the cases first cited, are certainly inconsistent with them.

And an action of a purely legal nature will not be retained for the sole purpose of giving damages which the plaintiff does not demand. Stevenson v. Buxton, 15 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 352; McFarlan v. Morris Canal & Banking Co., 34 N. J. Eq. 369. But compare Barlow v. Scott, 24 N. Y. 40; Chambers v. Cannon, 62 Tex. 693.

So equity has jurisdiction to enforce the performance of a contract to deliver a policy of insurance, and, having taken jurisdiction for that purpose, will, in case there has been a loss or death, retain it for the purpose of decreeing payment of the policy. Hebert v. Ins. Co., 8 Sawyer (U. S.), 198. And see Hayden v. Snow, 14 Fed. Rep. 70.

And when the pleadings in an action present an equitable issue, and equity has taken cognizance of the case, it will not refuse to grant equitable relief, though it appears from the facts found on the trial that a remedy could have been had in an action at law. Whiting v. Root, 52 Iowa, 292.

It has also been decided that a court of chancery may, in the exercise of its general jurisdiction, take upon itself the administration of estates. In doing so, it will take the entire administration into its hands, and administer the estate, as provided in the statute, modified in some cases by the principles of equity. But this jurisdiction will not be taken except in extraordinary cases. Wood v. Johnson, 13 Ill. App. 548.

On the same principle, where a suit to foreclose a chattel mortgage is properly cognizable in a court of equity, a party who claims to be the owner of a part of the property mortgaged may intervene in the suit, though he would have a remedy in an action at law. Osborne v. Barge, 30 Fed. Rep. 805.

1. Judgment at Law.—Equity, therefore, will not interfere to relieve against a judgment at law where the party seeking relief has been guilty of laches. Howell v. Motes, 54 Ala. 1; Barber v. Rukeyser, 39 Wis. 590; Richmond v. Robinson, 24 Gratt. (Va.) 548. Nor merely because the judgment at law is inequitable. Stinnett v. Bank of Mobile, 9 Ala. 120. Nor because of irregularities in the proceedings of the court of law. Shepard v. Akers, 3 Tenn. Ch. 215; Glenn v. Maguire, 3 Tenn. Ch. 695; Thompson v. Meek, 3 Sneed (Tenn.), 271. Accordingly, in Stinnett v. Bank of Mobile, 9 Ala. 120, it was held that, while a court of equity will not grant relief against a judgment at law merely because it is inequitable, it may so relieve when he shows the exercise of ordinary diligence to discover the defence, or that he was prevented from employing such diligence by fraud, accident, or the act of the opposite party, unmixed with fault or negligence on his part. And see Cairo, etc., R. Co. v. Titus, 27 N. J. Eq. 102.

So in Endicott v. Penny, 22 Miss. (14 Sm. & M.) 144, it was held that if after judgment at law, the party against whom it was rendered apply for relief to equity, and the defence be of such a character that a court of equity would have had original jurisdiction, concurrently with a court of law, the neglect of the party to avail himself of the defence at law will not oust the jurisdiction of chancery, if the defendant answer over to the merits, and neglect to rely on the judgment at law, by demurrer to the bill.

So it has been held that a court of chancery will not set aside a verdict on an issue at law, when the judge before whom the case was tried certifies that he is satisfied with the verdict. Prudden v. Lindsley, 31 N. J. Eq. 436.

A judgment rendered without jurisdiction is void, and may be attacked collaterally, in any proceeding in which its validity may be called in question. It is clearly within the jurisdiction of courts of equity to enjoin or vacate such judgments. Follansbee v. South American Mortgage Co., 7 Ill. App. 486.

Equity will relieve against an inequitable judgment at law, where the judgment defendant was ignorant, pending the legal action, of the facts showing such judgment to be contrary to equity; or they could not have been set up as a defence; or he was prevented from availing himself of them by fraud, accident, or the acts of the other party, without negligence or fault on his own part. Barber v. Rukeyser, 39 Wis. 590.

And the decision of the secretary of the interior, upon mixed questions of law and fact properly presented for his decision, cannot be reviewed in a court of equity, fraud or mistake not being alleged. Sparks v. Brown, 2 Wash. Ter. 426.

Where, however, even after a judgment at law, there is nothing in the record adjudging the order of liability as between the defendants, equity may inquire into that order, so as to fix the rights of the debtors between themselves, and may re-adjust them in a suit directed to that end. Winham v. Crutcher, 3 Tenn. Ch. 666.

But compare Tutwiler v. Lane (Ala.), 3 So. Rep. 104, where it is held that the court had no jurisdiction to correct mistakes of a court of law, which might have been reviewed on appeal.

2. Jurisdiction in England. — Supreme Court Judicature Act. — The system of two sets of courts, administering justice on so widely differing, and often conflicting, rules, has been abolished in England by the Supreme Court Judicature Act of Aug. 5, 1873,<sup>1</sup> which consolidated the courts which were then separately existing into one Supreme Court of Judicature, and provides that equitable relief shall be administered therein as it was in the court of chancery before the passage of the act, thereby making the principles of justice, as administered in the latter court, to pervade the whole mass of English jurisprudence.<sup>2</sup>

3. Jurisdiction of the Federal Courts. — Under the Constitution<sup>3</sup> the judicial power of the United States extends to all cases in law and equity arising under the Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or to be made, under their authority.<sup>4</sup>

And also Simon v. Townsend, 27 N. J. Eq. 302, where it was held that a defendant to an action at law, who, by pleading therein, has submitted himself to the common-law tribunal, does not thereby forfeit his claim to relief in equity.

1. 36 & 37 Vict. ch. 66; L. R. 8 Stat. 306.

2. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 19.

The act went into effect Nov. 2, 1874. It provided that, after that time, "the High Court of Chancery of England, the Court of Queen's Bench, the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, the Court of Exchequer, the High Court of Admiralty, the Court of Probate, the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, and the London Court of Bankruptcy, shall be united and shall constitute . . . one Supreme Court of Judicature in England" (§ 3).

The court consists of two divisions, "Her Majesty's High Court of Justice," and "Her Majesty's Court of Appeal" (§ 4). The number of judges of the former is not to exceed twenty-one (§ 5). The court of appeal was to consist of five ex officio judges, "and also so many ordinary judges (not exceeding nine at any one time) as her majesty shall from time to time appoint." The ex officio judges are the lord chancellor, the lord chief justice of England, the master of the rolls, the lord chief justice of the common pleas, and the lord chief baron of the exchequer. ("By statute 38 & 39 Vict. c. 77 [1875]; L. R. 10 Stat. 759, the constitution of the court of appeal was changed, and that tribunal was made to consist of the five ex officio judges already named, and as many ordinary judges, not exceeding three, as should be from time to time appointed. By the act of 1876 [39 & 40 Vict. c. 59], § 15, L. R. 11 Stat. 384, three additional judges of appeal may be appointed, and an appeal lies from the court of appeal to the House of Lords. The positions of lord chief justice of the common pleas, and lord chief baron of the exchequer, are now abolished." Bispham's Eq. [4th ed.] 19, note.)

The act further provides (§ 24) that in every civil cause commenced in the high court of justice, law and equity shall be administered by the courts according to certain rules laid down.

(1) If any plaintiff or petitioner claims to be entitled to any equitable estate or right, or to relief, upon any equitable ground, or to any relief founded upon a legal right, the "said courts respectively, and every judge thereof, shall give to such plaintiff or petitioner such and the same relief as ought to have been given by the court of chancery in a suit or proceeding for the same or the like purpose properly instituted before the passing of this act."

(2) "If the defendant claims to be entitled to any equitable estate or right, or to relief upon any equitable ground, . . . or alleges any ground of equitable defence, . . . the said courts respectively, and every judge thereof, shall give to every equitable estate, right or ground of relief so claimed, and to every equitable defence so alleged, such and the same effect by way of defence against the claim of such plaintiff or petitioner as the court of chancery ought to have given if the same or like matters had been relied on by way of defence in any suit or proceeding instituted for the same or like purpose before the passing of this act."

§§ 3-7 inclusive direct the court to recognize equitable titles and rights, and to substantially apply equitable remedies.

3. Art. iii. § 2.

4. The equity jurisdiction of the courts of the United States is derived from the Constitution and laws of the United States and their power, and rules of decision are the same in all the States. Noonan v. Lee, 2 Black. (U. S.) 499.

The federal courts, therefore, have equity jurisdiction, as thus conferred, subject to further statutory regulations. In reference to chancery practice, the Supreme Court has provided that the practice of the English High Court of Chancery shall form the basis of the equity practice of the courts of the United States.<sup>1</sup> But this jurisdiction is not to be exercised in either of the courts of the United States in any case where a plain, adequate, and complete remedy may be had at law.<sup>2</sup>

1. Eq. Rule 90.

2. Rev. Stat. U. S. § 723, p. 137. But this enactment is merely declaratory of the existing law. Boyce v. Grundy, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 210. See Bispham's Prin. of Eq. (4th ed.) 21, and note. The language "plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law," has been held to refer to the common law, and not to the statutes of the States. Gordon v. Hobart, 2 Sum. 401; Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. (U. S.) 331. But to prevent the jurisdiction of the courts of equity, the remedy at law must be speedy, practical, and efficient. Wright v. Ellison, 1 Wall. (U. S.) 16; Grand Chute v. Winegar, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 355; Hungerford v. Sigerson, 20 How. (U. S.) 156; Oelrichs v. Spain, 15 Wall. (U. S.) 211. If the remedy at law can only be made available by a multiplicity of actions, a bill may be filed in equity. Garrison v. Memphis Ins. Co., 19 How. (U. S.) 812. See Field's Federal Courts, 433, note.

District Courts.—The judiciary act and its supplements give the district courts of the United States jurisdiction of all suits in equity to enforce the lien of the United States upon any real estate for any internal revenue tax, or to subject to the payment of any such tax any real estate owned by the delinquent, or in which he has any right, title, or interest; and of all suits at law or in equity authorized to be brought by any person to redress the deprivation, under color of any law, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage of any State, of any right, privilege, or immunity, secured by the Constitution of the United States, or of any right secured by any law of the United States to persons within the jurisdiction thereof. Rev. Stat. U. S. § 563, pp. 94, 95.

Circuit Courts, Original.—The circuit courts have original jurisdiction of all suits of a civil nature at common law or in equity, where the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, exceeds the sum or value of five hundred dollars, and an alien is a party, or the suit is between a citizen of the State where suit is brought, and a citizen of another State, of all suits in equity where the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, exceeds the value of five hundred dollars, and the United States are petitioners; of all suits at law or in equity arising under any act providing for revenue from imports or tonnage, except civil causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, and seizures on land or on waters not within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, and except suits for penalties and forfeitures; of all causes arising under any law providing internal revenue, and of all causes arising under the postal laws; and of all suits at law or in equity arising under the patent and copyright laws of the United States. Rev. Stat. U. S. § 629, pp. 109, 110.

Circuit Court, Appellate.—The appellate jurisdiction of the circuit court is as follows: "From all final decrees of a district court in causes of equity, . . . where the matter in dispute exceeds the sum or value of fifty dollars, exclusive of costs, an appeal shall be allowed to the circuit court next to be held in such district, and such circuit court is required to receive, hear, and determine such appeal." Rev. Stat. (U. S.) § 631, p. 112.

Such an appeal must be made within one year, unless the party entitled to prosecute it is an infant, non compos mentis, or imprisoned, when such writ of error may be taken within one year exclusive of the term of such disability. Rev. Stat. § 635, p. 112. And on such appeal, copies of proofs, and of such entries and papers on file as may be necessary, may be certified up to the appellate court. Rev. Stat. U. S. § 632, p. 112.

Circuit and District Courts open as Courts of Equity.—Both the circuit and district courts as courts of equity are always open for the purpose of filing any pleading, of issuing and returning mesne and final process, and of making and directing all interlocutory motions, orders, rules, and other proceedings preparatory to the hearing on their merits of all causes pending thereon; and any judge of either court may, upon reasonable notice to the parties, make in chambers, or at the clerk's office, in vacation as well as term, all such process, commissions, orders, rules, and other proceedings, whenever the same are not grantable, of course, according to the rules and practice of the court. Rev. Stat. U. S. § 574, p. 101; § 638, p. 113.

Supreme Court.—An appeal shall be

4. Jurisdiction of the Courts of the Several States.—In considering the equity powers and jurisdiction of the courts of the several States, the States of the Union may be divided into three groups or classes. The first embraces those in which distinct courts of chancery exist, and includes New Jersey, Kentucky, Delaware, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Vermont, Virginia, and Arkansas.<sup>1</sup> The second includes those States in which allowed to the Supreme Court from all final decrees of any circuit court, or of any district court acting as a circuit court in cases of equity, . . . where the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, exceeds the sum or value of two thousand dollars; and the Supreme Court is required to receive, hear, and determine such appeals. Rev. Stat. U. S. § 692, p. 128.

But from any final decree in equity of circuit or district courts, in cases touching copyrights or patent rights, and in cases brought on account of the deprivation of any right, privilege, or immunity secured by the Constitution of the United States, or of any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States, the Supreme Court may exercise appellate jurisdiction without regard to the sum or value in dispute. Rev. Stat. § 699, p. 130.

1. The classification is that of Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) § 15. This and the following note are based upon, and largely taken from, Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 23-28.

States in which Separate Chancery Courts exist.—New Jersey.—In New Jersey a court of chancery is created by art. vi. sec. i. of the constitution; and sec. iv. of the same article provides that "the court of chancery shall consist of a chancellor." In 1871 the office of vice-chancellor was created, and in 1881 the appointment of a second vice-chancellor was authorized. P. L. 119. See Rev. Stat. N. J. 1877, pp. 104-127, and Supplement to Rev. Stat. of 1877, pp. 85-91.

Kentucky.—In Kentucky, courts of chancery are established in certain districts. Gen. Stats. of Kentucky, 1881, pp. 295-299.

Delaware.—In Delaware the constitution, by article vi. secs. 1, 2, and 5, provides that there shall be a chancellor of the State, and that he shall hold the court of chancery.

By the Revised Code, 1874, the court of chancery shall have full power to hear and decree all matters and causes in equity, and the proceedings shall be as heretofore, by bill, answer, and other proper pleadings; and the chancellor shall have power to issue subpoenas, and all other process to compel defendants to answer suits there, to award commissions for taking answers and examining witnesses, to grant injunctions for staying suits at law, and to prevent waste, as there may be occasion, according to the course of chancery practice in England, with powers to make orders and award process, and do all things necessary to bring causes to hearing, and to enforce obedience to decrees in equity by imprisonment of the body or sequestration of lands.

Provided, that the chancellor shall not have the power to determine any matter wherein sufficient remedy may be had by common law or statute before any other court or jurisdiction of this State; but where matters determinable at common law shall be brought before him in equity, he shall remit the parties to the common law; and when matters of fact, proper to be tried by a jury, shall arise in any cause depending in chancery, the chancellor shall order such facts to trial by issue at the bar of the Superior Court. Chap. 95, sec. 1, p. 568. See also Stats. of 1883, pp. 511, 512.

Tennessee.—In Tennessee, by the Constitution of 1870, art. 6, sec. 1, the judicial power of the State is vested "in one Supreme Court, and in such circuit, chancery, and other inferior courts as the legislature shall from time to time ordain and establish." The chancery courts are held by the chancellor.

They have original exclusive jurisdiction of all cases of an equitable nature where the debt or demand exceeds fifty dollars, unless otherwise provided by this code, — Code of Tennessee (Milliken & Vertrees, 1884), sec. 5023, — and all the powers incident to a court of equity, sec. 5022; to aid a creditor, by judgment or decree, to subject the property of the defendant which cannot be reached by execution to the satisfaction of the judgment or decree under the provisions of the code, sec. 5025; to set aside fraudulent conveyances in certain cases, sec. 5034.

They have concurrent jurisdiction over the persons and estates of idiots, lunatics, and other persons of unsound mind, sec. 5041; over the persons and estates of infants, and of the appointment and removal of guardians, sec. 5042; of all civil actions triable at law, except for injuries to person, property, or character, involving unliquidated damages, sec. 5043; for the abatement and recovery of usury, sec. 5044; in all proceedings for divorce, sec. 5044; for chancery powers are exercised by the judges of the common-law courts, but according to the course and practice of chancery. These States are Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode partition of estates; for sales of estates by personal representatives, guardians, heirs, or tenants in common; for sales of lands of decedents at the instance of creditors, for the payment of debts; and for the allotment of dower, sec. 5045; in arbitration and agreed cases, sec. 5046; and, in some cases, in the appointment of administrators, sec. 5047.

Mississippi.—In Mississippi, it is provided by the constitution, that chancery courts shall be established in each county of the State, with full jurisdiction in all matters of equity, and of divorce and alimony; in matters testamentary, and of administration; in minors' business and allotment of dower; and in cases of idiocy, lunacy, and persons non compos mentis. Art. vi. sec. 16. And that the legislature shall divide the State into a convenient number of chancery districts. Chancellors shall be appointed in the same manner as the judges of the circuit courts. Art. vi. sec. 17, as amended by the Third Amendment.

These courts have, in addition to general equity powers, concurrent jurisdiction to change the names of those petitioning for it; to restrain the collection of taxes, levied, or attempted to be levied, without authority of law; to issue attachments, and to remove clouds upon title. Rev. Code, 1880, secs. 1829-1833.

Alabama.—Chancery courts are established by art. vi. sec. 1 of the constitution, and by sec. 7 are given original and appellate powers.

The powers and jurisdiction of courts of chancery extend,—

1. To all civil cases in which a plain and adequate remedy is not provided in other judicial tribunals.
2. To all cases founded on a gambling consideration so far as to sustain a bill of discovery, and grant relief.
3. To subject the equitable title or claim to real estate to the payment of debts.
4. To such other cases as may be provided for by law.

Chancellors may exercise the extraordinary jurisdiction granted to that office by the common law in cases of necessity, when adequate provision has not been made for its exercise by some other officer, or in other courts; and with the exceptions, limitations, and additions imposed by the laws of this State. Code of Alabama, 1886, secs. 720-721.

By the Code of 1886, courts of chancery have power to settle disagreements between connecting railroads, secs. 1166-1172; to dissolve corporations, and settle their affairs, secs. 1683-1693; to execute a power when a trustee with right of selection dies, leaving power unexecuted, sec. 1860; to assign dower to widow, sec. 1910; of a contest of a will after admission to probate, secs. 2000-2002; to decree divorces a vinculo, and from bed and board, secs. 2322-2340; to relieve infants from the disabilities of non-age, secs. 2357-2363; to decree custody and control of children in case of voluntary separation, secs. 2368-2369; to protect estates of intemperate persons, secs. 2502-2506; to enforce mechanics' liens, sec. 3048; to partition lands, sec. 3262; to issue writs of ne exeat, sec. 3498; of injunctions, secs. 3520-3533; to appoint receivers, secs. 3534-3535; to correct errors in settlements of personal representatives and guardians, secs. 3536-3538; of creditors' bills, secs. 3540-3546; and of trusts and trustees, secs. 3549-3584.

Vermont.—The Constitution, chap. ii. § 5, provides that the legislature may establish a court of chancery with such powers as are usually exercised by that court, or as shall appear for the interest of the Commonwealth.

Accordingly such a court is established, "There shall be a court of chancery, the powers of which shall be vested in a chancellor; and the powers and jurisdiction of such court shall be the same as those of the court of chancery in England, except as modified by the Constitution and laws of the State." Rev. Laws, 1880, § 695. And by § 698 it is provided that each judge of the Supreme Court shall be a chancellor throughout the State, and may exercise the power of a court of chancery.

Virginia.—In Virginia, although it properly belongs to the second class of States, there is a special chancery court for the city of Richmond, with exclusive jurisdiction as to the probate and recording of wills; trustees; recording of deeds, etc.; of all suits and proceedings cognizable by law in the circuit courts of the Commonwealth, except such as are specially cognizable in the circuit of Richmond; and it shall have all such powers as may be conferred upon the circuit courts of the Commonwealth, except as to matters of common law and criminal jurisdiction. Code of Va. 1887, § 3070. See also following note, Virginia.

Arkansas.—There is a similar state of affairs in Arkansas. Dig. of Stats. 1884, §§ 5398-5419. The constitution authorizes the legislature to establish separate chancery courts. Art. vii. sec. 15. See following note, Arkansas.

Island, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, Illinois, Texas, Florida, Michigan, Iowa, Arkansas, and Oregon, and the Territory of New Mexico.<sup>1</sup> The third class

1. States in which Equitable Relief is administered by Common Law Courts, under Equitable Forms.—Maine.—In Maine the judicial power is vested in the Supreme Judicial Court, and such other courts as the legislature shall from time to time establish. Const. art. vi. sec. 1.

The Supreme Judicial Court has jurisdiction as a court of equity in the following cases:—

1. For the redemption of estates mortgaged.

2. For relief against penalties and forfeitures, civil and criminal.

3. To compel the specific performance of written contracts.

4. For relief in cases of fraud, trusts, accident, or mistake.

5. In cases of nuisance or waste.

6. In cases of partnership and part owners.

7. The construction of wills and administration of trusts.

8. Discovery in the cases before named, and in cases where the power is especially given by statute.

9. For regulation of taxes by counties, townships, etc.

10. In suits for the redelivery of goods secreted so that they cannot be replevied; and bills by creditors to reach property that cannot be reached at law.

11. In all other cases where there is not a full and complete remedy at law. Rev. Stat. 1883, p. 627, sec. 6. See also p. 628.

Writs of injunction may be issued in cases of equity jurisdiction, and when specially authorized by statute. Rev. Stat. 1883, p. 632, sec. 32.

New Hampshire.—The constitution vests all judicial power in the General Court, giving it power to erect and constitute judicatories for all necessary purposes. Part Second, secs. 3, 4.

It is provided by statute that the Supreme Court shall have the power of a court of equity in all cases cognizable in such court, and may hear and determine according to the course of equity in cases of charitable uses, trusts, fraud, accident, or mistake; of the affairs of copartners, joint tenants or owners or tenants in common; of the redemption and foreclosure of mortgages; of the assignment of dower; of contribution; of waste or nuisance; of specific performance of contracts; of discovery, where discovery may be had according to the course of proceedings in equity; and in all other cases where there is not a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law, and such remedy may be had by proceedings according to the course of equity; and may grant writs of injunction whenever the same are necessary to prevent frauds or injustice.

When goods or chattels are unlawfully withheld from the owner, proceedings in equity may be had for a discovery, for a restoration of the property, and for such other relief as the nature of the case and justice may require.

When any estate, property, interest, right, or credit, legal or equitable, of a debtor against whom execution has been issued and returned unsatisfied, is alleged to be so holden that it cannot be reached to be taken on execution by levy or by suit on the judgment, that it has been conveyed by him in fraud of his creditors, or is held by others for his use, proceedings in equity may be had for a discovery and for a relief; and the court shall make proper decrees and orders, and issue proper process to compel a discovery, to prevent the transfer of such estate, property interest, right or credit, and to make application of so much thereof as in justice ought to be applied in satisfaction of the debt.

The provisions of the preceding section shall not apply to property exempt by statute, or to trust property where the trust has been created by a party other than the debtor, and the application would be inconsistent with the trust. General Laws, 1878, pp. 488, 489.

Massachusetts.—In Massachusetts the Supreme Judicial Court has original and exclusive jurisdiction of every original process, whether by bill, writ, petition, or otherwise, in which relief in equity is prayed for, except when a different provision is made; and may issue all general and special writs and processes required in proceedings in equity to courts of inferior jurisdiction, corporations and individuals, when necessary to secure justice and equity.

The court may hear and determine in equity all cases where the parties have not a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at common law; that is to say,—

Suits to redeem or foreclose mortgages; trusts; specific performance of contracts; suits to compel the redelivery of chattels withheld in such a manner that they cannot be replevied, contributions, and other cases of adjustment; suits between copartners, joint tenants and tenants in common, with authority to appoint receivers, and between joint trustees, co-executors, and co-administrators; waste and nuisance; accounts which cannot conveniently be adjusted at law; creditors' bills, fraud and convey-includes those in which the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity does not exist. The States are New York, North ances, in the nature of mortgages; accident and mistake; discovery; and full equity jurisdiction; according to the usage and practice of courts of equity in all other cases where there is not a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law. Public Statutes, 1882, p. 837, ch. 151, secs. 1-4.

And by act of 1883, — Acts and Resolves of Massachusetts, 1883, ch. 223, p. 510, — it is provided that the Superior Court shall have original and concurrent jurisdiction with the Supreme Judicial Court in all matters in which relief or discovery in equity is sought, and the proceedings are regulated.

Rhode Island. — The constitution vests the judicial power in one Supreme Court, and such other courts as may be established by law, and declares that chancery powers may be vested in the Supreme Court, but in no other court to a greater extent than is now allowed by law. Art. x. secs. 1, 2. And, by statute, the Supreme Court shall have exclusive cognizance of all suits and proceedings whatsoever in equity, with full power to make and enforce all orders and decrees therein, and to issue all process therefor according to the course of equity. Public Stat. 1882, title 25, ch. 192, secs. 8.

Connecticut. — All causes in equity where the matter in demand does not exceed five hundred dollars, shall be brought in the court of common pleas; or, if there be no court of common pleas in the county, then to the district court, if there be one having jurisdiction, or otherwise to the Supreme Court. Gen. Stat. Rev. 1875, p. 413, sec. 2. The Superior Court shall have jurisdiction of all suits in equity, which are not within the sole jurisdiction of other courts. Gen. Stat. Rev. 1875, p. 40, sec. 1, and p. 413, sec. 2. Courts having jurisdiction in equity shall proceed according to the rules, usages, and practice of chancery; and shall take cognizance only of such matters in which adequate relief cannot be had in the ordinary course of law. Gen. Stat. Rev. 1875, p. 413, sec. 5. Special provisions exist upon the subjects of accounts, p. 414, sec. 9; injunctions, pp. 477-479, secs. 1-15; receivers of corporations and partnerships, pp. 482, 483, secs. 1-7; and partition, p. 480, secs. 1-8.

Pennsylvania. — The constitution — art. v. sec. 20 — provides that the courts of common pleas shall have and exercise within their respective districts, subject to such changes as shall be made by law, such chancery powers as are now vested by law in the several courts of common pleas, or as may hereafter be conferred upon them. These powers had been conferred by several statutes. The act of 1836 — P. L. 789, Brightley's Purdon's Digest, 1883, p. 689 — conferred upon these courts the jurisdiction and powers of a court of chancery, so far as relates to —

The perpetuation of testimony;

The obtaining of evidence from places not within the State;

The care of the persons and estates of those who are non compos mentis;

The control, removal, and discharge of trustees, and the appointment of trustees, and the settlement of their accounts;

The supervision and control of all corporations other than those of a municipal character, and unincorporated societies or associations or partnerships;

The care of trust money and property, made liable to the control of said courts;

Discovery, interpleader, injunction to restrain acts contrary to law and prejudicial to the interests of the community and rights of individuals;

Specific relief when recovery in damage is inadequate. Various other statutes collected in 1 Br. Purds. Dig. 1883, pp. 691, 692, extend the jurisdiction to the following cases; viz., Fraud (actual or constructive); accident and mistake; account; dower; partition, p. 694, secs. 22-27; disputed boundaries, p. 695, secs. 28-30; corporation mortgages, p. 695, secs. 31-35; mines, p. 696, secs. 36-39; apportionment of wharfage and dockage, p. 697, secs. 40, 41; plank roads, p. 696, sec. 42; impurities in gas and water, P. L. 1881, 112; disposition of property of unincorporated societies, P. L. 1883, p. 133. The Supreme Court has no original jurisdiction save in cases of injunction where a corporation is a party defendant.

Maryland. — Art. 56, Const. of 1776, provides that "one person of integrity and sound judgment in the law be appointed chancellor." Subsequent statutes gave him the general powers and jurisdiction of the chancellor in England. See Dorsey's Laws of Maryland, 1840, vol. 3, pp. 2493-2546. The Constitution of 1851 provides — art. iv. sec. 8 — that the State shall be divided into eight judicial circuits, in each of which one person shall be elected as circuit judge, and that the said circuit judges, in their "respective circuits, shall have and exercise all the power, authority, and jurisdiction of the present court of chancery in Maryland." The Constitution of 1867 enlarges the number of circuit judges to three for each circuit, and confers upon the court "all the power, authority, and jurisdiction, original and appellate, which the circuit courts of this State now have and exercise, or which may hereafter be prescribed by law." Art.

Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, Missouri, Nevada, Nebraska, California, Colorado, Kansas, Lou-

iv. secs. 20, 21. See also Rev. Code Maryland, 1878, art. 65, secs. 1-108, pp. 629-651.

Virginia.—The circuit courts shall have original and general jurisdiction of all cases in chancery. . . . Code of Va. 1887, sec. 3058. The proceedings on the equity side are according to the course and practice of chancery, and the jurisdiction is based on that of the High Court of Chancery in England,—see Royall's Virginia Digest, title "Equity,"—and various equitable remedies are provided by statute. See Code of Va. 1887. And see previous note, Virginia.

West Virginia.—By the constitution,—art. viii. sec. 12,—the circuit courts of the State have jurisdiction of all cases in equity. The Code of 1887 confers on those courts, besides the general equity powers conferred by the constitution, special powers in the following cases; viz., To dissolve corporations, p. 499, sec. 57; to appoint receivers, p. 500, sec. 58; in suits for divorce, p. 598, secs. 7-13; of matters between guardians and wards, p. 657, sec. 13; of the estates of infants, lunatics, etc., p. 657, secs. 1-18; of transferring property outside of the State, p. 661, secs. 1-9; of the administration of real estate, p. 668, secs. 1-11; of trustees, p. 670, secs. 1-34.

Georgia.—By the Code of Georgia, of 1882,—secs. 3080, 3081,—equity jurisdiction is vested in the Superior Courts of the several counties, and established and allowed for the protection and relief of parties where, from circumstances, the operation of the general rules of law would be deficient in protecting from anticipated wrong, or relieving from injuries done. Many equitable maxims are made the subject of express enactment. Secs. 3083-3087, and 3090. Special provisions also exist in reference to discovery, secs. 3101-3104; perpetuation of testimony, secs. 3108-3111; accident and mistake, secs. 3116-3128; accounts and set-offs, secs. 3130-3141; administration of assets, secs. 3142-3154; charities, secs. 3155-3160; election, secs. 3161-3165; execution of powers, secs. 3166-3171; fraud, secs. 3172-3182; partition, secs. 3183-3185; specific performance, secs. 3186-3192; trusts and trustees, sec. 3193; injunction, sec. 3210-3225; ne exeat, secs. 3226-3231; bills quia timet, sec. 3232; of peace and of interpleader, secs. 3233-3237.

See also upon the subjects of the chancery powers of the courts in this State, Williams v. McIntyre, 8 Georgia, 34; Walker v. Morris, 14 Ga. 323; Rutherford v. Jones, 14 Ga. 521.

Illinois.—In Illinois the circuit courts have jurisdiction as courts of chancery,— Const. art. vi. sec. 12; Rev. Stat. 1887, p. 183, sec. 1,—and also the Superior Court of Cook County. Rev. Stat. 1887, p. 183, sec. 1. Elaborate regulations for practice in these courts are made by statute. See Rev. Stat. 1887, ch. 22, pp. 183, et seq. Special jurisdiction is given by the Rev. Stat. 1887, in cases of the creditors' bills, p. 193, sec. 49; bills to quiet title, p. 194, sec. 50; in partition, p. 1048, sec. 1; p. 1054, sec. 39; suits against stockholders, p. 332, sec. 25; contesting wills, p. 1536, sec. 7; dower, p. 522, sec. 19; enforcement of mechanics' lien, p. 927, sec. 4; enforcement of contract of deceased or insane person, p. 303, sec. 2; divorce, p. 545, secs. 4 & 6; account, p. 45, sec. 22, and a few other minor cases.

Texas.—Subject to certain limitations, the district courts are authorized to hear and determine any cause which may be cognizable by courts of law or equity, and to grant any relief which could be granted by either of such courts. Sayles, Civil Stats. 1888, art. 1122. See Voigtlander v. Brotze, 59 Tex. 286. As to the conflict between art. v. sec. 8 and art. v. sec. 16 of the constitution, in regard to the jurisdiction of county and district courts, see Railway Co. v. Rambolt, 67 Tex. 654. The jurisdiction of the county courts is similar to that of the district courts, the distinction being principally in the amount in controversy. Sayles, Civil Stats. 1888, art. 1169. And see Railway Co. v. Rambolt, 67 Tex. 654.

There are special statutes in regard to equity powers to subject property to execution, arts. 2288, 2296; in regard to receivers, art. 1470; injunctions, art. 2898; partition, art. 3490.

Florida.—The circuit courts shall have original jurisdiction in all cases of equity. Const. art. v. sec. 8.

By statute it is provided that no writ of injunction or ne exeat shall be granted until a bill be filed praying for such writ, except in the special cases in which such writs are authorized by the practice of the courts of the United States exercising equity jurisdiction. McClellan's Dig. 1881, p. 156, sec. 14.

The issuing of writs of injunction to stay proceedings at law, and of writs of ne exeat, is also made the subject of regulation. McClellan's Dig. p. 156, sec. 15; p. 157, sec. 18. Equity jurisdiction is also given to the circuit courts to restrain the sale of property legally exempt from forced sale; to set aside homestead exemptions, and exemptions of personal property, from forced sale; and to enjoin the sheriff from setting aside as exempt property that is not actually exempt. McClellan's Dig. p. 166, secs. 53-55.

isiana, and the Territories of Dakota, Idaho, Arizona, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, and Washington.<sup>1</sup>

Michigan.—In Michigan the office of chancellor is now abolished, and the several circuit courts of the State are constituted courts of chancery. Their powers and jurisdiction in and for the respective counties are co-extensive with the powers and jurisdiction of the court of chancery in England, with the exceptions, additions, and limitations created and imposed by the constitution and laws of this State. Howell's Annotated Stats. secs. 6592, 6593, & 6611. The court shall dismiss every suit concerning property, excepting suits between partners, and suits for the enforcement of mechanics' liens and of mortgages, where the matter in dispute shall not exceed a hundred dollars with costs. The court may also enforce mining options. How. Ann. Stat. sec. 6613. On the latter see also Acts of 1883, pp. 58 & 59. Jurisdiction is also given and regulated in the case of creditors' bills, discovery, set-off, receivers, bills to quiet title, and waste. How. Ann. Stat. secs. 6614, 6616, 6617, 6624, 6626, 7947; Alimony Laws, 1885, p. 169. Lien of taxes, Laws, 1885, 209.

Iowa.—In Iowa it is provided that judicial power shall be vested in the Supreme Court, district court, and such other courts inferior to the Supreme Court as the General Assembly may from time to time establish. Const. art. v. sec. 1.

The chancery jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is appellate only. Const. art. v. sec. 4.

The district courts are courts of law and equity. Const. art. v. sec. 6.

There are two kinds of action, — ordinary and equitable. The plaintiff may pursue his action by equitable proceedings in all cases where, before the adoption of the code, equity had jurisdiction, and must so proceed in all cases where jurisdiction was exclusive.

Action on a note, together with a mortgage or deed of trust for the foreclosure of the same, shall be by equitable proceeding; so of the action for mechanics' lien; so of the action for a divorce; but no cause of action, save for alimony, shall be joined therewith. Miller's Rev. Code, 1884, secs. 2507-2511.

Arkansas.—The legislature may establish chancery courts, but, until it does so, the circuit courts have equity jurisdiction. Const. art. vii. sec. 15. The jurisdiction and practice are regulated. Dig. of Stats. 1884, secs. 947-958; 6521-6526; 6544-6547. And see previous note, Arkansas.

Oregon.—In Oregon the enforcement or protection of a private right, or the prevention of or redress for any injury thereto, shall be obtained by a suit in equity in all cases where there is not a plain, adequate, and complete remedy at law. Gen. Laws, 1872, p. 189, sec. 1.

The courts are a supreme, circuit, and county courts, having general jurisdiction. Const. art. vii. secs. 1-15.

New Mexico.—In all the courts of this Territory, the common law, as recognized in the United States of America, shall be the rule of practice and decision. Comp. Laws, 1884, § 1823. Jurisdiction of partition is given to the district court, the proceeding to be by petition in chancery. Comp. Laws, 1884, §§ 2274-2281.

So of bills to quiet title, in which case the proceeding is to be conducted as other proceedings on the chancery side of the court, §§ 2214-2218. There are also provisions for the perpetuation of testimony, §§ 2111-2120.

1. States in which there is no Distinction between Actions at Law and Suits in Equity.

—New York.—The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, and the forms of those actions and suits, is abolished by Code of Civil Procedure, § 3339, Rev. Stat. N. Y. (Banks & Bro. 7th ed.) vol. 4, p. 693.

Temporary injunctions may be granted by order. Practice regulated, Code of Civ. Proc. §§ 602-630; Rev. Stat. N. Y. B. & Bro. 7th ed. vol. 4, pp. 119-123; receivers may be appointed, Code of Civ. Proc. §§ 713-716; Rev. Stat. N. Y. (Banks & Bro. 7th ed.) vol. 4, p. 139; and specific performance may be enforced, Code of Civ. Proc. §§ 1323 & 1874; Rev. Stat. N. Y. B. & Bro. 7th ed. vol. 4, pp. 266 & 375, by common-law forms of action.

North Carolina.—The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, and the forms of all such suits, is abolished by Const. art. iv. § 1.

The Code of 1883 provides for the granting of injunctions, §§ 338-346; appointment of receivers, §§ 379, 668-670, 494-497.

South Carolina.—The Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, establishes but one form of action for the enforcement of civil rights, § 89; and provides that in case of a conflict between the rules of common law and equity in regard to the same matter, the rules of equity shall prevail, § 453. The justices of the Supreme Court may issue writs of injunction, Gen. Stat. 1882, § 2093; and the probate court has jurisdiction in matters testamentary and of administration, minors' business, dower, idiots, etc., with appeals to the Circuit and Supreme Courts. Code of Civ. Proc. 1882, §§ 37, 55, 56.

Ohio.—There shall be but one form of action which shall be known as a civil action. Rev. Stat. 1884, § 4971. The court is to be regarded as a court of law or a court of equity, and the petition a declaration or a bill in chancery, according to the nature of the case. Hager v. Reed, 11 Ohio St. 626. And when the facts entitle a party to relief, the mere form of the action is disregarded. Neilson v. Fry, 16 Ohio St. 552; Jones v. Timmons, 21 Ohio St. 596. Rights and liabilities, legal and equitable, as distinguished from the mode of procedure, are unaffected. Dixon v. Caldwell, 15 Ohio St. 412.

Wisconsin.—Rev. Stat. 1878, § 2600, abolishes the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, and all difference in the forms of such actions and suits. But this has not abolished the essential differences between them. Bonesteel v. Bonesteel, 28 Wis. 245; Anderson v. Case, 28 Wis. 505.

Minnesota.—The district courts have original jurisdiction of all civil cases, both in law and equity. Const. art. vi. § 5. And by the Stats. of Minn. 1878, p. 707, § 1, the distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is abolished, and there is but one form of action for the enforcement and protection of private rights to be known as a civil action. By Stats. 1878, p. 633, § 2, the district courts have original jurisdiction in equity; and all suits or proceedings for equitable relief are to be commenced, prosecuted, and conducted to a final decision and judgment, by the like process, pleadings, trial, and proceedings, as in civil actions. By p. 633, § 3, the said courts have power, inter alia, to issue writs of injunction and ne exeat.

Indiana.—The distinction is abolished by Rev. Stat. 1881, § 249. But the rules of law, as to the rights of the parties, have not been changed thereby. Maltock v. Todd, 25 Ind. 128.

Missouri.—The various courts have jurisdiction in civil actions. There is but one form of civil action. Clark v. Clark, 86 Mo. 114. Equitable relief is, however, administered under statutory forms. Bauer v. Gray, 18 Mo. App. 164; Joyce v. Mur-naghan, 17 Mo. App. 11. As to injunctions, see Rev. Stat. 1879, §§ 2700–2722; receivers, §§ 428–431, 2358, 2359, 3660–3662, p. 3116.

Nevada.—The district courts have original, and the Supreme Court has appellate, jurisdiction in cases of equity. Const. art. v. §§ 4 & 6. There is, however, but one form of civil action. Comp. Laws 1873, § 1064.

Nebraska.—The district courts have both chancery and common-law jurisdiction.

Const. art. vi. § 9. The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity, and the form of such actions, is abolished, Code Civ. Proc. § 2; Comp. Stat. 1885, p. 629. Sec. 469 of this code, Comp. Stat. 1885, p. 683, provides that judgment may be given for or against one or more several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants; it may determine the ultimate rights of the parties on either side as between themselves, and it may grant to the defendant any affirmative relief to which he may be entitled. That the distinction between law and equity is not abolished, see Cropsey v. Wiggenghorn, 3 Neb. 108, 115; Wilcox v. Saunders, 4 Neb. 569, 587; and for a statement of the distinction, see Hall v. Vanier, 6 Neb. 85.

California.—There is but one form of civil action. Codes & Stats. of Cal. § 10307. Certain equitable remedies are provided for: injunctions, § 3199, §§ 8420–8423, §§ 10525–10529; partition, §§ 10752–10801; quieting title, §§ 10738–10744; receivers, §§ 10304, 10564–10569; specific performance, §§ 8384–8395.

Colorado.—The judicial power of the State, both as to matters of law and equity, is vested in a supreme court, district courts, county courts, justices of the peace, and such other courts as may be created by law. Const. art. vi. § 1. The code (of 1883) abolished all distinctions between legal and equitable actions, and substituted therefor the one action by complaint. The rules and principles of equity jurisprudence still obtain and apply in the adjudication of causes in their nature equitable, but equity practice, eo nomine, no longer exists. Blatchley v. Coles, 6 Colo. 82. And certain equitable maxims are enforced in the courts. Nutter v. O'Donnell, 6 Colo. 253.

Kansas.—There is but one form of civil action. Dassler's Comp. Laws, 1885, § 3803. Equitable relief is, however, administered under statutory forms. See Kansas Digest, Dassler. There are special provisions in regard to the perpetuation of testimony, Dassler's Comp. Laws, 1885, §§ 4199–4205; injunction, §§ 4047–4063; receivers, §§ 4064–4070; partition, §§ 4431–4446; specific performance, §§ 3842 and 2581; and some minor equitable rights and remedies.

Louisiana.—By the Code of Practice, art. 98, the proceedings in civil actions are ordinary, executory, and summary. By the Civil Code, art. 21, "In all civil matters where there is no express law, the judge is bound to proceed and to decide according to equity. To decide equitably, an appeal is to be made to natural law and reason, or received usages, where positive law is silent."

Dakota.—The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity is abolished

IV. Maxims in Equity.—Maxims in equity are general precepts or principles underlying the whole system of equity. They are of constant tacit and sometimes of express reference in most of the discussions of equity, and form a component part of its jurisprudence.<sup>1</sup>

The principal of these maxims are the following: Equity follows the law; Equity regards that as done which ought to have been done; Equity looks at the intent rather than at the form; Equality is equity; He who seeks equity must do equity; He who comes into equity must come with clean hands; Where there are equal equities, the first in time shall prevail; Where there are equal equities, the law must prevail; Equity aids the vigilant, not those who sleep on their rights; Equity imputes an intention to fulfil an obligation; Equity will not suffer a wrong to be without a remedy; Equity acts in personam; and, Equity acts specifically.<sup>2</sup> by Code of Civil Procedure, § 33. He that seeks equity must do equity, enacted in Civil Code, § 809.

Idaho.—Rev. Stat. 1887, § 4020, provides for the abolition of the distinction in form between actions at law and suits in equity, and that where there is a conflict between the rules of equity jurisprudence and the rules of the common law, with reference to the same matter, the rules of equity shall prevail.

Arizona.—Code of Civ. Proceed. 1887 provides that all civil suits in courts of record shall be commenced by complaint, § 649, and subsequent sections regulate the procedure. It also provides that rules of equity practice are to govern receivers, § 893; that the general principles of equity are applicable in injunctions, § 2144; and that partition by rules of equity is not to be affected by the statute, § 2399.

Wyoming.—The distinctions between actions at law and suits in equity is abolished. Rev. Stat. 1887, § 2360.

Montana.—There is but one form of civil action, Code Civ. Proceed. § 1, Rev. Stat. 1879, p. 41; § 231, p. 81, provides that judgment may be given for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, or one or more of several defendants, and it may, when the justice of the case demands it, determine the ultimate rights of the parties on each side as between themselves. There are in the Code of Civil Procedure special provisions as to injunctions, §§ 170-178; nuisance, waste, §§ 349-353; partition, §§ 364-396; specific performance, § 164, and 236-246; and receivers, §§ 221-226.

Utah.—There is but one form of civil action. Comp. Laws, 1876, p. 401, § 1. Jurisdiction is given in cases of injunctions, pp. 428-431; partition, pp. 330-33, 479-487.

Washington Territory.—There is but one form of civil action. Code 1881, § 2. Jurisdiction is given in cases of injunctions, §§ 153-173; receivers, 193-199; partition, 552-599; waste and nuisance, 600-604; nuisance, 605-608; specific performance, 623-634; ne exeat, 636-643.

1. Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 60; 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 103. The latter author says (p. 104), "The principles in themselves are of the highest importance to an accurate understanding of equity as a whole; they are the unfailing fountains whence flow the various streams of right and justice; the perennial sources of practical rules applicable to the ever-changing events of social life; the foundation-stones upon which the beautiful structure of equity has been erected. The student who has made all these principles a part of his mental habit, who has, as it were, incorporated them into his very intellectual being, has already mastered the essence of equity, and has made the acquisition of its particular rules an easy and delightful labor." And again (vol. 1, p. 390), "These maxims are, in the strictest sense, the principia, the beginnings out of which has been developed the entire system of truth known as equity jurisprudence. They are not the practical and final doctrines or rules which determine equitable rights and duties of individual persons, and which are constantly cited by the courts in their decisions of judicial controversies: they are rather the fruitful germs from which these principles and rules have grown by a process of natural evolution." Bispham's Eq. (4th ed. p. 53) defines maxims thus: "A maxim is the embodiment of a general truth in the shape of a familiar adage. There are in equity several of these maxims, in which the general principles of chancery jurisdiction, and the methods by which they are applied, are thus succinctly expressed."

2. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 393; Story, Eq.

1. Equity follows the Law.—This maxim, though largely quoted by the earlier chancellors, is true in a very narrow and restricted sense in two meanings: first, equity follows the law in the sense of obeying it, conforming to its general rules and policy;<sup>1</sup> and secondly, in applying legal rules to equitable estates.<sup>2</sup>

2. Equity regards that as done which ought to have been done.—This maxim is one of very wide application, and one on which nearly all, if not all, the species of equitable property, equitable interests, and equitable estates, depend.<sup>3</sup> It involves the notion

Jur. (13th ed.) vol. 1, pp. 60-68; Bispham, Prin. of Eq. (4th ed.) 53. Spence's enumeration is, "Equity follows the law; Equity will not interfere where there is a complete and satisfactory remedy at law; Equity will not permit a man to be vexed with double suits; He who applies for equity must do equity; and, Equity will protect bona fide purchasers." Eq. Jur. of the Court of Chancery (1st Am. ed.), 419-424. Francis gives the following list: "He that will have equity done to him, must do it to the same person; He that hath committed iniquity, shall not have equity; Equality is equity; It is equity that should make satisfaction, which received the benefit; It is equity that should have satisfaction, which sustained the loss; Equity suffers not a right to be without a remedy; Equity relieves against accidents; Equity prevents mischief; Equity prevents multiplicity of suits; Equity regards length of time; Equity will not suffer a double satisfaction to be taken; Equity suffers not advantage to be taken of a penalty or forfeiture, where compensation can be made; Equity regards not the circumstance but the substance of the act; Where equity is equal, the law must prevail." Francis, Maxims (1st Am. ed.), 1.

1. Scope.—1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed) 60. Where a rule of law is direct, and governs the particular case, courts of law are bound by it. See Bl. Com. book 3, p. 429. Equity follows the law in regard to the interpretation of statutes, and in the construction of wills and other instruments. Sharswood, Note to Bl. Com. Introd. p. 61. And yet in some cases equity will control a legal title of an heir when it would be deemed absolute at law, and, so far from following the law, openly abandons it. Story gives as an illustration, "If an heir-at-law should by parol promise his father to pay his sisters' portions if he would not direct timber to be felled to raise them, although discharged at law, he would in equity be deemed liable to pay them in the same way as if they had been charged on land." Dalton v. Poole, 1 Vent. R. 318.

Lord Chancellor Talbot, in Heard v. Stamford, Cas. Temp. Talb. 173, clearly states the meaning of the principle thus: "There are instances, indeed, in which a court of equity gives a remedy, where the law gives none; but where a particular remedy is given by the law, and that remedy bounded and circumscribed by particular rules, it would be very improper for this court to take it up where the law leaves it, and to extend it farther than the law allows." And see Thornton v. Campbell, 3 Iowa, 221.

Lord Hardwicke, in Paget v. Gee, Amb. App. 810, went so far as to say, "When this court finds the rules of law right, it will follow them; but then it will likewise go beyond them." Such a power is clearly legislative; and Lord Talbot's statement, which is approved by Pomeroy and Story, enunciates the correct principle.

Illustrations.—Equity follows the law as to statutes of limitation. See infra Maxim 9, "Equity aids the vigilant," etc.

And it has been held, that, in cases of concurrent jurisdiction, equity as well as law obeys the statute; and in other cases it generally follows the analogy of legal titles. Wright v. Leclair, 3 Iowa, 221.

And courts of equity have no jurisdiction to dispense with the plain requirements of a statute. Stone v. Gardner, 20 Ill. 304.

2. Trust Estates.—In general the courts of equity are governed by the same rules as to trust estates as the courts of law are in regard to legal estates. Thus a trust was held to descend according to the same rules as a legal estate in fee. The husband was entitled to curtesy in his wife's trust estate. But this rule is limited in its application. Probably the only important rules of law generally adopted to regulate equitable estates were those concerning descent and inheritance. It is certain that trust estates were free from the feudal incidents of legal estates. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 467; 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 62; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 58; Cowper v. Cowper, 2 P. Wms. 753; Kemp v. Pryor, 7 Ves. 249; Wright v. Leclair, 3 Iowa, 221.

3. Scope.—1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 364. "Some writers have failed to apprehend the full significance of this maxim, and have described its effects in altogether a too narrow and partial manner. Others have of an equitable obligation resting on one of the parties, and a corresponding equitable right on the other, and, even when this right exists, will consider that as done which in good conscience ought to have been done, only in favor of such as have a right to pray that the act might be done,<sup>1</sup> and even then will not be applied against the interests of third persons.<sup>2</sup>

3. Equity looks to the Intent rather than to the Form is a maxim of great importance in equity jurisprudence. It is to be taken in conjunction with the second maxim, and forms the basis on which the latter acts.<sup>3</sup> correctly looked upon it as the very foundation of distinctively equitable property rights, of all equitable estates and interests both real and personal;" and on p. 411, after a full discussion of the maxim, he says, "It is no exaggeration therefore to say that the principle lies at the very foundation of the department of equity jurisprudence which deals with equitable estates, property, and interests analogous to property." In this description of the scope of this maxim, Pomeroy follows Adams (Eqs. 6th Am. ed. 256) and Spence (2 Spence, Eq. Jur. 253). Bispham, to a limited extent, adopts the same view, saying (Prin. of Eq. 4th ed. 64), "The maxim will be found running through the whole system of equity jurisprudence." See also Crabtree v. Bramber, 3 Atk. 687.

Story, followed by Snell, gives the maxim a much narrower scope. He says (1 Eq. Jur. (13th ed. 68), "The true meaning of this maxim is, that equity will treat the subject-matter as to collateral consequences and incidents in the same manner as if the final acts contemplated by the parties had been executed exactly as they ought to have been, not as the parties might have executed them. . . . And the rule is not in other respects of universal application. . . . The most common cases of the application of the rule are under agreements." See also Snell, Eq. 37; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 W. Black. 123.

Doctrines derived from. — The most important doctrine of equity based on this principle is that of conversion, q. v. So in the case of agreements, all agreements which are made for a valuable consideration are considered as performed, in favor of persons entitled to insist upon their performance, at the time when, according to the tenor thereof, they ought to have been performed. 1 Story Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 68; Felch v. Hooper, 119 Mass. 52. Thus, where a contract is made for the sale of land, equity will regard the vendor as trustee of the land for the benefit of the vendee, and the vendee as trustee of the purchase-money for the benefit of the vendor, since, by the terms of the contract, the land ought to be conveyed to the vendee, and the purchase-money transferred to the vendor. So also when in a will, land is directed to be sold, or money to be invested in land, equity will on the same principle regard the land as money in the first case, and the money as land in the second case, from the death of the testator. Craig v. Leslie, 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 563; and see Merriman v. Bush, 116 Pa. St. 276.

1. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 396; 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 68; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 W. Bl. 123.

2. Casey v. Cavaroc, 96 U. S. 467.

3. Scope. — 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 412.

"The principle involved in this maxim, which is one of great practical importance, pervades and affects to a greater or less degree the entire system of equity jurisprudence, and is inseparably connected with that which forms the subject of the preceding section. [Equity considers that as done which ought to have been done.] In fact, it is only by looking at the intent rather than at the form, that equity is able to treat that as done which ought to have been done. . . . The two principles act together, and aid each other; and it is by their universality and truth that much of equity jurisprudence, which is peculiar and distinctive in contrast with the law, has been developed."

Doctrines derived from. — It is the source of every species of equitable property, estate, or interest, and of equitable lien so far as these exist by the doctrines of equity; the jurisdiction of equity in the cases of penalties and forfeitures, mortgages, and defective execution of powers. 1 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 413-418.

Francis expresses the maxim thus: "Equity regards not the circumstances but the substance of the act," and gives as the cases for its application the following: "Equity will enforce the performance of agreements in specie; defects of circumstances in conveyances are frequently supplied in equity, as in the case of defect of livery and seisin; defects of circumstances in the execution of powers are supplied in equity, as in cases of powers of revocation;

5. Equality is Equity, or, as otherwise expressed, "Equity delighteth in equality," is a principle only less extended in its scope and application than the two preceding ones. Aside from being the source of several important equitable doctrines, it is a guide to courts of equity in the administration of equitable relief, unless it comes in conflict with some established rule of law.<sup>1</sup>

5. He who seeks Equity must do Equity, is also a principle of wide application, but only applies to the party who is seeking relief.<sup>2</sup> defects of circumstances in the performance of conditions are supplied in equity." Francis, Maxims (1st Am. ed.), 62-71. See Craig v. Leslie, 3 Wheat. (U. S.) 563, 577.

1. Scope of the Maxim.—Of the meaning and scope of this maxim, Pomeroy says (1 Eq. Jur. 444), "It is the immediate and conceded source of several important and distinctive doctrines of the equity jurisprudence. But this is not all. It furnishes a practical rule for the guidance of equity courts in their administration of equitable reliefs, whenever they obtain jurisdiction over a great variety of cases, unless some compulsory dogma of the law stands in the way."

Doctrines derived from it.—Among the equitable doctrines which have their source in this maxim are those of contribution, marshalling of assets, exoneration. So, under this maxim, in the case of joint purchasers the leaning of courts of equity is against the right of survivorship, and where it is possible will hold the ownership to be in common, and the purchasers have interests in proportion to the amount they have respectively contributed. (Lake v. Gibson, 1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 177.) And so, the pro rata abatement of legacies and apportionment of liens. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 444-453; 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 67; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 60.

Illustrations.—Other illustrations may be given. Where, in the case of a power in trust, the donee of the power who has the option of selecting out of a class has failed to exercise his discretion, if there is more than one intended beneficiary, equity will divide the property equally among all. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 60.

So, if goods are thrown overboard in stress of weather, or in danger, or in just fear of an enemy, in order to save the ship and the rest of the cargo, that which is saved shall contribute to a reparation of that which is lost, and the owners of the ship shall be contributors in proportion. Francis, Maxims (1st Am. ed.), 22.

2. Illustration.—The usual illustration of this maxim is the case of a borrower of money upon usurious interest, who seeks the aid of a court of equity to have the transaction set aside. The court will not give him the relief sought for unless upon the terms that he will repay the amount borrowed with lawful interest. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 62; 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 65; 1 Spence, Eq. Jur. 422.

What Equity he must do.—The "equity" which he who seeks equity "must do," is not arbitrary, but "consists in the awarding or securing to the defendant something to which he is justly entitled by the principles and doctrines of equity, though not, perhaps, by those of the common law." 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 422. See also Finch v. Finch, 10 Ohio St. 501, 508. infra.

Must arise from the Same Matter.—And the equity must arise from the same matter as that from which the plaintiff seeks to obtain equity. Thus, in Finch v. Finch, 10 Ohio St. 501, it was said (p. 507), "It seems to be well settled that this maxim cannot apply, unless the mutual equities which the maxim supposes arise out of the subject-matter of the suit, and are such as have a foundation in established rules of law or equity, and are capable of enforcements. As where a party asks an account on equitable principles, he must submit to a counter-account on similar principles; or where he asks the specific performance of a contract, he must perform the conditions of that contract on his own part. The maxim invests courts of equity with no arbitrary discretion." And see N. Y., etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 534; Comstock v. Johnson, 46 N. Y. 615.

Applications.—The most frequent application of the doctrine of the maxim is in the case of the "wife's equity to a settlement," which was, where a husband came into a court of equity for the purpose of getting in his wife's equitable property, where he had made no settlement upon her, he could not have the aid of the court, until he made a proper settlement. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 425, and numerous cases there cited; 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 66; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 62; Francis, Maxims (1st Am. ed.), 3; Bosvil v. Brander, 1 P. Wms. 459; Howard v. Moffatt, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 206. See also title "Trusts for Married Women."

In Richardson v. Linney, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.)

6. He who comes into Equity must do so with Clean Hands, or, as otherwise expressed, "He that hath committed iniquity shall not have equity,"<sup>1</sup> is, like the preceding maxim, rather a guide to the courts of equity in their administration of equitable relief, than the foundation of any of the equitable doctrines, estates, or interests.<sup>2</sup>

570, a contract was made between Linney and his guardian, Richardson, by which the former transferred to the latter all his estate in consideration of two hundred dollars to be paid shortly afterward, and a thousand dollars when the former should come of age, and confirm the contract. The two hundred dollars was paid in accordance with this agreement. After ratifying the contract, Linney filed a bill against Richardson, praying that the pretended ratification be set aside, on the ground that he, Linney, was not of age at the time of making it. This fact was disputed; but it appeared, at all events, that Richardson was ignorant of it, but thought that Linney became of age three days before the ratification. The bill was sustained; but the decree directed that a credit of two hundred dollars be allowed Richardson, for the sum he had actually advanced; the court saying, "He [Linney] comes into a court of equity for relief, and should be required to do equity."

Morrison v. Hershire, 32 Iowa, 271, was a case of a municipal assessment for improvement of streets. Certain property holders, claiming that the assessments were levied unequally, refused to pay their assessments, and filed a petition to restrain the sale of their lots for non-payment. It was held, that before the claimants could claim relief, "as to the sums which they claimed they were over-assessed upon their property, they must pay, or offer to pay, the sums lawfully and justly due according to their own theory of assessment; for he who seeks equity must do equity."

So it has been said that the grantee of a mortgage of land cannot, because of fraud practised by the mortgagor in obtaining the mortgage, maintain a bill in equity against an assignee of the mortgagee to restrain a sale of the mortgaged premises under a power in the mortgage, without paying the entire debt secured by the mortgage, although the mortgage was assigned to the defendant as security for a less amount. Foster v. Wightman, 123 Mass. 100.

When a court of equity is called on to aid a party against the operation of the statute of frauds, and the acts of one who would take an unjust advantage of it, it scrutinizes the conduct and acts of the party invoking its aid, and demands of him the utmost good faith and fair dealing. Evans v. Folsom, 5 Minn. 342.

And a court of equity will not allow a party to claim benefits under a contract, of which he repudiates the obligations. N. Y., etc., R. Co. v. Mayor, etc., 1 Hilton (N. Y.), 562.

On this ground it has also been held that a party who receives securities issued by a foreign corporation, in violation of the laws of New York, and then sells them for money, cannot maintain a suit in equity to annul the securities given by him in exchange, without returning those received by him, or the money realized on the sale. Mumford v. Amer. L. Ins. & Trust Co., 4 N. Y. 463. See also Campbell v. Campbell, 21 Mich. 438; McLaughlin v. McLaughlin, 20 N. J. Eq. 190; Secrett v. McKenna, 1 Strobb. Eq. (S. Car.) 356.

1. Francis, Maxims (1st Am. ed.), 7.

2. Scope.—The maxim is more restrictive than the preceding. That does not assume that the party seeking relief has been guilty of wrong, nor does it refuse him relief, but makes his relief conditional upon his rendering to the defendant the latter's equitable rights. The present maxim does assume previous wrong-doing on the part of the suitor, and, on that account, refuses him any recognition. (1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 433.) But the "iniquity" must have been done to the defendant himself, and not to a third party, and must have been in regard to the matter in litigation. Francis, Maxims, 1st Am. ed. p. 7, note a; 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 434.

In Ansley v. Wilson, 50 Ga. 418, it was said, "The rule that a complainant must come into equity with clean hands, does not go so far as to prohibit a court of equity from giving its aid to a bad or faithless man. The dirt upon his hands must be his bad conduct in the transaction complained of. . . . If the complainant does equity himself, or offers to do it (except in those cases where the rule in pari delicto, etc., comes in), his hands are as clean as the court can require. 'He who asks equity must do equity' is the maxim on which the expression as to clean hands is based."

Illustrations.—Many illustrations may be given. Thus, "When money has been loaned on usurious interest, and the lender comes into equity to enforce his claim under the instrument, the borrower may show the invalidity of the instrument, and have a decree in his favor, and a dismissal of the bill without paying the lender anything, for the court will never assist a wrong-doer in effectuating his wrongful and

7. The Principle, "Between Equal Equities Time shall prevail," is the rule which is applied to determine the order between conflicting equities. It is perhaps best expressed as follows: "As between persons having only equitable interests, if their interests are in all other respects equal, priority in time gives the better equity."<sup>1</sup> illegal purpose." 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 64; Mason v. Gardiner, 4 Bro. Ch. c. 435.

So, where for £900 loaned, the plaintiff got a bond of £800 from the defendant when he was drunk, and procured judgment thereon, the defendant was entitled to certain lands that were held by other persons in trust for his wife. The plaintiff brought his bill in equity to have these lands subjected to the satisfaction of his judgment, inasmuch as the defendant was entitled to the beneficial interest in the lands in the right of his wife. The court dismissed the bill, refusing to decree to the plaintiff even the amount actually loaned. 1 Ch. Ca. 202. But if in this case the borrower had come into equity to set aside the judgment for fraud, equity would have obliged him to pay to the lender the amount actually loaned. See Maxim 5.

Other illustrations are where, in enforcing the specific performance of a contract, the court will not decree such performance unless the party asking it has acted with perfect fairness in securing the contract. So equity will refuse relief in all cases where the plaintiff's claim is tainted with fraud, or where a contract is illegal. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 435-443 and notes; Bishop's Eq. (4th ed.) 60-62 and notes.

In Creath v. Sims, 5 How. (U. S.) 192, Daniel, J., said (p. 204), "The complainant alleges that the obligation to which he had voluntarily become a party, was intentionally made in fraud of the law, and for this reason he prays to be relieved from its fulfilment. This prayer, too, is preferred to a court of conscience, to a court that touches nothing that is impure. The condign and appropriate answer to such a prayer from such a tribunal is this, that, however unworthy may have been the conduct of your opponent, you are confessedly in pari delicto; you cannot be admitted here to plead your own demerits; precisely, therefore, in the position in which you have placed yourself, there we must leave you."

In Palmer v. Harris, 60 Pa. St. 156 (cited and approved by the court in Parlett v. Guggenheimer (Md.), 8 Cent. Rep. 796), the court refused to restrain the defendant from using, on a tobacco wrapper, certain words, admittedly part of the complainant's trademark, because the complainant marked on his cigar-boxes that the cigars were made in Havana, whereas they were made in New York.

In Ludlum v. Buckingham, 39 N. J. Eq. 563, A. and B. made a contract. A. failed to perform, and B. sought damages in equity. It appeared that B.'s conduct in the transaction was wanting in fairness and equity, and, moreover, that he could not perform his part of the contract: held, that B. was entitled to nothing. Ludlum v. Buckingham, 39 N. J. Eq. 563.

In Cassady v. Cavenor, 37 Iowa, 300, the complainant sought the removal of his neighbor's hog-pen as a nuisance. It was found that his own hog-pen was equally offensive. The court refused to interfere, saying, "If one coming into a court of equity for relief must do so with clean hands, it is not unreasonable that he should not be allowed to abate his neighbor's premises because of their uncleanness, when it appears that his own are equally filthy."

On this ground a court of equity will not entertain a bill to cancel an obligation the consideration of which is a violation of chastity, the compounding a felony, smuggling, gambling, false swearing, or the commission of any crime, or breach of good morals. Weakly v. Watkins, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 356. See also Harrington v. Bigelow, 11 Paige (N. Y.), 349.

So, where the parties are in pari delicto, and where a complainant prays to be relieved from the fulfilment of a contract, which is intentionally made in fraud of law, the court will not interfere. Carey v. Smith, 11 Ga. 539; White v. Crew, 16 Ga. 416; Freeman v. Sedgwick, 6 Gill (Md.), 28; Swartz v. Gillott, 1 Chand. (Wis.) 207. And see Farley v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 14 Fed. Rep. 114. But compare Bellamy v. Bellamy, 6 Fla. 62, where it is said that there are circumstances which necessitate making exceptions to the rule. And it has been held that where parties are in fault, but are not in equal fault, that equity may act in favor of the one least in fault. Harrington v. Grant, 54 Vt. 236.

For other illustrations of the general principle, see Goodman v. Jedidjah Lodge, 67 Md. 117; Kitchen v. Rayburn, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 254; Wilson v. Bird, 28 N. J. Eq. 352.

1. Per Kindersley, V. C., in Rice v. Rice, 2 Drew, 73.

Equities embraced in Maxim.—"The 'equities' spoken of in this maxim embrace both equitable estates, interests, and pri-

8. Between Equal Equities the Law must prevail. — The meaning of this maxim, which is to be taken in connection with the preceding one, is, that "where two persons have each an equally good equitable right, but one of them has the legal title to the subject in dispute, equity will not interfere, but will leave them to the courts of law, when, of course, the holder of the legal title will prevail." <sup>1</sup>

9. The Maxim, "Equity aids the Vigilant, not those who sleep

many rights of property, such as the cestui que trust's estate in any species of trust, the mortgagee's equitable interest, equitable liens, the interest of the assignee under an equitable assignment, and the like, and also the purely remedial rights, or rights to some purely equitable remedy, to which the distinctive name 'equity' has been applied by modern judges and text-writers. . . . With respect to equities, considered in this comprehensive manner, and to many legal interests, the maxim, Qui prior est tempore potior est jure, is of wide and important application, both in equity and at law." . . .

"It follows, from this explanation, that when several successive claims upon, or interests in, the same subject-matter are wholly equitable, and neither is accompanied by the legal estate, which is held by some third person, and neither possesses any special feature or incident which would, according to the settled doctrines of equity, give it precedence over the others, wholly irrespective of the order of time, — under these circumstances the principle applies, and priority of claim is determined by priority of time." <sup>1</sup> Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 454-456.

See also Lord Westbury's analysis, in Phillips v. Phillips, 10 Weekly Reporter (London), 236; s. c., 4 De. G. F. & J. 208; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 64; Snell's Eq. 25; 1 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 65; Cave v. Cave, L. R. 15 Ch. D. 639; Fitzsimmons v. Ogden, 7 Cranch (U. S. C. C.), 2; Boone v. Chiles, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 177; Lucas v. Barrett, 1 G. Gr. (Iowa) 510; Van Meter v. McFaddin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 435, 441; Russell v. Petrie, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 184; Jackson v. Holloway, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 108; Wailes v. Cooper, 24 Miss. 208; Ellis v. Durham, 2 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 465; Hume v. Dixon, 37 Ohio St. 66; Rooney v. Soule, 45 Vt. 303.

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 59.

Reason. — Story says that in such a case "the defendant has an equal claim to the protection of a court of equity for his title, as the plaintiff has to the assistance of the court to assert his title; and the court will not interpose on either side; for the rule there is, In aequali jure melior est conditio possidentis. And the equity is equal between persons equally innocent and equally diligent." <sup>1</sup> Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 63.

Of the connection between this and the preceding maxim, Pomeroy says, "This maxim, and the one contained in the last preceding section, must be taken in connection, in order to constitute the enunciation of a complete principle. . . . The two are in fact counterparts of each other; and, taken together, they form the source of the doctrines, in their entire scope, concerning priorities, notice, and purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice." <sup>1</sup> Eq. Jur. 457.

See also Francis's Maxims (1st Am. ed.), p. 72 et seq., and cases there cited; Snell's Eq. 18 and 19; Bassett v. Nosworthy, 2 Lead. Cas. in Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1; Thorndike v. Hunt, 3 De G. & J. 563; Newton v. McLean, 41 Barb. (N. Y.) 285.

Illustrations. — The most usual illustration is, "Where a purchaser for a valuable consideration, and without notice of a prior equitable right, obtains the legal estate at the time of his purchase, he becomes, in general, entitled to a priority, both in equity and at law." Bassett v. Nosworthy, Rep. temp. Finch, 102; s. c., 2 Leading Cas. in Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1, and notes; Le Neve v. Le Neve, Ambe, 267; s. c., 2 Leading Cas. Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 109; Vattier v. Hinde, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 252; Rowan v. State Bank, 45 Vt. 160; Rexford v. Rexford, 7 Lans. (N. Y.) 6.

And it has even been held that a prior equity with a legal advantage will not be disturbed in favor of a junior equity, though the legal right was acquired in aid of the junior equity after a knowledge of the junior equity of the adverse party. Russell v. Petrie, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 184.

But although, where equities are equal the law prevails, if the party having the right at law acquires another interest inconsistent with his equity, so that he cannot honestly claim both, his equity is impaired, and the rule, Qui prior est tempore, potior est jure, prevails. Ellis v. Durham, 2 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 465.

See also, on the general principle, Carroll v. Johnston, 2 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 120; Boone v. Chiles, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 177; Van Meter v. McFaddin, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 435, 441.

on their Rights," or, "Vigilantibus non dormientibus æquitas subvenit," is designed to promote diligence, punish laches, and discourage the presentation of stale claims. Like the fourth maxim, it furnishes an important rule of guidance to the courts of equity, in their administration of equitable relief.<sup>1</sup>

1. Application. — The application of the principle is twofold: —

(1) Statute of Limitations. — Where there is a statute of limitations.

(a) In some cases the courts of equity feel themselves bound by such statutes.

Equity follows Statute. — The statute of limitations in California applies to suits in equity as well as to actions at law. Chemical Bank v. Kissane, 32 Fed. Rep. 429.

So it was said, in Fogg v. Price (Mass.), 14 N. E. Rep. 741, that the statute of limitations can be taken advantage of by demurrer to a bill in equity.

Where the statute applies, it is binding on a court of equity; but where the statute does not apply, the court acts upon its own principles. Lewis v. Baird, 3 McLean (U. S.), 56, 83. See also Fullwood v. Fullwood, L. R. 9 Ch. D. 176; Dickey v. Baltimore Permanent Land Co., 63 Md. 170; Blanchard v. Williamson, 70 Ill. 647; Hutcheson v. Grubbs, 80 Va. 251; Hall v. Russell, 3 Sawyer (U. S.), 506; Binney's Appeal, 116 Pa. St. 169.

(b) Equity acts by Analogy to Statutes. — In others they act merely by analogy to the statutes.

Ringo v. Woodruff, 43 Ark. 469, where it is said (p. 484), "So early were the statutes of limitation admitted to be the rule in equity as well as law, and though the courts of equity were not within the words of the statute, the time presented by them was adopted by analogy as a fit and just period for a bar in equity of analogous claims."

And in Smith v. Wood, 42 N. J. Eq. 563, it was held, that, where there is both a legal and equitable remedy for the same cause of action, if the legal remedy is barred by the lapse of time, the equitable remedy will be held to be also barred.

(c) Courts refuse to follow Statutes. — In other cases the courts have refused to follow the statutes.

A suit in equity may be maintained to enforce a security for a debt, although an action against the debtor directly upon the indebtedness is barred by lapse of time; and for such purpose the debt exists, notwithstanding the lapse of time. Hickox v. Elliott, 10 Sawyer (U. S.), 415; s. c., 22 Fed. Rep. 13.

In Colwell v. Miles, 2 Del. Ch. 110, it was held that lapse of time in collecting certain money was no bar. But in that case the trustees who were to pay, and the executors who were to receive, were the same persons, and additional delay was caused by lis pendens.

So, in Binney's Appeal, 116 Pa. St. 169, it was said that equity interferes in many cases to prevent the bar of the statute of limitations where it would be inequitable.

(2) Where there is no Statute. — In other cases the administration of equitable relief is entirely within the discretion of the chancellor. In such cases, the party seeking relief must have used reasonable diligence; and the length of time necessary to constitute such laches as will prevent a court of equity from interfering, varies with the nature of the case. Thus, in applications to restrain by injunction acts authorized by statute, on the ground that they would constitute a nuisance, and in all other similar applications, the rule is well settled that a comparatively short delay in seeking his remedy, on the part of the plaintiff, may be sufficient to defeat his right thereto.

In Great Western Ry. v. Oxford, etc., Ry., 3 De G. M. & G. 341, a delay of nine months was held a bar in equity, but it was coupled with acquiescence during that time.

In Tash v. Adams, 10 Cush. (Mass.) 252, one month was held to be a sufficient delay, but there the delay had caused serious injury to third parties.

In Canton v. McGraw (Md.), 11 Atl. Rep. 287, a bill to set aside a deed for fraud was filed within three years from the date of the deed, and sixteen months from the death of the grantor. Held, that no laches could be imputed to the complainant.

A similar conclusion was reached in a similar case in Colorado where the delay was eighteen months. Caldwell v. Davis (Colo.), 15 Pac. Rep. 696; Fellows v. Hyman, 33 Fed. Rep. 313.

Otherwise, when the delay was for five years. Gibbons v. Hoag, 95 Ill. 45. So of ten years. Hoffert v. Miller (Ky.), 6 S. W. Rep. 447. So of fifteen years. McCartin v. Traphagen (N. J.), 11 Atl. Rep. 156, 165. See also Harrison v. Gibson, 23 Gratt. (Va.) 212; Speidel v. Henrici, 120 U. S. 377; Grey v. Ohio, etc., R. Co., 1 Grant's Cas. (Pa.) 412.

Equity will bar claims become stale from lapse of time, even though a trust be involved, if time and long acquiescence have obscured the acts of the parties, or other circumstances have given rise to presumptions unfavorable to its continuance. Sanchez v. Dow (Fla.), 2 So. Rep. 842.

10. Equity imputes an Intention to fulfil an Obligation.—The meaning of this maxim is, that, "when a person has expressly covenanted to do an act, and he does that which may either wholly or partially be converted to or towards a completion of the covenant, he shall be presumed to have done it with that intention."<sup>1</sup>

11. Equity will not suffer a Right to be without a Remedy is a principle which is at the foundation of equity jurisprudence, since the origin of the jurisdiction of the court of chancery was the failure of the courts of common law to meet the requirements of justice.<sup>2</sup>

12. Equity acts in Personam, not in rem, is a principle which sets forth one of the distinctions between the remedy in equity and that in common law. The meaning of the maxim simply is, "that a decree of a court of equity, while declaring the equitable estate, interest, or right of the plaintiff to exist, did not operate by its own intrinsic force to vest the plaintiff with the legal estate, interest, or right to which he was pronounced entitled."<sup>3</sup>

On the general principle, see Brown v. McLean, 5 Mackey (D. C.), 559; s. c., 8 Cent. Rep. 718; Slemmer's Appeal, 58 Pa. St. 168, 177; Lewis v. Baird, 3 McLean (U. S.), 56; Creath v. Sims, 5 How. (U. S.) 192, 204.

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.).

Illustration.—The leading case is Wilcocks v. Wilcocks, 2 Vern. 558; s. c., 2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 4th Am. ed. 833. In that case a person, in marriage articles, covenanted to purchase and settle lands of a certain value, and afterwards did purchase lands of a greater value, but did not settle them. These lands descended upon the heir, who brought a bill in equity to compel other lands to be purchased out of the personal property, and settled upon him. It was held that the purchase of lands by the father, which descended upon the son, was a performance of the covenant. See also Deacon v. Smith, 3 Atk. 323; Wellesley v. Wellesley, 4 My. & Cr. 581. And where lands purchased under similar circumstances were less in value than those covenanted to be purchased, such purchase will be held a part performance of the covenant. Snowden v. Snowden, 1 Bro. Ch. 582; Lechmere v. Lechmere, Cas. Temp. Talb. 80.

To this head is to be referred the rule which makes a trustee who purchases land with the funds of his cestui que trust, a holder of the land for the benefit of the cestui que trust, although he takes the title in his own name, and with no declaration of such trust. See titles "Trust and Trustee." 1 Pomeroy Eq. Jur. 462; Ferris v. Van Vechten, 73 N. Y. 113; McLaren v. Brewer, 51 Me. 402; Hancock v. Titus, 39 Miss. 224; Stow v. Kimball, 28 Ill. 93; Homer v. Homer, 107 Mass. 82.

2. There are certain restrictions upon the application of this maxim.

(2) What Rights intended.—The rights here intended are those which the law acknowledges to be such, and never gives judgment against them, although it cannot give a remedy for them, and those purely equitable rights, for which equity gives a remedy in the very creation of them. Francis, Maxims (1st Am. ed.), 29, note, and cases there cited. Equity does not attempt to deal with purely moral rights and obligations. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.); 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 466; Finnegan v. Fernandina, 15 Fla. 379; Rees v. City of Watertown, 19 Wall. (U. S.) 107.

(2) Remedy at Law.—Where the remedy at law is adequate, equity will not interfere. "In order that the principle may apply, one of three facts must exist; viz., either (1) the right itself must be one not recognized as existing by the law, or (2) the right existing at the law, the remedy must be one which the law can not or does not administer at all, or (3) the right existing at the law, and the remedy being one which the law gives, the remedy as administered by the law must be inadequate, incomplete, or uncertain. Of these three alternatives, the first and second denote the exclusive jurisdiction of equity; the third, the concurrent jurisdiction." 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 465; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.).

Plaintiff must not have been guilty of Laches.—The third restriction upon the principle is found in the ninth maxim; i. e., when a case comes within one of the three cases mentioned above, equity will not interfere where the plaintiff has been guilty of laches. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 465. See also Maxim 9.

3. 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 468.

13. Equity acts specifically, and not by way of compensation, means simply that equity endeavors to put the parties in the same position which they ought to occupy, not merely to compensate them for losses they have actually sustained.<sup>1</sup>

The ordinary method of enforcing the decrees of a court of chancery was by an attachment against the person of the defendant.

Land outside the Jurisdiction of Court.—And the jurisdiction has been said to depend on the personal service of material defendants found in the county, the subject-matter in dispute lying in another county. Roper v. Roper, 3 Tenn. Ch. 53; Parkes v. Parkes, 3 Tenn. Ch. 647. Accordingly the parties being within the jurisdiction of the court, the court will, under ordinary circumstances, grant relief, even in reference to a subject-matter beyond the territorial cognizance of the court. Penn v. Lord Baltimore, 1 Ves. Sen. 444; s. c., 2 Lead. Cas. Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 1806.

So in Vaughan v. Barclay, 6 Whart. (Pa.) 392, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania decreed the conveyance of lands situated in Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia.

In Wood v. Warner, 15 N. J. Eq. 81, the court enforced contracts in regard to an island situated in the Caribbean Sea, and decreed an account in relation thereto, holding that "it is no objection to the court's taking an account, and making a decree in the cause, that the property is out of the jurisdiction of the court, so that the decree could not be enforced in rem, since the court could enforce its decree in relation to such contracts in personam."

So injury to a dam situated in Maine was restrained by injunction in a court of New Hampshire. Great Falls M'fg. Co. v. Worster, 23 N. H. 462.

And the same conclusion was reached in Topp v. White, 12 Heisk. (Tenn.) 165, where the court of Tennessee took cognizance of a case affecting lands in Mississippi, and declared that it was not bound by the law of the latter State.

A bill was filed in the State of New York against several defendants, one of whom lived in New Jersey, but was served with process in New York. The principal subject of the suit was land in New Jersey owned by that party; but land in New York was also affected, and the ground of the suit was a fraudulent transfer of the whole, executed in New York.

It was held that the court had jurisdiction to set aside the conveyance, and make a decree against the New Jersey defendant and his lands. DeKlyn v. Watkins, 3 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 185.

But compare Glen v. Gibson, 9 Barb.

(N. Y.) 634, in which it was held that a court of equity in a sister State has no power to make a decree directing trustees to complete contracts for the sale of lands in New York.

Courts cannot sustain jurisdiction of mere naked questions of title to lands beyond the limits of the State. But the jurisdiction of a court of equity is sustainable wherever the person of the defendant may be found in cases of trusts, of fraud, and of contract, even though lands not geographical may be affected by the decree. A decree cannot operate as a conveyance of land outside the jurisdiction; but when the court has jurisdiction of the parties, it may decree a conveyance of such lands, and carry such decree into effect in the manner in which other decrees are enforced. MacGregor v. MacGregor, 9 Iowa, 65. See also note to Penn v. Lord Baltimore, 2 Ldg. Cas. in Eq. (White & Tudor) (4th Am. ed.) 1823; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 65; Sed cf. Smith's Man. of Eq. (13th ed.) 30.

Operation of Equity upon the Conscience.—Under this head comes the operation of equity upon the conscience of a party. The best description of this operation is that of Pomeroy's, who says, "I mean the most important principle that equity acts upon the conscience of a party, by imposing upon him a personal obligation of treating his property in a manner very different from that which accompanies and is permitted by his mere legal title. . . . A testator has given certain lands to A. by a will properly executed; but A. procured the devise by wrongful representations made to the testator, and the lands should, by the doctrines of equity, belong to B. The statute of wills, however, is peremptory in its prescribed mode of executing a will; there can be no will without conforming to the statutory requirements. Equity . . . admits the validity of the will, and the legal title vested in A., but, on account of A.'s wrongful conduct in procuring the devise to himself, . . . it imposes upon him the obligation to hold the land for B.'s benefit as the equitable owner thereof; and then arises the further obligation upon his conscience to perfect and complete B.'s equitable ownership by a conveyance." 1 Pomeroy, Eq. Jur. 470-472; McCormick v. Grogan, L. R. 4 H. L. 82; Greaves v. Lo-field, L. R. 14 Ch. D. 563.

1. Thus equity decrees the specific performance of a contract, and will sometimes restrain the commission of destructive

V. Divisions of Equity.—The subjects or heads of the jurisdiction of the courts of chancery may be divided into three classes. The first includes those cases in which the common law did not recognize a title; the second, those in which the common law did not recognize a right; and the third, those in which there was not a full and complete remedy at common law.<sup>1</sup> trespass. To this maxim are to be referred the doctrines of specific performance and injunction. Bispham, Eq. (4th ed.) 425-519. See titles "Contract" (specific performance) and "Injunction."

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 29. This classification is similar to that of Spence, who says, "It will be found that the jurisdiction of the court [of chancery] as affecting legal rights and liabilities has been brought into action as regards three kinds of subjects:—

"1. Where some specific property, real or personal, has been the subject;

"2. Where no specific property has been the subject, but one or both of the parties has been under some liability, for which an action for damages might be sustained; or,

"3. Where there was no specific property in dispute, nor was there any right of action at law, but one of the parties has sought to establish against the other some claim in respect of which the law was silent, and to which, therefore, the negative state of the law would not have afforded an effectual defence at law." 1 Spence, Eq. 430.

Other writers divide the jurisdiction of the court of equity into the concurrent, the exclusive, and the auxiliary or supplemental jurisdiction. 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 82; 1 Fonbl. Eq. B. 1, ch. 1, § 3, note f.; Jeremy on Eq. Jur. Intro. p. xxvii.; 1 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 119.

(1) The Concurrent Jurisdiction.—This has its origin in one of two sources: either the courts of law, although they have general jurisdiction in the matter, cannot give adequate, perfect, and specific relief; or, under the actual circumstances of the case, they cannot give any relief at all. The former occurs in all cases where a simple judgment for the plaintiff or defendant does not meet the full merits and exigencies of the case; but a variety of adjustments, limitations, and cross-claims are to be introduced, and finally acted on; and a decree meeting all the circumstances of the particular case between the parties is indispensable to distributive justice. The latter occurs when the object sought is incapable of being accomplished by the courts of law; as, for instance, a perpetual injunction, or a preventive process to restrain nuisances or waste. 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 82. And see 1 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 123.

Under the head of the concurrent jurisdiction may be placed two classes of cases: (1) those in which the subject-matter constitutes the principal ground of the jurisdiction; and (2) those in which the peculiar remedies afforded by courts of equity form the principal ground of the jurisdiction.

1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 83. To the first class may be referred the jurisdiction of equity in cases of Accident, Mistake, Fraud, Actual or Constructive; Matters of Account, and, as incident thereto, Matters of Apportionment, Contribution, and Average; Liens, Rents and Profits; Tithes, and Moduses, and Waste; Matters of Administration, Legacies, and Marshalling of Assets; Confusion of Boundaries; Matters of Dower; Marshalling of Securities; Matters of Partition; Matters of Partnership; Partition; and, lastly, Matters of Rent, so far as they are not embraced in the preceding head of account. 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 84, 108, 194, 265, 443.

To the second class may be referred the equitable remedies of Specific Performance of Contracts, Re-execution, Reformation, Rescission, and Cancellation of Contracts, Interpleader, Bills Quia Timet; Bills of Peace and Injunctions. 2 Story Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 1, 134, 156, 172, 178.

(2) The Exclusive Jurisdiction.—To this jurisdiction of equity are to be referred Express Trusts, including Marriage Settlements, Terms for Years, Mortgages, Assignments, Wills and Testaments, Election and Satisfaction, Application of Purchase-Money, and Charities; Implied Trusts; Penalties and Forfeitures; Infants, Idiots, and Lunatics; Married Women. 2 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 226-764.

(3) The Auxiliary Jurisdiction.—This is merely a special case of the exclusive jurisdiction, since its methods and objects are confined to the equity procedure. No remedy is either asked or granted in suits which belong to this jurisdiction. Their sole object is the obtaining or preserving of evidence to be used upon the trial of some action at law. The cases embraced within this proper auxiliary jurisdiction are Bills of Discovery; Bills for the Perpetuation of Testimony; and Suits to take the Testimony of Witnesses de bene esse, and of Witnesses in a Foreign Country. 1 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 125-127; 179-215.

This classification gives rise to the three great divisions of equity jurisdiction; viz., (1) equitable titles, (2) equitable rights or equities, and (3) equitable remedies.<sup>1</sup>

VI. Equitable Titles. — Under the first of these divisions may be classed trusts, mortgages, and assignments.<sup>2</sup>

1. Trusts. — A trust<sup>3</sup> is the beneficial title or ownership of property of which the legal title is vested in another.<sup>4</sup> The holder of the legal title is called the trustee, and the person for whose benefit it is held is called the cestui que trust. Trusts, if classified according to the duties of the trustee, are active or passive, — active when the trustee has some special and definite duties to perform; passive when there is a simple conveyance of property to one upon trust for another, without further specifications or directions.<sup>5</sup> In the latter case the trustee, being merely the holder of the legal title, may be compelled to convey to the cestui que trust whenever called upon to do so. Another division of trusts is into executed and executory, — executed when the terms of the trust are fully defined in the instrument creating it; executory where the instrument creating the trust is provisional merely, and other conveyances are necessary to the effectual carrying out of the terms of the trust.<sup>6</sup> Trusts are also private or public, lawful or unlawful, if classified according to the purposes for which they were created.<sup>7</sup>

a. Express Trusts. — In reference to their creation, trusts are express or implied. Express trusts are such as are created by the language of the parties.<sup>8</sup>

b. Implied Trusts. — Implied trusts are resulting trusts and constructive trusts.

(1) Resulting Trusts are trusts that the courts presume to arise out of the transactions of parties.<sup>9</sup>

(2) Constructive Trusts are trusts that arise when a person clothed with some fiduciary character, by fraud or otherwise gains some advantage to himself.<sup>10</sup>

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 31.

2. The arrangement and a large part of the substance of the remaining part of this title are taken by permission from Bispham's Principles of Equity, 4th edition.

3. See title "Trusts."

4. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 31.

5. Perry calls these special and simple trusts. Perry on Trusts (2d ed.), 14.

6. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 31. Perry mentions a further division into ministerial and discretionary trusts, and also a mixed trust and power. Law of Trusts (2d ed.), 14 & 15.

7. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 31; Perry on Trusts (2d ed.), 15.

8. They are generally created by instruments that point out directly and expressly the property, persons, and purposes of the trust; although except in the case of a trust in lands, which is required by the statute of frauds in England, and similar statutes in most of the United States, to be in writing, they may be created by parol. No particular form of words is necessary to create these trusts, but they may be created by direct fiduciary expressions, by precatory words, or by words denoting that a power is to be used in trust. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 32; Perry on Trusts (2d ed.), 16.

9. Perry on Trusts (2d ed.), 17. The most usual case is where the purchase-money for an estate is paid by one man, and a deed is taken in the name of another. Here the law implies a trust on the part of the latter to hold the legal title for the benefit of the actual purchaser. For other cases and a full description of resulting trusts, see Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 32, 119-132.

10. Perry on Trusts (2d ed.), 17. The c. Trusts for Married Women. — Trusts for married women are created to secure to a married woman her estate free from the interference of her husband, and so that he had not his common-law rights therein. By conveying the estate to a trustee for the sole and separate use of a married woman, the corpus of her estate may be secured from any control of her husband, or from any liability to his debts, and the income paid directly to the wife.<sup>1</sup>

d. Trusts for Charities. — Trusts for charities depend to a great extent, both in England and the United States, upon the statute of 43 Eliz. chap. 4.<sup>2</sup>

c. Powers and Duties of Trustees. — The duties of trustees are generally to protect and preserve the trust property, to see that it is employed solely for the benefit of the cestui que trust, and to abstain from making any use of the property for the trustees' own benefit.<sup>3</sup>

2. Mortgages. — An equitable mortgage is a lien upon real estate recognized in equity as a security for the payment of money, and treated as a mortgage, although arising without any deed or express contract for that distinct purpose.<sup>4</sup>

3. Assignments. — Equitable Assignment. — Equitable assignments are assignments of choses in action, things not in esse, as mortgages of personal property to be acquired in the future, and mere contingencies, which, though not good at law, equity will recognize.<sup>5</sup>

VII. Equitable Rights. — Equitable rights or equities are accident and mistake; fraud; notice; estoppel, election; conversion and reconversion; adjustment, including set-off, contribution, exoneration, subrogation and marshalling; and liens.<sup>6</sup> most numerous cases arise out of real or presumptive fraud. "A case which arises from actual fraud is where (for example) a conveyance is obtained by direct deceit or misrepresentation. In such a case equity affords redress by treating the wrong-doer as a trustee of the legal title for the benefit of the injured party and directing a conveyance."

"Presumptive fraud is where the law supposes that a transaction is fraudulent from the mere circumstance of the relations of the parties, or the nature of the transaction, without any proof of actual deceit. Thus a bargain between a solicitor and his client, a guardian and ward, a parent and child, a trustee and his cestui que trust, or any other two persons standing in a confidential, or quasi confidential, relation, touching the subject-matter as to which the fiduciary relation exists, will be set aside at the option of the client, ward, child, or cestui que trust, as the case may be, unless the entire fairness of the transaction is abundantly proved. In this case, also, equity uses the theory of a trust for the purpose of effecting relief in the same way as in the case of actual fraud." Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 33. See also title "Fraud."

"Constructive trusts in the absence of fraud may arise in several ways. Thus where a person acquires trust property without notice of the trust, but without having paid any value for it, he is not entitled to hold it discharged of the trust, but is looked upon in equity in the same light as a trustee." Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 33 for this and other instances.

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 34, 138-163. See also titles "Married Women" and "Trusts."

2. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 35, 164-180. See also titles "Charities" and "Trustees."

3. As to powers and duties of trustees, see Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 35, 180-191. See also title "Trustees."

4. Abbott's Law Dict. See title "Equitable Mortgage."

5. Bouvier's Law Dict. See title "Equitable Assignments."

6. Bispham's Prin. of Eq. (4th ed.) 228-424.

1. Accident. — By the term accident is meant not merely inevitable casualty or the act of Providence, or what is technically called vis major or irresistible force, but such unforeseen events, misfortunes, losses, acts, or omissions as are not the result of any negligence or misconduct in the party.<sup>1</sup>

2. Mistake. — A mistake as remediable in equity is an act which would not have been done, or an omission which would not have occurred, but from ignorance, forgetfulness, inadvertence, mental incompetence, surprise, misplaced confidence, or imposition.<sup>2</sup>

3. Fraud. — Fraud, in the sense in which it is used in a court of equity, includes all acts, omissions, and concealments which involve a breach of legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence, justly reposed, and are injurious to another, or by which an undue and unconscientious advantage is taken of another.<sup>3</sup> It has been divided into (1) fraud arising from facts and circumstances of imposition; (2) fraud arising from the intrinsic matter of the bargain itself; (3) fraud presumed from the circumstances and condition of the parties; and (4) fraud affecting third parties.<sup>4</sup> The first includes actual fraud, the second and third constructive fraud, and the last has relation to the parties whom the fraud may affect.

a. Actual Fraud is something said, done, or omitted by a person with the design of perpetrating what he must have known to be an actual fraud.<sup>5</sup>

b. Constructive Frauds. — Constructive frauds are such acts or contracts as, though not originating in any actual evil design or contrivance to perpetuate a positive fraud or injury upon other persons, are yet, by their tendency, to deceive or mislead other persons, or to violate public or private confidence, or to impair or injure the public interests deemed equally reprehensible with positive fraud, and therefore are prohibited by law.<sup>6</sup> This includes (1) Frauds arising from the Intrinsic Nature of the Transaction; <sup>7</sup> and (2) Frauds presumed from the Circumstances and Condition of the Parties.<sup>8</sup>

1. Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 85, § 78. See title "Accident."

2. Smith's Manual of Eq. (13th ed.) 50, § 80. See also Hurd v. Hall, 12 Wis. 125. Mistake is some unintentional act, or omission, or error, arising from ignorance, omission, surprise, or misplaced confidence. 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 108, § 110. See also Bruse v. Nelson, 35 Iowa, 157. See title "Mistake."

3. Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 201, § 187. But see title "Fraud."

4. Per Lord Hardwicke, in Chesterfield v. Janssen, 1 Atk. 301; s. c., 2 Ves. 125; s. c., 1 Lead. Cas. Eq. (4th Am. ed.) 773. Lord Hardwicke mentions a fifth class, but it is included in the others, and this classification has been generally followed.

5. Smith's Man. of Eq. (13th ed.) 63, § 104. See title "Fraud."

6. 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 265, § 258.

7. Frauds from the intrinsic nature of the transaction arise in the case of contracts void by reason of their terms, bargains by reversioners and expectant heirs, usurious contracts, gambling contracts, contracts void by reason of their subject-matter, gifts and conditions in restraint of marriage, and sales of public offices. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 276-290.

8. Fraud is presumed from the relations of the parties in two classes of cases: first, where one of the parties is laboring under some mental disability; and, second, where the transaction takes place under undue influence. To the first of these classes may be referred fraud presumed in the case of contracts where one of the contracting parties is a lunatic or idiot, in a condition of drunkenness, or acts under duress. To

(3) Frauds affecting Third Parties are, (a) frauds upon creditors; (b) frauds upon purchasers; (c) frauds upon marital rights; and (d) frauds upon powers.<sup>1</sup>

4. Notice.—Notice is the information concerning a fact, actually communicated to a party by an authorized person, or actually derived by him from a proper source, or else presumed by law to have been acquired by him, which information is regarded as equivalent, in its legal effects, to full knowledge of the fact, and to which the law imputes the same consequences as would be imputed by knowledge.<sup>2</sup>

5. Equitable Estoppel.—Equitable estoppel is the effect of the voluntary conduct of a party, whereby he is absolutely precluded, both in law and in equity, from asserting rights which might perhaps otherwise have existed, either of property, of contract, or of remedy, as against another person who has, in good faith, relied upon such conduct, and has been led thereby to change his position for the worse, and who, on his part, acquires some corresponding right, either of property, of contract, or of remedy.<sup>3</sup>

6. Election.—An election in equity is a choice which a party is compelled to make between the acceptance of a benefit under an instrument, and the retention of some property already his own, which is attempted to be disposed of in favor of a third party by virtue of the same instrument.<sup>4</sup>

7. Conversion and Reconversion.—Conversion in equity denotes the notional alteration of land into money, or of money into land, in accordance with a direction to that effect of a testator or settlor, and in pursuance of the equitable doctrine that what is agreed or imperatively directed to be done is already done, or as good as done.<sup>5</sup>

Reconversion is that imaginary process by which a prior constructive conversion is annulled, and the converted property restored in contemplation of law to its original state.<sup>6</sup>

the second class may be referred fraud presumed in all transactions in which "influence has been acquired and abused, in which confidence has been reposed and betrayed." Per Lord Kingsdowne in Smith v. Kay, 7 H. L. Cas. 750. These transactions may be either in the nature of a gift or contract; and, as a general rule, fraud will be presumed in all gifts or contracts in which the parties stand in a confidential relation, as guardian and ward, parent and child, solicitor and client, trustee and cestui que trust. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 290-304. See title "Fraud."

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 305-325. See title "Fraud."

2. 2 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 20, § 594. Notice is either (1) statutory, i.e., made so by legislative enactment; (2) actual, which brings the knowledge of a fact directly home to the party; or (3) constructive or implied, which is no more than evidence of facts which raise such a strong presumption of notice that equity will not allow the presumption to be rebutted. Constructive notice may be subdivided into: (a) where there exists actual notice of matter, to which equity has added constructive notice of facts, which an inquiry after such matter would have elicited; and (b) where there has been a designed abstinence from inquiry for the very purpose of escaping notice. Wharton's Law Lex. See title "Notice."

3. 2 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 263, § 804. See title "Estoppel."

4. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 361, § 295. See title "Election."

5. Brown's Law Dict. See title "Equitable Conversion and Reconversion."

6. Rap. & L. Law Dict. See title "Equitable Conversion and Reconversion."

8. Set-off. — A demand which a defendant makes against the plaintiff in the suit for the purpose of liquidating the whole or a part of his claim.<sup>1</sup>

9. Contribution. — Contribution is the making up by several parties, jointly interested or indebted to one of their number, of a loss sustained or payment made by him for the benefit of them all.<sup>2</sup>

10. Exoneration. — Exoneration is a right which exists between those who are successively liable for the same debt, by which when the party who is secondarily liable has paid or satisfied the principal's obligation, or any part thereof, he is entitled to be reimbursed by the principal debtor, and can bring an equitable action for that purpose.<sup>3</sup>

11. Subrogation. — Subrogation is the substitution of another person in the place of the creditor, to whose rights he succeeds in relation to the debt.<sup>4</sup>

12. Marshalling of Assets. — The marshalling of assets is such an arrangement of the different funds under administration as shall enable all the parties having equities thereon to receive their due proportions, notwithstanding any intervening interests, liens, or other claims of particular persons to prior satisfaction out of a portion of those funds.<sup>5</sup>

13. Equitable Liens. — Equitable liens are such as exist in equity, and of which courts of equity alone take cognizance.<sup>6</sup>

VIII. Equitable Remedies. — Equitable remedies are specific performance; injunctions; re-execution, reformation, rescission, and cancellation of contracts; account; partition; dower; boundaries; rent; partnership bills; creditors' bills and administration suits; the protection of infants, idiots, and lunatics; discovery; bills quia timet; receivers; and writs of ne exeat.<sup>7</sup>

1. Specific Performance. — Equity, in obedience to the cardinal rule of natural justice, that a person should perform his agreement, enforces, pursuant to a regulated and judicial discretion, the actual accomplishment of a thing stipulated for, on the ground that what is lawfully agreed to be done, ought to be done, and indeed is, in its contemplation, considered as now done.<sup>8</sup>

2. Injunction. — An injunction is an order, judgment, or writ, by which a party to an action is required to do, or refrain from doing, a particular thing.<sup>9</sup>

1. Bouvier's Law Dict. See title "Set-off."

2. Burrill's Law Dict. See title "Contribution."

3. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 392, § 331; 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. p. 467, § 1416. See title "Exoneration."

4. Bouvier's Law Dict. See title "Subrogation."

5. 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) p. 570, § 558. See title "Marshalling of Assets."

6. Bouvier's Law Dict. They differ from common-law liens, in that they are wholly independent of possession of the thing to which they are attached as an incumbrance. They operate after the possession has been changed, and are available by way of charge instead of detainer. Bouvier's Law Dict. See title "Liens."

7. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 425-619, §§ 361-581.

8. Wharton's Law Lex. See title "Specific Performance."

9. Rap. & L. Law Dict. See title "Injunctions."

3. Re-execution, Reformation, Rescission, and Cancellation of Contracts.—These are the means by which courts of equity administer equitable relief in cases where equity requires that a lost instrument should be supplied, an instrument which has been erroneously framed corrected, and documents obtained by fraud or duress surrendered.<sup>1</sup>

4. Account.—The equitable remedy of account is applied whenever it is required as a matter of course, in all cases in which equitable titles are to be protected, and equitable rights enforced; in many instances where jurisdiction has been assumed by virtue of equitable remedies;<sup>2</sup> and sometimes when the necessity for an account itself offers the only ground for the jurisdiction of a court of equity.<sup>3</sup>

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 520, § 466. See title "Contracts," § 55 and § 100, and also titles "Accident, Mistake," and "Re-execution, Reformation, Rescission and Cancellation of Contracts."

2. Thus, if a trustee violate his duty by making a profit at the expense of the trust estate, he will be compelled by a court of equity to account to the cestui que trust for the profits thus made. And if a conveyance tainted with fraud is sought to be set aside, it may be necessary for the complete vindication of the equitable right which the complainant seeks to enforce that the defendant should account for the rents and profits of the property which he has been fraudulently enjoying; and such an account will accordingly be ordered. In these instances the account is subordinate to the principal object of the bill. The jurisdiction already attached invokes or makes use of the remedy of account. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 532, 533.

3. The peculiar equitable remedy of account lies where the jurisdiction of the court is based solely upon the necessity for an account. This had its rise from the inadequacy of legal remedies, of which the only ones applicable to such cases were assumpsit, which only lay when the balance was admitted, and did not admit of an investigation of the several items, and account render, which was very tedious and applicable only in certain cases. The jurisdiction of the court, therefore, in matters of account, comes under that class of cases in which the courts of common law could not give a complete remedy. In such bills a foundation is first laid for all necessary inquiries by the discovery elicited from the defendant's answer. The cause is then referred to a master before whom the account is taken who has the power to examine parties under oath, and who can compel the production of books and documents, and by whom all the items can be passed upon, subject to revision by the court upon the coming in of his report. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 533, 534; Adam's Eq. (7th Am. ed.) 225.

But a court of equity will not take cognizance of every transaction between individuals in which an adjustment of an account between parties is necessary. See Jewett v. Bowman, 29 N. J. Eq. 174.

Jurisdiction of courts of equity in matters of account is concurrent with that of the common-law courts, and is, therefore, discretionary, and will be exercised only where some special ground peculiar to equity exists; as where the accounts are intricate, or discovery is necessary. And where an accounting is asked incidentally, if the main ground for seeking relief is insufficient, the bill must be dismissed: it cannot be sustained as a bill for an accounting. Jewett v. Bowman, 29 N. J. Eq. 174.

Accordingly, where an account is so complicated that it cannot fairly be tried at law, equity will restrain the action at law, and assume jurisdiction; and nothing in New Jersey practice act affects such right. A clear case, however, must be made. Crane v. Ely, 37 N. J. Eq. 564; Woolley v. Osborne, 39 N. J. Eq. 54; Crossley v. New Orleans, 20 Fed. Rep. 352; Kirby v. Lake Shore & Mich. So. Ry. Co., 120 U. S. 130; Deck v. Gerke, 12 Cal. 433; White v. Hampton, 10 Iowa, 238. Compare Baker v. Biddle, 1 Baldw. (U. S.) 394.

A court of equity has jurisdiction in cases in which the plaintiff asks for an accounting and discovery. Gordon v. Clarke, 10 Fla. 179.

In Knotts v. Tarver, 8 Ala. 743, it was said that it is not sufficient to give equity jurisdiction that an account exists between the parties, or that fraud has been practised. There must be a discovery wanted, or the accounts must be so complicated as to require the court to adjust them. But compare Marvin v. Brooks, 94 N. Y. 71, where it is held that the bill depends on the existence of a fiduciary relation rather than on the need of discovery. See also Ludlow v. Simond, 3 Caines (N. Y.), 1; Pearl v. Nashville, 10 Yerg. (Tenn.) 179.

Where there is a fiduciary relation existing between the parties to an agency, a court of equity has jurisdiction to adjust the accounts between them. Thornton v. Thornton, 31 Gratt. (Va.) 212. And see Clarke v. Pierce, 52 Mich. 157. So persons associated together for the purchase and holding of property for their common benefit may compel an account from one of their number who has acted for them, and deceived them concerning the amount paid. Dole v. Wooldredge, 135 Mass. 140.

So an agent may often be compelled to account, especially when the accounts between himself and his principal are mutual and complicated, or where the nature of the employment is such that money is often paid in confidence without vouchers. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 536.

A bill brought to compel an agent to account, and which joins those alleged to be his confederates in a scheme of fraud, claiming relief against them, and denying the agent's liability to respond in full, states a case for equitable relief. Illges v. Dexter, 73 Ga. 362.

Where an agent has been intrusted with his principal's money, to be expended for a specific purpose, the former may be required to account in equity; and, upon such an accounting, the burden is upon him of showing that his trust duties have been performed and the manner of their performance. Marvin v. Brooks, 94 N. Y. 71.

If A. intrusts money to B. to lend on good security, and B. invests numerous sums on inadequate security, forecloses, pays costs, etc., and refuses to render an account, equity will entertain a bill for accounting. Rippe v. Stogdill, 61 Wis. 38.

So in many cases growing out of assignments.

An action to compel the defendants to account as the general agents of the assignor of the plaintiff, and involving accounts as to the sale of a patent medicine, has been held to be maintainable on the equity side of the court. Walker v. Spencer, 45 N. Y. Super. Ct. Rep. 71.

Where an absolute assignment was fraudulently procured of certain judgment notes intended as collateral security, it was held that a bill in equity was maintainable for an account to compel repayment of the excess received from the notes above the debt intended to be secured, notwithstanding assumpsit might have been maintained for such excess. Bierbower's Appeal, 107 Pa. St. 14.

Equity has jurisdiction to compel an assignee in insolvency to execute his trust, and to account for the property assigned to him. Sanderson v. McIntosh, 65 Cal. 36.

Where the sons of the deceased intestate were intrusted for some years, during her lifetime, with a complete possession and control of her property, consisting of bonds, stocks, and money, and they changed its form from time to time, and refused to account with her administrator, held, that equity was the proper remedy. Webb v. Fuller, 77 Me. 568.

The administrator of a deceased wife may maintain a bill in equity to compel the husband to account as trustee of her separate equitable estate under an ante nuptial contract. Donovan v. Haynie, 67 Ala. 51.

The complaint of an administratrix for an accounting alleged that defendant, as agent for the plaintiff's intestate, received from the latter certain moneys to loan for him, and had not fully accounted therefor; and that plaintiff was not in possession of any books, papers, or memoranda, by which the amount of the investment thereof could be ascertained. Held, that (notwithstanding a statute, which superseded the proceeding by bill in equity for discovery in aid of another action) the complaint stated a good cause of action in equity. Schwickerath v. Sohen, 48 Wis. 599.

But a bill against an executor, for an account of the proceeds of real estate sold under a power in a will, cannot be maintained where it appears that no proceedings have been taken in a probate court to compel an account, and where it does not appear that the executor may not have given a special bond to the probate court, under the provisions of Gen. Stat. Mass. c. 102, § 6, to account for the proceeds of real estate to be sold. Ammidown v. Kinsey, 144 Mass. 587.

So an action by a stockholder of a bank, against its directors, to call them to account as trustees, is triable by a court of equity. Brinckerhoff v. Bostwick, 105 N. Y. 567.

Where matter of account against an insolvent co-tenant for past profits of the land is involved, and where partition of the premises cannot be made without a sale, equity has jurisdiction to decree partition and account. Lowe v. Burke (Ga.), 3 S. E. Rep. 449.

On the other hand, a bill for an account showing no confusion or complication in the accounts, and in fact only presenting the respective liabilities of two sets of sureties on an official bond, shows no ground for equity jurisdiction. Grafton v. Reed, 26 W. Va. 437; Upton v. Paxton (Iowa), 33 N. W. Rep. 773; Bowen v. Johnson, 12 Ga. 9; Cummins v. White, 4 Blackf. (Ind.) 356. Compare Barnum v. Landon, 25 Conn. 137.

Nor will equity take jurisdiction where the accounts are all on one side: the amount being ascertainable by simple calculation, the remedy at law is adequate.

5. Partition.—Partition is the dividing of lands held by joint tenants, coparceners, or tenants in common, into distinct portions, so that they may hold them in severalty.<sup>1</sup>

6. Dower.—Dower is the provision which the law makes for a widow out of the lands or tenements of her husband, for her support and the nurture of her children.<sup>2</sup>

7. Boundaries.—The jurisdiction of the court of chancery in regard to disputed boundaries is of very ancient, but somewhat uncertain, origin. As a general rule, a court of equity has no jurisdiction to fix the boundaries of legal estates, unless some equity is superinduced by the act of the parties, or unless some particular circumstance of fraud or collusion exists.<sup>3</sup>

Avery v. Ware, 58 Ala. 475; Building Association's Appeal, 83 Pa. St. 441; Walker v. Cheever, 35 N. H. 339.

And equity will not entertain a suit on a guardian's bond to compel an accounting, without a showing that the power of the probate court in the premises is insufficient. Gorman v. Taylor, 43 Ohio St. 86.

So a claim which in effect is merely for damages for breach of contract, cannot sustain a suit in equity for an accounting. Linn v. Gunn, 56 Mich. 447.

It is improper to order an account merely to establish by testimony the allegations of the bill. Lively v. Winton (W. Va.), 4 S. E. Rep. 451.

And where the complainant has been guilty of unreasonable delay in filing his bill, so that the transactions have become obscured by lapse of time, equity will not order an account, even though the lapse of time does not amount to a statutory bar. Harrison v. Gibson, 23 Gratt. (Va.) 212.

And as to what circumstances are sufficient to induce the court to re-open an account, see Patton v. Cone, 1 Lea (Tenn.), 14.

A court of equity has no jurisdiction of a bill for an account of profits brought by one, out of possession, who claims to be a joint owner of an oil-well, against his alleged co-tenants, until the question of title is first determined by a court of law. Frisbee's Appeal, 88 Pa. St. 144.

This jurisdiction is in most cases concurrent with that of courts of law. Bruce v. Burdet, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 80; Power v. Reeder, 9 Dana (Ky.), 6; McKim v. Odone, 12 Me. 94; Jewett v. Bowman, 29 N. J. Eq. 174.

And it may be said in general, that in all cases where an action of account would be the proper remedy, and in all cases where a trustee is a party, the jurisdiction of equity is undoubted. Baker v. Biddle, Baldw. (U. S.) 394.

1. Brown's Law Dict. The jurisdiction of courts of equity in cases of partition arises from the inadequacy of the common-law remedy. See title "Partition."

2. Bouvier's Law Dict. See title "Dower."

3. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 552, § 503.

Where a settlement of the disputed boundaries cannot be had at law without multiplicity of suits, relief may be had at equity. Bouverie v. Prentice, 1 Bro. Ch. 200; Commissioners v. Glasse, 41 L. J. Ch. 409; DeVeney v. Gallagher, 20 N. J. Eq. 33.

Certain relations between the parties may give the court jurisdiction; e.g., where one of the parties was a tenant or copyholder. Attorney-Gen'l. v. Stephens, 6 De G. M. & G. 111, 133; Clayton v. Cookes, 2 Atk. 449; Spike v. Harding, L. R. 7 Ch. D. 871.

So where the party against whom the relief is sought has been guilty of fraud or neglect. Wake v. Conyers, 1 Eden, 331; Pratt v. Bryant, 20 Vt. 333; Perry v. Pratt, 31 Conn. 433; Fraley v. Peters, 12 Bush (Ky.), 469; Wolfe v. Scarborough, 2 Ohio St. 361.

Where the owner of land broke down the dam, and ploughed up the raceway which led from it so that it was difficult for the plaintiff, who had the right to use them, to ascertain and define their course. Merriman v. Russell, 2 Jo. Eq. (N. C.) 470.

When a question of boundary affects a large number of persons, and by proceeding in equity to determine the controversy a multiplicity of actions at law will be prevented, the additional circumstance that "the boundaries have become confused by lapse of time, accident, or mistake," is all that is required to give a court of equity jurisdiction of the case. Beatty v. Dixon, 56 Cal. 619.

But a mere confusion of boundaries will not be sufficient to sustain a bill. Wolcott v. Robbins, 26 Conn. 236; Doggett v. Hart, 5 Fla. 215; Topp v. Williams, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 569; Haskell v. Allen, 23 Me. 448; Tilmes v. Marsh, 67 Pa. St. 507; Wetherbee v. Dunn, 36 Cal. 249; Bresler v. Pitts, 58 Mich. 347.

8. Rent. — The jurisdiction of courts of equity in regard to rent rests upon principles analogous to those which are applied in cases of confusion of boundaries.<sup>1</sup>

9. Partnership Bills. — Partnership bills are generally designed to effect a dissolution of the partnership, the protection of its property, an account, and a distribution of its assets.<sup>2</sup>

10. Creditors' Bills. — These are bills in equity filed by one or more creditors, by and on behalf of himself or themselves, and all other creditors who shall come in under the decree for an account of the assets and a due administration of the estate.<sup>3</sup>

11. Administration Suits. — When bills for getting in and distributing the estate of a decedent are filed by legatees, they are generally termed administration suits.<sup>4</sup>

12. Protection of Infants, Idiots, and Lunatics. — The jurisdiction of the court of chancery in these cases in its inception belonged to the king, as part of his power as parens patriæ to protect his subjects, and was by him transferred to the court of chancery.<sup>5</sup>

13. Discovery. — Revealing or disclosing a matter. The courts of common law were originally unable to compel a litigant to disclose any fact resting merely within his knowledge, or discover any document in his power which would aid in the enforcement of a right, the repelling of an unjust demand, or the redress of a wrong, — an infirmity which the equity judges cured by compelling such a party to disclose the fact, or discover the document, upon his oath, in his answer to a bill of complaint, filed by the opposite party, called a bill of discovery which was an original bill.<sup>6</sup>

14. Bills Quia Timet. — Bills quia timet are bills in equity, entertained to guard against possible or prospective injuries, and to preserve the means by which existing rights may be protected from future or contingent violations; differing from injunctions in that the latter correct past and present, or imminent and certain,

And it is necessary for the complainant to show that some portion of the lands, the boundary of which is in dispute, are in the possession of the defendant. Atty.-Genl. v. Stephens, 6 De G. M. & G. 111.

And he must establish a clear title to some land in the possession of the defendant. Godfrey v. Littel, 1 Rus. & My. 59; 2 Rus. & My. 630.

All parties interested in the lands must be made parties, although they need not all be joined as plaintiffs. Miller v. Warrington, 1 J & W. 484; Pope v. Melone, 2 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 239.

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 554, § 504. Dawson v. Williams, 1 Freem. Ch. (Miss.) 99; Lawrence v. Hammett, 3 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 287; Livingston v. Livingston, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 294; Ryall v. Prince, 71 Ala. 66. See also 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 693, § 684 et seq. And see title "Rent."

2. Bispham's Eq. 556, § 505. See title "Partnership Bills."

3. In the United States the term is also used of a suit to enforce a judgment as a lien in equity against the property of the debtor: in the code States, proceedings supplementary to execution in the original action have, however, for the most part, superseded the creditors' bill in this sense of the term. Rapalje & Lawrence's Law Dict. See title "Creditors' Bills."

4. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 576, § 528. See titles "Creditors' Bills" and "Executors and Administrators."

5. 2 Story's Eq. Jur. (13th ed.) 665, § 1333; 3 Pomeroy's Eq. Jur. 327, § 1304; Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 589, § 542. See titles "Infants, Idiots," and "Lunatics."

6. Wharton's Law Lex. See title "Discovery."

EQUITY OF REDEMPTION—EQUITY PLEADINGS.

injuries, while the former proceed to the extent of securing rights against an invasion which need not be imminent and certain, but which may be only future and contingent.<sup>1</sup>

15. Receivers.—A receiver is a person appointed by a court possessing chancery jurisdiction to receive the rents and profits of land, or the profits or produce of other property in dispute.<sup>2</sup>

16. Writs of Ne Exeat.—These are writs which issue from a court of equity to restrain a person from going out of the country without the leave of the court.<sup>3</sup>

EQUITY OF REDEMPTION.—See MORTGAGES and EQUITABLE MORTGAGES.

EQUITY PLEADINGS.

I. Difference between Legal and Equitable Pleadings, 726.

II. The Code System abolishes Former Distinctions, 726.

III. Pleadings in Equity defined, 727.

IV. Bill in Equity defined, 727.

1. Nature and Form of Bill.—Generally, 728.

2. General Division, 729.

a. Original Bills, 729.

b. Bills not Original, 729.

c. Other Bills, 729.

(1) Original Bills.—Subdivisions, 729.

(a) Bills for Relief defined, 729.

(b) Bills not of Relief defined, 729.

(c) Bills for Relief.—Subdivisions, 729.

(d) Bills not of Relief.—Subdivisions, 730.

(2) Bills not Original.—Subdivisions, 730.

3. Informations, 730.

(A) Original Bills.—Their Several Parts, their Form, 730.

1. The Address, 731.

2. The Introductory Part, 731.

a. Parties in General, 731.

(1) A Rule of Convenience, 733.

(2) Exceptions to Rule, 733.

(a) Party not within the Jurisdiction of the Court, 734.

(b) Where a Personal Representative is a Necessary Party, 734.

(c) Where Parties are Unknown, 734.

(d) Where Parties are very Numerous, 734.

(e) One in Behalf of All, 735.

(f) Creditors and Legatees, 736.

(g) Voluntary Associations, 737.

(h) One Stockholder in Behalf of Others, 737.

(i) Prize-money, 737.

(j) Other Exceptions, 737.

b. Who are Necessary Parties, 738.

(1) Parties Plaintiff, 739.

(a) Lunatics, 739.

(b) Infants, 739.

(c) Those reduced by Age or Infirmary, 740.

(d) Married Woman, 740.

(e) Corporations, 741.

(f) Foreign Corporations, 741.

(g) Attorney-General, 742.

(h) Alien Sovereign, 742.

(i) Aliens, 742.

(j) Joinder of, 742.

(k) Joinder of Government, 744.

(2) Parties Defendant, 744.

(a) Married Woman, 745.

(b) Infants, and those reduced by Old Age or Infirmary, 745.

(c) Idiots and Lunatics, 745.

(d) Corporations, 746.

(e) Joinder, 747.

c. Other Parties, 747.

(1) Partners, 747.

(2) Bill to foreclose, 748.

(3) Bill to redeem, 749.

(4) Creditors and Debtors, 750.

(5) Trustees and Cestuis Que Trust, 750.

(a) Exceptions to Rule, 751.

(6) Heirs, devisees, and Distributees, 752.

(7) Assignors and Assignees, 752.

1. Bispham's Eq. (4th ed.) 607, § 568. See title "Bills Quia Timet."

2. Bouvier's Law Dict. See title "Receivers."

3. Rap. & L. Law Dict. See title "Writ of Ne Exeat."

Authorities on Equity.—Bispham's Principles of Equity, 4th ed.; Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence; Story's Equity Jurisprudence, 13th ed.; Adam's Doctrine of Equity, 7th Am. ed.; Smith's Manual of Equity, 13th ed.; Francis, Maxims of Equity, 1st Am. ed.; Bouvier's, Rapalje & Lawrence's, Burrill's and Brown's, Law Dictionaries; Wharton's Law Lexicon.

- (8) Vendor, 753.
- (9) Account, 753.
- 3. The Stating Part of the Bill, 753.
  - a. Scandal and Impertinence, 757.
    - (1) Scandal defined, 757.
    - (2) Impertinence defined, 757.
  - b. Multifariousness, 758.
- 4. The Confederacy Clause, 761.
- 5. The Charging Part, 761.
- 6. The Jurisdiction Clause, 762.
- 7. The Interrogatory Part, 762.
- 8. The Prayer for Relief, 763.
- 9. The Prayer for Process, 765.
- 10. The Signature, 765.
- (B) Original Bills praying for Relief, 765.
  - 1. Specific Performance, 765.
  - 2. Bills for Partition, 766.
  - 3. Bills of Peace, 766.
  - 4. Bills Quia Timet, 766.
  - 5. Bills of Foreclosure, 766.
  - 6. Bills to redeem, 767.
  - 7. Bills for Injunction, 767.
  - 8. Bills of Interpleader, 767.
  - 9. Bills of Certiorari, 769.
- (C) Other Bills in the Nature of Original Bills, 769.
  - 1. Cross-bill, 769.
  - 2. Bill of Review, 771.
  - 3. Bill in the Nature of Bills of Review, 772.
  - 4. Bills to impeach a Decree on the Ground of Fraud, 773.
  - 5. Bill to suspend or avoid the Execution of a Decree, 773.
  - 6. Bill to carry a Decree into Execution, 773.
  - 7. Bills in the Nature of Bills of Revivor, 773.
  - 8. Bills in the Nature of Supplemental Bills, 774.
- (D) Original Bills not praying for Relief, 774.
  - 1. Bills to perpetuate Testimony, 774.
  - 2. Bills of Discovery, 775.
- (E) Bills not Original, 776.
  - 1. Supplemental Bills, 776.
  - 2. Bills of Revivor, 779.
  - 3. Bills of Revivor and Supplement, 780.
- V. Nature and Modes of Defence, 781.
  - 1. Nature of Defence, 781.
  - 2. Modes of Defence, 781.
  - (A) Demurrers, 781.
    - 1. Generally, 781.
    - 2. General and Special, 783.
    - 3. Ore Tenus, 783.
    - 4. Demurrers to Bills of Relief, 783.
      - a. To the Jurisdiction, 784.
      - b. To the Person, 784.
      - c. To the Matter of the Bill, 785.
        - (1) As to Substance, 785.
        - (2) As to Form, 785.
          - (a) For Uncertainty, 785.
          - (b) For Want of Proper Parties, 785.
    - (c) Non-Joinder and Misjoinder of Parties, 786.
    - (d) Multifariousness, 787.
    - (e) Statute of Frauds, 787.
    - (f) Statute of Limitations, 787.
    - (g) For Laches, 787.
  - 5. Demurrers to Bills of Discovery, 788.
    - a. Discovery must be Material, 789.
    - b. By Reason of the Situation of the Party, 789.
    - c. That Plaintiff shows no Title, 789.
  - 6. Demurrers to Other Bills, 789.
    - a. Bills of Interpleader, 789.
    - b. Bills of Review, 790.
    - c. Supplemental Bills, 790.
    - d. Cross-bills, 790.
- (B) Pleas, 791.
  - 1. Plea defined, 791.
  - 2. Plea in General, 791.
  - 3. Pleas to Bills of Relief, 792.
    - a. To the Jurisdiction, 792.
    - b. To the Person, 792.
    - c. In Bar, 793.
      - (1) Of the Statute of Limitations, 793.
      - (2) Of Frauds and Perjuries, 793.
      - (3) Matters of Record and in Pais, 794.
      - (4) Of the Pendency of another Suit in Equity, 794.
      - (5) Purchaser for a Valuable Consideration, 794.
      - (6) Other Pleas in Bar, 794.
  - 4. Pleas to Bills of Discovery, 795.
    - a. To the Jurisdiction, 795.
    - b. To the Person, 795.
    - c. In Bar, 795.
      - (1) Statute of Limitations, 795.
      - (2) Award, 795.
      - (3) Release or Compromise, 795.
      - (4) Purchaser for Valuable Consideration, 795.
      - (5) Penalty for Forfeiture, 795.
  - 5. Pleas to Bills to perpetuate Testimony, 796.
  - 6. Pleas to Bills not Original, 796.
    - a. Pleas to Supplemental Bills, 796.
    - b. Pleas to Bills of Revivor, 796.
  - 7. Pleas to Other Bills, 796.
    - a. Pleas to Cross-bills, 796.
    - b. Pleas to Bills of Review, 796.
    - c. Pleas to Bills to impeach a Decree on the Ground of Fraud, 797.
    - d. Pleas to Bills to carry a Decree into Execution, 797.
- (C) The Answer, 797.
  - 1. Supplemental Answer, 802.
  - 2. Demurrers, Pleas, and Answers, 803.
- (D) Disclaimer, 804.
- (E) Replication, 804.
- (F) Exceptions, 805.
- (G) Amendments, 806.

I. Difference between Legal and Equitable Pleadings.— Under the form of procedure existing prior to the code system adopted at the present time in several of the States, the pleadings in an action or suit at law and at equity differed. In law there were certain prescribed forms to which the pleader, in setting out his case, must adhere with no material deviation, no matter what the actual facts might be in his case. There was also a class of cases for which the courts of law afforded no plain, adequate, or complete remedy, or which the courts of law under their strict rules of pleading could not reach at all. To obtain his remedy in such cases, the party might come into a court of equity, and present the facts on which he relied for relief according to certain rules of pleading and practice which prevailed in that court. The administration of equity rested exclusively in courts whose sole province was to administer equity, and which were separate and distinct from courts of law. Courts of equity did not, however, give any different construction to the law from that governing courts of law, and were equally bound by precedents, but they might enlarge or illustrate the principles governing decisions in prior cases: in fact, courts of equity have always endeavored, in cases properly before them, to control the remedy so as to give all parties their real and substantial rights when possible under the rules by which they are governed.<sup>1</sup>

II. The Code System abolishes Former Distinctions.— In those States where the code system exists, all former rules of pleading and practice have become merged therein, and in some cases abolished: although "the former distinctions which existed between common law and equity pleadings no longer exist," and "the code has reduced all to one common system," yet "the old and well-established principles of pleading," as determined by precedents, are resorted to in construing the code so far as is practicable.<sup>2</sup>

1. 1 Story's Eq. Jur. (11th ed.) § 33; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 1, et seq.

"There is a strict analogy between the pleadings in equity and those at common law." Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 155, § 203, et seq.; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 19-23.

"Where the common-law forms are inadequate to do justice, the courts, as courts of equity, may, in order to reach the equity of the case, so mould and adapt their forms to the circumstances as to accomplish that purpose." Mathews v. Stephenson, 6 Pa. St. 496, 498.

Equity will give parties their substantial rights, even though there be no exact precedent to the case. Thus, where a personal action was enjoined by bill filed by defendant, and soon after the defendant died, held that equity would give relief against the executor. Pulteney v. Warren, 6 Ves. 73, 88.

"Where, by interposition of court to prevent an act, the defendant has lost a remedy at law, the court of equity will give him a remedy equivalent to that from which the interposition of the court has barred him." Brown v. Newall, 2 My. & Cr. 558, 572; Morgan v. Morgan, 2 Dick. 643.

2. Bowen v. Aubrey, 22 Cal. 566, 570; White v. Lyons, 42 Cal. 279, 282; Wa Ching v. Constantine, 1 Idaho, N. S. 266; Harper v. Harper, 10 Bush (Ky.), 447, 457; Bank of Genesee v. Patchin Bank, 13 N. Y. 309, 313, somewhat qualifies this statement; Moore v. Edmiston, 70 N. Car. 510, 518; Pomeroy's Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 28, 35, 36, 44, 70-73; Stevens v. The Mayor of New York, 84 N. Y. 296; Millikin v. Cary, 5 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 272, 274; Kloune v. Bradstreet, 7 Ohio St. 322; Matlock v. Todd, 25 Ind. 128; Lattin v. McCarty, 41 N. Y. 107, 110; Bonesteel v. Bonesteel, 28 Wis. 245.

III. Pleadings in Equity defined.—Pleadings in equity are the written statements of the parties, setting out, in conformity with certain established rules, the matters and facts relied upon by the respective parties to the suit, in order to maintain or to defeat it, or to obtain or prevent the equitable interposition of the court concerning the relief sought.<sup>1</sup>

IV. Bill in Equity defined.—A bill in equity, or, as it is sometimes called, a petition in equity, is a statement in writing of the plaintiff's case, whereby he seeks equitable relief, and it answers

This last case decides that the writ of ne exeat regno cannot issue in an action at law, since the code abolishes distinctions only of form, and not of remedy. Peck v. Newton, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 173; Goulet v. Asselar, 22 N. Y. 225, 228; Troost v. Davis, 31 Ind. 34, 39.

It is said by the court in Myers v. Field, 37 Mo. 434, 441, "that the distinction between law and equity has not been abolished by the new code of practice. Equitable rights are still to be determined according to the doctrines of equity jurisprudence, and in the peculiar modes of proceeding which are sometimes required in such cases, and legal rights are to be ascertained and adjudged upon principles of law; and the rules of proceeding at law are, in many respects, very different from those which are applied to equity cases. Pleadings should be drawn up with reference to these distinctions, though in the form prescribed by statute. Where the petition is framed for legal redress, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to prove his equitable rights, though the facts be stated to some extent in its petition. If he seeks equitable relief, the facts must be stated in such manner as to show that he is entitled to the relief prayed for as under the former practice; if he claims redress at law, the essential elements of his cause of action must be stated with reasonable clearness and certainty."

Codes, constitutions, and rules governing forms and methods of civil procedure:—

Alabama.—Constitution 1875 (in Code of 1876, art. 4, sec. 46); Keyes, Wood, & Requemoire's Code 1876-1877.

Arkansas.—Code approved 1868; Gantt's Digest 1874; Mansfield's Digest 1884.

California.—Deering's Codes 1885; Hutell's Codes (3 vols.) 1876-1880.

Colorado.—Code of Civil Procedure 1877.

Connecticut.—Practice Act of 1879; Gen. Stat. (Rev. 1887) sec. 872, et seq.

Dakota Territory.—Revised Codes 1877; Levisse's Codes (2 vols.) 1883.

Delaware.—Revised Code of 1852, amended 1874.

Georgia.—Constitution 1877 (in Code 1882), art. 6, secs. 2, 4; Revised Code 1873, Supplement 1878, Revision 1882.

Idaho Territory.—Code of Civil Procedure 1881.

Illinois.—Chancery Act in Starr & Curtis's Annotated Statutes 1885, chap. 22.

Indiana.—Constitution 1851 (in Rev. Stat. 1881), art. 7, sec. 20; Revised Codes 1881.

Iowa.—Miller's Iowa Code (2 vols.) 1880, and McClain's Annotated Iowa Code (2 vols.) 1880.

Kentucky.—Constitution 1850 (in Gen. Stat. 1873), art. 8, sec. 22; Bullitt's Codes of 1876.

Louisiana.—Voorhies' Revised Civil Code 1875.

Maryland.—Code and Supplement (2 vols.) 1878-1880.

Michigan.—Constitution 1850 (in Howell's Stat. 1882), art. 6, sec. 5.

Mississippi.—Revised Code 1880.

Montana.—Code 1879.

Nevada.—Constitution 1864 (Compiled Laws 1873), art. 6, sec. 14.

New York.—Bliss's N. Y. Code Annotated, 2 vols. 1878, 1880; Code of Civil Procedure 1881, vol. 4; Banks & Bros'. Rev. Stat. 7th ed.

North Carolina.—Constitution 1868, amended 1876 (in Code 1883), art. 4, sec. 1; Code 1883.

Ohio.—Constitution 1851 (in Rev. Stat. 1880), art. 14, sec. 2; Rev. Stat. 1880.

Oregon.—Code Gen. Laws 1872.

South Carolina.—Constitution of 1868 (in Gen. Stat. 1882), art. 5, sec. 3; Code of Civil Proc. Gen. Stat. 1882.

Tennessee.—Milliken & Ventree's Code 1884.

Utah.—Code of Civ. Proc. chap. 55, Biennial laws 1884.

Virginia.—Code 1873.

Washington Territory.—Wash. Ter. Code 1881.

Wisconsin.—Constitution 1868 (Gen. Stat. 1882), art. 7, sec. 22.

Wyoming.—Civil Code, chap. 13, Compiled Laws 1876.

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 4 and 5 and note; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 24, sec. 7.

to the declaration at law.<sup>1</sup> The bill, with few exceptions, has always been in the English language, and, when preferred to the king in his High Court of Chancery, was called an English bill, since proceedings in suits within the ordinary jurisdiction of the court were anciently entered and enrolled in the French or Norman tongue, and afterwards in Latin; the same as pleadings in other common-law courts.<sup>2</sup>

1. Nature and Form of Bill. — Generally. — Formerly bills in equity were of great simplicity: the facts were clearly and briefly set out. Sometimes, in the most early practice, neither relief was asked, nor process prayed for, the bill merely petitioning the court or chancellor to examine defendant; or, in those cases where relief was asked, the prayer for process followed no regular form.<sup>3</sup>

As the affairs of business grew more complex, and the rights of parties consequently more numerous, bills in equity necessarily began to assume a more regular form so far as pleading and practice were concerned: such later bills simply alleged the facts upon which the plaintiff based his claims for relief, and contained a prayer to the court for such relief in equity as the facts warranted, and that a subpœna or other suitable writ might issue against the defendant for that purpose.

By degrees, however, parts were added to the bill, until equity pleading has reached its present complex form, and has become a science requiring great learning and technical knowledge to master it in its various branches, as well as the exercise of sound legal discretion and judgment to properly plead and practise it. But, as is said by Justice Story, "The statement of the case, and prayer of the bill for relief or otherwise, always were, and continue to be to this day, the very substance and essence of the bill."<sup>4</sup>

The fact that the early chancellors were ecclesiastics who were learned only in the civil and canon law, accounts for the similarity existing between the pleadings and practice in the chancery courts and the pleadings and practice in the civil law, although the systems have now for a long time been entirely distinct and separate.<sup>5</sup>

1. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 33, § 11, 165, § 216; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 7; Webster v. Harris, 16 Ohio, 490, 503; Bailey v. Ryder, 10 N. Y. 363, 369; Harding v. Handy, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 103, 120.

2. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 7 and 8; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 7.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 11, 12. Formerly the prayer for general relief was sufficient. 2 Madd. Chan. 138.

Formerly very little more than the stating part and a simple prayer was contained in the bill. 2 Madd. Chan. 137.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 12, 13, et seq.; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 19-23.

5. Reeve's Hist. Eng. Law (Amer. ed. 1879), 553.

Rule 90, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "In all cases where the rules prescribed by this court or by the circuit court do not apply, the practice of the circuit court shall be regulated by the present practice of the High Court of Chancery in England, so far as the same may reasonably be applied consistently with the local circumstances and local conveniences of the district where the court is held, not as positive rules, but as furnishing just analogies to regulate the practice." Desty's Fed. Proc. (Pract. Ser.) 730.

2. General Division. — Bills are divided into original and not original.<sup>1</sup>

a. Original Bills are those which the same persons, having the same interests, have not before litigated in the court.<sup>2</sup>

b. Bills not Original are in addition to, or a continuance of, an original bill, or both, and relate, therefore, to some matter already in controversy between the same parties, or their privies, as in cases of Bills of Revivor.<sup>3</sup>

c. Other Bills. — To these bills were added, by the old pleadings in equity, a certain kind of bills, which are, for the most part, still in use, and were classed under bills in the nature of original bills. These were bills to review proceedings already had in the court, to suspend or impeach decrees, to carry the same into effect, or to set up by the defendant some affirmative matter connected, or not inconsistent, with the matter in controversy by the original bill.<sup>4</sup>

(1) Original Bills. — Subdivisions. — Original bills are divided into those praying relief, and not praying relief.<sup>5</sup>

(a) Bills for Relief defined. — Bills for relief are those that seek for an adjudication upon the merits of the very suit before the court to ascertain present existing rights, and remedy present wrongs. Only those original bills wherein a decree of the court is asked, are technically termed bills for relief.<sup>6</sup>

(b) Bills not of Relief defined. — All other bills, as those seeking relief from future apprehended injury, or seeking relief affecting suits in courts of ordinary jurisdiction, are technically bills not of relief. The distinction between these two kinds of original bills is not a matter of mere form, but goes to the life of the bill.<sup>7</sup>

(c) Bills for Relief. — Subdivisions. — Bills for relief are again divided into (1) a bill praying the decree of the court touching some right claimed by the plaintiff in opposition to the defendant, (2) a bill of interpleader, (3) a certiorari bill.<sup>8</sup>

1. Hinde's Chan. 19; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 31.

2. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 31, 36; Robinson's Elementary Law (ed. 1882), 208, § 334; Hinde's Chan. 19; 1 Danell's Chan. Plead. and Pract. (3d Amer. ed.) 307; Adams' Eq. (3d Amer. ed.) 671, side page 301.

3. 1 Dan. Chan. Plead. and Pract. (3d Amer. ed.) 307; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 31, 53; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 188; Robinson's Elementary Law (ed. 1882), 208, § 334; 2 Madd. Chan. 135, side page 136; Hinde's Chan. 19; Adams' Eq. (3d Amer. ed.) 671, side page 301.

4. In Mitford's Plead. (2d ed.) 31-34, 43, 66, 67, 74-89, these bills are classed as bills in the nature of original bills, and are divided into (1) cross-bills; (2) bill of review; (3) bill in nature of bill of review; (4) bill to impeach a decree on the ground of fraud;

(5) bill to suspend or avoid the execution of a decree; (6) bill to carry a decree into execution; (7) bill in the nature of a bill of revivor; (8) bill in the nature of a supplemental bill. Hinde's Chan. 20, 21. A similar division is made in Equity Draughtsman by Hughes, 444, 445.

5. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 32, 36; Hinde's Chan. 19.

6. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 186; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 17.

7. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 17; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 186, § 247.

8. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 36, 37, 47, 49; Hinde's Chan. 19, 20.

Original bills praying for relief are divided as follows in the Equity Draughtsman by Hughes, 8-350: (1) Bills for specific performance of agreements; (2) bills to cancel agreements, bills of exchange,

(d) Bills not of Relief. — Subdivisions. — Bills not praying for relief are divided into (1) a bill to perpetuate testimony, (2) a bill for discovery.<sup>1</sup>

(2) Bills not Original. — Subdivisions. — Bills not original are divided into (1) a supplemental bill, (2) a bill of revivor, (3) a bill of revivor and supplement.<sup>2</sup>

3. Informations are generally brought in the name of the attorney-general, or other public officer, in behalf of the crown or government itself, or of those under its peculiar protection. In the latter case a relator is named, and sometimes so in the former. An information differs from an ordinary bill in no respect except its form.<sup>3</sup>

(A) ORIGINAL BILLS. — Their Several Parts, their Form. We have seen that original bills are divided into two principal parts, viz., those praying relief, and those not praying relief; although in a certain sense all bills pray relief,<sup>4</sup> and of bills praying relief those most frequently brought are the first class, which pray the decree of the court touching some right claimed by the plaintiff in opposition to the defendant. These will therefore be first treated of as to their form, and then as to their substance. It is equally necessary that a bill should be convenient in form as well as sufficient in substance.<sup>5</sup>

The form of an original bill consists of nine parts; viz., (1) the address; (2) the introductory part, which contains the names and description or abode of the parties; (3) the stating part, or that which contains a statement of the plaintiff's case; (4) the general charge of confederacy against the persons complained of; (5) the charging part of the bill, which is in anticipation of the defence, wherein the plaintiff alleges that the defendant pretends to set up certain matters in defence, and so avoid such matter by charging it. This part is used also to put in issue a matter which plaintiff does not believe it for his interest to admit, or to obtain a discovery of the defence; (6) the jurisdiction clause, so called because it is here averred that the acts complained of are contrary to equity, and that he is compelled to come into a court of equity for bonds, and other instruments; (3) bills relating to annuities; (4) bills by assignees on behalf of bankrupt estates; (5) a certiorari bill; (6) bill to compel the acceptance of a composition; (7) bill to restrain the infringement of a copyright; (8) bills by creditors for payment of debts; (9) bill to compel the delivery of title-deeds; (10) bill for dower; (11) bills of foreclosure; (12) bills of interpleader; (13) bill for the payment of legacies, and also to carry the trusts of wills into execution; (14) bills by and against lords of manors; (16) bills by next of kin for account; (17) bills for partition; (18) bills relating to partnership matters; (20) bills for redemption; (22) bills for appointment of new trustees; (23) bills by underwriters in respect to frauds practised upon them in the insurance of ships; (24) bills to restrain waste.

1. Equity Draughtsman (by Hughes), 359-373; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 50, 52.

2. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 33, 53, et seq; Hinde's Chan. 20.

3. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 173, 204, 134 f, 172; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 90, et seq.; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 7, 8, 49; Hinde's Chan. 73; 2 Bouv. Law Dict. 339, title "Pleadings in Chancery," Ld. Redes. Treat. Pl. (4th ed.) 22, 99, and notes; 2 Madd. Chan. 133, side page 135.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 17.

5. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 41.

a remedy; (7) the interrogating part; (8) the special prayer for relief, also a general prayer for relief; (9) the prayer for process.<sup>1</sup>

1. The Address or direction of the bill contains the title and style of the court to which the bill is brought.<sup>2</sup>

2. The Introductory Part contains the names and residences of the parties, and such further necessary description as to show them to be within the jurisdiction of the court, and also that the court may know of whom to compel performance of any decree or order made in the premises, and to whom to look for payment of costs.<sup>3</sup>

But it has been held that if matter, which is properly of introduction, is stated elsewhere in the pleadings, as in case of citizenship of a corporation, it is sufficient.<sup>4</sup>

a. Parties in General.—See sub-title "Multifariousness," post. As a general rule, all persons who have a legal or beneficial interest in the subject-matter of the suit should be made parties, either plaintiffs or defendants, no matter how numerous they may be, to prevent multiplicity of suits, and to enable the court to determine, and finally settle, the rights of all.<sup>5</sup>

1. 2 Madd. Chan. 135, 136; Equity Draughtsman (by Hughes), 1; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 41-46; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 26-47; Hinde's Chan. 15-18; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 182 et seq.

There are four parts given in Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 166, which are as follows: "(1) The circumstantial statement of the relation, including the inducement or introductory part; (2) the incidents which produce the grievance complained of, including the requests made to the defendant, and his refusal; (3) the statement of such collateral circumstances, if necessary, by way of charge, as may compel the defendant to acknowledge the grievance, or which may anticipate and controvert his defence; (4) and lastly, by reason of the foregoing complaint, and for want of adequate remedy at common law, it concludes with a petition for the subpoena, to the end that the defendant may answer the premises, and the court decree relief." 3 Amer. & Eng. Ency. of Law, 199 et seq. title "Bill of Discovery."

2. Hinde's Chan. 15; 2 Madd. Chan. 133, side page 135; Cooper's Eq. Pl. 9; Van Heyth's Eq. Drafts, 2; Sterrick v. Pugsley, 1 Flip. (U. S.) 350. This case decides that a bill addressed to the circuit court in equity as the "Circuit Court in Chancery sitting" is sufficient.

3. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 86, 87; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 41.

4. Muller v. Dows, 94 U. S. 444; Bingham v. Cabot, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 382; Jackson v. Ashton, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 148.

In describing a corporation defendant, it is not sufficient to say the L. Co. a citizen of the State of Indiana, but it must be clearly stated to be a corporation. This may, however, be stated in pleadings subsequent to the complaint. Lafayette Ins. Co. v. French, 18 How. (U. S.) 404.

The Rules of Pleading in Equity in the United States courts provide, in regard to the Introductory Part, that "Every bill, in the introductory part thereof, shall contain the names, places of abode, and citizenship of all the parties, plaintiffs and defendants, by and against whom the bill is brought." Rule 20, U. S. Eq. Rules; Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 688, and cases cited.

5. 2 Madd. Chan. 143; Hinde's Chan. 2; Chicago, etc., Land Co. v. Peck, 112 Ill. 408; Gaston v. Plum, 14 Conn. 344, 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 76; Crocker v. Higgins, 7 Conn. 342; McGraw v. Bayard, 96 Ill. 146, 153; Vanhorn v. Duckworth, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 261; Hilton v. Lothrop, 46 Me. 297; Wendell v. Van Rensselaer, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 344, 349; Calvert on Parties, 1-11; Lyman v. Bonney, 101 Mass. 563; Miller v. Whittier, 32 Me. 203, 210; Trades Savings Bank v. Freeze, 26 N. J. Eq. 453; Busby v. Littlefield, 31 N. H. 193, 198; Caldwell v. Taggart, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 190, 203; McConnell v. McConnell, 11 Vt. 290; Ladd v. Harvey, 27 N. H. 372; Zelle v. W. B. Co., 10 Bradw. (Ill.) 335; Moore v. Hood, 9 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 311; Willis v. Henderson, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 13; Howell v. Harvey, 5 Ark. 270; Whelan v. Whelan, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 537; McArthur v. Scott, 113 U. S. 340; Boughton v. Allen, 11 Paige (N. Y.), 321; La Grange v. Merrill, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 625; Farmers and

So, generally, all persons should be made parties whose interests would necessarily be affected by the decree;<sup>1</sup> and the court may refuse to grant a decree until all are made parties who are entitled to be.<sup>2</sup>

It is no ground for dismissal of a suit, when all the parties are before the court, and there is a proper case for equitable interposition, that the parties are wrongly placed as plaintiff or defendant.<sup>3</sup>

Mechanics' Bank v. Polk, 1 Del. Chan. 167; Cornwall v. Lee, 14 Conn. 524.

"The codes . . . have taken the most general doctrines of equity in relation to parties, have put them into a statutory form, and have made them applicable without exception to all actions. Whether these doctrines have been entirely incorporated into the legal actions under the codes, has sometimes been doubted. It is universally admitted, however, that they are operative with their full force and effect in all equitable actions which may be brought in accordance with the new procedure." Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), § 247, pp. 297, 298.

There is a distinction made between the subject-matter and the object of the suit in connection with parties. Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 237.

"The interest need not be personal and beneficial. It includes any estate or right in the subject-matter, legal or equitable, whether beneficial to the holder thereof or not." Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), sec. 331.

By interest is meant something more than wishes or ardent feeling. "It implies a right in the subject of controversy which a decree more nearly or remotely may affect." Crocker v. Higgins, 7 Conn. 342; Story v. Livingston, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 359, 375.

Those whose interests are in issue are meant. Story v. Livingston, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 359, 375; Mechanics' Bank v. Seton, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 299, 306.

"The grand principle which underlies the doctrine of equity, in relation to parties, is, that every judicial controversy should, if possible, be ended in one litigation; that the decree pronounced in the single suit should determine all rights, interests, and claims; should ascertain and define all conflicting relations, and should forever settle all questions pertaining to the subject-matter." Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), § 247.

"The rule is almost inflexible; certainly so, where it can be done without extraordinary difficulty, or where the defendants are not very numerous, and do not reside in remote and distant countries, that all parties in interest shall be made defendants so that no decree shall be made which can affect their interest without their being heard." The court in Herrington v. Hubbard, 1 Scam. (Ill.) 569, 573; Smith v. Rotan, 44 Ill. 506.

1. "All persons whose interests are involved in the issue, and who must necessarily be affected by the decree, are necessary parties." Trades Savings Bank v. Freeze, 26 N. J. Eq. 453.

It is not necessary to make one a party who would not be affected by the decree. Allen v. Woodruff, 96 Ill. 11.

"Where a decree in the relation to the subject-matter of litigation can be made without a person who has an interest having that interest in any way concluded by the decree," that person need not be a party to the suit. Story v. Livingston, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 359, 375.

2. Townsend v. Anger, 3 Conn. 354, 357; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 137.

"In cases where several individuals and interests are concerned, a court of equity will in general require all parties interested to be made parties in a proceeding affecting such interests, either as plaintiffs or defendants, for the purpose of preventing further and unnecessary litigation, as well, also, that a decree may be formed which shall be safe for all who are bound to perform it." New London Bank v. Lee, 11 Conn. 112.

Generally, there can be no final decree until all parties are brought in whose interests are affected by it. Smith v. Rogers, 1 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 317.

3. West v. Bank of Rutland, 19 Vt. 403.

So it has been held that where one who was a necessary party to the bill was made complainant instead of being properly made a defendant, the court would not consider this an obstacle to the proper determination of the rights of the parties. Sapp v. Phelps, 92 Ill. 588, 595.

"Equity does not particularly concern itself with determining that such a person shall be a plaintiff, and such another a defendant, but rather requires in a more general form that the persons shall be parties so as to be bound by the decree, and is in general satisfied if they are thus brought before the court, either as plaintiffs or defendants." Pomeroy's Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), § 248.

The court will refuse to dismiss a bill merely for the want of necessary parties.

(1) Is a Rule of Convenience. — The rule that all persons materially interested in the suit, or likely to be affected in their rights by the decree, is a rule of convenience merely, and may be dispensed with when impracticable, extremely difficult, or very inconvenient, and is largely within the discretion of the court.<sup>1</sup>

(2) Exceptions to the Rule. — There are certain admitted exceptions to the rule, requiring all persons materially interested to be made parties, as where, 1st, a party is without the jurisdiction of the court; 2d, or where the fact that one is a personal representative is contested; 3d, or the parties are unknown; or, 4th, are very numerous, and also in other cases.<sup>2</sup>

Potter v. Holden, 31 Conn. 385; Nash v. Smith, 6 Conn. 421.

A mere agent is not properly a party. Case of allegation of fraud connecting agent with same held properly a party. Gartland v. Nunn, 11 Ark. 721.

"The privity necessary to exist between parties to proceedings in equity is not necessarily a privity of contract, but such as gives the complainant a title to sue the defendant." Busby v. Littlefield, 31 N. H. 193.

1. Wisner v. Blackly, 1 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 437; Wendell v. Van Rensselaer, 1 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 344; Vann v. Hargett, 2 Dev. & B. Eq. (N. Car.) 31; Townsend v. Anger, 3 Conn. 354, 357; Scofield v. Lansing, 17 Mich. 437; New London Bank v. Lee, 11 Conn. 112; 2 Madd. Chan. 143; Murray v. Hay, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 59; Harvey v. Harvey, 4 Beav. 215; Hallett v. Hallett, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 15, 18; Carey v. Hoxey, 11 Ga. 645, 648; Birdsong v. Birdsong, 2 Head (Tenn.), 289, 302; Donalds v. Plum, 8 Conn. 447.

It is declared by Chief Justice Marshall in Elmendorf v. Taylor, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 152, 166, that "this equitable rule (requiring all parties to be named) is framed by the court itself, and is subject to its discretion. It is not an inflexible rule, a failure to observe which turns the party out of court, but being introduced by the court itself, for the purpose of justice, is susceptible of modification for the promotion of these purposes."

As to nominal parties, Rule 54, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "Where no account, payment, conveyance, or other direct relief, is sought against a party to a suit, not being an infant, the party, upon service of the subpoena upon him, need not appear and answer the bill unless the plaintiff specially requires him so to do by the prayer of his bill; but he may appear and answer at his option; and if he does not appear and answer, he shall be bound by all the proceedings in the cause. If the plaintiff shall require him to appear and answer, he shall be entitled to the costs of all the proceedings against him, unless the court shall otherwise direct." Deasy's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 707.

2. Lucas v. Bank of Darien, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 280.

The rule as to privity between parties, complainants or defendants, where there is a community of interests, will not always be enforced when the court can do justice, and avoid multiplicity of suits. Kennedy v. Kennedy, 2 Ala. 571.

What is said in Willis v. Henderson, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 13, 19, is directly in point. The court, in that case, declares that "there are necessarily many exceptions, and we find the rule modified in a great many instances. One general rule, however, governs all of these exceptions; and that is, 'that as the object of the rule is to accomplish the purposes of justice between all of the parties, and as it is a rule founded in some sort upon public convenience and policy, rather than upon positive rules of municipal or general jurisprudence, courts of equity will not suffer it to be applied so as to defeat the very purposes of justice, if they can dispose of the merits of the case before them without prejudice to the rights or interests of other persons who are not parties, or if the circumstances of the case render the application of the rule impracticable, and if the persons thus interested are unknown to the complainant, he need not make them parties. And another exception is where the persons collaterally interested are exceedingly numerous, and it would be impracticable to join them without great delays and other inconveniences.'"

Rule 22, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "If any person, other than those named as defendants in the bill, shall appear to be necessary or proper parties thereto, the bill shall aver the reason why they are not made parties, by showing them to be without the jurisdiction of the court, or that they cannot be joined without ousting the jurisdiction of the court as to the other parties. And as to persons who are without the jurisdiction, and may properly be made parties, the bill may pray that pro-

(a) 1st, Where the Party is not within the Jurisdiction of the Court.—Such parties will be dispensed with when the decree will not prejudice their interests, or when they are not necessary to a proper and equitable adjustment of the case upon the bill.<sup>1</sup>

(b) 2d, Where a Personal Representative is a Necessary Party, and it is alleged in the bill that the representation is contested in the proper tribunal, such representative will be dispensed with as a party.<sup>2</sup>

(c) 3d, Where the Persons interested are Unknown to the Plaintiff.—In this case he may set forth the fact in his bill, and ask discovery of such parties, in order that they may be brought into court.<sup>3</sup>

(d) 4th, Where the Parties are very Numerous, and it would be impracticable, or lead to great expense or inconvenience, to bring them all into court, in such case the court may proceed to decree without them.<sup>4</sup>

cess may issue to make them parties to the bill if they should come within the jurisdiction." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 690.

1. 2 Madd. Chan. 143, et seq.; Story's Eq. Plead. §§ 78–90; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 77, Mitt. Plead. (2d ed.) 30, 146, 221; West v. Randall, 2 Mason (U. S.), 181, 192, 196; Vattier v. Hinde, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 252, 263; Traders' Bank v. Campbell, 14 Wall. (U. S.) 87, 94; Carey v. Hoxey, 11 Ga. 645, 648.

One outside of the jurisdiction need not be made a party if a decree can be made without manifest injustice to him. Towle v. Pierce, 12 Met. (Mass.) 329.

Where persons reside out of the jurisdiction of the court, or for any other reason cannot be brought in, it is not necessary to make them parties. Farmers' & Mechanics' Bank v. Polk, 1 Del. Chan. 167.

Rule 47, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "In all cases where it shall appear to the court that persons who might otherwise be deemed necessary or proper parties to the suit, cannot be made parties by reason of their being out of the jurisdiction of the court, or incapable otherwise of being made parties, or because their joinder will oust the jurisdiction of the court as to the parties before the court, the court may in their discretion proceed in the cause without making such persons parties; and in such cases the decree shall be without prejudice to the rights of the absent parties." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 703.

As to citizenship of parties in different States, when jurisdiction is dependent thereon, it must be averred. Wood v. Mann, 1 Sumn. (U. S.) 578; Speigle v. Meredith, 4 Biss. (U. S.) 120; Jackson v. Ashton, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 148.

That one properly a party, is out of the jurisdiction, should be alleged; and the bill should ask that he be made a party, in case he comes within the court's jurisdiction. Tobin v. Walkinshaw, McAll (U. S.), 26, 31.

2. Vann v. Hargett, 2 Dev. & B. Eq. (N. Car.) 31; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 91; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 77; Plunkett v. Penon, 2 Atk. 51.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 92; Mandeville v. Riggs, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 482; Willis v. Henderson, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 13, 20.

4. See sub-title "Multifariousness," post; Story's Eq. Plead. § 94; 2 Madd. Chan. 144; Mandeville v. Riggs, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 482; Smith v. Swormstedt, 16 How. (U. S.) 288; West v. Randall, 2 Mason (U. S.), 191, 192, 196; Cockburn v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 321; Wilson v. Stanhope, 2 Coll. 629; Stimson v. Lewis, 36 Vt. 91.

This rule ordinarily prevails where the court can, without injuring the rights or interests of absent parties, proceed to a decree in order to do justice to those actually before the court. If this were not so, the plaintiff might, in many cases, be unable to obtain the equitable relief to which he is entitled. Cockburn v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 326; Wood v. Dummer, 3 Mason (U. S.), 308, 318; Menx v. Maltby, 2 Swan st. 291.

It ought to appear on the face of the bill, or be alleged, that the parties are too numerous. Good v. Blewitt, 13 Ves. 397; Weld v. Bonham, 2 Sim. & Stu. 91; Whitney v. Mayo, 15 Ill. 251, 255; Hitchens v. Congreve, 4 Russ. 562, 575; Walworth v. Holt, 4 Myline & Craig. 619, 635.

Rule 48, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "Where the parties on either side are very numerous, and cannot, without manifest inconvenience and oppressive delays in the suit, be all brought before it, the court, in its discretion, may dispense with making all of them parties, and may proceed in the suit, having sufficient parties before it

(c) One in Behalf of All. — Under the last exception are cases where one or more may bring suit, or defend, in behalf of the others, where they have some common interest,<sup>1</sup> as in the case of the People v. Sturtevant, 9 N. Y. 263, where certain parties had been committed for contempt in disobeying an injunction restraining persons named therein from authorizing in any manner the laying, by an individual corporation within the city of New York, a certain railroad. The restraining words of the injunction as addressed were, "To the mayor, aldermen, and commonalty of the city of New York, their counsellors, attorneys, and agents, and all others acting in aid or assistance of them, and each and every of them." Upon the question as to who was bound by such decree, and who were proper parties to an injunction, it was held that the practice had never prevailed in bills for injunctions against corporations "to make every person a party to the suit who could by any possibility be its agent in doing the prohibited act," and that the decree as framed would bind not only the intangible, artificial being, but also all the individuals who act for the corporation in the transaction of the business to whose knowledge the injunction or decree comes. But in a case where a statute founded on this rule in equity provided that one or more might maintain or defend a suit in behalf of all, when it would, by reason of the parties being very numerous, be impracticable to bring them all before the court, or when the question was one of common or general interest to many persons, it was held that a tax-payer could not sue in behalf of himself and other tax-payers of a certain school-district to restrain the county treasurer from selling real estate in said district belonging to the complainants, for the purpose of collecting taxes based upon certain judgments, and further asking that the judgments be declared void; that, inasmuch as the rights and interests of the several tax-payers were separate and distinct, one tax-payer could "obtain complete relief without making another a party;" that the statute was in recognition of the rule which governed in chancery pleadings in analogous cases.<sup>2</sup> to represent all the adverse interests of the plaintiffs and the defendants in the suit properly before it. But in such cases the decree shall be without prejudice to the rights and claims of all the absent parties." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 705.

1. Strong v. Waterman, 11 Paige (N. Y.), 607; Bouton v. The City of Brooklyn, 15 Barb. (N. Y.) 375, 391; Bromley v. Smith, 1 Simon, 8; Smith v. Swormstedt, 16 How. (U. S.) 288, 302.

2. Newcomb v. Horton County Treasurer, 18 Wis. 566.

The court declared in this case that "It is an elementary rule in chancery pleading that every person who is at all interested in the event of a suit, or necessary to the relief, must be made a party in order to enable the court to settle the rights of all, and make a complete and final decree upon the merits. This rule was dispensed with where it was inconvenient, difficult, or impracticable on account of the number or situation of the parties, to unite them in one suit. In that case the court went as far as it could in doing justice to the parties before it, rather than deny it altogether. Sometimes, where the question was one of a common or general interest, in order to prevent a multiplicity of suits, one or more was permitted to sue or defend for the benefit of the whole." Citing Story's Eq. Plead. ch. 4, §§ 97, 98, 107, 124, 168, 285; Lube's Eq. Plead. ch. 3; Mitt. Plead. 164.

(f) Creditors and Legatees.—Another class of cases under this fourth exception are those where suits are permitted to be brought by creditors and legatees as well in behalf of themselves as others.<sup>1</sup>

But it must appear by the bill that the suit is in behalf of all, and that they have a common interest.<sup>2</sup>

It is decided, however, that, if a legacy be given jointly to several persons, all must join, and one cannot sue for his share.<sup>3</sup>

Where a legatee or creditor files a bill to establish a claim against the estate of a testator, the residuary legatee is not a necessary party. The executor should be made the defendant.<sup>4</sup>

The rule is laid down in Delaware, that residuary legatees under a will should be joined as parties to a bill for the recovery of the residuary legacy.<sup>5</sup>

1. Brown v. Ricketts, 3 John. Chan. (N. Y.) 553; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 145; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), 319, § 267; Cromer v. Pinckney, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 466; Danbridge v. Washington's Exors., 2 Pet. (U. S.) 370, 377; Hendricks v. Robinson, 2 John. Chan. (N. Y.) 484; Davone v. Fanning, 4 John. Chan. (N. Y.) 199; Hallett v. Hallett, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 15, 20; Egberts v. Wood, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 516; New London Bank v. Lee, 11 Conn. 112; Leigh v. Thomas, 2 Ves. 312; Cockburn v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 321, 327; Hubbell v. Warren, 8 Allen (Mass.), 173, 177.

This is the rule also in case of judgment creditors. Wakeman v. Grover et al., 4 Paige (N. Y.), 23.

Legatee may bring a suit in behalf of himself and other legatees against the testator's personal representative for a settlement of accounts and payment of the legatees. Ross v. Crary, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 416, note; Montagu v. Nuccella, 1 Russ. 165, 173.

So it is decided in Catlin v. Wheeler, 49 Wis. 507, 519, that "a suit is properly brought jointly by the legatees whose legacies depend upon the same right, and would be affected by the judgment. All of the legatees and the executors are necessary parties to such a suit, either as plaintiffs or defendants; and those who seek the same relief are properly made plaintiffs, and those who controvert their right to the relief demanded are properly made defendants."

"A legatee may sue the executor for his own particular legacy without making the residuary legatees, or any other legatees, parties."

Not so residuary legatees. They must all join. Cromer v. Pinckney, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 466, 474.

Several legatees may join in a bill to recover legacies charged upon land of the testator, the bill being in this case exhibited against the devise in trust and parties holding under him as purchasers, with notice. Judd v. Bushnell, 7 Conn. 204.

2. See cases cited in the notes under this head ante, also Haughton v. Davies, 23 Maine, 28, 34; Joy v. Wirtz, 1 Wash. (U. S. C. C.) 417; Leigh v. Thomas, 2 Ves. 312.

But in case of debts or legacies which are charged upon the real estate under a will, all the creditors or legatees must be made parties, or, if these cannot be known, then this fact must be averred. Hallett v. Hallett, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 15.

3. Pray v. Belt, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 670, 681.

4. Melick v. Melick, 17 N. J. Eq. (2 C. E. Green) 156.

5. West et al. v. Evans, Adm'x, 1 Del. Ch. 122; Cromer v. Pinckney, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 466, 474.

There is a great diversity of opinion on this point, and the law does not seem to be fully settled. See Hallett v. Hallett, 2 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 15 et seq. an exhaustive opinion; also discussion on same point in Pray v. Belt, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 670, 681; Cockburn v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 321, 328; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 89, 104.

Where a residuary legatee files a bill, ordinarily he should make all persons parties who are interested in the residue, although such rule will be dispensed with when not necessary or convenient that they should all be before the court. Bradwin v. Harper, Amb. 375; Pomeroy's Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), 314, § 261.

And it has been held that in a bill by creditors or legatees, it is not necessary to make residuary legatees parties. Lawson v. Barker, 1 Bro. C. C. 303; Anon. 1 Vern. 261.

It is said in a Georgia case, that the residuary legatees need not be made parties where the legal construction of the bill shows that they have no interest in

So a trustee may be brought in where the beneficiaries are numerous.<sup>1</sup>

(g) Voluntary Associations. — Another instance under these exceptions is where a bill is exhibited by or against a voluntary association. In such case it is not necessary to make all the stockholders parties before any decree can be made, since to require this to be done might in many cases tend to impede or defeat justice.<sup>2</sup>

(h) One Stockholder in Behalf of Others. — A stockholder in a corporation may bring a suit in behalf of himself and the other stockholders against an officer of the corporation for a fraudulent conversion of the funds of the corporation, where the corporation itself upon request neglects or refuses to institute a suit; and in such case the corporation may be made a party defendant.<sup>3</sup>

(i) Prize-money. — And this exception holds in cases of suits by members of a crew in behalf of themselves and the rest for prize-money.<sup>4</sup>

(j) Other Exceptions. — There is still another class of cases which perhaps is not strictly within the exceptions to the general rule as to who should be parties; and this class comprehends those causes wherein the nature of the relief prayed or sought, or to which the plaintiff is entitled by the bill, does away with the necessity of making parties of all those who have an interest. This is well illustrated by the case of Howes v. Wadham,<sup>5</sup> where the defendant contracted for the purchase of the interest of the plain-the question as to lapse. Silcox v. Nelson, 24 Ga. 84.

1. Chicago, etc., Land Co. v. Peck, 112 Ill. 408.

2. Mandeville v. Riggs, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 484, 488; Barker v. Walters, 8 Beav. 92; Lloyd v. Loring, 6 Ves. 773, 777; Hickens v. Congreve, 4 Russ. 562, 575; Birmingham v. Gallagher, 112 Mass. 190.

In a suit brought against a voluntary banking association to obtain payment out of the separate estate of the stockholders of notes issued by the bank and held by the plaintiff, it was held that, although all the members of the company need not be made parties defendants, yet, as to those who were actually made parties, the proceedings as to them must be regular, and in case of death the bill ought to have been revived against their personal representatives unless some good reason could be assigned to the contrary. Mandeville v. Riggs, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 484, 488; Martin v. Dryden, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 187, 209.

3. Hazard v. Durant, 11 R. I. 195; Davenport v. Dows, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 626, citing Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 How. (U. S.) 331; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 222, 223; Cunningham v. Pell, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 607; Hersey v. Veazie, 24 Me. 1;

Charleston Ins., etc., Co. v. Sebring, 5 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 342; Western R. Co. v. Nolan, 48 N. Y. 513; Bagshaw v. Eastern Union R. Co., 7 Hare (Chan.), 114-131.

In a suit against the directors of a corporation for a fraudulent breach of trust, all the directors need not be made parties. Cunningham v. Pell, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 607; Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 272, 274, and note.

4. Good v. Blewett, 13 Ves. 397; Lloyd v. Loring, 6 Ves. 773, 777; Pierson v. Belchier, 4 Ves. 627.

Rule 48, U. S. Equity Rules (Desty's Fed. Proced. Pract. Series, 705), provides that "Where the parties on either side are very numerous, and cannot, without manifest inconvenience and oppressive delays in the suit, be all brought before it, the court in its discretion may dispense with making all of them parties, and may proceed in the suit, having sufficient parties before it to represent all the adverse interests of the plaintiffs and the defendants in the suit properly before it. But in such cases the decree shall be without prejudice to the rights and claims of all the absent parties."

5. Ridg. & Hard, 199, 201.

tiff as mortgagee of a certain estate. Finding that the mortgagee had only an equitable interest of the mortgage term, as claiming under a party who should have taken out letters of administration, but had not done so, he prevailed upon the said party to take out letters of administration to assign an interest to him, and then set the mortgagee at defiance. A bill was brought, praying that the defendant be compelled to complete the purchase, or else that the estate be sold, and also praying general relief. The court held, that, to be entitled to the special relief, the mortgagor or his heir should have been made a party; but under the general prayer it might be decreed that the defendant be considered a trustee for the benefit of the plaintiff without the necessity of joining the mortgagor, whose interest would not be affected thereby.<sup>1</sup>

b. Who are Necessary Parties. — And herein arises the question as to who are necessary parties, since parties may have an interest, and yet not have such an interest, legal or beneficial, but that a decree may, upon the bill, be granted without affecting their rights; and we have already seen<sup>2</sup> that there are others whose interests are material, and whose rights are affected by the decree, who are not necessary in the sense that they must be brought into court before a decree can be had. Necessary parties have been defined by Justice Story as those concerning whom "no decree can be made respecting the subject-matter of litigation until they are before the court, either as plaintiffs or as defendants, or where the defendants already before the court have such an interest in having them made parties as to authorize those defendants to object to proceeding without such parties."<sup>3</sup>

Under this last division it would seem proper to place those cases where the plaintiff may, by the allegations of his bill, set up certain matter whereby it will appear that those who would otherwise be entitled are not of necessity parties, as that no claim is made to any interest;<sup>4</sup> or that the interest has been parted

1. See also Deeks v. Stanhope, 14 Sim. 57, 73; Walworth v. Holt, 4 My. & Cr. 619, 634; Williams v. Williams, 9 Mod. 299; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 127.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) sec 226. See the several exceptions to the general rule herein enumerated ante, "Numerous Parties."

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 136. See also Whelan v. Whelan, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 537. The words cited are taken from the opinion of the court in Bailey v. Inglee, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 278. The definition is there commented on at length by Justice Story, who says, "These propositions are true, but they furnish no sufficient test as to the question; for the inquiry is still open when will a court of equity proceed to a decree without them, and what is the interest which entitles the defendants before the court to insist upon the presence of other persons as defendants, before a decree is made which shall bind themselves." §§ 136 et seq., and exceptions there noted.

Upon a bill for an account and distribution of a fund, all are necessary parties who are entitled to any share in the same. Mitchell v. Lenox, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 280.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 139, 213, 214, 221, 228; Williams v. Williams, 9 Mod. 299; May v. Selby, 1 Y. & Col. Chan. 235; Smith v. Brooksbank, 7 Sim. 18; West v. Randall, 2 Mason (U. S.), 181, 197; Dart v. Palmer, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 92.

In a bill brought by a partner against some of the other partners, praying for his share of profits, and alleging that the remaining partners other than the plaintiff with; or, in case of an executor, that he has accounted.<sup>1</sup> This manner of framing a bill, however, will not be permitted where others' rights may be prejudiced thereby.<sup>2</sup>

Having considered the general rule as to parties and the exceptions thereto, the next inquiry is as to who may sue, and who defend, and first as to who may sue in equity.<sup>3</sup>

(1) Parties Plaintiff.—All bodies politic and corporate, and all persons of full age, except femes covert, idiots, lunatics, and some otherwise disabled, as those reduced by old age and infirmity to second childhood, may bring a bill in chancery by themselves.<sup>4</sup>

(a) Lunatics may not sue alone, but must bring suit by their committees, guardians, or other legal custodian, in whose charge they are.<sup>5</sup>

Upon a bill exhibited to set aside certain acts done by a lunatic while under mental imbecility, it was held that it was not necessary that the lunatic be made a party with his committee, but that he may be joined as a matter of form.<sup>6</sup>

(b) Infants may not sue by themselves,<sup>7</sup> nor by attorney,<sup>8</sup> but must sue by their next friend. A relative or a stranger may act as prochain ami;<sup>9</sup> and any person may institute a suit in their behalf, with or without their consent, if they see their rights liable and defendants had received their share of the profits, it was held that the said remaining partners need not be parties. Mare v. Malachy, 1 Myl. & Cr. 559, 577.

So the plaintiff, may, on hearing, waive the relief he claims against a person, and thus do away with the objection for want of such party. Pawlett v. The Bishop of Lincoln, 2 Atk. 295; Wicks v. Marshall, 3 Atk. 400.

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 214 a, 221.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 139; Dart v. Palmer, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 92.

3. Incapacity to Sue.—Incapacities to sue are absolute and partial. "Absolute are such as, while they continue, wholly disable the party to sue; the partial are such as disable the party to sue by himself alone without the aid of another. The absolute incapacities in England are outlawry, excommunication, and alienage; in America the two former are either wholly unknown, or, if known at all, are of very limited local existence." Story's Eq. Pl. § 51. See sub-title "Aliens," post.

4. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 34, § 13; Hinde's Chan. 2; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 74; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 24; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 50, 56, 66.

"In chancery it is necessary that the plaintiffs, in order to sustain a suit, should have an interest in the subject of the suit, or a right to the thing demanded." Gaston v. Plum, 14 Conn. 344; Lester v. Kinne, 37 Conn. 9.

Where one has assigned all his interest in the subject-matter set up in the bill, he is not a proper party thereto, and the court will dismiss the bill where party bringing it has assigned all his interest in the matter in controversy. Gaston v. Plum et al., 14 Conn. 343.

5. Dorsheimer v. Rohrbach, 18 N. J. Eq. (3 C. E. Green) 439, citing Shelford on Lunatics, 415; Story's Eq. Pl. § 64; 1 Danls. Chan. Pr. (3d ed.) 79; Stock on Non Composites Mentis, 33; Mitf. Plead. 29; 2 Barb. Chan. Pr. 224; Cooper's Eq. Plead. 32; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 28; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 79; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 35, § 13; Modawell v. Holmes, 40 Ala. 391; Narcom v. Rogers, 16 N. J. Eq. 484; Bird v. Bird, 21 Gratt. (Va.) 712; Dorsheimer v. Rohrbach, 18 N. J. Eq. 438.

A suit by a lunatic is by his committee or guardian; and when the interests of the guardian clash with the lunatic's interest, then he sues by the attorney-general or prochain ami. Narcom v. Rogers, 16 N. J. Eq. 484.

6. Ortley v. Messere, 7 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 139.

7. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 25; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) §§ 57, 58, 59; Bowie v. Minter, 2 Ala. 406, 410.

8. Anon. 1 Vent. 54.

9. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 78; Hinde's Chan. 3, 4; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 25; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 35, § 13; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 57, 58, 59; Anon. 1 Atk. 570; Klaus v. The State, 54 Miss. 644.

to be endangered.<sup>1</sup> But if the next friend has an interest adverse to that of the infant, he may not sue in the infant's behalf.<sup>2</sup>

(c) Those reduced by Age or Infirmary. — Those reduced by old age or infirmity to second childhood, or laboring under other legal disability, must, on analogous principles with those governing suits by others who are incapacitated, sue by the person in whose legal custody they are, or by their next friend.<sup>3</sup>

(d) A Married Woman must join with her husband in a suit in equity respecting her rights, except she claims some right in opposition to those claimed by her husband. In such cases she sues by her next friend.<sup>4</sup>

In cases of married women, the next friend may not sue without her consent: in this the rule differs from that in regard to infants.<sup>5</sup> And where the husband has abjured the realm, is an exile, or an alien enemy, she may sue in her own name as a feme sole.<sup>6</sup>

1. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 74. But see Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 34, § 13; Andrews v. Cradock, Prec. in Chan. 376; Pennington v. Alven, 3 P. Wms. 264; Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 32 Md. 619, 624.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 58, 59, 60; Peyton v. Bond, 1 Sim. 390; Walker v. Crowder, 2 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 478, 488.

Upon death of next friend a new one will be appointed upon proper application to the court. Bracy et al. v. Sandiford et al., 3 Madd. 468; Lancaster v. Thornton, 1 Amb. 398.

There is said to be on record a case of a suit by next friend in behalf of an infant in ventre sa mère for an injunction to stay waste, which case is cited by most of the older text-writers. The syllabus seems to bear out this proposition, and is strictly in accordance with the argument of counsel. But there is nothing in the case, either upon the facts or in the opinion of the judge, which has any reference to this point, except, perhaps, by inference or logical deduction. Musgrave et al. v. Parry et al., 2 Ver. 711, case 632.

As to the right of a testamentary guardian, or one appointed by the court, to infants, and de the legal custodians of lunatics, and their right to maintain actions in their own names, this is declared to rest upon the statutes in the several States defining their powers and duties. Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), 223, § 182.

An infant may bring suit by next friend for guardian to account. Johnson v. Jones, 41 Ga. 596; Heilman v. Martin, 2 Ark. 158, 167; Linton v. Walker, 8 Fla. 144, 153.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 56-66.

4. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 27; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 61; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 78; Schuyler v. Hoyle, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 196, 210; Spring v. Sandford, 7

Paige (N. Y.), 551; Griffith v. Hood, 2 Ves. 452; Bridges v. Phillips, 25 Ala. 136; Cherry v. Belcher, 5 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 133, 139; Bradley v. Emerson, 7 Vt. 369; Wilson v. Wilson, 6 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 236; Ringo v. Warder, 6 B. Mon. (Ky.) 514, 516. (New Procedure.) See Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 234-246, 336 note, 342-345, 376, 377.

A feme covert suing to recover separate estate, should bring suit by her next friend. Roberts v. Evans, 7 L. R. Ch. D. 830.

A husband may not bring a bill in chancery to recover the separate estate of the wife: the next friend is the proper party. Bowers v. Smith, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 193, 201. Cases relied on are, 2 Sim. & Stu. 464; 2 Keen, 73; 11 Beav. 96; 8 Sim. 551. See Grant v. Van Schonhoven, 9 Paige (N. Y.), 255, 257.

Under the statute (Gen. Stat. ch. 108, sec. 3) in Massachusetts, wife may sue alone in regard to her separate property without joining her husband. Forbes v. Tuckerman, 115 Mass. 115.

5. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 26; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 35, § 13; Fulton v. Roosevelt, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 178; Gambie v. Atlee, 2 DeG. & Sm. 745.

6. Countess of Portland v. Producers, 2 Vern. 104; Coke on Littleton, 1 Inst. 132 b, 133 a (19th ed. Butler & Hargrave's notes); Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 35, § 13; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 74; Newsome v. Boyer, 3 P. Wms. 37; Troughton v. Hill, 2 Hay. (N. Car.) 406; Robinson v. Reynolds, 1 Atk. (Vt.) 174.

The exception has been extended to cases where the husband has deserted the wife. So decided indirectly in Rhea v. Rhenner, 1 Pet. (U. S.) 108. See discussion of this point in Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 61, note 2, citing among others the cases of Gregory v. Paul, 15 Mass. 31;

It is a rule in equity, that the wife or husband may sue each other.<sup>1</sup>

(e) Corporations, Plaintiff.—Bodies politic and corporate may sue in their own name.<sup>2</sup>

A town may maintain a suit in chancery as party plaintiff, upon a bond given by its selectmen by a collector of taxes, to secure it from loss on account of a breach of official duty by the obligor.<sup>3</sup>

(f) Foreign Corporations are entitled to sue in equity.<sup>4</sup>

Abbott v. Bayley, 6 Pick. (Mass.) 89; Gregory v. Pierce, 4 Metc. (Mass.) 478.

Where a feme covert filed a bill in her own name against the former committee of her husband for an accounting, held that the bill could not be sustained, although he had abandoned her, and gone out of the State. Hay v. Warren, 8 Paige (N. Y.), 609, 612.

The codes of several States make provision, that, in case of desertion by the husband, the wife may prosecute and defend all actions for the preservation of her rights and property the same as if a feme sole. Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 236, 246.

1. Dewall v. Covenhoven, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 531; Wolf v. Banning, 3 Minn. 202; Porter v. Bank of Rutland, 19 Vt. 410, 417; Hunt v. Hooth, Freem. Ch. (Miss.) 215; Cannell v. Buckell, 2 P. Wms. 243.

A wife may sue her husband in equity where adverse interests exist in regard to property. Elibank v. Montobin, 5 Ves. 737; Wood v. Wood, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 454.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 50, 55; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 222, 232; Hinde's Chan. 2; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 74, 78; German Reformed Church v. Von Fuechelstein, 27 N. J. Eq. (12 C. E. Green) 30. See title "One Stockholder in Behalf of All," ante, and note.

By the constitutions of several States, it is provided generally that corporations may sue and be sued in the courts. Ala. Const. 1875 (Code 1876), art. 14, sec. 12; Cal. Const. 1873 (Hittell's Codes), art. 12, sec. 4; Kas. Const. 1859 (Laws 1879), art. 12, sec. 6; Mich. Const. 1850 (How. Stat. 1882), art. 15, sec. 11; Minn. Const. 1857 (Gen. Stat. 1878), art. 10, sec. 1; Neb. Const. 1875 (Ann. Laws 1883), art. 13, sec. 3; Nev. Const. 1864 (Comp. Laws, 1873), art. 8, sec. 5; New York Const. 1846 (1 Banks & Bros. Rev. Stat.), art. 8, sec. 3; North Car. Const. 1868, Am'd 1876 (Code 1883), art. 8, sec. 3.

The suit must be brought in the corporate name, unless permitted by incorporating act to defend by the name of another as their president, etc. Mauney v. Motz, 4 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 195.

3. Montville v. Houghton, 7 Conn. 543. "Where the cause of action affects the entire interests of the corporation as such, the corporation is the proper party to sue: where it affects specially a stockholder, he has the same right to sue pro interesse suo as any one else. In the latter case it may, or may not, be necessary to make the corporation a party." The court in Dewing v. Perdicaries, 96 U. S. 196.

It is said that voluntary associations cannot sue by a corporate name, since it is the exclusive prerogative of government to create corporations. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 497; Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 381. See sub-titles "Voluntary Associations," "Suits by One on Behalf of Others," ante.

In suits in the United States courts, where citizenship is a matter pertaining to jurisdiction of the court, it must appear by the bill that the corporation was created by a State other than that of which the adverse party is a citizen. Lafayette Ins. Co. v. French, 18 How. (U. S.) 404; Mullen v. Dows, 94 U. S. 444.

Rule 94, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "Every bill brought by one or more stockholders in a corporation against the corporation and other parties founded on a right which may properly be asserted by the corporation, must be verified by oath, and must contain an allegation that the plaintiff was a shareholder at the time of the transaction of which he complains, or that his share had devolved on him since by operation of law; and that the suit is not a collusive one to confer on a court of the United States jurisdiction of a case of which it would not otherwise have cognizance. It must also set forth with particularity the efforts of the plaintiff to secure such action as he desires on the part of the managing directors or trustees, and, if necessary, of the shareholders, and the cause of his failure to obtain such action." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 731.

4. "In respect to foreign corporations, either private or municipal, there seems to be no just ground to deny their competency to sue in courts of equity; and it has accordingly been the general practice to maintain suits by them as founded in the principles of international justice and amity." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) sec. 55; Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 375.

(g) Attorney-General, Plaintiff.—The government, in behalf of those to whom protection is owed, may sue in equity by the proper public officer, who brings suit in his official name, where the rights of government itself, and not those to whom it owes protection, are involved, or where it is a public matter purely. In the latter case some party is made the relator, and is named in the bill.<sup>1</sup>

(h) Alien Sovereign, Plaintiff.—That a foreign sovereign may sue in this country, is a well-settled doctrine, based on principles of natural justice. It is also a constitutional provision of the United States.<sup>2</sup>

(i) Aliens, Plaintiffs.—As has already been noted,<sup>3</sup> there exist both absolute and partial incapacities to sue. Alien enemies labor under a disability which is absolute so long as it continues, and may not, except in special cases,<sup>4</sup> bring a suit in equity.<sup>5</sup> An alien friend is under no disability of suing any personal demand, but otherwise where the demand is of a mixed nature real and personal, or where it respects land.<sup>6</sup>

(j) Joinder of Plaintiffs.<sup>7</sup>—It is difficult to lay down any rule other than a most general one, as to who should be joined as plaintiffs in an action in equity, since, as has been shown,<sup>8</sup> equity only requires generally that all should be made parties, either plaintiff or defendant, and that, where one has mistakenly been made a party plaintiff instead of defendant, the court would not consider this an obstacle to granting relief.<sup>9</sup> But there are cases where persons have a common interest arising out of the same transactions, or

"It is well settled that foreign corporations may sue here in their corporate name, and may prove as a matter of fact, if the same were denied, that they were lawfully incorporated." The court in Silver Lake Bank v. North, 4 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 371.

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 8, 49, 50, 69; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 20; Hinde's Chan. 73; Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 367-370. See Craft v. Jackson Co., 5 Kan. 518; Garr v. Bright, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 157, 164.

2. "A foreign sovereign may bring a civil suit, in the courts of the United States, for injury to the public property of his nation; and such suit is not defeated or abated by a change in the person of the sovereign, arising from his death or deposition. The Sapphire, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 165. While a foreign sovereign cannot maintain a bill in equity to restrain acts which only violate his political privileges, he may bring a bill to restrain a threatened and unauthorized wrong to his property, or that of his subjects, including the circulation of spurious notes purporting to be guaranteed by his nation. Emperor of Austria v. Day, 3 De G., F. & J. 217. But a foreign sovereign, when plaintiff in a suit in respect of commercial transactions, may be required to give security for costs, like any non-resident plaintiff. Emperor of Brazil v. Robinson, 5 Dowl. 522; King of Greece v. Wright, 6 Dowl. 12; The Beatrice, 36 L. J. Adm. 10; Republic of Costa Rica v. Erlanger, 3 Ch. D. 62." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 55, note a, 69 a; Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 360.

3. See sub-title "Incapacities" to sue, ante.

4. "As where he is here under the license, protection, and safe conduct of the government." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) sec. 724.

5. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 188; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 51-54, 724; Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 338, 358-360; Orr v. Hodgson, 4 Wheat. (U. S.) 453, 465 (decided so indirectly in this case); Seymour v. Bailey, 66 Ill. 288. But see Masterson v. Howard, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 99; Levine v. Taylor, 12 Mass. 8.

6. Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 338, 358-360; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 188; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 51-54, 724.

7. See title "Parties in General," ante; also title "Multifariousness," post.

8. See notes under title "Parties in General," ante.

9. Sapp v. Phelps, 92 Ill. 588, 595, and cases cited supra on this point, title "Parties in General."

where their interests, claims, duties, liabilities, obligations, and contracts are joint, both technically so in point of law, and also joint in the sense of growing out of the same matters, related to each other in such manner as to entitle the parties to the same general relief.<sup>1</sup>

So where fifty-nine persons, who were separate owners of certain real estate along a street which the city had graded, filed a bill against the city and its treasurer and collector to restrain the defendant corporation from collecting an assessment or tax therefor, upon demurrer it was held that inasmuch as the question in controversy was the illegality of the tax, which was the same as to all, and which, if illegal at all, would be equally illegal to every one of the plaintiffs, or, if valid to one of them, then it would be valid to all, there was not any objection to the joinder, unless the trial of the case should develop complications or multiplicity of issues which would overbalance the advantages to be derived from adjudicating the whole matter by one suit instead of by separate suits, in which case the court would of its own motion dismiss the bill.<sup>2</sup>

So, again, it has been decided that where there are several parties, as in case of legatees, creditors, etc., whose rights and interests the decree of the court may affect, here, in order to avoid multiplicity of suits, such parties are frequently joined.<sup>3</sup> And

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 159; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), 298, 299, sec. 248 et seq.; Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 348; Trades Savings Bank v. Freese, 26 N. J. Eq. 453.

2. Scofield v. Lansing, 17 Mich. 437.

The court cited Story's Eq. Pl. § 530; Adams' Eq. 309, 310, 313; Campbell v. Mackay, 1 Myl. & Craig, 603; Kensington v. White, 3 Price, 164. (Bill by seventy-two different underwriters on different insurance policies.) Murray v. Hay, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 59. (Bill by two persons owning two houses in severalty to restrain a nuisance.) Reid v. Gifford, 1 Hopkins' Ch. (N. Y.) 416. (Bill by several proprietors of several lands and mills to restrain a nuisance.)

It was said, however, that "there is a great conflict in the authorities upon this question, and a review of them would require a treatise," and that the rule as to joinder, etc., was one merely of convenience, and "must depend for its application upon the circumstances of each particular case." See also Middleton v. Flat River, etc., Co., 27 Mich. 533.

It is held in Connecticut that "the mere saving of the expense of separate suits is no ground for their uniting in a bill in chancery to obtain an injunction against the doing of an act which would give each of them a right of action at law." Sheldon

v. Centre School District, 25 Conn. 224, 228.

The court will not permit a consolidation of actions so as to avoid a multiplicity of suits by several, each of whom has a separate action at law, and so bring all the several actions into one suit into a court of equity, where the law affords adequate relief to each party. Dodd v. Hartford, 25 Conn. 232, 238.

As a rule, all persons who are interested in obtaining a decree should be joined as complainants. If, however, any refuse to be joined, or have adverse interests, they should be made defendants, and their refusal or adverse interest stated in the bill. "The object of the rule is to have all the parties in interest before the court, that the decree may be final and conclusive upon them, and afford adequate protection to the party required to perform the decree." Freeman v. Scofield, 16 N. J. Eq. 28.

A party cannot be both plaintiff and defendant to a bill in equity, "although he appears on one side in his personal, and on the other in his official, character." McElhanon v. McElhanon, 63 Ill. 457.

3. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 75; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 222, 230; Fellows v. Fellows, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 682, 697.

So is the rule in case of those affected by a common charge or burden. Story's upon a bill in equity for an injunction and account alleging an infringement of a patent, the owner of the legal title, as well as he who has the equitable right, should be joined as plaintiffs.<sup>1</sup>

If, however, persons are joined as plaintiffs, whose interests will probably come into conflict in the future stages of the case, the bill will be dismissed.<sup>2</sup>

Nor can parties be joined as plaintiffs whose interests are adverse or conflicting, or who claim by distinct and separate interests.<sup>3</sup>

(k) Government. — Joinder. — The proper public officer should be made a party, either as plaintiff or defendant, in all suits in equity in which the government has an interest, in order to protect that interest.<sup>4</sup>

(2) Parties Defendant. — As a rule, all persons capable by themselves of instituting a suit, are likewise capable by themselves of defending one.<sup>5</sup> But a suit will not lie against the government in its own courts, or against a foreign sovereign; although, in case of the government, the attorney-general is a necessary party to defend its interests when involved.<sup>6</sup>

Generally, no one ought to be made a party against whom the plaintiff can have no decree.<sup>7</sup>

Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 162; Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 353.

1. Stimpson v. Rogers, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.) 333.

2. Jacobs v. Lucas, 1 Beav. 434, 443; Hendrickson v. Wallace, 31 N. J. Eq. 604.

3. Reybold v. Herdman, 2 Del. Chan. 34; Jones v. Quinnipiac Bank, 29 Conn. 25.

"It is believed to be a well-settled rule of proceeding in equity, that the interests of plaintiffs should be consistent, although it is immaterial whether the interests of defendants are, or not, in conflict with each other;" and a motion in the case to amend the bill by joining plaintiffs who had adverse interests was denied. Parsons v. Lyman, 4 Blatchf. (U. S.) 432.

"Persons having adverse or conflicting interests in reference to the subject-matter of the litigation ought not to join as complainants." Grant v. Schoonhoven, 9 Paige (N. Y.), 255; Saumerez v. Saumerez, 4 My. & Cr. 331, 336.

"Two complainants, with distinct causes of action alleging distinct injuries," cannot unite in the same bill. "To authorize them to join as complainant, their cause of action must be the same, the injury the same, and they must be entitled to the same remedy;" although in this case, in view that the plaintiffs claimed the right to amend, and thus obviate the objection, the court, in order to save expense, examined the case upon its merits, and decreed accordingly. Plum v. Morris Canal, etc., Co., 10 N. J. Eq. (2 Stock.) 256, 259; Reybold v. Herdman, 2 Del. Chan. 34.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 222. See title "Corporation Defendant," post (as to municipal corporations defendant).

"The joinder of improper parties as citizens of the same State will not affect the jurisdiction of the circuit courts in equity as between the parties who are properly before the court, if a decree may be pronounced as between the parties who are citizens of the same State." Banks v. Carmeal, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 181, 189.

It is held in Beardsley v. Knight, 10 Vt. 185, that all parties nominally or really interested might be joined.

5. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 70; Hinde's Chan. 146; Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 449-458; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 75.

The rule requiring all parties materially interested to be made parties, does not hold in its full force as to bills of discovery, but only as to bills of relief. Trescott v. Smyth, 1 McCord, Ch. (S. C.) 301, 303.

6. Hinde's Chan. 146; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 69, 222; Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 449, 469; President, etc., of the Mich. Bank v. Hastings, 1 Doug. (Mich.) 225.

7. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 76; Mayor of London v. Levy, 8 Ves. 398; Van Reimsdyk v. Kane, 1 Gall. (U. S.) 371, 383; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), 381, § 329, et seq.

(a) Married Woman. — Although a married woman may not sue alone, she may defend by herself by permission of court.<sup>1</sup>

(b) Infants, and those reduced by Old Age or Infirmary to second childhood, defend by guardian.<sup>2</sup>

(c) Idiots and Lunatics defend by their committees or other legal custodian.<sup>3</sup>

The defendant must have some interest in the subject-matter of the controversy, or he is improperly a party thereto.<sup>4</sup> Ordinarily, a decree does not bind those not made parties.<sup>5</sup> But the court is not bound to make one a party who has a possible interest merely, and whom the decree does not necessarily affect.<sup>6</sup>

Where it is disclosed by the answer that some third person has an interest in the matter which is in suit, he should be made a party to enable him to defend his interests.<sup>7</sup>

1. Hinde's Chan. 146.

As where she claims in opposition to her husband, or does not approve of his defence, or lives separately from him. Hinde's Chan. 146.

Ordinarily, however, the husband must be joined as co-defendant. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 71.

2. Hinde's Chan. 146; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 78; Parker v. Lincoln, 12 Mass. 16; Bank of U. S. v. Ritchie, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 128, 144.

Rule 87, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "Guardians ad litem to defend a suit may be appointed by the court, or by any judge thereof, for infants or other persons who are under guardianship, or otherwise incapable to sue for themselves. All infants and other persons so incapable, may sue by their guardians, if any, or by their prochein ami, subject, however, to such orders as the court may direct for the protection of infants or other persons." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 728.

3. Hinde's Chan. 146; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 75; Westcomb v. Westcomb, 1 Dick. 233; Young v. Turnpugh, 33 Ind. 49.

A lunatic defendant must be sued in the name of his guardian. It is the duty of the court to see that he is properly represented, and, if he has no guardian, to appoint one ad litem. Sturges v. Longworth, 1 Ohio St. 544, 551; Search v. Search, 26 N. J. Eq. 110.

And if a new committee be appointed after a decree against a lunatic, he must be joined. Lyon v. Mercer, 1 Sim. & Stu. 356.

Lunatics "are to defend suits in equity by their committees; and upon a joint bill filed against the lunatic and the committee of his estate, the latter, if he has no interest adverse to that of the lunatic, is, as a matter of course, appointed guardian to appear and answer for him." New v. New, 6 Paige (N. Y.), 237.

4. Wych v. Meal, 3 P. Wms. 311; How v. Best, 5 Madd. 19; Eq. Draughtsman, by Hughes, 373; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 231, et seq.

It is impossible to file a bill against one who is a mere witness, if relief is sought by the bill. Fenton v. Hughes, 7 Ves. 287.

The stewards and receivers, or agents, of a vendor may not be parties to a bill compelling specific performance of a contract. McNamara v. Williams, 6 Ves. 143.

But a person may be made a party, although not actually necessary to the life of the suit, or where he may have no actual interest. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 142, 144, 146, 153, 156, 167, 169, 186, 193, 211, 221, 229, 231.

One who is only an agent of an interested party should not be made defendant. Garr v. Bright, 1 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 157.

5. Bishop of Winchester v. Payne, 11 Ves. 194, 197; Finley v. Bank of the U. S., 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 304.

But a decree may be binding on those interested, although not parties to the bill. Van v. Hargett, 2 Dev. & B. Eq. (N. Car.) 31. See cases, ante, of suit by one in behalf of all.

There can be no decree against a defendant, unless the bill shows some interest in him. Jerome v. Jerome, 5 Conn. 352, 356.

6. Townsend v. Augur, 3 Conn. 354, 357.

7. As in a case where a bill was brought for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of land, and it appeared, that, before the exhibiting of such bill by the plaintiff, a contract had been made between the respondent and one W. for a sale and conveyance of the same land to him, and in pursuance thereof the defendant had executed and delivered, for a valuable consideration, a deed of said land to W., held that W. should be made a party. Herrington v. Hubbard, 1 Scam. (Ill.) 569; Lietze v. Clabaugh, 59 Ill. 136.

A suit in equity was brought by A. against the heirs of B., alleging an agreement whereby certain money belonging to A., B., and C. was invested for their own use, benefit, and advantage in making a purchase of certain land, and that a division was made by which the fee should vest, and be in A. and B., but that C. should have wood from the land during her life. It was decided that C. was properly a party to the bill, and that she was entitled to allege and show whether her interest was limited to the use of the wood alone, or that the actual agreement was that she should have an equal interest in the fee with A. and B.<sup>1</sup>

Equity does not require that the interests of the defendants should be consistent, as in case of plaintiffs. Their claims may not only conflict with each other, but they may some of them have like claims, in part the same as the plaintiffs.<sup>2</sup>

(d) Corporations Defendant.—Generally, in all suits affecting the corporate rights and liabilities, the corporation is a proper party defendant.<sup>3</sup>

Upon a petition for an injunction to restrain a municipal corporation from paying the salaries of certain policemen not legally appointed, it was held that it was not enough to make the clerk, auditor, and treasurer of the corporation defendants, but that the city should be made a party.<sup>4</sup> So where it appeared upon a bill in equity brought against the defendants as president and directors of a certain insurance company, that they retained in their hands certain moneys due the plaintiff, by virtue of a judgment obtained against the company on a policy of fire insurance, and that the defendants had made fraudulent use of such funds, and had refused to pay the same to the plaintiff, it was held upon demurrer that the company itself was a necessary party.<sup>5</sup>

1. Dow v. Jewell, 18 N. H. 340, 350.

2. Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 452; Mayor of York v. Pilkington, 1 Atk. 282.

A bill may also be brought against several holding by the same general right. Brinckerhoff v. Brown, 6 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 139, 153, 156; Mix v. Hotchkiss, 14 Conn. 32, 44; Dimmock v. Bixby, 20 Pick. (Mass.) 368, 377; Mayor of York v. Pilkington, 1 Atk. 282.

One may be made a party defendant for purposes of discovery; as where a third party has books, deeds, etc., in his possession here, he is properly made a defendant. Cato v. Easley, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 214; Morely v. Green, 11 Paige (N. Y.), 240.

But such bill of discovery will not lie against counsel, as to deeds and other documents in his possession. Wakeman v. Bailey, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 482.

Ordinarily the names of parties outside the jurisdiction of the court should be stated in the bill, in order that they may be subjected to process, if the court should obtain jurisdiction of them. Brooks v. Burt, 1 Beav. 109, note h, referring to Munoz v. De Testet. But see Haddick v. Tomlinson, 2 Sim. & Stu. 219.

3. See, generally, "Corporations Plaintiff" suits, by one in behalf of others, ante, and statutes and constitutions of the different States. Lyman v. Bonney, 101 Mass. 562; Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 471-477.

Where a stockholder of such voluntary association brings a bill to have all the affairs of the company settled, the members should all be made parties. Evans v. Stokes, 1 Keene, Ch. 24, 32; Richardson v. Hastings, 11 Beav. 17, 24.

Where the property is in the hands of trustees, such trustees must all be parties to a bill, to have the affairs of the company settled. McKinley v. Irvine, 13 Ala. 681, 706.

4. Samis v. King, 40 Conn. 298, 312, citing Allen v. Turner, 11 Gray (Mass.), 436.

5. Lyman v. Bonney, 101 Mass. 562; Inhabitants of Deerfield v. Nims, 110 Mass. 115.

Although the general rule prevails, that no one should be made a party who has no interest in the cause, yet an exception obtains in cases where a bill of discovery is brought against a corporation: the book-keeper, or some officer of the corporation, may be made a party.<sup>1</sup>

(e) Joinder Defendants.—The same general rule obtains in relation to joinder of defendants as to joinder of plaintiffs; that is, that all persons interested in the subject-matter of the suit, either legally or beneficially, should be made parties.<sup>2</sup>

In suits concerning joint bonds, or obligations, all the parties thereto should be joined.<sup>3</sup>

If one assigns his interest in the subject of a contract, he should not be joined with the assignee in a bill for specific performance.<sup>4</sup>

c. Other Parties.—(1) Partners.—As a general rule, all the partners should join as plaintiffs, or be joined as defendants, in suits in equity, by or against them.<sup>5</sup>

A bank president or corporation officer may be made a party. Walker v. Hallett, 1 Ala. 379.

Where a mortgaged railroad was foreclosed at request of a majority of stockholders, the minority filed a bill against the purchaser, asking that the sale be set aside on the ground of fraud and collusion. It was held that the mortgagees and majority stockholders should also be made parties defendants. Ribon v. R. R. Co., 16 Wall. (U. S.) 446, 450.

1. Wych v. Meal, 3 P. Wms. 310; Many v. Beekman Iron Co., 9 Paige (N. Y.), 188.

Foreign Corporations are under the statutory provisions of nearly, if not all, the States, enabled to be made amenable to process; but where this is not so, process compulsory in its nature will not lie against them; and this is so where their residence in a State, other than that of their incorporation, is not for the purpose of transacting business. Florence Co. v. Grover & Baker Co., 110 Mass. 1, 9.

An alien enemy may be a defendant. University v. Finch, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 106, 111; Lee v. Rogers, 2 Sawyer (U. S.), 549, 569.

2. See titles "Parties Generally," and sub-titles thereto, "Corporations Plaintiff," "Joinder of Plaintiffs," "Parties Defendant," and sub-titles thereto, "Corporations Defendant," ante, and title "Multifariousness," post. Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 449; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 225, et seq.

Discovery.—"The practice of joining, as defendants, other persons than the real parties in interest, for the purposes of discovery and costs, seems to be now limited both to cases of fraud and to persons who are strictly agents, including in that term solicitors and attorneys, or who are arbitrators." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 233, citing Clark v. Girdwood, 7 Ch. D. 9; Barnes v. Addy, L. R. 9 Ch. 244; Baker v. Loadar, L. R. 16 Eq. 49; In Weise v. Wardle, L. R. 19 Eq. 171.

Where an allegation of the bill was that application had been made to the administrator to sue, and he had refused, he is properly a co-defendant. Worthy v. Johnson, 8 Ga. 236.

In equity, "Where an attempt is made to enforce an obligation which is joint and several, all the debtors who are liable as principals, and not sureties, should, unless there are satisfactory reasons to the contrary, be brought in as defendants." The case here was a joint and several note secured by a mortgage, and the action was a bill to foreclose the same; rule in equity said to differ from that in law. Dederich v. Barber, 44 Mich. 19, 21.

Plaintiff or Defendant.—"In case of joint claims, all persons having a community of interest in the claims or liabilities, and who may be affected by the decree, are to be made parties." Trades Savings Bank v. Freese, 26 N. J. Eq. 453.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 169.

4. Miller v. Whittier, 32 Me. 203, 210.

5. Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 426-432, 523-525; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 78, 167, 178; Fuller v. Benjamin, 23 Me. 255; Bank v. Carrolton R. R., 11 Wall. (U. S.) 624, 630.

In case of a deceased partner, and the insolvency of the survivors, here the personal representatives of the deceased may be joined in a suit with the survivors as parties. Hamersley v. Lambert, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 508.

Where a member of the copartnership is out of the jurisdiction, the rule is not enforced. Darwent v. Walton, 2 Atk. 510;

(2) Bill to foreclose. — Parties. — The proper parties to a bill to foreclose a mortgage are principally the mortgagor and mortgagee, and all persons whose interests the decree might affect; and this includes all persons having an interest in the equity of redemption.<sup>1</sup>

The party having the beneficial interest in the mortgage should be made complainant. A bill should not be in the name of one for the use of another.<sup>2</sup>

An assignee of a mortgagee is not a necessary party to a bill to foreclose unless the assignment is not an absolute one.<sup>3</sup>

Nor should the mortgagor be made a party where he has assigned his interest.<sup>4</sup>

It is decided in Alabama that all incumbrancers, prior or subsequent, may, but need not necessarily, be made parties to a bill to foreclose a mortgage.<sup>5</sup>

Milligan v. Milledge, 3 Cranch (U. S.), 220.

Where one of the partners is an infant, he should be joined. Ex parte Henderson, 4 Ves. Jr. 164.

Upon a bill for accounting between partners, held that one who has sold out all his interest in the partnership need not be made a party to such suit. Howell v. Harvey, 5 Ark. 270.

A person who is to receive a portion of the profits of a business for his services, is a proper party complainant to a bill in equity for account of the same. Bentley v. Harris, 10 R. L. 435.

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 193-203; Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 420-426, 490-503; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 333-346; 2 Madd. Chan. 149 et seq.

It is said that the general principles underlying the question of who are proper and necessary parties to a bill for foreclosure of a mortgage, are that the court can only take cognizance of the rights of such parties as are properly before it, and that it is necessary that all persons having an interest in the subject-matter of the suit should have their rights adjusted and determined, and further to enable the court to pass such a decree as that it may be safely carried out between all parties, and end litigation. This rule, however, is subject to certain limitations and exceptions. Jones on Mortg. § 1367.

"The rule is, that there can be no foreclosure unless all the parties entitled to the mortgage money are before the court." So where a bill to foreclose a mortgage to two persons was brought by the executor of one without joining the survivor, a demurrer was sustained. Trades Savings Bank v. Freese, 26 N. J. Eq. 453, 456.

2. Winkelman v. Kiser, etc., 27 Ill. 21; Elder v. Jones, 85 Ill. 384, 387.

3. Miller v. Henderson, 10 N. J. Eq. (2 Stock.) 320.

In case of an absolute assignment by the mortgagee of all his interest in the mortgage, he need not be made a party. Whitney v. McKinney, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 144.

4. Swift v. Edson, 5 Conn. 531.

5. Walker v. Bank of Mobile, 6 Ala. 452; Cullum v. Batre, 2 Ala. 415.

But it is said by Justice Story, — Eq. Plead. 9th ed. (by Gould), sec. 193, — that it is "the general, although not the universal, rule that all encumbrancers, as well as the mortgagor, should be made parties, if not as indispensable, at least as proper parties, to such a bill, whether they are prior or subsequent encumbrancers. There are certainly some acknowledged exceptions, such, for example, as where a second mortgagee brings a bill to foreclose against the mortgagor, and a third mortgagee, for in such a case the first mortgagee need not be made a party. . . . If, indeed, any encumbrancers (whether prior or subsequent) are not made parties, the decree of foreclosure does not bind them, as, also, a decree of a sale would not. The prior encumbrancers are not bound, because their rights are paramount to those of the foreclosing party. The subsequent encumbrancers are not bound, because their interests would otherwise be concluded without any opportunity to assert or protect them." Citing Finlay v. Bank of U. S., 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 304; Haines v. Beach, 3 Johns. Chan. (N. Y.) 459; Delabere v. Norwood, 3 Swanst. 114; Rose v. Page, 2 Sim. 471; Weed v. Beebe, 21 Vt. 495; Cockes v. Sherman, 2 Freem. 14; Draper v. Clarendon, 2 Vern. 518; Richards v. Cooper, 5 Beav. 304; Jerome v. McCarter, 94 U. S. 734; Broward v. Hoeg, 15 Fla. 370; Walter v. Riehl, 38 Md. 211.

An incumbrancer who has been fore-

But a decree of foreclosure will not be held void because a subsequent purchaser from the mortgagor is not made a party.<sup>1</sup>

In a bill to foreclose, the owner of the equity of redemption is properly a party.<sup>2</sup> And upon the death of the mortgagee, his personal representative should be made a party to a foreclosure suit.<sup>3</sup> So the heirs of a deceased mortgagor are held to be necessary parties to such action.<sup>4</sup>

In Oregon it is held that in a foreclosure suit, the wife, having the legal ownership of the property, must be made a party to the bill before her interests, nominal or real, can be affected by any proceeding relating to such estate.<sup>5</sup>

One of two mortgagees cannot maintain an action to foreclose without joining the other.<sup>6</sup>

(3) Bill to redeem. — The mortgagee, in the absence of any other interest held under him, is the proper party in a bill to redeem. In case of his death, and the mortgage is in fee, then the heir or other person holding the legal estate as the devisee is a necessary party, so also is the personal representative.<sup>7</sup> closed is not a necessary party. Broome v. Beers, 6 Conn. 198.

"All persons having an interest in the equity of redemption should be made parties to a bill for a foreclosure, and a fortiori to a bill to sell the mortgaged property; and hence the general, though not universal, rule is, that all encumbrancers (as well as the mortgagor) should be made parties, if not as indispensable, at least as proper parties, to such a bill, whether they are prior or subsequent encumbrancers. If, indeed, such encumbrancers, whether prior or subsequent, are not made parties, the decree of foreclosure does not bind them, as, also, a decree of sale would not." The court in Hall v. Hall, 11 Tex. 526.

All subsequent mortgagees are proper but not necessary parties. Smith v. Chapman, 4 Conn. 344.

1. Kelgour v. Wood, 64 Ill. 345.

A decree of foreclosure will not be opened because a prior mortgagee, not shown by any proceedings in the case to be interested, was not made a party, unless it be to prevent irremediable mischief. Finley v. Bank of U. S., 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 304, 307.

Where a mortgagee brings a bill to foreclose, and neglects to make a subsequent incumbrancer a party, the latter's right to redeem is not affected by the decree. Valentine v. Havener, 20 Mo. 133.

2. Hodson v. Treat, 7 Wis. 263.

The equitable owner of the notes is a proper party to foreclose. Hahn v. Huber, 83 Ill. 243; Ord v. McKee, 5 Cal. 515.

3. Vanhorn v. Duckworth, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 261.

An executor of a mortgagee is a necessary party to a bill of foreclosure by the heir of the mortgagee. Freaker v. Horseley, Freem. Ch. (Miss.) 180.

4. Duval v. McLoskey, 1 Ala. 708; Erwin v. Ferguson, 5 Ala. 158.

The executor need not be made a party to a bill to foreclose brought against the mortgagor's heir. Duncombe v. Hansley, 3 P. Wms. 333, note a.

5. Fahie v. Pressey, 2 Oreg. 23.

Where a wife should have been properly a party to a bill to foreclose, but was not mentioned as such in the bill, nor any process served on her, but subsequently, and without notice to her, a guardian ad litem was appointed to defend her, and an answer was filed by him, held that she was not properly before the court, and a decree against her was irregular and void. Eslava v. Lepretre, 21 Ala. 504.

In Alabama it is held, that, where a husband and wife join in a mortgage as mortgagors, she must be made a party to a bill of foreclosure, her dower interest in the lands being sought to be made subject to the payment of the mortgage debt. Eslava v. Lepretre, 21 Ala. 504.

6. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Sturges, 32 N. J. Eq. 678, 683.

7. Hilton v. Lothrop, 46 Me. 297, citing Story's Eq. Plead. § 183.

Bill in equity to redeem mortgaged premises is not technically one for discovery, and its verification is not required. Hilton v. Lothrop, 46 Me. 297, citing Rules of Chancery Practice, 18 Me. 444, Rule 2; 37 Me. 581, Rule 1; Story's Eq. Pl. § 138.

Where a mortgagor conveys all his interest in the mortgaged premises, he is not a

(4) Creditors and Debtors, Parties.—The principal instances where creditors are proper and necessary parties, are those where a suit is brought by a few, in behalf of all, for an account and application of the assets, real and personal, of a deceased debtor in payment of the demands, and the satisfaction of the debts of all.<sup>1</sup>

A debtor to an estate is not a proper party to a bill brought by a creditor against the legal representative to obtain payment out of the assets, the reason being that the debtor is only liable to the legal representative, otherwise he might be burdened with the expense of numberless suits. But there is an exception to this rule, as in case of insolvency of the legal representative, or collusion between them and the debtor.<sup>2</sup>

(5) Trustees and Cestuis Que Trustent, Parties.—It is a general rule that the cestui que trust should be made a party with the trustee in all suits brought by or against him. So also both should be parties in suits by or against the cestui que trust.<sup>3</sup> proper party to a bill in equity to redeem. Hilton v. Lothrop, 46 Me. 297.

In a bill to redeem a mortgage, a person who, "apparently, has an equitable interest in the premises, liable to be affected by the decree for redemption, ought to be made a party to the proceeding for that reason." Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293, 304.

"All the parties legally interested in the right to redeem a mortgage must be made parties to a bill to redeem. If any of them refuse to become parties complainant, they must be made respondents." Case of a bill to redeem dismissed for want of proper parties, the bill being brought by only one of several having the equity of redemption. Welch v. Stearnes, 69 Me. 192.

Under the statute in Maine it is proper in a bill to redeem that the husband of a married woman, who is the owner of the equity of redemption, should be joined with her. Hilton v. Lothrop, 46 Me. 297.

1. See title, Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 99-102, 213-218; Barb. on Parties (ed. 1864), 381-392, 477-482, 507, 370-374, 469-471, 525.

In these cases the assets are marshalled, and all may come into the benefits of the decree; and whether they come in or not, they will be bound by the decree. Neve v. Weston et ux., 3 Atk. 557; Brown v. Rickets, 3 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 553.

Although they have been permitted to come in afterwards upon proper showing and order of the court, before the funds are actually distributed. Wilder v. Keeler, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 164.

A single creditor may sue by himself for his own debt, out of the personal assets. Bedford v. Leigh, 2 Dick. 707; Atty.-Gen. v. Cornthwaite, 2 Cox, C. C. 43; Anon. 3 Atk. 572.

In a bill in equity against one of several debtors, it is necessary to make all parties. Trescott v. Smyth, 1 McCord, Ch. (S. Car.) 301.

A bill lies in behalf of a creditor against his deceased debtors' representatives, after acceptance by them of the trust. Butts v. Genung et al., 5 Paige (N. Y.), 254.

2. Long v. Majestre, 1 John. Chan. (N. Y.) 202.

In case of an assignment by a debtor to a trustee of all his estate in trust for the settlement of outstanding debts, the trustee, and not the debtor, should sue and defend, except in cases where the trustee should collude with the other party. This, however, is a matter largely regulated by statute in the several States. Bailey et als. v. Smith, 10 R. I. 29; Benfield v. Solomons, 9 Ves. 77, 82, 86.

Rule 51, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "In all cases in which the plaintiff has a joint and several demand against several persons, either as principals or sureties, it shall not be necessary to bring before the court, as parties to a suit concerning such demand, all the persons liable thereto; but the plaintiff may proceed against one or more of the persons severally liable." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 706.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 207, 85-89, 143, 148-152, 155, 171, 180, 181, 192-194, 203-213, 207-214, 766-768; Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 439-444, 529-535; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 250, 259, 260, 336 n, 355, 356 n, 357 n, 358, 387; Bromley v. Holland, 7 Ves. 3, 10.

Where property was conveyed to trustees for the use and benefit of a church corporation, subject to its use and control, held that the trustees were necessary parties to a bill in equity affecting the title. East

(a) Exceptions to Rule.—There are certain exceptions to this rule, which are well stated by the court in Moore v. Hood.<sup>1</sup>

Haddam Baptist Church v. East Haddam Baptist Society, 44 Conn. 260.

Rule 49, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "In all suits concerning real estate which is vested in trustees by devise, and such trustees are competent to sell, and give discharges for the proceeds of the sale, and for the rents and profits of the estate, such trustees shall represent the persons beneficially interested in the estate, for the proceeds, or the rents and profits, in the same manner, and to the same extent, as the executors or administrators, in suits concerning personal estate, represent the persons beneficially interested in such personal estate; and in such cases it shall not be necessary to make the persons beneficially interested in such real estate, or rents and profits, parties to the suit; but the court may, upon consideration of the matter on the hearing, if it shall so think fit, order such persons to be made parties." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 705.

1. 9 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 311. "Between trustees and beneficiaries, all of both classes are necessary parties generally, although an exception is tolerated in suits by beneficiaries where one of several trustees is pursued for his particular breach of trust, and exceptions are allowed in suits by trustees, 1. Where the object of the suit is merely to obtain from some third person possession of the trust property, and it is indifferent to the equitable claimants whether the trustees succeed or fail; and, 2. Where the trustee fully represents the beneficiaries. . . . The most familiar instance of this exception is in suits by or against executors and administrators concerning the personalty, as to which they are by law the owners and the representatives of the legatees and distributees; and usually in such suits the rights of the beneficiaries are held to be sufficiently represented and their interests protected in the names and persons of their said trustees."

The rule holds, even in the case of a void grant of trust, as where a suit was brought against the beneficial holder of a void annuity to compel the surrender of the securities of the annuity. The court said that the trustee should have been joined as defendant, or else, in case of a further suit against the trustee himself, the defendant might be joined, and hence be vexed twice for the same cause of action. Bromley v. Holland, 7 Ves. 3, 12.

Generally the cestui que trust should be made a party with the trustee; although, in a case where the cestuis que trusts were numerous, it was held that a demurrer to the bill, for want of proper parties, would not be sustained, the exception being grounded on the fact that it would be intolerably oppressive and burdensome to enforce the rule, that it would be an unnecessary expense and delay, and a reflection on justice, to compel them all to be brought in. In this case they were an association. Van Vechten et al. v. Terry et al., 2 John. Chan. (N. Y.) 197.

In a case where the trustee covenants with another for the cestui que trust's benefit, it is held, that, in a bill for specific performance, both must unite. Cope v. Parry, 2 Jac. & Walk. 538. See Gordon v. Gordon, 3 Swanst. 417, note, citing Hook v. Kinnear et al.; Cooke v. Cooke, 2 Ver. 36.

"Trustees and cestuis que trusts are necessary parties." But if the cestui que trust refuses to join, or has adverse interests, he may be made a defendant. Case of a bill filed by a trustee to foreclose a mortgage, without joining the cestui que trust. Freeman v. Scofield, 16 N. J. Eq. 28.

"The general rule is, that in suits respecting trust property, brought either by or against the trustees, the cestuis que trusts, as well as the trustees, are necessary parties. To this rule there are several exceptions. One of them is, that, where the suit is brought by the trustee to recover the trust property, or to reduce it to possession, and in no wise affects his relation with his cestui que trust, it is unnecessary to make the latter parties. . . . Such is now the well-settled rule of equity pleading and practice." Mr. Justice Swayne in Carey v. Brown, 92 U. S. 172, citing Adams v. Bradley, 12 Mich. 346; Ashton v. Atlantic Bank, 3 Allen (Mass.), 217; Boyden v. Partridge, 2 Gray (Mass.), 191; Swift v. Stebbins, 4 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 447; The Assoc., etc., v. Beekman, 21 Barb. (N. Y.) 565; Alexander v. Cana, 1 De G. & Sm. Ch. 415; Potts v. The Thames, etc., Co., 7 Eng. L. & Eq. 262; Story v. Livingstone's Excr., 13 Pet. (U. S.) 359.

Upon a bill to establish a trust under a deed, which, though absolute on its face, was, in fact, executed as a trust, the cestui que trust is a necessary party. Pence v. Pence, 13 N. J. Eq. 257.

An exception to the rule requiring both the trustee and cestui que trust to be made parties in litigation respecting trust property, exists "where the trust is an active one imposing on the trustee the duty of receiving, controlling, and managing the trust fund for the benefit of the cestui que trust." McGraw v. Bayard, 96 Ill. 146, 153.

In a bill to foreclose a mortgage of an estate voluntarily conveyed to a trustee for the benefit of creditors, it is sufficient if

(6) Heirs, Devisees, and Distributees. — Parties. — The cases where the questions arise, as to whether heirs, devisees, etc., should be parties, are principally, (1) In cases of suits to enforce or set aside the trusts of a will.<sup>1</sup> (2) In suits to enforce the specific performance of agreements. Here, where the original party dies, all others coming into the rights of such party, as heirs, devisees, etc., should be joined.<sup>2</sup> (3) In bills to foreclose, where the mortgagor dies, not having assigned his rights, or where the assignee of the mortgagor dies, here the heirs should be joined.<sup>3</sup> (4) In suits to enforce claims against lands of decedents, the heirs-at-law need not be parties.<sup>4</sup>

A bill in equity for an accounting against the surviving partners of a firm, and the administratrix of the deceased partner, will not ordinarily lie in behalf of an heir-at-law or distributee.<sup>5</sup>

(7) Assignor and Assignee, Parties. — In case of an absolute unconditional assignment, with no equitable interest remaining in the assignor, and the assignment is not doubted or denied, it is not necessary to make the assignor a party.<sup>6</sup>

the trustee be made a defendant without joining the creditors. In this case, while the estate was conveyed to the trustee without notice of the mortgage, the creditors had acquired no interest which affected the rights of the complainant. Willis v. Henderson, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 13, 19, 20.

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) secs. 172, 176, 180.

It is said that cases to enforce the trusts of a will are infrequent in the United States. Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 264, 355, citing 1 Daniells, 231, 232; Story's Eq. Plead. § 163; Chipman v. Montgomery, 63 N. Y. 221; 1 Pom. Eq. § 352, n; Eddie v. Parke, 31 Mo. 513; Morse v. Morse, 42 Ind. 365.

It is provided by Rule 50, U. S. Equity Rules (Dest. Fed. Proced. Pract. Series), 706, that "In suits to execute the trusts of a will, it shall not be necessary to make the heir-at-law a party; but the plaintiff shall be at liberty to make the heir-at-law a party where he desires to have the will established against him."

Where it is sought to set aside a will, the devisees, legatees, and executor should be made parties, unless the executor has not accepted the trust. Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), § 264. But see statutes of the several States.

Rule 50, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "In suits to execute the trusts of a will, it shall not be necessary to make the heir-at-law a party; but the plaintiff shall be at liberty to make the heir-at-law a party where he desires to have the will established against him." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 706.

2. Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 263, 366, 367; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 177.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 183-202; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), § 336, note 337.

The mode of procedure in actions to foreclose is, however, a matter of statute in nearly, if not all, the States.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 163, 176, 180; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), §§ 355, 357; Smith v. Wyckoff et al., 4 Edwards (N. Y.), 543. See, generally, Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 397-399, 503-511.

5. Rosenzweig v. Thompson (Md. 1887), 23 Reporter, 779. In arriving at this conclusion, the court discusses the following cases: Bowsher v. Watkins, 1 Russ. & Myl. 277; Holland v. Pryor, 1 Mylne & Keen, 244; Davies v. Davies, 2 Kean, 539; Wright v. Hamilton, 3 Jones & Latouche, 481; Yeatman v. Yeatman, L. R. 7 Ch. Div. 214; 23 Eng. Rep. 525; Travis v. Milne, 9 Hare, 150; Staniton v. The Carron Co., 18 Beav. 157.

6. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 153.

Where assignor of a contract does not assign his whole interest, he is properly a party to bill to enforce it. Eureka Marble Co. v. Windsor Mfg. Co., 47 Vt. 430.

Where, after an assignment, any interest remains in the assignor, he must of necessity be made a party. Montague v. Lobdell, 11 Cush. 111.

One who has assigned all his interest in a contract may be a proper, though not a necessary, party to a bill in equity affecting that contract. Day v. Cummings, 19 Vt. 496.

An assignee pendente lite may bring his interest before the court by a supplemental bill.<sup>1</sup>

Where the assignee of a strictly legal right brought a bill in equity, it was held that it would not be sustained, upon the ground that he could only sue at law in the name of the assignor, unless it appears that the assignor prevents the action being brought in his name, or unless the bill shows that the assignee could not by such action obtain an adequate remedy.<sup>2</sup>

(8) Vendor, Parties.—Where the personal representative of a vendor upon his decease brings a bill for specific performance, here the heir or devisee of the vendor is a necessary party.<sup>3</sup>

(9) Account, Parties.—All persons interested in the account on each side are necessary parties.<sup>4</sup>

3. The Stating Part of the Bill.—This part of the bill contains the plaintiff's case. The facts upon which a party relies in equity must be set out briefly, positively, and with certainty, so as clearly to inform the opposite party of the matters of which proof

1. Wilder et als. v. Keeler et als., 3 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 164.

An assignee pendente lite is bound by the decree against his assignor. Pond v. Clark, 24 Conn. 370, 384; Eyster v. Gaff et al., 91 U. S. 521.

An assignee of a lessor may bring a suit for the rents against the lessee. Childs v. Clark, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 52.

2. Walker v. Brooks, 125 Mass. 241, citing Hammond v. Messenger, 9 Sim. 327, 332; Story's Eq. Jur. § 1057 a; Story's Eq. Plead. § 153; Dhegetoff v. London Assurance Co., Moreley, 83; 4 Bro. P. C. (2d ed.) 436; Fall v. Chambers, Mosely, 193; Motteux v. London Assur. Co., 1 Atk. 545, 547; Cator v. Burke, 1 Bro. Ch. 434; Rose v. Clarke, 1 Yo. & Col. Ch. 534, 548; Riddle v. Mandeville, 5 Cranch (U. S.), 322; Mandeville v. Riddle, 1 Cranch (U. S.), 322; Harris v. Johnston, 3 Cranch (U. S.), 311; Carter v. United States Ins. Co., 1 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 463; Adair v. Winchester, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 114; Moseley v. Boush, 4 Rand. (Va.) 392; Smiley v. Bell, Mart. & Y. (Tenn.) 378.

"The opposing decision in Townsend v. Carpenter, 11 Ohio, 21, is unsupported by any reference to authorities." Field v. Maghee, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 539; Rogers v. Traders' Ins. Co., 6 Paige (N. Y.), 583.

The last two cases said to contain no decision on this point. Bank v. Mumford, 2 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 596, 615; Story's Eq. Jur. § 1436 a, commented on.

The following cases are also commented on: Williams v. Davies, 2 Sim. 461; Clark v. Cort, Cr. & Phil. 154, 159; Rawson v. Samuel, Cr. & Phil. 161, 178; and, citing further, Watson v. Mid. Wales Railway L. R. 2 C. P. 593; Spaulding v. Backus, 122

Mass. 553. This case is an exhaustive review of the law on this point, both in England and this country. See, generally, on the subject of assignor and assignee, Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 360-366, 463-467; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 118, 134, 153-158, 183-186, 188-202; Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), § 251, chose in action, assignee may sue alone. §§ 261, 356, note, suits by assignees of creditors, etc. §§ 268, 357, 358, suits against assignees of creditors. §§ 251, 339, 364, joinder of assignor required in certain States. §§ 348, 349, where the debtor has assigned his property, the assignee is a necessary party in a suit intended to reach such property. § 364, who are proper parties in a suit against a corporation by an assignee of stock. § 383, who are defendants in suits by assignees to foreclose securities. § 387, assignee of partial or entire interest in a mortgage as defendant.

3. Roberts v. Marchant, 1 Hare, 547.

Although one may not be an actual party to an agreement, yet, if it be made for his benefit, he may maintain a bill in equity for its specific performance. Crocker v. Higgins, 7 Conn. 342; Cooke v. Cooke, 2 Vern. 36.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 218, 219; Barb. on Part. (ed. 1864) 354-357, 461-463.

And this is so, no matter how small the interest. Smith v. Farr, 3 Y. & Coll. 328, 339.

Nor is it necessary that all should hold in the same right, or that their interests should be in common; but if they hold by different interests and separate rights, they should all join. Park v. Clinton, 12 Ves. 48.

will be offered, to the end that he may, within the rules of equity pleading, answer the same, and an issue be had also to enable the court to determine the law applicable to the cause.<sup>1</sup>

Every material fact relied on should also be stated to enable the plaintiff to properly offer his evidence.<sup>2</sup>

While the same strictness in pleading is not required in equity as at law,<sup>3</sup> yet certainty to a common intent is necessary as well as at law, for the purpose of enabling the adverse party to determine the precise charge against him, and that the court, if the matters pleaded be proven, may be enabled to pass a proper decree.<sup>4</sup>

1. Strange v. Watson, 11 Ala. 324, 335; Rule 21 of the U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proced. Pract. Series, p. 689) provides that "The plaintiff may, in the narrative or stating part of his bill, state and avoid by counter-averments any matter or thing which he supposes will be insisted on by the defendant by way of defence or excuse, to the case made out by the plaintiff for relief."

"The plaintiff must show by his bill some claim of interest in the defendant in the subject of the suit which can make him liable to the plaintiff's demands, or show that he is for some reason a necessary party to the suit." 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 288.

As to the law in England, it is said in Evans v. Buck, Law Rep. 4 Chan. Div. 432, 434, that "The same rules of pleading which prevailed under the old law prevail now, unless there is any thing in the Judicature Act, or in the new orders or rules, which prevents it."

Special relief cannot be granted unless the case set up by the stating part of the bill warrants it. Thomas v. Warner, 15 Vt. 110.

2. All material facts must be averred. White v. Morrison, 11 Ill. 361; Russ v. Hawes, 5 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 18; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 85.

A different case cannot be made by the evidence than that shown by the bill. Barrett v. Sargeant, 18 Vt. 365; Thomas v. Warner, 15 Vt. 110.

Allegation and proof must agree. Russ v. Hawes, 5 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 18; White v. Morrison, 11 Ill. 361.

"Care must be taken to put in issue in the bill whatever is intended to be proved by the plaintiff, otherwise he will not be permitted to give it in evidence." Russ v. Hawes, 5 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 18.

3. Hatcher v. Hatcher, McMull. Eq. (S. Car.) 311.

The plaintiff's right to the relief sought, as well as the injury complained of, must be stated, not in the technical formality required in common-law pleadings, but still the facts necessary to sustain the bill must be set out with sufficient certainty and particularity to enable the court to clearly determine what relief the plaintiff claims. Townshend v. Duncan, 2 Bland (Md.), 45, 48; Banks v. Carneal, 10 Wheat. U. S.) 181, 189.

"The plaintiff's title to the assistance of the court must always be exposed by the pleadings, but the style and character of pleading in equity has always been of a more liberal cast than that of other courts; as mispleading in matters of form has never been held to prejudice a party, provided the case made is right in matters of substance, and supported by proper evidence." Tiernan v. Poor, 1 Gil. & J. (Md.) 216, 230.

"The rule as to form in pleading is not so stringent in equity as at law, but the substance of the rules is the same in each court; and it is a principle of universal application in pleading, founded on reason and good sense, that the title of the plaintiff should be stated with sufficient certainty and clearness to enable the court to see clearly that he has such a right as warrants its interference, and the defendant to be distinctly informed of the nature of the case he is called upon to defend." Cockrell v. Gurley, 26 Ala. 405, 408.

4. Farr v. Farr, 34 Miss. 597.

"The rule requiring certainty in pleadings applies as well to proceedings in chancery as at law. The reason in both instances being the same, to enable the court to pronounce the proper judgment if the pleadings shall be adjudged true." Prestidge v. Pendleton, 24 Miss. 80.

"The bill must be true in substance, the matter plainly yet succinctly alleged with all necessary circumstances, as time, place, manner, and other incidents. It must be of a matter cognizable in this court: and as it must be sufficient in substance, so it must have convenient form; but this in equity is not strict or difficult." Hinde's Chan. 14; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 287.

The substance of the rules as to form

There cannot be a demand in one bill by several plaintiffs of several matters against one defendant which are entirely distinct and unconnected.<sup>1</sup> Great minuteness and particularity of detail should be avoided.<sup>2</sup> And where matters are set up in the alternative, each alternative should make a sufficient case in itself.<sup>3</sup> Especial care should be taken not to split up the causes of action.<sup>4</sup> A bill, however, may be framed with a double aspect by the plaintiff where he is in doubt as to the relief to which he is entitled.<sup>5</sup>

Plaintiff need not allege what is implied of necessity, as where in a bill for an annuity, payable out of the rents of lands devised to an infant, it need not be alleged that the devisee or his guardian has received the rents.<sup>6</sup>

So, in case of a bill to enjoin the defendant from infringing the name of the plaintiff's newspaper, it need not be averred that the plaintiff has placed his name upon the plates so as to obtain the exclusive right to print the same in accordance with act of Parliament.<sup>7</sup> Nor should matter of argument be set forth in either the bill or answer.<sup>8</sup> And in certain cases in the United States courts, where the jurisdiction is dependent on citizenship, this must be specifically alleged.<sup>9</sup> is same in equity as at law; and the case is required to be stated clearly and with such certainty as that the court may see that the case is cognizable in equity, and the defendant be appraised of the nature of the case presented. Cockrell v. Gurley, 26 Ala. 405.

The matter should be so alleged as that the court may base a just and effectual decree thereon, and one which shall be of avail, and binding upon the parties upon the issues raised. Bradley v. Converse, 4 Cliff. (U. S.) 366, 373.

The plaintiff should set forth definitely and precisely in his bill the whole case upon which he seeks relief. Motley v. Rogers, 22 Ark. 227.

There must be sufficient allegations to form the basis of a decree if the case be admitted by answer. Perry v. Carr, 41 N. H. 371.

"Whatever is necessarily within complainant's own knowledge should be alleged positively. On the other hand, if the facts essential to the determination of the plaintiff's case are charged in the bill, to rest on the knowledge of the defendant only, or must of necessity be within his knowledge only, a precise allegation is not required." Aiken v. Ballard, Rice's Eq. (S. Car.) 13.

It is only necessary to sufficiently set out plaintiff's title so that it may fairly be inferred from the bill. Webber v. Gage, 39 N. H. 182.

Allegations have been declared to be sufficient where enough is set out to enable the plaintiff to prove his claim for relief. Hazard v. Durant, 11 R. I. 195.

Every material fact on which the plaintiff relies for relief must be distinctly and clearly averred, and that, too, with reasonable fulness and certainty. Smith v. Wood, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 563.

Reasonable certainty and precision seem only to be required in stating plaintiff's case. Spence v. Duren, 3 Ala. 251.

So it has been held that an averment that plaintiff is "advised and believes," is not sufficiently within the rule requiring that facts should be set out with certainty and clearness. Jones v. Cowles, 26 Ala. 612; Nix v. Winter, 35 Ala. 309; Cameron v. Abbott, 30 Ala. 416; Read v. Walker, 18 Ala. 323. See distinction, however, on this point in Lucas v. Oliver, 34 Ala. 626; Nix v. Winter, 35 Ala. 309.

1. Murray v. Stevens, Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 205. See title "Multifariousness," supra.

2. Plaintiff need not relate all the minute circumstances. St. Louis v. Knapp Co., 104 U. S. 658.

3. David v. Shepard, 40 Ala. 587; Rives v. Walthall's Exors., 38 Ala. 329.

4. Starr v. Stark, 1 Sawy. (U. S.) 270.

5. Strange v. Watson, 11 Ala. 324; McConnell v. McConnell, 11 Vt. 290; Lloyd v. Brewster, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 537; Stein v. Robertson, 30 Ala. 286.

6. Townshend v. Duncan, 2 Bland (Md.), 45, 51.

7. Harrison v. Hogg, 2 Ves. Jr. 323, 327.

8. Weisman v. Heron Mining Co., 4 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 112, 117.

9. Rule 20 U. S. Eq. Rules cited (Desty's Fed. Proced. Pract. Series, 688, and cases cited); Muller v. Dows, 94 U. S. 444; Jackson v. Ashton, 8 Pet. (U. S.) 148.

The complaint should also set up facts, and not matters of evidence.<sup>1</sup>

Instead of setting out in full a deed or other instrument in writing in the bill (which may not be done), it should be referred to in some such terms as this, "as in and by said indenture, reference being thereunto had, when produced will fully appear."<sup>2</sup>

Where a bill claims relief on the ground of fraud, accident, or mistake, such matter must be specifically, distinctly, and accurately alleged, both in respect to the facts constituting it, and the time when it was discovered; the object being to apprise the parties against whom the bill is exhibited, of the exact nature of the claim in this respect.<sup>3</sup>

Where it becomes necessary to resort to a court of equity to make an equitable estoppel available, it is necessary that the party seeking relief should allege or show some ground, other than that of the estoppel itself, sufficient to warrant the interposition of the court on equitable grounds. "Whereby the party entitled to

1. Bishop v. Bishop, 13 Ala. 475; Bowen v. Aubrey, 22 Cal. 566, 569; Milliken v. Cary, 5 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 272, 275.

A bill need not "allege or specifically describe" all the evidence to be offered, but "there must be allegations broad enough to cover any evidence offered before it becomes admissible; after that confessions or declarations or documents or cumulative facts are admissible to support any general allegations to which they apply, and such general allegations are alone often sufficient to render the introduction of such evidence proper." Nesmith v. Calvert, 1 Woodb. & M. (U. S.) 34, 44; Kennedy v. Kennedy, 2 Ala. 571, 604. But "a bill in chancery is not only a pleading, . . . but, also, in most cases an examination of the defendant upon oath for the purpose of obtaining evidence to establish complainant's case, or to counterprove or destroy the defence which may be set up by such defendant in his answer. The complainant may, therefore, state any matter of evidence in the bill or any collateral fact, the admission of which by the defendant may be material in establishing the general allegations of the bill, as a pleading, or in ascertaining or determining the nature and extent or the kind of relief to which the complainant may be entitled consistently with the case made by the bill." Hawley v. Wolverton, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 522.

2. 1 Dan'l Chan. Plead. & Pract. 420, cited in Swetland v. Swetland, 3 Mich. 482.

3. U. S. v. Atherton, 102 U. S. 372; Fitzpatrick v. Beatty, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 454, 469; Hynson v. Dunn, 5 Pike (Ark.), 395; Moon v. Green, 19 How. (U. S.) 69, 72; Beaubien v. Beaubien, 23 How. (U. S.) 190, 208.

"In a suit in equity, for relief, on the ground of fraud, it is enough if the facts found are not materially and substantially different from those alleged in the bill." Tufts v. Tufts, 123 U. S. 77. Opinion by Chief Justice Waite.

There can be no proof of fraud as the ground of a decree, unless it be set out substantially in the bill, so held in the case of a petition for the specific performance of an agreement. Crocker v. Higgins, 7 Conn. 342.

The facts constituting the fraud claimed must be distinctly set out in the bill. Smith v. Wood, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 563.

Fraud need not be charged by name. Skrine v. Simmons, 11 Ga. 401, 410; Kennedy v. Kennedy, 2 Ala. 571, 604.

It is said to be a "well-settled rule of pleading that every question of surprise, mistake, or fraud, must rest, not upon the mere statement of the pleader, eo nomine, but upon such a showing of facts and circumstances, if taken as true, as must lead to that legal conclusion." The court in Fahie v. Pressey, 2 Oreg. 23.

In a bill to set aside a conveyance on the ground of fraud, the complainant must allege that there was no consideration, or that there was a consideration, which he has offered to return, or that he has no knowledge whether or not there was a consideration, and that the facts are peculiarly within the knowledge of the respondent. Clark v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 3 McCrary (U. S.), 589.

Thus, a bill seeking to have a contract for the sale of land set aside on the ground of fraud, must allege that the complainant is ready to reconvey the land. Murphy v. McVicker, 4 McLean (U. S.), 252.

the benefit of it, is prevented from making it available in a court of law. In other words, the case shown must be one where the forms of law are used to defeat that which in equity constitutes the right."<sup>1</sup>

a. Scandal and Impertinence. — If the bill or answer allege any matter criminal, or of scandal or impertinence, it will be expunged.<sup>2</sup> But it must clearly appear to the court that the matter claimed to be impertinent is so before it will be ordered expunged.<sup>3</sup>

(1) Scandal defined. — Scandal is any matter which it is not becoming the dignity of the court to hear, or which reflects upon a party.<sup>4</sup>

(2) Impertinence defined. — Impertinence consists of needless prolixity, even where the matter is relevant, of alleging any matters in the case not properly before the court for decision, as where

1. Drexel v. Birney, 122 U. S. 241, 253.

That a bill in chancery cannot be admitted in another suit as evidence of the admissions of complainant made therein, see note to Vanneman v. Swedesboro Loan and Bldg. Assoc'n, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 264, et seq. See Cooper v. Day, 1 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 26.

It is provided by rule 21, U. S. Eq. Rules (Dest. Fed. Proced. Pract. Series, p. 691), that the "Plaintiff may in the narrative or stating part of his bill, state and avoid, by counter-averments at his option, any matter or thing which he supposes will be insisted upon by the defendant, by way of defence or excuse, to the case made by the plaintiff for relief."

2. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 47, 253; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 89; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) p. 76, sec. 73-75; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 48, 266-270; 2 Madd. Chan. 175, 221, 277, 278; Hinde's Chan. 14, 15, 197; Burr v. Burton, Admr., 18 Ark. 214.

Rule 26, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "Every bill shall be expressed in as brief and succinct terms as it reasonably can be, and shall contain no unnecessary recitals of deeds, documents, contracts, or other instruments in hac verba, or any other impertinent matter, or any scandalous matter not relevant to the suit. If it does, it may, on exceptions, be referred to a master by any judge of the court for impertinence or scandal, and, if so found by him, the matter shall be expunged," etc. Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 691.

And Rule 27, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "No order shall be made by any judge for referring any bill, answer, or pleading, or other matter or proceeding depending before the court for scandal or impertinence, unless exceptions are taken in writing, and signed by counsel, describing the particular passages which are considered to be scandalous or impertinent." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 692.

3. Dodd v. Wilkinson, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 647; Tucker v. Cheshire R. R. Co., 21 N. H. 29.

It is provided by Rule 26, U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 691), that "Every bill shall be expressed in as brief and succinct terms as it reasonably can be, and shall contain no unnecessary recitals of deeds, documents, contracts, or other instruments in hac verba, or any other impertinent matter, or any scandalous matter not relevant to the suit. If it does, it may, on exceptions, be referred to a master by any judge of the court for impertinence or scandal, and, if so found by him, the matter shall be expunged at the expense of the plaintiff, and he shall pay to the defendant all his costs in the suit up to that time, unless the court, or a judge thereof, shall otherwise order. If the master shall report that the bill is not scandalous or impertinent, the plaintiff shall be entitled to all costs occasioned by the reference."

4. Not all matter scandalous in terms is irrelevant or impertinent, as in cases where gross fraud is alleged to set aside deeds or other instruments; here the matter may be necessary to sustain the bill, and to enable plaintiff to obtain the relief to which he may be entitled. Such matter would not be considered scandalous. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) § 269.

Matter in an answer is never scandalous if material and relevant to the justice of the case. Equity Draughtsman by Hughes, § 5, p. 571; Coffin v. Cooper, 6 Ves. 514.

Relevant and material matter tending to the discovery of the very point in question is not scandalous, however much it reflect upon or discredit a party. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 89, 90.

Scandal includes impertinence, but impertinence does not necessarily include scandal. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 90.

records are filled with long statements or recitals of immaterial matters of fact, or where long deeds are set forth in hæc verba.<sup>1</sup>

b. Multifariousness.—It is impossible to give any rule which shall govern absolutely in determining what constitutes multifariousness. An examination of the cases discovers the fact that this is a matter largely within the discretion of the court; and this will account in a measure, therefore, for the great diversity of opinion that exists, since the circumstances and equities in each case would generally be peculiar to that particular case as distinguished from every other, and the court, by virtue of its equitable powers, might, in the absence of some precedent directly in point or analogous thereto, extend and enlarge the principles of equity to meet the case under consideration. The general rule, which is taken as a starting-point, is, that a bill is multifarious which alleges matters entirely distinct and unconnected, or which introduces parties who have no interest in the subject-matter or decree sought, and only an interest which is incidental to some question raised by the averments of the bill.<sup>2</sup>

1. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 89; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 266, 268.

"As to impertinent matter, the answer must not go out of the bill to state that which is not material or relevant to the case made out by the bill. Long recitals, digressions, stories, conversations, and insinuations tending to scandal, are of this nature. Facts not material to the decision are impertinent, and, if reproachful, they are scandalous; and the — perhaps the best — test by which to ascertain whether the matter be impertinent, is to try whether the subject of the allegation could be put in issue, and would be a matter proper to be given in evidence between the parties." The court in Woods v. Morrell, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 104, 107.

A charge in a bill against the managers of a certain savings institution that they had made illegal loans, and that they were guilty of negligence in making them, and that a loan specially named had been made by them resulting in loss, and asking that the managers be made liable for the loss, and also showing in the bill the condition of the institution financially, and stating the unlawful management of it, is not impertinent or scandalous. Wilkinson v. Dodd, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 235.

2. Warren v. Warren, 56 Me. 360, 368; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 271–287, 530–549, 610, 747, 820; Harrison v. Hogg, 2 Ves. Jr. 323; Gartland v. Dunn, 11 Ark. 720, 721; Kennedy v. Kennedy, 2 Ala. 573, defined in Howell v. Howell, 20 Ark. 25, 32. Defined as the alleging several distinct matters totally unconnected. Chapman v. Chunn, 5 Ala. 397; Colburn v. Broughton, 9 Ala. 351.

In determining whether or not a bill is multifarious, reference must be as well to the prayer as to the bill, but not to the answers or proof. Carpenter et ux. v. Hall, 18 Ala. 439; Halstead v. Shepard, 23 Ala. 558.

Decisions under the new procedure are substantially in accordance with those prior thereto. Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights (2d ed.), § 486, et seq.

It is impossible to deduce any governing principle from the cases which is safe to adhere to as a general rule upon the subject of multifariousness. "While multiplicity of actions on the one hand ought to be avoided, we should be careful on the other to guard against that complication and confusion in the investigation of rights and the application of remedies arising from the attempt to blend in one suit distinct and incongruous claims and liabilities. The interests and liabilities of defendants may be separate, and yet they can be joined in the same suit" where their liability and interests arise from the same source. Johnson v. Brown, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 327.

In a case in the Supreme Court of the United States, the complainant exhibited his bill to recover certain lands against several defendants, each holding distinctly from every other, and each claiming as a bona fide purchaser without notice, under a will sought to be impeached in the bill. Upon a question as to multifariousness which was raised by demurrer, the bill was held not multifarious; and the court, McLean, J., declared "That a bill which is multifarious may be demurred to for that cause, is a general principle; but what shall constitute multifariousness, is a mat-

Where a bill alleged two distinct and separate causes for relief, and defendant by his answer set out that one of the causes had been removed subsequent to filing the bill, held that such answer obviated an objection that the bill was multifarious, and the allegation should be then deemed as stricken from the bill.<sup>1</sup>

Upon an objection to a bill for multifariousness as embracing two separate contracts, it appeared that A., acting as the agent of B. and C., under a contract between all three, was to bid off a certain tract of land in his own name, and said land was to be divided between them. A bill was brought, wherein the complainants D. and E. averred ownership of the land, and a sale thereof to A.; it also set up the contract between A., B., and C., and prayed that specific performance of the agreement for the sale of the land be decreed, and that the contract between A., B., and C. be re-formed on the ground of mistake between them in draughting the same. The entire relief prayed was granted, and this decree was affirmed, on appeal.<sup>2</sup>

Where a demurrer was interposed, for multifariousness, to a bill against several defendants for rent, some of whom had no interest therein at the time the suit was brought, it was sustained.<sup>3</sup>

ter about which there is a great diversity of opinion. In general terms, a bill is said to be multifarious which seeks to enforce against different individuals demands which are wholly disconnected. . . . It is well remarked by Lord Cottenham in Campbell v. Mackay, 7 Simon, 564, and in Mylne & Craig, 603, 'to lay down any rule applicable universally, or to say what constitutes multifariousness as an abstract proposition, is upon the authorities utterly impossible.' Every case must be governed by its own circumstances; and as these are as diversified as the names of the parties, the court must exercise a sound discretion on the subject. . . . Multiplicity of suits should be avoided, by uniting in one bill all who have an interest in the principal matter in controversy, although the interests may have arisen under distinct contracts." Gaines v. Chew, 2 How. (U. S.) 619, citing Story's Eq. Plead. § 534; Att'y-Gen. v. Cradock, 3 Mylne & Craig, 85; 7 Sim. 241, 254.

"A bill is not multifarious where it sets up one sufficient ground for equitable relief, and sets up another claim which upon its face contains no equity which can entitle the complainant to the interposition of the court, either for discovery or relief. The proper course for the defendants in such a case, is to answer as to the first, and demur to the last, for want of equity, or he may answer as to both, and make the objection as to the want of equity in the last claim at the hearing." Varick v. Smith, etc., 5 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 137.

1. Whitney v. Union Railway Co., 11 Gray (Mass.), 359, 368.

A bill is not multifarious "because two good causes of complaint arising out of the same transaction are joined in one suit in which all the defendants are interested in the same claim of right, and where the relief asked for in relation to each is of the same general character." Varick v. Smith, etc., 5 Paige (N. Y.), 137, cited in Warren v. Warren, 56 Me. 360, 368, citing Foss v. Haynes, 31 Me. 81; Bugbee v. Sargent, 23 Me. 269; Newland v. Rogers, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.) 432; Oliver v. Piatt, 3 How. (U. S.) 333.

If "a bill attempts to bring into question and have adjudicated distinct and discordant interests," it is demurrable for multifariousness. Taylor v. King, 32 Mich. 42.

If distinct and independent claims are united against several defendants, the bill is bad for multifariousness. Stuart's Heirs v. Coalter, 4 Rand. (Va.) 74.

A bill is not obnoxious for multifariousness simply because it seeks relief as against different defendants who have distinct and separate interests, especially when contention as to some of the matters have ceased between the parties; since equity, having obtained jurisdiction, will proceed with the case in all matters germane to the case made upon the original bill. Hurd v. Ascherman, 117 Ill. 501, 509; Mix v. Hotchkiss, 14 Conn. 32.

2. Sapp v. Phelps, 92 Ill. 588, 595.

3. Childs v. Clark, 3 Barb. Ch. (N. Y.)

52.

In case of a bill brought against a partnership itself, and also against one of its members; the trustee under a deed of trust from said partner; the creditors secured by said deed; and certain purchasers of the property at a sale made by the trustee, — it was held bad for multifariousness on demurrer, although it was said that, upon motion, the court would dismiss the bill as to those parties against whom the bill was bad, and retain the suit as to the others.<sup>1</sup>

A bill is not bad for multifariousness where the plaintiffs all hold or claim by virtue of one general right, although separate and distinct interests are held by the defendants.<sup>2</sup>

Where all the parties have a common interest in the matters in controversy, the bill is not objectionable for multifariousness. Nor is it necessary that all the parties are interested in all the subject-matters of the suit: if each party has an interest in some matters in controversy, these are connected so as to be outside of the objection to multifariousness.<sup>3</sup>

"Where a joint claim against several defendants is united in the same bill with a separate claim against one defendant alone with which the other defendants have no connection, the bill is multifarious." McIntosh v. Alexander, 16 Ala. 89.

1. Johnson v. Brown, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 327.

2. Mix v. Hotchkiss, 14 Conn. 32.

Where different creditors brought a bill to set aside several deeds made at various times, and alleged to be voluntary gifts to the debtor's children, who were in possession of the property, and to subject the same to the payment of the debts of the grantor, upon demurrer by the defendants for multifariousness, it was held, citing Story's Eq. Plead. sec. 534, 537, that "Where the interests of the plaintiffs are the same, although the defendants may not have a co-extensive common interest, but their interests may be derived under different instruments, if the general objects of the bill will be promoted by their being united in a single suit, the court will not hesitate to sustain a bill against all of them." Upon this principle it has been held that "distinct and several judgment creditors may join in a bill for discovery and relief to set aside conveyances which have been made by their debtor in fraud of his creditors, — for they all have a common interest in the suit, — and if they succeed, the decree will be beneficial to all in proportion to their respective interests." In addition to these general reasons, it may be added, that it is a favorite object of equity jurisdiction to do complete justice, and prevent a variety of litigation. If the allegations of the plaintiff should be successfully maintained in administering the proper relief, the court may deem it necessary to have the several donees before them, in order to adjust the equities which may arise among themselves." Williams v. Neel, 10 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 338.

3. Worthy v. Johnson, 8 Ga. 236, citing Addison v. Walker, 4 You. & Coll. 444; Parr v. Att'y-Gen., 8 Cl. & Fin. 435. See also Booth v. Stamper, 10 Ga. 109.

Generally, on multifariousness, see the case of Fellows v. Fellows, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 682; s. c., 15 Amer. Dec. 412, and note, p. 427, wherein the question is considered under the following heads: —

(1) Joinder of defendants in equity.

(2) The general rule.

(3) Joinder of different assignees of fraudulent debtor.

(4) Other applications of the rule.

The editor, referring to the case of Fellows v. Fellows, and Mr. Justice Story's Commentary thereon, — Story's Eq. Plead. sec. 286, — also on the case of Brinkerhoff v. Brown, 6 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 139, viz., that no English authorities fully bear out the propositions contained in those cases, or are reconcilable with them, says, "Notwithstanding this seeming doubt, the conclusion arrived at in the principal case (Fellows v. Fellows), that where a judgment creditor fraudulently transfers his property in distinct parcels and by separate conveyances at different times to different persons who have no communication with each other, the judgment creditor seeking to set aside such transfers may join the debtor and his several assignees in one bill, is well settled in New York and other States." And cites Hammond v. Hudson River, etc., Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 378; Boyd v. Hoyt, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 65; Reed v. Stryker, 12 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 47; Morton v. Weil, 11 Abb. Pr. (N. Y.) 421; Lawrence v. Bank of Republic, 35 N. Y. 320; s. c., 31 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 502; Williams v. Neel, 10 Rich. Eq.

4. The Confederacy Clause.—The fourth part of the bill contains the general charge of confederacy against the persons complained of. This is a part of the bill originally inserted upon the theory that not otherwise could new parties be added by amendment, or perhaps with some view of giving jurisdiction. This clause contained a charge in general terms, that the parties named therein, combine together, and with others to the plaintiff unknown, and asking that liberty be given plaintiff to inscribe their names in the bill upon discovering the same. This clause is not necessary, however, as it is generally treated as impertinence or surplusage, unless such alleged combination is intended to be relied on, as in cases founded on such confederacy, when it must be specially averred. A general charge of confederacy requires no denial; although where the special combination is intended to be relied on, there must be a special denial. This clause is not adopted generally in the States.<sup>1</sup>

5. The Charging Part is the fifth part of the bill, in which the plaintiff, if he believes that the defendant intends to set up certain matters of defence or in avoidance, alleges the defendants' pretences and charges in evidence of them, and by so charging seeks to avoid them. This part is also used for the purpose of obtaining a discovery of matters in the defendant's case, or where the plaintiff wishes to put in issue some matter which it is not for his interest to admit, and so charges by way of pretence, which is generally held to be sufficient for such purpose.<sup>2</sup>

(S. Car.) 338; Planters' B'k, etc., v. Walker, 7 Ala. 926; Chase v. Searles, 45 N. H. 511; Bartee v. Tompkins, 4 Sneed (Tenn.), 623; Randolph v. Daly, 16 N. J. Eq. 313; Wade v. Rusher, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 537; New York, etc., R. Co. v. Schuyler, 17 N. Y. 592; s. c., 7 Abb. Pr. 41; Bank of America v. Pollock, 4 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 215; Boyden v. Lancaster, 2 Patt. & H. (Va.) 198; Bowers v. Keesecher, 9 Iowa, 422; Butler v. Spann, 27 Miss. 234; Stone v. Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co., 52 Ala. 589; Lewis v. St. Albans Iron and Steel Works, 50 Vt. 477; Arnold v. Arnold, 11 W. Va. 449; Hardin v. Swoope, 47 Ala. 273. See also on "Multi-fariousness," Colburn v. Broughton, 9 Ala. 351; Turnipseed v. Goodwin, 9 Ala. 372; Bean v. Bean, 37 Ala. 17.

1. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 40, 170; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 29, 30, 856; Hinde's Chan. 16, 17; 2 Madd. Ch. 136; Stone v. Anderson, 26 N. H. 506.

It is provided by Rule 21, United States Eq. Rules, Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 689, that "The plaintiff in his bill shall be at liberty to omit, at his option, the part which is usually called the common confederacy clause of the bill, averring a confederacy between the defendants to injure or defraud the plaintiff; also what is commonly called the charging part of the bill, setting forth the matters or excuses which the defendant is supposed to intend to set up by way of defence to the bill; also what is commonly called the jurisdiction clause of the bill, that the acts complained of are contrary to equity, and that the plaintiff is without any remedy at law; and the bill shall not be demurrable therefor."

2. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 86, 87; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 42, 43; 2 Madd. Chan. 135; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 31, 34; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 167, sec. 220.

Inasmuch as the defendant must set up fully the equities of his cause in the stating part,—since the bill would be insufficient if it were only alleged in the charging part,—it would seem that this part would be unnecessary. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) sec. 32-34.

But it is provided by Rule 21 of the United States Equity Rules (cited ante at length under the title "Confederacy Clause," note), that this part may be omitted.

It stated that "Lord Kenyon when at bar never put in the charging part, which does little more than unfold and enlarge the statement." 2 Madd. Chan. 136, citing Partridge v. Haycraft, 11 Ves. 574, 575.

It is said in 2 Swift's Digest (Conn.) (ed. 1853), p. 235, side page 206, that "The

6. The Jurisdiction Clause is the sixth part of the bill, wherein the plaintiff alleges that the acts complained of are contrary to equity.<sup>1</sup>

But the mere allegation of these facts will not confer jurisdiction unless the facts of the plaintiff's case, as set out in the stating part, are sufficient to warrant equitable interposition.<sup>2</sup>

7. The Interrogating Part is the seventh part of the bill, which asks not only an answer by the parties against whom the bill is brought of all the matters alleged therein upon their positive knowledge, but that they may also answer such matters according to their best information, knowledge, and belief, the object being to obtain evidence or facts which the plaintiff lacks, and which may be necessary in order to support his case, so that the defendant must either admit or deny all the matters alleged against him in the bill, or must state that he has no sufficient knowledge or belief of the same to enable him to answer. It is generally the practice, however, to add a repetition by way of special interrogatory of the particular circumstances attendant upon each fact, in order to compel a full and complete answer.<sup>3</sup> unnecessary use of these parts of the bill [the confederacy clause and the charging part] in all cases has tended to introduce great perplexity, and has given rise to a common reproach to practitioners in this line, that every bill contains the story three times told. To guard against such a tedious prolixity, a rule of court has been established that a bill should not exceed fifteen sheets. But in this country our practitioners have very wisely avoided the prolixity and the reproach." See also Mittf. Plead. (2d ed.) 46, 47.

1. Mittf. Plead. (2d ed.) 43; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 167, sec. 220; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 34.

2. Townshend v. Duncan, 2 Bland (Md.), 45, 48; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 34; Flint v. Field, 2 Anst. 543; Mittf. Plead. (2d ed.) 43; 2 Madd. Chan. 136.

It must appear from the allegations in the bill that the matter is one that cannot be properly adjusted in a suit at law, and that the plaintiff has not a complete remedy at law. Osborn v. Ordinary of Harris County, 17 Ga. 123; Botsford v. Beers, 11 Conn. 373, 569.

Where the statutes of the State make full and complete provisions for a remedy at law on trustee's and guardian's bonds, there must be some special matter shown in the bill which would take it out of the forum provided, and bring it into a court of equity. Osborn v. Ordinary of Harris County, 17 Ga. 123; Newton Mfg. Co. v. White, 47 Ga. 403.

This clause may be omitted under U. S. Rules of Equity, Rule 21, cited at length under title "The Confederacy Clause," ante.

3. 2 Madd. Chan. 136; Mittf. Plead. (2d ed.) 43; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 35-39, 265, 572, note; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 182, et seq. § 239 et seq.; Bullock v. Richardson, 11 Ves. 373.

As to the interrogating part, this is "the prayer that defendant may be ordered to answer not only according to his positive knowledge of the facts stated, but also according to his remembrance, information, or belief. The object of the answer is to obtain proof of matters necessary to support plaintiff's case; and to this end defendant must either admit or deny all plaintiff's allegations, or deny that he has any information or knowledge thereof, and that he is unable to form any belief in regard to the same. To prevent evasion by the defendant of the matters stated and charged in the bill, and to compel a full answer, it was the old practice to add the general requisition for answer to the matters contained in the bill, certain interrogatories which were substantially a repetition of the most essential matters required to be answered, whereby to the inquiry after each fact an inquiry was added of the circumstances attendant upon it, and the variations to which it might be subject. This was called the interrogating part of the bill, and was founded on the matters contained in the former part of the bill; and unless such prior part warranted the interrogatories, the defendant was not compelled to answer thereto." 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 86, 87; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 182 et seq.

Rule 40, United States Eq. Rules (Dest. Fed. Proced. Pract. Series, p. 700 and cases cited), provides that "It shall not hereafter

8. The Prayer for Relief is the eighth part of the bill, which must, of course, depend entirely upon each particular case, and consists of a special prayer for relief, followed by a general prayer depending upon the equities of the case. It is best not to omit the general prayer for relief, since otherwise the plaintiff might be without any remedy in case his special prayer was not granted, or he should have mistaken the relief to which he is entitled; although, in case he should mistake, he might be allowed to amend his special prayer.<sup>1</sup> Except perhaps in special cases, such as where the writ ne exeat regno or of injunction is sought, the prayer for general relief is sufficient, and under it the court may grant any decree which the facts stated will warrant; and so was the rule formerly.<sup>2</sup> be necessary to interrogate a defendant specially and particularly upon any statement in the bill, unless the complainant desires to do so to obtain a discovery."

Rule 41, U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proc. Pract. Series, p. 700), provides that "the interrogatories contained in the interrogating part of the bill shall be divided as conveniently as may be from each other, and numbered consecutively 1, 2, 3, etc.; and the interrogatories which each defendant is required to answer shall be specified in a note at the foot of the bill, in the form or to the effect following; that is to say, 'The defendant (A. B.) is required to answer the interrogatories numbered respectively 1, 2, 3,' etc.; and the office copy of the bill taken by each defendant shall not contain any interrogatories except those which such defendant is so required to answer, unless such defendant shall require to be furnished with a copy of the whole bill."

Rule 42, U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proc. Pract. Series, 701), provides that, "The note at the foot of the bill, specifying the interrogatories which each defendant is required to answer, shall be considered and treated as part of the bill; and the addition of any such note to the bill, or any alteration in or addition to such note, after the bill is filed, shall be considered and treated as an amendment of the bill."

Rule 43, U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proc. Pract. Series, 702), provides that, "Instead of the words of the bill now in use, preceding the interrogating part thereof, and beginning with the words 'to the end thereof,' there shall hereafter be used words in the form or to the effect following: 'To the end, therefore, that the said defendants may, if they can, show why your orator should not have the relief hereby prayed, and may, upon their several and respective corporeal oaths, and according to the best and utmost of their several and respective knowledge, remembrance, information, and belief, full, true, direct, and perfect answer make to such of the several interrogatories hereinafter numbered and set forth as by the note hereunder written, they are respectively required to answer; that is to say, "(1) whether, etc.; (2) whether,"" etc.

Rule 40, U. S. Eq. Rules, also provides that, "It shall not be necessary to interrogate a defendant specially and particularly upon any statement in the bill, unless the complainant desires to do so to obtain a discovery." Desty's Fed. Proc. (Pract. Ser.) 700.

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 40-43, 81, 313-317; Hinde's Chan. 17; 2 Madd. Chan. 138, 139; Mitt. Plead. (2d ed.) 45; Townshend v. Duncan, 2 Bland (Md.), 45, 48; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 185-187, §§ 246-248.

"Under the general prayer for relief, a complainant may pray at the bar for such specific relief as the statements of the bill will warrant, provided it does not conflict with that specifically prayed for." Busby v. Littlefield, 31 N. H. 193, 200, citing Stone v. Anderson, 6 Fost. (N. H.) 506; 1 Dan'l Ch. Pract. 434, 435; Story's Eq. Plead. 540; Cooper's Eq. Plead. 14.

"It is essential that the plaintiff should distinctly state every fact necessary to constitute such a case as gives him a right to claim relief from the defendant at the time of filing his bill." Townshend v. Duncan, 2 Bland (Md.), 45, 48.

It is provided by Rule 21, U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proc. Pract. Series, 689), that "The prayer of the bill shall ask the special relief to which the plaintiff supposes himself entitled, and also shall contain a prayer for general relief."

2. Shields v. Trammell, 19 Ark. 51, 62; Kelly v. Payne, 18 Ala. 371; Johnston v. Glasscock, 2 Ala. 519; Thomason v. Smithson, 7 Port. (Ala.) 144; Danforth v. Smith, 23 Vt. 247; Hubbard v. U. S. Mort. Co., 14 Bradw. (Ill.) 40; Haworth v. Taylor,

But a claim distinct from that made by the bill upon the issue cannot be recovered under a prayer for general relief; as where the prayer was for the division of property among certain persons, it was held that it could not be divided by the same bill among other persons;<sup>1</sup> and where the court has obtained jurisdiction for the purpose of granting any relief, it will retain it so that full relief in the premises may be given.<sup>2</sup>

Although the special relief asked may not be allowed, yet the court will, if possible, grant such relief as the allegations will support, in order to meet the demands of justice between the parties; so where a bill asking for an assignment of a mortgage was not allowed, yet the court, upon certain averments in the bill, sustained it as a bill to redeem.<sup>3</sup>

108 Ill. 275; Brown v. McDonald, 1 Hill, Ch. (S. Car.) 297; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 40-42; Hinde's Chan. 17; 2 Madd. Chan. 138, 139; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 185-187, §§ 246-248.

An exception to this rule is where the prayer is framed with a double aspect. Simmons v. Williams, 27 Ala. 507.

Injunction or ne exeat regno must be specifically prayed. Kelly v. Payne, 18 Ala. 371.

1. Sheppards v. Starke, 3 Mun. (Va.) 29, 40.

"As to the relief to be given under a general prayer, the rule is, that it must be agreeable to the case made by the bill, and not different from it, or inconsistent with it." "The case made by the bill here is the execution of the mortgage deed and the omission to have it recorded within the time prescribed by law." The plaintiff prayed specially for a decree for recording the said deed of mortgage with a general prayer that the complainant may have "such other and further relief as his case may merit."

The court below decreed that the mortgaged premises be sold to pay the mortgage debt. It was held that the decree should be reversed as not consistent with the case made by the bill. Chalmers v. Chambers, 6 Harr. & J. (Md.) 29.

2. Whipple v. Farrar, 3 Mich. 436, 446. The true character of a bill must be determined by the material averments; and if it appears therefrom that the plaintiff is entitled to relief, and the prayer will admit of that relief being given to which the plaintiff shows himself entitled, the court will grant such relief, even if the bill be given a wrong name. McConnel v. Gibson, 12 Ill. 130.

The relief granted in equity must be that only which the case made by the bill warrants. Cloud v. Whiteman, 2 Del. Chan. 23.

Under a general prayer in a bill for specific performance, held that rents and profits might be granted, "any relief may be given for which the basis is laid in the bill." Watts v. Waddle, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 389, 402.

And where the plaintiff shows that he is entitled to some relief, such relief will be given as the case made out in equity demands, and as is consistent therewith. Danforth v. Smith, 23 Vt. 257; Driver v. Fortner, 5 Port. (Ala.) 9.

3. Lamson v. Drake, 105 Mass. 564.

Although the prayer for special relief may be defective, relief will be granted under the general prayer, consistent with the equities of the case. Treadwell v. Brown, 44 N. H. 551; May v. Lewis, 22 Ala. 646; Strange v. Watson, 11 Ala. 324; Townshend v. Duncan, 2 Bland (Md.), 45, 48; McMillan v. James, 105 Ill. 194.

But relief cannot be granted under a general prayer, which is entirely distinct and independent of the relief sought under the special prayer. Thomason v. Smithson, 7 Port. (Ala.) 144.

It was held in Owing's case, 1 Bland, Ch. (Md.) 370, that it is not essentially necessary that relief should be granted exactly or in part as prayed in the bill, but that affirmative relief might be granted upon the equities of the case as made out from the pleadings and proofs between the parties. Citing Johnson v. Johnson, 1 Munf. (Va.) 554, note. The Charitable Corporation v. Sutton, 9 Mod. 356; 2 Atk. 406; Walker v. Preswick, 2 Ves. 622; Taylor v. Ficklin, 5 Munf. (Va.) 25; McNeil v. Baird, 6 Munf. (Va.) 316; Fife v. Clayton, 13 Ves. 546; Higginson v. Close, 15 Ves. 525; Dorsey v. Campbell, 1 Bland, Ch. (Md.) 356; Harding v. Handy, 11 Wheat. (U. S.) 120; Stuart v. Mechanics, etc., Bank, 19 John. (N. Y.) 496. See also on this point Banks v. Carneal, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 181, 189. Opinion by C. J. Marshall.

It has been held, however, that, under general prayer, relief may be granted upon

9. Prayer for Process is the ninth part of the bill, which asks that defendant appear to answer the bill, and abide the order of the court. None are affected by the decree, as a general rule, except such as are named in the prayer of process, even though they are elsewhere named in the bill.<sup>1</sup>

10. Signature. — All bills must be signed by counsel, and sometimes it is required that the facts alleged therein must be verified by complainant under oath.<sup>2</sup>

(B) ORIGINAL BILLS PRAYING FOR RELIEF. — The first division of bills for relief is into bills praying the decree of the court touching some right claimed by the plaintiff in opposition to the defendant.

1. Specific Performance. — A bill to compel specific performance must set up the contract which is sought to be enforced in full; and where the plaintiff was bound to perform certain acts as conditions, it is not sufficient to allege that he performed "all that he was bound to perform," but he must aver what he performed in fact.<sup>3</sup> the equities of the case made by the bill, although it be inconsistent with the special prayer. Eureka Marble Co. v. Windsor Mfg. Co., 47 Vt. 430; Dews et al. v. Cornish, 20 Ark. 332.

"If there be no general prayer, and the special prayer cannot be granted, the plaintiff must amend his bill, or have it dismissed." Townshend v. Duncan, 2 Bland (Md.), 45, 48; Driver v. Fortner, 5 Port. (Ala.) 9.

A plaintiff may so frame his bill as that he may obtain relief in one view if the other fails. Strange v. Watson, 11 Ala. 324, 336; Hobson v. McArthur, 16 Pet. (U. S.) 182, 195.

Rule 21, U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proced. Pract. Series), 689, provides that, "The prayer of the bill shall ask the special relief to which the plaintiff supposes himself entitled, and also shall contain a prayer for general relief; and if an injunction, or a writ of ne exeat regno, or any other special order pending the suit is required, it shall also be specially asked for."

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 44, 80, 81; 2 Madd. Chan. 139.

A prayer for an injunction or writ of ne exeat regno is necessary before the prayer for process. 2 Madd. Chan. 139; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 46.

Rule 23 of the U. S. Eq. Rules provides that, "The prayer for process of subpoena in the bill shall contain the names of all the defendants named in the introductory part of the bill, and if any of them are known to be infants under age, or otherwise under guardianship, shall state the fact, so that the court may take order thereon, as justice may require, upon the return of the process. If an injunction, or a writ of ne exeat regno, or any other special order pending the suit, is asked for in the prayer for relief, that shall be sufficient without repeating the same in the prayer for process." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 690.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 47; Roach v. Hulings, 5 Cranch (U. S.), 637.

The certificate of the counsel, as well as the affidavit of the defendant, are required. Secor v. Singleton, 9 Fed. Rep. 809.

A signature as "solicitor" is proper. Stinson v. Hildrup, 8 Biss. (U. S.) 376.

A signature on the back of the bill is sufficient. Dwight v. Humphreys, 3 McLean (U. S.), 104.

Bill may not be signed after filing except under order of the court. Partridge v. Jackson, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 520.

Signature of firm-name sufficient. Hampton v. Coddington, 28 N. J. Eq. 557.

An affidavit is not required in chancery, in Connecticut. Jerome v. Jerome, 5 Conn. 352.

A bill in equity need not be verified, except where required as evidence, in application for temporary injunctions and the like. Hughes v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 18 Fed. Rep. 106, 110.

Rule 24, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "Every bill shall contain the signature annexed to it, which shall be considered as an affirmation on his part, that upon the instructions given to him, and the case laid before him, there is good ground for the suit in the manner in which it is framed." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 690.

3. Davis v. Harrison, 4 Litt. (Ky.) 261.

2. Bills for Partition. — The titles, both of plaintiff and defendant, ought to be averred with certainty and precision.<sup>1</sup>

3. Bills of Peace. — A bill of peace may be exhibited where one claims a general exclusive right, and there are very numerous parties who dispute it, and the right cannot be quieted by one or two actions at law, as in actions relating to rights of common, or to be quieted in the possession of an ancient ferry, or in disputes between lords of manors and their tenants, or in questions affecting the right of fishery, or in the possession of a water-course or the like.<sup>2</sup>

4. Bills Quia Timet. — Where a person apprehends that he will be subjected to future inconvenience which may possibly or probably happen or arise from the negligence or culpability of another, or where one is a legatee of property subject to the life of another in existence, and it is desired to protect this for his use from any accident which may happen to it before he shall come into possession, in such cases a bill quia timet may be brought to quiet such apprehensions, and remove the causes thereof; or, in the latter case, to obtain some security against the apprehended injury to his possession, as a guaranty entered into that such property will not be disposed of or destroyed.<sup>3</sup>

5. Bills of Foreclosure. — There is a great diversity in the system of foreclosure in the several States, and those systems which are based on the same general principles differ in many points. We believe it to be true, however, that an examination of the actual provisions as to pleading and practice will discover that the old theory of presenting facts in the bill for relief in equity and of pleadings in general, runs through all the systems to a great extent, and may now be considered as governing the pleadings

Averment of willingness of defendant to perform another agreement than that set up, which he declares not to be the actual agreement, the court will decree a performance of such other agreement if proven. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 394 and note.

Where the plaintiff's part of the agreement sought to be enforced has not been performed by him, here the allegations must show that he was not in fault, and that he is ready and willing to perform. 1 Fonb. Tr. Eq. 391, note d.

It must appear from the bill that the object sought is not against public policy. Earl of Kingston v. Pierpont, 1 Vern. 5.

1. Agar v. Fairfax, 17 Ves. 552; Baring v. Nash, 1 Ves. & B. 552.

2. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 104; Tenham v. Herbert, 2 Atk. 484; Mayor of York v. Pilkington, 1 Atk. 282; 2 Story's Eq. Jur. §§ 852-860; Met. Eq. 143.

This bill will not lie to protect plaintiff against a multiplicity of suits, unless some of the suits have been successfully defended, and a right thereby established to such protection. West v. The Mayor of New York, 10 Paige, Chan. (N. Y.) 539.

The right of the party must have been established, so far as his title at law is concerned, or it must appear to the court that those who controvert the title are so numerous that it is necessary to bring in all the parties interested, and so avoid a multiplicity of suits. Bush v. Western, 1 Vern. 120, 127; Eldridge v. Hill, 2 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 281. See Harmer v. Gwynne, 5 McLean (U. S.), 313.

Where the suit affects land, it must appear that the plaintiff has been, or is, in possession, or that it is sought to have a deed given up which is defective. Shapley v. Rangeley, 1 Woodb. & M. (U. S.) 213.

3. 2 Story's Eq. Jur. §§ 825, 851; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 107; Elmendorf v. Lansing, 4 John. Chan. (N. Y.) 562, was a case of this character. See title "Receivers," 4 Abb. Natl. Dig. 60, et seq. See Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 43, note a; 1 Madd. Chan. 218.

and practice in actions to foreclose, at the present time, subject to certain limitations with regard to parties, their interest in the suit, and its object.<sup>1</sup>

6. Bills to redeem should make a tender of the amount due on the debt, and offer to pay the sum found due.<sup>2</sup>

7. Bills for Injunction and ne exeat regno are in the nature of original bills praying relief, although, strictly speaking, they are bills of relief wherein ordinarily, "for the purpose of preserving property pending suit, or to prevent evasion of justice, the court either makes a special order on the subject, or issues a provisional writ," whence the bill takes its name of a bill for injunction or ne exeat regno.<sup>3</sup>

8. Bills of Interpleader constitutes the second division of original bills praying relief, and lie where two or more claim the same thing by different or separate interests, and a bill is brought praying the judgment of the court as to which of them it belongs; or, as is more commonly the case, it is a bill brought by a third per-

1. Jones on Mortgages, ch. xxx. §§ 1317-1366, 1451, where the mode of procedure, pleadings, parties, etc., in each State is considered at length.

"The general requisites of the complaint are, that it should allege the execution and delivery of the mortgage and of the note or bond secured by it, the names of the parties to it, the date and amount of it, when and where recorded, a description of the premises, the amount claimed to be due, and the default upon which the right of action has accrued. It must show also that the complainant is entitled to maintain the action by virtue of an assignment, bequest, or otherwise, and that the defendants have, or claim to have, certain interests in the premises or liens upon them. If the plaintiff is not the mortgagee, his right to maintain the action by virtue of an assignment, bequest, or otherwise, must be set forth with reasonable fullness and certainty. The terms and conditions of both the mortgage and the bond or note secured by it, should be set out. This may be done by proper recitals in the complaint itself, or by annexing copies of these instruments which are referred to in the complaint, and made part of it. The relief which is sought should be fully and explicitly stated." Jones on Mort. § 1452.

Writ of entry in Massachusetts and Maine for foreclosure of mortgage is substantially a suit in equity. Holbrook v. Bliss, 9 Allen (Mass.), 69; Jones on Mortgages, §§ 1276, 1296. See also on the subject, actions to foreclose. Pom. Rem. & Remed. Rights, §§ 255, 256, 333-346.

Rule 92, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "In suits in equity for foreclosure of mortgages in the circuit courts of the United States or in any court of the Territories having jurisdiction of the same, a decree may be rendered for any balance that may be found due to the complainant over and above the proceeds of the sale or sales, and execution may issue for the collection of the same, as is provided in the eighth rule of this court, regulating the equity practice where the decree is solely for the payment of money." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 730, 731.

2. Jones on Mort. § 1095; Perry v. Carr, 41 N. H. 371.

3. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 46.

It is provided by Rule 21, U. S. Eq. Rules (Desty's Fed. Proced. Pract. Series, 689), that "If an injunction, or a writ of ne exeat regno, or any other special order pending suit, is required, it shall also be specially asked for" in the prayer for relief.

Rule 55, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "Whenever an injunction is asked for by the bill to stay proceedings at law, if the defendant do not enter his appearance, and plead, demur, or answer to the same within the time prescribed therefor by these rules, the plaintiff shall be entitled, as of course, upon motion without notice, to such injunction. But special injunctions shall be grantable only upon due notice to the other party by the court in term, or by a judge thereof in vacation, after a hearing, which may be ex parte, if the adverse party does not appear at the time and place ordered. In every case where an injunction, either the common injunction or a special injunction, is awarded in vacation, it shall, unless previously dissolved by the judge granting the same, continue until the next term of the court, or until it is dissolved by some other order of the court." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 708.

son, who does not know to whom of different persons claiming the same thing in distinct or separate interests he ought to render a debt or duty, and fears an injury to his rights by some of the claimants, and he prays that they may interplead, so that the court may adjudge between them, and he be rendered safe upon payment of the money or delivery of the property; and his bill lies whether a suit is actually commenced, or he is likely to be sued: in the latter case the right of each of the opposing claimants to sue at law must exist.<sup>1</sup>

A bill of interpleader lies in behalf of a vendee of personal property against the vendor and another claiming title thereto.<sup>2</sup>

It should sufficiently appear in a bill of interpleader, that the claims are of the same nature and character, that they are properly a subject of interpleader; and they should for this purpose be specifically set forth.<sup>3</sup>

The prayer of the bill should ask that the defendants interplead, and the matter be thus adjusted as between them, and the plaintiff saved harmless, and also that they be restrained from proceeding at law.<sup>4</sup> An affidavit is generally annexed to such bill, that there is no collusion between the plaintiff or any of the parties.<sup>5</sup>

1. 1 Harr. Pr. in Ch. 96; Atkinson v. Manks, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 691, 703; Eq. Draughts. (by Hughes) 204; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) p. 34, § 12, p. 83, § 88; Hinde's Chan. 26; Mitt. Plead. (2d ed.) 32, 47, 48; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 18, 291-298; School District v. Weston, 31 Mich. 85; Bird v. Fake, 2 Pinn. (Wis.) 69; McDonald v. Allen, 37 Wis. 108.

Such bill should be exhibited before decree had. 1 Harr. Pr. in Ch. 99; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 291.

A bill of interpleader "only lies where two or more persons claim the same debt or duty from the complainant by different or separate interests." Hayes v. Johnson, 4 Ala. 267.

It is not necessary that a suit be actually pending to enable a party to maintain a bill of interpleader. Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 281, 288.

If each of the defendants to a bill of interpleader has a claim to matter in suit, this is sufficient ground for the bill; and this although one only has an action at law, and the other in equity. Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 281, 288.

2. Darden v. Burns, 6 Ala. 362.

3. Varrian v. Berrien, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 1, 3.

The nature of the claims should be sufficiently alleged so that it should appear that they are properly a subject for interpleader. Crawshaw v. Thornton, 7 Sim. 391, 397; Slingsby v. Boulton, 1 Ves. & B. 334.

"The appropriate allegations in every bill of interpleader are, (1) that two or more persons have preferred a claim against the complainant; (2) that they claim the same thing; (3) that the complainant has no beneficial interest in the thing claimed; (4) that he cannot determine, without hazard to himself, to which of the defendants the thing of right belongs." Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 281, 288.

In a bill of interpleader, the right of each claimant to the property debt or duty to sue him, should be admitted by the plaintiff. Morgan v. Marsack, 2 Mer. 110; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 292; 1 Harr. Pract. in Ch. 97.

It should also be shown by the bill that the plaintiff claims no interest for himself in the matter in controversy. Mitchell v. Hayne, 2 Sim. & Stu. 63.

Plaintiff to bill of interpleader ought to bring the money or other property into court, although this is not necessary unless required by the other side. An offer, however, to bring the same into court, is necessary. 1 Harr. Pr. in Ch. 98; Eq. Draughtsman (by Hughes), 204; Mitt. Plead. (2d ed.) 49; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 297; Hinde's Ch. 27; Williams v. Walker, 2 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 291.

In Connecticut it is not necessary in a bill of interpleader to allege a willingness, or to offer, to bring the money or thing in controversy into court. Nash v. Smith, 6 Conn. 421.

4. Richards v. Salters, 6 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 445.

5. Gibson v. Goldthwaite, 7 Ala. 281, 289; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 98; Atkinson

Although a bill of interpleader cannot be sustained strictly as such in equity, yet under a general prayer for relief, if the plaintiff is entitled to any relief, it will be granted.<sup>1</sup>

9. Certiorari Bill. — This is the third division of original bills praying relief, and lies to remove a cause from a lower to a higher court, but it is seldom used in the United States.<sup>2</sup>

(C) OTHER BILLS. — Under this head we have placed those bills which are technically in the nature of original bills not praying relief. Their kinds we have already noticed.<sup>3</sup>

We will next consider, in their order, the bills classified under this head.<sup>4</sup>

1. Cross-bill. — A cross-bill is one brought by the defendant against the plaintiff to a pending bill to obtain from him a discovery of facts within his knowledge, and necessary to the defendant in the original bill, or in case the defendant wishes to claim affirmative relief in relation to the matter of the original bill. It was first allowed on the ground that the case of the defendant might be thereby better stated than by answer; and frequently it happens that this is the only way in which the matters in litigation, and necessary to a complete decree, can be properly brought before the court.<sup>5</sup>

v. Manks, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 691, 704; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 49; Eq. Draughts. (by Hughes) 205.

1. The Consociated Presbyterian Society, etc., v. Staples, 23 Conn. 553, 555.

2. Generally, on this subject, see Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) sec. 298; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 100-104; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 49; Hinde's Chan. 581, 582; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 67, § 56, pp. 171, 172, § 222.

"The prayer of this bill is grounded upon a suggestion necessarily arising from one or some of the following circumstances: that by means of the limited jurisdiction of the court, or by reason that the cause is without the jurisdiction of the inferior courts, or that the witnesses live out of the jurisdiction, or that the defendants do, and are not able by age or infirmity, or the distance of the place, to follow the suit; or upon some substantial reasons shown, equal and impartial justice to the parties is not likely to be obtained in the inferior court, and for this purpose the bill should state the proceedings in the court below; the incompetency of that court to decide between, and administer justice to the parties, and pray the writ of certiorari." 1 Harr. Pract. in Ch. p. 101.

3. See title "General Division," subtitle "Other Bills."

"Bills for the purposes of cross-litigation of matters already pending before the court; of controverting, suspending, avoiding, or carrying into execution a judgment of the court; or of obtaining the benefit of a suit to which the plaintiff is not entitled, to add to, or continue for the purpose of supplying any defects in it, — have been generally considered under the head of bills in the nature of original bills, though occasioned by, or seeking the benefit of, former bills." Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 444.

4. See title "General Division," subtitle "Other Bills."

5. Hinde's Chan. 52-55; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 135-137; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 389-402; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 49, 101, 102, 201, §§ 26, 114-116, 278-282.

Rule 72, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "Where a defendant in equity files a cross-bill for discovery only against the plaintiff in the original bill, the defendant to the original bill shall first answer thereto, before the original plaintiff shall be compellable to answer the cross-bill. The answer of the original plaintiff to such cross-bill may be read and used by the party filing the cross-bill at the hearing, in the same manner, and under the same restrictions, as the answer praying relief may now be read and used." Desty's Fed. Proceed. (Pract. Ser.) 721.

It is said in Trapnall, Excr., v. Hill et al., 31 Ark. 345, 359, by the court, that "A cross-bill is usually brought for one of two purposes. First, to obtain a necessary discovery of facts in aid of the defence to the original bill, or to bring some matter pertinent to the defence before the court which

A cross-bill is a mode of defence to the original bill,<sup>1</sup> and should not be inconsistent with the answer.<sup>2</sup> This bill should be filed by the defendant to obtain affirmative relief when the equities arising out of the original case will permit.<sup>3</sup> If the original bill, however, is without equity, there is nothing on which to found a cross-bill, and it will not be sustained.<sup>4</sup>

In Plunkett v. Dillon,<sup>5</sup> the court ordered the defendant to file a cross-bill, in order to bring the whole matter into controversy, and settle the questions raised by the pleadings finally between all the parties.<sup>6</sup>

Where a bill was filed to foreclose a mortgage executed by the defendant to secure certain promissory notes, the answer admitted the averments of the bill, but set up an agreement claimed to have been made subsequent to the execution of the notes and mortgage, in pursuance of which the complainant was to cancel said notes and release the mortgage upon a conveyance in fee by defendant to plaintiff of part of the mortgaged premises, averring also a tender of a deed to plaintiff, in conformity with the terms of the agreement, and a refusal by the latter to receive said deed. The defendant averring a payment of the notes, and claiming that they be given up, and the mortgage cancelled, upon a question as to the sufficiency of the answer it was held that that part of the answer asking for a surrender of the notes and cancellation of the mortgage should be disregarded, and was properly the subject-matter of a cross-bill.<sup>7</sup> could not, under the rules of the court, be presented by answer or plea. In such cases it is a mere mode of defence to the original suit. Second, It may be used to obtain full relief to all parties touching the matters in the original bill. For purposes of relief it is most commonly used where persons in opposing interests are co-defendants, . . . and a cross-bill, even by acquiescence of parties, may not have an indefinite extent, for the books seem to imply that there is a want of power to make a decree upon matters unconnected with the original suit. It should not introduce matters not embraced in the original bill, for as to such matters it is an original bill. When a cross-bill is brought against the plaintiff in the original bill as a mode of defence, it requires no equity to support it: in such cases it is treated as an auxiliary bill. . . . But where a cross-bill seeks relief, it should be equitable relief, otherwise it will be demurrable. . . . The cross-bill must grow out of matters in the original bill."

1. Andrews v. Hobson, 23 Ala. 219.

2. Dill v. Shahan, 25 Ala. 694, 703.

3. Quick v. Lemon, 105 Ill. 578.

The affirmative relief asked in cross-bill must be different from that prayed for in the original bill, or it will be dismissed. Howe v. South Park Comms., 119 Ill. 101.

It was held in Tarleton v. Vietis, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 470, that a party defendant seeking affirmative relief must do it by way of an original cross-bill; the court saying, however, that "In equity a defendant may in his answer rely on any matter which shows that the complainant is not entitled to the relief he claims by his bill." See also Mason v. McGirr, 28 Ill. 322; White v. White, 103 Ill. 438.

Held in Illinois that affirmative relief cannot be decreed upon an answer alone, but a cross-bill must be filed, or bill praying relief must be filed. Mason v. McGirr, 28 Ill. 322, citing Ballance v. Underhill, 3 Scam. (Ill.) 453; Edwards v. Helm, 4 Scam. (Ill.) 142; Tarleton v. Vietis, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 470; Rowan v. Bowles, 21 Ill. 17; McConnell v. Smith, 23 Ill. 611.

4. Dill v. Shahan, 25 Ala. 694, 703.

5. 3 Del. Chan. 496.

6. But a cross-bill is not necessary when the whole matter is before the court. Ames v. N. J. Franklinite Co., 12 N. J. Eq. 66; s. c., 72 Amer. Dec. 387; Hudnit v. Nash, 16 N. J. Eq. 550, 555.

Only parties to the original bill are properly parties to a cross-bill. Oswald v. Givins, Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 326.

7. Tarleton v. Vietis, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 470.

As to the averments of the cross-bill: It should state the original bill, the parties thereto, the proceedings thereon, as well as the object of it; also the rights of the party bringing the cross-bill, and the ground on which the plaintiff's claim in the original bill is resisted.<sup>1</sup>

A cross-bill must, as to the subject-matter of it, relate only to questions raised by the original bill, or to some matter in aid of a defence to it.<sup>2</sup>

It is said to be the general rule, that a cross-bill should be filed before publication on the first bill, since both bills should proceed to a hearing together; although the reason of the rule seems hardly to have a sound legal basis, inasmuch as the courts frequently found, as they proceeded with the trial of a cause on the original bill, that they could not administer complete justice without a cross-bill. It is held, however (probably in analogy to the original reason for the existence of the cross-bill), that the court may afterwards direct a cross-bill to be filed.<sup>3</sup>

2. Bill of Review. — A bill of review lies for error apparent on the decree, or (by permission of the court) upon the discovery of new matter of which it must appear that the defendant first had knowledge after publication has passed.<sup>4</sup> This bill must state the original bill, the proceedings had thereon, the decree, the grievance complained of, and the questions of law raised thereon, or the new matter discovered upon which it is sought to impeach the decree.<sup>5</sup> Where newly discovered matter is set up as the ground

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) sec. 401; Hinde's Ch. 53; 1 Harr. Pract. Ch. 136; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 75, 76, 77.

2. Rowan v. Sharp's Rifle Mfg. Co., 33 Conn. 1; Gage v. Mayer, 117 Ill. 632; Kidder v. Barr, 35 N. H. 235; Roberts v. Peavey, 29 N. H. 392.

A cross-bill must be upon some matter not inconsistent with but based upon the equities of the original bill, and is dependent thereon; and it may be merely in aid of the defence to the original bill, or to set up some affirmative claim. Rutland v. Paige, 24 Vt. 181.

A cross-bill which contains matters which have no connection whatever with those involved in the suit upon the original bill, and does not seek relief against the plaintiff to the first suit, is without equity, and must be dismissed. Andrews v. Hobson's Admr., 23 Ala. 219, 239.

A cross-bill is not confined to the issues raised by the original bill, although the matter of the cross-bill must relate to the matter of the original bill. Nelson v. Dunn, 15 Ala. 501; Andrews v. Hobson, 23 Ala. 219.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 395, 396; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 102, § 116.

After hearing had on the original bill, a cross-bill cannot be filed except by order or permission of the court. Roberts v. Peavey, 29 N. H. 392.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 402-420; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 120, 121, 202, 203, §§ 152, 153, 283, 284; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 137-144; Hinde's Chan. 56; Standish v. Radby, 2 Atk. 177.

"The rules of practice applicable to this subject appear to be, that bills of review must be for error apparent on the face of the decree, or for some new matter of fact relevant to the case, and discovered since publication passed, and which could not have been discovered by reasonable diligence before." Caller v. Shields, 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 417; Williams v. Murphy, 1 Port. (Ala.) 40; Cochran v. Rison, 20 Ala. 463.

A bill of review may be brought for errors of law apparent of record, or on the ground of newly discovered evidence or facts, which are material, and would substantially change the result, and which the exercise of reasonable diligence would not have discovered. Barnum v. McDaniels, 6 Vt. 177; Mead v. Arms, 3 Vt. 148; Brainard v. Morse, 47 Vt. 320.

5. Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, p. 445; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 202, 203, §§ 283, 284; Hinde's Chan. 57; Anon. 1 for impeaching the decree, it must be shown that the matter is relevant and material, and would, if known, have probably occasioned a different determination.<sup>1</sup> So the errors alleged must be purely matters of law, apparent of record.<sup>2</sup>

A bill of review which seeks relief upon the ground of newly discovered facts must be filed by leave of court, and should not be allowed unless equitable and proper.<sup>3</sup> The bill will not lie in behalf of any but parties and privies, as heirs, executors, or administrators.<sup>4</sup>

The prayer of the bill should be that the decree may be reviewed and reversed, or, if carried into execution, some decree of the court is asked whereby the party bringing the bill may be put in the same situation he would have been if the decree had not been executed, or that the original decree may stand when the bill is brought to review the reversal of a former decree.<sup>5</sup>

3. Bills in the Nature of Bills of Review.<sup>6</sup>

Ves. Jr. 99; Earl of Carlisle v. Globe, Nels. 52; s. c., 3 Ch. 94; Curtis v. Smallbridge, 2 Freem. 178; Morris v. Neve, 3 Atk. 35; Moon v. Moon, 2 Ves. 284, 598; Gould v. Tancred, 2 Atk. 534.

1. Livingston v. Hubbs, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 124.

2. Mellish v. Williams, 1 Vern. 166; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 121, 122, § 152.

3. P. & M. Bank v. Dundas, 10 Ala. 661. And should ordinarily be upon oath. Cal-ler, etc., v. Shields, 2 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 417.

It must appear that the use of reasonable diligence would not have enabled the party to have discovered the new matter set up as a ground for relief in this bill. Living-ston v. Hubbs, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 124.

Upon a bill of review the proofs cannot be considered. Putnam v. Day, 22 Wall. (U. S.) 60, 65.

4. Gilb. Chan. 186; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 409. But see Chaworth v. Bush, 4 Ves. 564.

It has been said that a devisee of a testa-tor, against whom a decree is made, can bring a bill for review, and that an assignee can in no case exhibit such bill. Slingsby v. Hale, 1 Chan. Ca. 123; Barbonne v. Searle, 1 Vern. 417. But see Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 409.

5. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 139; 2 Madd. Chan. 412, 413; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 420, citing Dexter v. Arnold, 5 Mason (U. S.), 308, 309.

6 The decree must have been signed and enrolled; and herein, says Justice Story, lies the difference between Bills of Review and Bills in the Nature of Bills of Review. We find, however, in Hinde's Chancery the following headings: "Of Bills of Review to examine and reverse Decrees signed and enrolled," "Of Bills in the Nature of Bills of Review to examine and reverse Decrees either signed and enrolled or not, brought by Persons not bound by the Decree." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 421-424; Hinde's Chan. 56, 66. And it is said in Mitford's Pleadings (2d ed.), 83, that, "If a decree is made against a person who has no interest at all in the matter in dispute, or had not such an interest as was sufficient to render the decree against him binding upon some person claiming the same or a similar interest, relief may be obtained against error in the decree by bill in the nature of a bill of review. The practice, however, in nearly all the States is subject to particular statutes and rules of court as to motions, petitions for rehearing, etc."

"In some of the States where the Eng-lish practice of enrolment has not been adopted, the ending of the term in chan-cery is considered as having the same effect as the enrolment, upon the right to bring a petition for rehearing; as, therefore, the term in chancery is considered as open until the next one begins; although the sittings of the court may have closed, the decree will not be regarded as enrolled, so as to be beyond the power of the court to rehear until the commencement of the next term; after that time the proceeding must be by bill of review." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 421, note a, citing Nowland v. Glenn, 2 Md. Ch. 368; Leach v. Jones, 11 R.I. 386. Rule 88, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides for petitions for rehearing, that "Every petition for a rehearing shall contain the special matter or cause on which such rehearing is applied for, shall be signed by counsel, and the facts therein stated, if not appar-ent on the record, shall be verified by the oath of the party, or by some other person. No rehearing shall be granted after the term at which the final decree of the court

4. Bills to impeach a Decree on the Ground of Fraud are said to be similar in many respects to bills of review.<sup>1</sup>

It is not doubted that equity may relieve in all cases where a decree has been obtained by fraud or imposition. "For fraud infects judgments at law and decrees of all courts, and annuls the whole proceedings, particularly in the consideration of courts of equity."<sup>2</sup>

In this bill the plaintiff must state the decree, the proceedings on which it is based, also the circumstances of fraud by which the decree was procured. In framing the prayer, regard must of necessity be had to the character and extent of the fraud and the circumstances of the case.<sup>3</sup>

5. Bills to suspend or avoid the Execution of a Decree.<sup>4</sup>

6. Bills to carry a Decree into Execution. — Where, from neglect or otherwise, it becomes impracticable to carry the decree into execution, a bill may be exhibited to execute or confirm the decree, and settle and ascertain the rights of the parties; or, in case some third party claiming in a similar interest to those who were parties to the original bill finds it necessary to have the decree carried into execution in order to determine his own rights, he may obtain relief by this bill, or it may be brought by an assignee of the original parties.<sup>5</sup>

This bill must state the reason and circumstances why the decree has not been and cannot be carried into execution without further order and assistance of the court, and should pray that all necessary acts to be done by the defendant in the premises may be decreed and ordered done.<sup>6</sup>

7. Bills in the Nature of Bills of Revivor. — The reason of the existence of this bill is that a devisee or assignee of a party plaintiff might not bring a bill to revive a suit abated by the death of such plaintiff. But their remedy was by a bill in the nature of a bill of revivor.<sup>7</sup> shall have been entered and recorded, if an appeal lies to the supreme court; but if no appeal lies, the petition may be admitted at any time before the end of the next term of the court, in the discretion of the court." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 728.

Bills in the nature of bills of review pray that the cause may be reviewed as to the proceedings on the original bill, that the other party may answer the same, and that relief may be granted according to the nature of the case made by the new bill. Hinde's Chan. 66; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 144.

1. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 203, § 285; Ex parte Smith, 34 Ala. 455.

2. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 146; Wells et al. v. Wall, 1 Oregon, 295.

3. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 203, § 285; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 147; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 428; Hinde's Chan. 67; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 84, 85; Penny v. Martin, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 566.

Where a bill is brought to correct a mistake, the mistake must be set out with certainty. Coles v. Bowne, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 526.

4. There is a class of bills which are of rare occurrence, and are known as Bills to suspend or avoid the execution of a decree. They are said to be "merely in the nature of a petition in the cause, only that the cause being concluded by the pronouncing of the final decree, the parties must be again brought before the court by an original bill." Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 203, 204, § 286; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 428; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 85.

5. Hinde's Chan. 68; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 148; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 86; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 429-432; Coop. Eq. Plead. 98, 99, 100.

6. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 204, § 286.

7. See title "Bills of Revivor," post;

In case a party dies whose interest is not determined by his death, but is transmitted in such a manner that the title may be litigated in court, as in case of a devisee, a bill of revivor will not lie; but an original bill in the nature of a bill of revivor may be exhibited. This bill must state the original bill, the abatement and proceedings thereon, and the manner of the transmission of the interest of the party deceased; and the validity of the transmission, as well as the rights secured thereby, must be charged.<sup>1</sup>

8. Bills in the Nature of a Supplemental Bill.<sup>2</sup>

(D) ORIGINAL BILLS NOT PRAYING FOR RELIEF. — And next as to bills not praying relief. These, as we have seen, are, (1) Bills to perpetuate Testimony. (2) Bills for Discovery.<sup>3</sup>

1. Of Bills to perpetuate Testimony. — These lie when no immediate action can be brought, and the witness is aged or infirm, or likely to die, or for some other reason his evidence is likely to be lost before the plaintiff could avail himself of it, unless such bill could be entertained. Courts allow such bills to prevent a failure of justice. Such bill will lie to aid a trial at law in special cases, even where there can be an immediate investigation, since it may be necessary to preserve evidence which might be lost otherwise.<sup>4</sup>

In a bill to perpetuate testimony, the plaintiff's title ought to be succinctly and clearly shown: all material facts, as manner, place, time, and the like, ought to appear with all necessary certainty.<sup>5</sup>

1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 149; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 88; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 377-387; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 131, §§ 170, 171; Hinde's Chan. 69.

It has been held that a bill lies in the nature of a bill of revivor to revive and carry into execution a decree against a municipal corporation providing for the abatement by the corporate authorities of a public nuisance; and any citizen of the State might properly interfere as relator. State v. Mayor, etc., of Mobile, 24 Ala. 701.

1. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 88; Hinde's Chan. 69; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 149.

2. "If the interest of a plaintiff or defendant suing or defending in his own right wholly determines, and the same property becomes vested in another person not claiming under him, the suit cannot be continued by a bill of revivor, and its defects cannot be supplied by a supplemental bill; but that, by an original bill in the nature of a supplemental bill, the benefit of the former proceeding may be obtained. A bill for this purpose must state the original bill, the proceedings upon it, the event which has determined the interest of the party by or against whom the former bill was exhibited, and the manner in which the property has vested in the person become entitled. It must then show the ground upon which the court ought to grant the benefit of the former suit to or against the person so become entitled, and pray the decree of the court adapted to the case of the plaintiff in the new bill." Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 89, 90.

3. See title "Bills not praying Relief," ante.

4. Bellamy v. Jones, 8 Ves. 31; Angell v. Angell, 1 Sim. & Stu. 83, 89, 90; Bagnold v. Green, Cary's Rep. 67; Dorset v. Girdler, Pre. Cha. 531; Cooper's Eq. Plead. 53; Hinde's Chan. 32; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 110; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 299-310.

Rule 70, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides for the taking of testimony de bene esse upon application of the plaintiff, and notice to the adverse party "after any bill filed, and before the defendant hath answered the same, upon affidavit made that any of the plaintiff's witnesses are aged and infirm, or going out of the country, or that any of them is a single witness to a material fact." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 720.

5. Jerome v. Jerome, 5 Conn. 352, 556. Bill to perpetuate testimony must "state the plaintiff's title to the thing in question, or his interest in the subject, the matter touching which the plaintiff is desirous of acquiring evidence. The interest which the plaintiff has, or pretends to have or claim, to

2. Of Bills of Discovery. — A bill of discovery as distinguished technically from other bills (which are in reality bills of discovery), is one whereby the plaintiff seeks to discover facts resting within the knowledge of the defendant, or to obtain discovery of documents, deeds, etc., in his possession, or in aid of an action at law to enable the plaintiff to prosecute or defend, and to enjoin the prosecution of a cause until discovery is made. A bill strictly of discovery should not pray relief.<sup>1</sup>

The facts sought to be discovered by a bill of discovery must be set out with certainty and clearness, and it must also be stated that the defendant has it in his power to make the discovery.<sup>2</sup>

It must also appear that the defendant's answer is necessary, in order to discover the facts sought for relief by the bill, and that they cannot be otherwise proven.<sup>3</sup> contest the title of the plaintiff in the subject of the proposed testimony, that the witnesses are aged and infirm and likely to die before the time of trial can arrive, or that they are about to quit the kingdom, . . . or are beyond sea, or that the facts to be examined are of great importance, and no other but a single witness, although neither aged or infirm, or only two witnesses to be examined, is or are privy to such facts, whereby the plaintiff is in danger of losing his or their testimony, and that the facts about which the examination is sought, cannot be immediately investigated in a court of a law, an examination of the witnesses is then prayed, also a subpoena to show cause, if they can, to the contrary; but the bill should pray no other relief." Eq. Draughts, by Hughes, 360, citing Lord Dinsley v. Fitzhardinge Berkely, 6 Ves. 251; Allan v. Allan, 15 Ves. 130. "The facts must be particularly stated." Bartlett v. Hawker, cited 1 Madd. Ch. Pr. 193; Knight v. Knight, 4 Madd. Rep. 1; Fitzburgh v. Lill, Amb. 65; Bellamy v. Jones, 8 Ves. 30; Shirley v. Earl Ferrers, 3 P. Wms. 77, 6th ed.; Rearson v. Ward, 1 Cox, 177; Harrkin v. Middleditch, 2 Bro. Ch. Ca. 640; Lord Cholmondely v. Lord Oxford, 4 Bro. Ch. Ca. 156; Rose v. Garmel, 3 Atk. 439; Vaughan v. Fitzgerald, 1 Scho. & Lefr. 316; Shelley v. —, 13 Ves. 57.

1. Generally, on this subject, see 3 Amer. & Eng. Ency. of Law, title "Bill of Discovery;" 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 115-122; Hinde's Chan. 36-42; Mitt. Plead. (2d ed.) 52; Eden on Injunct. 78; Hare on Discovery, 119; Wigram on Discovery, 15; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 311-325; McIntyre v. Mancius, 3 Johnoch (N. Y.), 45; Kittredge v. Claremont Bank et al., 1 Woodb. & M. (U. S.) 244.

To sustain a bill for discovery and relief, it must be averred and shown that plaintiffs have not other and sufficient evidence without such discovery. Norwich &

Worcester R. Co. v. O'Brien, 17 Conn. 372.

It is sufficient in case of a bill of discovery to compel purchaser for value and without notice to show his title to plead absence of notice. "You cannot attach upon the conscience of the party any demand whatever where he stands as a purchaser, having paid his money, and denies all notice of the circumstances set up in the bill." In the plea it is sufficient to aver lack of notice without denying the facts from which notice was inferred. Gerrard v. Saunders, 2 Ves. Jr. 454, 455.

2. Horton v. Moseley, 17 Ala. 794.

3. Perrine v. Carlisle, 19 Ala. 686; Horton v. Moseley, 17 Ala. 794.

"Where the bill is for discovery and relief, the plaintiff must show affirmatively that his right cannot be established at law without the aid of the discovery which he seeks, and the discovery must be established by the answer, in order to entitle the court to maintain the bill for relief. But a party may have a bill for discovery, not only where he is destitute of other evidence to establish his case, but also to aid such evidence, or to render it unnecessary." Stacy v. Pearson, 3 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 148.

The Frame of the Bill. — "As the object of a court of equity in compelling a discovery is either to enable itself or some other court to decide on matters in dispute between the parties, the discovery sought must be material either to the relief prayed by the bill, or to some other suit actually instituted, or capable of being instituted. If, therefore, the plaintiff in a bill for discovery does not show by his bill a title to sue the defendant in some other court, or that he is actually involved in litigation with the defendant, or liable to be so, and does not also show that the discovery which he prays is material to enable him to support or defend a suit, he shows no title to the discovery, and consequently a demurrer

In a bill for discovery, in aid of a defence at law, the nature of the defence must be stated.<sup>1</sup>

It is held in New Hampshire, that, upon the return of an execution unsatisfied, a creditor might maintain a bill in equity for discovery of all the estate, both real and personal, of the debtor; and this is so upon general principles of equity, outside of any statutory provision in that State.<sup>2</sup>

(E) BILLS NOT ORIGINAL are divided (as has been noted)<sup>3</sup> into (1) a Supplemental Bill, (2) a Bill of Revivor, (3) a Bill of Revivor and Supplement.<sup>4</sup>

1. Of Supplemental Bills. — A supplemental bill will lie when any matter arises subsequent to the commencement of the suit which gives a new interest to a person not a party to the bill, or occasions a change of interest as to the parties, which does not take away plaintiff's own entire right to sue, or, in case of more than one party plaintiff, which does not take away the rights of all the plaintiffs to sue. A supplemental bill will also lie when matter arises subsequent to the filing of the original bill whereby the plaintiff would be entitled to more extensive relief than under the original bill. This should be brought in by way of a supplewill hold." Eq. Draughts, by Hughes, 373; Young v. Colt, 2 Blatchf. (U. S.) 373, 376; Brown v. Swann, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 497, 501.

"To the maintenance of a bill upon the ground of discovery, it is not sufficient simply to allege that there are facts of which the complainant cannot make proof without a discovery. It must appear that those facts are material in making out the right to relief." Dickinson v. Lewis, 34 Ala. 638.

It is said in Connecticut, that the practice of alleging that the matter sought to be discovered of the defendant rested solely in his own knowledge, and that plaintiff could not prove them otherwise than by the discovery sought, rested upon the principle early declared that defendant could not be called upon to discover, on oath, the matters charged in the bill, unless no other evidence of the matters could be had, and, after a disclosure, the plaintiff is not permitted to produce other evidence of the facts sought to be discovered of the defendant, although it was thereafter declared by statute in that State that such disclosure of defendant should not be conclusive. Pollard v. Lyman, 1 Day (Conn.), 156.

And it is now provided in that State, that "When a plaintiff in an action for equitable relief shall require of the defendant a discovery in oath respecting the matters alleged in the plaintiff's complaint, the disclosure by the defendant shall not be deemed conclusive, but may be contradicted like any other testimony according to the practice in equity." Gen. Stat. Rev. 1887, 251, § 1062.

"A bill for a discovery and injunction at law must state some particular matter, which the complainant has the right to seek discovery of as material to his defence, and without which he cannot proceed to trial. A mere inquiry, because the grounds of the suit at law are unknown, cannot be maintained, being a fishing-bill." It must also appear that the aid sought is required. Lucas v. Bank of Darien, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 292.

1. Lucas v. Bank of Darien, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 280.

A bill of discovery, in aid of an action pending in another court, will not be sustained when that court can itself compel the discovery sought. Rindskopf v. Platto, 23 Reporter, 76.

Where a bill is brought for discovery and relief, and the relief is demurrable, the bill fails. Mellish v. Richardson, 12 Price, 530; Baker v. Mellish, 10 Ves. 544.

Where plaintiff is entitled to discovery only, and prays relief, a demurrer lies. Albrecht v. Sussman, 2 Ves. & B. 328; Gordon v. Simpkinson, 11 Ves. 509; Collis v. Swayne, 4 Bro. C. C. 480.

There are numerous cases in England sustaining the point, that where a bill is for discovery and relief a demurrer will be sustained; but a more liberal doctrine prevails in the United States. See Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 312, and discussion in the note.

2. Bay State Iron Co. v. Goodall, 39 N. H. 223, 228.

3. See title "Bills not Original," ante.

4. Eq. Draughts, by Hughes, 401-425.

mental bill, provided he is entitled under the original bill to one kind of relief; the rule being, that, if the court obtains jurisdiction for the purpose of temporary relief, it may retain it generally, as in case of a bill for ne exeat and injunction.<sup>1</sup>

1. Candler v. Petit, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 168; Eq. Draughts, by Hughes, 402; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 332-344.

A supplemental bill is brought to add parties, or put some new fact in issue when too late to amend. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 3 Atk. 370.

Supplemental bill will not lie where amendment can be had. Baldwin v. Mac-koun, 3 Atk. 317.

Defendants may amend by supplement in the following cases:—

"1. In small and immaterial matters."

"2. Where a mistake has crept into the engrossment."

"3. Where new matter has been discovered since the original answer put in."

"4. In cases of surprise."

"5. In mistakes of names." Stout v. Shew, 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 438, 443, citing,—

(1) Burney v. Chambers, Bunby, 248;

(2) Gainsborough v. Gifford, 2 P. Wms. 426;

(3) Dolder v. Bank of England, 10 Ves. 285;

(4) Verney v. McNamara, 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 29;

(5) Griffiths v. Wood, 11 Ves. 63. And citing, as cases where not allowed, Pierce v. Grove, 3 Atk. 522; s. c., Amb. 65; 2 Anst. 363.

(The numbers to the citations correspond to those above under "Cases.")

All matters subsequent to the original bill are brought in by way of a supplemental bill, or a bill of revivor. Brown v. Higden, 1 Atk. 291.

In a suit against both husband and wife, and the suit becomes defective by the death of the husband, whereby a new interest is created to the wife, a supplemental bill should be brought. Neale v. Smith, 1 Jac. & Walk. 665.

Events occurring subsequent to filing the original bill are properly the subject of a supplemental bill. Jones v. Jones, 3 Atk. 217; Barringer v. Burke, 21 Ala. 765; Hill v. Hill, 10 Ala. 527.

A supplemental bill cannot, by the adding of matters subsequent to the commencement of the suit, give life to an original bill so defective as that no valid decree can be based thereon. Candler v. Petit, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 168.

"A strictly supplemental bill is always based on facts that have occurred since the filing of the bill. These may be necessary to aid the complainant in obtaining the relief sought, or in obtaining new or additional relief." The court in Allen v. Taylor, 2 Green's Ch. (3 N. J. Eq.) 436.

A supplemental bill will not lie where amendment can be had. Baldwin v. Mac-koun, 3 Atk. 817.

Where the facts arising subsequent to the commencement of the action are sufficient of themselves to form a ground of action without reference to the original bill, then the plaintiff should file a new bill instead of a supplemental one. Milner v. Milner, 2 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 114. In Prouty v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 85 N. Y. 272, this is distinguished, the court saying "that the facts were entirely distinct from the original cause of action occurring subsequent thereto, and might well constitute another and new cause of action."

As to the new matter which arises subsequent to the inception of the suit and before decree granted, this refers to some interest created after the suit was brought in favor of some one not a party to the original bill, the difference between a bill of revivor and a supplemental bill in this respect being, that where, after a suit has abated, if the same interest is continued in the legal representative of the deceased, or the same right preserved as in case of the marriage of a feme sole, here a bill of revivor lies; but where a new party is added in whom a new interest has been created, then a supplemental bill lies. Amendments, however, are so liberally allowed by the courts of the several States of the United States that the necessity for a supplemental bill exists in only a few cases, the distinction perhaps being that a person may amend where he might have inserted the same matter in the original bill; but where a new matter has arisen subsequent to bringing the bill, then this should be stated in a supplemental bill; so also where the case has progressed so far that an amendment cannot be made, then a supplemental bill will lie; and if the facts set up in a supplemental bill are such as ought to come in by way of amendment, then this is ground for demurrer. Stafford v. Howlett, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 200; Candler v. Petit, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 168.

It is held in Vermont that matters arising subsequent to filing a bill, and when the parties are at issue, may properly be brought in by plaintiff by amendment or supplemental bill upon leave of court, or, if the defendant, then a cross-bill may be filed. Blaisdill v. Nason, 16 Vt. 179, 186.

Rule 57, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that

New parties may be added by supplemental bill, although this is most generally done by amendment.<sup>1</sup> As to the allegations, it is said to be a common rule that every matter entitling the plaintiff to relief must be averred, and matters subsequently occurring cannot be set up by way of a supplemental bill to supply a defect arising upon the original bill in not properly charging the facts relied on.<sup>2</sup>

Statements in the original bill should not be repeated in the supplemental bill. The prayer only of the bill should be stated, or, if there has been a decree, then the decree.<sup>3</sup>

A supplemental bill is filed by leave of court,<sup>4</sup> and, when allowed, is considered by the court as an addition to and part of the original bill, and, together with that, constitutes one amended bill.<sup>5</sup>

"Whenever any suit in equity shall become defective from any event happening after the filing of the bill (as, for example, by change of interest in the parties), or for any other reason a supplemental bill, or a bill in the nature of a supplemental bill, may be necessary to be filed in the cause, leave to file the same may be granted by any judge of the court on any rule day, upon proper cause shown, and due notice to the other party. And if leave is granted to file such supplemental bill, the defendant shall demur, plead, or answer thereto on the next succeeding rule day after the supplemental bill is filed in the clerk's office, unless some other time shall be assigned by the judge of the court." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 710. See also Rule 58, U. S. Eq. Rules; title "Revivor," post.

1. Dow v. Jewett, 18 N. H. 240, 359.

Where it is desired to make a child who is born pending the suit, a party, this must be done by way of a supplemental bill, and not by amendment. Anon. 2 Moll. 312; Hildyard v. Field, 25 L. T. 784; Anon. 2 Moll. 312. But see Phippen v. Brown, 1 Jur. N. S. 698; Leyland v. Leyland, 10 W. R. 149; 6 L. T. N. S. 149; Knox v. Knox, 2 Ir. Eq. 33; Egremont v. Thompson, 4 L. T. Ch. 448; 17 W. R. 900 (decided under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52).

In case of husband and wife defendants, and death of husband, whereby the suit becomes defective, a supplemental bill is necessary, and answer put in during coverture is not binding upon her. Neale v. Smith, 1 Jac. & Walk. 665, case where wife bound by answer; Shelberry v. Briggs, 2 Vern. 249.

Where supplemental bills in the nature of a bill of revivor seeks only to add new parties as defendants, then it is not necessary to make the defendants to the original bill parties to the supplemental bill. The Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Seymour, 9 Paige (N. Y.), 538; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 125

2. Land v. Cowan 19 Ala. 297; Vaughan, v. Vaughan, 30 Ala. 329.

3. Onge v. Truelock, 2 Moll. 31.

"A supplemental bill must state the original bill and the proceedings thereon; and if the supplemental bill is occasioned by an event subsequent to the original bill, it must state that event, and the consequent alteration with respect to the parties; and, in general, the supplemental bill must pray that all defendants may appear and answer the charges it contains. For if the supplemental bill is not for discovery merely, the cause must be heard upon the supplemental bill at the same time it is heard upon the original bill, if it has not been before heard; and if the cause has been before heard, it must be further heard upon the supplemental matter." Eq. Draughtsman by Hughes, 402.

Where, without objection of defendant, and with leave of court, a supplemental or amended bill was filed in a cause for divorce, setting up the facts alleged in the original bill, it was held that this was a ground for admitting testimony of facts, etc., coming after filing the original bill, and before the filing of the supplemental bill, in support of plaintiff's case. Feigley v. Feigley, 7 Md. 537.

When the bill shows sufficient to give the court jurisdiction, the plaintiff is not confined to the relief sought, but may, by a supplemental bill, set up matter occurring after the filing of the original bill, which would entitle him to other or more extensive relief. Candler v. Petit, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 168.

4. Bowie v. Minter, 2 Ala. 406.

5. Potier v. Barclay, 15 Ala. 439; Gillett v. Hall, 13 Conn. 426, 434; Bowie v. Minter, 2 Ala. 406; Ramey v. Green, 18 Ala. 771; Smith v. Bryan, 3 Madd. 428; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 91.

The supplemental bill and original bill are heard at the same time, unless the cause has already been heard: then gen-

A party who, pendente lite, takes an assignment from a party in interest in the suit, may file a supplemental bill to make himself a party.<sup>1</sup>

When the filing of a supplemental bill without leave of court is irregular, held that, in the absence of an objection to such irregularity, it will be considered as waived.<sup>2</sup>

Where the original bill failed as to the injunction, a supplemental bill for an injunction based on subsequent facts was permitted to be filed.<sup>3</sup>

Whenever a supplemental bill can equally subserve the purposes of justice, it is better to file it than bring an original bill, by reason of the expense; and this holds although two kinds of relief are asked for, which are different in character, but which grow out of the same instrument, and spring from the same privity between the parties, as in a case where the relief asked for in both the original and supplemental bills might have been properly prayed for in the original bill had the facts existed at the time of bringing it; but as they arose subsequently, and thereby entitled the plaintiff to more extensive aid, they might properly be made subject-matter of a supplemental bill; and such bill containing such facts, and praying such relief, was allowed to be filed.<sup>4</sup>

2. Of Bills of Revivor. — These are a continuance of the original bill, when by death of some party, or the marriage of a female plaintiff, the suit has abated.<sup>5</sup> erally, but not necessarily, the hearing is on the supplemental bill. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 125.

1. Whitbeck v. Edgar, 4 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 428.

2. Allen v. Taylor, 3 N. J. Eq. 437.

3. Candler v. Petit, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 168; Allen v. Taylor, 2 Green's Ch. (N. J.) 436; Bostwick v. Menck, 8 Abb. Pr. N. S. (N. Y.) 170.

4. Allen v. Taylor, 3 N. J. Eq. (2 Green's Ch.) 437.

5. Equity Draughts, by Hughes, 401; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 354-376; Wharam v. Broughton, 1 Ves. 179, 182; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 126-133; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 131-136, 133, §§ 168-177; Clark v. Mathewson et al., 12 Pet. (U. S.) 164, 171; Cullum v. Batre, 2 Ala. 415.

A bill of revivor lies in behalf of either plaintiff or defendant. Finch v. Winchelsea, 1 Eq. Abr. 2.

"Whenever a suit abates by death, and the interest of the person whose death has caused the abatement is transmitted to that representative which the law gives or ascertains as an heir at law, executor or administrator, so that the title cannot be disputed at least in the court of chancery, but the person in whom the title is vested is alone to be ascertained, the suit may be continued by bill of revivor merely. If a suit abates by the marriage of a female plaintiff, and no act is done to affect the rights of the party but the marriage, no title can be disputed. The person of the husband is the sole fact to be ascertained, and therefore the suit can be continued in this case by bill of revivor merely." Eq. Draughts, by Hughes, 413.

Rule 56, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "Whenever a suit in equity shall become abated by the death of either party, or by any other event, the same may be revived by a bill of revivor, or a bill in the nature of a bill of revivor, as the circumstances of the case may require, filed by the proper parties entitled to revive the same, which bill may be filed in the clerk's office at any time; and upon suggestion of the facts, the proper process of subpena shall as of course be issued by the clerk, requiring the proper representatives of the other party to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why the cause should not be revived. And if no cause shall be shown at the next rule day, which shall occur after fourteen days from the time of the service of the same process, the suit shall stand revived as of course." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 709.

Rule 58, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "It shall not be necessary, in any bill of

So much of the original bill should be alleged, in a bill to revive against new parties, as to show plaintiff's title to revive.<sup>1</sup>

When a bill of revivor, or a bill in the nature of revivor, is filed by one who was a stranger to the original bill, all the parties to the original bill, who are interested in the further proceeding, should be made parties thereto, either as plaintiffs or defendants.*

A bill may be a compound bill of review of supplement and of revivor, and is maintainable as such.<sup>3</sup>

3. Of Bills of Revivor and Supplement. — These are not only to revive the original suit, but to supply defects, or to set up new facts arisen subsequent to the institution of the suit.<sup>4</sup> revivor or supplemental bill, to set forth any of the statements in the original suit, unless the special circumstances of the case may require it." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 710.

1. Phelps v. Sproule, 4 Sim. 318.

"A bill of revivor must state the original bill, and the several proceedings therein, and the abatement. It must show a title to revive, and charge that the cause ought to be revived and stand in the same condition with respect to the parties in the bill of revivor as it was with respect to the parties in the original bill at the time the abatement happened, and it must pray that the suit may be revived accordingly." Eq. Draughtsman, by Hughes, 413; Adamson v. Hall, Turn. R. 258.

2. Farmers' Loan and Trust Co. v. Seymour, 9 Paige (N. Y.), 538.

Upon death of co-defendant and abatement of bill, the legal representative of co-defendant is properly made a party by a bill of revivor, and not by amendment. Webb v. Wardle, 5 N. R. 426.

Where a suit is brought by members of a corporation, in their individual characters, the suit abates and becomes defective; otherwise in case where brought by the corporation. Blackburn v. Jepson, 3 Swan, 138.

In a suit by both husband and wife, the wife is not bound to prosecute upon the husband's decease. Breedon v. Vaughan, Dick. 566.

Where suit is abated by death of one of the parties, it is only necessary in a bill of revivor to make the representatives of the deceased parties defendants: the other parties to the original bill need not be made parties to the bill of revivor. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Seymour, 9 Paige (N. Y.), 538.

Where a co-defendant dies, if it is intended to make his personal representative a party, a bill of revivor must be brought. Webb v. Wardle, 5 N. R. 426.

Where a suit abates by the death of a sole plaintiff, an order to revive will be granted against his administrator. Ward

v. Shakeshaft, 1 Dr. & Sm. 607; 7 Jur. N. S. 1227.

Upon death of sole plaintiff, before decree, and after hearing, an order to revive will be made. Petre v. Petre, 1 W. R. 362; 1 Drew. 371.

This case comes under the stat. 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, § 53.

An order to revive was had against the personal representative of a defendant who had deceased before answer made. French v. Semple, 35 Beav. 376.

Where a defendant dies, his personal representative cannot be brought before the court by amendment. Webb v. Wardle, 11 Jur. N. S. 278.

An order may be made to revive against the devisee of a sole plaintiff who died after the decree. Bedford v. Bedford, 35 Beav. 342.

A devisee has not such a privity to the devisor as to enable him to bring a bill of revivor. Backhouse v. Middleton, 3 Ch. Rep. 39.

This, however, is not so broad a doctrine as would seem; since the devisee may bring an original bill, being in the nature of a bill of revivor, and thereby obtain his rights under a decree. Clare v. Wordell, 2 Vern. 548.

A bill of revivor lies in a suit against a man and his wife where the husband dies. Pate v. Frevil et ux. et al., Cho. Cas. in Chan. (Reprint 1870) 120.

A bill of revivor may be had on behalf of creditors. Pitt v. Richmond, 1 Eq. Abr. 3.

An assignee of a lease cannot maintain a bill of revivor in a suit de same. Cheesebroke v. Haselwood, Choyce, Cas. in Ch. (Reprint of 1870) 147.

A question as to justice of the decree should not be raised by answer to a bill of revivor. Clare v. Warden, Dick. 20.

3. Whiting v. Bank of the United States, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 6, 13.

4. Eq. Draughtsman by Hughes, 401 Coop. 84; Mitt. Plead. (2d ed.) 65, 66; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 387; Bowie v. Minter, 2 Ala. 412.

A party may introduce new matter into a bill of revivor and supplement to supply defects in the original bill arising by reason of the occurrence of subsequent events, but only when there is a case made by the plaintiff upon the original bill.<sup>1</sup>

V. Nature and Modes of Defence. — 1. Nature of Defence. — Justice Story divides defences in equity into two kinds: First, those which do not go to the merits of the case, but are merely dilatory in that they suspend or avoid or dismiss the suit; Second, those which go to the merits of the case, and seek to avoid and overthrow the plaintiff's bill of action, and are peremptory and permanent.<sup>2</sup>

These defences are further divided: the first, or those which are merely dilatory, into four parts; viz., (1) to the jurisdiction; (2) to the person, either plaintiff or defendant; (3) to the form of proceedings; and (4) that the pendency of some former suit prevents the carrying on of the action. The second, or those peremptory and permanent, are divided into two parts, — the one which denies the plaintiff's right to bring any suit as that the plaintiff has no claim, or the defendant no interest, or that there is a want of necessary privity between the parties; the other part being, that, whatever original right existed, it has determined, either by act of the parties or by operation of law.<sup>3</sup>

2. Modes of Defence. — The modes of defence available to a party against whom the bill is exhibited are, (1) demurrer, (2) plea, (3) answer, (4) disclaimer, (5) by two or more of them combined.

(A) DEMURRERS. — 1. As to Demurrers generally. — A demurrer generally lies for some defect apparent upon the face of the bill, by which the party setting up the demurrer asks the judgment of the court whether he shall be compelled to answer, and may be to the whole bill or to some particular part. A demurrer admits the truth of all well-pleaded facts, but denies that the plaintiff has a right to obtain relief by his bill.<sup>4</sup>

It is a compound of the two bills, and, in its frame and procedure thereon, reference must be had to this fact. Hinde's Chan. 51.

1. Eastman v. Batchelder, 36 N. H. 141, 154.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 434.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 434, 435.

4. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 280; Hinde's Chan. 146, 147; 2 Madd. Chan. 224; Hughes's Eq. Draughts. chap. x. p. 622; East India Co. v. Henchman, 1 Ves. Jr. 289.

"A demurrer is an allegation of a defendant, which, admitting the matters of fact alleged by the bill to be true, shows that, as they are therein set forth, they are insufficient for the plaintiff to proceed upon or to oblige the defendant to answer; or that for some reason apparent on the face of the bill, or because of the omission of some matter which ought to be contained therein, or for want of some circumstance which ought to be attendant thereon, the defendant ought not to be compelled to answer." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 446.

The following are the different kinds of demurrers noted in Hughes's Equity Draughtsman, which see, also forms there given:—

Demurrer to a bill of interpleader for the want of the necessary affidavit and also for want of equity.

Demurrer to a bill for the examination of witnesses de bene esse, the bill not alleging that an action has been commenced, or that there is any impediment to an action being brought.

Demurrer for multifariousness.

Demurrer for want of equity and also

Where the objection to being compelled to answer is apparent on the face of the bill or adverse pleading, so that no question of fact can arise, this is reached by demurrer.<sup>1</sup>

A demurrer admits facts, not matters of law, and such facts only as are well pleaded.<sup>2</sup>

A demurrer begins in the old forms by protestation; and the several causes of demurrer, whether to the whole or a part of the bill, must be expressed; and if it be to a particular part, then it must clearly state what part is meant to be covered.<sup>3</sup> for multifariousness to a bill for discovery in relation to two distinct and several actions at law against the plaintiff in equity.

Demurrer for want of parties to a bill by creditor of a testator.

Demurrer for want of parties.

Demurrer to so much of a bill as sought a discovery which might subject the defendant to a charge of compounding a felony, accompanied by an answer to other parts of the bill.

Demurrer on the ground that the plaintiff does not appear by the bill to have proved the will of his testator.

Demurrer to part of a bill that plaintiff's remedy is at law respecting a part of the premises; that he has shown no title to the other part: and plea in bar as to so much of the bill as sought to set aside the conveyance of other part of the premises; of the indentures by conveyance, by lease, and release, for a valuable consideration; supported by an answer denying fraud or any undue influence having been used.

Demurrer to an amended bill, the plaintiff's title to redeem having been obtained after filing of the original bill, and the answer to it.

Demurrer for want of equity to a supplemental bill.

"The person asking interference of a court of equity, is not bound, as the price of such interference, to bring the whole matter into equity. Thus, where a bill was filed to restrain a defendant from setting up a certain plea in an action at law on equitable grounds which the plaintiff might have equally availed himself of at law, it was held by Lord Westbury, C., that it was not demurrable merely because it did not go on to pray compensation on any other consequential relief in equity." White & Tudor's Lead. Cases in Eq. part 2, vol. 2, 1300.

"Upon a demurrer, every reasonable presumption is to be made in favor of, rather than against, the bill. It is only in cases where it clearly appears from the face of the bill that the complainant's equity is barred, that the bill will be dismissed upon demurrer for that cause." The court in Lincoln v. Purcell, 2 Head (Tenn.), 143.

That the defendant has some interest, must appear, or demurrer will lie. Fenton

v. Hughes, 7 Ves. 287; King of Spain v. Machado, 4 Russ. 225, 240; Clarkson v. De Peyster, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 335.

It must appear from the bill that a party defendant has an interest in the subject-matter of the bill, or a general demurrer will lie. Crane v. Deming, 7 Conn. 387.

In addition to an interest in the suit, the plaintiff must have a formal title, or demurrer will lie. Tourtou v. Flower, 3 P. Wms. 369, 371.

1. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 43, 44, 147, 207, §§ 22, 24, 189, 190, et seq.

"The causes of demurrer are merely upon matter in the bill, or upon the omission of matter, which, by the rules of the court, ought to be therein, or attendant thereon, and not upon any foreign matter alleged by the defendant. The principal ends of a demurrer are to avoid a discovery which may be prejudicial to a defendant, to cover a defective title, or to prevent unnecessary expense. If no one of these ends be attained, there is little use in the demurrer." Hinde's Chan. 147.

As a general rule, what is good as a defence, by way of plea, is also good as a demurrer, if the facts sufficiently appear by bill. Hinde's Chan. 149.

2. Hall v. Dana, 2 Aik. (Vt.) 381; Gage v. Bailey, 115 Ill. 646; Gr. Tower M. Mfg. etc., Co. v. Cady, 96 Ill. 430; Nancy v. Trammel, 3 Mo. 306; Dillon v. Barnard, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 430, 437; Thompson v. Nat'l Bank, 106 Mass. 128; Pearson v. Tower, 55 N. H. 215.

Only so much of the bill as the demurrer extends to, is taken as true; that is, every thing necessary to support the plaintiff's case, which is well charged in the bill. So if a defendant obstinately insists upon his demurrer, and refuses to answer where the court is of opinion that sufficient matter is alleged to oblige him to answer, and for the court to proceed upon, the court will decree the matter of the plaintiff's bill. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 293, 294.

3. Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, ch. x. p. 623; Devonsher v. Newenhara, 2 Scho. & Lef. 199; Hinde's Chan. 149; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 294.

The old forms contain the following words: "This defendant, by protestation,

There may be separate demurrers to separate and distinct parts of a bill, or there may be a demurrer to the whole bill; or to a part only.<sup>1</sup>

A demurrer cannot be good in part, and bad in part, nor good to part of the bill only when made to the whole bill; or when only made to a part, it must be good to the full extent of the part which it covers, or it will not hold.<sup>2</sup>

In case the whole matter should be exhibited here, if the plaintiff brings his bill for a part only, this is cause for demurrer, for causes of action should not be split; and this rule obtains to prevent multiplicity of suits.<sup>3</sup>

A defendant cannot demur and plead or demur and answer to the same matter, for the answer will overrule the demurrer.<sup>4</sup>

A demurrer may be for some cause which is only a matter of mere form, occasioned by a slip, inaccuracy, or mistake in the bill, which being formal only may be amended in these particulars upon leave of court.<sup>5</sup>

A demurrer should be filed in proper time. If it is not put in till the pleading and evidence are in, and the case is submitted for a final decree, it is too late, and especially so where a clear case for equitable relief is presented by the trial.<sup>6</sup>

2. Demurrers, General and Special. — A general demurrer is to the whole bill, and sets up no particular cause. If there exists some special matter which is cause for demurrer, this is met by a special demurrer.<sup>7</sup>

3. Demurrer, Ore Tenus. — Where the defendant sets up a demurrer, he will not be confined to the causes assigned therein, but may demur ore tenus for other causes.<sup>8</sup>

4. Demurrers to Bills of Relief. — We shall next consider demurrers under the following heads: (1) Demurrers to Bills of Relief, (2) Demurrers to Bills of Discovery, (3) Demurrers to Bills not Original.

not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters or things mentioned to be true in such manner and form as the same are thereby set forth and alleged, doth demur," etc. Hinde's Chan. 168, et seq.; Hughes, Eq. Draughts. 623, 624.

1. Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 623.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) secs. 443, 692; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 294; Baker v. Pritchard, 2 Atk. 388, 389; The mayor, etc., of London v. Levy, 8 Ves. 403; Hankin v. Middleditch, 2 Bro. Chan. 641; Kuypers v. Reformed Dutch Church, 6 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 570; Shed v. Garfield, 5 Vt. 39.

A demurrer to the whole bill, with exception to a small part, is good as to form. Hicks v. Raincock, 1 Cox, 40; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 224.

3. Purefoy v. Purefoy, 1 Vern. 29.

4. Jones v. Strafford, 3 P. Wms. 30; 2

Madd. Chan. 226; Miller v. Furse, Bail. Eq. (S. Car.) 187.

If one defendant demurs, and his co-defendant pleads, the plea does not overrule the demurrer. Dakin v. Union Pacif. R. Co., 5 Fed. Rep. 665.

5. Hinde's Chan. 163.

6. Trapnall v. Hill, 31 Ark. 345, 355.

7. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 455.

A special demurrer should specifically designate the parts intended to be covered by it. Atwill v. Ferrett, 2 Blatchf. (U. S.) 39.

8. Vanhorn v. Duckworth, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 261; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 222; Boyd v. Hoyt, 5 Paige (N. Y.), 65; 2 Madd. Chan. 227, citing Pitts v. Short, 17 Ves. 213. Contra, Broderip v. Phillips (note to 1 Vern. p. 78, note 1); Tourton v. Flower, 3 P. Wms. 371; Durant v. Redman, 1 Vern. 78; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 226.

First, of demurrers to bills of relief. These are (1) to the jurisdiction, (2) to the person, (3) on account of deficiency in the frame of the bill or in its substance.<sup>1</sup> a. Of Demurrers to the Jurisdiction.—These may be, that no relief can be granted in any court of justice;<sup>2</sup> or, that the matter is properly cognizable in a court of law, and therefore not within the jurisdiction of a court of equity;<sup>3</sup> or, that some other court of equity possesses sole jurisdiction.<sup>4</sup>

b. Of Demurrers to the Person.—As to who are proper parties to sue and be sued in equity, has been fully discussed.<sup>5</sup> And we will only add here, that if those incapable to sue alone exhibit a bill, and it appears upon its face that such incapacity exists, and

1. 2 Madd. Chan. 229; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 466.

The divisions given in Mitford's Pleadings (2d ed. 102) correspond very nearly with those given in 1 Harrison's Pract. in Chan. (280-296), only that in the latter work there does not seem to be any special application to bills of relief as distinguished from bills of discovery and bills not original. Mitford's division is as follows (Bills of Relief): (1) That the subject is not within the jurisdiction of a court of equity; (2) that some other court of equity has the proper jurisdiction; (3) that the plaintiff is not entitled to sue by reason of some personal disability; (4) that he has no interest in the subject, or no title to institute a suit concerning it; (5) that he has no right to call on the defendant concerning the subject; (6) that the defendant has not that interest in the subject which can make him liable to the claims of the plaintiff; (7) that for some reason founded on the substance of the case the plaintiff is not entitled to relief; (8) that the bill is deficient to answer the purpose of complete justice; (9) that distinct objects are confounded in the same bill.

2. This question, it would seem, could hardly arise in the United States, since ample provision is made by the Constitution, wherein the judicial power is extended so as to cover such cases which may arise principally in matters purely of a political nature, or those of disputed boundaries between the States. For a full discussion on this point, see Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) secs. 468-472, citing Foster v. Neilson, 2 Pet. (U. S.) 253; Soulard v. United States, 4 Pet. (U. S.) 511; United States v. Percheman, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 51; Cherokee Nation v. Georgia, 5 Pet. (U. S.) 1; Worcester v. Georgia, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 515; Carneal v. Banks, 10 Wheat. (U. S.) 181; Fairfax v. Hunter, 7 Cranch (U. S.), 603; New York v. Connecticut, 4 Dall. (U. S.) 3; Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 23; s. c., 14 Pet. (U. S.) 210.

3. Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 622-640; Hinde's Chan. 155; Mitt. Plead. (2d ed.) 103 et seq.; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 282 et seq.; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 472-485.

A bill will be dismissed upon demurrer where it appears that the plaintiff has a full and complete remedy at law. Aholtz v. Gotha, 114 Ill. 241.

"That an objection to the equity of the plaintiff's claim, as stated in the bill, must be taken by demurrer, is so well established that it has been constantly assumed." Farley v. Kittson, 120 U. S. 303, 315, 316, citing Billing v. Flight, 1 Madd. 230; Steff v. Andrews, 2 Madd. 6; Varick v. Dodge, 9 Paige (N. Y.), 149; Phelps v. Garrow, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 139; Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 14 Pet. (U. S.) 210, 258, 262; National Bank v. Insurance Co., 104 U. S. 54, 76.

A general demurrer for want of equity will be overruled "unless the court is satisfied that no discovery or proof properly called for by, or founded upon, the allegations in the bill can make it a proper subject of equitable jurisdiction." Bleeker v. Bingham, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 246.

General demurrer for want of equity lies where one is made a party who has no interest. Hodge v. North. Missouri R. Co., 1 Dill. (U. S.) 104.

4. This question is one concerning which no difficulty ought to be experienced, as the jurisdiction of the several courts of the United States, and the different States, is well defined. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 490-492; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 287.

In order to show that the (United States) court has jurisdiction, a bill against a corporation should state in the introduction, or stating part, that the corporation was brought into existence by the laws of another State. This is properly stated in the introduction, but is sufficient if shown anywhere in the pleadings. Muller v. Dows, 94 U. S. 444.

5. See title "Parties," and sub-titles thereto, ante.

no next friend or proper legal custodian is named, this is cause for demurrer, or if the parties are sued, or sue, in the wrong capacity, these are all grounds for demurrer, provided always and of course, that the defect is apparent on the face of the bill.<sup>1</sup>

c. Next, of Demurrers to the Matter of the Bill. — These relate both to substance and form, and are, as to substance, for want of interest in the plaintiff or defendant in the thing demanded by the bill, or that the defendant is not answerable to the plaintiff.

(1) Demurrers as to Substance. — It is material that the plaintiff must show in the bill, that, as to himself, he has an interest in the subject of the suit, and a right to bring the same, also some claim of interest in the defendant whereby he is a necessary party, and sufficient interest to make him liable to the plaintiff's demands.<sup>2</sup> It must also be shown by the bill that the defendant is one upon whom plaintiff has a right to call for his demand; for if it do not appear that he is liable, this is a good ground for demurrer. This may exist where there is a want of the necessary privity between the parties.<sup>3</sup> We have already stated what is necessary to be alleged in order that the bill may be sustained.<sup>4</sup>

(2) Of Demurrers as to Form. — These are for uncertainty, want of proper parties, and multifariousness.

(a) For Uncertainty. — In framing the bill, care must be taken to state the case with sufficient certainty as to enable the defendant to know what he has to answer, and the court to clearly understand what is claimed by the bill; for if the bill be uncertain in this respect, or is loosely or inartificially drawn, this is ground for demurrer.<sup>5</sup>

(b) For Want of Proper Parties. — This is good cause for demurrer when apparent on the face of the bill. We have sufficiently shown, under the head of parties, the reasons of the rule which requires all who are interested to be made parties in suits in equity, and have also shown the exceptions to the rule; so that it is unnecessary to do more here than note a few cases, remembering that a full examination of the text-books and the decisions indicate that no inflexible rule can be given which shall determine in all cases who should be made parties, the matter being largely in the discretion of the court, and subject to rules and statutes relating to amendments, which are liberally allowed.<sup>6</sup>

1. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 281; Hinde's Chan. 151; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 493-498; 2 Madd. Chan. 232, 233; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 135, 136.

2. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 287; Hinde's Chan. 153, 158; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 135 et seq.; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 503-526.

3. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 141, 142; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 520; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 288.

4. See title "Bill in Equity," ante.

5. See title "Bill in Equity," ante; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 528.

6. See titles "Parties" and "Multifariousness," ante; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 541, 544; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 281; Hinde's Chan. 151, 152; 2 Madd. Chan. 234; Chapman v. Hamilton, 19 Ala. 121; Allen v. Woodruff, 96 Ill. 11; Toulmin v. Hamilton, 7 Ala. 362; Gould v. Hayes, 19 Ala. 438.

If a bill for partition of lands shows that persons not made parties have like interest in the lands, it is demurrable for want of parties. Taylor v. King, 32 Md. 42.

If a complete decree can be made upon

Where a bill in chancery was brought to foreclose a mortgage, the object being to pay the debt of one P., the mortgagor, and to have it determined whether the mortgage should not be discharged of record, it was held that P. should be made a party, and that a demurrer to the bill, because he had not been named therein as such, would be sustained. Leave, however, was given to amend.<sup>1</sup>

A bill must be filed in the name of the party in interest: if brought in the name of his agent, a demurrer lies.<sup>2</sup>

(c) Non-Joinder or Misjoinder of Parties. — Demurrers. — A demurrer will lie for non-joinder or misjoinder of parties, either plaintiffs or defendants; but only the one improperly joined can take advantage of such misjoinder.<sup>3</sup>

It is a well-established rule, that, where two parties join as plaintiffs in the bill, both must not only have an interest therein, but both must be entitled to relief; or demurrer will be sustained if it appears on the bill that one of the plaintiffs is not entitled to relief.<sup>4</sup>

If the interests of those made parties to the bill, and those not made parties, are inseparable, so that a decree cannot be made without prejudice to those not named in the bill, a demurrer lies; or if those not named may be made parties, the bill may be amended. But in such cases, if they are without jurisdiction, or for other reasons cannot be joined, the bill must fail.<sup>5</sup>

the bill between the parties, it is not a ground of demurrer that all interested are not made parties. 1 Harr. Prac. in Ch. 77.

Demurrer for want of parties must show proper parties. Dwight v. Central Vt. R. Co., 9 Fed. Rep. 785; Dias v. Bouchaud, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 445; Chapman v. Hamilton, 19 Ala. 121.

1. Matcalt v. Smith, 6 McLean (U. S.), 416.

2. Oakley v. Bend, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 482; Leigh v. Thomas, 2 Ves. 312.

The court will order the case to stand over to bring in necessary parties. Bishop of Winchester v. Beavor, 3 Ves. 314.

Ordinarily, under the liberal practice of courts of equity, a bill will never be dismissed for want of parties. Lucas v. Bk. of Darien, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 280; Batre v. Auze, 5 Ala. 173; Alderson v. Harris, 12 Ala. 580; Goodman v. Benham, 16 Ala. 625; Stone v. Hale, 17 Ala. 557.

An objection for want of parties should be taken in the court below, or it cannot be dismissed; and it will be dismissed upon objection there taken, and refusal of plaintiff to amend. Andrews v. Hobson, 23 Ala. 219.

Where the averments of a bill are so uncertain that it cannot be determined who are the necessary parties, demurrer will lie. Whitaker v. De Graffenreid, 6 Ala. 303.

3. Peoria, etc., R. Co. v. Pixley, 15 Bradw. (Ill.) 283; Erwin v. Ferguson, 5 Ala. 158; Lyne v. Marcus, 1 Mo. 410; Stokey v.

Carter, 92 Ill. 129; Watertown v. Cowen, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 510; Toulmin v. Hamilton, 7 Ala. 362.

Either defendant may demur for misjoinder of parties plaintiff. Christian v. Crocker, 25 Ark. 327.

Only such defendants, however, as are improperly joined, may demur. Christian v. Crocker, 25 Ark. 327.

"Both multifariousness and misjoinder of complainants should be taken advantage of by demurrer, a plea, or by answer especially for that purpose. The court, at the hearing, if the misjoinder or multifariousness is such as to prevent or impede the proper relief, will, of its own motion, dismiss the bill on that account. But the general rule is, that the defendant, by answering the matter of the bill, waives the objection, and cannot urge it at the hearing. The subjects are both proper matters for a special demurrer." Veghte v. Raritan Water Co., 19 N. J. Eq. 142, 144; Green v. Richards, 23 N. J. Eq. 32; Annin v. Annin, 24 N. J. Eq. 185.

Demurrer may be good as to some defendants, and bad as to others, where several join. Eq. Draughtsman by Hughes, ch. 10, 622; The Mayor, etc., of London v. Levy, 8 Ves. 403; Miller v. Furse, Bail. Eq. (S. Car.) 187.

4. Vaughn v. Lovejoy, 34 Ala. 437.

5. Carson v. Robertson, Chase (U. S.), 475.

As long as parties are joined, it is not

(d) For Multifariousness. — Where a bill is multifarious, it may be demurred to if the defect is apparent on the bill, as where inconsistent causes of action, and the like, are set up. But this matter has been discussed at length in the preceding pages.<sup>1</sup>

Where all the executors of an estate were made parties to a bill together with a mortgagee of trust property with notice of the trust, — the trust property having been purchased with money of the estate for certain of the cestuis que trust under the will, — and it appearing that the matters in suit by the bill were entirely distinct and unconnected with each other, the bill was upon demurrer held bad for multifariousness.<sup>2</sup>

(e) The Statute of Frauds. — Where a bill is brought for the specific performance of a contract, and it appears upon the face of the bill that it is objectionable by reason of the statute of frauds, a demurrer may be interposed.<sup>3</sup>

(f) So the Statute of Limitations is a ground for demurrer, when it is apparent on the bill itself that the case is within the statute.<sup>4</sup>

(g) And Laches, or lapse of time, whereby the plaintiff is not entitled to relief, should, when disclosed by the bill, be taken advantage of by demurrer.<sup>5</sup> material whether they be plaintiffs or defendants. Geisse v. Beall, 3 Wis. 367, 393.

"There are cases in which, notwithstanding a misjoinder of plaintiffs, the court has permitted a decree to be made at hearing. It has been done when it has appeared that justice could be done to all parties, notwithstanding the misjoinder." Lambert v. Hutchinson, 1 Beav. 277, 286.

1. See title "Multifariousness," ante. See also Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 530-540; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 147; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 289; Bark v. Harris, Hard. 337; Hestor v. Weston, 1 Vern. 463; Ward v. Northumberland, 2 Aust. 469.

"To prevent confusion, and to preserve as much simplicity as possible in suits in chancery, it is a settled rule neither to permit several complainants to demand by one bill several matters perfectly distinct and unconnected against one defendant, nor one complainant to demand several matters of distinct natures against several defendants." Richardson v. McKinson, Litt. Sel. Cas. (Ky.) 320.

Where joint and separate claims are set forth in one bill, a demurrer will hold. Harrison v. Hogg, 2 Ves. Jr. 323.

Demurrers for multifariousness "may be divided into two kinds: 1. Frequently the objection raised to the bill, though termed multifariousness, is, in fact, properly speaking, a misjoinder; that is to say, the cases or claims asserted in the bill are of so different a character, that the court will not permit them to be litigated in one record. . . . 2. But what is more familiarly understood by multifariousness as applied to a bill, is where a party is brought as a defendant upon a record with a large portion of which and the case made by which he has no connection whatever. In such case he has a right to demur." Gartland v. Nunn, 11 Ark. 720.

"The objection that the bill is multifarious can only be raised by demurrer, by strict practice; but some courts have held that it may also be raised by answer. The practice is well settled that multifariousness cannot be urged as a ground of reversal on appeal or error to a decree on a bill taken pro confesso." Gilmore v. Sapp, 100 Ill. 302.

Multifariousness may be availed of by demurrer; although when it does not appear on the bill itself, but is only disclosed by the answer, an objection may be made at the hearing. Abbot v. Johnson, 32 N. H. 9.

Case of bill held not multifarious. Grant v. Phoenix Life Ins. Co., 121 U. S. 105.

2. Cocks v. Varney, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 514.

3. Chambers v. Lecompte, 9 Mo. 575.

4. Wisner v. Barnet, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 631, 638.

5. Maxwell v. Kennedy, 8 How. (U. S.) 210; Speidel v. Henrici, 120 U. S. 377, 387, citing National Bank v. Carpenter, 101 U. S. 567; Lansdale v. Smith, 106 U. S. 391; Maxwell v. Kennedy, 8 How. (U. S.) 210.

5. Of Demurrers to Bills of Discovery. — Outside of such rules as are equally applicable to bills of relief, and also to bills of discovery, there are certain causes of demurrer particularly applicable to bills of discovery.<sup>1</sup>

These additional causes are principally, that the discovery, if obtained, cannot be material; that the situation of the defendant

1. "A bill for a discovery merely, is generally liable to the same grounds of demurrer as any other bill. But a demurrer to a bill for a discovery merely, will not hold for want of parties, for the plaintiff seeks no decree. 2 Eq. Ca. Abr. 170. Nor, in general, for want of equity in the plaintiff's case, for the same reason; nor because the plaintiff may have remedy at law, for he cannot have the discovery which leads to the remedy; . . . nor because a bill is brought for discovery of part of a matter, for that is merely a demurrer, because the discovery would be insufficient. But it should seem a demurrer would hold to a bill for discovery of several distinct matters against several distinct defendants." Hinde's Chan. 163.

"The principal ends of a demurrer are to avoid a discovery which may be prejudicial to the defendant, or to cover a defective title, or to prevent an unnecessary expense. If no one of these ends is obtained, there is little use in a demurrer." Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 447.

If it appear that the action, in aid of which the discovery is sought, is pending in another court, which may of itself compel the required discovery, demurrer will be sustained. Hinde's Chan. 163.

Where a bill "seeks a discovery of the parties interested, a demurrer for want of necessary parties will not hold." Mitf. Plead. 146, cited in Bay State Iron Co. v. Goodall, 39 N. H. 223.

A demurrer will lie to so much of a bill as seeks for a disclosure of title-deeds, there being no affidavit annexed to the bill that the same were not in the plaintiff's custody or power. Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 622, 640, and notes.

Upon a bill for discovery and relief, where discovery only should be sought, a demurrer will be sustained. Muckleston v. Brown, 6 Ves. 62; Gordon v. Simpkinson, 11 Ves. 509.

It is said by Justice Story (Eq. Plead. 9th ed. by Gould, sec. 312), that, "If a bill, therefore, which is maintainable in equity solely as a bill for discovery, should contain a prayer for relief also, it will, in England (although not in America), be open to a demurrer to the whole bill; and the party will not be allowed to maintain his bill for the discovery only, for he is bound to shape his bill according to what he has a right to pray. But the defendant may, nevertheless, if he chooses, demur to the relief only, and answer as to the discovery sought. Indeed, if he files a plea only to the relief, he is bound to put in answer giving the discovery; for in such a case he professes that he will give the discovery, and his plea will be bad without it." The American cases cited are, Laight v. Morgan, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 429; s. c., 2 Caines' Cas. (N. Y.) 344; Leroy v. Veeder, 1 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 417; Leroy v. Servis, 1 Caines' Cas. (N. Y.) 3; s. c., 2 Caines' Cas. (N. Y.) 175; Kimberly v. Sells, 3 John. Ch. (N. Y.) 467; Livingston v. Livingston, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 294; Higginbotham v. Burnet, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 184; Brownell v. Curtis, 10 Paige (N. Y.) 210; Livingston v. Story, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 632, 658; Mitchell v. Green, 10 Met. (Mass.) 101.

A demurrer should in its frame have reference to the nature of the bill, as whether it be for discovery alone, or for discovery and relief. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed. by Gould) sec. 458a.

Defendant must demur to the discovery, in order to avail himself of an objection to it by way of argument. Payne v. Hathaway, 3 Vt. 212.

"Where the complainant is not entitled either to discovery or relief upon the whole case stated by the bill, he may demur to the relief as well as the discovery; and he cannot, by demurring to the discovery of particular facts, compel the court to decide the whole case as upon a general demurrer to the bill." Kuypers v. Reformed Dutch Church, 6 Paige (N. Y.) 573.

Where a demurrer is put in to the whole discovery sought, and the plaintiff is entitled to any part, the demurrer will be overruled. Treadwell v. Brown, 44 N. H. 551; Atwill v. Ferrett, 2 Blatchf. (U. S.) 39; Livingston v. Story, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 632.

"It is the settled practice of the court when the defendant wishes to avoid a full answer; and to raise the question that the plaintiff has no equity upon his own showing, he must demur to the 'relief and discovery,' on the ground that it is not material for him to answer, inasmuch as the plaintiff, admitting every thing for the sake of argument, has not made out a case." Weisman v. Heron Mining Co., 4 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 112, 117.

renders it improper for a court of equity to compel a discovery; that the plaintiff shows no title to the discovery.<sup>1</sup>

a. Discovery must be Material; that is, the plaintiff must show that the discovery sought is material, or a demurrer may be had to the relief prayed by the bill, as where a bill to establish an agreement for a separate maintenance for the defendant's wife prayed a discovery of ill-treatment of the wife to make her recede from the agreement.<sup>2</sup>

b. Demurrer to Discovery by Reason of the Situation of the Party. — That the situation of the party is such as that it would be improper to compel a discovery, is a sufficient cause of demurrer. This lies in case where the discovery might tend to criminate the defendant, or where the discovery thus sought might render him liable to pains and penalties, or to forfeiture, or might cause him to forfeit his interest, or hazard his title.<sup>3</sup>

c. That Plaintiff shows no Title to the discovery sought, is matter for demurrer, as that there is no privity between the plaintiff and defendant as to entitle the former to the discovery.<sup>4</sup>

6. Demurrers to Other Bills. — There are some other bills, original and not original, to which distinct causes of demurrer lie; although, for the most part, the same causes of demurrer will hold as to them.<sup>5</sup>

a. Bills of Interpleader. — The bill must show that each of the parties asked to interplead claims a right, or demurrer will lie.<sup>6</sup> So a demurrer will lie to a bill of interpleader for want of an

1. Compare the causes stated in the last note, for demurrer to bills of discovery, with those for demurrer to bills of relief, mentioned in this article. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 547 et seq.; Hinde's Chan. 159 et seq.

In Mitford's Eq. Plead. p. 148, the following division is made of demurrers to discovery: (1) That the case made by the bill is not such wherein a court of equity assumes a jurisdiction to compel a discovery; (2) That the plaintiff has no interest in the subject, or no interest which entitles him to call on the defendant for a discovery; (3) That the defendant has no interest in the subject to entitle the plaintiff to institute a suit against him, even for the purpose of discovery; (4) That there is no privity of title between the plaintiff and defendant which can give the plaintiff a right to the discovery; (5) That the discovery, if obtained, cannot be material; (6) That the situation of the defendant renders it improper for a court of equity to compel a discovery.

2. Hinde's Chan. 162; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 564 et seq.; Hincks v. Nelthrope, 1 Vern. 204.

3. Claridge v. Hoare, 14 Ves. 59; Brown-sword v. Edwards, 2 Ves. 243, 245; East India Co. v. Campbell, 1 Ves. 247; Hincks v. Nelthrope, 1 Ver. 204; Chauncey v. Tahourdin, 2 Atk. 393; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 157; Wallis v. Duke of Portland, 3 Ves. 494; Page v. Neal, 1 Ver. 107; Hinde's Chan. 160; 2 Madd. Chan. 231; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 553. But see Chetwynd v. London, 2 Ves. 451.

"When he wishes to avoid an answer in respect to a particular matter on the ground that it would criminate him, or disclose matter confided to him as counsel, or an affair of State, he must answer the other parts of the bill, and 'demur' to the discovery of such particular matter." Weisman v. Heron Mining Co., 4 Jones, Eq. (N. Car.) 112, 117.

Plaintiff may waive the penalties where he alone is entitled to them, and thus do away with the ground for demurrer, and so compel a discovery. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 158.

4. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 154; Hinde's Chan. 162, 163; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 571.

5. Hinde's Chan. 164.

6. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 292; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 97; Hinde's Chan. 164.

affidavit that the plaintiff does not collude with the defendants or any of them.<sup>1</sup>

b. Of Demurrers to Bills of Revivor. — It is necessary that this bill show sufficient ground for reviving the suit, that there is a proper privity between the parties, and that the parties seeking to revive have the requisite interest therein, and a title to revive, or a demurrer lies.<sup>2</sup>

c. Of Demurrers to Supplemental Bills. — A demurrer lies to a supplemental bill where it is sought by it to introduce into the case matters immaterial and not relevant to the relief asked for in the original bill; or when, by reason of mistake in pleading, the supplemental bill has been filed; or where it brings matter into the case arising before the filing of the original bill, and when the bill might have been amended; or where it seeks to bring into the case a party who neither has nor claims an interest in the subject-matter of the original bill.<sup>3</sup>

d. Of Demurrers to Cross-bills. — A cross-bill having nothing in its nature different from the first species of bills, with respect to which demurrers in general have been considered, except that it is occasioned by a former bill, there seems no cause of demurrer to such a bill which will not equally hold to the first species of bills. And a demurrer for want of equity will not hold to a cross-bill filed by a defendant in a suit against the plaintiff in the same suit, touching the same matter. For being drawn into the court by the plaintiff in the original bill, he may avail himself of the assistance of the court without being put to show a ground of equity to support its jurisdiction, a cross-bill being generally considered as a defence.<sup>4</sup>

A demurrer to a cross-bill will also be sustained in cases where the bill fails to show an equitable title in the party to the relief sought, or where (since it is generally considered a defence) it seeks to set up new and distinct matter from that in the original bill, or if it is not filed in conformity with the usual practice of court.<sup>5</sup>

1. Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 622, 640; L'd Redes. Tr. 49, 126; Hinde's Chan. 164.

A bill for perpetuation of testimony and for relief unites distinct subjects, and cannot be sustained. Jerome v. Jerome, 5 Conn. 352, 356.

2. Hinde's Chan. 165; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 617 et seq.; Harris v. Pollard, 3 P. Wms. 348; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 164.

3. Hinde's Chan. 165, 166; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 612-616; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 164.

4. The above in relation to demurrers to cross-bills we have taken from Hinde's Chan. (ed. 1786) p. 166. We find that the same language is used by Mitford in his work on Pleadings (2d ed.), p. 165, and also by Justice Story (Eq. Plead. 9th ed. § 628).

5. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 630-632.

As to Demurrers to Bills of Review. —

Where the bill is brought for matters apparent upon the record, there should be a plea of the decree and a demurrer against opening the enrolment. Where the bill is brought for review for discovery of new matter, a demurrer can seldom lie, although it has been said that a demurrer may properly be set up where new matter is alleged which is not relevant. Hinde's Chan. 166, 167; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 166, 167; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 634-638.

A motion to dissolve a temporary injunction operates as a demurrer. Titus v. Mabey, 25 Ill. 232.

A demurrer may be amended by leave of court. Baker v. Mellish, 11 Ves. 68, 70.

(B) PLEAS. — I. Plea defined. — A plea is a special answer set up by a defendant to a bill or some part thereof, setting forth and relying on one or more facts stated in the plea, as a cause why the suit should be delayed, dismissed, or barred.<sup>1</sup>

2. Pleas in General. — Where a bill is so drawn that matters which would otherwise be cause of demurrer, do not appear upon the face of the bill, the defendant may then plead and set up the matter which would be ground for a demurrer.<sup>2</sup>

A plea should reduce the cause to one single point, thence creating a bar to the suit.<sup>3</sup>

And it should be so framed, as that, if true, it will put an end to the cause.<sup>4</sup>

It should not, therefore, set up two defences, for this would be bad for duplicity.<sup>5</sup>

A plea differs from a demurrer in that the former may be good in part, and bad in part, the latter not.<sup>6</sup>

Citizenship when intended to be denied, and it is properly set forth in the bill, is available by plea, and not by answer.<sup>7</sup>

Rule 31, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "No demurrer or plea shall be allowed to be filed to any bill unless upon a certificate of counsel, that, in his opinion, it is well founded in point of law, and supported by the affidavit of the defendant that it is not interposed for delay; and if a plea, that it is true in point of fact." Desty's Fed. Proc. (Pract. Series) 694.

1. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 244; Cooper's Eq. Plead. 223; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 177; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 649; Beames' Eq. Plead. 123; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 244; Adams' Eq. 236; Hinde's Chan. 170; Rule 31, U. S. Eq. Rules, cited ante, title "Demurrer." Certificate of counsel required.

"A demurrer is confined to the single point of law; but a plea opens the two questions of law and fact, to either of which the opposite party may except. The demurrer, in the first mode of defence in equity, is taken on the complainant's own statement by his bill, and consequently the facts cannot be disputed. In the third mode, the defendant puts forward a new statement of his own; and this must be by plea, that the complainant may have an opportunity to reply, and put him to proof of the new facts." Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 159, § 209.

"A plea is a special answer to a bill, differing in this from an answer in the common form, as it demanded the judgment of the court in the first instance, whether the special matter urged by it did not debar the plaintiff from his title to that answer, which the bill required. If the plea were allowed, nothing remained in issue between the parties, so far as the plea extended, but the truth of the matter pleaded." Roche v. Morgell, 2 Sch. & Lef. 725.

2. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 449.

What is good by way of plea, is also a ground for demurrer, if the facts appear upon the face of the bill. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 175.

The object of a plea is said to be to save the expense of witnesses, and that in consequence not every defence good in equity is good by way of plea. Hinde's Chan. 170.

3. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 244; Goodrich v. Pendleton, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 384; Chapman v. Turner, 1 Atk. 54; Spangler v. Spangler, 19 Bradw. (Ill.) 28.

A plea admits the truth of the facts stated in the bill, as to the point on which it rests, unless they are controverted by facts stated in the plea. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 244.

4. Allen v. Randolph, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 693; Bolton v. Gardner, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 273.

A plea should state the facts and averments in support of it. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 244.

A plea is bad that alleges mere conclusions of law. National Bank v. Insurance Co., 104 U. S. 54, 76.

5. Didier v. Davison, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 515; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 656; Nobkissen v. Hastings, 2 Ves. Jr. 84; Goodrich v. Pendleton, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 385.

6. Nobkissen v. Hastings, 4 Bro. C. C. 254; French v. Shotwell, 5 Johns. (N. Y.) 555; Aff'd, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 668; Leecraft v. Dempsey, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 124; Kirkpatrick v. White, 4 Wash. (U. S.) 595.

7. Dodge v. Perkins, 4 Mason (U. S.), 345; Wood v. Mann, 1 Sumn. (U. S.) 578.

A plea that is covered as to any portion of it by the answer, is overruled by the answer.<sup>1</sup>

Where a plea is set down for argument, no replication being filed, all the facts stated therein are admitted as to their truth, only their sufficiency in point of law to prevent the recovery sought being denied.<sup>2</sup>

Upon a bill for the recovery of certain property the title to which was claimed by virtue of a deed of gift, the defendant set up a plea of non est factum, and alleged title in himself; upon motion made and denied to strike out the plea of non est factum, and exception thereto held, that, where any instrument was annexed to the bill as an exhibit, the defendant might deny its execution, and thus compel the plaintiff to prove the same.<sup>3</sup>

Pleas are to bills of relief, bills of discovery, and bills not original.

3. Pleas to Bills praying Relief are to the jurisdiction, to the person, and in bar of the suit.<sup>4</sup>

a. Pleas to the Jurisdiction. — We have seen in what cases demurrers to the jurisdiction will lie. A demurrer must be to matters apparent on the face of the bill; but when the want of jurisdiction does not so appear on the face of the bill, then the defect is properly reached by a plea to the jurisdiction. The question of jurisdiction can seldom arise here, as the jurisdiction of courts of equity is well ascertained in this country.<sup>5</sup>

b. Pleas to the Person. — These are somewhat in the nature of a plea in abatement at law, and traverses the right of a party to sue or be sued, as (1) that he is incapable alone of exhibiting a bill, or (2) that he is not the person he is alleged to be, or (3) that he is laboring under some temporary disability as to his legal status.<sup>6</sup>

(1) Infants, married women, lunatics, and the like, are incapable of suing by themselves, but must sue by their next friend, or committee, or guardian. It is a good plea, therefore, if any of these sue alone. (2) A plea that one is not the person he is alleged to be, is a good plea in abatement of the suit; as where one sues as administrator of an intestate, it may be pleaded that the supposed

1. Grant v. Phoenix Life Ins. Co., 121 U. S. 105, 115; Bangs v. Strong, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 11; Souzer v. Myers, 2 Paige (N. Y.), 574.

Defendant may not put in a plea after he has submitted to make answer, although he may answer an amended bill where plaintiff has amended after answer. Ritchie v. Aylwin, 15 Ves. 79.

2. Farley v. Kittson, 120 U. S. 303, 314, 315.

Plea in equity is not evidence for defendant. Farley v. Kittson, 120 U. S. 303, 317, citing Heartt v. Corning, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 566.

3. Oliver v. Persons, 30 Ga. 391.

4. Hinde's Chan. 170; Mitt. Plead.

(2d ed.) 177, 178; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 244.

5. See title "Demurrers," ante.

It is no bar to a proceeding in equity, that the property is not within the jurisdiction. Massie v. Watts, 6 Cranch (U. S.), 148, 158.

Want of jurisdiction not apparent on the face of the bill is available by plea. Freemont v. Merced Mining Co., McAl. (U. S.) 267.

In a plea to the jurisdiction, must show what other court has jurisdiction. Derby v. Athol, 1 Ves. 202, 203; Strode v. Little, 1 Ver. 58.

6. Hinde's Chan. 172.

intestate was living; or, in case of an administrator, that he was not administrator. (3) Alienage is said to be inapplicable as a plea, except where the plaintiff is an alien enemy, or the suit affect lands; and even then the exception does not always hold, as in cases where the alien enemy is here by virtue of protection of the government.<sup>1</sup>

c. Of Pleas in Bar.—These are generally in avoidance of the matter set up in the bill, and is of some matter dehors the record, and may be (1) of the statute of limitations, of frauds and perjuries, or some other statute which creates a bar; or (2) some matter of record; or (3) some matter in pais.<sup>2</sup>

(1) Plea of the Statute of Limitations.—Where the statute of limitations is relied on by the defendant, this is ground for demurrer if it appear on the face of the bill; otherwise it should be taken advantage of by plea.<sup>3</sup>

(2) The Statute of Frauds and Perjuries.—A party must specially plead the statute of frauds, or insist on it in his answer.<sup>4</sup>

1. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 185-193; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 246-250. 2 Madd. Chan. 241-243; Hinde's Chan. 172-175; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 722-734.

3. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 250 et seq.; 2 Madd. Chan. 244 et seq.; Hinde's Chan. 175 et seq.; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 194 et seq.; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 146, 207, 220; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 748 et seq.

3. Worthy v. Johnson, 8 Ga. 236.

The statute of limitations may be pleaded in equity. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 212; Kane v. Bloodgood, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 90; Stackhouse v. Barnston, 10 Ves. 466.

A corporation may plead the statute of limitations. Wych v. East India Co., 3 P. Wms. 309.

The statute may be pleaded to a bill to redeem after the mortgagee has been in possession a long period of time, as thirty years. Aggas v. Pickerill, 3 Atk. 225.

Length of time, as well as the statute of limitations, may be pleaded in bar. Edsell v. Buchanan, 2 Ves. Jr. 83.

Ordinarily the statute cannot be pleaded in bar of an account. Anon. 2 Freem. 22.

So in Goodrich v. Pendleton, 3 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 385, 391, it was held that the rules of pleading required the defendant, when setting up the plea of the statute of limitations, "to answer particularly and precisely the charges in the bill which go to destroy the bar created by the statute," that "The rule is, that the equitable circumstances charged in the bill, and which will avoid the statute, must be denied by the answer as well as by the general averment in the plea; and the answer in support of the plea (and which is indispensable to its support) must be full and clear, and contain a particular and precise denial of the charges, or it will not be effectual to support the plea. The court will intend that the matters so charged against the pleader are true, unless they be fully and clearly denied. The facts necessary to render the plea a defence must be clearly and distinctly averred, so that the plaintiff may take issue upon them; and the answer in support of the plea must contain particular and precise averments to enable the plaintiff to meet them, as the object of the answer is to give the plaintiff an opportunity of taking exceptions to the traverse of the facts and circumstances charged in the bill, which, if true, would destroy the bar set up."

The defence of the statute of limitations is good at equity as well as in law. Gardner v. Watson, 18 Bradw. (Ill.) 386.

"A pure plea of the statute (of limitations) is no bar where there are circumstances stated in the bill which take the case out of it as an offer to account, an acknowledgment of the debt, a promise to pay, or to do what was right and just, or a promise to pay when assets came to hand, unless the plea be accompanied with an averment or answer destroying the force of those circumstances." The Chancellor in Kane v. Bloodgood, 7 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 90, 134.

A plea of the statute of limitations need not ordinarily be accompanied by an answer, an exception being where some matter of equity is set forth in the bill, in order to avoid the statute. West Portland, etc., Assoc'n v. Lounsedale, 17 Fed. Rep. 205.

When the statute of limitations is relied on as a defence in equity, it should be set up by way of plea or answer. Dick v. Doughten et al., 1 Del. Chan. 321.

4. Tarleton v. Vietes, 1 Gilm. (Ill.) 470.

Where a bill was exhibited in chancery to obtain a decree for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of lands, held that a party defendant can take advantage of the statute of frauds in no other way "than by either denying the sale, or pleading or relying on the statute in his answer."<sup>1</sup>

It was declared in McClure v. Otrich,<sup>2</sup> that the statute of frauds, to be made available to a bill for specific performance, must be set up by way of plea or answer.<sup>3</sup>

(3) Pleas as to Matters of Record and in Pais. — A former decree, wherein the rights of the parties have been adjudicated, is a good plea in bar.<sup>4</sup>

(4) A Plea of the Pendency of another Suit in Equity is said to be a good plea in bar.<sup>5</sup>

(5) Purchaser for a Valuable Consideration. — Where the defendant is a purchaser for a valuable consideration, without notice, this is a good plea in bar. It must appear, however, by such plea, what the actual consideration was, and also that it was paid in good faith; and the plea or answer must not evade, but must positively deny the fact of notice, as well as every circumstance from which notice might be inferred, and this although notice is not set up in the bill.<sup>6</sup>

(6) Other Pleas in Bar.<sup>7</sup>

1. Talbot v. Bowen, 1 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 436.

But in Givens v. Calder, 2 Desau. (S. Car.) 172, the court said, "That in case of a parol agreement not tintured with fraud, if the defendant chose to avail himself of the statute, it is not necessary that he should by answer confess or deny the agreement, the law having declared it void; neither ought he to be compelled to deny part performance of it, although charged in the bill."

2. 118 Ill. 320.

3. In Esmay v. Gortan, 18 Ill. 486, it was held that on a bill for specific performance in the absence of a plea of the statute of frauds, parol evidence was admissible to establish the contract.

Plea of statute of frauds and answer also filed denying the contract, the answer overrules the plea. Wildbahn v. Robindaux, 11 Mo. 659.

4. Anon. 3 Atk. 809; Kinsey v. Kinsey, 2 Ves. 577.

Plea of former decree must show when it was instituted, and so much of the original bill must be set forth as to show the same point to have been in issue. Foster v. Vassal, 3 Atk. 587; Child v. Gibson, 2 Atk. 603.

A final decree duly enrolled, and which dismisses the bill, is a bar to another suit upon the same subject-matter between the same parties. Cochran v. Cowper, Admr., 2 Del. Chan. 27.

Bill dismissed upon demurrer only cannot be pleaded in bar. There must be a decree upon the merits as to the same matter and between the same parties. Moss v. Ashbrooks, 12 Ark. 369.

5. Lyon v. Lyon, 21 Conn.; Huggins v. York Bldg. Co., 2 Atk. 44; Neve v. Weston, 3 Atk. 557.

6. Gilder v. Gilder, 1 Del. Chan. 339.

A plea of purchase for a valuable consideration must specially deny all allegations in the bill of particular and special notice. A general denial is not sufficient. Radford v. Wilson, 3 Atk. 815.

7. Plea of stated account is a good plea in bar to a bill for account. Sumner v. Thorpe, 2 Atk. 1.

A plea of award is good, not only to the merits of the case, but to the discovery. Tittenson v. Peat, 3 Atk. 539.

Arbitrators may plead in bar an award where a submission has been made to arbitrate under rule of court and an agreement to be restrained from suing in equity. Lingood v. Croucher, 2 Atk. 395.

An injunction may be pleaded in bar where a subsequent suit is brought for the cause enjoined. White & Tudor's Lead. Cas. in Eq. 1406.

Compromise or release can be availed of by plea only, and not by answer. Lockwood v. Bates' Ass'ee et al., 1 Del. Chan. 435.

The courts do not favor pleas in bar which seek to take advantage of a want of

4. Pleas to Bills of Discovery. — Outside of pleas to bills for relief, there are some additional grounds of pleas, which are applicable principally to bills of discovery. These are divided into pleas to the jurisdiction to the person, and in bar.<sup>1</sup>

a. As to Pleas to the Jurisdiction. — Where the case of the plaintiff is such that jurisdiction cannot be assumed by a court of equity to compel a discovery in his favor here if the case be so stated by the bill as that it cannot be reached by a demurrer, the matter necessary to show want of jurisdiction may be set up by way of plea.<sup>2</sup>

b. Of Pleas to the Person. — These may be for want of interest in the plaintiff, or the want of sufficient interest to entitle him to call on the defendant for a discovery; as where a bill is brought by one in the capacity of heir or administrator to obtain discovery of title from one in possession of property which belonged to the deceased, a plea may be set up that some other person is heir or administrator, or that the person alleged to be deceased is living.<sup>3</sup>

Other pleas, such as that plaintiff is an alien enemy, and the like, have been considered.<sup>4</sup>

c. As to Pleas in Bar. — A plea for want of parties is in bar to the whole bill, discovery and relief.<sup>5</sup>

(1) The Statute of Limitations may be pleaded to the debt, but not to a bill of discovery as to when the debt was due.<sup>6</sup>

(2) Award. — In the absence of a charge of collusion or gross misbehavior, an award is also a good plea to the merits, and also to the discovery.<sup>7</sup>

(3) So also is a Release or Compromise a good plea.<sup>8</sup>

(4) And that one is a Purchaser for a Valuable Consideration without notice is also a good plea to prevent an answer to an averment of title by the plaintiff.<sup>9</sup>

(5) Penalty and Forfeiture. — That the situation of the defendant is such that a discovery would subject him to a legal prosecution, equity in the case set up by the plaintiff. Platt v. Oliver, 1 McLean (U. S.), 295.

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 816, et seq.

If a bill prays a discovery only, and the plea is to discovery and relief, it is bad. Asgil v. Dawson, Bunb. 70.

A plea is bad which contains exceptions of matters hereinafter mentioned. Salkeld v. Science, 2 Ves. 107.

A plea that is double will not stand, especially where it sets up inconsistent matters. Nobkissen v. Hastings, 2 Ves. Jr. 84.

"The proper office of a plea is not like an answer to meet all the allegations of the bill, nor like a demurrer, admitting those allegations to deny the equity of the bill, but it is to present some distinct fact which of itself creates a bar to the suit, or to the part to which the plea applies, and thus to avoid the necessity of making the discovery asked for, and the expense of going into the evidence at large." Farley v. Kittson, 120 U. S. 303, 314.

2. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 222.

3. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 223.

4. See title "Parties," ante.

5. Plunket v. Penon, 2 Atk. 51.

6. Mackenworth v. Clifton, 2 Atk. 51.

7. Tittenson v. Peat, 3 Atk. 529; South Sea Co. v. Bumstead, 2 Eq. Cas. Abr. 80; Mitchell v. Harris, 2 Ves. Jun. 129; Gartside v. Gartside, 3 Aust. 736; Champion v. Wenham, Ambli. 245.

8. Leonard v. Leonard, 1 Ball & Beat. 328.

9. Hart v. Middlehurst, 3 Atk. 377. But see title "Pleas to Bills of Relief," subtitle "Pleas in Bar," ante. See also title "Demurrers," ante.

or to a penalty or forfeiture, or that it would betray matters coming to his knowledge as a counsel, is a good matter of a plea.<sup>1</sup>

5. As to Pleas to Bills to perpetuate Testimony, these are subject in general to many of the pleas applicable to other original bills, as that the plaintiff has no interest, or that defendant is equally entitled to the protection of a court of equity, or that defendant is a purchaser without notice for a valuable consideration. But in addition it may be pleaded that there is no necessity for the testimony to be perpetuated, in that the suit can be tried at once at law.<sup>2</sup>

6. Of Pleas to Bills not Original. — These are pleas to supplemental bills, and pleas to bills of revivor.

a. Pleas to Supplemental Bills. — Where no right exists in the plaintiff to file a supplemental bill, or the matter of the supplemental bill might have been inserted into the original bill by way of amendment thereto, as where it did not arise subsequent to filing the original bill; or if matter is inserted into the original bill by way of amendment, which ought properly to have been matter for a supplemental bill, as where it arose subsequent to the original bill, these, when the matter cannot be reached by a demurrer, is ground for a plea.<sup>3</sup>

b. Pleas to Bills of Revivor. — Where the plaintiff has no right in himself to revive the suit at all, or there is no sufficient cause to revive, or if the legal representative or person entitled to revive is barred by the statute of limitations, or where there is a want of proper parties, or the bill is wrongly filed in place of some other bill, these may all be availed of by the defendant by way of plea or demurrer; and in those cases where a demurrer will not lie, a plea is proper.<sup>4</sup>

7. Pleas to Other Bills in the nature of original bills.

a. Pleas to Cross-bills. — Generally, all pleas which are available to original bills are good pleas to cross-bills, except, however, that pleas which go to the jurisdiction of the court, and the person of the plaintiff, will not lie to a cross-bill, since the original bill affirms the sufficiency of both. But if the bill be exhibited in the name alone of a plaintiff incapacitated from suing alone, as in case of an infant, feme covert, and the like, this is good ground for a plea to the person.<sup>5</sup>

b. Pleas to Bills of Review. — To a bill of review, the proper defence is said to be by plea of the decree, and demurrer against

1. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 824, 825; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 271-273; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 223, et seq.; Hinde's Chan. 182, et seq.

These subjects have already been fully considered. See title "Demurrer," ante. It being remembered that a plea differs from a demurrer in that it reaches matters not apparent on the face of the bill.

2. Hinde's Chan. 190.

3. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 827, 828; Hinde's Chan. 190; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 230; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 274.

4. Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 829-831; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 228 et seq.; Hinde's Chan. 190, Coop. 302; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 273.

5. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 230; Hinde's Chan. 190; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 832.

opening the same; and where any other matter outside of the decree is relied on against the opening of the enrolment, this must also be pleaded; and where a bill of review is brought alleging discovery of new matter, any plea is good which would have avoided such matter if set out in the original bill.<sup>1</sup>

c. Pleas to Bills to impeach a Decree on the Ground of Fraud.—Where a bill of this kind is exhibited, it may be defended by a plea of the decree and a denial of the fraud.<sup>2</sup>

d. Pleas to Bills to carry a Decree into Execution.—If the plaintiff filing such a bill is not entitled to have the relief sought, this fact may be pleaded by the defendant if it does not appear upon the face of the bill so as to admit of a demurrer.<sup>3</sup>

(C) THE ANSWER.—If the defendant does not demur or plead, he must answer.<sup>4</sup> And if any part of the bill is not covered by a demurrer, plea, or disclaimer, this must be answered.<sup>5</sup>

An answer may not be required to interrogatories which the substantive allegations of the bill do not support, although, if an answer be made and replied to, it is properly in issue.<sup>6</sup>

The defendant should set up in his answer, in a clear and

1. Hinde's Chan. 190; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) §§ 833-835; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 274.

If a supplemental bill be brought upon the ground of the discovery of new matter, and there is none, this is properly met by a plea or demurrer. Lewellin v. Mackworth, 2 Atk. 40.

In Catteral v. Purchase, 1 Atk. 290, a demurrer was put in to a bill of review.

"It has been already mentioned that a part of the constant defence to a bill of review has been said to be by a plea of the decree; but that a demurrer seemed to be the proper defence, and that the books of practice give the form of a demurrer only to such a bill." Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 231.

2. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 274; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 836.

3. Hinde's Chan. 191; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 837; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 232.

4. Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 234 et seq. § 340 et seq.; 2 Madd. Chan. 259.

Except, perhaps, in cases where a cross-bill may be brought. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 222.

Rule 44, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "A defendant shall be at liberty, by answer, to decline answering any interrogatory, or part of an interrogatory, from answering which he might have protected himself by demurrer; and he shall be at liberty so to decline, notwithstanding he shall answer other parts of the bill, from which he might have protected himself by demurrer. Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) 702.

5. Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 244.

"Defendant should either demur or plead to the discovery whenever he is entitled to do so," since he must answer fully, if at all, except where the discovery might tend to criminate him, or where he is a purchaser without notice and for value. Jerrard v. Saunders, 2 Ves. Jr. 458.

Held, in Vermont, that "defendant may refuse to answer the whole bill, and answer only in part, by setting up grounds why he should not answer all." Hunt v. Gookin, 6 Vt. 462, citing Mazarredo v. Maitland, 3 Mad. 70; Somerville v. Mackay, 16 Ves. 382; Phillips v. Prevost, 4 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 205; 2 Swift's Digest (Conn.), 202; Murray v. Coster, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 617; Jacobs v. Goodman, 3 Brown, 488, note; Selby v. Selby, 4 Bro. C. C. 121.

Defendant is not compelled to answer immaterial matters. Dinsmoor v. Hazelton, 22 N. H. 535.

If defendant answers to the whole bill, he waives his right to demur to the whole bill. Adams v. Howard, 9 Fed. Rep. 347.

6. Atty.-Genl. v. Whorwood, 1 Ves. Jr. 538, 539.

"The rule is, you are not only to question in the interrogatory part, but make charges in the charging part, otherwise you cannot accept. But the defendant, though not bound to answer it, has done so, which being replied to, it is put in issue properly; consequently that informality in the matter of charging (for it is no more) is supplied by the answering to it, for a matter may be put in issue by the answer as well as by the bill, and, if replied to, either party may examine to it." The Lord Chancellor in Atty.-Genl. v. Whorwood, 1 Ves. Jr. 534, 538, 539.

definite manner, all the facts he intends to rely on; and he will be bound to the matters therein averred, and may not go beyond them, although they may come up in evidence.<sup>1</sup> And he should not only answer literally the charges of the bill, but in addition should, as to the substance of each charge, confess or traverse it.<sup>2</sup>

An answer should be positive, certain, and not argumentative;<sup>3</sup> nor should it contain any thing scandalous or impertinent.<sup>4</sup> No matter, however, which is relevant, and tends to disprove the case shown by the bill, is impertinent.<sup>5</sup>

An answer as to facts expressly charged, to be within the knowledge of the defendant, must be positive, and not his remembrance or belief. If facts are not within his knowledge, he must answer as to his information or belief.<sup>6</sup> If the defendant's answer is not full and complete as is required by the rules of pleading, he may be compelled to answer over.<sup>7</sup>

1. Home Insurance Co. of Texas v. Myer, 93 Ill. 271; Johnson v. Johnson, 114 Ill. 611; Russell, etc., Co. v. Mallory, 10 Blatchf. (U. S.) 140.

2. May v. Williams, 17 Ala. 23; Warren v. Warren, 30 Vt. 530.

All the facts alleged in the bill must be denied or admitted. Tucker v. Cheshire R. Co., 21 N. H. 29. And this is so as to matters specifically charged. Wharton v. Wharton, 1 Sim. & Stu. 235, 236.

"To so much of the bill as is necessary and material for the defendant to answer, he must speak directly and without evasion, and must not merely answer the several charges literally, but he must confess or traverse the substance of each charge; and whenever there are particular, precise charges, they must be answered particularly and precisely, and not in a general manner, though the general answer may amount to a full denial of the charges." 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 222.

3. Faulder v. Stuart, 11 Ves. 296.

4. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 222; Eq. Draughts, by Hughes, p. 569.

5. Saltmarsh v. Bower, 22 Ala. 221.

6. Woods v. Morrell, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 104, 107; Grimstone v. Carter, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 421.

An answer should admit or deny every material fact alleged in the stating part of the bill of which he personally has knowledge. If he "has any information upon a material matter alleged in the bill, aside from the bill itself, he is bound to state his belief of the truth or falsity of the allegation." Devereaux v. Cooper, 11 Vt. 103.

"The answer of a defendant to charges in a bill must be direct and positive, and not from information, hearsay, and belief, to entitle it to a claim, to be responsive to the bill and make it evidence, except, perhaps, where the facts, answered by a defendant against his interest, are from information, and he states additionally that he believes them to be true." Arline v. Miller, 22 Ga. 330.

"Where material matters are stated in the bill, which, prima facie, are within the knowledge, information, or belief of the defendant, if in his answer he fails to deny them, or to express his belief of their falsity, and does not state that he cannot form any belief respecting their truth, they must be considered as admitted. . . . A vague manner of denial of such matters is always received unfavorably. . . . He (defendant) cannot be allowed to shelter himself behind equivocal, evasive, or doubtful terms, and thus mislead the complainant, nor behind a literal denial which amounts to no more than a negative pregnant, or an evasion of the point of substance. Particular charges must be answered particularly and precisely. A general answer, even when it included an answer to all the particular charges, is insufficient." Grady v. Robinson, 28 Ala. 289, citing several authorities; Clark v. Jones, 41 Ala. 349; Thorington v. Carson, 1 Port. (Ala.) 257.

7. Cleghorn v. Rutherford, 26 Ga. 152.

With the exceptions "of a demurrer to the discovery of a particular matter, and a plea in respect to some particular matter, as to which a discovery is asked for, the general rule is, that a 'defendant, if he answers at all, must answer fully' to all allegations which are material to the equity set up by the bill." Weisman v. Heron Mining Co., 4 Jones, Eq. (N. C.) 112. Rule 39, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "The rule that, if the defendant submits to answer, he shall answer fully to all the matters of the bill, shall no longer apply in cases where he might by plea protect himself from such answer and discovery. And

Upon a bill praying for the discovery of title, and alleging fraud, the statute of limitations cannot be pleaded, but defendant must answer as to the fraud.<sup>1</sup>

It is said that the fact that the plaintiff does not sustain the character in which he sues, is a good averment in an answer to enable a defendant to protect himself from discovery and account.<sup>2</sup>

A bill should be dismissed where the answer unequivocally denies the allegations of the bill, and the cause is set down for hearing; and this is so where new matter is set up in evidence.<sup>3</sup>

When defendant denies or traverses any fact contained in the bill, he must do so directly, and not by way of negative pregnant. He must specifically answer the particular charges of the bill; that is, he must answer the substance positively and with certainty, and is not compelled to answer literally all the divers circumstances set out in support of a fact.<sup>4</sup>

An answer should not properly set forth deeds in hæc verba, though the bill so prays. The defendant need only aver his readiness to give copies of them, or may set forth so much of them as is material for the plaintiff to know.<sup>5</sup>

An answer overrules a plea when both set up the same thing.<sup>6</sup>

Where a demurrer is overruled, the same matter may be insisted on in the answer.<sup>7</sup>

An answer may be used for the purpose only of showing what the defendants shall be entitled in all cases by answer to insist upon all matters of defence (not being matters of abatement, or to the character of the parties, or matters of form) in bar, or of to the merits of the bill, of which he may be entitled to avail himself by a plea in bar; and in such answer he shall not be compellable to answer any other matters than he would be compellable to answer and discover upon filing a plea in bar, and an answer in support of such plea touching the matters set forth in the bill to avoid or repel the bar or defence. Thus, for example, a bona fide purchaser for a valuable consideration, without notice, may set up that defence by way of answer instead of plea, and shall be entitled to the same protection, and shall not be compellable to make any further answer or discovery of his title than he would be in any answer in support of such plea." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 698.

1. Bicknell v. Gough, 3 Atk. 558.

Defendant is not compelled in all cases to set up the statute of limitations by way of a plea; but he may set up the whole matter of defence by way of answer, claiming the benefit of so much as is in bar, and may, upon hearing, have as full benefit of the statute as if he had pleaded it. Norton v. Turvil, 2 P. Wms. 145; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 223.

2. Bentley v. Cleaveland, 22 Ala. 814.

3. Atkinson v. Manks, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 691, 703.

4. 1 Harr. Pract. in Ch. 223.

"With regard to the sufficiency of the answer, the general rule is, that to so much of the bill as is material and necessary for the defendant to answer, he must speak directly and without evasion, and not by way of negative pregnant. He must not answer the charges merely literally, but he must confess or traverse the substance of each charge positively and with certainty; and particular precise charges must be answered particularly and precisely, and not in a general manner, even though the general answer may amount to a full denial of the charges." The court in Woods v. Morrell, 1 John. Ch. 104, 107.

5. 1 Harr. Pract. in Ch. 223.

6. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 225; Taylor v. Luther, 2 Sumn. (U. S.) 228; Stearns v. Page, 1 Story (U. S.), 204. See Lewis v. Baird, 3 McLean (U. S.), 56.

Rule 37, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "No demurrer or plea shall be held bad and overruled upon argument, only because the answer of the defendant may extend to some part of the same matter as may be covered by such demurrer or plea." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) p. 697.

7. Dormer v. Fortescue, 2 Atk. 282; Crawford v. The William Penn, 3 Wash. (U. S.) 684.

is admitted; but as to new matter appearing therein, this must be admitted.<sup>1</sup>

The defendant may not be compelled to make any discovery which would subject him to criminal prosecution; and this extends not only to the express matter charged, but the defendant is also not obliged to confess any fact pertaining thereto which would aid in the prosecution of a crime. It must, however, appear either by the bill exhibited, or by the defendant's plea, that he would be subjected to punishment by his answers.<sup>2</sup>

An answer, so far as it is responsive to a bill, is legal evidence.<sup>3</sup>

But an answer, or an allegation in an answer, which is not responsive, is not evidence.<sup>4</sup>

Where an answer responsive to the bill is made under oath, it can only be rebutted by the testimony of two witnesses, or the testimony of one witness supported by corroborating circumstances equivalent to one witness.<sup>5</sup>

1. White v. Morrison, 11 Ill. 362.

2. Wolf v. Wolf's Excr, 2 Harr. & G. (Md.) 382.

The court cites from Claridge v. Hoar, 14 Ves. 57, 65, the following: "A defendant has a right to insist that he is not to be compelled to answer not only the broad and leading fact, but any fact the answer to which may furnish a step in the prosecution, if any person should choose to indict him." Harrington v. Southcote, 2 Ves. 389, 394; Fuller v. Hooper, 2 Ves. 245.

3. Blaisdell v. Nason, 16 Vt. 179, 186; Blaisdell v. Bowers, 40 Vt. 126; Fenno v. Sayre, 3 Ala. 458, and cases cited; Edmondson v. Montague, 14 Ala. 370; Garrett v. Garrett, 29 Ala. 439, 441; Easterwood v. Linton, 36 Ala. 175; Lucas v. Bank of Darien, 2 Stew. (Ala.) 280.

"An answer under oath is evidence in favor of the defendant, because made in obedience to the demand of the bill for a discovery, and therefore only so far as it is responsive to the bill." Farley v. Kittson, 120 U. S. 303, 317.

An answer of a defendant who is not a party to the issue on trial, cannot be used as evidence in the cause. Wellborn v. Rogers et ux., 24 Ga. 558; Blaisdell v. Nason, 16 Vt. 179, 186.

But not so when made upon information and belief only when a traverse is put into the answer. Loomis v. Fay, 24 Vt. 240. See Allen v. Mower, 17 Vt. 61; Grafton Bank v. Doe, 19 Vt. 463.

Nor is an answer of a defendant evidence against his co-defendant or for him. Blodgett v. Hobart, 18 Vt. 414.

The rule that the answer must be responsive does not extend (as to its being evidence) to cases where the hearing is upon the bill and answer alone, the answer being taken as true in such cases. Cherry v.

Belcher, 5 Stew. & P. (Ala.) 133. But see Forrest v. Robinson, 2 Ala. 215.

4. Cartledge, Guardian, v. Cutliff, 29 Ga. 758.

Where an answer introduces matters in avoidance of the matters set up in the bill, and which is not responsive, this cannot be taken as evidence. Keiffer v. Barney Bros., 31 Ala. 192.

"Where the answer is not responsive to the bill, or sets up affirmative allegations in opposition to or in avoidance of the plaintiff's demand, and is replied to, the answer is of no avail in respect to such allegations; and the defendant is as much bound to establish the allegations so made by independent testimony as the plaintiff is to sustain his bill." The court in Wells v. Houston, 37 Vt. 245, 247.

As to an answer which is not responsive to a bill, see Wells v. Houston, 37 Vt. 245; Mott v. Harrington, 12 Vt. 199; Sanborn v. Kittredge, 20 Vt. 632.

Rule 41, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "If the complainant, in his bill, shall waive an answer under oath, or shall only require an answer under oath with regard to certain specified interrogatories, the answer of the defendant, though under oath, except such part thereof as shall be directly responsive to such interrogatories, shall not be evidence in his favor, unless the cause be set down for hearing on bill and answer only; but may, nevertheless, be used as an affidavit, with the same effect as heretofore, on a motion to grant or dissolve an injunction, or on any other incidental motion in the cause; but this shall not prevent a defendant from becoming a witness in his own behalf under section three of the act of Congress of July 2, 1864." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) p. 700.

5. Morrison v. Durr, 122 U. S. 518;

Where a bill was brought by a wife against her husband for divorce, and a supplemental bill was thereafter filed claiming alimony, and alleging that the defendant, in order to defeat the plaintiff's claim for alimony, had, by collusion with his sister, deeded all his property to her for a grossly inadequate consideration; that the sister had taken the deed knowing of the bill, and after notice by the plaintiff, who had warned her not to pay the consideration, and praying by the bill that the defendants be required to answer the allegations of the bill, and that the deed be set aside and declared void, — these matters were denied in the answer of each of the defendants, and the deed was claimed to have been executed and delivered in good faith, and upon a valuable consideration. There was no direct evidence adduced, as disclosed by the record, other than the mere inadequacy of consideration for the deed, which evidence in itself was declared insufficient to prove the fraud alleged; and the court declared that "an answer of the defendant responsive to the bill denying the allegations therein made in regard to his motives and intentions, is conclusive upon that question, unless overcome by the testimony of two witnesses, or of one with corroborating circumstances."<sup>1</sup>

Bona fide Purchaser. — A bill in equity was filed by the Attorney-General in the name of the United States, for the purpose of having a patent of land of 9,565<sup>28</sup>/<sub>100</sub> acres from the United States to a pre-emptor cancelled, the ground being that there was no improvement or actual settlement on the land. The affidavits, it was claimed, had falsely set out the necessary facts of settlement and improvement; and it was also alleged that the patents were procured by means of a fraudulent conspiracy between certain persons named in the bill, and that the pre-emptors were in fact fictitious persons. An answer was filed by the defendant denying the allegations of fraud specifically, and averring in addition that it was a purchaser bona fide, and for a valuable consideration, without notice of any of the claimed fraudulent acts of the per-

Mey v. Gulliman, 105 Ill. 272; Laberge v. Chauvin, 2 Mo. 179; Gamble v. Johnson, 9 Mo. 605; Johnson v. McGruder, 15 Mo. 365; McQueen v. Chonteau, 20 Mo. 222; Shields v. Trammell, 19 Ark. 51, 63, 64; Atkinson v. Manks, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 191; Jordan's Admr. v. Fenno, 13 Ark. 593; Clark v. Bailey, 2 Strob. Eq. (S. Car.) 143; Garrett v. Garrett, 29 Ala. 439; Johnson v. Slawson, Bail. Eq. (S. Car.) 463; Durham v. Taylor, 29 Ga. 166.

"Where an answer alleges as facts what the defendant could not personally know, though it may be responsive to the bill, the rule requiring two witnesses, or one witness with corroborating circumstances, or very strong corroborating circumstances, to countervail its effect, does not apply; but such an answer merely puts the complainant to prove the allegations denied." Conner v. McIlvaine, 4 Del. Chan. 30.

An answer partly corroborated by one witness, and contradicted by one witness only, prevails. Vermont v. Delaire, 2 Desaus. (S. Car.) 323.

The rule that, where an answer is responsive, there must be two witnesses, or one witness and corroborating circumstances, to overcome it, was not adhered to in a Georgia case, where it was said that such answer might be overcome by circumstances alone. Robinson v. Hardin, 26 Ga. 344.

Testimony of defendant does not add any weight to sworn answer which it did not before have. Catlett v. Dougherty, 114 Ill. 568.

1. Feigley v. Feigley, 7 Md. 537.

sons named in the bill. Replications were filed, and the case came duly to trial and a hearing, upon which the patents were declared to be of no validity, and were ordered to be delivered up for cancellation. An appeal was taken to this court. Held, that a defence of a purchaser in good faith for value and without notice, was good; and the decree below was reversed, and the bill ordered dismissed.<sup>1</sup>

1. Supplemental Answer. — The court refused to allow a supplemental answer to be filed under the following circumstances: The defendant demurred; upon its being overruled, an answer was filed; to this the plaintiff replied, and thereafter the defendant obtained a reference to a master to take testimony on his behalf; then, upon motion and affidavit, a continuance of the case was had to obtain the testimony of a certain witness. From the time of filing the answer, to the request to put in a supplemental answer, about eleven months elapsed. The supplemental and the original answers were also inconsistent.<sup>2</sup>

The court will not permit a penal statute affecting complainant's right to be set up as a defence by way of supplemental answer.<sup>3</sup>

A supplementary answer stands in place of an amended answer,<sup>4</sup> and is allowed for similar matters, as in cases of supplemental bills, but for many other causes, as that the facts necessary to be alleged were omitted by reason of ignorance of them, or through misrepresentation by the plaintiff.<sup>5</sup> Such answer should, however, only be of new matter arising subsequent to filing the original answer.<sup>6</sup>

1. Colorado Coal & Iron Co. v. U. S., 123 U. S. 307, 316, citing the Maxwell Land Grant Case, 121 U. S. 325, 379, 381.

Other Cases of Answers. — The rule that, where allegations are neither confessed nor denied in the answer, they must be proven at the hearing, applies to substance rather than form; and if, by any fair interpretation, the answer can be construed to be an admission of material facts, it will be so construed. Surget v. Byers, 1 Hempst. (U. S.) 719.

Defendant should not put in a plea for want of the necessary parties. The defect is properly set out in an answer. U. S. v. Gillespie, 6 Fed. Rep. 803.

An answer, being a mode of defence, can contain no prayer other than to be dismissed. Cullum v. Erwin, 4 Ala. 452; Goodwin v. McGehee, 15 Ala. 232.

An answer is not required to a bill of revivor. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 127.

Rule 59, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that the answers must be verified, and that "Every defendant may swear to his answer before," etc. Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) p. 711.

Rule 60, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that answers may be amended, and declares that "After an answer is put in, it may be amended as of course, in any matter of form, or by filling up a blank, or correcting a date, or reference to a document or other small matter, and may be resworn at any time before a replication is put in, or the cause is set down for a hearing upon bill and answer. But after replication or such setting down for a hearing, it shall not be amended in any material matters, as by adding new facts or defences, or qualifying or altering the original statements, except by special leave of the court, or of a judge thereof, upon motion and cause shown after due notice to the adverse party, supported, if required, by affidavit. And in every case where leave is so granted, the court, or the judge granting the same, may, in his discretion, require that the same be separately engrossed and added as a distinct amendment to the original answer so as to be distinguishable therefrom." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) p. 711.

2. Stout v. Shew, 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 438, 443.

3. Stout v. Shew, 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 438, 443.

4. Stout v. Shew, 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 438.

5. Strange v. Collins, 2 Ves. & B. 163;

Tidswell v. Boyer, 7 Sim. 505.

6. Suydam v. Truesdale, 6 McLean (U. S.), 459.

2. Demurrers, Pleas, and Answers. — A defendant may demur to one part of a bill, and plead or answer to another part.<sup>1</sup> But he may not demur and plead or demur and answer to the same part of a bill, for the plea and answer overrules the demurrer.<sup>2</sup> Nor may the defendant demur, plead, and answer to the whole bill at the same time.<sup>3</sup>

The matter set forth in a supplemental answer should be a meritorious ground of defence, or in aid or explanation of the answer itself, and not allege matter which is entirely new and distinct ground of defence. Stout v. Shew, 1 Pinn. (Wis.) 438.

Rule 46, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "In every case where an amendment shall be made after answer filed, the defendant shall put in a new or supplemental answer on or before the next succeeding rule day after that on which the amendment or amended bill is filed, unless the time is enlarged or otherwise ordered by a judge of the court; and upon his default, the like proceedings may be had as in cases of an omission to put in an answer." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) p. 703.

1. Bull v. Bell, 4 Wis. 54.

Rule 32, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "The defendant may, at any time before the bill is taken for confessed, or afterwards with the leave of the court, demur or plead to the whole bill, or to part of it; and he may demur to part, plead to part, and answer as to the residue; but in every case in which the bill specially charges fraud or combination, a plea to such part must be accompanied with an answer fortifying the plea, and explicitly denying the fraud and combination, and the fact on which the charge is founded." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Ser.) p. 695.

Rule 33, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "The plaintiff may set down the demurrer or plea to be argued, or he may take issue on the plea. If, upon an issue, the facts stated in the plea be determined for the defendant, they shall avail him as far as in law and equity they ought to avail him." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) p. 696.

Rule 36, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "No demurrer or plea shall be held bad and overruled upon argument, only because such demurrer or plea shall not cover so much of the bill as it might by law have extended to." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) p. 697.

"A defendant may demur to one part of a bill, plead to another, answer to another, and disclaim to another; but all these defences must clearly refer to separate and distinct parts of the bill; for though a defendant may plead to one part of a bill, and demur to another, yet he cannot, because of the inconsistency, plead and demur to one and the same part of the bill; and, besides, the plea overrules the demurrer, and for the same reason he cannot answer and demur to the same part of the bill; neither can he plead to that which he has already answered, for the answer overrules the plea a fortiori the demurrer." 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 297.

2. Jones v. Earl of Strafford, 3 P. Wms. 79, 80; Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 622.

3. Crescent City, etc., Co. v. Union, etc., Co., 12 Fed. Rep. 225.

Other Cases of Demurrers, Pleas, and Answers. — The defendant may not answer in part to the discovery, and demur to the other part. Abraham v. Dodgson, 2 Atk. 157; Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 622.

Nor may he demur to the discovery, and not to the relief, since the relief may be had without the discovery. Eq. Draughts. by Hughes, 622.

Want of necessary parties not apparent on the bill itself must be availed of by plea or answer. Bay State Iron Co. v. Goodall, 39 N. H. 223; Carey v. Brown, 92 U. S. 171; Robinson v. Smith, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 222, 230.

Misjoinder of parties may be availed of by demurrer or answer. Bunce v. Gallagher, 5 Blatchf. (U. S.) 481.

"If a plea is coupled with an answer to any part of the bill covered by the plea, and which by the plea the defendant consequently declines to answer, the plea will, upon argument, be overruled. The reason of this doctrine is, that pleas are put in ante litem contestatam, because they are pleas only why the defendant should not answer; and therefore, if he does answer to any thing to which he may plead, he overrules his plea, for the plea is only why he should not answer; and if he answers, he waives the objection, and, of course, his plea." Joyce v. Gunnell, 2 Rich. Eq. (S. Car.) 259.

When defendant "wishes to avoid a full answer, on the ground that there is some fact which defeats the plaintiff's equity, he must allege the fact by plea, so that the plaintiff may take issue; and when he wishes to avoid an answer to some particular matter, on the ground that there is a fact which excuses him from making a discovery in respect thereto, he must answer the other parts of the bill, and allege the fact by plea, as that he is a purchaser for a valuable consideration without notice, and

(D) DISCLAIMER is where the defendant by answer denies that he claims or has any title to the thing in demand in the bill, and disclaims or renounces all claim thereto.<sup>1</sup>

(E) REPLICATIONS. — A replication is matter set up by the plaintiff in avoidance or denial of the answer or plea of the defendant whereby the plaintiff generally asserts the truth and sufficiency of the allegations of the bill.<sup>2</sup>

Where replication is had to a plea, and issue is joined thereon as to the facts, then, if they are proven true, it is admitted that they are sufficient in law to bar the plaintiff's right to recover. The English practice in chancery, in this respect, prevails here; and the bill will also be dismissed upon proof of the truth of the facts pleaded in bar, without reference to other equities in the bill.<sup>3</sup>

The plaintiff may set up the statute of limitations in his replication, or he may amend his original bill.<sup>4</sup>

A new case cannot be made by the replication. This is matter of amendment of the original bill.<sup>5</sup>

Where a replication is filed, the matter alleged in the answer in avoidance of the relief prayed for by the bill must be proved.<sup>6</sup> therefore is not obliged to discover his title." Weisman v. Heron Mining Co., 4 Jones's Eq. (N. Car.) 112, 117.

"Multifariousness as to subjects or parties within the jurisdiction of a court of equity cannot be taken advantage of by a defendant except by demurrer, plea, or answer to the bill, although the court in its discretion may take the objection at the hearing or on appeal, and order the bill to be amended or dismissed."

The court in Hefner v. North-Western Life Ins. Co., 123 U. S. 747, 751, citing Oliver v. Piatt, 3 How. (U. S.) 333, 412; Nelson v. Hill, 5 How. (U. S.) 127, 132, and further declared that "a fortiori it does not render a decree void so that it can be treated as a nullity in a collateral action."

The distinctions in England as to demurrer, plea, and answer, have not been adopted in Connecticut; and many other novel principles and changes have been introduced. 2 Swift's Digest (Conn.), 271 et seq. Although the Practice Act passed in 1879 is the code system of Connecticut; and for the general rules in regard to equitable pleadings and procedure in that State, recourse must now be had to it.

Defendant may demur or plead or answer; and when he objects to the structure of the bill and its completeness, it is his duty to do so if he expects to take advantage of an exception. Surget v. Byers, 1 Hempst. (U. S.) 719.

1. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 296.

"The defendant cannot by a disclaimer deprive the complainant of the right of requiring a full answer from him, unless it is evident that the defendant ought not, after such disclaimer, to be continued a party to the suit." Ellsworth v. Curtis, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 105, 107.

2. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 299; Mitf. Plead. (2d ed.) 255; Lube's Eq. Plead. (Pract. Series) 244, 245, §§ 353, 354; Hinde's Chan. 284, 289; Story's Eq. Plead. (9th ed.) § 877; 2 Madd. Chan. 275. See U. S. Eq. Rule 29, cited under title "Amendment," post.

3. Farley v. Rittson, 120 U. S. 303, 314, 315.

If replication be made to a plea, this puts the distinct averments of the plea in issue, and nothing more; since, if the plea be established, this is a bar to the bill so far as the plea covers it. Bogardus v. Trinity Church, 4 Paige (N. Y.), 178.

Where no replication is filed, the answer, so far as the facts are well pleaded therein, is admitted as true. Gallagher v. Roberts, 1 Wash. (U. S.) 320. See Jones v. Brittan, 1 Woods (U. S.), 667; Parton v. Prang, 2 Pat. Off. Gaz. 619.

Rule 38, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides, that "If the plaintiff shall not reply to any plea, or set down any plea or demurrer for argument, on the rule day when the same is filed, or on the next succeeding rule day, he shall be deemed to admit the truth and sufficiency thereof; and his bill shall be dismissed as of course, unless a judge of the court shall allow him further time for the purpose." Desty's Fed. Proced (Pract. Series) 698.

4. Piatt v. Vattier, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 405.

5. Vattier v. Hinde, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 252.

6. White v. Morrison, 11 Ill. 361.

"Special replications in chancery are

(F) EXCEPTIONS have been defined as the allegations of a party in writing, alleging that some pleading or proceeding in a cause is insufficient, or not perfectly answered in a certain point or points, particularly expressed and set forth in such exceptions.<sup>1</sup>

But, says Daniel, J., in Surget v. Buyers,<sup>2</sup> Pleadings, "it is well understood, are viewed with very little regard to form in courts of equity, where exceptions are never allowed, if they are made under circumstances calculated to effect a surprise on either party, and might have been made at a different stage of the case, and consistently with fairness to all. This is a tribunal which addresses itself to the consciences of men, which looks to the substance of things, and acts upon the maxim 'Ut res magis valeat quam pereat.'"

In a case in the United States courts, it was held that where a suit can be maintained against one of several defendants alone, whose interests are capable of being severed from the other respondents, a mere formal objection, or objection to the jurisdiction, as that some of the parties defendant were not properly before the court, would not be sustained.<sup>3</sup>

After an answer has been made to a bill, and a committee has been appointed, and made its report upon the facts, the bill will not be dismissed for want of necessary parties then objected to for the first time; but the court will order it to stand over, and proper parties to be added.<sup>4</sup>

To an insufficiency in the answer, an exception may be taken; but the court will not sustain a captious exception when the real now disused. A general replication only puts in issue the truth and sufficiency of the matters stated in the bill and answer. If it is necessary for the plaintiff to put in issue any fact on his part in avoidance of the matters set up by the defendant, he must do it by proper charges in his bill. He may in his original bill anticipate the defence that will be made, and allege any matters necessary to explain or avoid it; or, omitting all reference to the defence, he may, on the coming in of the answer, introduce the new matter in the case by an amendment to the bill." The court in White v. Morrison, 11 Ill. 361.

A distinct matter set up in avoidance is to be taken as true without proof; but this may be avoided by a replication, and thus put the defendant on his proof of such fact. Atkinson v. Manks, 1 Cow. (N. Y.) 691, 703.

Rule 45, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "No special replication to any answer shall be filed. But if any matter alleged in the answer shall make it necessary for the plaintiff to amend his bill, he may have leave to amend the same, with or without the payment of costs, as the court, or a judge thereof, may in his discretion direct." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 702.

Rule 66, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "Whenever the answer of the defendant shall not be excepted to, or shall be adjudged or deemed sufficient, the plaintiff shall file the general replication thereto on or before the next succeeding rule day thereafter; and in all cases where the general replication is filed, the cause shall be deemed to all intents and purposes at issue, without any rejoinder or other pleading on either side. If the plaintiff shall omit or refuse to file such replication within the prescribed period, the defendant shall be entitled to an order, as of course, for a dismissal of the suit; and the suit shall thereupon stand dismissed, unless the court, or a judge thereof, shall, upon motion, for cause shown, allow a replication to be filed nunc pro tunc, the plaintiff submitting to speed the cause, and to such other terms as may be directed." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 714.

1. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 228.

2. 1 Hempst. (U. S.) 715, 718.

3. Nesmith v. Calvert, 1 Wood. & M. (U. S.) 34.

4. New London B'k v. Lee, 11 Conn. 112, 121; Chipman v. Hartford, 21 Conn. 488.

grounds of the controversy are disclosed or admitted by the pleadings, so an exception may be taken to the whole bill or portions of it.<sup>1</sup>

So where, upon a bill in equity, after a committee was appointed and the matter investigated fully, an objection that there is a misjoinder or a want of parties comes too late, and will not be heard: in such case the defendants will be considered as waiving their objections.<sup>2</sup>

An objection made to the jurisdiction after an answer put in to the merits, and after the replication is filed, and the evidence published, comes too late.<sup>3</sup>

(G) AMENDMENTS. — The courts are very liberal in granting leave to amend a bill. The case of Perry v. Perry<sup>4</sup> well illustrates this. A bill was exhibited in which the plaintiff sought to enforce a resulting trust in land, brought against an infant and a widow of one P. The bill alleged the purchase of certain land, specifically described, of one H., and the conveyance of the same to P. in trust for the plaintiff; that plaintiff paid for the land partly in cash, and that three promissory notes of P. were given for the balance, which notes were secured by mortgage of the premises; that subsequently the plaintiff furnished the money to take up said notes, and to pay the interest thereon, except a small balance which the said P. had agreed to assume and pay in consideration of certain acts done by the plaintiff; and that the premises were in the occupation of the plaintiff. The defendant demurred, upon the grounds that "The bill nowhere alleges, except inferentially, that P. is dead. It does not assert that he died seized of the alleged trust, or that the respondents have or claim any title to the premises in question. The bill contains no prayer for general

1. Surget v. Byers, 1 Hempst. (U. S.) 719; 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 228; Blaisdell v. Stevens, 16 Vt. 179.

2. Chipman v. Hartford, 21 Conn. 488, 499.

3. Nesmith v. Calvert, 1 Wood. & M. (U. S.) 34.

"Courts will take notice of the omission, though no demurrer be interposed for want of proper parties when it is manifest that the decree" can affect their interests. Herrington v. Hubbard, 1 Scam. (Ill.) 569, 573.

It has been decided that laches need not be pleaded. It is sufficient if it appears at the hearing, and the court will order accordingly. Credit Co. v. Arkansas, etc., R. Co., 15 Fed. Rep. 46.

A motion to dismiss for that the complainant has an adequate remedy at law, comes in too late after the case is put on trial on its merits, and no demurrer has been filed. Hargrave's Adm'r v. Jones, 27 Ga. 233.

Rule 53, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that "If a defendant shall, at the hearing of a cause, object that a suit is defective for want of parties not having by plea or answer taken the objection, and therein specified by name or description the parties to whom the objection applies, the court (if it shall think fit) shall be at liberty to make a decree saving the rights of the absent parties." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 707.

Rule 61, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides as to when exceptions to answers may be taken, and declares that, "After an answer is filed on any rule day, the plaintiff shall be allowed until the next succeeding rule day to file in the clerk's office exceptions thereto for insufficiency, and no longer, unless a longer time shall be allowed for the purpose, upon cause shown to the court or a judge thereof; and if no exception shall be filed thereto within that period, the answer shall be deemed and taken to be sufficient." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 712.

4. 65 Me. 399.

nor for particular relief. It fails to specify the relief desired, or the mode and manner in which it is to be afforded. . . . It does not allege that those notes (of P.) were furnished by the complainant, or at his instance, or for his benefit," nor was it "alleged that the title to the premises in controversy" was in the infant. The demurrer was sustained, but the court ordered that the plaintiff might amend on terms if he deemed it advisable. -

An amendment cannot generally be had where an issue is made upon the original bill, and there has been an examination of witnesses, except, perhaps, where the plaintiff discovers the necessity of adding new parties, which the court may permit to be done at any time by amendment.<sup>1</sup>

Amendments for the purpose of bringing in proper parties who have been omitted, is a matter of discretion with the court.<sup>2</sup>

An amendment may be allowed after a decision by the court in favor of a demurrer, if the real merits and justice of the case demand it.<sup>3</sup>

So, facts necessary to the bill, and existing before the filing of the same, are properly matter for amendment.<sup>4</sup>

An amended complaint supersedes the original, and relates back as to the commencement of the action to the filing of the original bill.<sup>5</sup>

Where a bill is brought alleging the conveyance away of certain lands by a judgment creditor, and praying that a judgment be declared a lien on said lands, and the bill is found defective as

1. Dow v. Jewell, 18 N. H. 340, 359; Bleeker v. Bingham, 3 Paige (N. Y.), 246.

2. 1 Harr. Pract. in Chan. 76.

3. Hunt v. Rousmaniere's Adm'rs, 2 Mason (U. S.), 294, 342.

4. Candler v. Petit, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 168.

5. Barber v. Reynolds, 33 Cal. 497.

Amendments in chancery relate to, and are a part of, the original bill, and have the same effect as if originally a part of it. Hoyt v. Smith, 28 Conn. 466.

Rule 28, U. S. Equity Rules, provides that "The plaintiff shall be at liberty, as a matter of course, and without payment of costs, to amend his bill in any matter whatsoever, before any copy has been taken out of the clerk's office, and in any small matters afterwards, such as filling blanks, correcting errors of dates, misnomer of parties, misdescription of premises, clerical errors, and generally in matters of form. But if he amend in a material point (as he may do, of course) after a copy has been so taken, before any answer, or plea, or demurrer to the bill, he shall pay to the defendant the costs occasioned thereby, and shall, without delay, furnish him a fair copy thereof, free of expense, with suitable references to the places where the same are to be inserted. And if the amendments are numerous, he shall furnish, in like manner, to the defendant, a copy of the whole bill as amended; and if there be more than one defendant, a copy shall be furnished to each defendant affected thereby." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 692.

Rule 29, U. S. Eq. Rules, also provides that "After an answer, or plea, or demurrer is put in, and before replication, the plaintiff may, upon motion or petition, without notice, obtain an order from any judge of the court, to amend his bill on or before the next succeeding rule day, upon payment of costs, or without payment of costs, as the court, or a judge thereof, may, in his discretion, direct. But after replication filed, the plaintiff shall not be permitted to withdraw it and to amend his bill, except upon a special order of a judge of a court, upon motion or petition, after due notice to the other party, and upon proof by affidavit that the same is not made for the purpose of vexation or delay, or that the matter of the proposed amendment is material, and could not, with reasonable diligence, have been sooner introduced into the bill, and upon the plaintiff's submitting to such other terms as may be imposed by the judge for speeding the cause." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) 693.

Definition.

EQUIVALENT—ERASURE—ERECT.

Definition.

to necessary allegations showing the fraud against the plaintiff, it was held that such bill might be amended at the final hearing, and such defect supplied.<sup>1</sup>

Where no ground for proceeding under the original bill exists to the plaintiff, and matter arises subsequently whereby he became entitled to relief, this is properly matter for a new bill, which he should file.<sup>2</sup>

EQUIVALENT.<sup>3</sup>

ERASURE — See ALTERATION OF INSTRUMENTS.

ERECT.<sup>4</sup>

1. Foster v. Knowles, 42 N. J. Eq. (15 Stew.) 226.

2. Candler v. Petit, 1 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 168.

Costs are discretionary in chancery. Sapp v. Phelps, 92 Ill. 588, 595.

As to Decrees. — Rule 86, U. S. Eq. Rules, provides that, "In drawing up decrees and orders, neither the bill nor answer, nor other pleadings, nor any part thereof, nor the report of any master, nor any other prior proceeding, shall be recited or stated in the decree or order; but the decree and order shall begin, in substance, as follows: 'This cause came on to be heard (or to be further heard, as the case may be) at this term, and was argued by counsel; and thereupon, upon consideration thereof, it was ordered and adjudged, and decreed as follows: viz.' Here insert the decree or order." Desty's Fed. Proced. (Pract. Series) p. 727.

The various subjects under equity pleadings are treated of in the following text-books: Adams's Doctrine of Equity, 68 Law Library; Adams's Equity, 3d Amer. ed. 1855; Beames's Pleas in Equity, 1815; Bliss on Code Pleading; Boone's Law of Mortgages; Boone on Code Pleading; Barbour's Parties in Law and Equity, 1864; Barton's Suit in Equity, Amer. ed. 1877; Bispham's Principles of Equity, 3d ed. 1882; Brown on Statute of Frauds, 4th ed. 1880; Calvert's Parties to Suits in Equity; Desty's Federal Procedure; Daniell's Chancery Pleading and Practice, 3d Amer. ed. 1865; Edwards's Parties in Chancery, 1832; Field's Federal Courts, 1883; Field's Lawyers' Briefs; Farren's Bill in Chancery, Amer. ed. by Stone, 1866; Herman on Estoppel and Res Adjudicata, 1886; Hawes's Parties to Actions; Hinde's Chancery; Harrison's Practice in Chancery; Hughes, Equity Draughtsman, by; Hunter's Suits in Equity, 104 Law Library; High on Receivers, 1876; Jones on Chattel Mortgages, 1881; Jones on Pledges, 1883; Jones on Mortgages, 1878; Kelly's Contracts of Married Women, 1882; Kerr on Fraud and Mistake; Langdell's Equity Pleading, 1877;

Lube's Equity Pleading; Law of Nuisance by Wood; Mitford's Chancery; Maddock's Chancery; Perry on Trusts; Schouler's Executors and Administrators, 1883; Story's Equity Pleading, 9th ed. by Gould, 1879; Story's Equity Jurisprudence; White's Supplement and Revivor, 1843; Wigram's Law of Discovery; Williams on Executors, 1877, American notes by Perkins; White & Tudor's Leading Cases in Equity; Willard's Equity Jurisprudence; Walker on Patents, 1883; Wiltse on Mortgage Foreclosures, 1885; Wait's Actions and Defences.

3. It seems that a power granted to the assignee in a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors, to sell and dispose of goods, and collect accounts, "converting the same into cash or its equivalents," is not a power to sell on credit. "It may be doubted," said the court, "if this can be construed to empower the assignee to sell for any thing but money. The meaning of the provision is not clear. It is not easy to conceive what is intended to be embraced by the use of the words 'its equivalents,' but to be equivalent to cash must be something as commercially as good as cash, or, as we take it, something that could readily be converted into cash at a fixed price." Kellogg v. Muller, 4 S. W. Rep. (Texas) 361.

4. A Bequest to erect a Charitable Foundation imports that land is to be bought, unless the will manifests a purpose that it is to be otherwise procured. Atty.-Gen. v. Parsons, 8 Ves. Jr. 186.

A Building Erected is a Building Completed. — A prisoner was indicted under a statute of New York making it a felony to set fire to or burn "any building erected for the manufacture of cotton or woollen goods, or both." It was proved upon the trial that the whole frame of the structure fired, designed for a factory, was not up at the time; that the part which had been raised was not entirely enclosed; the floors were not laid, the stairs were not up, and no part of the building ready for occupation, or substantially ready for the reception of the machinery. It was held, Grover, Peckham, and Folger, J.J., dissenting, that this was not a building erected within the statute. Said the court, "A 'building erected' is quite distinct from a 'building being erected.' . . . To erect, when used in connection with a house, or church, or factory, is to build; and neither can be said to be erected until they are built, completed." McGary v. People, 45 N. Y. 153.

EROSION.—The gradual eating away of the soil by the operation of currents or tides. The proprietorship of lands may be lost by erosion.<sup>1</sup>

Do Alterations in a Building constitute an Erection of a Building?—Under a statute which provided that "no building shall be erected within the town of Boston, and used and improved" as a livery-stable, within one hundred and seventy feet of a church, it was held that the enlarging and fitting up as a livery-stable of a dwelling-house that was built before the act was passed, was an erection of a livery-stable. Hastings v. Aiken, 1 Gray (Mass.), 163. To elevate and enlarge a wooden building so as to materially alter its character, is an offence within the meaning of a city ordinance passed "to prevent the erection of wooden buildings" within certain limits of the city. Douglass v. Com., 2 Rawle (Pa.), 262. But in Booth v. State, 4 Conn. 65, it was held that, where a wooden building erected originally for a meeting-house, and subsequently used for a joiner's shop, was extensively repaired, and converted into a dwelling-house, such repairs and alterations did not constitute the erection of a wooden dwelling-house within the statute to secure the city of New Haven from damage by fire. Said the court, "That a former building was extensively repaired, and converted to a new use, is not disputed; but whether regard be had to etymology, or the popular meaning of language, no dwelling-house was built or erected."

The Painting of a House is a Part of its Erection.—In Martine v. Nelson, 51 Ill. 422, it was held that house-painters are within the protection of a mechanics' lien law that secures a lien to persons who "furnish labor or materials for erecting or repairing" a building. . . . "If the builder," said the court, "protects the walls of his house from the action of the elements by covering them with a coat of paint or stucco, is it reasonable to say he has not used these materials in erecting his house?"

When is a Removal of a Building an Erection of a Building?—Under a statute creating a mechanics' lien "for labor performed or furnished in the erection, alteration, or repair of a building or structure upon real estate," it was held that no lien exists for labor performed or furnished in the removal of a building. "We can have no doubt," said the court, "that the word 'erection' in the statute means 'construction.' . . . The moving a building is quite as technical and well-understood a phrase as the erection of a building, or altering a building, or repairing a building; and, in the ordinary use of language, no person would understand that either the erection, alteration, or repair of a building involved its removal from one place to another,"—Trask v. Searle, 121 Mass. 229, —nor is the removal of a building an erection of a building within a statute that forbids the erection of wooden buildings in certain cases. Brown v. Hunn, 27 Conn. 332. But an indictment for burning in the night-time a "building erected for public use," according to the terms of a statute, is sustained by proof of burning in the night-time a building removed by a city, and afterwards fitted up as a schoolhouse and engine-house. Said the court, "The removal of a building to a new position, and there fitting it up for its intended occupancy, is as much 'erecting' it there as if all the materials had been brought there and put together." Commonwealth v. Horrigan, 2 Allen (Mass.), 159. See also Burling's Estate, 1 Ashm. (Penn.) 377.

A Greenhouse is an Erection.—A covenant in a lease to yield up at the expiration of the term "all erections and improvements erected, made, or set up during the term," is broken by the removal of the sashes and framework of a greenhouse erected during the term, the framework of which was laid upon walls built for the purpose of receiving it, and embedded in mortar thereon. Said Bosanquet, J., "Erection and improvement are not technical words. I think the greenhouse was an improvement within the meaning of the covenant; and it was undoubtedly an erection." West v. Blakeway, 2 Man. & G. 757.

A Scaffold is an Erection.—The bottom of a shaft of a mine had water in it, and the owner of the mine had caused a scaffold to be erected at some distance above the bottom of the mine for the purpose of working a vein of coal which was on a level with the scaffold. It was held that this scaffold was "an erection used in the conducting the business" of a "mine" within the statute 7 & 8 Geo. IV. c. 30, s. 7, and that the damaging it with intent to destroy it, or to render it useless, was felony. Reg. v. Whittingham, 9 Car. & P. 234.

1. Mulry v. Norton, 100 N. Y. 433.

ERRONEOUS—ERROR—ERROR, WRIT OF.

ERRONEOUS.—Deviating from the law. It is never used by courts or law-writers as designating a corrupt or evil act.<sup>1</sup>

ERROR.<sup>2</sup>—See also MISTAKE; ERROR, WRIT OF.

ERROR, WRIT OF.—See APPEAL; BILL OF EXCEPTIONS; CERTIORARI; SCIRE FACIAS; SUPERSEDEAS.

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| I. Writ of Error Coram Nobis. — Definition, 810. II. Writ of Error Generally. — Definition, 812. 1. When it will lie, 813.     a. What are Final Judgments, 813. III. Parties, 817. 1. Who may bring the Writ, 817.     a. In Case of Infancy, 818.     b. In Case of Marriage, 818.     c. In Tax Proceedings, 818. 2. Against whom brought, 819.     a. Parties to the Suit, 819.     b. In Case of Death of the Defendant in Error, 819. IV. Supersedeas, 819. V. Scire Facias, 819. VI. Record in Error, 820. 1. Office of Bill of Exceptions, 823. 2. Abatement, Diminution, and Revival, 825. VII. Assignment of Errors, 825. VIII. Pleas in Error, 828. | 1. Joinder in Error, 828. 2. Release of Errors, 828. IX. Dismissal, 829. X. Certiorari, 831. XI. Judgment, 832. 1. Reversal, 833. 2. Restitution, 835. 3. Remittitur, 835. XII. Statutory Regulations, 835. XIII. In Criminal Cases, 836. 1. When it will lie, 836. XIV. In the United States Courts, 837. 1. United States District Court, 837. 2. United States Circuit Court, 838. XV. From the United States Supreme Court to the State Supreme Courts, 840. 1. United States Court of Claims, 843. 2. Territorial Courts, 843. 3. Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, 843.     a. What is a Final Decree or Judgment, 843. |
|---|---|

I. Writ of Error Coram Nobis.—Definition.—In the trial of a cause, if matters exist which are not brought into issue, such as affect the validity and regularity of the proceeding itself, at common law, the writ of error coram nobis was issued in order to gain justice. It is called coram nobis because the record and process upon which it is founded are stated in the writ to remain "before us;" that is, in the court in which the error is: this writ always lies in the same court where the record is. Matters which affect the validity and regularity of the proceeding are such as the death of one of the parties at the beginning of the suit; the appearance of an infant in a personal action, by an attorney, and not by guardian; the marriage of a woman at the beginning of the suit

1. Thompson v. Doty, 72 Ind. 338.
 2. The word "errors" in a contract with a telegraph company which exempts the company from liability for "delay, error, and remissness" in the transmission of a message, implies sending or delivering a wrong message, or a correct message to the wrong person, and not a failure to deliver any message at all. Baldwin v. U. S. Tel. Co., 54 Barb. (N. Y.) 515; s. c., 6 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. N. S. 423.

A receipt given by the consignees of goods to a carrier, acknowledging their receipt in good order, and in which the consignees are requested to give notice of any errors therein in twenty-four hours, subject to the condition that the carrier will otherwise consider itself discharged, does not exempt the carrier from liability for damages caused by negligence in transporting the goods, although no notice was given thereof to the carrier. Said the court, "Construing the word 'errors' with relation to the subject-matter, it would mean errors in the delivery, as in a less or greater number of packages, or packages directed to different persons; errors which it is necessary to correct at once. . . . The word 'errors' in this connection means mistakes, not waste or negligence." Sanford v. Housatonic R. Co., 11 Cush. (Mass.) 155.

when her husband is not joined with her.<sup>1</sup> This writ coram nobis does not lie to correct any error in the judgment of the court, nor to contradict or put in issue any fact already adjudicated. If a defendant appears and confesses judgment, he cannot controvert that fact after the expiration of the term for the purpose of setting aside the judgment.<sup>2</sup>

If a plaintiff in error die pending the writ, and the superior court reverses the judgment, the defendant in error may bring coram nobis, and assign the death of the plaintiff to the former writ as error.<sup>3</sup> When a judgment is given on the verdict of a jury, it is not that the former judgment be reversed, but that it be recalled and revoked.<sup>4</sup>

The writ of error coram nobis is returnable before some superior tribunal who requires the record and proceedings to be certified to such tribunal for its revisory action.<sup>5</sup>

1. Hurst v. Fisher, 1 Watts & S. (Pa.) 438; Kemp v. Cook, 18 Md. 130.

2. Richardson v. Jones, 12 Gratt. (Va.) 53.

3. Beall v. Powell, 4 Ga. 525.

4. Fellows v. Griffin, 9 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 362.

5. Camp v. Bennett, 16 Wend. (N. Y.) 48. If the facts to be investigated were in the King's Bench, the writ would be coram nobis, "before us," as the record remains in the court where the king constructively is: if the writ issue from the common pleas, the writ would be coram vobis, "before you," since then the record remains before the justices of that court. Tidd's Pr. 1136-7. For further information on this subject, see Kemp v. Crook, 18 Md. 130; Land v. Williams, 12 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 362; Boughton v. Brown, 8 Jones (N. Car.), 393; Teller v. Wetherell, 6 Mich. 46.

A defendant was summoned by a wrong name, and was unable to find the declaration, and therefore did not appear; then he asked for the writ of coram nobis, which was overruled. It was his own fault that he did not plead the misnomer, or take judgment of mol. pros. Brandon v. Digga, 1 Heisk. (Tenn.) 472.

If proceedings are founded upon facts, which the court presumes to exist, but contrary to this presumption the party is insane, or an infant, or a feme covert, or has died before verdict, and the court renders judgment, then the writ of coram nobis will issue. Day v. Hamburgh, 1 Brown (Pa.), 75.

The writ of coram nobis is now superseded by motion, and is falling into disuse. Freem. on Judg. (1886) sect. 93.

The writ of error coram nobis has never been used in this State, and is falling into disuse in England. Its place is supplied by motion in the court where, and during the term when, the error occurred. It is an obsolete writ. McKindley v. Buck, 43 Ill. 488.

Proceedings by writs of error coram nobis have been superseded by the more summary mode of a direct application to the court by motion. Prickett v. Legerwood, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 144; Sloo v. Bank, 1 Scam. (Ill.) 428.

When a judgment is taken against an infant, dead person, feme covert, where the character of such party is unknown to the court, and not made to appear of record, it must be reviewed, in the first place, in the court where the judgment was rendered. The judgment in such a case is supposed to have been rendered upon a misapprehension of facts, and hence the errors are required to be corrected in the same court.

By the common law the ordinary method of rectifying such errors is by writ of error coram nobis; but this writ has become obsolete by the modern practice which accomplishes the same result by motions. Life Association v. Fassett, 102 Ill. 315.

A writ of error coram nobis is not a super-sedeas in itself; but it prevents the party in whose favor the judgment is, from taking out execution except by leave of the court or a judge. Sample v. Turner, 6 M. & W. 152.

The statute 27 Eliz. ch. 8 gave to the Exchequer Chamber substantially general powers in revising the errors of the Court of King's Bench. 2 Tidd's Pr. 1059-60; 2 Sellon's Pr. 388-9. But error coram nobis lies not in the Exchequer Chamber. 2 Sellon's Pr. 400-1; 1 Tom. L. Dict. 653.

In New York, under the common-law practice, the court of errors has no jurisdiction to reverse a judgment of the Supreme Court, for error in fact, unless the question has first been examined and

II. Writ of Error Generally.—Definition.—A writ of error is a writ issuing from a superior court, commanding an inferior court of record to send up the entire record of a contested procedure. The mode of revising the procedure of a court not of record, is by certiorari.<sup>1</sup>

When the inferior court is supposed to have committed an error, the aggrieved party has a right to remove the cause to the higher court, in civil actions, without the consent of the opposite party.<sup>2</sup> He does this by suing out a writ of error from the superior court, which commands the judges of the inferior court to send the record to the superior court, there to be examined. The object of this writ is to correct an error of law committed in the course of the proceedings below, which is not amendable or cured at common law, or by some statute of amendment or jeofails.<sup>3</sup>

A writ of error is in the nature of a suit or action, when it is to restore the party who obtains it to the possession of any thing which is withheld from him; and it is considered a new action, and not the continuation of one already commenced.<sup>4</sup> The record of the court imports absolute verity, and can only be reviewed by decided upon a writ of error coram nobis in that court. Davis v. Packard, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 327.

When an error in fact is committed in legal proceedings, the court in which the error is may correct it by a writ of error coram nobis, or on motion. The writ of error coram nobis has been disused and superseded by the more summary mode of a direct application to the court for the correct exercise of its own powers over its proceedings and those of its officers. Beaubien v. Hamilton, 3 Scam. (Ill.) 213.

When an infant appears in a suit by attorney instead of guardian, the writ of error of coram nobis will lie. Castelline v. Mundy, 4 B. & Adol. 90; Marshall v. Jackson, 4 E. & B. 669, note; Beven v. Chesire, 3 Dowl. 70.

But if the judgment was in the infant's favor, his infancy cannot then be assigned for error by the plaintiff. Bird v. Pegg, 5 Barn. & Ald. 418. It will lie when the plaintiff or defendant is a feme covert at the beginning of the suit. King v. Jones, 2 Lord Ry. 1525; Dick v. Talhausen, 4 H. & N. 695; Evans v. Chester, 2 M. & W. 847.

Facts thus affecting the validity and regularity of the legal proceeding itself, however late discovered and alleged, are errors in fact, and sufficient to reverse the judgment upon writ of error coram nobis because the error in fact is not the error of the judges, and reversing it is not reversing their own judgment. 2 Tidd's Pr. 1191; 1 Manning, 490.

No court can reverse or annul its own final decision or judgment for errors of fact or law, after the term at which they have been rendered, unless for clerical mistake, except upon bills of review in cases of equity, upon writs of error coram nobis in cases at law, or upon motion, which in practice has superseded the writ of error coram nobis. Sibbald v. United States, 12 Pet. (U. S.) 488; Bronson v. Schulten, 104 U. S. 410; Schell v. Dodge, 107 U. S. 630; Phillips v. Negley, 117 U. S. 665; Cannon v. United States, 118 U. S. 355.

A writ of error coram nobis will not lie after affirmance of the judgment in the appellate court. Lambell v. Pettyjohn, 1 Strange, 690; Burligh v. Harris, 2 Strange, 975.

A petition for a writ of error coram nobis was properly dismissed which showed that the judgment was rendered sixteen months after service of process, and that the petitioner, without examination, supposed the process was issued in another suit on the same instrument against a co-obligor. Jackson v. Milsom, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 514.

A petition for a writ of error coram nobis is fatally defective which relies upon errors of law without assigning any error of fact sufficient to justify a reversal of the judgment. Dinsmore v. Boyd, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 689.

1. Sayres v. Commonwealth, 88 Pa. St. 291; Tarleton ex parte, 2 Ala. 35.

2. Drown v. Stimpson, 2 Mass. 441.

3. Colley v. Latimer, 5 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 211; Wall v. Wall, 2 Har. & G. (Md.) 79; Chase v. Davis, 7 Verm. (Vt.) 476; Gregg v. Bethea, 6 Port. (Ala.) 9.

4. 2 Tidd's Pr. 1141; International Bank v. Jenkins, 104 Ill. 143.

direct proceedings upon it. The common law for this purpose gives the writ of error, and the statute gives an appeal.<sup>1</sup>

The writ of error cannot be supported unless the error in law be of a substantial kind, because the statutes of amendments and jeofails make errors of mere form no ground for arresting the judgment; such objections are now insufficient to found a writ of error, though at common law the case was different.<sup>2</sup>

1. When it will lie. — A writ of error will lie after final judgment in bar is entered. It does not lie before final judgment from an interlocutory judgment or decree. There must be a final decision of the cause before either party can have it reviewed in the superior court; and this decision must be such as settles the rights of the parties respecting the subject-matter of the suit, and which concludes them until it is reversed or set aside.<sup>3</sup>

a. What are Final Judgments. — The general rule as to what are final judgments, is that no judgment or decree will be considered final, unless all the issues of law necessary to be determined were settled, and the case completely disposed of so far as the court had jurisdiction or power.<sup>4</sup>

1. Whitaker v. Bramson, 2 Paine, C. C. 209; Moore v. Greene, 19 How. (U. S.) 69; Comstock v. Crawford, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 396.

2. Stephen on Plead. (1882) 145. A writ of error is a suit at law, or in equity. Powell's App. Ct. Pr. 46, 346; Freeman on Judg. sect. 205.

An error in law, and error in fact, may be joined in a writ of error under Massachusetts law, and more than one error in fact may be assigned in a writ of error. Eliot v. McCormick, 141 Mass. 194.

A writ of error is a writ of right, allowable at common law, and will issue by the Supreme Court to the district courts, in the absence of statutory provisions regulating the procedure for prosecuting the writ. Reece v. Kneit, 3 Utah Ter. 436.

A petition in error to review the decision of the court of common pleas, rendered in a case appealed from the board of county commissioners under sec. 896 Rev. Stat., can be maintained. Mannix v. Commissioners, 43 Ohio St. 210.

An omission to give a charge to which a party would have been entitled, is not error unless the same was requested on the trial, and refused. Fry v. Currie, 91 N. Car. 436.

The writ of error lies to bring up proceedings, according to the course of the common law, and it is not appropriate for the review of an order of the circuit court, setting aside the appointment of an administrator. Brinsmade's Appeal, 52 Mich. 537.

A writ of error is in the nature of a new suit, and any person who brings himself within the saving of the statute is entitled to it as of right. Ridgely v. Bennett, 13 Lea (Tenn.), 206; Mowry v. Davenport, 6 Lea (Tenn.), 80.

3. Dunham v. Braiman, 1 Root (Conn.), 551; Drowne v. Stimpson, 2 Mass. 445; McLaren v. Allen, Minor (Ala.), 117.

4. Young v. Grundy, 6 Cranch (U. S.), 51; Rutherford v. Fisher, 4 Dalk. (U. S.) 22; Winn v. Jackson, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 135; Montgomery v. Anderson, 21 How. (U. S.) 386.

The whole of the matter in issue must be finally disposed of as to all parties, in order to have a final judgment from which an appeal or writ of error can be taken. Martin v. Crow, 28 Tex. 614.

No further questions can come up before the court on a final judgment in carrying the decree into effect. Such a decree is final, otherwise it is interlocutory. Humiston v. Stainthorp, 2 Wall. (U. S.) 905; Whiting v. Bank, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 6.

If the decree or order is made for the purpose of carrying a judgment, already entered, into effect, it is not final. Smith v. Trabue, 9 Pet. (U. S.) 4; Callan v. May, 2 Black (U. S.), 541.

This writ seems to lie in all cases where an appeal is not allowed, in order to prevent a failure of justice. Langworthy v. Baker, 23 Ill. 437.

A plaintiff, by voluntarily dismissing his suit, waives all errors the court may have committed, and he cannot assign them for error. No writ of error lies in favor of a party taking a voluntary non-suit. Newman v. Dick, 23 Ill. 278.

A plaintiff, in an action, may prosecute a writ of error to reverse a judgment in his own favor. 2 Tidd's Pr. 1134; Capron v. Van Noorden, 2 Cranch (U. S.), 126.

The writ will lie to the superior court to reverse the decision of the lower court for fining a person for contempt. Stokeley v. Commonwealth, 1 Va. 330; Bickley v. Commonwealth, 1 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 572; Kearney ex parte, 7 Wheat. (U. S.) 88.

Under the common-law procedure, no appeal lies from a conviction of criminal contempt, as every superior court of record is supposed to be the exclusive judge of contempt against its own dignity or authority. Ex parte Crittenden, 62 Cal. 534; New Orleans v. Steamship Co., 20 Wall. (U. S.) 392; Tyler v. Hammersly, 44 Conn. 393; Lockwood v. State, 1 Ind. 161; Watson v. Williams, 36 Miss. 331; State v. Galloway, 5 Cold. (Tenn.) 326; Shattuck v. State, 51 Miss. 50; Phillips v. Welch, 11 Nev. 187; Hays v. Fischer, 102 U. S. 121; Hogan v. Alston, 9 Ala. 627; Ex parte Martin, 5 Yeig. (Tenn.) 456; Re Cooper, 32 Vt. 253; Ex parte Summers, 5 Ired. (N. C.) 149; Cossart v. State, 14 Ark. 538; First Cong. Church v. Muscatine, 2 Iowa, 69; Casey v. State, 25 Tex. 380; State v. Giles, 10 Wis. 101; Kernodle v. Cason, 25 Ind. 362; Code of Cal. sect. 1222; State v. Thurmond, 37 Tex. 340; Easton v. State, 39 Ala. 551; State v. Towle, 42 N. H. 540. But other authorities hold a contrary view. In re Pryor, 18 Kans. 72; Haines v. People, 97 Ill. 161; Baltimore R. R. Co. v. Wheeling, 13 Gratt. (Va.) 40; Stokeley v. Commonwealth, 1 Va. 330; Ex parte Robbins, 69 N. Car. 309; In re Walker, 82 N. Car. 95; Bickley v. Commonwealth, 2 J. J. Marsh. (Ky.) 572; Whitern v. State, 36 Ind. 196, overruling former decisions; Ex parte Wright, 65 Ind. 504; Beck v. State, 72 Ind. 250; Bond v. Bond, 69 N. Car. 97; Hundhausen v. Ins. Co., 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 702.

In remedial proceedings, as for contempt to enforce civil remedies, such as process of execution of order, judgments or decrees, and which are regarded as controversies between private parties, and not as prosecutions of the State, an appeal will lie. People v. Healey, 48 Barb. (N. Y.) 564; Romeyn v. Caplis, 17 Mich. 449; People v. Spaulding, 10 Paige (N. Y.), 284; Bank v. Bank, 18 Wis. 490; Forbes v. Willard, 37 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 193; Haines v. Haines, 35 Mich. 138; Matter of Doves, 81 N. Car. 72; Re Pierce, 44 Wis. 411; Watrous v. Kearney, 79 N. Y. 496; Hundhausen v. Ins. Co., 5 Heisk. (Tenn.) 703.

Under the code of Georgia, a judgment dismissing an attachment is subject to review on writ of error. To maintain his attachment, it was the right of the plaintiff to have judgment dismissing it reviewed by a separate writ of error. Sutherlin v.

Underwriter, 53 Ga. 442; Bruce v. Conyers, 54 Ga. 680.

A decree is final which settles the rights of the parties as to property, and directs a conveyance to be made at a future time. Lewis v. Putton, 3 B. Mon. (Ky.) 453.

A decree is none the less final, because some future orders of the court may become necessary to carry it into effect. Johnson v. Everett, 9 Paige (N. Y.), 636; Dickenson v. Codwise, 11 Ky. (N. Y.), 189; Stovall v. Banks, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 583.

The judgment or decree must be such, that, in case of affirmance, the court below would have nothing to do but execute the judgment or decree. Whiting v. Bank, 13 Pet. (U. S.) 6; Forgay v. Conrad, 6 How. (U. S.) 204; Beebe v. Russell, 19 How. (U. S.) 285; Thompson v. Dean, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 342; St. Clair Co. v. Livingston, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 628; Parcels v. Johnson, 20 Wall. (U. S.) 654; R. R. Co. v. Swasey, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 409; Commissioners v. Lucas, 93 U. S. 113.

A judgment of reversal, with leave for further proceedings in the court below, cannot be brought up on writ of error. Brown v. Bank, 4 How. (U. S.) 466; Tracy v. Holcombe, 24 How. (U. S.) 426; Moore v. Robbins, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 588; McComb v. Knox Co., 91 U. S. 1; Baker v. White, 92 U. S. 176; Davis v. Cranch, 94 U. S. 514; Buck v. Hamilton, 99 Ill. 507.

An order that a cause stand dismissed at plaintiff's costs, there having been no service of process upon the defendant, is a final disposition of the matter to which a writ of error will lie. Cook v. Cook, 18 Fla. 634.

An allowance of temporary alimony by a judge at chambers, is a final order which may be reviewed on error. King v. King, 38 Ohio St. 370.

The legal discretion of the orphan's court in the appointment of guardians of the persons and estates of minors, is not subject to review by a court of error. Gray's Appeal, 96 Pa. St. 243.

Error will lie on the demeanor of the trial judge, if it be such as to prevent a fair trial, or prejudice the case upon the facts before the jury. Wheeler v. Wallace, 53 Mich. 355.

Writs of error are authorized only on review of final judgment or decrees, in actions triable by jury as a matter of right. Crocker v. State, 60 Wis. 553.

An order of the circuit court, setting aside an award made by arbitrators upon a submission in pais of matters as to which there is no action pending, but which provides that the award shall be made the judgment of the court, is such a final judgment that a writ of error will lie from it to the Supreme Court. Tennant v. Divine, 24 W. Va. 387.

Where a judgment below was consented to by a party complaining thereof, his writ of error will be dismissed. Zorn v. Lamar, 71 Ga. 80.

Where a feigned issue is awarded as ancillary to a suit or proceeding in the same court or in another, the judgment in the feigned issue cannot be reviewed by writ of error until after final judgment or decree in the principal cause. Cake v. Cake, 106 Pa. St. 472.

Under the Florida statutes, the writ of error in civil cases, when the defendant in the circuit court applies therefor, issues on demand as a matter of right. Weiskoph v. Dibble, 18 Fla. 22.

A case may be taken to the Supreme Court upon the rendition of a final judgment in the lower court, or upon refusal of a judgment which would have finally disposed of the case had it been rendered as contended for by the excepting party. Mechanics, etc., Bank v. Harrison, 68 Ga. 463.

A general statute of Connecticut provides that writs of error may be brought from the judgments of all city courts to the superior courts. A later act repealed this statute, and provided that writs of error from judgments of city courts should be brought as provided in the charters of the several cities. The city of Norwich's charter contained no provisions for writs of error from the judgment of its city courts. Held, that no writ would lie to the Superior Court. Rogers v. Carroll, 48 Conn. 300.

When the instructions to the jury are clearly erroneous and calculated to mislead, to the injury of a party, to sanction the judgment which follows, it should be clear that such a consequence did not, in fact, ensue from error. Hudson v. Morris, 55 Tex. 595.

The omission to rule expressly upon objections to injurious irregularities committed at a trial, will not protect them from review. The judge's silence may be construed as allowing them against objections. Corning v. Woodin, 46 Mich. 44.

One writ of error cannot be taken to separate judgments in two actions in different rights, but tried together on the same evidence; and if so taken, the writ will be quashed. Cauley v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 95 Pa. St. 398; s. c., 40 Am. Rep. 664.

Remarks made by counsel in summing up to a jury are dehors the record, and their propriety or impropriety cannot therefore be passed upon an error by the Supreme Court. Fulmer v. Commonwealth, 97 Pa. St. 503.

In Colorado, a writ of error must be prosecuted within five years from date of the rendition of the decree in the court below. Heirs-at-law, prosecuting in that character, have no greater rights than the ancestor whom they represent; and when he, if living, would not be entitled to a writ of error, it follows that his personal representatives, as such, are equally without remedy. Clayton v. Cheeley, 5 Colo. 337.

The Supreme Court has no power to review the findings of a jury on a writ of error, since, if there is testimony enough to go to the jury, that body must find the facts for itself. Tyler v. Smith, 46 Mich. 292.

The refusal of the court of common pleas to allow a petition in error in a forcible detainer suit, is not reviewable in the district court on a petition in error. Rothwell v. Winterstein, 42 Ohio St. 249.

A writ of error directed to the circuit court, having been dismissed for want of prosecution, the plaintiff in error cannot sue out a second writ of error. Welsh v. Brown, 42 N. J. L. 323.

When error appears on face of the judgment, it can be reviewed in the Supreme Court without motion for a new trial, or bill of exceptions in the court below. Union County v. Smith, 34 Ark. 684.

The act of April 1, 1874, provides that no judgment shall be reversed unless a writ of error be sued out within two years from entry of the judgment. A judgment was entered Jan. 10, 1876. The writ of error was taken out June 10, 1878. Held, that the writ was not within the statutory period, and should be quashed. Penn. Central Ins. Co. v. Gaus, 91 Pa. St. 103.

Under the Ohio civil code to reverse a judgment, the court must not regard those defects in the pleadings or proceedings which do not affect substantial rights of the adverse party. The refusal of a court, in which a civil action is pending, to sustain a motion to state separately and number several causes of action which may be united in one petition, is not error for which a final judgment will be reversed, unless it appears that by such refusal the adverse party has been deprived of substantial rights. Bear v. Knowles, 36 Ohio St. 43.

Where no objection has been made in the trial court to the form of the judgment, and no motion made there to modify or correct it, its sufficiency will not be considered by the Supreme Court. Teal v. Spangler, 72 Ind. 380.

Error does not lie on the affirmance by the circuit court of a commissioner's order dissolving an attachment. The order only determines the right to the lien, and a writ of error based upon it would not affect the judgment actually given on the merits. Gray v. York, 44 Mich. 415.

The order of a circuit court affirming the order of a court commissioner discharging a prisoner on habeas corpus, is in the nature of a final judgment, and may be reviewed by this court on writ of error. State v. Smith, 65 Wis. 93.

An appeal from the allowance of an administrator's account, or from his final accounting, is removable on writ of error and exceptions. All questions in probate proceedings that are reviewable by the Supreme Court are removable thereto on writ of error, there being no provision for appealing such proceedings to that court, as in chancery. On error the Supreme Court reviews the actions of the court below on questions of law only, but examines its conclusions on questions of fact for purposes of determining such questions of law as arise on them. Mower's Appeal, 48 Mich. 441.

Where a verdict is rendered under act of 1877, Rev. Stat. sect. 7240, finding a prisoner to be sane, error will not lie to reverse such proceeding for alleged errors therein, even after his conviction. Inskeep v. State, 36 Ohio St. 145.

Where a case has been treated by the parties and the lower court, as an equitable action, and as appealable, and the case has been tried by the district court on its merits, without objection, this court will not sua sponte consider the question of error in entertaining the appeal. Kershaw v. Snowden, 36 Ohio St. 181.

Where a party, for the purpose of having an order of the lower court overruling a motion for a new trial reviewed in the Supreme Court attempts, in good faith, within less than a year after the order, to sue out a writ of error, and afterwards, and within less than sixty days after filing petition, procures a service of summons, held that within the meaning of the civil code, and particularly as amended by sect. 2, ch. 126, 1881, which requires that proceedings in error be commenced within one year after judgment is rendered, or final order made, the proceeding in error in the present case was commenced at the time when the original summons in error was issued, and hence commenced within one year after final judgment. Thompson v. Manufactur. Co., 29 Kans. 476.

An alias summons in proceedings in error, issued more than one year from date of the final order sought to be reviewed, is of no effect, being issued after the bar of the statute is complete. Baker v. Sloss, 13 Nebr. 230.

Where the record shows on a writ of error from the appellate court the taking and perfecting of an appeal to the Supreme Court, but fails to show that the appeal is still pending in that court, a motion to dismiss the writ of error because of such appeal, which contains no averment that the appeal is still pending, is properly overruled. Garrick v. Chamberlain, 97 Ill. 620.

A citation in error which fails to show the date of filing the petition in error, or to show a supersedeas has been granted, fails to conform to the requirements of the statute, and will be held defective on a motion to dismiss the writ of error. Thomas v. Thomas, 57 Tex. 516.

The provision in the Code of Civil Procedure as revised in 1878, by which the period within which a proceeding in error may be commenced is reduced from three to two years, does not apply to judgments which had been rendered when the act of 1878 took effect, but by force of act of 1866, the period of three years, prescribed in sect. 523, governs as to those judgments. Lafferty v. Shinn, 38 Ohio St. 46.

When an alias summons was issued and served after the expiration of a year from the rendition of the judgment, held it gave no jurisdiction to the appellate court. Republican Valley R. R. Co. v. Sayer, 13 Nebr. 280.

Where it does not clearly appear to which matters the language of the charge to the jury is applicable, the language will be referred to that matter which would make the charge correct. A general and indefinite exception will not be considered. State v. Gilreath, 16 S. Car. 100.

Error does not lie on the allowance, by a referee, of leading questions; but in extreme cases of abuse, their allowance may warrant an appeal to the discretion of the circuit court to avoid the decision. Campau v. Brown, 48 Mich. 145.

No affirmance on certificate without reference to the merits can be had, unless the citation in error shows the date of the filing of the petition in error, the names of the parties according to such petition, the description of the judgment as therein given, and that the writ of error and supersedeas, if any, have been granted and served. McGuire v. Newhill, 54 Tex. 317.

After a case has been tried on writ of error in the Supreme Court, exceptions being taken, both to the refusal of a new trial and the form of the decree, a dismissal of the case affirms the judgment as pronounced, and a bill of review will not lie for errors apparent on the face of the record. Price v. Lathrop, 66 Ga. 545.

A motion for a new trial is unnecessary in cases brought to the district court on error from the justice of the peace, where no retrial of the issues of fact is to be had. Leach v. Sutphen, 11 Nebr. 527.

Counsel for both parties in the lower court signed the following agreement: "We agree that the within is a correct brief of the oral evidence submitted to the court and jury on the trial of the above

III. Parties.—Writ of error may be brought by the plaintiff in the action, or plaintiff below, or by the defendant in such action, or defendant below. The party complaining of the alleged error is called plaintiff in error; and the opposite party, defendant in error.<sup>1</sup> There may be several plaintiffs or defendants, or only one.<sup>2</sup>

1. Who may bring the Writ.—The party who sues out the writ of error must be a party or privy to the record, and prejudiced by the judgment.<sup>3</sup> The party may be a privy in blood, stated case, and consent that we use the original interrogatories on the hearing of the motion for new trial; also consent that the original indictment and warrant for assault with intent to murder against John H. Pounds, used in evidence on the trial, be used without attaching copies of the same thereto." The judge signed, "Within brief of evidence approved." In the record, and interspersed with the oral evidence, are what appear to be copies of interrogatories and of the indictment and warrant. Held, that such interrogatories and indictment and warrant were not authenticated as part of the evidence, and the writ of error will be dismissed. The tenth rule of the Supreme Court does not contemplate the use of the original papers. Pounds v. Hanson, 64 Ga. 668.

Where there is a rule against the sheriff for money in his hands, and the same is made absolute by an order to pay the money to the movant, another claimant of the fund, who was made a party to the rule, cannot bring the case to this court without making the sheriff a party to the writ of error, or serving him with the bill of exceptions. A receiver is a mere custodian for the court, but the sheriff is responsible to all the world. Bird v. Harris, 63 Ga. 433.

Error cannot be successfully assigned upon a ruling denying a motion to strike out part of a complaint. Bauer v. Lodge, 102 Ind. 262.

In proceedings under assignment for the benefit of creditors in Illinois a writ of error will not lie from the Supreme Court to the county court in a case where an appeal from the county court is pending in the circuit court. Frank v. Moses (Ill. 1886), 8 N. E. Rep. 192.

The decision of a question of fact by a jury is not reviewable in the New-York Court of Appeals. Fleckenstein v. Dry Dock Co., 105 N. Y. 655.

In Illinois the appellate court settles cases on appeal to the amount of a thousand dollars, exclusive of costs. Where the circuit court by its decree disposes of the whole fund in the hands of a trustee, exceeding the amount a thousand dollars, and an appeal or writ of error is taken to the appellate court, questioning a part of the fund, which is less than a thousand dollars, and the decree is affirmed, and the case is taken to the Supreme Court by writ of error or appeal, the Supreme Court will take jurisdiction. The whole amount disposed of by the circuit-court decree will determine the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. Longwith v. Riggs, Chi. L. News, 196, Feb. 18, 1888.

It is error for the court to refuse to rule on material points which have been omitted from its findings, and on exceptions such action will be reviewed on appeal. Wells v. McGloch (Wis. 1888), 35 N. W. Rep. 769.

1. 3 Bouvier's Inst. No. 3315.

2. 3 Bouvier's Inst. No. 3318.

The action being against two persons jointly, a judgment on demurrer dismissing it as to one of the defendants, is final in its nature, and may be brought to the Supreme Court by the plaintiff whilst the case is still pending below as to the other defendant. The other defendant is not a necessary party to the writ of error, and need not be served with the bill of exceptions. McGaughey v. Latham, 63 Ga. 67.

A bill of equity was brought against a partnership of several partners. One was not served except in so far as partnership property was concerned, which could be bound by serving either of the other partners. He need not, therefore, be made a party plaintiff in error, but the case may proceed without him. Epping v. Aiken, 71 Ga. 682.

An assignment of error in the Supreme Court is a pleading tendering an issue of law, must contain the names of the parties to the cause in full, and be signed by the party complaining, or his attorney: if not, the cause, on motion, will be dismissed. Thoma v. State, 86 Ind. 182.

A writ of error will be dismissed unless it appears that all the defendants in error have been cited. The question will not be considered unless all the parties defendant are thus brought before the court. Thompson v. Pine, 55 Tex. 427.

3. City v. Reese, 20 Fla. 437; Townsend v. Davis, 1 Ga. 495; Watson v. Willard, 9 Pa. St. 89.

privity in representation, and privity in estate, when injuriously affected by the judgment.<sup>1</sup> When there are several privies to a judgment, each having a distinct and several interest, each is distinctly entitled to a writ of error, and to maintain it by himself.<sup>2</sup> The writ must be sued out in the names in which the proceedings below were conducted, and not in any other.<sup>3</sup> a. In Case of Infancy. — Until an infant has arrived at maturity, he cannot implead or be impleaded; and when he sues, he must sue by guardian or next friend. A writ of error sued out by him without any such agent is irregular, and will be quashed, unless his guardian or next friend be made a party.<sup>4</sup> But when the infant sues in his own name, and there is a joinder in error, his disability will be considered waived.<sup>5</sup>

b. In Case of Marriage. — Under the common law, if an erroneous judgment was recovered against a single woman, who afterwards marries, the writ of error was brought by herself and husband.<sup>6</sup> If the judgment was against the wife as a feme sole, the writ must be brought by the husband and wife jointly.<sup>7</sup>

c. In Tax Proceedings. — Where a judgment is rendered against several tracts of land for taxes, any person interested in the land may join in a writ of error for its reversal, and the judgment may

1. Porter v. Rummery, 10 Mass. 64.

2. Shirley v. Lunenburg, 11 Mass. 379; Thorp v. Thorp, 40 Ill. 113.

3. Ex parte Dorr, 3 How. (U. S.) 103.

A writ of error cannot be sued out on a judgment founded on a tort, after the death of the tortfeasor. Barret v. Gaston, Breese (Ill.), 255.

A writ of error abates by the death of one of the plaintiffs in error before error assigned. Boas v. Heister, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 20.

When a personal judgment has been rendered erroneously against two, and one dies, the survivor may bring error without joining the executor of the deceased. In such case the writ ought to aver the death of the party in order to account for the variance. Brewer v. Turner, Strange, 233.

The death of plaintiff in error, after service of the note of the receipt of the memorandum of error, shall not cause the proceedings to abate, but they may be continued as regulated by statute. 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, 161, 162, 163.

4. Whitaker v. Patten, 1 Pont. (Ala.) 9.

5. Williamson v. Johnston, 4 T. B. Monroe (Ky.), 253; McCloy v. Norris, 4 Gil. (Ill.) 370.

In a civil case, proceedings against an infant are liable to be reversed and set aside for irregularity where no guardian acts for him; and process must have been first regularly served upon the infant, though in this latter respect the rules of the several States are not uniform. Abdil v. Ab-dil, 26 Ind. 287; Frierson v. Travis, 39 Ala. 150.

Irregularity of procedure is often cured by judgment; and lapse of time and laches on the part of an infant after reaching majority may prevent his setting aside a judgment, as in the case of his voidable bargains. Barnard v. Heydrick, 49 Barb. (N. Y.) 62; McMurray v. McMurray, 60 Barb. (N. Y.) 117; Tarleton v. Cox, 45 Miss. 430.

If an infant reaches his majority pending a suit, he may assert his rights at once, and, if he does not, he cannot then complain of the acts of his guardian. Mitchell v. Berry, 1 Met. (Ky.) 602; Marshall v. Wing, 50 Me. 62; Eustis v. Holmes, 48 Miss. 34. Any person who will give bond required by law may sue out a writ of error for an infant as his next friend. Ridgely v. Bennett, 13 Lea (Tenn.), 206.

6. Haines v. Corliss, 4 Mass. 659.

7. Whitmore v. Delano, 6 N. H. 543, note. Most of the States have increased the legal capacity of the wife, and in many she can sue and be sued as a feme sole, and the local statute must be consulted to know her legal status.

The code of Tennessee, sect. 3182, which authorizes married women and infants to prosecute writs of error within two years after the removal of disability, merely extends the time for suing out the writ; and the writ may be sued out at any time within the extended period, whether the disability exists or has been removed. Ridgely v. Bennett, 13 Lea (Tenn.), 206.

be reversed as to those lands of the parties who join in the writ of error, respecting which the judgment is erroneous, and affirmed as to the rest. The superior court will inquire into the regularity and validity of so much only of the proceedings as relate to the lands of the parties before the court.<sup>1</sup>

2. Against whom brought.—a. Parties to the Suit.—When the party is to be made defendant in error, who has sued or been sued, he must be made the defendant in error without joining any stranger with him.<sup>2</sup>

b. In Case of Death of the Defendant in Error.—The writ of error must include all parties who were parties to the judgment; or, if they are dead, then their executors or administrators. If the subject of the suit shall concern land, and the party in whose favor the judgment or decree is rendered be dead, then the writ must be brought against those that may be interested in the subject-matter.<sup>3</sup>

IV. Supersedeas.—When a writ of error is made to operate as a supersedeas, inadvertently, without assignment of errors on the record, the court, upon its attention being called to the omission, will require them to be assigned at once, and in default thereof will dismiss the case.<sup>4</sup>

V. Scire Facias.—A neglect on the part of the plaintiff in error

1. Olcott v. State, 5 Gilm. (Ill.) 481.
2. Steel v. Bridenback, 7 Watts & Serg. (Pa.) 150.

3. Graham's Pr. 940; Barr v. Stevens, 1 Bibb (Ky.), 292; Porter v. Rummery, 10 Mass. 64; 6 Comyn's Dig. Pleader (3 B. 10), 447; Carr v. Callaghan, 3 Litt. (Ky.) 365.

When the judgment is in favor of several and one dies, and the judgment is personal, the writ must be sued against the survivor alone. If the action is real or mixed, it must be against the heirs also, when the estate is an inheritance, with scire facias, when requisite. Bartholomew v. Belfield, 2 Bulstr. 244; Doe v. Jones, 2 M. & Selw. 472.

The right to bring writs of error in case of death of the party, against whom the judgment was rendered, will be in the personal representatives, without a revival of the judgment, because the personal representatives stand in the shoes of the deceased. Phares v. Saunders, 18 W. Va. 336.

When, on call of a case, the death of one of the parties is suggested, and the case continued, but no order was taken to expedite it, under Rule 26, upon the call of the case on the next term, no parties having been made, it will not again be continued, but the writ of error dismissed. Brewing Co. v. Hare, 73 Ga. 17.

4. Gibbs v. Blackwell, 40 Ill. 51.

At common law a writ of error, though duly allowed in a criminal case, is not a supersedeas so as to discharge from custody. R. V. Wilkes, 4 Burr. 2527.

A probable cause for reversing a judgment is good ground for granting a supersedeas; but it will not be granted in any case, unless the transcript of the record is certified to be complete. A supersedeas issued upon a transcript not certified as provided by rule of court will be quashed. 2 Hill's Pr. 576.

After the court has allowed a supersedeas and bond taken, either during or after the term, jurisdiction as to all matters, especially those of substance, determined by the decree, is transferred to the appellate court. Draper v. Davis, 102 U. S. 371; Hovey v. McDonald, 109 U. S. 157; Roemer v. Simon, 91 U. S. 149; Goddard v. Ordway, 101 U. S. 745; Rubber Co. v. Goodyear, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 156.

A party perfected an appeal and gave a cost bond merely: he afterwards prosecuted a writ of error under a supersedeas writ of error bond, returnable to the same term of the Supreme Court as the appeal. Held, both methods may be used, if not so used for delay. Both appeal and writ of error may be prosecuted by a party acting in good faith, and in accordance to the intent of the statute. It is right and proper to allow a supersedeas writ of error to be prosecuted by a party who has appealed, provided it does not delay the opposite party. Eppstein v. Holmes, 64 Tex. 560.

to have a scire facias issued, or a failure to use reasonable diligence to have the same served in proper time, does not entitle the defendant in error to have the cause dismissed; but he may join in error, and have the cause heard at the current term without giving the required notice, as per rule of court. The validity of a writ of error does not depend upon the scire facias. If it is informal or insufficient, an alias may issue, which, when served, gives the court jurisdiction. Jurisdiction will also be conferred by the appearance of the parties. The plaintiffs in error may always dismiss their suit before a decision on the merits; and the effect of such dismissal is to leave the parties where they were before the appeal was taken, or the writ of error brought.<sup>1</sup>

VI. Record in Error.—At common law, error lies only to matters of record.<sup>2</sup>

The certified transcript of the record below is procured from the clerk, and the alleged errors are thereon specifically assigned or pointed out. The fact of the allowance of the writ is indorsed by the judge or clerk, on the transcript presented. Thereupon the writ is issued, commanding the judge below to certify up the proceedings.<sup>3</sup>

1. 2 Hill's Pr. 649-50.

If the party can be found, the officer serves him with a copy of the writ, and returns scire feci; if not found, the return is nilhil. Generally, two returns of nilhil are equivalent to service. Wolf v. Ponsford, 4 Ohio, 397; Dane's Abr. 462.

The reversal of the original judgment has the same effect on the scire facias. Eldred v. Hazlett, 38 Pa. St. 16.

The scire facias is not a new suit, but the continuation of an old one. Hopkins v. Howard, 12 Tex. 7; Denegre v. Hann, 13 Iowa, 240.

A scire facias ad audiendum errores is "process" within the meaning of the constitution of Florida. The "style" of process the constitution provides shall be "The State of Florida." This is a formal requirement, and if omitted may be amended. Weiskoph v. Dibble, 18 Fla. 22.

Pending certain actions of scire facias to revive a judgment, the court awarded a feigned issue to try the question whether assignment of said judgment to the use of the plaintiff was absolute, or as collateral security for money advanced by him to enable the defendants to compromise the judgment debt with the original plaintiffs. A verdict and judgment for plaintiffs having been entered in the feigned issue, the defendants therein sued out a writ of error to said judgment, pending the said actions of scire facias. Held, that said writ of error was prematurely brought, and was therefore quashed. Cake v. Cake, 106 Pa. St. 472.

Under the Florida statutes, twenty-five days must intervene between the issuing of a writ of error and the first day of the term of the Supreme Court to which it is returnable. Where such time did not intervene between the date the writ was issued and the first day of the term, and the scire facias ad audiendum errores was not served twenty-five days "previous to the first day of the term of the Supreme Court," to which it is returnable, the writ must be dismissed for want of conformity to the statutory requirements. Driggs v. Higgins, 19 Fla. 103.

2. Turner v. Commonwealth, 6 Met. (Mass.) 224; Gaffney v. People, 50 N. Y. 416; People v. Casey, 72 N. Y. 393; Smith v. People, 1 Colo. 121; Allen v. State, 46 Wis. 383.

3. Graves v. Stone, 3 Ohio St. 576; Goode v. Wiggins, 12 Ohio St. 341; Schaeffer v. Marienthal, 17 Ohio St. 183.

The judgment and orders of court and pleadings should be embraced in the record. Safford v. Vail, 22 Ill. 327.

A petition for a change of venue is a mere motion, and, like other motions, does not become a part of the record in a suit in chancery, unless embodied in a bill of exceptions, on certificate properly signed by the presiding judge. This is the same rule as in law. The pleadings in a chancery case, and exhibits, and depositions in writing, are a part of the record, and no certificate of evidence is required to make them such. The testimony of witnesses called to testify on the hearing, and motions made in the case, do not become a part of the record, unless preserved by a bill of exceptions or a certificate of the judge. A petition for a change of venue is not a pleading. Heacock v. Hosmer, 109 Ill. 245.

Any thing produced as a record may be shown to be forged or altered. A record is understood to be conclusive evidence; but whether it is or is not a record, is a matter of evidence, and may be proved like other facts. Brier v. Woodbury, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 362.

If words have been struck out of a record, so as to render it erroneous, witnesses may be examined to show such words were erased improperly; but not to falsify the record by showing that an alteration whereby the record was made correct, was improperly made. Dickson v. Fisher, 4 Burr. 2267; Adams v. Betz, 1 Watts (Pa.), 425.

Simple contract creditors, who are no parties to the suit, have no right to file a bill of review, which only lies by parties and privies. Story's Eq. Pl. sects. 409, 638.

On bill of review, a master in chancery's report cannot be controverted. Lube's Eq. 130.

Where the court below refuses to correct an error, which is assigned for error of law in the superior court, the assignment will fail, unless the original record is brought up. After the affirmance of judgment in the appellate court, errors of fact cannot be corrected in the court below. It is not sufficient to take up, in return to the writ of error, only a bill of exceptions embodying the motions, notice, affidavits, stipulations, and order of court upon the motions, but the record in the original cause should be taken up. Nothing can be assigned for error which contradicts the record. Wetmore v. Plant, 5 Conn. 541; Hill v. West, 4 Yeates (Pa.), 385.

At common law the record of a judgment was as the judgment roll, and included as well the pleadings, process, and the like, as "signing judgment." Stephen on Plead. 24 et seq.; Freeman on Judg. sect. 75.

When a copy of the record of a judgment is required, for the purpose of bringing the case by appeal or writ of error into the superior court, and it is essential to have a complete record of a judgment, the pleadings and process are an indispensable part of it. It must be the whole record, so that the court may determine the legal effect of the whole of it, which may be quite different from that of a part. Eamiston v. Schwartz, 13 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 135; Vance v. Reardon, 2 Nott & M. (S. C.) 209; Dismukes v. Musgrove, 8 Mar. (La. U. S.) 375; Ingham v. Crary, 1 Pa. St. 389.

Errors of law, of any kind, which may be supposed to have crept into a judgment at a previous term, cannot be considered a sufficient justification for revising and annulling it at a subsequent term, in a summary way, on motion. The lower court has no power over its decree, so as to set it aside, on motion, after the expiration of the term in which it was rendered. Assignees v. Dorsey, 2 Wash. C. C. 433; The Avery, 2 Gall. C. C. 386; Jackson v. Ashton, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 480; Wash. Bridge Co. v. Stewart, 3 How. (U. S.) 413; Jenkins v. Eldridge, 1 Wood. & Min. C. C. 61; Catlin v. Robinson, 2 Watts (Pa.), 373; Stephens v. Cowan, 6 Watts (Pa.), 511; 2 Tidd's Pr. 975; 2 Arch. Pr. 243.

The record of a judgment is under the control of the court during the term at which it is rendered. The judge may set it aside and award a new trial, or allow amendments, so as to make the record conform to the facts, and to correct mistakes. Edwards v. Irons, 73 Ill. 583.

Defects in an indictment, as not naming the judges, the jurors, and the county, may be supplied in the court where it was taken by referring to the records there. Commonwealth v. Hines, 101 Mass. 33; State v. Brady, 14 Vt. 353; Dawson v. People, 25 N. Y. 399; Brown v. Commonwealth, 78 Pa. St. 122; Mackey v. State, 3 Ohio St. 362; Reeves v. State, 20 Ala. 33; Cornelius v. State, 7 Eng. (Ark.) 782; State v. Freeman, 21 Mo. 481.

A caption of an indictment may be amended in the appellate court, on proper showing of the facts, or the certiorari may be returned to the court below, and the amendments made there. Vandyke v. Dore, 1 Bailey (S. Car.), 65; State v. Jones, 4 Hals. (N. J.) 357; State v. Norton, 3 Zab. (N. J.) 33.

The sentence imposed by a court of record is within the power of the court during the session in which it was entered, and may be amended at any time within the session. People v. Thompson, 4 Cal. 238; Lee v. State, 32 Ohio St. 113; Commonwealth v. Weymouth, 2 Allen (Mass.), 144; Mason in re, 8 Mich. 70.

The entry of the rule to reconsider at the current term, when the sentence was imposed, will not give the court the right, after execution of the sentence has substantially begun, to revise the sentence at a future term. Commonwealth v. Mayloy, 57 Pa. St. 291.

Questions of law dependent upon foreign statutes cannot be presented to the Supreme Court upon proof in that court as to what the foreign law is, unless the record shows how it was proved below, so that it may be seen whether the lower court erred on the showing made. Belleville Bank v. Ricardi, 56 Mich. 453.

Where the record does not show the ground of the action below, it must be presumed on error to have been legal, if legality was possible. Schwab v. Coats, 48 Mich. 116.

Where interrogatories and answers are omitted from the brief of evidence, the writ of error will be dismissed, and this though such omitted testimony may appear in another part of the record. Turner v. Wilcox, 65 Ga. 299.

Affidavits relating to a motion, but not regarded by the court in deciding it, are not part of the record, and will not be regarded an error from the order made. Noble v. Bourke, 44 Mich. 193.

A paper purporting to be a bill of exceptions, but not signed as required by statute, is no part of the record, notwithstanding the journal entry in the case recites that a bill of exceptions was duly signed, sealed, and allowed and ordered to be made part of the record, and no other bill of exceptions appears in the case. Shilito v. Thacher, 43 Ohio St. 63.

Error must be affirmatively shown by the record; presumptions cannot be made for the purpose of founding thereon. Brown v. Haben, 48 Mich. 229.

Nothing not made part of the record by bill of exceptions, or by order of the court, can be regarded as such by the appellate court. The clerk can add nothing to the record; and his certificate that a deposition or other paper copied by him was the evidence whereon the judgment was founded, is no part of the record. Roanoke L. & I. Co. v. Karm, 80 Va. 589.

Where special pleas are copied by the clerk, and certified as being filed in the papers, and indorsed as filed by the clerk, and no order was entered by the court filing them, they cannot be considered a part of the record. Phares v. Saunders, 18 W. Va. 336.

When the record shows the sustaining of demurrers to different answers, an assignment that the court erred in sustaining the demurrer to the answer is too indefinite. Bolin v. Simmons, 81 Ind. 92.

It is incumbent on the plaintiff in error to show error to this court; and where from the state of the record it is not made to appear, the judgment will be affirmed. Scarborough v. Strozier, 66 Ga. 390.

The record being removed into this court by the first writ, a second writ, directed to the court below, commanding it to certify and return the record, would be a nugatory thing. If the first writ of error was irregular or improvidently dismissed, the remedy of the plaintiff in error is by motion to set aside the order of dismissal. Welsh v. Brown, 42 N. J. L. 323.

Where the transcript of an amended record shows that notice was given to the opposing counsel to correct the record below, and the amendment was made, and the cause still pending in the Supreme Court, leave will be granted in furtherance of justice to file the supplemental record, although the cause had been submitted at the previous term. Stebbins v. Anthony, 5 Colo. 342.

Though the brief of evidence used on the motion for new trial be properly filed and approved, and thus made a part of the record, yet under sect. 4253 of the code there must be some reference thereto in the bill of exceptions, or the writ of error will be dismissed. Myers v. Way, 63 Ga. 145.

A writ of error requires only so much of the record to be certified as is necessary to secure a correction of the error complained of; and no presumption can be indulged in reference to a point about which the portion of the record so certified is silent. Spiesberger v. Thomas, 59 Iowa, 606.

Where the clerk transmits to the Supreme Court the original records of the lower court, instead of sending up a complete transcript or copy of the record, it is such an effort to send up the record that upon it a diminution of the record may be suggested, if made in time, and the plaintiff in error be not in laches. Davis v. Bennett, 72 Ga. 762.

When the names of certain parties to the record appear among the names of the appellants, and also of the appellees, but they do not otherwise appear to be appellees, and they brief and submit the case as appellants, they will be deemed appellants in the Supreme Court. McKee v. Hungate, 99 Ind. 168.

When the record does not show the point of law reversed, and the facts on which it arises, a judgment, non obstante veredicto, cannot be sustained. The point of law reserved, and the facts on which it arises, must be distinctly put on the record. Fayette City v. Huggins, 112 Pa. St. 1.

Leave having been granted to file a supplemental record in the Supreme Court, and it appearing that the supposed supplemental record was of matters subsequent to and independent of the decree in the original record, the supplemental record was stricken out upon the court's motion. Becker v. Henderson, 5 Colo. 346.

Where the exception is to the refusal of the court to grant a new trial, the brief of evidence may be brought up to this court as part of the record; but it must be referred to in the bill of exceptions, or the writ of error will be dismissed. Atlanta, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 66 Ga. 205.

When, in an appeal of a criminal case, the original indictment is attached to the

1. Office of Bill of Exceptions. — Motions entered in a cause, and affidavits and other papers filed in support of the motions, and the decisions of the court thereon, and exceptions taken to decisions, in order to become a part of the record, must be incorporated in a bill of exceptions, otherwise the decisions of the court will not be considered in the appellate court.<sup>1</sup>

At common law, exceptions do not lie in criminal cases.<sup>2</sup> transcript, with a pencil-note of the verdict, with no certification, it cannot be considered as a part of the record. Corrall v. State (Tex., 1887), 6 S. W. Rep. 42.

An appeal will be dismissed when the record fails to show a judgment. Moses v. Katzenberger (Ala.), 3 South. Rep. 302.

Where a demurrer to a bill is sustained, neither a motion for a new trial nor a bill of exceptions is necessary to obtain a review on appeal. Hays v. Mercier (Nebr.), 35 N. W. Rep. 894.

When, on an appeal from a county to a circuit court, no opinion is filed by the circuit court, and no argument made in the court of appeals, the case will be decided on the record of the county court, and error must be apparent, or appear by exception to be considered. When the case is tried by a jury, the bill of exceptions must state the facts proven, and that they are all the facts. But when a motion for a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the evidence, is overruled, the bill of exceptions must state the evidence and not the facts. McArter v. Grigsley (Va. 1887), 4 S. E. Rep. 369.

When a transcript was filed, which was complete as could be then made, but the ground for a new trial was lost and was omitted, but was subsequently proven and offered as a supplemental record after the time for filing had passed, and no extension had been granted, it was held that the filing should be allowed. Bush v. Lisle (Ky.), 6 S. W. Rep. 330.

The presumption is in favor of the legality of a judgment of a lower court, and he who insists that error has intervened in the proceedings must make such error manifest by the record to procure a reversal. This presumption, in civil cases, always prevails, unless the record shows affirmatively to the contrary. Montgomery v. Block (Ill.), Chi. L. News, 198, Jan. 18, 1888.

1. Earl v. People, 73 Ill. 329; Walton v. United States, 9 Wheat. (U. S.) 651; Brown v. Clarke, 4 How. (U. S.) 4.

2. United States v. Gibert, 2 Sumn. C. C. 19; People v. Holbrook, 13 John. (N. Y.) 90; Ex parte Barker, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 143; Vane's Case, 1 Sid. 85.

Nor were exceptions to the proceedings of the sessions allowable in settlement cases. Newton v. Gloucester, 1 Hals. (N. J.) 405.

By statutes, bills of exceptions are allowed in criminal cases. Hooker v. State, 4 Ham. (Ohio) 348; Commonwealth v. Hickerson, 2 Va. 60.

The interlocutory opinions of the court during the trial below are not regularly recorded. If either party, in a civil cause, thinks the court wrong in rulings as to testimony, or a non-suit, or instruction to jury, or allowing or refusing a new trial, he may have a bill of exceptions pointing out the facts and error. Erwin v. Shaffner, 9 Ohio St. 43.

When the record fails to show when a bill of exceptions was signed and sealed, it will be presumed that the exceptions therein noted were taken on the trial, and in the order, and at the time, therein purported. If filed under circumstances not authorized by law, motion should be made in the court below to strike it out of the record; and if this is not done, the appellate court must regard it as rightfully a part of the record. Hyde Park v. Dunham, 85 Ill. 569.

Judgments may be reversed in criminal cases on the ground of improper evidence, when, in a civil case, the same would have been sustained. People v. Williams, 18 Cal. 187; Peek v. State, 2 Humph. (Tenn.) 78.

A bill of exceptions will not lie to an opinion wholly abstract, though it may be erroneous. If the bill is signed in such case, the appellate court will not act upon it. Clarke v. Dutcher, 9 Cow. (N. Y.) 674.

It will not lie to instructions on facts. Brooke v. Young, 3 Rand. (Va.) 106; Gibert v. Woodbury, 22 Me. 246.

If a judge refuses to permit a witness to be re-examined as to what he had testified, after a cause has been submitted to the jury, no exception will lie, as this is a matter in the discretion of the court. Clapp v. Balch, 3 Greenl. (Me.) 219.

Exceptions can be taken on both sides of the case. Liggett v. Bank, 7 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 219; Stewart v. Bank, 11 S. & R. (Pa.) 267; Poole v. Fleeger, 11 Pet. (U. S.) 185.

The judge who tried the cause must sign the bill. Law v. Johnson, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 746.

The signing of the bill by the judge is conclusive on the parties. Bingham v. Cabbot, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 19.

The bill generally must be signed at the term of the trial. Agnew v. Campbell, 3 Harr. (N. J.) 291; Pomroy v. Selmes, 8 Miss. 727; Sikes v. Ransom, 6 John. (N. Y.) 279.

But this is not the uniform practice. Nesbit v. Dallan, 7 Gill & J. (Md.) 494.

The bill must not be so framed as to refer the credit of the witnesses to the appellate court. Carrington v. Bennett, 1 Leigh (Va.), 340; Ewing v. Ewing, 2 Leigh (Va.), 340.

The error complained of must be material. — Watson v. Brown, 14 Ohio, 473, — and set forth distinctly. Hare v. Harrington, Wright (Ohio), 290.

The bill of exceptions is evidence between the parties as to the facts therein stated, and they cannot be controverted. Bingham v. Cabbot, 3 Dall. (U. S.) 19; Beach v. Packard, 10 Verm. (Vt.) 96.

The party alleging error must establish it by the record; and if he claims that there is a want of evidence to sustain an instruction to the jury, he must show it, if the bill of exceptions does not purport to give the whole of the evidence, and especially if the trial judge, in charging the jury, stated, without objection, that there was such evidence. Kline v. Kline, 49 Mich. 419.

A bill of exceptions set out the defendants in error as A., B., C., and others. Held, the writ of error must be dismissed. The words "and others" will not suffice to set out the defendants in error. The bill of exceptions may be amended by the record so as to set out the other defendants below, but it must be done before service is acknowledged. Cameron v. Sheppard, 71 Ga. 781.

When no exceptions are taken in the court below to the matters assigned for error, the Supreme Court will not review the judgment. Yard v. Pancoast, 108 Pa. St. 384.

Where some of the defendants to a bill in equity except to the overruling of a demurrer to the bill, they need not serve their co-defendants with the bill of exceptions. Mechanics' Bank v. Harrison, 68 Ga. 463.

A son by his guardian filed a bill to have the will of his father construed; that the administrator be instructed as to the management of the estate until the final hearing. Held, an order requiring the payment of a certain sum for the son's support and education was not a final judgment; and a bill of exceptions predicated thereon will not lie. Ross v. Byrd, 65 Ga. 41.

The question as to which party shall make the closing argument to the jury is one of practice, and is not the subject of a bill of exceptions or of a writ of error. Eliot v. McCormick, 141 Mass. 194.

Exceptions to a decree in equity bring before the Supreme Court the record proper to the cause; that is, the pleadings in the case, and the verdict of the jury in answer to questions propounded by the court, when the case is so submitted to the jury; and the writ of error will not be dismissed because the bill of exceptions does not contain or exhibit the testimony in the case. Churchill v. Bee, 66 Ga. 621.

In a petition for specific performance of a contract, it was averred "that the plaintiff tendered to the defendant a conveyance of said land, and demanded payment of the purchase-money;" and "that a deed for said lands, above mentioned and described, from the plaintiff to the defendant, is herewith filed, and tendered him." The answer avers that the plaintiff did not, within a reasonable time, tender to the defendant a conveyance of the land, or seek to enforce the contract; "and not until April, 1876, when said property had largely decreased in value." The averments in the petition, of tender of conveyance, and of filing the deed so tendered with the petition, are not denied by the answer. On trial the plaintiff gave the deed in evidence, and incorporated it — with no objections from the defendant — in his bill of exceptions taken at the trial. Held, such deed, and its sufficiency, may be considered by this court in reviewing the judgment of the trial court. City v. Shawhan, 43 Ohio St. 178, following Woodward v. Sloan, 27 Ohio St. 592; Lovell v. Wentworth, 39 Ohio St. 614.

When an acknowledgment of the service on a bill of exceptions was without date, and signed by two attorneys, who neither appeared in such acknowledgment nor elsewhere on the face of the record to represent the defendant, the writ of error will be dismissed. Weatherly v. Mimms, 63 Ga. 161.

On proceedings in error, only those questions will be considered which were raised and decided in the trial court. Byington v. Comm'rs (Kans.), 16 Pac. Rep. 105.

Where, on an appeal, the clerk certifies incorrectly that the transcript contains all the evidence in the furtherance of justice, the cause will be remanded. Lodge v. Cavanac (La.), 3 South Rep. 285.

When evidence is excluded, the bill of exceptions must show what the evidence was expected to prove. Stanley v. Smith (Oreg. 1887), 16 Pac. Rep. 174.

Where defendant secures time to file a motion for a new trial, stating he does not intend to proceed under his exceptions, and then gets further time ex parte, and, after his motion is overruled, petitions, at a sub-

2. Abatement, Diminution, and Revival. — On the suggestion of the death of a plaintiff in error, or appellant, and a revival in the name of his representatives, the requisite notice must be given before a rule for joinder in error will be allowed. If the defendant is a non-resident, there must be a publication.<sup>1</sup> A diminution of the record must be suggested on or before the calling of a case on the docket. After the case has been called, and a motion to dismiss made and argued, it is too late to suggest diminution.<sup>2</sup>

VII. Assignment of Errors. — When the record has been certified, the plaintiff in error should assign the error of which he complains. This must be done within the time prescribed by the rules of the appellate court, or the case can be dismissed. If no assignment of error is made, and no appearance by either party, the case will be stricken from the docket.<sup>3</sup>

The defendant in error has the privilege of assigning cross-errors, but it is not imperative that he shall do so: he can prosecute a cross-appeal or writ of error, if he does not assign cross-errors. If he does assign cross-errors, he cannot afterwards prosecute a writ of error upon the same record; but when he does not do this, he can retain his common-law right to sue out a writ of error upon the same record.<sup>4</sup> sequent term, eight months after the trial, for a signature of his bill of exceptions, and for a writ of error, the writ should be refused. Marine Co. v. Herreshoff Co. (R. I. 1887), 32 Fed. Rep. 822.

A bill of exceptions filed more than ten days after the adjournment of the court will not be considered on appeal under Texas laws. Stewart v. State (Tex. 1887), 6 S. W. Rep. 317.

1. 2 Hill's Pr. 654.

2. Shealy v. Toole, 66 Ga. 573.

A suggestion of diminution of the record must describe or set out the missing record to such an extent that the counsel for the opposing party may agree thereto, and demand that the case proceed. A mere statement that there was a motion for a new trial and a brief of evidence, which the clerk had failed to send up, was not sufficient. Brown v. Lathrop, 64 Ga. 430.

Where a suggestion of diminution of the record, and a motion to dismiss the case, are made at the same time, the former has precedence. Davis v. Bennett, 72 Ga. 762; Haines v. Clary, 66 Ga. 519.

If no steps are taken to revive a suit at or before the second term after the suggestion of the death of the plaintiff, the court ought to make an order discontinuing the suit, but during that term the court may set aside such order; but after the adjournment of the court, that order can never be set aside. Gainer v. Gainer (W. Va.), 4 S. E. Rep. 424.

3. Smith v. Court, 4 Ga. 156.

4. Wickliffe v. Buchman, 12 B. Mon. (Ky.) 424.

The payment or satisfaction of a judgment against a party can never be allowed as a bar to a writ of error. An erroneous judgment against a party is an injury, per se, from which the law will intend he is or will be damaged by its non-reversal. Barthelemy v. People, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 248; Gordon v. Gibbs, 3 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 473; Armes v. Chappel, 28 Ind. 469.

Nothing of which the party below could have taken advantage of, in the court below, can be assigned for error. Wetmore v. Plant, 5 Conn. 541.

A confession made under inducements, which render it incompetent as evidence, can be successfully assigned as error. People v. Alibez, 41 Cal. 452; People v. Barric, 49 Cal. 342; Porter v. State, 58 Ala. 66; Ward v. State, 50 Ala. 120.

Counsel has the right to have good instructions given as asked without modification: if denied this, it is error. Ivey v. Phifer, 11 Ala. 535; People v. Taylor, 36 Cal. 255; Cotton v. State, 31 Miss. 504; Exchange Bank v. Cooper, 40 Mo. 169.

When a case is brought to the Supreme Court from the appellate court, the plaintiff in error is required to assign errors upon the record from the appellate court; and such assignment must be made upon the record itself, or attached to it. When the attention of the court is called to the omission to assign errors on the record, before the cause is submitted, it may require such assignment to be made instantan, and, on failure to do so, dismiss the appeal or writ of error. But after submission, it is too late to make such rule; and there being no proper assignment, the suit will be dismissed. Bennesson v. Savage, 119 Ill. 135.

None except parties to the record in the appellate court have a right to be heard. If interests intervene in the cause, they should have been adjudicated in the court of original jurisdiction. The court has power to order any proper amendment of its judgment rendered, as a court when in session. And when a statute gives power to the court to do certain things in vacation, it has no power to make orders independent of the statute conferring the power. The statute applies only to those judgments erroneously "entered up" by the clerk, which can be corrected by the court in vacation. To make an order independent of such statute in vacation is erroneous. Trustees v. Bailey, 10 Fla. 238; Real Estate Bank v. Rawdon, 5 Ark. 558; Rawdon v. Rapley, 14 Ark. 205; Emerson v. Tomlinson, 4 Greene (Iowa), 398; Hungerford v. Cushing, 8 Wis. 320; State v. Bank, 20 Wis. 640; Scheer v. Keown, 34 Wis. 349; Sagory v. Bayless, 13 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 153; Hill v. St. Louis, 20 Mo. 586; Inhabitants of Limerick, 18 Me. 186; Conn v. Doyle, 2 Bibb (Ky.), 248.

The plaintiff in error can assign as error special defects in the record which make the judgment erroneous. But he cannot assign any thing that will controvert the record, or that is in his own favor, or that which was not excepted to in due time. Cook v. Conway, 3 Dana (Ky.), 454; Shirley v. Lunenburg, 11 Mass. 379; Brown v. Caldwell, 10 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 114; Clemson v. Bank, 1 Scam. (Ill.) 45.

An assignment of error is sufficient, where the evidence objected to was in its nature inadmissible, and where it was apparent that the ground of the objections could not have been mistaken. Tozer v. R. R. Co., 105 N. Y. 617.

When the instructions are not brought into the record by a bill of exceptions, it must affirmatively appear that they were filed. Fort Wayne, etc., R. Co. v. Beyerle, 110 Ind. 100.

Where all the appellants join in the same assignment of errors, it is necessary that each specification of error in such joint assignment should be founded upon a ruling against all the applicants, and of which all of them had the right to complain, or it will not be good as to any of them. Orton v. Tilden, 110 Ind. 131.

An assignment of errors is in the nature of a declaration, and at common law was either of errors in fact, coram nobis, or errors at law. At common law, an error of fact and an error of law could not be joined in one assignment. If they were so joined, it could be taken advantage of by demurrer. 2 Tidd's Pr. 1168; Freeman v. Denman, 2 Hals. (N. J.) 190; Moody v. Vreeland, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 55; Clarke v. Bell, 2 Litt. (Ky.) 162; Fitch v. Lothrop, 2 Root (Conn.), 524.

Where, in a superior court in general term, errors are jointly assigned, the Supreme Court, on appeal, will not consider alleged errors against the parties severally. Hadley v. Milligan, 100 Ind. 49.

A discrepancy between the amount sworn to in the affidavit, and the amount of plaintiff's claim named in the order of attachment which is favorable to the defendant, cannot be assigned for error by him. Tessier v. Crowley, 16 Nebr. 369.

The sufficiency of a complaint may be questioned for the first time in the Supreme Court; but an assignment of error that "the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action," only calls in question the sufficiency of the complaint as an entirety, and, if one paragraph be sufficient, the error is not well assigned. Buchanan v. Lee, 69 Ind. 117.

Error in fact cannot be assigned in a writ of error where the matter of fact might be put in issue, and tried in the original action. Raymond v. Butterworth, 139 Mass. 471.

An assignment of error, to be good, must be such, if true, as to require the reversal of the judgment; but if any paragraph of a complaint is good, the sufficiency of other paragraphs cannot be questioned, either by a motion in arrest, or by an assignment of error, that it does not state facts sufficient. Trammel v. Chipman, 74 Ind. 474.

At the beginning of a trial, the judge informed a party how he should rule as to the measure of damages; the party made no objections, and offered no suggestions in his request for instructions; held, he could not properly assign error on a charge embodying the same views. Cook v. Perry, 43 Mich. 623.

An assignment of error, that "the court erred in overruling appellant's several demurrers to the complaint," is sufficient. Stevens v. Tucker, 73 Ind. 73.

A defendant in error cannot assign errors against his co-defendants, unless he has himself sued out a writ of error, and given the statutory bond. Patterson v. Rogers, 53 Tex. 484.

To entitle a defendant in error to a review in the Supreme Court of errors in the admission of evidence against his objections, he should have moved for a new trial on that ground, and, if still unsuccessful, have prosecuted a writ of error. Johnson v. Ghost, 11 Nebr. 414.

An assignment of errors, "that in the record and proceedings, as also in the condition of the said judgment, manifest errors have happened, to the damage of the State, to wit, in overruling the demurrer of the State to the defendant's plea to the indictment," is not sufficient under Rule 1 of the court of appeals. State v. Scarborough, 55 Md. 345.

The rules of this court require plaintiffs in error and appellants to assign errors at the time of filing the transcript of the record. Haas v. Commissioners, 5 Colo. 125.

A statement, "The court erred in rendering the judgment in said cause," is too general to present any question for consideration. Hatton v. Jones, 78 Ind. 466.

An assignment was made in these words: "To this decision and judgment of the court, the plaintiff, by his attorney, then and there duly excepted and assign the decision and judgment of non-suit as error." Held sufficient. Brown v. Warren, 16 Nev. 228.

Submission to the jury of a needless issue, and proof of an admitted fact, which are not seen to be prejudicial to the party excepting, are not assignable for error. Perry v. Jackson, 88 N. Car. 103.

When an assignment of error merely states the names of witnesses, whose testimony was received or rejected without specifying the particular evidence as required by the rules of this court, it will be disregarded by the Supreme Court. Royse v. May, 93 Pa. St. 454.

When, after a submission of a case, it is withdrawn from the jury, and decided by the court, the charge which had been given cannot be regarded as showing the legal grounds on which the case was decided. Barnard v. Tarleton, 57 Tex. 402.

An assignment of error in these words, "The court erred in overruling the defendant's exceptions to the report of the referee, and entering judgment against the defendant," is not sufficiently specific under code, sect. 3207. Hoefer v. Burlington, 59 Iowa, 281.

An assignment of errors having been filed in the prosecution of an appeal, afterwards abandoned, and being incorporated in the transcript brought up by writ of error, will answer the requirements of the statute. Thomas v. Thomas, 57 Tex. 516.

When a motion is based upon a single ground, and an assignment of error is, that the motion is erroneously sustained, the assignment is sufficiently specific. Nichols v. Wood, 66 Iowa, 225.

The record showing, on defendant's appeal, that the plaintiff demurred to a special plea, assigning nine grounds, and that the court sustained the tenth ground, an assignment of error, that the primary court erred in sustaining the demurrer, cannot be considered, the court being unable to know what is covered by the assignment. Smith v. Freeman, 75 Ala. 285.

Assignment of errors must be specific. "The court erred in allowing the evidence objected to by plaintiff to be introduced," and "the court erred in finding for defendant," are too general. Garrett v. Wells, 63 Iowa, 256.

Where two or more appellants assign error jointly, any error assigned which is good only as to one of the appellants will not be available. Lake v. Lake, 99 Ind. 339.

There must be some distinct assignment of error in a bill of exceptions before it can be considered by the Supreme Court. If the language be so obscure or confused that no distinct assignment of error appears, the writ will be dismissed. Clark v. State, 68 Ga. 784.

An assignment of error, averring that "the court below erred in the final decree rendered" on a stated day, although very general in terms, will be accepted when the decree of the chancery court is assailed as erroneous in the whole. Robinson v. Murphy, 69 Ala. 543. This case is distinguished from Alexander v. Rea, 50 Ala. 452.

A joint assignment of error, in the Supreme Court, by two or more appellants, cannot be sustained, unless it is well assigned by all. Hinkle v. Shelley, 100 Ind. 88.

Where a motion is based upon grounds, it is insufficient to assign as error simply that the court overruled the motion. Foley v. Kirkland, 66 Iowa, 227.

Assignments of error for the refusal of request to charge, cannot be considered where the record does not give the request. An assignment in error is not in compliance with the Supreme Court, Rule 12, if the error relied on is not singled out by the assignment, or by the exception on which it rests. Baylis v. Stout, 49 Mich. 215.

A mere clerical mistake in an assignment of error, such as the use of one word for another, will not preclude the Supreme Court from considering and deciding the precise question which was manifestly intended to be presented thereby. Landon v. White, 101 Ind. 249.

A joint assignment of errors must be well taken by all of the appellants who join in the assignment, or else it is not well taken by any, and cannot be sustained. McKee v. Hungate, 99 Ind. 168.

The objection, that a complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, is not good when raised for the first time by an assignment of error. Boyd v. Anderson, 102 Ind. 217.

The refusal of the circuit court to allow a peremptory mandamus, after hearing up-

VIII. Pleas in Error.—1. Joinder in Error.—To an assignment of errors the defendant in error may plead the common plea, or joinder as it is sometimes called, which is in nullo est erratum; that is, there is no error in the record or proceedings. This is in the nature of a demurrer, and at once refers the matter of law arising thereon to the judgment of the court. By joining in error, the defendant, or appellee, admits the record to be perfect. After joining thus, neither party can allege diminution, or pray a certiorari, without leave to withdraw the joinder for that purpose.<sup>1</sup> The common plea is in nullo est erratum, and generally confesses all the facts pleaded; and when it was assigned for error that the defendant below, an infant, appeared by attorney, this plea was considered as confessing this fact.<sup>2</sup> A defendant in error may plead specially matters in confession and avoidance, as a release of errors, or the statute of limitation and the like, to which the plaintiff in error may reply or demur, and proceed to trial on argument. This special plea waives the right to join in error. By pleading a release of error, and failing to sustain it, prevents his joining in error afterwards. If the special plea is sustained by proof, the judgment of the court below will be affirmed.<sup>3</sup>

2. Release of Errors.—A plea of release of errors should aver that it was by deed, by parol, or by acts in pais. It must state the on issue joined, is a final judgment reviewable on error. State v. Ottinger, 43 Ohio St. 457.

A party cannot assign, for error, a ruling made at his own instance, or a ruling made at opponent's instance, which is the same as one made at his own instance. Calumet v. Martin, 115 Ill. 358.

The question of a defect of parties cannot be presented for the first time in the assignment of errors, but must be presented by demurrer in the trial court. Eichelberger v. Nat. Bank, 103 Ind. 401.

Errors of law and errors of fact, or several errors in fact, may be assigned together in one assignment of errors under the practice in Massachusetts. Eliot v. McCormick, 141 Mass. 194.

A ruling upon a matter affecting the evidence adduced at a trial, being ground for a new trial, cannot be assigned in the Supreme Court as an independent error. Bank v. Dunn, 106 Ind. 110.

One who claims an error to have been without prejudice, must show it to be so, the presumption being to the contrary. McCormick v. Jacobson (Iowa, 1887), 35 N. W. Rep. 627.

1. 2 Tidd's Pr. 1174.

2. Moore v. McEwen, 5 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 373; Goodwin v. Sanders, 9 Yerg. (Tenn.) 91; Harvey v. Rickett, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 87.

3. Puterbaugh's Ch. Pl. & Pr. (1880) 674.

In a trial of a case the defendant pleaded specially a former recovery, and the plaintiff, in his replication, prayed that the same might "be inquired of by record." The court entered judgment for the defendant, but there was no trial on the general issue, which was also pleaded. On reviewing this case on writ of error, the Supreme Court, presuming that the issues of fact had been disposed of, reversed the judgment, and entered judgment for the plaintiff without a venire or procedendo. The court below then granted leave to the plaintiff to issue execution. Held, that this was error; that the effect of the judgment of the Supreme Court on the special plea must be held as only an adjudication; that the former action is no bar to the present action. Schriver v. Eckenrode, 94 Pa. St. 456.

A writ of error to bring up a judgment against joint parties should be taken out in the name of all; and if any do not wish to prosecute it, a severance may be had under Rule 35. But a writ taken out in the name of only one is amendable, if it identifies the judgment; and if the party who was not joined afterwards files his election not to proceed, the writ will not be dismissed for non-joinder, but the other may be allowed to proceed separately. Spencer v. Fish, 43 Mich. 226.

A joint motion, or a joint assignment of errors, must be good as to all who unite in it. Carr v. Boone, 108 Ind. 241.

facts relied upon as a release of errors.<sup>1</sup> When a party recovering a judgment or decree accepts the benefits thereof voluntarily, knowing the facts, he is estopped afterwards to reverse the decree or judgment on error. The acceptance operates, and may be pleaded, as a release of errors. A release of error by one partner will bind his copartner.<sup>2</sup>

IX. Dismissal.—After the writ of error has been sued out from the superior court, and the record and bill of exceptions brought up, then the defendant in error, before joinder, may have the writ dismissed for irregularities and defects, as where a writ of error returnable to a day, to which such writs are not returnable by law, will be dismissed, provided it cannot be amended by inserting a day to which it should have been returnable, such day being passed, and a service to it being impossible. In such case where there is no voluntary appearance, the writ must be dismissed.<sup>3</sup> But a petition in error may sometimes be amended by leave of court, where the amendment will be in furtherance of justice upon such terms as to costs as may be proper.<sup>4</sup>

1. Puterbaugh's Ch. Pl. & Pr. 674.

2. 2 Hill's Pr. 666.

If matters are relied on in the appellate court as a release of errors, they must be pleaded, or they will not be regarded. Trustees v. Hihler, 85 Ill. 409.

An assignment of errors not argued will be regarded as waived. A party not appealing can urge no objection in the Supreme Court to the decree of the lower court. Cassady v. Spofford, 57 Iowa, 237.

3. Driggs v. Higgins, 19 Fla. 103.

4. Spencer v. Thistle, 13 Nebr. 201.

Where, on making a motion for a new trial, the brief of evidence was not perfected, but was agreed to between the counsel that certain original interrogatories should be used on the hearing, and sent up to the Supreme Court as a part of the evidence in the case, and the court approved the brief, with an order that the clerk copy the interrogatories as a part of the evidence, and where what purports to be a copy of such interrogatories appears in the record, disconnected from the approved brief, and without further authentication by the presiding judge, the writ of error will be dismissed. Erie City Iron Works v. Angier, 66 Ga. 634.

Where all the evidence in a case, submitted to the court without a jury, is not printed, the Supreme Court will not decide whether or not there was error in the findings of fact or in those conclusions which were or might be based upon facts; but the statements of facts made by the court below will be taken as true. Hyndman v. Hogsett, 111 Pa. St. 643.

Where the judge does not approve the brief of evidence, and no reference thereto in the bill of exceptions, the writ of error must be dismissed, no error being assigned which can be determined without such evidence. Smith v. Bryan, 64 Ga. 366.

A citation in error which undertakes to describe the judgment by mentioning nine hundred acres of land as the subject of it, and which refers to a copy of petition accompanying it for specific description, is not sufficient. McGuire v. Newbill, 54 Tex. 317.

Where it appears from the record in a claim case, that the plaintiff in fi. fa. was dead before the levy, and no parties had been made, the writ of error will be dismissed. Rogers v. Smith, 63 Ga. 172.

The wife and husband sued jointly. The husband died, and the suit was discontinued as to him, and recovery had against the wife. The wife sued out a writ of error entitling the case as if her husband was still a party. Held, an irregularity which might be disregarded. Campau v. Brown, 48 Mich. 145.

Where neither the judge who presided at the trial, nor the one who passed on the motion for a new trial, revised and approved the brief of evidence, and no legal reason is given for such failure, the Supreme Court cannot hear the case, except as to such assignment of errors as do not depend upon the evidence for their decision. Harrison v. Safe Co., 64 Ga. 558.

A motion to dismiss a writ of error will not be sustained on the ground that the motion for a new trial was not made within the time prescribed by statute; nor will it for the reason that the bill of exceptions was not settled within the statutory time. Hollenbeck v. Tarkington, 14 Nebr.

430.

Where the abstract fails to show that it contains all of the evidence, the Supreme Court cannot enter upon an examination of the merits of the case. Cassady v. Spoford, 57 Iowa, 237.

Where plaintiff failed to assign error during vacation under an order of court, and defendant filed a motion to dismiss for non-compliance with the order, no delay in the submission of the cause having occurred, the motion to dismiss was denied. Home v. Duff, 5 Colo. 344.

Where the plaintiff in error has done acts which in law will deprive him of the benefits of a writ of error, and the appellate court being able to act upon it, his writ of error will be dismissed. But if the motion is based upon alleged forfeiture of defendant's title after judgment in an ejectment case, the motion will be overruled. Bradley v. Ewart, 18 W. Va. 508.

The title to land having been obtained by the plaintiff in error through a conveyance from the defendant, in whom it was found to be by the judgment sought to be reversed, to the end that the litigation may cease, and each party left secure in his rights, it is ordered that the petition in error be dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff in error. Panko v. Irwin, 14 Nebr. 419.

In order to get a decision on a motion to dismiss, made before printing, the motion papers must present the case in a way which will enable the court to act understandingly, without reference to the transcript on file. Waterville v. Van Slyke, 115 U. S. 290.

On a motion for a rehearing in a case, the attention of the court for the first time being called to the fact that no final judgment is found in the record, such point not having been made in the briefs upon which the cause was submitted, the writ of error must be dismissed. Savage v. State, 19 Fla. 561.

Where a petition of error is filed within the period of limitation, and both parties prepare for a final hearing, the defendant in error is estopped after submitting the case to question the jurisdiction of the court, upon the ground that no summons in error was issued or served. King v. Penn, 43 Ohio St. 57.

Under a rule of the appellate court, the plaintiff in error is required to file abstracts and briefs on or before the second day of the term unless the time is extended. Failing to comply with this rule, the judgment below will be affirmed. On a writ of error to the circuit court, where no return to the writ had been returned by the clerk by sending up the record at the second term of the appellate court, though service had been made on the defendant in error before the first term, an order of continuance at the second term of the appellate court was set aside, and the decree below affirmed, without any rule having first been taken to bring up the record. Held, no error in affirming the decree complained of. Challenger v. Mulligan, 110 Ill. 666.

In Georgia, in an injunction, the bill of exceptions must be signed by the presiding judge within twenty days after the decision complained of, or the writ of error will be dismissed. Moring v. Ross, 63 Ga. 308.

Deficiencies in the record cannot be supplied in the Supreme Court by ex parte affidavits. Where an amendment is desired to a sheriff's return, application must be made in the court below. Barnollar v. Patton, 5 Colo. 29. The Supreme Court cannot, in a case at law, proceed to ascertain and assess the damages involved, no matter how well established may be their measure. Wiley v. Lovely, 46 Mich. 83.

A justice gave judgment for the plaintiff. The defendant takes an appeal to the district court on error, May 31, 1880; transcript filed, Nov. 12, 1880. May 3, 1881, motion by plaintiff, or defendant in error, to strike transcript from the files for causes stated at length in the opinion. Motion denied. Held, no error. Campbell v. Sutton, 12 Nebr. 522.

When exception is taken to the granting, or refusal to grant, an injunction, the time prescribed in sect. 3213 of the code for tendering, serving, and forwarding the bill of exceptions, is imperative; and if such document be not transmitted to this court by the clerk, together with a transcript of the record, within fifteen days from the date of the service, the writ of error will be dismissed. Smith v. Wheatley, 65 Ga. 299.

A plaintiff in error may dismiss his writ. Becker v. Henderson, 5 Colo. 346.

There being nothing to indicate when the presiding judge signed, nor that the service was in proper form thereafter, the writ of error must be dismissed. Jones v. Daniel, 66 Ga. 246. So also when the certificate of the presiding judge to the bill of exceptions shows on its face that the recitals therein are not true, the writ of error will be dismissed. McBride v. Beckwith, 67 Ga. 764. So also where the date of the clerk's certificate to the bill of exceptions is prior to the date of the judge's signature, it will be dismissed. Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 66 Ga. 205.

If a judgment be rendered against a party, no creditor of the party, whether he has a lien on his land or not, has a right to obtain a writ of error in the name of the defendant; and, if a writ of error is obtained in the name of such defendant, he may at any time dismiss such writ of error with assent of the defendant in error, and no such creditor of the plaintiff in error has a right to object. No court on the appli-

X. Certiorari.—When a plaintiff in error has obtained a writ of certiorari, on suggestion of the diminution of the record, he cannot require the defendant to join in error until the return of the writ.<sup>1</sup> A certiorari may be returned to the court below, to have an amendment made.<sup>2</sup> A writ of certiorari may accompany a writ of error, and is issued for the purpose of compelling the production of the whole record, when a diminution has been suggested and shown.<sup>3</sup> plication of such creditor, and on his showing that he would be benefited by the reversal of such judgment, can properly enjoin the plaintiff in error from dismissing such writ of error. The fact that the plaintiff in error is a corporation, and is insolvent, and that on its application the court had directed costs of such writ of error to be paid by its receiver, out of funds in his hands arising from the renting of the land of such corporation, will not prevent the appellate court, before whom such writ of error is pending, from disregarding such injunction, and dismissing the writ of error, if the plaintiff in error and the defendant in error have agreed that it should be dismissed, and the court is asked so to do. Colman v. West Virginia Oil & O. L. Co., 25 W. Va. 148.

The United States Supreme Court will review, on writ of error, the judgment of the Supreme Court of a State, in a suit between citizens of that State for the foreclosure of a mortgage, in which the only controversy related to the effect to be given a sale of property under an oath of the bankruptcy court, directing the mortgaged property of the bankrupt to be sold free of incumbrances. Factor's, etc., Ins. Co. v. Murphy, 111 U. S. 738.

The court will not review, upon appeal, a judgment rendered by the trial court, on the sole ground that the damages awarded are excessive, if it appears that the question is one purely of fact. City v. Weston (Ill. 1888), 14 N. E. Rep. 665.

1. Schirmer v. People, 40 Ill. 66.

2. State v. Williams, 2 McCord (S. Car.), 301; State v. Jones, 4 Hals. (N. J.) 357.

3. 3 Bouvier's Inst. No. 3359.

If there is any portion of the record, in the court below, which has been omitted from the transcript of the record, it can only be supplied upon suggestion of a diminution of the record, supported by affidavit of that fact, when the court will award a writ of certiorari to the court from which the cause is brought for a complete record. Finch v. McDowell, 7 Cow. (N. Y.) 538.

Should matter be copied into the transcript as a part of the bill of exceptions, which is not contained in the original bill of exceptions, the proper course is, upon proper suggestion, supported by affidavit, to ask a writ of certiorari, so that the correct record may be produced in the appellate court. In order to avail himself of this writ, the defendant in error must ask for it before joinder in error; or, in case he has joined in error, he should ask leave to withdraw his joinder for that purpose. This writ will not be allowed after the term at which the cause was submitted to the court for decision, nor will it be allowed on an application for a rehearing. Puterbaugh's Ch. Pl. & Pr. 679.

The refusal of a trial court to order a further return to a writ of certiorari issued to a justice, is not open to review in the Supreme Court. Mann v. Tyler, 56 Mich. 564.

A writ of error does not lie from a judgment of the mayor of a town, imposing a fine for the violation of a town ordinance. An appeal is generally the proper mode of reviewing such judgment; but, under some peculiar circumstances, such a judgment might be reviewed by a writ of certiorari; but under no circumstances will a writ of error lie to such a judgment. Ridgway v. Hinton, 25 W. Va. 554.

On error bringing up a judgment on certiorari, only such grounds can be considered as are alleged in the affidavit for certiorari. Grand Trunk R. Co. v. Russ, 47 Mich. 500.

Under the provisions of the act of March 20, 1810, sect. 20, the judgment of the court of common pleas upon a certiorari to remove the proceedings before a justice of the peace, is final, not only as regards affirmance or reversal of the justice's judgment, but also as regards the subsequent allowance of a writ of execution for costs accrued on the certiorari. Palmer v. Lacock, 107 Pa. St. 346.

Where a certiorari is sought, in a criminal case tried before a county court, the petition should set out errors complained of. Fleming v. State, 67 Ga. 767.

Dismissal of an appeal from a probate of a will is a final judgment, and cannot be set aside unless complained of within two years, allowed for removing proceedings to the Supreme Court on error or certiorari. Ellair v. Judge 46 Mich. 496.

On error bringing up a judgment

XI. Judgment. — Upon an appeal from a judgment or order, the appellate court may reverse, affirm, or modify the judgment or order appealed from in the respect mentioned; and it may, if necessary or proper, order a new trial, as to any or all the parties. When a judgment is reversed or modified, the appellate court may make complete restitution of all property and rights lost by the erroneous judgment.<sup>1</sup>

In all cases of appeal and writ of error, the Supreme Court or appellate court may give final judgment, and issue execution, or remand the case to the inferior court, in order that an execution may issue, and that other proceedings may be had thereon. The Supreme Court or appellate court, in any case of a partial reversal, shall give such judgment or decree as the inferior court ought to have given, and for this purpose may allow the entering of a remititur, either in term-time or vacation, or remand the cause to the inferior court for further proceedings, as the case may require.<sup>2</sup> affirmed on certiorari, the Supreme Court will decide as the right of the matter may appear. Wattles v. Moss, 46 Mich. 52.

On error bringing up a case affirmed on certiorari to a justice, the case is to be heard on the justice's return alone. Dooley v. Eilbert, 47 Mich. 615.

A petition in certiorari does not become a part of the record of the superior court until granted. Elsas v. Clay, 67 Ga. 327.

Under the New York practice, a judgment quashing a writ of certiorari is appealable, when it is not confined to simple quashing of the writ, but adjudicates upon the proceedings brought up, and is rendered on the ground that the allegations of error are not sustained. People v. Commissioners, 103 N. Y. 370.

In certiorari proceeding on appeal, to review the assessment of railroad property by the tax assessor, the court of appeals will not review the conclusion of facts upon the question of value, but of law. People v. Hicks, 105 N. Y. 198.

1. Wait's Code (N. Y.), 649, sect. 330.

2. Storr & C. St. (Ill.) 1838, sects. 81-2.

The common judgment for the defendant in error is that the former judgment be affirmed. If a judgment is good in part, and erroneous in part, it may be affirmed as to part, and reversed as to the other part. Barnett v. Barnett, 16 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 51; Cummings v. Pruden, 11 Mass. 206. But if the judgment is not divisible, although good in part, and bad in part, it must be affirmed or reversed as a whole. Boaz v. Heister, 6 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 18; Davis v. Campbell, 1 Ired. (N. Car.) 482; Gaylord v. Payne, 4 Conn. 190.

If there are several dependent judgments, and the principal one is reversed, the dependent ones cannot be sustained. Hutchinson v. Commonwealth, 4 Met. (Mass.) 359.

When a written contract for the sale of real estate is entered into, and upon the trial in an action for specific performance the trial court upon conflicting testimony find that such written contract truly expressed the agreement between the parties, such finding on error to this court is conclusive. Mills v. Ruchlin, 29 Kans. 87.

The plaintiff in error having asked leave to withdraw the writ of error, in a case after argument thereon, but before any written decision had been agreed upon by the court, it will be ordered that leave be granted and the judgment be affirmed. Bank v. Bank, 66 Ga. 752.

When a cause is submitted to the Supreme Court on record so imperfect as to render it impossible to tell therefrom whether the facts assigned for error exist or not, the judgment of the court below will be affirmed. Cunningham v. Tonne-maker, 13 Nebr. 462.

Argument on the merits cannot be made on a motion for a rehearing, but only on the rehearing itself, if granted. Kraft v. Raths, 45 Mich. 20.

The time prescribed for the tender and signing of bills of exceptions in cases of quo warranto is imperative. There is no provision in such cases for the presiding judge to sign after the expiration thereof, and certify the cause of the delay. Hardin v. Swann, 66 Ga. 244.

Under Nebraska law a leave to file a motion for a rehearing more than thirty days from time of filing opinion will be denied. Bank v. Vocum, 12 Nebr. 208.

A plaintiff in error is sole counsel in his own case, and, while on his way to court, was hurt by accident, and could not arrive at court in time, and his case was dismissed for want of prosecution. Motion being made at the same time for re-instating the

1. Reversal. — The Supreme Court, on reversing a judgment on error, may render such a judgment as should have been rendered by the inferior court; for the writ of error is to revive the first cause of action, and to recover what ought to have been recovered in the lower court.<sup>1</sup> cause, and a proper showing of the facts, it was re-instated and continued. Ex parte Bradley, 63 Ga. 566.

The general rule is, that error must be assigned with exactness; but where an error is not assigned, the court may yet in its discretion consider it, — the court having the right to reverse a judgment for errors not assigned. Sturdevant v. Stanton, 47 Conn. 579.

The Supreme Court can render the proper judgment in a case brought to the circuit court on certiorari, and taken upon an error; but if the plaintiff in error has received too favorable a judgment below, and the other party does not complain, it can only affirm the judgment, though it may give costs to the defendant in error. McClatchie v. Durham, 44 Mich. 435.

Where, by consent of parties, a cause involving both law and fact is tried by the judge without a jury, and the judgment is excepted to generally, with no specifications as to whether the error intended to be alleged was a mistaken finding on the facts, or an erroneous ruling upon some point of law, a copy of the documentary evidence, as well as a brief of the oral evidence, must be brought up. It is not sufficient that the bill of exceptions represent that certain writings, such as exemplifications from other courts, should so and so, not reciting the contents, but only the supposed legal effect. Lee v. Porter, 63 Ga. 345.

The Supreme Court cannot direct the lower court to render judgment for a certain sum upon the evidence alone, without any findings given of any court, or jury, or referee authorizing the same, and, in fact, against the verdict of the jury and the decision of the court below. Holton v. McPike, 27 Kans. 286.

While a judgment is in full force and unreversed, the Supreme Court will not, in the exercise of original jurisdiction, again hear and determine the case upon its merits. State v. Ottinger, 43 Ohio St. 457.

Where an action has abated as against one of two defendants, and the verdict is returned against both jointly, it is error to render judgment thereon over a motion to arrest. Boor v. Lowrey, 103 Ind. 468.

In actions sounding in damages where the judgment of the lower court is for less than the statutory limit, exclusive of costs, the judgment of the appellate court is final. Where this court directs a verdict for the defendant, and gives judgment thereon for the defendant, a judgment of affirmance in the appellate court is final. Baxtrom v. R. R. Co., 117 Ill. 150.

1. Garr v. Stokes, 1 Harr. (N. J.) 403.

The right of third parties under an erroneous judgment are not divested by the reversal of such judgment. McJelton v. Love, 13 Ill. 486. The rights of third persons are not affected. Their title to property acquired under an erroneous judgment is not divested on a reversal.

The defendant, in such case, must look to the plaintiff for redress. Bank of U. S. v. Bank of Wash., 6 Pet. (U. S.) 8; Clark v. Pinney, 6 Cow. (N. Y.) 298; Green v. Stone, 1 Harr. & J. (Md.) 405; Hubbel v. Broadwell, 8 Ohio, 120; Allman v. Taylor, 101 Ill. 185.

A new trial is not granted on reversal when the court of the declaration on which the verdict rests presents no cause of action, even though the plaintiff might have recovered on some other count. Dayton v. Fargo, 45 Mich. 153.

A judgment of reversal is effective, notwithstanding the death of the plaintiff in error, during the pendency of the suit. Such judgment takes effect by relation, as of the date of the commencement of the proceedings in error; and it is competent for the court, to which the cause is remanded for a new trial, to order a revivor of the action in the name of the proper representative of the deceased party. Williams v. Englebrecht, 38 Ohio St. 96.

The Supreme Court will reverse a cause for material error apparent on the face of the record, although no motion in arrest or for review is made in the circuit court. McIntire v. McIntire, 80 Mo. 470.

Where a declaration contains the common counts and also special counts, and the court sustains a demurrer erroneously to the special counts, but the facts stated in the special counts could be proven by the plaintiff on the trial of the issue on the common counts, and as the plaintiff has received no injury from the demurrer, the judgment below will not be reversed for such error. Moore v. Supervisors, 18 W. Va. 630.

Where the judgment, for the reversal of which error is prosecuted in the Superior Court, is pleaded as an estoppel in another suit between the same parties, it is competent for the Superior Court to enjoin the prosecution of such suit until the case in error is determined. Yeoman v. Lasley, 36 Ohio St. 416.

Want of jurisdiction in a judge will not work a dismissal of the writ of error, but a reversal of the judgment. Castleberry v. State, 68 Ga. 49.

A proceeding in error, to reverse, vacate, or modify a judgment or final order, is not commenced within the meaning of section 523 of the civil code, unless the petition in error is filed, and the appearance of the defendants in error effected by service of summons or otherwise. Bowen v. Bowen, 36 Ohio St. 312.

A decree et chambers dismissing a bill on demurrer, cannot be reversed by a "fast" writ of error. Jordan v. Kelly, 63 Ga. 437.

On writ of error the Supreme Court does not review the judgment of the court below on its merits, as on an appeal, but is limited to an examination of the decision on points of law and evidence which were excepted to. Warsaw v. Knox, 107 Pa. St. 301.

On an attachment suit against an insurance company, plaintiffs introduced evidence, and closed their case. No appearance by the defendants, or motion for non-suit. Certain attorneys calling themselves amici curia, suggested to the court that a non-suit was proper, which was disregarded. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiffs. Defendants filed a bill of exceptions, assigning as error that the court did not non suit the plaintiffs. Held, that the court did not decide any question to which exception is taken; and there being no exception to any ruling, decision, or judgment, the judgment of the court below must be affirmed. Republic Fire Ins. Co. v. Beatty, 71 Ga. 160.

The plaintiffs, by their original action, sought to enjoin proceedings by the village council to complete the extension of the corporate limits of the village. On final hearing in the district court, the petition was dismissed at plaintiffs' costs. To reverse this judgment, a petition in error is now pending in this court, and the plaintiffs now move for an order staying the execution of the judgment of the lower court during the pendency of the proceeding in error. Held, where the relief desired, during pendency of a proceeding in error, is an order to stay further action in the proceedings, which it is the object of the original action to enjoin, such relief should be sought under section 5573 of the Rev. Stat. Croll v. Village, 36 Ohio St. 316.

Where the evidence fairly supports the verdict, the Supreme Court will not reverse the judgment, although the preponderance of evidence, as shown by the record, may be against the verdict. Day v. Henry, 104 Ind. 324.

The general term of the Supreme Court has no power to reverse the judgment of an inferior court on the ground of excessive damages, but can only review questions of law decided by those courts. Reilly v. Canal Co., 102 N. Y. 383.

The Ohio Supreme Court has had no power since the amendment of section 6710 of the Rev. Stat. to reverse a judgment of the district court reversing a judgment of the common pleas, and remanding the cause for a new trial on the merits. Halderman v. Larrick, 44 Ohio St. 438.

A judgment will not be reversed for an error which causes no injury to the party complaining thereof. Lee v. Town, 118 Ill. 304; Buscher v. Scully, 107 Ind. 246.

A verdict will not be disturbed because a question of law was submitted to the jury, if it was correctly decided. Hinds v. Cottle, 143 Mass. 310.

Neither will a judgment be reversed on account of an instruction abstractly erroneous, where the jury reach the right conclusion. Andis v. Personett, 108 Ind. 202.

Giving an instruction erroneous as a matter of law will not be cause for reversal where the evidence is not in the record, and the complaining party is uninjured. Cline v. Lindsey, 110 Ind. 337.

A case will not be reversed when the evidence is nearly balanced, nor for an harmless error. Forbes v. Thomas (Nebr. 1887), 35 N. W. Rep. 411.

When the evidence tends to support the views of either party, the verdict should not be disturbed. Pim v. Wait (U. S. C. C. N. Y.), 32 Fed. Rep. 741.

The question of fact, when it occurs, must be tried by the jury; but it is for the court to say whether the evidence offered is pertinent to the issue, and, also, whether there is sufficient evidence before the jury to present an issue of the fact, under the pleadings; and, if there shall not be, to direct what verdict shall be returned. Bartelott v. Bank, 119 Ill. 259; Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. O'Connor, 115 Ill. 254; Randall v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 109 U. S. 478; Herbert v. Butler, 97 U. S. 319.

Where an equity case is one purely of fact, the decision of the chancellor will not be reversed, unless palpably against the weight of evidence. Campbell v. R. R. Co. (Ky. 1888), 6 S. W. Rep. 337.

A judgment for the collection of taxes, when the service was by publication addressed to Henry Wheeler, when the correct name was Henry Wheelen, is void. Wheelen v. Weever (Mo. 1887), 6 S. W. Rep. 220.

2. Restitution. — A writ of restitution is sometimes issued by the appellate court when property has been taken in execution, and the judgment has been reversed. This action compels the plaintiff below, who has received satisfaction of his erroneous judgment, to restore to the opposite party the property taken in execution, or, if sold, then to recompense him for the value of the property sold.<sup>1</sup>

3. Remittitur. — After the appellate court has passed upon the appeal by writ of error, it still has the record. It is now required that it should be sent back to the inferior court, if affirmed, to be executed; if reversed, and a venire facias de novo has been awarded, that a new trial may be had in the court below. In order to send the record below, a remittitur is made, which is an entry on the records of the appellate court, that the record of the case has been returned to the court when it was removed. A certificate made by the clerk of the appellate court to that effect is also called a remittitur. On the return of the record to the court from whence it was removed by writ of error, the case will then be redocketed, and be proceeded in by a venire facias de novo, by execution, or by scire facias against a bail in error, as the case may be, conformably to the judgment of the appellate court.<sup>2</sup>

XII. Statutory Regulation of Writ of Errors. — Many of the States have abolished writs of error, and substituted appeals; but so far as the law of appeals relates to the common-law action of writ of error, it has the same application, and is identical, though known by a different name.<sup>3</sup>

1. Boal's Appeal, 2 Rawle (Pa.), 37; Bruere v. Britton, 1 Spencer (N. J.), 268. (N. Y.) 386; Feaster v. Fleming, 56 Ill. 457; Laws of Ala. p. 69. Compare Wambaugh v. Gates, 8 N. Y. 138.

The successful party on reversal is entitled to a restitution of every thing of his adversary, in specie, not the value, but the thing, acquired by virtue of the erroneous judgment. Bickett v. Garner, 31 Ohio St. 28; Gott v. Powell, 41 Mo. 416.

If the plaintiff in the erroneous judgment has collected money under the execution, an action will lie to recover it. Rann v. Reynolds, 18 Cal. 275.

The statute of limitations begins to run from the time of the reversal. Crocker v. Clements, 23 Ala. 296.

The general rule is, that persons purchasing property under the authority of an erroneous judgment acquire rights which cannot be divested by any subsequent reversal of the judgment or decree. Marks v. Cowles, 61 Ala. 299; Reynolds v. Harris, 14 Cal. 667; Dorsey v. Thompson, 37 Md. 25; Stroud v. Casey, 25 Texas, 740; Stinson v. Ross, 51 Me. 556; Hanschil v. Stafford, 27 Iowa, 301; Taylor v. Laner, 26 La. Ann. 307; Lovett v. German, etc., Church, 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 67; Jesup v. Bank, 15 Wis. 604; Porter v. Robinson, 3 A. K. Marsh. (Ky.) 253; Coster v. Peters, 7 Rob.

2. 3 Bouvier's Inst. No. 3358.

Formerly when a writ of error, in the Exchequer Chamber, abated, or was discontinued, the transcript must have been remitted, and a remittitur entered, before a defendant could sue out execution; but now it is no longer necessary, for the record remains in the court below, and execution is, therefore, in all cases, now issued by and out of that court. H. T. Wm. IV. r. 16. This matter is now wholly regulated by statutes of the different States.

On motion to amend remittitur, it is held that the "franchises, privileges, rights, and liberties," directed to be excluded from the sale of defendant's property by court of appeals (Lord v. Y. F. Gas Co., 99 N. Y. 547), on those referred to in ch. 163, Laws 1878, and do not include patent rights, licenses, easements, or privileges acquired by the company since incorporation. Lord v. Y. F. Gas Co., 101 N. Y. 614.

3. Hillard's New Trials, t. Appeals.

Notwithstanding the provisions of the statutes, simplifying the forms of pleading and practice, the forms of the actions have

XIII. In Criminal Cases. — A writ of error does not lie in behalf of the people to reverse a decision of an inferior court in a criminal case; and a joinder in error cannot give jurisdiction to the appellate court.<sup>1</sup> At common law, errors lie only to matters of record.<sup>2</sup>

1. When it will lie. — At common law in criminal cases, no writ of error issues for the defendant as a matter of right in most of the States.<sup>3</sup>

Error must be affirmatively made out in criminal as well as in civil cases. It cannot be based upon a misapplication of the judge's remarks that would exclude evidence that the remarks were not intended to affect particularly, if the ambiguity is the fault of counsel in not making their offer of proof explicit.<sup>4</sup> been preserved and kept distinct. Smith v. State, 66 Md. 215.

1. People v. Reynolds, 4 Hayw. (Tenn.) 110.

2. McCue v. Commonwealth, 78 Pa. St. 185; Davis v. State, 39 Md. 355.

Under the statutes of the different States, the proceedings on an appeal from a conviction are varied. In Illinois and Michigan the proceeding is called writ of error; in Ohio, petition in error; in Kentucky and Indiana, an appeal; in Iowa the proceedings are substantially as in Indiana. Harris's Cr. L. (3d Am. ed.) 411, note.

Bills of exceptions do not lie at common law in criminal cases. Whar. Cr. Pl. & Pr. sect. 772.

At common law a writ of error would not lie to the prosecution to review an adverse judgment on demurrer or other procedure before the trial court. State v. West, 71 N. Car. 263; State v. Solomon, 6 Verg. (Tenn.) 360; State v. Jones, 7 Ga. 422; State v. Copeland, 65 Mo. 497; State v. Kemp, 17 Wis. 669; Commonwealth v. Cain, 14 Bush (Ky.), 525; Commonwealth v. Cummings, 3 Cush. (Mass.) 212; State v. Dougherty, 5 Tex. 1; U. S. v. Moore, 3 Cranch (U. S.), 159.

3. Loftin v. State, 11 Smed. & M. (Miss.) 358; Commonwealth v. Profit, 4 Binn. (Pa.) 428.

4. Maillet v. People, 42 Mich. 262. A party indicted for a misdemeanor punishable by fine only, who has been tried and acquitted, and on writ of error to the Supreme Court, the judgment being reversed and the cause remanded, may be tried again under the Arkansas law, without any violation of the constitutional provisions. Jones v. State, 15 Ark. 261; Taylor v. State, 36 Ark. 84. Before the States enacted statutes giving them the right to appeal, the weight of authority was against the right of the government to bring error in criminal cases. People v. Corning, 2 N. Y. 1; Commonwealth v. Cummings, 3

Cush. (Mass.) 212; State v. Lane, 78 N. Car. 547; Reg. v. Duncan, 14 Cox, C. C. 571.

Although the court, on the trial, may err in the exclusion of evidence, or in refusing to allow certain questions to be put on cross-examination, yet if the court is fully satisfied, under the facts of the case, that the error could not have affected the result, the error will afford no ground of reversal. Ritzman v. People, 110 Ill. 362.

A judgment will not be reversed because of the refusal of the court to repeat a ruling once distinctly made during the trial. State v. Buzzell, 59 N. H. 65.

A party taking a bill of exceptions, must affirmatively show error to his prejudice, or the proceedings will not be disturbed. Eskridge v. State, 25 Ala. 30; Burns v. State, 49 Ala. 370.

Where the jury finds the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree, under instructions properly defining murder in the first degree, it seems that the defendant would not be prejudiced by erroneous instruction as to murder in the second degree. State v. Underwood, 57 Mo. 40.

An error in a case in the summoning of the jury, held cured by the statute of amendment. Lynch v. Commonwealth, 77 Pa. St. 205.

An improper remark by the court, adverse to the prisoner in presence of the jury, will be considered on writ of error as though it were a part of the charge. The court has no right to say, in the presence of the jury, that it was the duty of the prisoner to bring forward his defence in the preliminary examination. Sullivan v. People, 31 Mich. 1.

If there be any error in a request to charge, or if a request to charge in the disjunctive is asked, either branch of which is erroneous, the whole charge is properly refused. State v. Cassady, 12 Kans. 551.

It is error, for which a conviction will be reversed, to keep the prisoner shackled

XIV. In the United States Courts. — 1. United States District Court. — A final judgment of the United States District Court, in civil actions where the matter in dispute exceeds fifty dollars, exclusive of costs, may be reviewed by the United States Circuit Court of the same district on writ of error. This writ must be issued within one year from final judgment. If the party is disabled, being an infant, non compos mentis, or imprisoned, the writ can be brought within one year after the expiration of such disability.<sup>1</sup> in court during trial. State v. Kring, 64 Mo. 591; People v. Harrington, 42 Cal. 165.

A conviction will be reversed on account of the use of improper language by the prosecuting counsel in his address to the jury, which the trial court on motion refused to restrain. Ferguson v. State, 49 Ind. 33; State v. Smith, 75 N. Car. 306.

Under the Missouri statute, the State cannot sue out a writ of error in a criminal case. State v. Cox, 67 Mo. 46.

The State possesses no such right under a statute unless expressly conferred. State v. Johnson, 2 Iowa, 549; Commonwealth v. Harrison, 2 Va. 202.

If exceptions to errors are not taken on the trial, points cannot be raised on them on criminal appeals. Brotherton v. People, 75 N. Y. 159.

Under section 4720, ch. 190, Rev. Stat. of Wisconsin (1878), which provides for the reduction to "writing in summary mode" of exceptions in criminal trials, held improper to settle bill of exceptions so that the rulings to be reviewed were scattered throughout a long record. State v. Snell, 46 Wis. 524.

Error can only be taken after final judgment. Staup v. Commonwealth, 74 Pa. St. 458; United States v. Norton, 91 U. S. 566; People v. Nestle, 19 N. Y. 583.

Failure to demur, or move in arrest of judgment, cannot be held to waive the right to make objections to the indictment in the appellate court; the right being constitutional, and not personal. Lemons v. State, 4 W. Va. 755.

A prisoner, after waiving trial by jury, can sue out a writ of error to the appellate court, as he has no power to waive such a right, and be tried by the court. It is a fundamental principle of the common law, declared by Magna Charta, that no person shall be convicted of any crime but by the unanimous verdict of good and lawful men in open court. Hill v. People, 16 Mich. 351; State v. Maine, 27 Conn. 281; Bond v. State, 17 Ark. 290; League v. State, 36 Md. 259; Williams v. State, 12 Ohio St. 622; United States v. Taylor (Kans. 1882), 11 Fed. Rep. 470.

The only exception to this is when the legislature may provide other means of trial for petty misdemeanors with the right of appeal. The court has no right to serve in the double capacity of judge and jury, not even with the consent of the prisoner. 1 Bishop, Cr. L. sect. 759. Such action on the part of the court is in violation of the constitution, and in subversion of the fundamental principles of the common law. State v. Moss, 2 Jones (N. C.), L. 66.

Waiving jury in criminal trials by the consent of the prisoner, is against public policy, and is not to be adopted by the courts, except, perhaps, in case where the States have made some express constitutional or statutory provision authorizing the prisoner to waive jury trial. In view of this interpretation, most of the States have incorporated such a provision in the constitution, or embodied it in a statute. Arkansas Const. (1874) art. 2, sect. 7; California Const. (1849) art. 1, sect. 3; Connecticut, Act (1874), sect. 537; Florida Const. (1868) art. 1, sect. 4; Indiana, 2 Rev. St. (1878) 394; Iowa Stat. (1880) sect. 2814. Compare State v. Kaufman, 51 Iowa, 578; Kansas, Com. L. (1881) 755, sect. 197; Louisiana, Voorhees' Stat. (1876) sect. 1076; Maryland Const. (1867) art. 4, sect. 8; Massachusetts, Pub. Stat. (1882) 973; Michigan Const. (1850) art. 6, sect. 7; Howell's Am. Stat. (1882) sect. 6485; Minnesota Const. (1857) art. 1, sect. 4; Missouri Const. (1865) art. 1, sect. 17; Nebraska, Com. Stat. (1881) 569, sect. 296; New Jersey, 2 Rev. St. (1877) 875; New York Const. (1846) art. 1, sect. 2; North Carolina Const. (1868) art. 1, sect. 13; Ohio, 2 Rev. St. (1880) sect. 5204; Pennsylvania Const. (1873) art. 5, sect. 27; Rhode Island, Pub. St. (1882) sect. 9; South Carolina, Gen. Stat. (1882) sect. 288; Tennessee Const. Act (1875) 6; Texas Const. (1876) art. 5, sect. 10; Vermont, Gen. Stat. (1862) ch. 30, sect. 36; Virginia Code (1873) 2065; West Virginia, 2 Kelley's Rev. St. (1879) 900, sect. 688; Wisconsin Const. (1848) art. 1, sect. 5; United States Rev. St. (1874) sect. 649.

1. U. S. Rev. St. sects. 633, 635.

Final judgments of the circuit court affirming or modifying the judgment of the district court may be taken to the United States Supreme Court, provided the matter in dispute exceeds five thousand dollars, exclusive of costs. U. S. Rev. St. sect. 691.

But if the circuit court reverses the judgment of the district court, and orders a new

2. United States Circuit Court. — A writ of error will lie from the Supreme Court to the Circuit when the matter in dispute exceeds five thousand dollars exclusive of costs.<sup>1</sup>

In civil suits held by two judges, and a difference of opinion exists as to matters to be decided, ruled, or ordered by the court, the opinion of the presiding judge prevails for the time being; but when final judgment is rendered, this point must be stated during the same term, under the directions of the judges, and certified and entered. Such judgment may be reviewed by the Supreme Court on a writ of error, irrespective of the amount involved.<sup>2</sup> A final judgment of the circuit court to be reviewed on writ of error by the Supreme Court must be brought within two years after its rendition. If the party is disqualified, then within two years after his disability is removed.<sup>3</sup> trial, no writ of error can be brought to have the Supreme Court examine this judgment of the circuit court. Bostwick v. Brinkerhoff, 106 U. S. 3.

The circuit court may review, by writ of error, decisions of district courts in criminal cases where sentence involves imprisonment, or a fine of over three hundred dollars. 20 Stat. at Large, 354.

1. U. S. Rev. Stat. sect. 391.

2. U. S. Rev. Stat. sects. 650, 652, 693; Dow v. Johnson, 100 U. S. 158.

3. U. S. Rev. Stat. sect. 1008.

It is not the amount in dispute below that rules, but the amount in the appellate court which determines the question of jurisdiction. Hilton v. Dickinson, 108 U. S. 165.

A final judgment of a circuit court, relating to patents or copyrights, or taken against an officer of the revenue service, or in any cause brought on account of depriving any person of rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the United States Constitution, may be reviewed in the Supreme Court on a writ of error, irrespective of the amount in controversy. U. S. Rev. Stat. sect. 699.

The appellate court may affirm, modify, or reverse the judgment, or make the orders necessary to give justice. U. S. Rev. Stat. sects. 636, 701.

It is doubtful whether the findings of a referee, by agreement of parties, can be taken to the Supreme Court on writ of error. Boogher v. Ins. Co., 103 U. S. 90.

No judgment will be reverse, on a writ of error, for ruling on a plea in abatement other than a plea of jurisdiction of the court, or for any error in fact. U. S. Rev. Stat. sect. 1011.

The Supreme Court will not issue an execution on a case before it on a writ of error, but order the inferior court to do it. U. S. Rev. Stat. sect. 701.

A certificate of division was made on a motion to quash an indictment. The court held that a motion to quash is always addressed to the discretion of the court; and a decision upon it is not error, and cannot be reviewed on a writ of error. United States v. Rosenburgh, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 580; U. S. v. Avery, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 251; U. S. v. Hamilton, 109 U. S. 63.

Section 3 of the act of June 23, 1874, allows a writ of error from the United States Supreme Court to the Supreme Court of the Territory of Utah, in criminal cases, when the accused has been convicted of bigamy or polygamy, or has been sentenced to death for any crime. Wiggins v. People, 93 U. S. 465.

The certificate of division brings nothing before the court but points certified. Ward v. Chamberlain, 2 Black (U. S.), 430.

These points must be as to the law. Silliman v. Hudson, 1 Black (U. S.), 582; Dennistoun v. Stewart, 18 How. (U. S.) 565; Weeth v. Mont. Co., 106 U. S. 605.

Several questions may be decided and passed upon at the same time. U. S. v. Chicago, 7 How. (U. S.) 185.

If the points presented rest upon a hypothesis, or certified pro forma, the Supreme Court will not pass upon them. Webster v. Cooper, 10 How. (U. S.) 54; Pelham v. Rose, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 103; Nesmith v. Sheldon, 6 How. (U. S.) 41.

The request to certify need not be expressly stated, if it can be fairly inferred from the record. U. S. v. Harris, 106 U. S. 629.

A division on motion addressed to the discretion of the court does not present a point which can be certified, although relating to the jurisdiction. U. S. v. Avery, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 251; U. S. v. Rosenburgh, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 580.

The points of division should be distinctly stated. Sadler v. Hooer, 7 How. (U. S.) 646.

An order granting a peremptory writ of mandamus, which directs the collection of taxes, is a final judgment subject to review when the other requisites exist. The power to review such a judgment of a tax to pay all judgment creditors of a specified class, depends upon the amount of the whole tax ordered to be collected, and not upon the amount of the judgment debts due to each or any individual petitioner. Davies v. Corbin, 112 U. S. 36.

The docketing by the defendant in error of a cause in advance of the return day of the writ of error, does not prevent the plaintiff in error from doing what is necessary while the writ is in life, to give it full effect. Davies v. Corbin, 113 U. S. 687.

Where a case is tried by the court below, and the record does not affirmatively show a written stipulation waiving a jury, the question decided at the lower court cannot be re-examined here on a writ of error. County v. Warren, 106 U. S. 622.

A writ of error was sued out returnable to the October term, 1877. The return was duly made, and transcript filed with the clerk in September court of same year, and citation duly served. No fee-bond was given, and the cause was not docketed. In September, 1878, the bond was filed, and the cause docketed; no motion to docket and dismiss having, in the mean time, been made. Held, that a motion made at the present term to dismiss the writ must be denied. Edwards v. U. S., 102 U. S. 575.

A writ of error will not be dismissed for want of jurisdiction by reason of failure to return with it an assignment of errors. Ackley v. Hall, 106 U. S. 428.

When a writ of error gives the names of all the parties as they are found in the record of the lower court, and nothing in the record shows that there were other parties, the writ is sufficient, though the defendants in error are there described by firm-names, as A., B., & Co. Gumbel v. Pitkin, 113 U. S. 545.

This case distinguished from Protector, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 82.

A question of fact cannot be examined in this court on a writ of error, unless the evidence is brought into the record by a bill of exceptions, or by some method known to the practice of courts of error which for that purpose is adopted, such as an agreed statement of facts, or a special finding in the nature of a special verdict. Papers on file in the lower court are no part of the record in the case when brought here by writ of error, unless they are incorporated into the record by some action of the lower court, as by a bill of exceptions, or some equivalent act. England v. Gebhardt, 112 U. S. 502.

The Supreme Court cannot acquire jurisdiction under a writ of error where the return to it is made by filing the transcript of the record here after the expiration of the term of this court next succeeding the filing of the writ in the circuit court. Caillot v. Deetken, 113 U. S. 215.

When a jury is waived by agreement, a general finding of the issues by the lower court is not open to review by the Supreme Court. Santa Anna v. Frank, 113 U. S. 339.

In an action at law, submitted to the circuit court by the parties waiving a trial by jury, in which the record does not show the filing of the agreement in writing required by section 649 of the revised statutes, this court, upon bill of exceptions and writ of error, cannot review the rulings upon the admission or rejection of testimony, or upon any other question of law growing out of the evidence. But this court may determine whether the declaration is sufficient to support the judgment. Bond v. Dustin, 112 U. S. 604.

An information against a distillery for an alleged violation of the revenue law was filed. The district court gave judgment in favor of the claimant, and then denied the motion of the United States that a certificate of reasonable cause of seizure be entered of record. Held, that the action on the motion cannot be reviewed by the circuit or the Supreme Court. U. S. v. Place, 106 U. S. 160.

Before the act of March 3, 1875, no appeal would lie from an order of the circuit court remanding a suit which had been removed, because such an order was not a final judgment or decree in the sense which authorizes an appeal or writ of error. Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wiswall, 23 Wall. (U. S.) 507. But this act provided in express terms that the order of said circuit court dismissing or remanding said cause to the State court shall be reviewable by the Supreme Court on writ of error or appeal, as the case may be. 18 Stat. c. 137, sect. 5. But by section 6 of the act of 1887, c. 373, sect. 5 of that of 1875, c. 137, was expressly repealed; and in the last paragraph of section 2 of the act of 1887, it was enacted, "Whenever any cause shall be removed from any State court into the circuit court of the United States, and the circuit court shall decide that the cause was improperly removed, and order the same to be remanded to the State court from whence it came, such remand shall be immediately carried into execution, and no appeal or writ of error from the decision of the circuit court so remanding such case shall be allowed."

It is well settled by a series of decisions that the United States Supreme Court, having no jurisdiction of criminal cases by writ of error or appeal, cannot discharge on habeas corpus a person imprisoned under a sentence of a circuit court or district

XV. From the United States Supreme Court to the State Supreme Courts.—A final judgment or decree, in any suit in the highest court of law or equity of a State, may be taken to the United States Supreme Court on writ of error in point of law under the following conditions:—

(1) When the validity of a treaty, or statute of, or authority exercised under the United States, is drawn in question in the State court, and the decision is against that validity.

(2) When the validity of any State authority is drawn in question, on the ground of being repugnant to the constitution, treaties, court in a criminal case, unless the sentence exceeds the jurisdiction of that court, or there is no authority to hold him under sentence. Ex parte Watkins, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 193; Ex parte Lange, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 163; Ex parte Parks, 93 U. S. 18; Ex parte Siebold, 100 U. S. 371; Ex parte Curtis, 106 U. S. 371; Ex parte Carll, 106 U. S. 521; Ex parte Yarbrough, 110 U. S. 651; Ex parte Crouch, 112 U. S. 178; Ex parte Bigelow, 113 U. S. 328.

In the record of a general conviction and sentence upon two counts, one of which is good, a misrecital of the verdict as upon the other count only, in stating the inquiry whether the convict had aught to say why sentence should not be pronounced against him, is no more than an irregularity or error, and is no ground of discharging him on habeas corpus. Snyder v. U. S., 112 U. S. 216.

The circuit court sitting in admiralty shall make separate findings on the law and the facts, and the right of trial by jury upon the facts given. 18 Stat. at L. 315; Act of Feb. 16, 1875. Since the enactment of this law, the Supreme Court has treated the findings of facts in the lower court as conclusive. The Abbotsford, 98 U. S. 440; The Benefactor, 102 U. S. 214.

The Supreme Court re-examines the proceedings of inferior United States courts on habeas corpus to the extent only of determining whether such courts have jurisdiction. Ex parte Carll, 106 U. S. 521; Ex parte Mason, 105 U. S. 696; Ex parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 339; Ex parte Lange, 18 Wall. (U. S.) 163; Ex parte Parks, 93 U. S. 18; In re Stupp, 12 Blatchf. C. C. 501.

A writ of prohibition or certiorari will not lie from the Supreme Court to the circuit court in a criminal case. The mode is to bring it before the Supreme Court by a certificate of the judges of the circuit court that they are divided in opinion. Ex parte Gordon, 1 Black (U. S.), 503; Forsythe v. U. S., 9 How. (U. S.) 571; U. S. v. Circuit Judges, 3 Wall. (U. S.) 673.

The office of a certificate of opinion between two judges in the circuit court being to submit to the Supreme Court one or more points of law, and not the whole case; and when the question cannot be answered, the whole case being submitted, — the writ of error will be dismissed. When the question of division is too general, embracing the merits of the whole case, and does not present any single point or question, it cannot be entertained by the Supreme Court. It has been repeatedly ruled in the Supreme Court that the whole case cannot be brought here, under the act of 1802, upon a general question embracing the merits of the whole case. Harris v. Elliott, 10 Pet. (U. S.) 25. The subsequent decisions under the successive acts of Congress upon this point are uniformly to the same effect. U. S. v. Briggs, 5 How. (U. S.) 208; Nesmith v. Sheldon, 6 How. (U. S.) 41; Waterville v. Van Slyke, 116 U. S. 699; Williamsport Bank v. Knapp, 119 U. S. 357.

On a writ of error to a United States circuit court, to review a judgment dismissing an appeal from one State court to another in condemnation proceedings, where the error assigned is that "the court below sustained the motion to dismiss solely upon the ground that the appeal had not been taken within the statutory time of sixty days after the assessment, deciding that the time commenced to run from the day when the commissioners met and viewed the land, and not from the date of the return of their assessment," held such assignment of errors is sufficient. The sustaining of the motion to dismiss the appeal is a final judgment, and may be reviewed on writ of error from the United States Supreme Court, although no bill of exceptions is prepared, as the record, of which such order of dismissal is part, sufficiently presents the question of law involved. Clinton v. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. (Nebr.), 7 S. Ct. Rep. 1268.

The United States Circuit Court will grant a citation for a writ of error from the United States Supreme Court, and will leave the question of the jurisdictional amount to be passed on by the latter court on the affidavits filed. Davie v. Heywood (S. Car.), 33 Fed. Rep. 93.

or laws of the United States, and the decision is in favor of its validity.

(3) When the construction of any clause of the Federal Constitution, or treaty, or statute of, or commission held under the United States, is drawn in question, and the decision is against the title, right, privilege, or exemption specially claimed under authority of the Union.<sup>1</sup>

(4) When any title, right, privilege, or immunity is claimed under the constitution, or any treaty or statute of, or commission held, or authority exercised under the United States, and the State court decision is against the title, right, privilege, or immunity specially set up or claimed by either party under such constitution.<sup>2</sup>

1. Act of Congress, Sept. 24, 1789, sect. 25.

2. Act of 1867, Feb. 5; 14 U. S. Stat. at L. 386, c. 28, sect. 2.

The United States Supreme Court will not review the judgment of a State court, if its decision is in favor of the United States authority, treaty, or statute. Strader v. Baldwin, 9 How. (U. S.) 261; Ryan v. Thomas, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 603; Williams v. Norris, 12 Wheat. (U. S.) 117.

If it does not clearly appear that the question must have been decided in order to induce the judgment, the Supreme Court will not take jurisdiction. Gill v. Oliver, 11 How. (U. S.) 529; Millingar v. Hartuppee, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 258.

A writ of error will not be dismissed for want of jurisdiction by reason of a failure to annex thereto or return therewith an assignment of errors, pursuant to the requirements of sect. 997, Rev. Stat. School v. Hall, 106 U. S. 428.

The judgment of a State court cannot be re-examined in the United States Supreme Court, unless within two years after its rendition a writ of error be brought. Cummings v. Jones, 104 U. S. 419.

Whatever is determined in the Supreme Court on a writ of error cannot be re-examined upon a subsequent writ brought in the same suit. Clark v. Keith, 106 U. S. 464.

The Supreme Court hears a motion by counsel for plaintiff in error, specially appointed for that purpose, to dismiss the writ of error, which motion is opposed by counsel of record for plaintiff in error. Writ dismissed on the ground that there is no longer an existing cause of action. San Mateo County v. Southern, etc., R. Co., 116 U. S. 138.

In error to a State court, the writ of error may be directed to an inferior court, if the Supreme Court of the State, without retaining a copy, remits the whole record to that court, with direction to enter a final judgment in the case. The statute of limitation for writs of error, by sect. 1008 Rev. Stat., begins to run from the date of the entry and filing of the final judgment in the court's proceedings, which constitute the evidence of the judgment. Baylis v. Im. Co., 113 U. S. 316.

The time within which a writ of error must be served, in order that it may operate as a supersedeas, must be computed from the date of the judgment which is the subject of review. Wurts v. Hoagland, 105 U. S. 701.

A writ of error operates as a supersedeas only from the time of the lodging of the writ in the clerk's office where the record to be examined remains. When a State officer is removed by the judgment of a State court, and thereby vacates the office, and a writ of error is allowed from the United States Supreme Court for the reversal of that judgment, one appointed to the vacancy with knowledge of the issuing of the writ of error on the part of the judge of the State Supreme Court making the appointment, but before the filing of the writ in the clerk's office, where the record remains, is not guilty of contempt of the United States Supreme Court in assuming to perform the duties of the office. Foster v. Kansas, 112 U. S. 201.

The error must appear on the face of the record. Furman v. Nichol, 8 Wall. (U. S.) 44; Worthy v. Commissioners, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 611; Klinger v. Missouri, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 257.

Writs of errors to State courts are not allowed as of right. The practice is to submit the record to a judge of the United States Supreme Court, who examines whether the case upon the face of the record will justify the allowance of the writ. Twitchell v. Commonwealth, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 321; Gleason v. Florida, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 779.

When, under sect. 5 of the United States Supreme Court, Rule 6, a motion to affirm a judgment of a State court is united with a motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, the practice has been to grant the motion to affirm when the question on which jurisdiction depends was manifestly decided right, because the case ought not to be held for further argument. Arrowsmith v. Harmoning, 118 U. S. 194; Church v. Kelsey, 121 U. S. 282.

When the application is made for a writ of error, the United States Supreme Court will not send out a writ to bring up the judgment for review of the highest court of the State, when it is apparent on the face of the record that it would be the duty of the court to grant a motion to affirm as soon as it was made in proper form. Ex parte Spies (Anarchist Case), Chi. L. News, 69, Nov. 5, 1887; s. c., 8 S. Ct. Rep. 22.

If the error alleged is not a federal question, it will not be considered. The first ten amendments of the Federal Constitution were not intended to limit the powers of the State governments in respect to their own citizens, but to operate on the national government alone; and no writ of error will be issued to bring up for review of a State judgment as to its citizens for alleged violation of rights under these amendments. Ex parte Spies (Anarchist Case), Chi. L. News, 69, Nov. 5, 1887; s. c., 8 S. Ct. Rep. 22; Barron v. Baltimore, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 243; Livingston v. Moore, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 469; Fox v. Ohio, 5 How. (U. S.) 410; Smith v. Maryland, 18 How. (U. S.) 71; Withers v. Buckley, 20 How. (U. S.) 84; Pervear v. Commonwealth, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 475; Twitchell v. Commonwealth, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 321; Justices v. Murray, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 274; Edwards v. Elliot, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 532; Walker v. Sauvinet, 92 U. S. 90; United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U. S. 542; Pearson v. Yewdall, 95 U. S. 294; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97; Kelley v. Pittsburgh, 104 U. S. 79; Presser v. Illinois, 116 U. S. 252.

The jurisdiction of the United State Supreme Court is limited to the question whether the plaintiff in error is denied a right in violation of the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States. Presser v. Illinois, 116 U. S. 252.

The record must show that the error was objected to in the lower court. It is too late to raise the question for the first time in the United States Supreme Court. S. B. Co., 110 U. S. 57.

The United States Supreme Court may consider the application for the writ of error in open court, and allow it. Twitchell v. Commonwealth, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 321; Ex parte Spies (Anarchist Case), Chi. L. News, 69, Nov. 5, 1887; s. c., 8 S. Ct. Rep. 22.

A right must be claimed or set up in the proper court below. As the Supreme Court of the State can review the decision of the trial court, it must be made to appear that the claim was made in the trial court, because the State Supreme Court is only authorized to review the judgment of that court for errors committed there: the United States Supreme Court can do no more. Ex parte Spies, Chi. L. News, 69, Nov. 5, 1887; s. c., 8 S. Ct. Rep. 22.

Where there is no assignment of error in the transcript on a writ of error, and complainant's brief contains no specifications of errors, no statement presenting the question involved with reference to the pages of the record supporting it, and does not quote the evidence, whose rejection or reception was objected to, the appeal will be dismissed on motion. Benites v. Hampton, 8 S. Ct. Rep. 254.

A statement of facts, which the record entry shows was the bill of exceptions allowed by the court, may be considered by the court as showing an insufficiency in the jurisdictional amount on appeal. United States v. Hill, 8 S. Ct. Rep. 308.

Where a defendant, accused of crime, is examined as a witness in his own behalf, the question as to whether the cross-examination must be confined to matters pertinent to the testimony in chief, or may be extended to the matters in issue, is one of State law as administered in the courts of the State, and not of federal law, and cannot be the ground for an application to the United States Supreme Court for writ of error to the State Supreme Court. Ex parte Spies, 8 S. Ct. Rep. 22.

Due process of law under the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution does not necessarily require an indictment by a grand jury in a prosecution by a State for murder. The substitution by a State for a presentment or indictment by a grand jury, of a proceeding by information, after examination and commitment by a magistrate, certifying to the probable guilt of the defendant, with the right on his part to the aid of counsel, and to the cross-examination of the witnesses produced for the prosecution, is due process of law; and such law of a State is not void as being repugnant to that clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution which provides, "Nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law," so decided in a writ of error to the Supreme Court of California. Hurtado v. People, 110 U. S. 516.

No appeal or writ of error will lie from an order of a United States circuit court remanding a suit which was begun and had been improperly removed from a State court after the act of Congress of March 3, 1887, ch. 373, 24 Stat. 552, went into effect, as sect. 6 of that act expressly repeals sect. 5 of the act of 1875, by which such appeals or writs of error were allowed, and the last paragraph of sect. 2 declares that no appeal or writ of error from such an order shall be allowed. The section prohibiting an appeal or writ of error in such cases applies, not only to removals on account of prejudices or local influence, but to cases removed on other grounds.

A certificate of division of the circuit judges for removal of cause cannot be

1. United States Court of Claims.—A claimant in the United States Court of Claims may have his cause reviewed in the United States Supreme Court after final judgment or decree, provided the sum in controversy exceeds three thousand dollars.<sup>1</sup>

2. Territorial Courts.—Writs of error lie to Territorial courts where there was a trial by jury, and by appeal where there was no jury.<sup>2</sup>

3. Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.—The United States Supreme Court can review the final decree or judgment of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia when the sum in controversy exceeds twenty-five hundred dollars.<sup>3</sup>

a. What is a Final Decree or Judgment.—It is held that a final decree or judgment is, "When the decree decides the right to the property in contest, and directs it to be delivered up by the defendant to the complainant, or directs it to be sold, or directs the defendant to pay a certain sum of money to the complainant, and the complainant is entitled to have such decree carried immediately into execution, the decree must be regarded as final to that extent, and authorizes an appeal to this court (United States Supreme), although so much of the bill is retained by the circuit court as is necessary for the purpose of adjusting, by a further decree, the accounts between the parties pursuant to the decree passed."<sup>4</sup> reviewed by the Supreme Court under Rev. St. U. S. sect. 693, as it is not a final judgment or decree in the suit. Morey v. Lockhart, 8 S. Ct. Rep. 65.

Errors committed in the State court, in overruling defendant's challenges for cause to jurors, are not ground for reversal by the United States Supreme Court, unless it be shown that a partial juror was forced upon him, and put upon the case after he had exhausted his peremptory challenges. Ex parte Spies, 8 S. Ct. Rep. 22; Hapt v. Utah, 120 U. S. 430.

1. 14 U. S. Stat. at L. 9; United States v. Adams, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 101; Ex parte Zellner, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 244.

An appeal in behalf of the United States from a final judgment adverse to the United States, may be taken to the United States Supreme Court. 15 U. S. Stat. at L. ch. 71, p. 75, sect. 1.

Aliens, who are subjects of a government which allows United States citizens to sue in its courts, can sue in the court of claims, and take appeals as citizens of this country. 15 U. S. Stat. at L. 243. The following aliens can sue and take appeals: A Swiss, — Lobsiger's Case, 5 Ct. of Cl. 687, — an Englishman, — United States v. O'Keefe, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 178, — a Spaniard, — Molina's Case, 6 Ct. of Cl. 269, — a Prussian, — Brown's Case, 5 Ct. of Cl. 571, — a Frenchman, — Rothschild's Case, 6 Ct. of Cl. 204.

2. Hecht v. Boughton, 105 U. S. 235; 18 U. S. Stat. at L. 27.

3. 20 U. S. Stat. at L. 320; Dennison v. Alexander, 103 U. S. 522.

4. Thompson v. Dean, 7 Wall. (U. S.) 342; Forgay v. Conrad, 6 How. (U. S.) 201.

A denial of a writ of supersedeas by a State Supreme Court is final. Williams v. Bruffy, 102 U. S. 248.

A judgment denying a writ of mandamus is final, as mandamus is now an action, and not merely a prerogative writ. Hartman v. Greenhow, 102 U. S. 672.

A refusal by a State Supreme Court to allow the removal of a suit to the United States courts, is a final judgment. Kanouse v. Martin, 14 How. (U. S.) 23.

A decree upon motion to dissolve an injunction, where the bill is not finally disposed of, is not final. Verden v. Coleman, 18 How. (U. S.) 86.

If a decision rests in the discretion of a court of original jurisdiction, is not final. Cook v. Burnley, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 672; Wells v. McGregory, 13 Wall. (U. S.) 188.

A judgment of a State Supreme Court affirming that of a lower court, and remanding the case to that court, is not final. Reddall v. Bryan, 24 How. (U. S.) 420.

An order affirming a refusal of a State court to grant a new trial, is not final. Sparrow v. Strong, 4 Wall. (U. S.) 584.

A judgment reversing that of a lower court, and ordering a new trial, is not final. Tracy v. Holcombe, 24 How. (U. S.) 426; Bostwick v. Brinkerhoff, 106 U. S. 3.

ESCAPE.

- I. Definition, 844.
- II. What amounts to, 844.
  1. Actual Escape, 844.
  2. Constructive Escape, 846.
  3. Negligent Escape, 848.
  4. Voluntary Escape, 850.
  5. Aiding Escape, 851.
  6. Justification, 852.
    - a. Illegality of Arrest or Commitment, 852.
    - b. Order of Discharge, 853.
    - c. Consent of Creditor, 853.
- III. Responsibility for Escape, 853.
  1. Responsibility of Escaping Prisoner, 853.
  2. Responsibility of Custodian, 853a.
    - a. Actual Custodian, 853a.
    - b. Of Officer for Deputy or Servant, 853b.
    - c. Of Private Individuals, 853c.
- IV. Recapture, 853d.
- V. Indictment, 853e.
  1. For escaping, 853e.
  2. For attempting to escape, 853e.
  3. For aiding Escape, 853f.
  4. For suffering Escape, 853f.
- VI. Evidence, 853g.
- VII. Punishment, 853g.
- VIII. Civil Liability of Custodian, 853h.
- IX. Suit by Sheriff against Debtor, 853j.
- X. Presumption of Guilt arising from Escape, 853j.
- XI. Waiver of Appeal by, 853j.

I. Definition. — Escape must be viewed in its double aspect as an offence which may be committed either by a prisoner, or by the jailer, or other person in whose custody the prisoner is at the time. Any person who, being a prisoner lawfully confined, or in custody, regains his freedom, either with or without force, before he is discharged by due course of law, or any person who has a prisoner lawfully in his custody, suffers such person to regain his freedom before he is liberated in the due course of law, is guilty of an escape.<sup>1</sup>

II. What amounts to. — 1. Actual Escape.<sup>2</sup> — If a prisoner lawfully committed to custody escapes or departs from the place where

1. 2 Bishop Cr. L. §§ 1064-1066; 2 Whart. Cr. L. § 1667; 2 Hawk. P. C. c. 18, 19; 1 Gabbett's Cr. Law, 297.

Distinguished from Prison Breach and Rescue. — The offence of escape must be distinguished from the offences of prison breach and rescue. "Where the liberation of the party is by forcible means, if by himself, it is denominated 'prison-breaking,' and when by others, it is distinguished by the name of 'rescue.'" 1 Gabbett's Cr. Law, 297. It will be observed from this that the absence of force is the distinguishing feature in the crime of escape when committed by others than the custodian. In the case of the custodian, however, the only excuse is the act of God, or of the country's enemies; and, as will be shown, a liberation effected by force which does not come within either of these categories, will be no excuse. See infra, tit. II. 3.

Liability of Prisoner and Custodian. — "It is a clear principle of law that an indictment will lie not only against the party who gains his liberty before he is legally discharged, but also against the officer by whose default, and from whose legal custody, he has been suffered to escape. It will lie against the party himself, because all persons are bound to submit themselves to the judgment of the law, and to be ready to be justified by it; and, therefore, whoever in any case refuses to undergo that imprisonment which the law thinks fit to put upon him, and frees himself from it by any artifice, before such time as he is delivered by due course of the law, is guilty of a high contempt, and punishable with fine and imprisonment. And it is even criminal in a prisoner to escape from lawful confinement, though neither force nor artifice be used by him for the purpose: thus, if he goes out of the prison-doors when opened by the consent or negligence of the jailer, he may be indicted for the escape. But an escape when effected by the negligence or connivance of the officer in whose custody the prisoner was at the time, is more properly an escape, and is much more culpable in him than in the prisoner, whose natural desire of liberty must plead strongly in his behalf." 1 Gabbett's Cr. Law, 297.

2. This term is used to express the escape of a prisoner viewed from the stand-point of the prisoner's responsibility. The responsibility of the custodian is technically understood to be for an escape, but is in reality for suffering, permitting, or aiding an escape.

he is confined, with or without force, the offence is complete.<sup>1</sup> It is essential, however, that the custody should be lawful.<sup>2</sup> A person detained pending the preliminary proceedings may commit the crime of escape;<sup>3</sup> and if a person escapes while under

1. State v. Davis, 14 Nev. 439.

2. Arrest on Mesne Process.—In Commonwealth v. Barker, 133 Mass. 399, the Massachusetts court sustained an indictment against a person who had been arrested under mesne process, and after being surrendered by his bail, had escaped. It was argued that he could not be deemed to have been "committed" within the meaning of the statute relative to escapes, and that he was not guilty of any offence at common law, being confined only on mesne process. The court say, "An examination of the statute on the subject of bail shows that the surrender by his bail of a person who has been arrested on civil process, is there spoken of as a 'commitment,' and he himself as a 'prisoner' who has been 'committed.' . . . Nor is the proceeding by which a prisoner is surrendered upon civil process without an instrument which fulfils the office of a warrant. When one becomes bail, he is entitled forthwith to an attested copy of the bail-bond, upon which he may seize and take his prisoner whenever he will; and this is his warrant, as well as that of the jailer, when the surrender to him is made. The defendant was therefore a person committed to jail for a cause authorized by law. It is further urged that the forcible breaking from jail of a person confined therein on mesne process was not an offence at common law, and that, therefore, it cannot have been intended to constitute it an offence against the statute under which this indictment is drawn. We are by no means prepared to assent to the proposition that breaking jail, by one confined on mesne process, was not an offence at common law. State v. Murray, 15 Me. 100; 1 Hale, P. C. 608; 2 Hawk. P. C. c. 17, § 5, and c. 18, § 1; 2 Inst. 589; Whart. Crim. Law (8th ed.) § 1673. However this may be, the generality of the phrase 'lawfully imprisoned' indicates clearly the intention to punish every violation of custody by those who are properly held in any place of confinement established by law other than the State prison. Breaking jail, and an escape therefrom, even by a prisoner confined therein on mesne process, could not be otherwise than an outrage of its discipline, and a resistance to the lawful authority by which he was detained."

Surrender by Bail.—On the surrender of the accused by his bail, it is essential, to render the custody lawful, that the statutory provisions should be observed. Thus, where the statute requires that, on surrender, the bail should produce a copy of the recognizance, a surrender without producing such copy will not put the prisoner lawfully in the custody of the sheriff. State v. Beebe, 13 Kans. 589. In this case the court say, "The real question is whether Lowe (the accused) escaped from lawful custody. Now, there is no ambiguity in the language of the statute upon this subject. The statute plainly enough prescribes what shall be done in such cases in order to place the person charged with the offence in lawful custody. But the difficulty arises where the statute has not been fully complied with. May the accused be in lawful custody, although the statute prescribing how he shall be placed in such custody has not been complied with? Lowe was at liberty on bail, and no one had any right to restrain him of his liberty except in a particular manner. . . . The sureties in the present case did not comply with the statute. They procured no copy of the recognizance from the clerk. The principal, however, voluntarily surrendered himself to them. But still it can hardly be questioned, that if the principal, at any time before he was delivered to the sheriff, had refused longer to remain in the custody of his bail, he could have done so legally, and without committing any offence. They could hold him as long as he voluntarily chose to remain with them, but when he chose to depart therefrom they could hold him no longer. After his voluntary surrender to his bail, they transferred their custody of him to the sheriff, and, as we are inclined to think, they transferred nothing more."

Necessity of Warrant.—To render a prisoner liable to punishment for an escape, it is essential that the sheriff should have a warrant for his detention. State v. Hollon, 22 Kans. 580.

Statutory Offence.—A house of correction was originally provided with a yard properly enclosed, appurtenant to the house. The city formed a street through the yard, cutting it in two; and fences were built along the line of the street so as to form two yards separated by the street. In an indictment for escaping from the farther yard, it was held that such yard, although separated from the house by the street, was "adjoining and appurtenant thereto," within the meaning of a statute providing for escapes from a house of correction or yard "adjoining and appurtenant thereto."

3. Dismissal of Charge by Magistrates.—W. was given into custody without a war-indictment, a subsequent acquittal of the charge will not be a justification of the escape.<sup>1</sup> A plea in justification, that the prisoner was compelled to escape from necessity, e.g., to preserve himself from death or disease, will not be entertained except the proof of the necessity is clear and conclusive, and the act was no greater than the necessity required.<sup>2</sup> If a person is confined unlawfully, he may, without committing any crime, use sufficient force to effect his liberation, but cannot employ any greater; and the fact that other prisoners lawfully in custody escape in consequence of his acts, will not render him punishable, if his efforts were directed solely to obtain his own liberation.<sup>3</sup>

2. Constructive Escape.—Any relaxation of the confinement of the person of a debtor who is imprisoned on final execution is a constructive escape, although the sheriff should have him within his control, or in his power, the whole time.<sup>4</sup>

rant, on a charge of felony. He was conveyed before a magistrate, who remanded him in custody without any evidence on oath. W. was removed to a lock-up, from which he escaped. The charge of felony made against him was dismissed by the magistrates. It was held that the dismissal by the magistrates was not equivalent to an acquittal by a jury; that the defendant was legally in custody, although no evidence was taken upon oath to justify his remand; and that these facts were no defence. Reg. v. Waters, 12 Cox, C. C., 390; s. c., 5 Moak's Eng. Rep. 469.

1. Subsequent Acquittal.—See State v. Lewis, 19 Kans. 260. In this case the defendant was indicted under a statute applicable to escapes "before conviction." The defendant urged that as he had been acquitted of the offence for which he was under indictment, he did not commit the offence charged, but the court held otherwise. In the opinion they used the following language: "His offence, of escaping from said jail, comes, as we think, within the letter and the spirit of the statute prohibiting escapes. He escaped from imprisonment for an alleged burglary, and had never been convicted of such burglary. His offence, therefore, comes within the exact letter of the statute. . . . When a party is in legal custody, and commits an escape, we do not think it depends upon some future contingency as to whether such an escape is an offence or not."

2. Danger of Disease because the jail was filthy, unwholesome, and loathsome, and full of vermin and uncleanness, will not justify an escape if it is not shown that the defendant has endeavored to obtain relief by every lawful means in his power, e.g., by complaint to the sheriff, or board of county commissioners. State v. Davis, 14 Nev. 439.

3. Imprisonment under Void Warrant.—In State v. Leach, 7 Conn. 452; s. c., 18 Am. Dec. 118, the defendant, while imprisoned under a void warrant, effected his escape, and in consequence other prisoners confined in the same room also gained their freedom. The court said, "It appears that the prisoner attempted to effect the escape of the other prisoners, in no other way or manner than as a consequence of the attempt to effect his own escape. . . . The act of the prisoner was so far from being a high crime and misdemeanor, that it was justifiable; and here it is not intended to suggest that a prisoner might not do acts which would be unjustifiable, in order to escape from unlawful imprisonment. He might not, for example, kill the jailer, or set the prison on fire, or totally demolish it; for none of these acts might be at all necessary to effect his object. But he might lawfully free himself from this imprisonment, since it is confessed to have been illegal. A void process is no process. . . . It hence results that the keeper of the jail is vested with no authority; the building in which the prisoner was confined is not a jail, but as to him a mere private building, and hence he might regain that liberty of which he was unjustly deprived; and it is no part of the case that he made use of more force than was necessary to accomplish this object. Nor does the fact that he was confined with certain atrocious offenders, render it less proper for him to effect his escape."

4. Benton v. Sutton, 1 B. & P. 24; Hawkins v. Plomer, 2 W. Bl. 1048; Crocker on Sheriffs, § 566; Plowd. 36; 3 Co. 44; 2 Inst. 381; Rolle's Abr. 806.

Confinement of Debtor as Creditor's Satisfaction.—In Planck v. Anderson, 5 T. R. 41, Buller, J., says, "There is a distinction between cases where a party is in custody

To constitute an arrest on civil process, it is not necessary that there should be a manual touching of the body, or actual force used: it is sufficient if the party be within the power of the officer, and submits to the arrest.<sup>1</sup> Every liberty given to a prisoner which is not authorized by law is an escape.<sup>2</sup> in execution, and on mesne process. In the former, a creditor has a right to the body of his debtor every hour until the debt is paid, and, if the prisoner escape, may bring an action of debt upon the statute against the sheriff, in which he may (without considering how far he must) recover the whole debt.

1. Emery v. Chesley, 18 N. H. 198; Pike v. Hanson, 9 N. H. 491; Browning's Ex'r v. Rittenhouse, 40 N. J. L. (11 Vr.) 230; Gold v. Bissell, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 280.

2. Koonos v. Maddox, 2 Har. & G. (Md.) 106; Clap v. Cofran, 7 Mass. 98; Colby v. Sampson, 5 Mass. 310; Bartlett v. Willis, 3 Mass. 86; De Grand v. Hunnewell, 11 Mass. 160.

Undue Liberty before Actual Confinement.

— If, after an arrest on execution, the sheriff permits the defendant to remain at home under a promise to go the same day to the sheriff's office with a surety to give bail for his appearance, this will constitute an escape. Browning's Ex'r v. Rittenhouse, 40 N. J. L. (11 Vr.) 230; Stickle v. Reed, 23 Hun (N. Y.), 417.

Where a deputy sheriff arrested a defendant on an execution, and left him in the custody of two brothers of the defendant, and went to serve other process, and did not take the defendant to the jail until the next day, it was held that this was an escape for which the sheriff was liable, the persons in whose custody the prisoner was left having no authority to detain him in the absence of the deputy. Palmer v. Hatch, 9 Johns. (N. Y.) 329. If a sheriff's officer, having taken a prisoner in execution, permits him to go about with a follower of his before he takes him to prison, it is an escape. Benton v. Sutton, 1 B. & P. 24.

Temporary Freedom. — The fact that the debtor was out of the jail limits, however short the time or distance, is sufficient to establish an escape. Dunford v. Weaver, 84 N. Y. 445; Hawkins v. Plomer, 2 W. Bl. 1043. If the sheriff alone, on the ground of debtor's ill-health, makes any relaxation of the imprisonment, by letting the debtor reside out of prison, it would be an escape. Haines v. East India Co., 11 Moore, P. C. 39.

Return to Custody after Escape. — If the debtor escape without the sheriff's knowledge, and goes beyond the limits, but returns again, the sheriff is not liable for the escape. Peters v. Henry, 6 Johns. (N. Y.) 124; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 196.

Arrest under Mesne Process. — When the debtor is arrested under mesne process, the sheriff is only bound to produce his person at the return of writ, and may allow the debtor to go at large, provided he be able to so produce him.

An attachment for non-payment of money is in the nature of mesne process; and where the party had been taken, and permitted to go at large, and returned again into custody at the return of the writ, it was held that the sheriff was not liable for an escape. Lewis v. Morland, 2 Barn. & Ald. 56. Where, however, the sheriff, without taking bail, allowed a person taken upon an attachment for non-payment of money, to go at large, on his promise to surrender, and he shot himself before a recapture, but the officer retained his body, it was held that there was no recapture, and the sheriff was liable as for an escape. Moore v. Moore, 25 Beav. 8; s. c., 27 L. J. Ch. 385; 4 Jur. N. S. 250.

Production of Prisoner on Warrant. — If a sheriff who has a prisoner in custody on a ca. sa. necessarily takes him out of the county in obedience to the habeas corpus ad testificandum, and returns with him when the exigency of the writ is answered, and without unnecessary delay, he will not be liable as for an escape, should the prisoner stroll about, and sometimes be out of his view. Hassam v. Griffin, 18 Johns. (N. Y.) 48; s. c., 9 Am. Dec. 184. See also Fuller v. Davis, 67 Mass. (1 Gray) 612. Compare Cargill v. Taylor, 10 Mass. 206.

The marshal of the King's Bench Prison was not liable to an action of escape for obeying the warrant of commissioners of bankruptcy in bringing before them a bankrupt confined on his custody charged in execution, in order to be examined on the second day of the meeting of the commissioners, though it was not the last day of examination. Spence v. Jones, 1 D. & R. 377; s. c., 5 Barn. & Ald. 795.

Where a sheriff, in obedience to a warrant from a commissioner of bankruptcy, brought a party whom he had in custody in execution for debt beyond the limits of his county in order to be examined by the commissioner, he was bound to take such prisoner back again within a convenient time after the examination was over; but during the time the prisoner was so necessarily beyond the limits of the sheriff's county, it was sufficient if he was accompanied and closely watched by the officer; and it was no escape by the sheriff that such prisoner was, during that time, allowed to go about with the sheriff's bailiff to several places, and to dine and sleep at an inn. Nias v. Davies, 2 Car. & K. 280; s. c., 4 C. B. 444; 11 Jur. 472.

3. Negligent Escape. — A negligent escape takes place when a prisoner escapes against the will of his custodian, and is not freshly pursued and taken again before he has been lost sight of.<sup>1</sup> The obligation on the jailer in the case of prisoners confined for crimes, and on final process, is absolute; and an escape will only be excused by the act of God, or of the enemies of the country.<sup>2</sup>

Where the prisoner is arrested by authority of law, e.g., by the sergeant-at-arms of the House of Representatives, and is carried off the limits, against his will, and without his consent, but returns as soon as practicable after his release, there is no escape. Wickelhausen v. Willett, 12 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. 319. Compare Brown v. Tracy, 9 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 93.

Bond for Jail Limits. — Prisoners committed in execution must be confined in salvo et arcta custodia, in close confinement day and night, and the sheriff is liable for an escape, except he have received a bond for the jail limits. De Grand v. Hunnewell, 11 Mass. 160. Thus, permission by a jailer to a prisoner to take meals in the part of the jail building occupied by the jailer's family is a voluntary escape from liability for which the jailer cannot exonerate himself by receiving and retaining the prisoner on his voluntary return. Riley v. Whittiker, 49 N. H. 145.

To allow a prisoner for debt to be at liberty within the outer walls of the jail does not render the sheriff liable for an escape; to appoint one turnkey, and give him the key of the outer door, is an escape as to that prisoner, but not as to the others, unless they do actually go at large. Steere v. Field, 2 Mason, C. C. 486.

The bond for the limits must be in accordance with the statute, otherwise it will be no justification to the jailer. Hotchkiss v. Whitten, 71 Me. 577; Kingan v. Hall, 23 Up. Can. Q. B. 503; Calcutt v. Ruttan, 13 Up. Can. Q. B. 220.

But a house appropriated by the county to the use of the prisoners was deemed part of the jail, if within the jail limits, although not controlled by the jailer. Jacobs v. Tolman, 8 Mass. 161. Compare Colby v. Sampson, 5 Mass. 310.

A bond given under a statute allowing the privilege of the jail limits during the day, will be no justification for allowing the privilege of the prison limits during the night. Bartlett v. Willis, 3 Mass. 86.

1. 1 Russell on Crimes (5th Eng. ed.), 570.

2. Criminal Cases. — The law was so laid down in the case of Shattuck v. State, 51 Miss. 575. The court say that the key to the solution is to be found in Rex v. Laver, 8 Mod. 83. The prisoner, who was confined on a charge of high treason, applied for an order directing his keeper to remove the irons; but the court refused to make any order, because, if they did, "it might be an excuse to his keeper if he (the prisoner) should escape; therefore, it must be left to his keeper's discretion how to use his prisoner, especially since he had already attempted to escape." The court of South Carolina say, "From the earliest times it has been the rule in England that for escapes, whether from arrests on civil or criminal process, the sheriff would be heard to excuse himself only on the plea that the escape was by the act of God or the public enemy. And in this country the same doctrine is universally applied in case of an arrest on civil process. Few, if any, cases have occurred in the United States of prosecutions of sheriffs for the escape of persons in arrest on criminal process. A most thorough search has failed to find even a single instance of the kind. . . . Numerous authorities are cited, but they are all of escapes from arrest on civil process. The reason and the re-assuring seem to be the same in both cases. No reason can apply to one which does not with equal force apply to the other. In one case the creditor alone is interested, but society is concerned in the other. The rule is attacked as a barbarity. It is not obnoxious to such a criticism: on the contrary, it is founded on public policy as much so as in the case of a common carrier, who is held to very stringent responsibilities. . . . If sheriffs were permitted to excuse escapes on the plea of defective jails, it would be equivalent to a judicial or legislative release of all responsibility for the safety of prisoners, especially in the present condition of our society. Combinations, either with the boards of supervisors or others, and aid from outside, would be wholly unnecessary. To insure escapes, it would only be necessary for the sheriff and jailer to retire to rest and sleep at night. If, in the morning, their prisoners were found to be missing, they would only have to plead a defective jail, and thus would society be at the mercy of criminals, irresponsible officials, and disorderly persons." In some

In the case of arrests on mesne process, a different rule is applicable. In such cases, if the party arrested rescues himself, or is rescued, the officer may return the escape, and that will be sufficient justification.<sup>1</sup> The officer is bound to use all reasonable and proper personal exertions to secure his prisoner, but he is not bound to call for aid.<sup>2</sup> All escapes happening without the knowledge or consent of the jailer or sheriff are to be deemed negligent;<sup>3</sup> and the discharge of a criminal made under an order of court in the belief that it is valid, when, in fact, it is invalid, is

States the responsibility of the jailer is regulated by statute, and he is not responsible if he can show that the escape was not by his consent or negligence, but that he used all legal means to prevent the same, and acted with proper care and diligence. Under such a statute the State must show that the prisoner escaped, and then the burden of proof devolves upon the defendant to justify himself. State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829.

Commitment on Final Process.—There is no want of authority to support the rule stated when a debtor has been arrested on final process. See Fairchild v. Case, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 381; Patterson v. Westervelt, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 543; Rainey v. Dunning, 2 Murph. (N. C.) 386; Shuler v. Garrison, 5 Watts & S. (Pa.) 455; State v. Halford, 6 Rich. (S. C.) L. 58; Cook v. Irving, 4 Strobb. (S. C.) 204; Smith v. Hart, 2 Bay (S. C.), 395; Saxon v. Boyce, 1 Bail. (S. C.) 66; Toll v. Alvord, 64 Barb. (N. Y.) 568; Smith v. Hart, 1 Brev. (S. C.) 146; Green v. Hern, 2 Pen. & W. (Pa.) 167; Wheeler v. Hambright, 9 Serg. & R. (Pa.) 390; Slemaker v. Marriott, 5 Gill & J. (Md.) 406.

Enlistment.—If a person in custody have enlisted, and he be forcibly removed by a party of soldiers, the sheriff is responsible for an escape. Cargill v. Taylor, 10 Mass. 206. The court say in this case, "A rescue before commitment, of one arrested upon mesne process, subjects the rescuers, and not the sheriff or officer who made the arrest, to an action for the benefit of the party injured; but after commitment, the sheriff or jailer is liable. And a rescue before commitment is no excuse for the officer where the arrest is by virtue of a writ of commitment; in short, after commitment in a civil suit, every discharge of the prisoner, without the consent of the plaintiff or creditor, or in due course of law, is an escape for which the sheriff or jailer is liable, with the exceptions only which are recognized as cases of necessity. Such, for instance, is the case of a prisoner who leaves the jail, when in danger from a sudden fire within the jail, or when the jail is broken by a public enemy; but a breach of prison by traitors is no excuse for the jailer."

1. Whitehead v. Keyes, 83 Mass. (1 Allen) 350; s. c., 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 495; May v. Proby, 3 Bulst. 200; Fermor v. Phillips, Holt, N. P. 538; Com. Dig. "Rescous," D, 4.

2. Whitehead v. Keyes, 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 495; Griffin v. Brown, 19 Mass. (2 Pick.) 304, 310; Buckminster v. Applebee, 8 N. H. 547; Sutton v. Allison, 2 Jones (N. C.), L. 341; Gorges v. Gore, 3 Lev. 46; Bentley v. Donnelly, 8 D. & E. 127; May v. Proby, 3 Bulst. 200; 1 Rol. R. 388, 440; Cro. Jac. 419.

3. Temporary Freedom.—A prisoner being sick, was, by the advice of a physician, admitted by the jailer to the dwelling-house part of the jail, and from there, without the knowledge or consent of the jailer, he walked out of doors a few rods, and returned. It was held that this was, in respect to the jailer, a negligent escape, as contradistinguished from a voluntary escape, and did not affect the legality of the subsequent imprisonment, nor give the creditor any right of action against the jailer. Sanderson v. Rutland, 43 Vt. 385.

Failure to Handcuff.—Whether a sheriff in charge of a prisoner is liable to conviction under an indictment, depends on the circumstances: a failure to handcuff is not negligence per se. State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829.

Failure to secure.—A., a sheriff's officer, went with B. to the house of C. to arrest him upon a ca. sa. A. read the warrant to C., whereupon C. rushed out against A., who caught C. around the waist, but was unable to hold him, and C. escaped; held, that the sheriff was liable for the escape. Nicholl v. Darley, 2 Y. & J. 399.

Payment to Sheriff.—If, upon the execution of a ca. sa, which requires the sheriff to take and keep the body so that he may have it on the return-day of the writ at Westminster, to satisfy the plaintiffs of their damages, costs, and charges, the sheriff, before the return-day, receives the money due from his prisoner, and thereupon liberates him before he has paid it over in satisfaction to the party entitled to it, he is answerable for an escape. Slackford v. Austen, 14 East, 468.

also a negligent escape.<sup>1</sup> The sheriff is responsible for all escapes except those which occur through the contributory negligence of the person at whose suit the arrest is made.<sup>2</sup> But the general rule in the case of every escape is that negligence on the part of the jailer is implied.<sup>3</sup>

4. Voluntary Escape. — Wherever an officer, having the custody of a prisoner charged with, and guilty of, an offence, knowingly gives him his liberty, with an intent to save him either from his trial or execution, he is guilty of a voluntary escape.<sup>4</sup> From the question, whether giving a liberty to a prisoner, which by law he has no right to give, without any intent to save the prisoner, is to be deemed a voluntary escape, the authorities do not seem to be unanimous.<sup>5</sup> In the case of a debtor arrested on final process,

1. Invalid Discharge. — Where a jailer procures the discharge of a person in his custody from the justice who has committed him under a conviction, and discharges such prisoner under it in good faith, believing it to be legal, such jailer is not guilty of a voluntary escape, his crime being that of negligent escape. Meehan v. State, 46 N. J. L. (17 Vr.) 355.

2. Contributed to by Plaintiff or his Agent. — If the agent of the plaintiff takes upon himself to direct the sheriff's officer as to the mode of executing process, and an arrest is made, the legality of which is doubtful, the sheriff cannot be held liable for a subsequent escape. Doe v. Trye, 7 D. P. C. 636; s. c., 7 Scott, 704; 5 Bing. (N. C.) 573.

Where an execution creditor is willing to allow a debtor to go out of prison for a temporary purpose, the custody continuing, the sheriff may refuse, unless ordered by a rule of court; but if, without any rule of court, all parties agree to the debtor leaving the prison, and from a laxity of surveillance of the sheriff's officers the debtor escapes, it is a question of fact for the jury, if the judgment creditor brings an action against the sheriff, whether the judgment creditor did not himself contribute to the escape. Haines v. East India Co., 11 Moore, P. C. 39.

3. State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829; Blue v. Commonwealth, 4 Watts (Pa.), 215; 1 Hale, 601.

Suicide of Prisoner. — If a person in custody on a charge of larceny, suddenly and without assent of the constable, kill, hang, or drown himself, this is considered as a negligent escape in the constable. Dalt. ch. 159.

4. 4 Bl. Com. 129; 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 10; Staund. P. C. 33.

5. "It seems to have been the opinion of Lord Hill that in some cases the officer might be adjudged guilty of voluntary escape who had no intent to save the prisoner, but meant only to give him a liberty which by law he had no right to give. But Sergeant Hawkins dissents from this opinion, and observes that there are some cases where the officer has been found to have knowingly given his prisoner more liberty than he ought to have had (as by allowing him to go out of the prison on a promise to return, or to go amongst his friends to find some who would warrant goods to be his own which he is suspected to have stolen), and yet only adjudged guilty of a negligent escape. And he infers that the judgment to be made of all offences of this kind must depend upon the circumstances of the case, such as the heinousness of the crime with which the prisoner is charged, the notoriety of his guilt, the improbability of his returning to render himself to justice, the intention of the officer, and the motives on which he acted, etc. (2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 10). But in general a negligent escape, as contradistinguished from a voluntary escape, is where the party arrested or imprisoned escapes against the will of him in whose custody or prison he is lawfully detained, and is not retaken before he has been lost sight of. Dalt. ch. 159, sect. 6." 1 Gabbett, Crim. L. 298.

Escape Malo Animo. — In Meehan v. State, 46 N. J. L. (17 Vr.) 355, it was held that to constitute a crime of voluntary escape the act must be done malo animo, and that if the jailer discharged the prisoner through an erroneous interpretation of the law, he is not guilty of that crime, but of the lesser offence of negligent escape. In that case the prisoner had been sentenced to imprisonment for a term of sixty days, and before the expiration of that period the defendant, at the instance of the culprit, procured his written discharge from the committing magistrate, and thereupon suffered him to go at large. The court held that if the officer had acted in a bona fide belief that the justice had the power to discharge the prisoner, he did not act malo animo, either in the procurement it is not essential that the debtor should be allowed to go at large without any restraint, or that there should be an intention to defeat the ends for which the execution was created.<sup>1</sup>

5. Aiding Escape.—Any assistance given to one known to be a felon, for the purpose of hindering his apprehension or trial, or preventing his suffering the punishment for which he is condemned, is at common law sufficient to make the person giving such assistance an accessory after the fact to such felony.<sup>2</sup> To constitute this offence, the person rendering assistance must know the crime which had been committed by the prisoner whose escape he aided.<sup>3</sup> This offence, however, is generally regulated by statute; and these statutes usually create a new offence, and are not merely declaratory of the common law.<sup>4</sup> It is generally held that the statutory provision does not require that the person, whose escape is intended to be facilitated, should be guilty of felony, or known or believed to be by the party aiding;<sup>5</sup> but the intent to facilitate the escape of a prisoner is essential;<sup>6</sup> and while a general intent to liberate must exist, and must be found by the jury, it is not necessary that there should be specific intent to liberate any particular prisoner.<sup>7</sup> To authorize a conviction, it of the discharge or in allowing the prisoner to obtain his liberty.

1. Lansing v. Fleet, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 3; s. c., 1 Am. Dec. 142.

Instances.—It is a voluntary escape to allow the person arrested to go at large upon his promise to appear the next day, and give bail, even though he voluntarily surrenders himself in terms of the promise, — Browning's Ex'r v. Rittenhouse, 40 N. J. L. (11 Vr.) 230; Stickle v. Reed, 23 Hun (N. Y.), 417, — or to take him before a magistrate without a warrant. Robinson v. Hall, Tay. Up. Can. 453. It is also a voluntary escape to admit the debtor to the limits without a bond therefor, — Kingan v. Hall, 23 Up. Can. Q. B. 503, — or to take his meals in the part of the building occupied by the jailer's family. Riley v. Whittiker, 49 N. H. 145. And the release of a defendant, against whom a capias ad satisfaciendum has been lodged with the sheriff, is a voluntary escape, although the release may have been made by mistake. Filewood v. Clement, 6 D. P. C. 508; s. c., 1 W. W. & H. 165.

2. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 29, sects. 26, 27.

3. Wilson v. State, 61 Ala. 151. See also State v. Jones, 78 N. C. 420; State v. Shaw, 3 Ired. (N. C.) L. 20.

4. Wilson v. State, 61 Ala. 151, 154. In this case it was said, "The statute under which this defendant was indicted is not merely declarative of the common law. It creates a new offence, substantive and not accessory in its character, and makes it a felony. It punishes not only him who aids in an escape from confinement under a charge of felony, but every person who attempts to render such assistance by conveying 'into the county jail, or into any other lawful place of confinement, any disguise, instruments, arms, or other thing useful to aid any prisoner to escape, with the intent to facilitate the escape of any prisoner therein, lawfully confined under a charge or conviction of felony, or who by any other act, or in any other way, assists such prisoner to escape, whether such escape be effected or not.' The offence has three main ingredients, — a prisoner confined under a lawful charge or conviction of felony, the conveying into a jail, etc., some disguises, instruments, etc., useful to aid the escape, and the intent to facilitate the escape, of such prisoner."

5. Wilson v. State, 61 Ala. 151; Gunyon v. State, 68 Ind. 79; Holland v. State, 60 Miss. 939; State v. Addcock, 65 Mo. 590; State v. Fulton, 19 Mo. 680; State v. Presbury, 13 Mo. 342.

6. Wilson v. State, 61 Ala. 151; Vaughan v. State, 9 Tex. App. 563.

7. Hurst v. State, 79 Ala. 55. The court in this case held that the jury might infer the intent, from any intentional breaking, or assistance in an attempt to so break the prison that the prisoners confined therein can escape. But the court say, "Suppose there are prisoners, one or more, confined in the prison, who will not escape even if the opportunity is offered, who have no intention to escape, and the alleged jail-breakers have knowledge that such prisoners do not intend to escape, this, if satisfactorily proven and found by the jury, need not be shown that a prisoner had any thing to do with the attempt to liberate.<sup>1</sup> It has been held that two acting in concert are each guilty of assisting the escape of the other, although primarily intending to effect their own escape.<sup>2</sup> The attempt of a prisoner to escape is continuous so long, at least, as he flees, and the officer and posse are in sight and in hot pursuit; and the act of impeding the pursuit, by holding or obstructing any of the posse, is criminal.<sup>3</sup>

6. Justification. — a. Illegality of Arrest or Commitment. — The custodian can justify an escape, whether the prisoner be confined upon civil process or on a criminal charge, by showing that the warrant of commitment or execution is illegal and void.<sup>4</sup> But a mere irregularity or error in the warrant, or in the judgment upon which the warrant is issued, will form no justification.<sup>5</sup> disproves both special and general intent to aid or facilitate the escape of such prisoner or prisoners."

1. Hurst v. State, 79 Ala. 55.

2. Luke v. State, 49 Ala. 30.

3. Perry v. State, 53 Ga. 402.

4. Martin v. State, 32 Ark. 124; Austin v. Fitch, 1 Root (Conn.), 288; Housh v. People, 75 Ill. 487; Hitchcock v. Baker, 84 Mass. (2 Allen) 431; Goodwin v. Griffin, 88 N. Y. 629; Carpentier v. Willet, 1 Abb. (N. Y.) App. Dec. 312; Ontario Bank v. Hallett, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 192; Scott v. Shaw, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 378; Rigney v. Ruttan, 5 Up. Can. Q. B. (O. S.) 707.

Ambiguity in Affidavit. — A person cannot legally be arrested under an affidavit for the arrest of "the defendant" in a writ against two defendants, without showing which of the two defendants is intended. Hitchcock v. Baker, 84 Mass. (2 Allen) 431.

Warrant granted on Insufficient Affidavit.

— In Housh v. People, 75 Ill. 487, the warrant on which the prisoner had been arrested appeared to be regular, but the affidavit upon which it was issued failed to give the court issuing it jurisdiction. In their opinion the court say, "The affidavit being insufficient, the prisoner was improperly deprived of his liberty, and he was justified in asserting his right to his freedom granted to him by the constitution and the law by refusing to submit to the warrant: in breaking away from the officer's custody, he committed no offence. State v. Leach, 7 Conn. 452. The rule, as found in treatises upon criminal law, is that whenever an imprisonment is so far irregular that it is no offence in the prisoner to break from it by force, it will be no offence in the officer to suffer him to escape. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 29, sect. 2; Rosc. Cr. Ev. 459; 1 Russ. on Cr. 417. It is true, as urged by the State's attorney, that, as the warrant was regular on its face, the officer who made the arrest, and the appellant who received the custody of the prisoner, would be protected in an action for assault and false imprisonment in consequence of his arrest and deprivation of liberty; but it does not follow therefrom that appellant was bound to obey the warrant. The somewhat anomalous condition, that a sheriff or constable escapes in such cases, is well explained in Tuttle v. Wilson, 24 Ill. 561. It is there said, 'The rule that a ministerial officer is protected in the execution of process issued by a court or officer having jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the process, if it be regular on its face, and does not disclose a want of jurisdiction, is a rule of protection merely, and beyond that confers no right. It is held to be personal to the officer himself, and affords no shelter to the wrong-doer under color of whose process, if it be void, the officer is called upon to act.'

5. State v. Lewis, 19 Kans. 260; Griffin v. Brown, 19 Mass. (2 Pick.) 304; Goodwin v. Griffin, 88 N. Y. 629; Dunford v. Weaver, 84 N. Y. 445; Morgan v. Cubitt, 6 D. & L. 444; s. c., 3 Ex. 612; 18 L. J. Ex. 288.

Warrant not specifying Offence. — The fact that a warrant for the arrest of an offender in charge of felony does not specify the kind of felony, does not avoid it, and is not a defence to the sheriff on indictment for a negligent escape. Martin v. State, 32 Ark. 124.

Remand to obtain Bail. — One W. was brought before magistrates in the custody of defendant, a constable, to answer a charge of misdemeanor, and, after witnesses had been examined, he was verbally remanded until the next day. Being then brought up again, and the examination concluded, the justices decided to take bail, and send the case to the assizes. He said he could get bail if he had time to send for it; and the justices verbally remanded him till the following day, telling defend-

b. Order of Discharge.—A sheriff is not justified in discharging a debtor imprisoned for debt except the order of discharge be granted by a court having jurisdiction;<sup>1</sup> and it is not essential that the order of discharge should have been served; it will be a good defence to the sheriff without service.<sup>2</sup>

c. Consent of Creditor.—An oral authority by a creditor to the jailer to discharge his debtor is a sufficient justification,<sup>3</sup> but a verbal consent by the creditor's attorney is not sufficient.<sup>4</sup> The attorney merely as such cannot discharge the defendant in execution without receiving the debt.<sup>5</sup>

III. Responsibility for Escape.—1. Responsibility of Escaping Prisoner.—A prisoner who escapes, is guilty of a misdemeanor only;<sup>6</sup>

ant to bring him up then to be committed or bailed. On that day defendant negligently permitted him to escape, for which he was convicted. Held, that W. was in custody under the original warrant, and the matter still pending before the magistrates, until finally disposed of by commitment to custody or discharge on bail; and that the conviction was proper. Reg. v. Shuttleworth, 22 Up. Can. Q. B. 372.

1. Develin v. Cooper, 84 N. Y. 410; Wilckens v. Willet, 4 Abb. Ap. Dec. (N. Y.) 596; McNutt v. Bland, 43 U. S. (2 How.) 9; bk. 11, L. ed. 159; Graham v. Kingsmill, 6 Up. Can. Q. B. (O. S.) 584.

Jurisdictional Facts.—Where a sheriff, in an action against him for an escape of one held in custody under a body execution, justifies under an order of the county judge discharging the prisoner, such order need only recite the jurisdictional facts; he may by proof aliunde show existence of any essential fact therein omitted. Goodwin v. Griffiths, 88 N. Y. 629.

Discharge by Insolvent Debtor's Court.—It is a good defence to an action against a sheriff or jailer for an escape, that he discharged the prisoner from custody by virtue of an order of the insolvent debtor's court; and he need not show that the proceedings upon which the order is grounded were properly taken, or that the insolvent was within the walls of a prison when he petitioned for his discharge. Saffery v. Jones, 2 Barn. & Ad. 598.

Fraud on the Part of a Defendant who has been taken on mesne process, in obtaining a judgment in his favor, upon which he is released, does not render the sheriff liable as for an escape. Simms v. Slacum, 7 U. S. (3 Cr.) 300; bk. 2, L. ed. 446; rev'g 1 Cr. C. C. 242.

2. Richmond v. Praitm, 24 Hun (N. Y.), 578.

3. Bridge v. McLane, 2 Mass. 520.

4. Davis v. Cunningham, 5 Up. Can. L. J. 254.

5. Kellogg v. Gilbert, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 220; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 335; Brock v. McLean, Tay. Up. Can. Q. B. 310.

Payment to Attorney.—The attorney may, on receipt of the debt and costs, authorize a discharge. Stocking v. Cameron, 6 Up. Can. Q. B. (O. S.) 475.

Authority of Attorney.—In Savory v. Chapman, 3 P. & D. 604; s. c., 11 Ad. & El. 829; 8 D. P. C. 656; 4 Jur. 411, the court say, "The authority of an attorney in general is determined after judgment, but he may still sue out execution, and receive the money; and his receipt is then the same as that of the principal, and according to it. Roll. Abr. 291, tit. "Attorney" (M.); cited in Com. Dig. "Attorney" (B. 10.) He may after judgment acknowledge satisfaction on the record; but here it is merely alleged that the attorney ordered the debtor to be discharged, without averring that the money was paid either to the attorney or the plaintiff. The mere fact that the party ordering was the plaintiff's attorney, was not sufficient to warrant such a discharge."

6. 2 Hawk. ch. 18, sec. 9.

Escape strictly so called.—It must be kept in view that this is for an escape strictly so called, and not for prison breach. Hawkins says with reference to prison breach, "There must be an actual breaking; for every indictment for this offence as a felony must have the words felonice fregit prisonam, which seems necessarily to import the use of some real force or violence, and not such only as may be implied by the construction of law in any act done in contempt of it, and therefore, if, without any obstruction a prisoner go out of the prison, doors being opened by the consent and negligence of the jailer, or otherwise escape, without using any kind of force or violence, he is guilty of a misdemeanor only, but not of felony." See also Riley v. State, 16 Conn. 47; State v. Doud, 7 Conn. 384; State v. Brown, 82 N. C. 585; 4 Bl. Com. 129, 130.

and it makes no difference that the escape was voluntary on the part of the keeper.<sup>1</sup>

2. Responsibility of Custodian. — a. Actual Custodian. — At common law, if the keeper voluntarily permits a prisoner charged with felony to escape and go at large, it is a felony;<sup>2</sup> and if imprisoned for a misdemeanor, it is a misdemeanor in the keeper.<sup>3</sup> When the escape is merely negligent on the part of the keeper, he is punishable by fine only.<sup>4</sup> The punishment extends not only to the person who has the actual custody of the prisoner, but also to any person authorized to take bail. If such person allows a prisoner to escape by taking bail when the offence is not bailable, he is guilty of a negligent escape, and punishable accordingly.<sup>5</sup> Generally, every person having the lawful custody of a prisoner is responsible for his escape;<sup>6</sup> and it has been held that a person employed as a guard in the management of convicts, is criminally responsible for the escape of prisoners confided to his care, but that the responsibility for the custody of convicts employed in labors outside of the penitentiary would not be governed by the rigorous common-law rule, actual negligence being the test of guilt.<sup>7</sup> In the case of arrests on civil process as between the Prisoner confined under Municipal Ordinance. — Under Kans. Comp. Laws, 1881, ch. 31, sects. 179, 182, punishing any person confined in a place of confinement for any term less than life who shall break such prison or custody, or who, confined in any county jail, shall break therefrom, it was held that a person confined in a city prison for violation of a city ordinance could not be punished for breaking therefrom. State v. Chapman, 33 Kans. 134.

1. Riley v. State, 16 Conn. 47; Cro. Car. 200.

2. Weaver v. Commonwealth, 29 Pa. St. 445; 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th Eng. ed.) 574.

3. Punishable in Same Degree as Offence. — "Such escape amounts to the same kind of crime, and is punishable in the same degree, as the offence of which the party is guilty, and for which he was in custody, whether it be treason, felony, or trespass, and whether the party escaping were actually committed to some jail, or under an arrest only, and not committed, and whether he was attainted or only accused of such crime, and neither indicted nor appealed; and it is said to be no excuse of such escape that the prisoner had been acquitted on an indictment of death, and only committed till the year be passed to give the widow or heir of deceased an opportunity of bringing their appeal." 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sec. 22.

4. Amount of Fine. — "Wherever a person is found guilty, upon an indictment of imprisonment, of a negligent escape of a criminal, actually in his custody, he ought to be condemned, and a certain sum to be paid to the king, which seems most properly to be called a fine. . . . And it seems by the common law that the penalty for suffering the negligent escape of a person attainted was, of course, one hundred pounds, and for suffering such escape of a person indicted and not attainted was five pounds; but if the person escaping were neither attainted nor indicted, it seems that it was left to the discretion of the court to authorize such a reasonable penalty as should seem proper; and if the party had escaped, it seems that the penalties above mentioned were, of course, to be doubled, yet it seems that a forfeiture was to be no greater for suffering a prisoner committed on two several accusations to escape than if he had been committed but on one." 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sects. 31, 33.

5. 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th Eng. ed.) 571.

6. Martin v. State, 32 Ark. 124; State v. Baldwin, 80 N. C. 390.

Offence indictable only. — Under Arkansas bill of rights, a sheriff charged with permitting the escape of a prisoner committed to his custody cannot be prosecuted otherwise than by indictment. Haskins v. State, 47 Ark. 243.

Killing to prevent Escape. — A constable has no right to kill a prisoner, in custody for a misdemeanor, to prevent his escape; and, if he does so, he will be guilty of murder or manslaughter, as the case may be. Reneau v. State, 2 Lea (Tenn.), 720.

7. Actual Negligence as Test of Responsibility. — State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 924. In this case the court say, "The rigorous jailer and the constable or other officer that makes the arrest, it is essential, in order to charge the jailer with an escape, that the constable should have delivered to him some warrant or authority for the debtor's detention. If the constable fail to do so, it is an escape from him, and not from the jailer.<sup>1</sup> It is the duty of the sheriff to have some person at the jail authorized to receive and detain debtors committed to his charge; and, if he fail to do so, he will be responsible for any escape caused thereby.<sup>2</sup> A sheriff, who as jailer receives a person arrested by a United States marshal on a process issuing from a federal court, is bound to keep the prisoner on the same responsibilities as if the arrest had been made under State process;<sup>3</sup> and he alone, and not the marshal, is responsible for an escape.<sup>4</sup> But if the sheriff, in obedience to a writ of habeas corpus, makes a proper return, and produces his prisoner before the court from which the writ issued, the custody of the prisoner while before such court is entirely in the direction and control thereof, and no responsibility attaches to the sheriff for an escape while in such custody.<sup>5</sup> Notwithstanding the appointment or election of a new sheriff, prisoners on civil execution remain in the old sheriff's custody until assigned to his successor; but a mere neglect to assign them is not an escape.<sup>6</sup> But if the prisoners be delivered over by the old to the new sheriff within the jail with the writs upon which they are detained, and the new sheriff does not require an indenture of assignment, the latter is chargeable in case of an escape after such delivery.<sup>7</sup> To render a custodian criminally responsible for an escape, it is not essential that he should be an officer de jure: he is responsible although he be only an officer de facto.<sup>8</sup>

b. Of Officer for Deputy or Servant. — A sheriff is, as such, liable rule of the common law must, we think, find some relaxation in its application to those officers and agents in whose custody, convicts sentenced to the State's prison are placed, and sent out from its walls to do public work; and when greater freedom in their movements is unavoidable, and increased facilities for making an escape are offered, in such case, to make such custodian criminally answerable, the means at his disposal to secure prisoners, and the service to which they are put, must be considered in determining whether there has been actual negligence or a failure to use the powers conferred in preventing the escape."

1. Houghton v. Wilson, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 365.

2. Responsibility for Escape in Case of Arrest by Coroner. — Colby v. Sampson, 5 Mass. 310. In this case the coroner had arrested a deputy jailer, who was in charge of the jail, and left him at the jail, although there was no other person there. It was held that the sheriff, and not the coroner, was responsible for his escape, notwithstanding the fact that the deputy was the person in charge of the jail at the time.

3. Spafford v. Goodell, 3 McL. C. C. 97.

4. Long v. Palmer, 41 U. S. (16 Pet.) 65; bk. 10, L. ed. 888; Randolph v. Donaldson, 13 U. S. (9 Cr.) 76; bk. 3, L. ed. 662.

5. Barth v. Clise, 79 U. S. (12 Wall.) 400; bk. 20, L. ed. 393.

6. Hempstead v. Weed, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 64; 3 Co. 71; Cro. Eliz. 365.

7. Power v. Johnston, 2 Kerr (N. B.), 43. Death of Sheriff. — On the death of a sheriff, his deputy is charged with the execution of his office until a new sheriff is appointed, and he must assign over by indenture as well the debtors on the limits as those in custody; and a new sheriff is not liable for the escape of a debtor on the limits at the time of his appointment, without such assignment. McPherson v. Hamilton, 5 Up. Can. Q. B. (O. S.) 490.

8. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sec. 23.

to answer for an escape suffered by his bailiff or deputy as if he had actually suffered it himself.<sup>1</sup> The responsibility for escapes is, however, confined to those officers upon whom the law casts the obligation of safe custody, and will not lie against the mere servant of such officer.<sup>2</sup> In the case of prisoners confined on civil process, an action lies against the sheriff for the negligence of his deputy;<sup>3</sup> and the creditor has no remedy against the bailiff except the escape be in the nature of a rescue by such bailiff.<sup>4</sup> But the bailiff is responsible to the sheriff for negligently allowing an escape; and the latter may obtain a judgment, not only for the damages and costs he may have had to pay the creditor, but also for his own costs, although no notice of the action by the creditor had been given to the bailiff.<sup>5</sup>

c. Of Private Individuals. — The general rule is, that whenever a person has another lawfully in his custody, whether upon an arrest made by himself or another, he is guilty of an escape if he suffer him to go at large before he has discharged himself by delivering him over to some other, who, by law, ought to have the custody of him. A private person who has arrested any one on suspicion of felony, may thus be guilty of an escape; and if he delivered his prisoner into the custody of another person, who receives him, and suffers him to go at large, it is said that both of them are guilty.<sup>6</sup> A delivery of his prisoner to the proper officer, as the sheriff, or his bailiff, or a constable, is sufficient to discharge him of any responsibility or a subsequent escape.<sup>7</sup> At common law private persons are punishable for voluntary escapes in the same manner as officers, and for negligent escapes by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.<sup>8</sup> An indictment for a negligent escape may be maintained against the hirer of a convict under the convict-

1. Rex v. Fell, 1 Ld. Raym. 424; s. c., 1 Salk. 272; 5 Mod. 414; 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sec. 29.

2. Rex v. Hill, Old Bail. Jan. 1694; Rex v. Rich, Old Bail. Jan. 1694, M. S.

Watchman and Special Deputy. — A servant employed merely as a watchman is not such an officer as will be subject to indictment for a negligent escape. State v. Errickson, 32 N. J. L. (3 Vr.) 421. And a special deputy employed in particular cases by a sheriff is the mere agent of the sheriff, and is not an officer. Kavanaugh v. State, 41 Ala. 399. In this case it was held that such special deputy, although not an officer, might be subjected to punishment under a statute punishing escapes permitted by any sheriff, or other officer or person who has the legal custody of any person charged with or convicted of an indictable offence.

3. Stanway v. Perry, 2 Bos. & Pul. 157; Woodgate v. Knatchbull, 2 D. & E. 156; Sturmy v. Smith, 11 East, 25; Plummer v. Whitchcott, 2 Lev. 159; s. c., T. Jones, 62; 2 Mod. 124; Odes v. Clark, 5 Mod. 414;

Rex v. Fell, 1 Ld. Raym. 424; s. c., 1 Salk. 272; 5 Mod. 414; 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, § 29.

4. Wilson v. McCullough, 5 Up. Can. Q. B. (O. S.) 680.

Liability of Bailor with Sheriff. — In this case the court say, "There are some cases in the books which appear on first view to sustain the doctrine that the bailiff of the sheriff is equally liable to an action like this as the sheriff; but upon a more careful examination with them the rule will be found to be limited to such cases only as are clearly in the nature of a rescue, as where the bailiff, after arresting a defendant, should advise, and actually assist, him to escape; in such case he would be a wilful wrong-doer, and would go within the principle of the cases reported in 1 Lev. 146; 1 Salk. 18 and 441; and 12 Mod. 466."

5. Ruttan v. Shea, 5 Up. Can. Q. B. 210.

6. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 20, sect. 2.

7. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 20, sect. 5.

8. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 29, sect. 26.

labor system,<sup>1</sup> and also against one in charge of a convict working on the county roads.<sup>2</sup>

IV. Recapture.—In criminal cases, where the officer has voluntarily suffered an escape, he has no power to retake the prisoner without a new warrant, although, if the party return, the officer may lawfully detain him.<sup>3</sup> In the case of negligent escapes, an officer making fresh pursuit may retake the escaped prisoner at any time afterwards, whether he find him in the same or a different county; and, indeed, it would seem that there is nothing to prevent the retaking of the prisoner, although there should be no fresh pursuit.<sup>4</sup> If the pursuit is so close that the officer never loses sight of his prisoner, it is generally considered that there is no escape, the law regarding the prisoner all the time as being in the power of the officer.<sup>5</sup>

In the case of escapes of prisoners under civil process, the same rule appears to apply. If the escape be voluntary, the sheriff cannot afterwards retake the prisoner without a new authority;<sup>6</sup> and fraud on the part of a defendant, who has been taken on mesne process, in obtaining a judgment in his favor, on which he was released, does not authorize the sheriff to retake him.<sup>7</sup>

1. The indictment is sufficient, if it pursues, substantially, the form prescribed for a negligent escape by an officer. Smith v. State, 76 Ala. 69.

2. State v. Sneed, 94 N. C. 806.

3. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 12; ch. 13, sect. 19; Dalt. ch. 169; Burn's Just. tit. "Escape;" 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th Eng. ed.) 571.

Recapture after Voluntary Escape.—In Clark v. Cleveland, 6 Hill (N. Y.), 344, the court held that after an escape from an arrest on criminal process, the officer is bound to retake the prisoner whether the escape be voluntary or otherwise. But in Doyle v. Russell, 30 Barb. (N. Y.) 300, the court expressly overruled this decision, and held that in the case of a voluntary escape no re-arrest could be made: in that case the court say that the cases cited in Clark v. Cleveland do not support it, and also remark, "It seems to me that the doctrine of that case is eminently dangerous to the citizen, as well as eminently calculated to make officers corrupt and arbitrary. The power to arrest at the most annoying time and oppressive time, and in the worst manner; and voluntarily to let the person go without any understanding that he shall consider himself under arrest; to extort money for so doing; and then, with the same warrant, to be able to retake the prisoner against his will, and as oppressively as before,—seems to me a doctrine so monstrous, that no argument based on the blunders of officers or magistrates, as likely to leave public justice robbed of its subjects, can for a moment let courts sanction it. Were the points settled by the courts of decision anywhere; did it not remain standing upon a solitary case, which is itself not sustained by its citations,—I might feel bound to submit, and to abide by the effect of the doctrine stare decisis on the ground that it was so well settled must be right, although I might not be able to see it." Compare Butt v. Jones, Gow. 99.

4. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 12; 1 Russ. on Cr. (5th Eng. ed.) 572.

5. Staund. P. C. 33; 1 Hale, 602; 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sects. 16, 13.

6. Doane v. Baker, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 260; Houghton v. Wilson, 76 Mass. (10 Gray) 365; Brown v. Getchell, 11 Mass. 11; Commonwealth v. Drew, 4 Mass. 391; Lansing v. Fleet, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 3; s. c., 1 Am. Dec. 132; Atkinson v. Jameson, 5 D. & E. 25; Filewood v. Clement, 6 D. P. C. 508; s. c., 1 W. W. & H. 165.

Power of State to retake.—A defendant in execution, under a writ of extent, at the suit of the crown, who has been taken from prison under an order of the commissioners of excise, for the purpose of giving evidence, without any writ or other process being issued, and after giving such evidence has been reconveyed to prison, is not entitled to his discharge; as even assuming it to amount to a voluntary escape, the crown has power to retake and detain him in custody under the original writ. Reg. v. Renton, 5 D. & L. 750; s. c., 2 Ex. 216.

7. Simms v. Slacum, 7 U. S. (3 Cr.) 300; bk. 2, L. ed. 446; s. c., 1 Cr. C. C. 242.

But if the escape have been negligent, the officer may lawfully retake or detain the prisoner without any further authority.<sup>1</sup> If the prisoner voluntarily return after a voluntary escape, he may, by renewal of process, be retained in custody.<sup>2</sup> And an agreement entered into between the creditor, the sheriff, and the debtor, by which the debtor is to be allowed certain privileges during sickness, but is, notwithstanding, to be considered under arrest, is sufficient to estop the prisoner from claiming that the judgment has been satisfied.<sup>3</sup>

V. Indictment. — 1. For escaping. — An indictment against a prisoner for effecting his escape will be insufficient if it fail to show that his custodian was lawfully authorized to detain him.<sup>4</sup>

2. For attempting to escape. — An indictment for an attempt to break prison<sup>5</sup> is sufficient if it employs the phraseology of the

1. Whithead v. Keyes, 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 495; Lockwood v. Mercereau, 6 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. 206; Lansing v. Fleet, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 3; s. c., 1 Am. Dec. 142.

Retaking after Escape. — A bankrupt having escaped out of custody of the marshal, and, being at large, surrendered to a commission subsequently issued, and received the protection conferred by 3 Geo. II. c. 30, sect. 5. Held, that he might, notwithstanding, be retaken and detained in custody by the marshal. Anderson v. Hampton, 1 Barn. & A. 308.

A Voluntary Return of a prisoner, after escape before action, is equal to a retaking on a fresh pursuit; but it must be pleaded. Bonafous v. Walker, 2 T. R. 126.

Retaking in Neighboring State. — Sheriff of a neighboring State has no right to pursue and recapture in Vermont a prisoner held on civil process, who has in such neighboring State escaped from his custody. Bromley v. Hutchins, 8 Vt. 194; s. c., 30 Am. Dec. 465.

2. Stickle v. Reed, 23 Hun (N. Y.), 417; Thompson v. Lockwood, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 256; Littlefield v. Brown, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 398.

3. Agreement with Creditor. — A., in the custody of the sheriff, and confined in the jail at Bombay, under a writ of execution issued against him upon a judgment of the Supreme Court, was permitted by the sheriff, with the sanction and authority of the judgment creditors, by reason of illness, to go out of prison, and temporarily reside outside the precincts of the jail, upon the condition that he should continue under the surveillance of the sheriff's officers, and to which condition A. agreed, and continued for a time to reside out of the jail at a private house, where he was continually under such surveillance. Upon A.'s becoming convalescent, the sheriff, at the instance of the judgment creditors, took him back to jail. Upon application by A. to the court to discharge him out of custody, on the ground that the writ was satisfied, held, that A. having agreed to the condition imposed on him by the judgment creditors, of continuing in the custody of the sheriff's officers while out of jail, was estopped from saying that he was out of the sheriff's custody when he was permitted to leave the jail, and that a change of the place of imprisonment, under the circumstances, did not amount to a discharge out of custody. Haines v. East India Co., 11 Moore, P. C. 39.

4. Recital of Warrant. — An information for an escape, averring that the accused was in lawful custody of the sheriff by virtue of a certain order, and judgment, etc., "as entered of record," is fatally defective for not averring that he had a certified copy, required by Kans. Gen. Stat. 861, sect. 256, or any other paper by which to retain custody. State v. Hollon, 22 Kans. 580.

Requisites of Indictment. — By the proviso of the first section of the Alabama Act (1882-83, p. 166), providing that any person convicted and fined in the courts of that State may be discharged, as to the fine, on confession of judgment, with sureties, and execution of a contract to serve the surety, etc., a contract in writing, signed by the defendant in open court, and approved in writing by the judge before whom the conviction was had, enters into the definition, and is an essential ingredient of the offence of an escape; and an indictment for escaping from such service, which fails to charge that the contract was in writing, or that it was signed by the defendant in open court, or was approved by the justice of the peace who rendered the judgment of conviction, with the requisite precision and certainty, is bad. Smith v. State, 81 Ala. 74.

5. State v. Johnson (Mo.), 6 S. W. Rep.

statute creating the offence. In an indictment under a statute for an attempt to escape, the court held, that except the statute make it an essential fact to be proved, that a certified copy of a judgment of conviction should have been delivered to the keeper, it is not essential that the judgment should contain any averment of its delivery.<sup>1</sup>

3. For aiding Escape. — An indictment for aiding an escape must allege that the defendant acted with the intent to aid in the escape of a prisoner,<sup>2</sup> although it need not be averred that the intent to liberate any particular person exists.<sup>3</sup> It is essential, however, that it should contain an averment of the intent to liberate a prisoner lawfully confined;<sup>4</sup> but it need not set out the particular felony with which the prisoner is charged,<sup>5</sup> nor the warrant upon which he is confined; nor need it allege that the defendant knew that the prisoner was confined upon a charge of felony;<sup>6</sup> but an averment that the acts done, were done with intent to facilitate an escape, is indispensable,<sup>7</sup> although it need not be shown that the defendant was acting in conjunction with a person actually confined.<sup>8</sup>

4. For suffering Escape. — An indictment for an escape, whether negligent or voluntary, must expressly show that the party was actually in the defendant's custody for some crime, or upon some commitment upon suspicion.<sup>9</sup> Every indictment should show that the prisoner went at large;<sup>10</sup> and if the indictment be for a

1. General Requisites. — An indictment for an overt attempt to escape from the State prison is sufficient, if it alleges that the defendant, while lawfully confined in State prison under a judgment of a competent court, for the crime of burglary, did make an overt attempt to escape therefrom; that he did unlawfully, forcibly, and feloniously break out of the cell in said prison, in which he was confined, and out of the building in which said cell was and is. State v. Angelo, 18 Nev. 425.

2. Vaughan v. State, 9 Tex. App. 563.

3. Hurst v. State, 79 Ala. 55.

4. An indictment for assisting prisoners to break jail, which does not allege that such prisoners had committed any offence, or state facts or circumstances from which the court can see that they were lawfully in prison, is fatally defective. State v. Jones, 78 N. C. 420.

5. Gunyon v. State, 68 Ind. 79; State v. Addcock, 65 Mo. 590; State v. Fulton, 19 Mo. 680; State v. Presbury, 13 Mo. 342.

6. Wilson v. State, 61 Ala. 151; Holland v. State, 60 Miss. 939.

7. Hurst v. State, 79 Ala. 55; Ramsey v. State, 43 Ala. 404.

8. Hurst v. State, 79 Ala. 55.

9. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sec. 14.

Allegation of Commitment. — Judgment was arrested upon an indictment, which stated that the prisoner was in the defendant's custody, and charged with a certain crime, but did not state that he was committed for that crime; for a person in custody may be charged with a crime, and yet not be in custody by reason of such charge. Rex v. Fell, 1 L. Raym. 424; s. c., 1 Salk. 272. It is not necessary, however, to the sufficiency of the indictment, that it should charge that the officer had the prisoner in his custody by virtue of a sufficient warrant, or that it should set out a copy of the warrant. State v. Sparks, 78 Ind. 166. Where a bill charged that "one A. and one B. charged with the murder of one C. were duly committed to the care and custody of D., he, the said D., then and still being keeper of the common jail" of a certain county. It was held that it sufficiently appeared that the commitment was to the defendant, as keeper of the jail, upon a specific charge of murder, and that the indictment was sufficient. State v. Baldwin, 80 N. C. 390.

Duplicity. — A count in an indictment charging that the defendant, as an employee in a penitentiary, did "assist and suffer" the escape of a prisoner, charges only one offence, and is not void for duplicity. Clemons v. State, 4 Lea (Tenn.), 25.

10. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 14.

voluntary escape, it must allege that the defendant feloniously and voluntarily permitted the prisoner to go at large.<sup>1</sup> Under a statute providing for the offence, it has been held to be surplusage to aver the particulars of the crime, arrest, or trial of the person whose escape is alleged;<sup>2</sup> but at common law the species of crime for which the party was imprisoned must be shown,<sup>3</sup> although the events charged may be only a negligent escape, and therefore a misdemeanor. The inapt use of the word "feloniously" is not sufficient ground for quashing the indictment.<sup>4</sup>

VI. Evidence.—Wherever an escape is shown, the law implies negligence on the part of the sheriff into whose custody the prisoner has been placed; and it is not necessary for the State to prove negligence in order to procure conviction.<sup>5</sup> In an indictment against the hirer of a convict, the bond executed by the hirer, reciting therein the terms of the contract of hiring, and the name and sentence of the convict, is admissible in evidence to prove the fact of the hiring as therein recited, although a record of those facts is required to be kept.<sup>6</sup>

VII. Punishment.—An escape from arrest without force is itself a misdemeanor, and punishable as such.<sup>7</sup> On recapture, the prisoner will be required to serve out the whole term, without deducting the time during which he was at large.<sup>8</sup> A prisoner convicted for an escape or an attempt to escape, may be punished by imprisonment in a jail or prison other than the one from which he escaped or attempted to escape.<sup>9</sup> A person who is guilty of voluntarily allowing an escape, is guilty of the same kind of crime as the offence of which the party was guilty, and for which he was in custody;<sup>10</sup> and if a person be found guilty of negligently suffering an escape, he is punishable by fine, which, in the case of a prisoner attainted, was, of course, one hundred pounds; and in the case of a prisoner indicted, but not attainted, five pounds; and in the case of prisoners neither attainted or indicted, was left to the discretion of the court.<sup>11</sup> This punishment, however, is not generally abrogated by statute; and the punishment varies according to the provisions of the enactments of the different States.<sup>12</sup>

1. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 14.

2. State v. Hedrick, 35 Tex. 485.

3. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 14.

4. State v. Sparks, 78 Ind. 166.

5. Shattuck v. State, 51 Miss. 575; State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829; Blue v. Commonwealth, 4 Watts (Pa.), 215; Dalt. ch. 159; 1 Hale, 600.

6. Smith v. State, 76 Ala. 69.

7. State v. Brown, 82 N. C. 585; 1 Hale, 611; 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 18, sects. 9, 10.

8. Matter of Clifford, 29 Ind. 106; State v. Wamire, 16 Ind. 357; Hollon v. Hopkins, 21 Kans. 638; Dolan's Case, 101 Mass. 219; Commonwealth v. Mott, 38 Mass. (21 Pick.) 492; Matter of Edwards, 43 N. J. L. (14 Vr.) 555, s. c., 25 Alb. L.

J. 68; 3 Cr. L. Mag. 201, 206; Haggerty v. People, 6 Lans. (N. Y.) 332; People v. Potter, 1 Park. (N. Y.) Cr. Cas. 47; s. c., 4 N. Y. Leg. Obs. 177; 1 Edm. Sel. Cas. 235, 250, 256; Laws, 1874, ch. 451, sect. 10, p. 598; State v. Cockerham, 2 Ired. (N. C.) L. 204; Cleek v. Commonwealth, 21 Gratt. (Va.) 777; Rex v. Ratcliffe, 18 How. St. Tr. 429; s. c., 1 Wils. 150; Rex v. Okey, 1 Lev. 61; Rex v. Harris, 1 Ld. Raym. 482; 1 Hale, P. C. 602.

9. State v. Strauss (N. J. L.), 11 Cent. Rep. 561.

10. State v. Sparks, 78 Ind. 166; 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 22.

11. 2 Hawk. P. C. ch. 19, sect. 31.

12. Penalty on Hirer of Convict.—One

VIII. Civil Liability of Custodian. — Where the sheriff suffers the escape of a debtor committed either upon execution or upon mesne process, the creditor has a right of action against him for damages suffered thereby;<sup>1</sup> and in such an action the measure of damages is the law sustained by the creditor through the escape, or, in other words, the value of the custody of the debtor at the time of the escape.<sup>2</sup> The insolvency of the debtor is no bar to an action,<sup>3</sup> but the defendant may mitigate the damages by show-who hires, convicts, and makes himself responsible for their safe-keeping, as provided in S. C. Act of 1878, is liable, upon their escape, for the amount of the damages stipulated in the act; viz., at the rate of fifty dollars for each year of their unexpired terms. As the amount thus fixed is stipulated damages, and not a technical penalty, an action to recover is not barred in two years from the time of the escape. The action may be brought in the name of the superintendent of the penitentiary, and may be maintained, although the statutory bond was not given by the hirer. Lipcomb v. Seegers, 19 S. C. 425.

1. Action by Administratrix. — An administratrix may maintain an action in her own name against the marshal, for the escape of a prisoner, who is in execution on a judgment obtained by her as administratrix. Bonafous v. Walker, 2 T. R. 126.

2. State v. Newcomer, 109 Ind. 243; Russell v. Turner, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 189; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 254; Potter v. Lansing, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) 215; s. c., 3 Am. Dec. 310; Sheldon v. Upham, 14 R. I. 493; Blanding v. Rogers, 2 Brev. (S. C.) L. 394; s. c., 4 Am. Dec. 595; Macrae v. Clark, L. R. 1 C. P. 403; s. c., 35 L. J. C. P. 247; 12 Jur. N. S. 708; 14 L. T. 408; 1 H. & R. 479; Moore v. Moore, 25 Beav. 8; s. c., 27 L. J. Ch. 385; s. c., 4 Jur. N. S. 250; Arden v. Goodacre, 11 C. B. 371; s. c., 2 L. M. & P. 383; 20 L. J. C. P. 184; 15 Jur. 776; Reg. v. Leicestershire, 9 C. B. 659; s. c., 1 L. M. & P. 414; 19 L. J. C. P. 320; 14 Jur. 1026; Hemming v. Hale, 7 C. B. N. S. 487; s. c., 29 L. J. C. P. 137; 6 Jur. N. S. 554; Williams v. Mostyn, 4 Mees. & W. 145; s. c., 7 D. P. C. 38; 2 Jur. 643; Scott v. Henley, 1 Moo. & R. 227; Atkinson v. Mitchell, 6 Allen (N. B.), 345; Kelly v. Jones, 2 Allen (N. B.), 465.

Proof of Debt. — In an action for the escape of a prisoner on mesne process, the plaintiff was nonsuited, because he could not prove any debt against the prisoner who escaped. Alexander v. Macauley, 4 T. R. 611.

Insolvency of Debtor. — In an action against a sheriff for an escape, it was proved that the debtor, though insolvent, was the only son of a wealthy father, who was upwards of a hundred years old; and that, shortly before the arrest, the debtor's solicitor had offered to pay a composition on his debts, of six shillings in the pound. The judge directed the jury to give as damages the value to the creditor of the chance of the debt, or any portion of it, that would have been extracted by the debtor's remaining in custody. Held, a right direction; and, the jury having given substantial damages, the court refused to disturb the verdict. Moore v. Moore, 25 Beav. 8; s. c., 27 L. J. Ch. 385; 4 Jur. N. S. 250.

Ascertainment of Amount of Loss. — The principle on which the amount is to be ascertained, is by charging the sheriff with the debt, and throwing on him the onus of proving that less would have been recovered if the debtor had remained in custody or given bail. Moore v. Moore, 25 Beav. 8; s. c., 27 L. J. Ch. 385; 4 Jur. N. S. 250.

Assault by Escaped Prisoner. — When a sheriff negligently permits one in his custody, under an indictment for an assault with a deadly weapon upon B., with intent to inflict bodily injury, to escape and go at large, and such person makes a further assault upon A., and threatens to take his life, whereby A. is put to expense in having him bound over to keep the peace, A. cannot maintain an action on the case against the sheriff for the escaped prisoner, as they are not the natural and probable consequence of the escape. Hullinger v. Worrell, 83 Ill. 220.

In the Older Decisions it would appear that the creditor was entitled to recover the amount of the judgment debt and costs for which the debtor was confined. Levett v. Letteney, and Solly v. Greathead, cited in Beames on Costs, 138; Robertson v. Taylor, 2 Chitt. 454; Bonafous v. Walker, 2 D. & E. 126; Dewes v. Beresford, 5 Sim. 531.

3. Dunford v. Weaver, 84 N. Y. 445; Barnes v. Willett, 12 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. 448; s. c., 11 Abb. (N. Y.) Pr. 225; s. c., 35 Barb. (N. Y.) 514; McCreery v. Willett, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 643; Loosey v. Orser, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 391; Renick v. Orser, 4 Bosw. (N. Y.) 384; Wilson v. Wright, 9 How. (N.

ing the plaintiff's inability to pay.<sup>1</sup> An action may also be maintained against the sureties on the sheriff's bond, and the liability of the principal need not be first ascertained.<sup>2</sup> It would appear that, in an action against the sheriff, he stands in the same position as the original defendant, and may reduce his liability by any acts which the defendant would have had against the plaintiff.<sup>3</sup> Any negligence or default of the plaintiff in directing the sheriff not to attach property, or in relinquishing security for the defendant's debt, may be shown by the sheriff for the purpose of affecting the creditor's recovery.<sup>4</sup> If, after a voluntary escape, the defendant surrenders himself to the sheriff, the creditor may either bring an action against the sheriff for the escape, or elect to retain the defendant in custody under the writ.<sup>5</sup> The sheriff has a right of action against the jailer for permitting an escape without the sheriff's knowledge or authority, and may recover any

Y.) Pr. 459; Smith v. Commonwealth, 59 Pa. St. 320.

1. Chase v. Keyes, 68 Mass. (2 Gray) 214; Danforth v. Pratt, 63 Mass. (9 Cush.) 318; West v. Rice, 50 Mass. (9 Metc.) 564; Whitehead v. Varnum, 31 Mass. (14 Pick.) 523; Brooks v. Hoyt, 23 Mass. (6 Pick.) 468; Griffin v. Brown, 19 Mass. (2 Pick.) 304; Shackford v. Goodwin, 13 Mass. 187; Rice v. Hosmer, 12 Mass. 127; Nye v. Smith, 11 Mass. 188; Young v. Hosmer, 11 Mass. 89; Weld v. Bartlett, 10 Mass. 470; Porter v. Sayward, 7 Mass. 377; Burrell v. Lithgow, 2 Mass. 526.

False Return.—But a sheriff who truly returns that he has taken bail, or does not deliver the bail-bond, becomes bail, and cannot mitigate by showing the debtor's poverty. Seeley v. Brown, 31 Mass. (14 Pick.) 177; Simmons v. Bradford, 15 Mass. 82.

2. Smith v. Commonwealth, 59 Pa. St. 320.

3. Evans v. Maners, 9 D. P. C. 256. Compare Huntley v. Smith, 4 Up. Can. Q. B. 181, where it was held that, in an action for an escape on an attachment for non-performance of an award, the sheriff will not be allowed to deny the submission or award, or to set up any defence which might have been taken in the proceedings upon the award. He cannot go farther back than the order authorizing the attachment.

Money lost at Play.—In an action against the marshal for the escape of a prisoner in custody under an execution on a judgment obtained adversely against him, it is no defence that the judgment was to recover the amount of a bill of exchange given for money lost at play, the 16 Car. 2 c. 7 and 9, Ann. c. 14, not including judgments obtained adversely, but those already given to secure money lost at play. Chapman v. Lane, 1 G. & D. 523; s. c., 11 A. & E. 980.

4. Direction not to attach Property.—A creditor might have collected the amount of a jail-bond but for his fault in directing the sheriff not to attach property. It was held that such creditor was chargeable with want of due diligence, and could not maintain an action against the sheriff because of the debtor's escape from the liberties of the jail-yard. Weed v. Preston, 54 Vt. 648.

Relinquishment of Security.—If the plaintiff, having sufficient security from the defendant for his debt, relinquish it, after knowledge of escape, the sheriff, in an action against him, may avail himself of this fact in the mitigation of damages; and where the jury in such a case gave nominal damages only, the court refused to set aside the verdict. Russell v. Turner, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 189; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 254.

5. Richardson v. Rittenhouse, 40 N. J. L. (11 Vr.) 230; Thompson v. Lockwood, 15 Johns. (N. Y.) 256; Lansing v. Fleet, 2 Johns. Cas. (N. Y.) 3; Littlefield v. Brown, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 398; s. c., 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 454; 11 Wend. (N. Y.) 467.

Waiver of Escape.—If, having knowledge of the escape, the plaintiff appears in court as a creditor and opposes the debtor's charge, whereupon he is again surrendered into the custody of the sheriff, the plaintiff's election must be considered to be made, and his right of action for escape waived. Richardson v. Rittenhouse, 40 N. J. L. (11 Vr.) 230. Compare Dash v. Van Kleeck, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 477; s. c., 5 Am. Dec. 291. But the appearance of the creditor's attorney, on a notice to disclose, at the time and place appointed, but refusing to choose a justice, and protesting damages sustained thereby, although the jailer may have acted upon good faith, and on advice of counsel.<sup>1</sup>

IX. Suit by Sheriff against Debtor.—An officer who permits a prisoner to go at large upon his promise to pay the debt to his creditor, in consequence of which he is obliged to pay the creditor himself, cannot recover back the money from the debtor, being guilty of a breach of duty out of which he cannot derive a cause of action.<sup>2</sup>

X. Presumption of Guilt arising from Escape.—If a prisoner, who has been arrested on a criminal charge, escape, or attempt to escape, before trial, such apparent attempt to avoid justice may be considered by the jury as tending to establish his guilt.<sup>3</sup> But to repudiate the inference of guilt arising therefrom, the accused may show apprehension of such danger as could not be rightly provided against, although a mere apprehension of danger to health from the condition of the jail cannot be proved.<sup>4</sup>

XI. Waiver of Appeal by.—Where the defendant in an indictment has escaped after conviction and pending an appeal, at his instance the court will refuse to entertain such appeal.<sup>5</sup> In a number of cases the court have refused to order the immediate dismissal of the appeal, and have ordered instead that the appeal should stand dismissed, unless the defendant, before a specified time, should return to the custody of the proper officers of the law.<sup>6</sup> against the jurisdiction of the magistrates and against a discharge, is not a waiver of the escape, though he may examine the debtor. Hotchkiss v. Whitten, 71 Me. 577.

1. Duncan v. Klinefelter, 5 Watts (Pa.), 141; s. c., 30 Am. Dec. 295.

2. Carpenter v. Fifield, 14 R. I. 73; Pitcher v. Bailey, 8 East, 171; Ruttan v. Ashford, 6 Up. Can. Q. B. (O. S.) 280.

3. Bowles v. State, 58 Ala. 335; People v. Stanley, 47 Cal. 113; Revel v. State, 26 Ga. 275; Whaley v. State, 11 Ga. 123; State v. Beatty, 30 La. An. 1266; People v. Pitcher, 15 Mich. 397; Fanning v. State, 14 Mo. 386; State v. Rand, 33 N. H. 216; People v. Rathbun, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 509; Cordova v. State, 6 Tex. App. 207.

4. Kennedy v. Commonwealth, 14 Bush (Ky.), 340.

5. Appeal dismissed after Escape.—People v. Redinger, 55 Cal. 290; s. c., 1 Cr. L. Mag. 290; Woodson v. State, 19 Fla. 549; Sargent v. State, 96 Ind. 63; Wilson v. Commonwealth, 10 Bush (Ky.), 526; State v. Marion, 15 La. An. 495; Anonymous, 31 Me. 592; Commonwealth v. Dowdican, 115 Mass. 133; Commonwealth v. Andrews, 97 Mass. 543; Hamil- ton v. Flowers, 57 Miss. 14; Matter of Walker, 53 Miss. 366; People v. Genet, 59 N. Y. 80; s. c., 17 Am. Rep. 315; 3 T. & C. (N. Y.) 734; 1 Hun (N. Y.), 292; Brown v. State, 5 Tex. App. 126; Moore v. State, 44 Tex. 595; Edwards v. Republic, Dall. Dig. Tex. 535; s. c., 11 Cent. L. J. 399; Leftwich v. Commonwealth, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 716; Smith v. United States, 94 U. S. (4 Otto) 97; bk. 24, L. ed. 24; Reg. v. Caudwell, 17 Q. B. 502; Rex v. Buckeridge, 2 Showers, 297; Rex v. Gibson, 2 Strange, 968; s. c., Ridgeway's Hardw. 50.

Recapture.—A prisoner does not "escape," within the meaning of Tex. Code, sect. 846, forfeiting his right of appeal, if, after breaking jail, he is recaptured two or three hundred yards away, and brought back within twenty minutes. Loyd v. State, 19 Tex. App. 137.

6. People v. Redinger, 55 Cal. 290; s. c., 36 Am. Rep. 32; Woodson v. State, 19 Fla. 549; McGowan v. People, 104 Ill. 100; Leftwich v. Commonwealth, 20 Gratt. (Va.) 716; Sherman v. Commonwealth, 14 Gratt. (Va.) 677; State v. Sites, 20 W. Va. 13; State v. Connors, 20 W. Va. 1; Smith v. United States, 94 U. S. (4 Otto) 97; bk. 24, L. ed. 24, 32.

ESCHEAT. — See also ALIENS; FORFEITURE and TENURE.

- I. Definitions, 854.
II. What Escheats, 855.

- III. Conveyance of Escheated Lands, 856.
IV. How enforced, 856.

I. Definitions. — Originally escheat was the determination of the tenure or dissolution of the mutual bond between the lord and tenant from the extinction of the blood of the latter by either natural or civil means,<sup>1</sup> in which case the land naturally resulted back, by a kind of reversion, to the original grantor or lord of the fee.<sup>2</sup>

In modern law it denotes a falling of the estate into the general property of the State, either because the tenant is an alien, or because he has died intestate without lawful heirs to take his estate by succession.<sup>3</sup>

1. 2 Bl. Com. *72. As "if he [the tenant] died without heirs of his blood, or if his blood was corrupted and stained by commission of treason or felony, whereby every inheritable quality was entirely blotted out and abolished. . . . In the one case there were no heirs subsisting of the blood of the first feudatory or purchaser to which heirs alone the grant of the feud extended. In the other, the tenant, by perpetrating an atrocious crime, showed that he was no longer to be trusted as a vassal, having forgotten his duty as a subject, and therefore forfeited his feud, which he held under the implied condition that he should not be a traitor or a felon." 2 Bl. Com. *72.

Hence escheats were sometimes divided into two classes, propter defectum sanguinis (on account of defect of blood), and propter delictum tenentis (on account of the crime of the tenant). 2 Bl. Com. *245.

The estate which escheated was itself called an escheat. Bouv. L. Dict.

According to Blackstone, land escheated, 1, when the tenant died without relations on the part of his ancestors; 2, or on the part of those ancestors from whom the estate descended; 3, when there were no relations of the whole blood; 4, when there were no relations except a monster which "had not the shape of mankind;" 5, when there were no relations except a bastard, or a bastard dying left no issue of his body; 6, when the tenant or the only relations left by him were aliens; 7, when the tenant was attainted for treason or felony. 2 Bl. Com. *246-257.

These rules are greatly changed by statute. See title "Descent."

Distinction between Escheat and Forfeiture. — "Forfeiture of lands, and whatever else the offender possessed, was the doctrine of the old Saxon law as a part of punishment for the offence, and does not at all relate to the feudal system, nor is the consequence of any seigniori or lordship paramount: but, being a prerogative vested in the crown, was neither superseded nor diminished by the introduction of the Norman tenures; a fruit and consequence of which, escheat must undoubtedly be reckoned. Escheat, therefore, operates in subordination to this more ancient and superior law of forfeiture." 2 Bl. Com. *251, 252.

Escheat, in the feudal sense, existed in Maryland before the Revolution. Matthews v. Ward, 10 G. and J. (Md.) 443.

2. 2 Bl. Com. *245, 72. See Hughes v. State, 41 Tex. 10.

"In the beginning of the Feodal Tenure this Right was a strict reversion. The Grant determined by failure of heirs; the Land returned as it did upon the Expiration of any less temporary Interest. 'Twas no Fruit, but the Extinction of Tenure, . . . 'twas the Fee returned." Burgess v. Wheate, 1 W. Bl. 123.

3. 3 Washb. R. Prop. *443; Hughes v. State, 41 Tex. 17.

Attainder of treason cannot disinherit in England except during the life of the offender. Stat. 3 and 4 Wm. IV. c. 106, enlarging 54 Geo. III. c. 145. In the United States there can be no forfeiture except for treason, and attainder of treason works corruption of blood during the life of the person attainted only. U. S. Const. art. 3, sec. 3; Bigelow v. Forrest, 9 Wall. (U. S.) 339; Miller v. United States, 11 Wall. (U. S.) 268.

Escheat on account of alienage is largely done away with in the United States. See title "Aliens." Compare, however, Comp. Stat. Neb. (1887), ch. 73, secs. 63, 64; State v. Witz, 87 Ind. 190; Wiederanders v. State, 64 Tex. 133.

Where aliens cannot take or hold lands, equity has held that lands held in trust to be sold or conveyed for their benefit do not escheat or become forfeited. Taylor

II. What Escheats.<sup>1</sup> — Lands are the common subject of escheat.<sup>2</sup> Under the feudal system movables did not escheat,<sup>3</sup> but the modern statutory rule is otherwise.<sup>4</sup> Trust estates, on the death of the trustee without heirs, escheated, and the lord took the estate freed from the trust;<sup>5</sup> but, by statute, it is now otherwise.<sup>6</sup> On the death of the cestui que trust without heirs, the title remained in the trustee for his own benefit.<sup>7</sup> At common law, on

v. Benham, 5 How. (U. S.) 233; Ludlow v. Van Ness, 8 Bosw. (N. Y.) 178; Anstice v. Brown, 7 Pai. (N. Y.) 448; Commonwealth v. Martin, 5 Munf. (Va.) 117. Compare Leggett v. Dubois, 5 Pai. (N. Y.) 114; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 413.

At the present time, therefore, defect of heirs is the most important cause of escheat. 4 Kent Com. *426-428; 3 Washb. R. Prop. *444. See also Sewall v. Lee, 9 Mass. 363.

Lands of intestate bastards dying without issue escheat, where the rule is not changed by statute. Doe v. Bates, 6 Blackf. (Ind.) 533.

The lands of a lunatic or madman were held to escheat on his death without heirs, though previously granted by him by deed of bargain and sale. Desilver's Case, 5 Rawle (Pa.) 111.

Land abandoned by owner was held to escheat. Holliman v. Peebles, 1 Tex. 673.

Laws regulating escheats are not ex post facto laws within the meaning of the Federal Constitution. White v. Wayne, T. U. P. Charit. (Ga.) 94.

Statutes directing the payment of unclaimed fees, etc., by clerks of courts, etc., into public funds, are in the nature of escheat laws, and constitutional. Deaderick v. County Court, 1 Coldw. (Tenn.) 202.

To Whom. — In some States escheated property goes into the school fund. State v. Reeder, 5 Nebr. 203; State v. Meyer, 63 Ind. 33; Hinkle v. Shadden, 2 Swan (Tenn.), 46; Parchman v. Charlton, 1 Coldw. (Tenn.) 381.

In North Carolina to the State University. University v. Foy, 2 Hayw. (N. Car.) 310; University v. Harrison, 90 N. Car. 385. In Illinois to the county. Cothran's Ann. Stat. Ill. c. 49, sec. 1.

In England escheats went generally to the King. 1 Bl. Com. *302. In Maryland before the Revolution to the Lord Proprietary. Thomas v. Hamilton, 1 H. & M'H. (Md.) 190. The Massachusetts and Plymouth colonies claimed escheats as incident to the sovereignty they exercised over the lands in their patents. 3 Washb. R. Prop. *446; 3 Dane Abr. 140.

In America escheats for defect of heirs belong universally to the State or some corporation thereof as the ultimate proprietor. 4 Kent Com. *424; 1 Cooley's Bl. Com. *302, n.; People v. Folsom, 5 Cal. 373.

1. Before 54 Geo. III. c. 155, and 3 and 4 Wm. IV. c. 106, sec. 10, escheat for corruption of blood by attainder attached to estates coming by descent after the attainder, as well as to estates held at the time.

2 Bl. Com. *253, 254.

2. The following escheated: "A fee simple; an estate-tail where the tenant-in-tail has in himself the reversion in fee, otherwise the estate would pass to the reversioner; and a copyhold.

The following things do not escheat; viz., gavelkind, propter delictum tenentis; a rent charge; a right of common, free warren, or, indeed, any kind of inheritance which does not lie in tenure, because they rather become extinct; . . . an equity of redemption." Whart. L. Lex. See also 2 Bl. Com. *84.

A vested remainder in fee dependent on a life estate escheats, though the life estate has not terminated. People v. Conklin, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 67. Compare Commonwealth v. Naile, 88 Pa. St. 429.

3. 4 Kent Com. *426, n. Their disposition was with the king. Commonwealth v. Blanton's Exr., 2 B. Mon. (Ky.) 393. But fallen branches of trees were said to belong to the lord. Abbott's L. Dict.; Brown's L. Dict.

4. State v. Reeder, 5 Nebr. 203.

5. 4 Kent Com. *425. So of incumbrances generally. O'Hanlon v. Den, 20 N. J. L. 31; Den v. O'Hanlon, 21 N. J. L. 582.

6. 1 Chit. Gen. Pr. 279; 4 Kent Com. *425, 426, n.; *Cooley's Bl. Com. *246, n.* It is believed that the State now takes only the interest of the decedent subject to all incumbrances and debts due by the decedent. Watson v. Lyle, 4 Leigh (Va.), 236; Casey v. Inloes, 1 Gill (Md.), 430; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 658; Farmer's, etc., Co. v. People, 1 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 139; 3 Washb. R. Prop. *185. See, however, Brown v. State, 36 Tex. 282.

7. 4 Kent Com. *426; 2 Washb. R. Prop. *185; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 W. Bl. 123; s. c., 1 Eden, 177.

The rule seems different under the statutes in some States. Matthews v. Ward, 10 G. & J. (Md.) 443; Wood v. Mather, 38 Barb. (N. Y.) 473; Commonwealth v. Naile, 88 Pa. St. 429.

the dissolution of a corporation, the real estate belonging to it reverted to the grantor, and the personal property escheated to the crown or State.<sup>1</sup>

III. Conveyance of Escheated Lands. — Where the title to escheated lands vests in the State without office found, it may convey its interest at once;<sup>2</sup> and where title does not vest before inquest of office, it may give a valid release of its claim to a party in possession.<sup>3</sup> Where the title of the State is not complete before office found, its conveyance before such time to one not in possession probably passes no interest in the escheated lands.<sup>4</sup>

IV. How enforced. — To complete title by escheat, it was necessary that the lord make entry on the lands and tenements escheated, or sue out a writ of escheat.<sup>5</sup> Inquest of office, or office found, is still deemed necessary to vest the title in some States;<sup>6</sup> but by

1. Fox v. Horah, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. Car.) 358; s. c., 36 Am. Dec. 48; Coulter v. Robertson, 24 Miss. 278; s. c., 57 Am. Dec. 168; 2 Bl. Com. *256.

2. Ettenheimer v. Heffernan, 66 Barb. (N. Y.) 374; McCaughal v. Ryan, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 376; In re Malone, 21 S. Car. 435; Rubeck v. Gardner, 7 Watts (Pa.), 455.

3. State v. Tilghman, 14 Ia. 474; Colgan v. McKeon, 24 N. J. L. 566.

4. Wilbur v. Tobey, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 177; Jackson v. Adams, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 367; Fairfax v. Hunter, 7 Cranch (U. S.), 603; Jones v. Badley, 4 Md. Ch. 167; Casey v. Inloes, 1 Gill (Md.), 430; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 658; Jackson v. Adams, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 367; Commonwealth v. Hite, 6 Leigh (Va.), 588; s. c., 29 Am. Dec. 226. Compare Nettles v. Cummings, 9 Rich. (S. Car.) Eq. 440.

After the lapse of many years escheat proceedings may be presumed. Vickery v. Benson, 26 Ga. 582.

An escheat grant ordinarily passes all the interest held by the original grantee. Casey v. Inloes, 1 Gill (Md.) 430; s. c., 39 Am. Dec. 658. See also Jones v. Badley, 4 Md. Ch. 167.

5. 2 Bl. Com. *245.

Waiver. — Any act which amounted to an implied waiver, as accepting rent or homage, barred the escheat. 2 Bl. Com. *245. See also Kelly v. Greenfield, 2 H. & M'H. (Md.) 121.

The assessment of taxes on escheated property, and the sale thereof to pay the same, have been held not to be a waiver of the State's right to assert title by escheat. Reid v. State, 74 Ind. 252.

Possession of lands under void deed by persons of color incapable of holding title continued after the incapacity was removed, the State never having escheated the lands, is good as against all others. Beatty v. Benton, 73 Ga. 187.

By grant and warranty the State may estop itself to claim lands as escheated on account of alienage. Commonwealth v. André, 3 Pick. (Mass.) 224.

6. 3 Washb. R. Prop. *444; People v. Folsom, 5 Cal. 373; Wilbur v. Tobey, 16 Pick. (Mass.) 177; Bradstreet v. Supervisors, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 546; Jackson v. Adams, 7 Wend. (N. Y.) 367; Commonwealth v. Hite, 6 Leigh (Va.), 588; s. c., 29 Am. Dec. 226; Fairfax v. Hunter's Lessee, 7 Cranch (U. S.), 603. See also Taylor v. Benham, 5 How. (U. S.) 233.

In Indiana title vests without information found, unless some one is in possession, when the State must first establish its title. Reid v. State, 74 Ind. 252. See also People v. Cutting, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; Catham v. State, 2 Head (Tenn.), 553; Commonwealth v. Hite, 6 Leigh (Va.), 588; s. c., 29 Am. Dec. 226.

The burden of proof is on the State, and without proper proof that the lands are subject to escheat, it cannot succeed, even as against a mere occupant. Hammond v. Inloes, 4 Md. 138; People v. Cutting, 3 Johns. (N. Y.) 1; University v. Harrison, 90 N. Car. 385.

An inquisition that does not find the death of the tenant intestate and without heirs, is a nullity. Ramsey's Appeal, 2 Watts (Pa.), 228; s. c., 27 Am. Dec. 301.

For what is sufficient evidence, see University v. Harrison, 90 N. Car. 385; State v. Teulon, 41 Tex. 249.

For the practice in various States, see Congregational Church v. Morris, 8 Ala. 182; Bradley v. Dwight, 62 How. Pr. (N. Y.) 300; Commonwealth v. North Am., etc., Co., 57 Pa. St. 102; Olmsted's Appeal, 86 Pa. St. 284; In re Malone, 21 S. Car. 435; Wiederanders v. State, 64 Tex. 133; Hall v. Claiborne, 27 Tex. 217; Reid v. State, 74 Ind. 252.

Where the occupant has been long in possession, and there are no heirs, distributees, or creditors, the public escheator the weight of authority the title vests at once upon the death of the tenant without office found,<sup>1</sup> and parties in possession may be dispossessed by appropriate proceedings.<sup>2</sup>

ESCROW.—See also BILLS AND NOTES; BONDS AND DEEDS.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| I. Definition, 857.                           | VI. How created, 866.                                      |
| II. The Instrument to be delivered, 858.      | VII. Second Delivery, 867.                                 |
| III. Party to whom Delivery may be made, 858. | VIII. No Title passes until Conditions are performed, 867. |
| 1. Grantee, 858.                              | IX. Rights of Innocent Purchaser, 869.                     |
| 2. Obligor or Co-Obligor, 859.                | X. When Title passes, 870.                                 |
| 3. Grantee's Agent, 861.                      | XI. Death or Disability of one of the Parties, 871.        |
| IV. Condition to be performed, 863.           | XII. Statute of Frauds, 871.                               |
| V. Escrows and Deeds Presently, 863.          |  |

I. Definition.—An escrow is an obligatory writing (usually, but not necessarily, in the form of a deed), delivered by the party executing it to a third person, to be held by him until the performance of a specified condition by the obligee, or the happening of a certain contingency, and then to be delivered by the depositor to the obligee, when it becomes of full force and effect.<sup>3</sup> only, not an administrator, can recover the premises. Smith v. Gentry, 16 Ga. 31.

1. 4 Kent Com. *424; White v. White, 2 Met. (Ky.) 185; Stevenson v. Dunlap's Heirs, 7 T. B. Mon. (Ky.) 134; Fry v. Smith, 2 Dana (Ky.), 38; Farrar v. Dean, 24 Mo. 16; State v. Reeder, 5 Neb. 203; Crane v. Reeder, 21 Mich. 24; s. c., 4 Am. Rep. 430; Montgomery v. Dorion, 7 N. H. 475; Colgan v. McKeon, 24 N. J. L. 566; Den v. O'Hanlon, 21 N. J. L. 582; O'Hanlon v. Den, 20 N. J. L. 31; Rubeck v. Gardner, 7 Watts (Pa.), 455; Hinkle's Lessee v. Shadden, 2 Swan (Tenn.), 46; Puckett v. State, 1 Sneed (Tenn.), 355; Holliman v. Peebles, 1 Tex. 673; Sands v. Lynham, 27 Gratt. (Va.) 291; s. c., 21 Am. Rep. 348; Haigh v. Haigh, 9 R. I. 26. See also McCaughal v. Ryan, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 376.

2. Ejectment has displaced the writ of escheat. Bliss Am. Code of N. Y. sec. 1977. Generally conveyances of escheated lands cannot be made under provisions for the conveyance of vacant lands. Straub v. Dimm, 27 Pa. St. 36; Hughes v. State, 41 Tex. 10. See also Armstrong v. Bittenger, 47 Md. 103.

A grant by the State while heirs of the original grantee are living, passes nothing. Hall v. Gittings, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 112.

One of four owners of real estate died, and it escheated. After partition proceedings, the State conveyed an undivided fourth interest in the land. Held, that the grantee was not bound by the partition proceedings, the State not having assented thereto. Holmes v. Pattison, 25 Pa. St. 484.

Authorities for Escheat.—2 Bl. Com. *244-257; Coke on Littleton; 4 Kent Com. *423-426; 3 Washb. Real Prop. *443-446; 29 Am. Dec. 232-235, note.

3. By the Touchstone an escrow is defined to be "where one doth make and seal a deed, and deliver it unto a stranger, until certain conditions be performed, and then to be delivered to him to whom the deed is made, to take effect as his deed." Shepard's Touchstone, 59. This definition is not exactly accurate, as will hereafter appear, and has been considerably criticized by the authorities.

Some of the other definitions of an escrow to be found in the books are, "There may be a conditional delivery, where the deed, though delivered, will not take effect until the happening of some condition annexed thereto. A deed thus delivered is called an escrow." 3 Washburn on Real Property, 584.

"A deed is delivered as an escrow when it is delivered conditionally; i. e., when it is delivered to a third person to keep until something be done by the grantee; and it is of no force until the condition is fulfilled." Jackson v. Catlin, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 248.

"An escrow is a deed delivered to a third person, upon a future condition to be performed by either party. It must be delivered to a stranger, and the condition mentioned." Raymond v. Smith, 5 Conn. 559.

"A delivery may be made to a third person conditional on the performance of an act or the happening of an event, whereupon it is to be delivered to the grantee. Such delivery to a third person is called an escrow." Devlin on Deeds, § 312.

II. The Instrument to be delivered. — The instrument which may be delivered as an escrow is not necessarily a deed, but may be a bond, mortgage, note, or other obligatory writing.<sup>1</sup> A deed, however, is the instrument usually spoken of in the cases.

A deed differs from an escrow in one particular only, and that is in its delivery. To make the deed an escrow, the parties must have bargained and sold, and performed every act necessary to constitute a complete contract. Until both parties have definitely assented to the contract, the instrument executed by the proposed grantor, though in form a deed, is neither a deed nor an escrow; and it makes no difference whether the instrument remains in the possession of the nominal grantor, or is placed in the hands of a third person, pending the proposals for sale or delivery.<sup>2</sup>

III. Party to whom Delivery is made. — 1. Grantee. — A deed or other instrument cannot be delivered to the grantee or obligee as an escrow, to take effect on a condition not appearing on its face. In order to operate as an escrow, the delivery must be made to a stranger (one not a party), otherwise the deed or other instrument will become absolute at law, and parol evidence of conditions qualifying it is inadmissible.<sup>3</sup>

1. Andrews, Adm'x, v. Thayer, 30 Wis. 228; Foy v. Blackstone, 31 Ill. 538; Taylor v. Thomas, 13 Kans. 217; Couch v. Meeker, 2 Conn. 302; Henshaw v. Dutton, 59 Mo. 139; 1 Parsons Notes and Bills, 51.

2. Fitch v. Bunch, 30 Cal. 209; Dear-dorff v. Foresman, 24 Ind. 481; State v. Potter, 63 Mo. 212; Hicks v. Goode, 12 Leigh (Va.), 479.

3. "If I seal my deed, and deliver it to the party himself, to whom it is made, as an escrow upon certain conditions, etc., in this case, let the form of words be what it will, the delivery is absolute, and the deed shall take effect as his deed presently." Shep. Touch. 59; and this is the general rule. McCann v. Atherton, 106 Ill. 32; Jayne v. Gregg, 42 Ill. 413; Blake v. Fash, 44 Ill. 305; Fairbanks v. Metcalf, 8 Mass. 230; Ward v. Lewis, 4 Pick. (Mass.) 520; Arnold v. Patrick, 8 Paige Ch. (N. Y.) 310; Warrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 229; s. c., 55 Am. Dec. 330; Seymour v. Cowing, 1 Keyes (N. Y.), 535; Braman v. Bingham, 26 N. Y. 483; Brackett v. Barney, 28 N. Y. 333; Cocks v. Barker, 49 N. Y. 110; Gilbert v. North Am. Ins. Co., 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 43; Lawton v. Sager, 11 Barb. (N. Y.) 349; Brown v. Reynolds, 5 Sneed (Tenn.), 639; Johnson v. Branch, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 521; Berry v. Anderson, 22 Ind. 36; M. & Ind. Plank Road Co. v. Stevens, 10 Ind. 1; State v. Crisman, 2 Ind. 126; Foley v. Cowgill, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 18; s. c., 32 Am. Dec. 49; Mossman v. Holcher, 49 Mo. 87; State v. Potter, 63 Mo. 212; Jones v. Shaw, 67 Mo. 667; Cin- cinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Iliff, 13 Ohio St. 235; Lloyd v. Geddings, 7 Ohio, 50; Ordinary of New Jersey v. Thatcher, 12 Vroom (N. J.), 403; s. c., 32 Am. Rep. 225; Black v. Shreve, 13 N. J. 457; Jordan v. Pollock, 14 Ga. 145; Duncan v. Pope, 47 Ga. 445; Graves v. Tucker, 18 Miss. 9; Hagood v. Harley, 8 Rich. (S. Car.) 325; Fireman's Insurance Co. v. McMillen, 29 Ala. 147; Dawson v. Hall, 2 Mich. 390; Beers v. Beers, 22 Mich. 42; Herdman v. Bratten, 2 Harr. (Del.) 396; Pawling v. United States, 4 Cranch (U. S.), 319; Brown v. State, 18 Tex. App. 326; Truman v. McCollum, 20 Wis. 360; Hicks v. Goode, 12 Leigh (Va.), 479; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 677; Miller v. Fletcher, 27 Gratt. (Va.) 403; Fuller v. Hollis, 57 Ala. 435. Compare Bibb v. Reid, 3 Ala. 88.

But in Flagg v. Mann, 2 Sum. (U. S.) 486, Justice Story says, "Though there is a technical difficulty in the suggestion of the delivery of the deed to the grantee as an escrow, yet a court of equity will not govern itself exclusively by technical principles of law where the intentions of the parties will be thereby defeated. And see Southern Life Ins. Co. v. Cole, 4 Fla. 359; Fraser v. Davie, 11 S. Car. 56.

And in Dietz v. Farish, 53 How. (N. Y.) Pr 217, the court says, "But it is only in cases falling strictly within the exception stated — that is to say, in cases of delivery of the deed with intent to part with it as a deed, and for the benefit of the grantee — that the law, for reasons of public policy, fails to carry out the intention of the parties

A bond cannot be delivered as an escrow to one of several co-obligees, as a delivery to one is a delivery to all.<sup>1</sup> But where a deed is handed to the grantee, to place it in a third person's hands to keep as an escrow, and it is so received and transmitted, no title vests in the grantee till a second delivery.<sup>2</sup>

2. Co-Obligor. — It has been frequently decided that a deed may be delivered in escrow to a co-obligor, even though such obligor be a principal bondsman.<sup>3</sup> Thus, the agreement of a surety with his principal, that a bond which he has signed shall not be delivered to the obligee until other signatures are secured, has been regarded as creating an escrow, and thus relieving the surety from liability in case the condition is not performed, especially where as expressed in the condition annexed to the delivery, and rejects parol evidence as to such condition. If, though there be a delivery to the grantee, the deed is delivered with the intent that the grantee shall not take it as the deed of the grantor, nor receive it as grantee, but as the agent of the grantor for a special purpose, as, for instance, for the purpose of transmitting it to a third person, to be held by the latter in escrow, the case does not come within the exception. A deed may be deposited with the grantee, or handed to him, for any purpose other than as the deed of the grantor, or as an effective instrument between the parties, without becoming at all operative as a deed," citing Ford v. James, 2 Abb. Ct. of App. 159; Gilbert v. North Am. Fire Ins. Co., 23 Wend. 43; Cocks v. Barker, 49 N. Y. 107; Braman v. Bingham, 26 N. Y. 483; Warrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 229.

And in Brackett v. Barney, 28 N. Y. 341, it is held that the application of the rule is limited by this, that it shall apply to those cases only where it is intended that the conveyance shall ultimately take effect from the force of such delivery, without further act on the part of the grantor.

In Seymour v. Cowing, 4 Abb. App. Dec. 200, it is held that an instrument not under seal may be delivered on conditions to the payee or other person entitled to the benefit of it, so as to render the performance of the conditions necessary to perfect such person's title.

It has also been held that the rule of law, that a deed cannot be delivered to a party to whom it is made, as an escrow, to be the deed of the obligor only on condition, and that in such case the delivery is absolute and the condition nugatory, is applicable only to the case of deeds which are upon their face complete contracts, requiring nothing but delivery to make them perfect according to the intention of the parties; not to deeds which upon their face import that something more is to be done besides delivery to make them competent and perfect contracts according to the intention of the parties. Wendlinger v. Smith, 75 Va. 309; Hicks v. Goode, 12 Leigh (Va.), 479; s. c., 37 Am. Dec. 677.

And where a composition deed was executed on part of a surety, and delivered to a creditor, to be void if the creditors did not sign it, the creditor taking it to get their signatures, it was held to be an escrow of no binding obligation unless all the creditors signed it. Johnson v. Baker, 4 Barn. & Ald. 440.

1. Moss v. Riddle, 5 Cranch (U. S.), 351; Perry v. Patterson, 5 Humph. (Tenn.) 133; State v. Crisman, 2 Ind. 126; Blume v. Bowman, 2 Ired. (N. Car.) L. 338.

2. 3 Washburn on Real Prop. (5th ed.) 318; Shep. Touch. (Prest. ed.) 59; Murray v. Stair, 2 Barn. & C. 82; Den. d. Gibson v. Partee, 2 Dev. & B. (N. Car.) 539; Simonton's Estate, 4 Watts (Pa.), 180; Jackson v. Sheldon, 22 Me. 569; Gilbert v. North Am. F. Ins. Co., 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 43; s. c., 35 Am. Dec. 543; Fairbanks v. Metcalf, 8 Mass. 230. Compare Braman v. Bingham, 26 N. Y. 283.

3. State Bank v. Evans, 15 N. J. L. 155; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 400; Black v. Lamb, 1 Beas. (N. J.) 108; Pawling v. United States, 4 Cranch (U. S.), 219; Duncan's Heirs v. United States, 7 Pet. (U. S.) 435; Roberts v. Jackson, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 478; Blume v. Bowman, 2 Ired. (N. Car.) L. 338; Fertig v. Bucher, 3 Pa. St. 308; Bibb v. Reid, 3 Ala. 88. But see 3 Washburn on Real Property (5th ed.), 318, where it is said, "If an obligor execute an instrument, and deliver it to his co-obligor, or retain it himself, as an escrow, to be delivered to the obligee, it will not have that character. The importance of this will be perceived when it is recollected, that, after a deed has been delivered as an escrow, it is no longer revocable by the maker; but the same will take effect whenever the condition shall have happened, or been complied with, upon which it is to be finally delivered."

the condition is an express one, and the instrument is incomplete upon its face.<sup>1</sup> In most of the cases, however, it is held that the obligor, by his incaution, imparts to the depository of the instrument delivered in escrow such an apparent right to pass it away in an unqualified form to the obligee, as to prevent such obligor from setting up the existence of a condition that was to have been complied with before such instrument became deliverable. It is a question of estoppel.<sup>2</sup>

1. Johnson v. Baker, 4 B. & Ald. 440; Leaf v. Gibb, 4 C. & P. 466; State Bank v. Evans, 3 Green (N. J.) L. 155; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 400; Ayres v. Milroy, 53 Mo. 516; Fletcher v. Austin, 11 Vt. 447; Daniels v. Gower, 54 Iowa, 319; Preston v. Hull, 23 Gratt. (Va.) 600; Crawford v. Foster, 6 Ga. 202; United States v. Hammond, 4 Biss. (U. S.) 283; People v. Bostwick, 32 N. Y. 445. See, however, distinguishing the last cited case, Russell v. Freer, 50 N. Y. 67; Richardson v. Rogers, 50 How. (N. Y.) Pr. 403.

In Pawling v. United States, 4 Cranch (U. S.), 219, Chief Justice Marshall said, "The bond upon its face purports to be delivered absolutely, and it is not to be doubted that obligees would be much more secure against fraud if the evidence that the writing was delivered as an escrow appeared upon its face, than by admitting parol evidence of that fact; but the law is settled otherwise, and is not to be disturbed by this court."

In Smith v. Kirkland, 81 Ala. 345, the court say, "It has been long settled in this State, by a line of decisions which seem to be supported by the weight of authority, that it is a good defence to an action on a bond that a defendant, who is a surety, intrusted the bond to the principal obligor as an escrow, with authority to deliver it only on the express condition that other named persons should join as sureties in its execution prior to such delivery, and that the instrument was delivered to the obligee in violation of this condition. Guild v. Thomas, 54 Ala. 414, and authorities there cited; Bibb v. Reid, 3 Ala. 88. There are two established modifications of this rule: (1) It does not apply to commercial paper which has come into the hands of a bona fide purchaser before maturity, who is without notice of the condition. Marks v. First National Bank, 79 Ala. 550; 1 Daniel Neg. Instruments, 3d ed. §§ 855, 856. (2) It does not apply where the surety, having knowledge or notice of the delivery of the bond, suffers the principal to act under it to the prejudice of the obligee, so as to waive the condition, and thus estop the surety from insisting on the defence. Wright v. Lang, 66 Ala. 389."

To make out the defence of the delivery of a bond as an escrow, the delivery must be upon an express condition; mere expectation, based upon the statement of the principal obligor made casually, and not by way of promise, that other persons would execute the instrument, is not sufficient. Currick v. French, 7 Humph. (Tenn.) 460.

2. State v. Peck, 53 Me. 284; Dair v. United States, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 1; Butler v. United States, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 272; State v. Pepper, 31 Ind. 76; Deardorff v. Foresman, 24 Ind. 481; Webb v. Baird, 27 Ind. 368; Blackwell v. State, 26 Ind. 204; State v. Crisman, 2 Ind. 126; Taylor v. Craig, 2 J. & J. Marsh. (Ky.) 449; Hall v. Smith, 14 Bush (Ky.), 604; Jordan v. Jordan, 10 Lea (Tenn.), 124; Dixon v. Dixon, 3 Vt. 450; Nash v. Fugate, 32 Gratt. (Va.) 595; Cutler v. Roberts, 7 Neb. 4; State v. Potter, 63 Mo. 212; Russell v. Freer, 56 N. Y. 67; Chicago v. Gage, 95 Ill. 593; Trustees v. Sheik, 119 Ill. 579; Smith v. Peoria Co., 59 Ill. 414; Abbey Hom. Assn. v. Willard, 48 Cal. 614; Taylor County v. King (Iowa), 34 N. W. Rep. 774.

A plea by A., a surety on a bond, that he signed and delivered the bond to the principal obligor as an escrow, not to be delivered to the obligor unless B. should sign it, is not good unless the condition is indicated to the obligee by something apparent upon the bond, or is brought to his knowledge by extraneous evidence before he accepts it. State v. Churchill, 48 Ark. 426.

Where a bond has been signed and delivered to the principal obligor by a surety, upon the condition that others, not named in the instrument, shall sign before it is delivered to the obligee, and it is delivered without such signatures being obtained, and received by the obligee without notice of such condition or circumstances which should put him upon inquiry, the condition being imposed will not avail the surety. This is not a question of the power of the principal to deliver the bond in its apparently perfect condition, but simply a question of estoppel. State v. Pepper, 31 Ind. 76; overruling Pepper v. State, 22 Ind. 399.

The question was directly raised in Dair v. United States, 16 Wall. (U. S.) 1, and it was held that the surety was bound. Judge Davis said, "Why should not this principle

3. Grantee's Agent. — A delivery to the agent of the grantee or the party who is to have the benefit of the instrument has the same effect as a delivery directly to the grantee, and cannot create an escrow.<sup>1</sup> But it appears that the agent of the grantee or beneficiary is not by this alone incapacitated from of estoppel, on every reason of justice and good faith, be applied to the covenant on which this action is founded? The bond was in all respects regular, executed according to prescribed forms, and accepted by the officer whose duty it was to take it, as a completed contract. There was nothing on the face of the paper, or in the transaction itself, to put the officer on inquiry, or to raise even a suspicion in his mind that a condition was annexed to the delivery of the instrument. . . . If the sureties who were relied on to perform the conditions in case of the failure of the principals can defeat a recovery on the ground that they did not intend to be bound unless another shared the responsibility, and so told the principal obligors who solicited their signatures. But they did not inform the revenue officer of this condition, and their omission to do so then estops them from setting it up now. The silence which they imposed upon themselves at the time makes their present conduct culpable; for it is not to be doubted that the officer in charge of this business would have acted differently if the information which the principals received had been communicated to him. In the execution of the bond the sureties declared to all persons interested to know that they were parties to the covenant, and bound by it; and, in the belief that this was so, they were accepted, and the license granted. They cannot, therefore, contravene the statement made and relied on without a fraud on their part and injury to another; and where these things occur, the estoppel is imposed by law. . . . The case of Pawling v. U. S., 4 Cranch, 219, has been cited as an authority against the position taken in this case; but it is not so, because the additional securities to be procured in that case were named on the face of the bond, and this fact is stated in the plea. . . . We are aware that there is a conflict of opinion in the courts of this country upon the point decided in this case, but we think we are sustained by the weight of authority. At any rate, it is clear, on principle, that the doctrine of estoppel in pais should be applied to this defence."

For a valuable article upon this subject see 37 Abb. L. J. 188.

Negotiable Instruments. — If a surety signs and delivers a note to his principal, to be held until it is signed by another surety, it is not an escrow; and if the principal delivers it to the obligee before it is signed by the other surety, it will be valid and binding on those who have signed it. Millett v. Parker, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 608.

And generally in such cases, where the question arises between the injured party to the note and a payee who has taken it for value, without notice of the condition, the former, having executed it, and intrusted it to a maker, is regarded as having constituted him his agent to negotiate it; and, having clothed him with the means of perpetrating the fraud, must bear the loss. Tabor v. Merchants' Nat. Bank, 48 Ark. 454; Passumpsic Bank v. Goss, 31 Vt. 315; F. & M. Bank v. Humphrey, 36 Vt. 354; Ayres v. Milroy, 53 Mo. 516; Bank v. Phillips, 17 Mo. 29; Smith v. Moberly, 10 B. Mon. (Ky.) 266; Merriam v. Rockwood, 47 N. H. 81; Gage v. Sharp, 24 Iowa, 15; Daniels v. Grover, 54 Iowa, 319; Steaver v. Weld, 61 Iowa, 704; Deardorff v. Foresman, 24 Ind. 481; Clark v. Brice, 64 Ga. 486; Stoddard v. Kimball, 6 Cush. (Mass.) 469; Clark v. Thayer, 105 Mass. 216; 1 Daniel Neg. Inst. sec. 854.

But there are some decisions not in conformity with this rule. In Perry v. Patterson, 5 Humph. (Tenn.) 133; s. c., 42 Am. Dec. 424, it was held that it constitutes an escrow for one person to sign a note as surety upon the express condition that another person's signature is also to be obtained, and to deliver the note to the maker for that purpose; and a court of equity will enjoin a suit at law upon such a note, if delivered to the payee or his agent, without the other signature, if the note was not taken as a full compliance with his previous agreement to receive a note with two sureties.

A party who signed his name as surety to certain clerk and master's notes, with the understanding that the suretyship should not become operative until another solvent surety had been procured, which, however, was neglected, and judgment by motion taken on the notes, is entitled to relief in equity. Major v. McNeiley, 7 Heisk. (Tenn.) 294.

And see People v. Bostwick, 32 N. Y. 445, directly denying the doctrine of Millett v. Parker, supra.

1. M. & Ind. Plank Road Co. v. Stevens, 10 Ind. 1; Wight v. Shelby, etc., R. Co., 16 B. Mon. (Ky.) 4; Duncan v. Pope, 47 Ga. 445.

becoming, as the agent of both parties, the depository of an escrow.<sup>1</sup>

And it is held that there is not such a personal identity between a corporation and its officers, that a deed may not be placed in the hands of the latter as an escrow until the performance of some condition.<sup>2</sup>

1. In Watkins v. Nash, L. R. 20 Eq. 262, a reconveyance was executed by one of two trustee mortgagees expressly as an escrow, conditional on payment of the mortgage debt, and was left by him with his co-trustee. The co-trustee afterwards also executed the reconveyance expressly as an escrow "upon the faith of an undertaking that the business should be forthwith settled," and handed the reconveyance to the solicitor of the mortgagor. This was held to be a good delivery as an escrow, the vice-chancellor remarking, "It was a delivery to him as an agent for all parties for the purpose of that delivery."

This is also the position taken in the case of Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Ilf, 13 Ohio St. 235, where, in a very well considered opinion, the court hold that the delivery by the releasor of an otherwise perfectly executed deed of release, to a known agent of the releasee, is, in law, a delivery to the principal; and it will be operative, according to its terms, from the time of such delivery, no matter what verbal stipulations or conditions may have accompanied its delivery in respect to the operation of the deed after delivery. But the mere delivery of manual possession of the deed is not necessarily a delivery of the deed; and in cases where an acceptance of an agency from both involves no violation of duty to either, it is competent for the releasor to make the agent of the releasee his own agent, for the purpose of holding the deed as an escrow, and returning it to him, the releasor, in case of the non-performance of a stipulated condition. There is no such personal identity between the releasee and his agent as to preclude the latter from becoming the depository of an escrow. The court, after giving Chancellor Kent's definition of an escrow, says, "The phrase 'a stranger,' used in this definition, or the phrase 'a third person,' which in many of the books is used interchangeably with it, it seems to me can mean no more than this — a stranger to the deed, as not being a party to it; or at most, this — a person so free from any personal or legal identity with the parties to the instrument, as to leave him free to discharge his duty as a depository to both parties, without involving a breach of duty to either. And I believe that no case can be found, no opinion of any jurist can be cited, to the effect that the agent of one party is incapacitated from becoming the depository of an escrow; and if we were to decide that such incapacity existed, we would originate a distinction hitherto unknown to the books." Citing Warrall v. Munn, 5 N. Y. 229; Fairbanks v. Metcalf, 8 Mass. 230; Southern Life Ins. Co. v. Cole, 4 Fla. 359.

2. Southern Life Ins. Co. v. Cole, 4 Fla. 359; Bank of Healdsburg v. Bailhache, 65 Cal. 327.

In the case first cited the court say, "In Bowker v. Burdekin, 11 Mees. & W. 145, Parke, B., says, 'I take it now to be settled, though the law was otherwise in ancient times, as appears by Sheppard's Touchstone, that, in order to constitute the delivery of a writing as an escrow, it is not necessary that it should be done by express words; but you are to look at all the facts attending the execution, to all that took place at the time, and to the result of the transaction: and therefore, though it is in form an absolute delivery, if it can be reasonably inferred that it was delivered not to take effect as a deed till a certain condition was performed, it will nevertheless operate as an escrow.' We find no sufficient proof of the delivery of the deeds in question. The presumption of a delivery as an independent and substantive contract is repelled, not only by the answer, but by the proofs of the contract which was in fact made, and of which the deeds were but an integral part; a contract of which the company had full notice, for it was not an unimportant party thereto. It must be borne in mind that this court is now sitting as a court of equity, which regards not the circumstances or outward ceremonial, but the substance of the act; and therefore we think that, if the respondent had entered the parlor of the company, the president and directors being there in session, and by the most formal act had delivered the deeds in question to the head of the corporation, stating the circumstances under which, and to accomplish which, they were executed, we should be compelled to regard it as a delivery, to take effect only on the final consummation of the contract."

In Andrews v. Thayer, 30 Wis. 228, it is held that the fact that one is a director of a railroad company, or even that he has a limited or quasi agency in behalf of the company to procure the execution of its

IV. Condition to be performed.—It is a general rule that a deed delivered to a third person is viewed as an escrow only in case it is agreed that the deed is to be delivered to the grantee upon the performance by him of a stipulated condition, or the happening of a certain event; hence a deed deposited with a third person by the grantor, to be delivered to the grantee upon the order of the grantor, is not an escrow, as it is deemed in law to be still in the possession of the grantor.<sup>1</sup> In order to create an escrow, the grantor must part with all dominion and control.<sup>2</sup> The condition to make the instrument an escrow must be one to be performed by the grantee.<sup>3</sup> And, where a deed is delivered as an escrow, subsequent instructions by the grantor to the depositary cannot change the original nature of the transaction.<sup>4</sup>

The condition upon which a deed is placed in escrow may be expressed in writing, or rest in parol, or be part in writing and part oral.<sup>5</sup>

V. Escrows and Deeds Presently.—A distinction is recognized by many of the authorities between the delivery of an instrument as the deed of the party, to be delivered to the grantee upon the happening of some contingency or the performance of a condition, and the delivery of the instrument as an escrow, to take effect as a deed upon such contingency happening or condition performed. In the former case it is said to be the party's deed presently; and notes and mortgages, will not prevent his receiving such a note and mortgage as an escrow.

1. Fitch v. Bunch, 30 Cal. 208. See also James v. Vanderheyden, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 385; Arnold v. Patrick, 6 Paige (N. Y.), 310; Evans v. Gibbs, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 405; Carrick v. French, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 459; Johnson v. Branch, 11 Humph. (Tenn.) 521; Loubat v. Kipp, 9 Fla. 60; State v. Thatcher, 41 N. J. L. 403; Graves v. Tucker, 18 Miss. 9; Devlin on Deeds, § 318.

2. Devlin on Deeds, § 324; Campbell v. Thomas, 42 Wis. 437.

Where a conveyance of land, and a bond and mortgage to secure the purchase-money, were left "as escrows" subject to the direction of the parties: held not an escrow. James v. Vanderheyden, 1 Paige, 385; Stinson v. Anderson, 96 Ill. 373.

The person to whom an escrow has been delivered is agent of both grantor and grantee. He does not hold the deed subject to the control of the grantor, who has no power over it, and can no more countermand its delivery than he could that of an absolute deed. Wellborn v. Weaver, 17 Ga. 267; s. c., 63 Am. Dec. 235.

"But it seems that if a person execute a voluntary conveyance without consideration, intending it as a donation of land, and place it in the hands of a custodian, he may withdraw it at any time before delivery; the custodian is not the judge of the performance of the conditions, where delivery is conditional, and he has no power to deliver the instrument until the donor is satisfied. Therefore where a deed was thus executed, and left with a person not to be delivered until signed and acknowledged by the grantor's wife, nor until the grantee should execute a mortgage, as the grantor termed it, securing to him and his wife a life estate in the premises, and the custodian placed the deed on record without authority, after the grantor's death, although it had not been signed and acknowledged by the grantor's wife, and the mortgage had not been delivered, the deed was set aside at the suit of the heirs of the grantor, as a cloud upon their title." Devlin on Deeds, § 325; citing and criticising Haig v. Adrian, 83 Ill. 267.

3. White's Adm'rs. v. Williams, 2 Green Ch. (N. Y.) 376.

But in Raymond v. Smith, 5 Conn. 555, it was held that a conveyance deposited with the agreement that it is to be delivered back to the grantor upon the performance of some condition by him, as give the grantee certain security for a debt, is an escrow.

4. Robbins v. Magee, 76 Ind. 381.

5. Stanton v. Miller, 58 N. Y. 192.

in the latter, not until the event happens or the condition be performed.<sup>1</sup>

Whether, when a deed is executed and not immediately delivered to the grantee, but handed to a stranger, to be delivered to the grantee at a future time, it is to be considered as the deed of the grantor presently, or as an escrow, is often matter of some doubt; and it will generally depend rather on the words and purposes expressed, than upon the name which the parties give to the instrument.<sup>2</sup> When the future delivery is to depend upon the payment of money or the performance of some other condition, it will be deemed an escrow. Where it is merely to await the lapse of time or the happening of some contingency, and not the performance of any condition, it will be generally deemed the grantor's deed presently.<sup>3</sup> But if it be expressly delivered as an

1. Washburn on Real Property (5th ed. vol. 3, p. 318) says, "But a deed is a presently operative deed, and not an escrow, though placed in a stranger's hands, with a direction to deliver it to the grantee at some future day or upon a certain event, unless there be some condition connected with such delivery, the happening of which, by the terms of the authority in the receiver, must precede delivery to the grantee; and until then the deed is to have no effect. . . . The law is thus stated by Perkins: 'If I deliver an obligation or other writing unto a man as my deed, to deliver unto him to whom it is made, when he shall come to York it is my deed presently; and if he shall deliver it to him before he come to York, yet I shall not avoid it; and if I die before he come to York, and afterwards he cometh to York, and he delivereth the deed unto him, it is clearly good, and my deed, and that it cannot be if it were not my deed before my death' (Perkins, § 143)."

In Com. Dig. title Fait, A, 3, it is said, "If it be delivered as his deed, to a stranger, to be delivered to the party upon the performance of a condition, it shall be his deed presently; and if the party obtain it, he may sue before condition performed." And for this the digest cites 2 Roll. 25, L. 30, and 1 Leon. 152.

This doctrine is sustained by Wheelwright v. Wheelwright, 2 Mass. 447; Foster v. Mansfield, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 412; O'Kelly v. O'Kelly, 8 Metc. (Mass.) 436; Murray v. Stair, 2 Barn. & C. 82; Shaw v. Hayward, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 175.

Materiality of Distinction. — "This distinction is material, because if it be an escrow, no title passes to the grantee until the second delivery; while, if it be a present deed, the title upon the happening of the contingency, or upon the lapse of the specified time, passes by relation from the time the instrument was placed in the hands of the depositary or trustee. As the intent of the parties is the point to be ascertained, each case must be decided upon its own peculiar circumstances, upon the language employed, the situation of the parties, the objects to be obtained, and such other facts as may throw light upon the intention of the parties. In a case in New York, — Hathaway v. Payne, 34 N. Y. 92, — Potter, J., reviews the cases at some length, and in delivering the opinion of the court observes, 'The cases can be multiplied, each varying from every other by some nice shade of difference upon the question whether in the present case the deed was an escrow in the hands of the depositary, or whether the depositary was made the trustee of the grantor. In the former case a second delivery is generally required before the title passes; in the latter the title passes at the instant of delivering the deed to the depositary. This, I think, is the true distinction. In the case at bar there was no direction by the grantors that the deed was left as an escrow, and it presents no evidence of intent on the part of the grantors to make this deed an escrow. There is no condition mentioned in the agreement to be performed before delivery which in law would create it an escrow; and presumptions arising from the language of the agreement, being taken most strongly against the grantor, forbids any implication of its being an escrow.'" Devlin on Deeds, § 320.

2. Foster v. Mansfield, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 412; 3 Washburn on Real Property (5th ed.), 319.

3. 3 Washburn Real Prop. (5th ed.) 319; Foster v. Mansfield, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 412. "Still," say the court in this case, with reference to a deed presently, "it will not take effect as a deed until the second delivery; but when thus delivered it will take effect by relation from the first delivery. But the distinction is not now escrow, to be delivered at a future time, it is not a present conveyance.<sup>1</sup>

What the nature of the delivery was, whether absolute or conditional, and what were the actual intentions of the parties, are questions of fact to be settled by a jury, where the evidence leaves any doubt upon the subject.<sup>2</sup>

But there is another line of decisions which hold that a writing delivered by the maker of it, as his deed, to a third person, in confidence that the latter will not deliver it to the grantee until a certain condition is performed, or delivered in such manner, as an escrow, to take effect as the maker's deed, upon a certain matter being done, is in either case an escrow.<sup>3</sup> very material, because where the deed is delivered as an escrow, and afterwards and before the second delivery the grantor becomes incapable of making a deed, the deed shall be considered as taking effect from the first delivery, in order to accomplish the intent of the grantor, which would otherwise be defeated by the intervening incapacity. Wheelwright v. Wheelwright, 2 Mass. 254."

In Prutsman v. Baker, 30 Wis. 644; s. c., 11 Am. Rep. 592, Chief Justice Dixon said, "Many and perhaps most of the authorities make a distinction between cases where the future delivery is to depend upon the payment of money or the performance of some other condition, and cases where it is to depend on the happening of some contingency; holding that the former is an escrow, but that the latter will be deemed the grantor's deed presently. This distinction will be found, however, not to be in all cases correct, since it will frequently happen that it will defeat the manifest intention of the parties which it is conceded should govern."

In Clark v. Gifford, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 310, it is held that a statement by the grantee that he delivers the instrument as his deed, even though he afterwards adds a condition, strongly indicates an intention that it shall take immediate effect. "Such a declaration, however," say the court, "is, I apprehend, but matter of evidence to be weighed in connection with the other circumstances of the case in order to determine the real character of the transaction."

1. 3 Washburn Real Prop. (5th ed.) 320; citing Foster v. Mansfield, 3 Metc. (Mass.) 414; Price v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 34 Ill. 13. See 2 Roll. Abr. 24, pl. 17; Tooley v. Dibble, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 641; Braman v. Bingham, 26 N. Y. 483; Hathaway v. Payne, 34 N. Y. 92; Cook v. Brown, 34 N. H. 460.

2. Clark v. Gifford, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 310; White v. Bailey, 14 Conn. 271; Hatch

v. Hatch, 9 Mass. 310; Furness v. Meek, 27 L. J. Ex. 34.

3. State Bank v. Evans, 3 Green (N. J.) L. 155; s. c., 28 Am. Dec. 400; Johnson v. Baker, 4 Barn. & Ald. 440; Jackson v. Sheldon, 22 Me. 569; Millett v. Parker, 2 Metc. (Ky.) 608.

This is also the position taken by Chancellor Kent. He says, "The distinction on this point is quite subtle, and almost too evanescent to be relied on." 4 Kent Com. 454.

In Stone v. Duvall, 77 Ill. 475, the grantor executed a deed in favor of his married daughter, and handed it to a third person, with instructions to have it recorded, but not to deliver it to the grantee until the grantor's death. Afterwards the grantee died, and the grantor filed a bill against her heirs to set the deed aside. The court decided that the deed was not delivered absolutely, but as a mere escrow; but that the grantor could not revoke it, or set it aside, although he was entitled to the use of the premises until his death. The court said, "The fact that he (the custodian of the instrument) was directed to hold the deed, and not deliver it till the death of Duvall, renders it absolutely certain that the grantor did not intend that the deed should take effect until that time. . .

Was this, then, a delivery as an escrow? Kent, C. J., in the case of Jackson v. Catlin, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 248, says, 'A deed is delivered as an escrow when the delivery is conditional; that is, when it is delivered to a third person to keep until something be done by the grantee: and it is of no force until the condition be fulfilled.' Sheppard, in his Touchstone, p. 58, gives substantially the same definition, except that he does not limit the performance of the act to the grantee, which seems to us to be the more accurate rule. Now, this deed was to be delivered on the death of Duvall. That was the express condition upon which it was placed in the hands of the justice; and, according to the authority in the case

VI. How created. — It is not necessary that the term "escrow" should be used when an instrument is delivered to a third person, to prevent its taking immediate effect. That term evinces more clearly and distinctly than any other the actual intention of the parties; but where such intention is indicated in any other manner, effect will be given to it, unless the technical or legal phraseology employed by the parties renders it impracticable.<sup>1</sup> of Jackson v. Catlin, supra, it was delivered as an escrow, and could not take full effect until the thing happened that was conditional to its delivery; and, Duvall not having died, the deed has not yet vested the title in full, and cannot until that event shall occur. Sheppard lays it down as the law, that 'the delivery is good; for it is said in this case, that, if either of the parties to the deed die before the conditions be performed, and the conditions be after performed, that the deed is good; for there was traditio inchoata in the lifetime of the parties; and postea consummata existens, by the performance of the conditions, it taketh its effect by the first delivery, without any new or second delivery.' But in such a case, the delivery only relates back to the first delivery so as to carry out the intention of the grantor, and to vest the title. It would not give the grantee a right to intervening rents and profits. So in this case the deed is an escrow that will not take effect until Duvall's death, when it may be delivered to the heirs of the grantee, and it will be held to have taken effect so as to have vested such a title in the mother as to pass the fee to them. Until that time, Duvall will be entitled to the use of the property as though he had a life estate, and the children of Mrs. Stone the remainder."

1. Clark v. Gifford, 10 Wend. (N. Y.) 310; Gilbert v. North Am. Fire Ins. Co., 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 43; Jackson v. Catlin, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 259; Jackson v. Sheldon, 22 Me. 569; Fairbanks v. Metcalf, 8 Mass. 230; White v. Bailey, 14 Conn. 271.

In Sheppard's Touchstone, 58, it is said, "The words, therefore, that are used in the delivery must be after this manner: I deliver this (writing) to you as an escrow (namely, scriptum, a mere writing; thus negating the application of the terms to a perfect deed), to deliver (it) to the party as my deed, upon condition that he do deliver to you 20*l.* for me, or upon the condition that he deliver up the old bond that he hath of mine for the same money, or as the case is. Or else it must be thus: I deliver this as an escrow to you, to keep until such a day, etc., upon condition that, if before this day he to whom the escrow is made shall pay to me 10*l.*, or give me a horse, or infeoff me of the manor of Dale, or perform any other condition, that then you shall deliver this escrow to him as my deed. For if, when I shall deliver the deed to the stranger, I shall use these or the like words: I deliver this to you as my deed, and that you shall deliver it to the party upon certain conditions; or, I deliver this to you as my deed, to deliver to him to whom it is made when he comes to London,—in these cases the deed doth take effect presently (because the party hath made the writing his deed by the mode of delivery; for, as he has delivered the writing as his deed, the writing shall have that effect), and the party is not bound to perform any of the conditions (and its operation cannot be defeated or suspended by reason of the conditions; but equity will relieve if the conditions be not performed)."

But the strictness of the old rule is greatly relaxed by modern decisions; and if the instrument is delivered as an escrow, and not in name as a deed, it will, nevertheless, be regarded and construed as a deed from the first delivery, as soon as the event happens, or the consideration is performed upon which the effect had been suspended, if this construction should be then necessary in furtherance of the intentions of the parties. Hatch v. Hatch, 9 Mass. 307; Price v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 34 Ill. 13.

"I take it to be now settled," said Parke, B., in Bowker v. Burdekin, 11 M. & W. 128, "though the law was otherwise in ancient times, that, in order to constitute the delivery of a writing as an escrow, it is not necessary that it should be done by express words; but you are to look at all the facts attending the execution, to all that took place at the time, and to the result of the transaction; and therefore, although it is in form an absolute delivery, if it can be reasonably inferred that it was delivered not to take effect as a deed till a certain condition was performed, it will, nevertheless, operate as an escrow."

What, then, are the circumstances from which such an intention may be inferred? It was inferred, in Johnson v. Baker, 4 B. & Ald. 440, from the circumstance that a composition deed, after being executed by the surety, was delivered to one of the creditors to get it executed by the rest of the creditors. But see Ponsford v. Walton, L.R. 3 C. P. 167.

VII. Second Delivery. — The depository of an escrow is regarded as the agent of both the grantor and the grantee. He is hence as much bound to deliver the instrument to the grantee when the condition is performed, as he is to withhold it until such performance. Consequently no formal delivery to the grantee is generally necessary, as, upon the condition being performed, it is already in the possession of the grantee's agent.<sup>1</sup> The necessity of the second delivery, however, may be created by the words of the first, and in such case equity will enforce the delivery of a deed held as an escrow, where the condition has been fulfilled.<sup>2</sup>

The destruction or detention of the deed by the grantor after performance of the condition, will not prevent the deed taking effect.<sup>3</sup>

VIII. No Title passes until Conditions are performed. — When a deed is delivered merely as an escrow, to take effect upon the performance of some condition by the grantee in the future, no title passes until the condition has been performed. The transaction is incomplete. It is not the grantor's deed until the second delivery. Even if the grantee obtains possession of it before the

In Gudgen v. Besset, 6 E. & B. 896, lease by deed, executed by the lessor, was held to be an escrow, on the ground that it was retained by the lessor, the lessee being let into possession as tenant from year to year only, until he paid a certain sum for fixtures. In this case Coleridge, J., said that the "detention of the parchment by the plaintiff himself is a fact very significant of what the intention was."

1. Laws of escrow, 15 Cent. L. J. 162; 3 Washburn on Real Prop. (5th ed.) 323.

"Whether an actual delivery to the grantee is necessary in order to give effect to the instrument as the deed of the grantor, seems not to be well settled; but the inference would appear to be, that it is not. The indication from the authorities quite clearly is, that it becomes the grantor's deed the moment the conditions have been performed, or the event has happened upon which the grantee is entitled to the possession of it, and that henceforth the depository, or holder, is regarded as the mere agent or trustee for the grantee." Prutsmann v. Baker, 30 Wis. 644; 5 C. C. 11 Am. Rep. 592.

The depository of an escrow is as much bound to deliver the deed on performance of the condition, as he is to withhold it until performance; and being thus in the hands of the agent of the grantee, the deed takes effect the moment the condition is performed, without any formal delivery into the hands of the grantee. Shirley v. Ayres, 14 Ohio, 308; and see Simpson v. McGlathery, 52 Miss. 723; Whitfield v. Harris, 48 Miss. 710.

2. To compel the delivery of deeds and other instruments in favor of persons legally entitled to them is an old head of equity jurisdiction, is a most important branch of that jurisdiction, and is exerted in all suitable cases in favor of persons entitled to the possession of deeds or other instruments. And a case where a deed has been delivered in escrow, upon a condition which has been fulfilled, would seem to be one which especially justifies and calls for the exercise of this jurisdiction, since the withholding of the deed interferes with, and probably prevents, the vesting of the legal title. Stanton v. Miller, 65 Barb. (N. Y.) 58.

After a vendor has been put in possession of the purchased premises, and a deed has been executed and placed in the hands of a third person, to be delivered upon payment of the price, such deed is an escrow. The vendor will have no right to recall it; but the vendee, upon tender of the price, will be entitled to delivery of it. Cannon v. Handley (Cal.), 13 Pac. Rep. 315.

Defendant executed to plaintiff his note and mortgage in settlement of a cause of action against him in her favor. The securities were delivered to a third party, to be handed by him to plaintiff when she had executed and delivered to him a good and sufficient release and satisfaction of her claim. Held, that this was a delivery in escrow, and that, when plaintiff tendered the release to the third party, she was entitled to the possession of the securities. Schmidt v. Deegan (Wis.), 34 N. W. Rep. 83. And see Knopf v. Hansen (Minn.), 33 N. W. Rep. 781.

3. Regan v. Howe, 121 Mass. 424.

condition has been performed, yet it is not the grantor's deed, and he may avoid it by pleading non est factum. The grantee cannot acquire the title by gaining possession of the deed by theft, by fraud, or by the voluntary act of the depository, but only by performance of the condition. The depository has no authority to waive such performance, and an unauthorized delivery by him of the deed which he holds in escrow is entirely ineffectual to pass the title.<sup>1</sup> Until the performance of the condition, the

1. Daggett v. Daggett, 143 Mass. 516; Wheelwright v. Wheelwright, 2 Mass. 447, 452; Foster v. Mansfield, 3 Met. 412; O'Kelly v. O'Kelly, 8 Met. 436; Calhoun v. American Emigrant Co., 93 U. S. 124, 127; Watkins v. Nash, L. R. 20 Eq. 262; 3 Washb. Real Prop. (5th ed.) 321; Jackson v. Rowland, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 666; Cagger v. Lansing, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 421; Green v. Putnam, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 500; People v. Bostwick, 32 N. Y. 450; Smith v. S. R. Bank, 32 Vt. 341; Stiles v. Brown, 16 Vt. 563; Dyson v. Bradshaw, 23 Cal. 528; Fitch v. Bunch, 30 Cal. 208; Carr v. Hoxie, 5 Mason (U. S.), 60; Carter v. Mills, 30 Mo. 439; Townsend v. Hawkins, 45 Mo. 285; Everts v. Agnes, 4 Wis. 343; s. c., 65 Am. Dec. 314; Berry v. Anderson, 22 Ind. 36; State Bank v. Evans, 15 N. J. L. 155; Black v. Shreve, 13 N. J. Eq. 458; Rhodes v. Gardiner, 30 Me. 110; Abbott v. Alsdorf, 19 Mich. 157; Land Co. v. Peck, 112 Ill. 408; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McCullough, 59 Ill. 170; White v. Core, 20 W. Va. 272; Patrick v. McCormick, 10 Neb. 1; Peter v. Wright, 6 Port. (Ind.) 183; Fraser v. Davie, 11 S. Car. 56; Roberts v. Mulenix, 10 Kan. 22.

The delivery of a deed by one in whose possession it is placed to be delivered only upon condition, before a compliance with the condition, is invalid; such deed passes no title to the grantee, and the grantor may assail and overthrow it. In such case the grantor is not estopped to set up the invalidity of the deed by acting upon the belief that the condition imposed had been complied with before its delivery to the grantee. Robbins v. Magee, 76 Ind. 381.

In People v. Bostwick, 32 N. Y. 445, it is held, that, if the custodian be the general agent of the signer in the business to which the instrument relates, his delivery thereof, though contrary to his instructions, would bind his principal. If such custodian be the special agent, and if his agency relate only to the particular document which he is authorized to deliver only on specified conditions, which he does not observe, but delivers the instrument in violation of his instructions, the delivery is a nullity, and will not bind the principal. And in Black v. Shreve, 13 N. J. Eq. 455, Whelpley, J., said, "If the party to be bound suffer the paper to go into the hands of a third person, with authority to deliver it in case certain conditions are complied with, a transfer of the paper without compliance with the conditions is no delivery, for want of authority in the agent to do the act. It is the duty of the party thus accepting a tradition of the instrument to see to it that the agent in the act of transfer is authorized to do it, unless he be the party's general agent." But in Chicago, etc., Land Co. v. Peck, 112 Ill. 408, it is held that the fact that a person is the depository of an escrow, renders him a special and not a general agent, and the person dealing with him is bound to know the extent of his powers. And see Smith v. S. R. Bank, 32 Vt. 341.

In Hinman v. Booth, 21 Wend. (N. Y.) 267, it was held that the condition must be literally fulfilled, and that, where the condition was that the grantee was to give a bond for the support of a third person, and such bond had not been given, the deed could not take effect, although the support had been in fact furnished such third person during his life, and he had deceased.

Where a deed has been delivered without authority, the grantor may recover it by action, or have it removed as a cloud upon his title. Prutsman v. Baker, 30 Wis. 644.

The plaintiff had executed its negotiable coupon bonds, which, by their terms, bore interest at the rate of six per cent per year, and had deposited them in escrow, to be delivered to the defendant only upon the performance of certain conditions. The defendant had wrongfully procured the delivery of the bonds without the performance of the conditions, and had sold and disposed of them for a valuable consideration. Held, that the measure of plaintiff's damages (the bonds still outstanding) is the amount of the bonds, so procured and negotiated, at the time of the recovery; interest being computed at the rate of six per cent upon the principal of the bonds to the date of said judgment, and also upon coupons maturing before the judgment at the legal rate of seven per cent from the time of their maturity until judgment. City of Winona v. Minnesota R. Construction Co., 29 Minn. 68.

legal title is in the grantor;<sup>1</sup> and that the condition upon which he was to receive the deed has been performed, cannot be inferred from the fact that the grantee has the unexplained possession of the deed.<sup>2</sup>

IX. Rights of Innocent Purchaser.—Although it is well settled that an escrow delivered without authority, or obtained fraudulently, passes no title to the grantee or obligee, there is some conflict of opinion as to the right of an innocent purchaser from a grantee who has obtained possession of the escrow without performing the conditions; but the better opinion seems to be, that such a purchaser acquires no title.<sup>3</sup>

1. Devlin on Deeds, § 323; Harkreader v. Clayton, 56 Miss. 383; s. c., 31 Am. Rep. 369; Patrick v. McCormick, 10 Neb. 1.

2. Black v. Shreve, 13 N. J. Eq. 455.

3. It would seem that, where a deed deposited as an escrow is obtained without performance of conditions, by operating upon the fears or credulity of the depository, or by fraudulent collusion with him, or by other undue means, it bears a closer analogy to the case of a forged or stolen deed than it does to that of a fraud practised directly upon the grantor, by means of which he is induced to deliver it. In the latter case the legal title passes, and a subsequent bona fide purchaser is protected. In the former no title passes whatever, and a subsequent purchaser is not protected. Everts v. Agnes, 4 Wis. 343.

In Smith v. South Royaltan Bank, 32 Vt. 341; s. c., 76 Am. Dec. 179, it is held that a deed delivered in escrow, to be delivered to the grantee after the performance of some other act, will not be valid for any purpose until the condition upon which it was to be delivered to the grantee has been performed; and the fact that the deed has since come into the hands of an innocent purchaser for value will not change the rule.

In Berry v. Anderson, 22 Ind. 36, an owner of a tract of land, having subscribed for stock in a railroad company, signed and acknowledged the deed for the land, which, it was agreed, the company should take in payment for the stock subscribed. The deed was placed in the hands of a third person, the grantor telling him that an agent would call in a short time and deliver a certificate for the stock subscribed; and the depository was instructed, upon receipt of the certificate, to deliver the deed to the company's agent. The agent called, but did not have any certificate of stock; he, however, requested the depository to place the deed in his hands, so that he might give it to the attorney of the company for examination. This was done, and the company sold the land. But it was held that the delivery by the de-positary before the performance of the condition did not convey the title, and that the owner was entitled to have his deed, and the deed made by the railroad company to its grantee set aside as void.

The rule that a fraudulent delivery by the depository of a deed deposited as an escrow will not operate to pass the title, even as to a subsequent bona fide purchaser, does not extend so far as to enable the grantor to recognize the grantee's possession under the deed as valid for some purposes, and disclaim it as nugatory for all others, when to do so would result in an injury to an innocent party. Cotton v. Gregory, 10 Neb. 125. And see generally, to effect that such purchaser acquires no title, Titus v. Phillips, 3 C. E. Green (N. J.), 541; Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McCullough, 59 Ill. 166; Abbott v. Alsdorf, 19 Mich. 157; Kellogg v. Steiner, 29 Wis. 629; Walker v. Ebert, 29 Wis. 194; Southern Ins. Co. v. Cole, 4 Fla. 359; Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Iliff, 13 Ohio St. 235,—even in the case of a negotiable instrument. Burson v. Huntington, 21 Mich. 415; Chipman v. Tucker, 38 Wis. 43.

In some cases, however, it has been held that a deed delivered by one with whom it has been left in escrow, before the performance of the condition on which the delivery was authorized, is not void in the hands of an innocent purchaser. Blight v. Schenck, 10 Pa. St. 285; s. c., 51 Am. Dec. 478; Peter v. Wright, 6 Port. (Ind.) 183.

In Bailey v. Crim, 9 Biss. (U. S.) 95, it was held that where persons exchanging lands place their deeds in escrow, and transfer their possession, and the depository records one of the deeds without the knowledge of the grantor, and the grantee procures a loan on the land, a mortgagee in good faith acquires a valid lien upon the land, though the mortgagor misappropriates the money.

And generally, as to bills and notes, the defence of an improper delivery or failure of the contingency under these circum-

Such an instrument may, however, be used as evidence of a contract to sell and purchase land, and thus have an effect as a writing signed by the parties.<sup>1</sup>

X. When Title passes. — Where an instrument has been deposited as the writing or escrow of the grantor, it does not become the grantor's deed, and no title passes until the event has happened upon which it is to be delivered to the grantee, or until the second delivery — or re-delivery, as it is sometimes called — by the depository to the grantee.<sup>2</sup> But in certain cases, by fiction of law, the writing is allowed to take effect from the first delivery. This relation back to the first delivery is permitted, however, only in case of necessity, and where no injustice will be done, to avoid injury to the operation of the deed from events happening between the first and second delivery.<sup>3</sup> And it may be stated that, so far as the capacity of the grantor is concerned, the deed is to take effect from the first delivery.<sup>4</sup> stances, though good against the payee, will not avail against a bona fide holder for value. Vallett v. Parker, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 615; Fearing v. Clark, 16 Gray (Mass.), 74; Clarke v. Johnson, 54 Ill. 296.

1. Cagger v. Lansing, 57 Barb. (N. Y.) 421.

2. Prutsmann v. Baker, 30 Wis. 644; Everts v. Agnes, 4 Wis. 343; Frost v. Beekman, 1 Johns. (N. Y.) Ch. 288; Green v. Putnam, 1 Barb. (N. Y.) 500; James v. Vanderheyden, 1 Paige (N. Y.), 385; Perkins, § 143; Shep. Touch. 59.

If, at any time between the first and second delivery, the property is levied upon by a creditor of the grantor, he will hold by virtue of such levy in preference to the grantee mentioned in the deed. Jackson v. Rowland, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 666; Frost v. Beekman, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 287; Jackson v. Catlin, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 248.

A., the owner of a tract of land, executed a deed as an escrow, which purported to convey an undivided two-thirds interest in the property to his children. Upon the back of the deed the following provision was indorsed; viz., "The foregoing deed is not to be delivered, recorded, or take effect, except in the event of the death or the written order of the said A., and is placed in the hands of B. as an escrow (signed) A." This deed was not recorded until after A's death, which occurred in 1872. After the execution of said escrow, A. executed a deed of relinquishment of a right of way over the property described in the escrow to a railroad company, and the company went into possession under the deed of relinquishment in 1870, and it and its successors held possession ever since, but the deed was not recorded. Held, that said deed was valid, and that the grantees in the escrow took subject to the railroad's right of way. Blair v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 24 Fed. Rep. 539.

3. Prutsmann v. Baker, 30 Wis. 644. See "Death or Disability of one of the Parties," infra.

In Price v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 34 Ill. 13, it was held that where it is the intention of the parties that the conveyance is, after the performance of the condition, to take effect from the date of delivery in escrow, their intention will control.

If equity requires it, the second delivery will be made to relate back to the first, so as to protect the grantee against intervening claims. Simpson v. McGlathery, 52 Miss. 723.

While a deed left in escrow is frequently held to relate back for the purpose of avoiding the difficulty of incapacity of the grantor, or his death occurring before the deed is handed over by the depository, yet, except for that formal purpose, there is no universal relation; and so far as the authorities go, ancient or modern, they all assume that the relation back is founded on the unintended or unexpected occurrence of some disability without which the second delivery would have been the act, at its date, of the grantor, prevented without his original design. Taft v. Taft, 59 Mich. 185.

4. Devlin on Deeds, § 328.

A grantor executed a deed, his wife joining in the conveyance, and deposited it in escrow. Before the payment of the purchase-money and the acceptance of the deed, the wife of the grantor died, and he remained; but it was held that the claim of the second wife to dower was taken away by relation of the deed back to the time of its delivery in escrow. Vorheis v. Ketch, 8 Phila. (Pa.) 554.

"If at the time of the first delivery the

XI. Death or Disability of one of the Parties. — An original delivery cannot be made by or on behalf of a dead man. But when the condition on which an original delivery made in the lifetime of a party transpires, the conditional delivery becomes absolute, and the absolute delivery takes effect against the contracting parties from the date of the delivery of the contracts as escrows, notwithstanding the death of one of the contractors before the happening of the condition.<sup>1</sup>

If a feme covert deliver a deed as an escrow, and become discover before the second delivery, such second delivery would give no validity to the deed, the first being void.<sup>2</sup>

XII. Statute of Frauds. — The delivery of a deed of land in escrow, to be delivered to the purchaser on performance of certain agreements on his part, does not take an oral contract of sale out of the statute of frauds, the terms of the contract not appearing from the deed.<sup>3</sup> lessor be a feme sole, and before the second delivery she take a husband, or if before the second delivery she dieth, in this case, if the second delivery shall not have relation to this intent to make it the deed of the lessor ab initio, but only from the second delivery, the deed in both cases should be void, and therefore in such cases, for necessity, and ut res magis valeat quam pereat, to this intent, by fiction of law, it shall be a deed ab initio; and yet, in truth, it was not a deed until the second delivery." Butler & Baker's Case, 3 Rep. 34. And the same rule applies if the party who makes the deed dies before the event happens when it is to be delivered. 3 Washburn on Real Prop. (5th ed.) 324, citing 3 Prest. Abst. 65; Butler & Baker's Case, 3 Rep. 36; Perryman's Case, 5 Rep. 84 b; Perkins, §§ 11, 138-140; Shep. Touch. Prest. ed. 59; Jackson d. Gratz v. Catlin, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 248, 259; Hatch v. Hatch, 9 Mass. 307, 310; 1 Wood, Conv. 197; Jackson d. Russell v. Rowland, 6 Wend. (N. Y.) 666; Halford v. Parker, Hob. 246 a, and Williams's note; Shirley v. Ayres, 14 Ohio, 307; Ruggles v. Lawson, 13 Johns. (N. Y.) 285. See Carr v. Hoxie, 5 Mason (U. S.), 60; Evans v. Gibbs, 6 Humph. (Tenn.) 405; Frost v. Beekman, 1 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 288; Hall v. Harris, 5 Ired. (N. Car.) Eq. 303; Price v. Pittsburg, etc., R. Co., 34 Ill. 13.

1. Bostwick v. McEvoy, 62 Cal. 496.

"If a man delivers a bond as an escrow to be delivered on condition performed, before which the obligor or obligee dies, and the condition is afterwards performed, here there could be no second delivery, yet it is the deed of the obligor from the first delivery, although it was only inchoate, but it shall be deemed consummated by the performance of the condition." Parsons,

C. J., in Wheelwright v. Wheelwright, 2 Mass. 454; s. c., 3 Am. Dec. 66; Hatch v. Hatch, 9 Mass. 310; s. c., 6 Am. Dec. 67; Bodwell v. Webster, 13 Pick. (Mass.) 414, 415; Harkreader v. Clayton, 56 Miss. 383; Lindley v. Graff (Minn.), 34 N. W. Rep. 26.

So, says Coke, "If the grantee dies between the first delivery and the deed becoming absolute, the deed is good, for there was traditio inchoata in the life of the parties; sed postea consummata existens by the performance of the condition takes its effect by force of the first delivery, without any new delivery." Perryman's Case, 5 Co. 84 b; Peck v. Goodwin, Kirby (Conn.), 64.

2. Butler & Baker's Case, 3 Rep. 34; Com. Dig. Fait. B. 5; Jennings v. Bragg, Cro. Eliz. 447; 3 Washburn on Real Prop. (5th ed.) 324.

3. Thomas v. Sowards, 25 Wis. 631; Campbell v. Thomas, 42 Wis. 437. In the latter case Ryan, J., said, "I have no doubt that an escrow may be proved by parol. The difficulty here is not in the proof of the alleged escrow, but in the proof of the contract of sale and purchase itself. When there is a valid contract under the statute, the papers constituting it, or executed in compliance with it, may be delivered in escrow, and the escrow may be proved by parol. But the validity of the escrow rests on the validity of the contract, and the validity of the contract rests on the statute. I am informed that it was argued, on the rehearing, that the contract sought to be enforced for the respondent did not or might not so bind him that the appellant could have enforced it. A contract, even by deed poll, essentially implies two parties, and the remedies upon it must be mutual; and to concede that the

ESPECIAL PRIVILEGES—ESPLEES—ESQUIRE.

ESPECIAL PRIVILEGES.<sup>1</sup>

ESPLEES.—The products of lands; as the hay of meadows, herbage of pasture, corn of arable land, rents, services, etc.; also the lands, etc., themselves.<sup>2</sup>

ESQUIRE.—A title applied by courtesy to officers of almost every description,<sup>3</sup> to members of the bar, and others. No one is entitled to it by law; and, therefore, it confers no distinction in law.<sup>4</sup> appellant could not have enforced this contract, is to concede that the respondent cannot; it is to concede that there is no contract. If there be a valid contract for the respondent, it is equally so for the appellant. If the respondent can have specific performance of it, so could the appellant have had. Let us see how that would work under the statute. An avowed vendor assumes to deliver in escrow to a stranger a conveyance of land, reciting a consideration. He accompanies it with a statement that the assumed vendee has bargained for the purchase, and is to pay so much money, or to execute such a mortgage, or to convey such another estate, to satisfy the consideration, at such a time, when the conveyance is to be delivered. The stranger receives the deposit in good faith, crediting the statement made with it. And by and by, when the alleged vendee repudiates the whole thing, and denies it upon oath, the depository not unnaturally takes him for a knave, trying to evade his contract by perjury; and yet all the while the assumed vendee may know nothing of the matter until he is sued for specific performance of a contract which he may never have made. In such a case the parties may contradict each other, one or the other necessarily attempting just such fraud, and committing just such perjury, as the statute was passed to prevent. It is easy to assume that in such a case the truth would appear. The statute assumes that it may not appear, and my observation inclines me to share the doubt of the statute."

The fact that, on the making of a parol agreement for the sale of land in consideration of the delivery of lumber, the vendor of the land has deposited a deed in escrow of the land, and a bill of sale of the chattels on the farm does not take the contract out of the operation of the statute of frauds. Popp v. Swanke (Wis.), 31 N. W. Rep. 916.

But in Cannon v. Handley, 13 Pac. Rep. 315, it was held that an oral contract for the sale of land, where a deed is executed in escrow at the time of the contract, is not within the statute of frauds.

1. The term "especial privileges," in the Act of Congress of March 2, 1867, which provides that "the legislative assemblies of the several Territories shall not, after the passage of this act, grant private charters or especial privileges," refers to the granting of monopolies, such as ferries, trade-marks, the exclusive right to manufacture certain articles, or to carry on certain business in a particular locality to the exclusion of others. The granting of a charter to a municipal corporation does not confer any especial privileges within the meaning of the act. Elk Point v. Vaughn, 1 Dak. 118.

2. Whart. Law Dict.; Fosgate v. Herkimer Man. & Hydraulic Co., 9 Barb. (N. Y.) 293.

3. In Commonwealth v. Vance, 15 S. & R. (Pa.) 36, it was held that an act requiring the occupation or profession of a possessor of a slave to be registered was complied with by the registration of such possessor as an esquire, if he was an associate justice, though he was also a farmer. See also Wilson v. Belinda, 3 S. & R. (Pa.) 396. In an action for slander, the charge was thus laid: "You have taken a false oath against me in a suit before Squire H., and sworn me out of some money" (thereby meaning in a suit . . . before P. H., Esquire, he, the said plaintiff, had sworn falsely and committed perjury). It was held that this was a sufficient averment of the magisterial character of P. H. Said the court, "The import of the word esquire, or squire, is, in popular parlance, of which the courts will take notice, precisely the same as that of justice." Call v. Foresman, 5 Watts (Pa.) 331.

4. Bouv. Law Dict.

An Esquire in England.—Esquires and gentlemen are confounded together by Sir Edward Coke, who observes that every esquire is a gentleman; and a gentleman is defined to be one . . . who bears coat-armour. . . . It is, indeed, a matter somewhat unsettled what constitutes the distinction, or who is a real esquire; for it is not an estate, however large, that confers this rank upon its owner. Camden, who was himself a herald, distinguishes them the most accurately; and he reckons up four sorts of them, — 1. The eldest sons of knights, and their eldest sons in perpetual succession; 2. The eldest sons of younger sons of peers, and their eldest sons in like perpetual succession; . . . 3. Esquires created by the king's letters-patent or other investiture, and their eldest sons; 4. Esquires by virtue of their offices, as justices of the peace, and others who bear any office of trust under the crown, and are named esquires by the crown in their commission or appointment. To these, however, may be added barristers-at-law, and the esquires of knights of the bath, each of whom constitutes three at his installation; and all foreign peers. For not only these, but the eldest sons of peers of Great Britain (though frequently titular lords), are only esquires in the law, and must be so named in all legal proceedings. 2 Steph. Com. 615; 1 Bl. Com. 406.

ESSENTIAL.<sup>1</sup>*ESTABLISH.<sup>2</sup>

The fact that a man is a miller, or a farmer, or an ironmonger, does not prevent his being an esquire. In re Doughty's Est., 18 L. T. N. S. 188; Perrins v. M. & Gen. Trav. Ins. Co., 2 El. & El. 317.

1. Essential Oil. — Nitro-benzole, a manufacture from benzole and nitric acid, is not an essential oil under the tariff act of July 12, 1862. Murphy v. Arnson, 96 U. S. 131.

2. The ordinary meaning of the word "establish" is to settle certainly, or fix permanently, what was before uncertain, doubtful, or disputed. Smith v. Forrest, 49 N. H. 237; Suc. of Weigel, 18 La. Ann. 49.

Under an act which declared that "the relation of husband and wife amongst persons of color is established," it was held that the word "established" might be interpreted to signify recognized, acknowledged, ratified, and confirmed. "Such significance," said the court, "is supported, not only by judicial construction, but by common use and on the best authorities." It, however, remarked that, "upon few words could there be more room for argument than upon the word 'establish.'" Davenport v. Caldwell, 10 S. Car. 389.

"Establish, as used in the Constitution of the United States. — In 1 Story on Const. § 454, the word "establish" is given as an example of a word that is used in the Constitution with various meanings. "Thus, in the preamble, one object of the Constitution is avowed to be 'to establish justice,' which seems here to mean to settle firmly, to fix unalterably, or rather, perhaps, as justice, abstractly considered, must be considered as forever fixed and unalterable, to dispense or administer justice. Again, the Constitution declares that Congress shall have power 'to establish an uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies,' where it is manifestly used as equivalent to make, or form, and not to fix or settle unalterably and forever. Again, 'Congress shall have power to establish post-offices and post-roads,' where the appropriate sense would seem to be to create, to found, and to regulate, not so much with a view to permanence of form as to convenience of action. Again, it is declared that 'Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion,' which seems to prohibit any laws which shall recognize, found, confirm, or patronize, any particular religion, or form of religion, whether permanent or temporary, whether already existing or to arise in future. In this clause, establishment seems equivalent in meaning to settlement, recognition, or support. And again, in the preamble, it is said, 'We, the people, etc., do ordain and establish this Constitution,' etc., where the most appropriate sense seems to be to create, to ratify, and to confirm."

Establishment or Etablissement. — An ordinance or statute. Especially used of those ordinances or statutes passed in the reign of Edw. I. Co. 2d Inst. 156; Britt. c. 21. That which is instituted or established for public or private use. Etablissement is also used to denote the settlement of dower by the husband upon his wife. Britt. c. 102; Bouv. Law Dict.

Establishment is not Incorporation. — As used in the Acts of Massachusetts against counterfeiting, the terms "incorporated banking company in this State," and "banking company established in this State," are not identical. "The former necessarily implies a bank organized under a legal charter or authority, in the form of a special act, or some general law authorizing and giving a corporate charter to such association. The term 'established' may imply nothing more than a voluntary association organized by its own independent agreement, and not in pursuance of any statute [of] incorporation." Commonwealth v. Simonds, 11 Gray (Mass.), 306.

The constitution and statutes of Minnesota recognize a similar distinction between organized and established counties. "The establishing of a county is the setting apart of certain territory to be in the future organized as a political community, or quasi corporation for political purposes; and the organizing of a county is the vesting in the people of such territory such corporate rights and powers." State v. Parker, 25 Minn. 221; State v. McFadden, 23 Minn. 40.

Definition.*ESTABLISH.*Definition.

The Establishment of a Dispensary, as used in a will in which a bequest was made for that purpose, was held to include the procuring of a site and the erection of suitable buildings. Beckman v. People, 27 Barb. (N. Y.) 264.

Established Highway. — An allegation in an indictment that the road described was and is "a common highway, in Putnam County, in this State, made and laid out for the people of this State, to go, return, and pass, at their free pleasure and will, on foot, on horseback, and in vehicles," is equivalent to an allegation that the road was and is an "established highway" under a statute punishing the obstruction of any public road or established highway, and providing for the removal of the obstruction. Palatka, etc., R. Co. (Fla.) 3 South Rep. 158.

Established by Law, ex vis terminorum, means declared by legislative enactment. Dane v. Smith, 54 Ala. 49.

An Established or Usual Place of Business. — Under a statute which permits actions to be brought by or against such a corporation, in any county in which it has "an established or usual place of business," a turnpike company exercising its franchise in several counties, and having in one of them a toll-house, where it keeps an agent to collect tolls and sell tickets, and where its treasurer sometimes pays workmen whom it employs, may there sue or be sued, although it has an office in another county, where its books are kept, and its meetings are held, and which is used by its treasurer and superintendent. Rhodes v. S. Turnpike Co., 98 Mass. 95.

To establish and regulate Markets. — A general power conferred upon cities to "establish and regulate markets and market-places," is a continuing power; and its exercise at one period by establishing a market-place, and erecting a market-house in a particular locality, will not prevent a city from removing such building, or abandoning such locality for market purposes. Gall v. Cincinnati, 18 Ohio S. 563; Wartman v. Philadelphia, 33 Pa. St. 210.

Under a charter giving to a city power "to establish and regulate markets," it was held that the city had the power to purchase market-grounds. "Although these words" [to establish], said the court, "may mean simply to confirm, yet their more common import is, permanently to create or found. In the connection in which they stand here, at least, this would seem to be their natural meaning, because otherwise they would add nothing to the power conferred by the words 'to regulate.' . . . Assuming then . . . that the words 'to establish' mean to found originally, it may still be said that it does not follow that the power to purchase land is conferred, because markets may be, and frequently are, established in cities and villages upon the lands of private individuals. This view, however, would leave it at the option of individuals whether any market should exist or not. If no one was willing to have a market upon his premises, the power of the common council to establish markets would be annulled. But it is . . . a sound rule that when power is given to a corporation to do an act, it has a right to do whatever is necessary to accomplish the act. . . . A market is a public place for the sale of commodities. Without the power to procure a suitable place, the first step could not be taken towards the establishment or foundation of a market. The power to establish, therefore, must of necessity include that of procuring the requisite site." Ketchum v. Buffalo, 14 N. Y. 361; People v. Lowber, 28 Barb. (N. Y.) 65.

Manufacturing Establishments — Under a statute taxing manufacturing establishments, it was held that the pipes of a gas-company used by them to convey the gas from the place where manufactured to the consumers, were taxable. "In order that a particular article or class of articles," said the court, "should constitute a part of a manufacturing establishment, it is not essential that they be actually employed in the process of manufacture. The establishment includes, also, all the usual and necessary appliances for storing, measuring, weighing, packing, and delivering the manufactured article, after the process of manufacture is completed." Memphis Gaslight Co. v. State, 6 Coldw. (Tenn.) 310.

The interpretation clause of the Regulation of Labor in Print Works Act, 8 & 9 Vict. c. 29, provides that "the words 'incidental printing process' shall be taken to mean any process of preparing, dyeing, etc., . . . incident or necessary to the completion of the chief process of printing figures, etc., . . . carried on within buildings, sheds, fields, or portions of ground lying adjacent to each other, or forming part or parts of the establishment where the chief process of printing as aforesaid is carried on." It was held, that a factory where the preliminary processes of calico-printing were per-

ESTATES.

- I. Definition, 875.
- II. Estate in Fee-simple, 876.
  - 1. Rule in Shelley's Case, 878.
  - 2. A Base, or Determinable, Fee, 878.
- III. Estate Tail, 879.
- IV. Estates for Life, 880.
  - 1. Estates pur autre vie, 880.
- V. Estates for Years, 884.
- VI. Estates at Will, 887.
  - 1. Estates from Year to Year, 888.
- VII. Estate at Sufferance, 890.
- VIII. Joint Estates, 891.
  - 1. Joint Tenancy, 891.
  - 2. Tenancy in Common, 892.
- 3. Coparcenary, 894.
- 4. Estates by the Entirety, 894.
- IX. Estate in Severalty, 895.
- X. Estate of Freehold, 895.
- XI. Estate of Inheritance, 895.
- XII. Estate by Elegit, 895.
- XIII. Estate in Possession. — Estate in Expectancy, 896.
- XIV. Estate in Reversion, 896.
- XV. Estate in Remainder, 897.
  - 1. Vested Remainder, 898.
  - 2. Contingent Remainder, 899.
- XVI. Estate on Condition, 900.

I. Definition. — An estate in land is the degree, quantity, nature, and extent of interest which a person has in real property.<sup>1</sup>

Estates are classified as follows: estate in fee; estate tail; estate for life, — estate pur autre vie, dower, curtesy, homestead; estate for years; estate at will, — estates from year to year; estate at sufferance; joint estates, — joint tenancy, tenancy in common, coparcenary, estate by entirety; estate in severalty; estate on condition, — mortgage; estate of freehold; estate of inheritance; formed, belonging to the same firm as the factory at which the principal process was performed, though situated at a distance of seven miles from it, was a "part of the establishment where the chief process" was carried on. Hoyle v. Oram, 12 C. B. N. S. 124.

Permanently established. — By an act of the Legislature of Ohio, passed in 1846, it was provided, that, upon the fulfilment of certain terms and conditions by the proprietors or citizens of the town of C., in M. County, the county-seat should be "permanently established" at that town. Those terms and conditions having been shortly afterwards complied with, the county-seat was established accordingly. In 1874 the legislature passed an act providing for the removal of the county-seat to Y. Certain citizens of C. thereupon filed a bill setting forth that the act of 1846, and the proceedings under it, constituted within the meaning of the constitution an executed contract, the obligation of which was impaired by the later act, and praying for a perpetual injunction against the contemplated removal. It was held, that even if a contract was created, which was denied, it was satisfied on the part of the State by establishing the county-seat at C., with the intent that it should remain there, but that there was no stipulation that it should remain there in perpetuity. Said the court, "Domicile is acquired by residence and the animus manendi, the intent to remain. A permanent residence is acquired in the same way. In neither case is the idea involved that a change of domicile or of residence may not thereafter be made. . . . So the county-seat was permanently established at C. when it was placed there, with the intention that it should remain there. This fact, thus complete, was in no wise affected by the further fact, that, thirty years later, the State changed its mind, and determined to remove, and did remove, the same county-seat to another locality." Newton v. Commissioners, 100 U. S. 548.

1. Bouv. Law Dict. Besides this precise use of the word, it is often more loosely used to indicate, not merely the interest in land, but the land itself; e.g., "My estate at A." Godfrey v. Humphrey, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 537. So the word "estate" is in common use in wills, to designate all the testator's property. A devise of "all my estate" generally passes both the real and personal property of the testator. Jackson v. De Lancey, 11 Johns. (N. Y.) 365; Andrews v. Brumfield, 32 Miss. 107; Blewer v. Brightman, 4 McCord (S. Car.), 60. But the word may pass real or personal property, or both, according to the way in which it is used in different clauses of the will. Stump v. Deneale, 2 Cranch, C. C. 640; Den v. Snitcher, 14 N. J. L. 53.

A devise of a "factory estate" passes merely the land and buildings, and not the machinery. Brainerd v. Cowdry, 16 Conn. 1.

estate in remainder; estate in reversion; estate in possession; estate in expectancy; estate by elegit.

II. Estate in Fee-simple.—This is the largest estate in land known to the law. It is an estate of inheritance unlimited in duration. The owner has full power of disposal of it during his life; and on his death, if undisposed of, it goes to his heirs. At the present day, as tenure<sup>1</sup> in its proper sense does not exist in this country, an estate in fee cannot be created anew, but the rules formerly applicable to the creation of such estates now apply to the transfer. It is an absolute rule of law, that no estate in fee can be created or transferred by deed unless the conveyance is expressed to be to the grantee and his heirs. Without the word "heirs," the estate conveyed is merely for the life of the grantee.<sup>2</sup> Where the gift is by will, this rule is not applied in its strictness, and any words which may be construed to mean heirs will pass a fee.<sup>3</sup> In this country, however, this rule has been very generally broken down for deeds or wills, or both, by statute.<sup>4</sup> In case of a conveyance to a corporation, the word "heirs" is obviously unnecessary.<sup>5</sup>

1. In some States a statute declares that land is held allodially. Wis. Rev. St. p. 313. In Pennsylvania this was decided to be the common law of the State. Wallace v. Harmstead, 44 Pa. St. 492; 4 Kent, Com. 3.

2. "Heirs."—Sisson v. Donnelly, 36 N. J. L. 432; Edwardsville R. R. Co. v. Sawyer, 92 Ill. 377; Merritt v. Disney, 48 Md. 344; Sedgwick v. Laffin, 10 Allen (Mass.), 430. See, however, Stevens v. Dewing, 2 Vt. 411, where a lease "to A. and his heirs for 1,000 years, or as long as wood grows and water runs," was held to pass a fee.

In New Hampshire the rule has been distinctly repudiated. In Cole v. Lake Co., 54 N. H. 242, 290, the court say, "When a case arises where the intention of the grantor to convey a fee-simple is clearly shown by other words in the deed, we think the court have no power to say a fee shall not pass, because he has not, in addition, inserted this technical word. This rule, which would destroy the plainly expressed contract of the parties in the present case, is not adapted to our institutions, or the condition of things in this State, and it never became a part of the law of this State." In Tennessee the court, in construing a gift in a deed to "A. and his children forever," recognize the rigid rule of law, but say that the omission of the word "heirs" is an evident mistake of an ignorant grantor; and equity will reform the instrument, so as to include the term "heirs." Cromwell v. Winchester, 2 Head (Tenn.), 389. So in Guthrie v. Guthrie, 1 Call (Va.), 7, a power to sell was construed to convey a fee without the use of the word "heirs."

3. Godfrey v. Humphrey, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 537; Jackson v. Housel, 17 Johns. (N. Y.) 281. See Urich's App. 86 Pa. St. 386, where it was held that a life estate was given by a will, although the word "heirs" was used.

4. In only two States, Connecticut and Louisiana, is the statute-book silent on this point. The reader is referred to the statutes of his own State. These statutes seem to fall into two classes: in one class, the use of the word "heirs" is dispensed with in both deeds and wills; and in the other, the statute refers to wills only. New York is a State in the former class. Its statute reads, § 1. "The term 'heirs,' or other words of inheritance, shall not be requisite to create or convey an estate in fee; and every grant or devise of real estate, or any interest therein, hereafter to be executed, shall pass all the estate or interest of the grantor or testator, unless the intent to pass a less estate or interest shall appear, by express terms, or be necessarily implied in the terms of the grant." III. Rev. St. N. Y. p. 2205. See Karmuller v. Krotz, 18 Iowa, 352, where, by analogy of the statute, it was held that the word "heirs" was not necessary to pass a right of way in fee.

The statute of Massachusetts belongs to the second class. It reads, "Every devise shall be construed to convey all the estate which the testator could lawfully devise in the lands mentioned, unless it clearly appears by the will that he intended to convey a less estate." Mass. Pub. Stat. Ch. 127, § 24.

5. Corporation.—Wilcox v. Wheeler, 47 N. H. 438; Cong. Soc. v. Stark, 34 Vt.

So, too, in case of a conveyance to a trustee, no particular form of words is necessary to create a trust, and a trustee will take a fee without the word "heirs" when a less estate will not be sufficient to satisfy the purposes of the trust; and, per contra, the trust estate continues in equity no longer than the thing sought to be accomplished by the trust demands.<sup>1</sup> So, too, where a devisee of lands is personally charged with the payment of money, the devisee takes a fee whatever the expression used.<sup>2</sup> In equity, the necessity of the use of the word "heirs" is sometimes dispensed with.<sup>3</sup>

It is against the policy of the law to allow restraints to be imposed on the alienation of an estate in fee. No one is allowed to create what is, in the intendment of the law, an estate in fee, and deprive the tenant of those essential rights and privileges of free alienation that the law annexes to it. No condition or conditional limitation against alienation attached to a fee-simple is good.<sup>4</sup>

243; Overseers v. Sears, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 122, 126. See Nicoll v. N. Y. & Erie R. Co., 12 N. Y. 121, where a corporation took a fee, though its existence was limited by its charter to fifty years. The English statutes of mortmain did not extend to this country, — Jackson v. Phillips, 14 Allen (Mass.), 539, 591, — except in Pennsylvania and Canada, where corporations cannot hold land except by special statute. Methodist Ch. v. Remington, 1 Watts (Pa.), 218; Anderson v. Todd, 2 U. C. Q. B. 82.

1. Trustee. — Kirkland v. Cox, 94 Ill. 400 (will); Sears v. Russell, 8 Gray (Mass.), 86 (will); Angell v. Rosenbury, 12 Mich. 241, 266 (deed); North v. Philbrook, 34 Me. 532 (deed); Doe v. Considine, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 458, 471; Koenig's App. 57 Pa. St. 352, where the court says, "It matters not what may be the nominal duration of an estate given by will to a trustee. It continues in equity no longer than the thing sought to be secured by the trust demands." Fisher v. Fields, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 495.

2. "When the charge is upon the estate, and there are no words of limitation, the devisee takes only an estate for life; but where the charge is on the person of the devisee, in respect of the estate in his hands, he takes a fee on the principle that he might otherwise be a loser." Jackson v. Bull, 10 Johns. (N. Y.) 148, 151; Wait v. Belding, 24 Pick. (Mass.) 129.

3. Defraunce v. Brooks, 8 W. & S. (Pa.) 67. In a bill for the specific performance of a contract to convey land, equity will compel the conveyance of a fee, if such is the intention of the contract, though the word "heirs" is not used.

4. Restraints on Alienation. — Doebler's App. 64 Pa. St. 9, 17. Re Machu, 21 Ch. Div. 838; Gleason v. Fayerweather, 4 Gray

(Mass.), 348; Lovett v. Gillender, 35 N. Y. 617; Kepple's App. 53 Pa. St. 211; McDowell v. Brown, 21 Mo. 57. But see, for restrictions aimed at a particular method of alienation which may be good, Re Macleay, L. R. 20 Eq. 186.

A condition not to alienate to particular persons is good, — Cowell v. Spring Co., 100 U. S. 55; Jaureche v. Proctor, 48 Pa. St. 466, 472; — but a condition not to alienate except to particular persons is void, — McCullough v. Gilmore, 11 Pa. St. 370, — where the grantee was not to alienate except to members of his family. So Anderson v. Carey, 36 Ohio St. 506, where a gift was made to two, with a proviso that they should not alienate, except each to the other. See, however, contra to this case, on the same facts, Blackwell v. Blackwell, 15 N. J. L. 386. Where alienation is restricted as to time, the authorities are in conflict. A restriction on a devisee not to sell until he reached the age of thirty-five years was held good in Stewart v. Brady, 3 Bush (Ky.), 623; Hill v. Hill, 4 Barb. (N. Y.) 419. See contra, Twitty v. Camp. Phil. Eq. (N. Car.) 61; but the weight of authority seems to be against the validity of such restraints, however limited as to time. Oxley v. Lane, 35 N. Y. 340, 346, 347; Mandlebaum v. McDonell, 29 Mich. 78. But see contra, Langdon v. Ingram, 28 Ind. 360 (not to alien during minority); Dougal v. Fryer, 3 Mo. 40 (not before age of twenty-five); Earls v. McAlpine, 27 Grant (Ont.), 161 (devise to sons not to alien during life of mother without her consent).

A gift over, if the grantee dies without having disposed of the property by will or deed, is void. Shaw v. Ford, 27 Ch. Div. 669; Karker's App. 60 Pa. St. 141; Gray, Restraints on Alienation.

1. Rule in Shelley's Case. — When an estate is given to a man for his life, with the remainder to his heirs, the law by an arbitrary rule vests an estate in fee directly in the ancestor.<sup>1</sup> This is an unbending rule of law, and applicable even where there is an express direction that it shall not apply.<sup>2</sup> The rule applies only where the word "heirs," or its equivalent, is used.<sup>3</sup> It is not a rule for discovering the intention of the testator, but applies when that intention has been ascertained by the ordinary rules of construction. There must be an estate in freehold in the first taker, and the remainder must be created by the same instrument.<sup>4</sup> The rule applies to equitable estates, but both estates must be equitable or both legal.<sup>5</sup> This rule has been largely done away with, or modified, in this country. In most States, the rule is abolished, and the heirs take a contingent remainder.<sup>6</sup>

2. A Base, or Determinable, Fee, is an interest which may continue forever, but is liable to be determined by some act or event

1. Kleppner v. Laverty, 70 Pa. St. 70, 74; Siceloff v. Redman, 26 Ind. 251; Butler v. Huestis, 68 Ill. 596; Hawkins v. Lee, 22 Tex. 544. The rule is still in force everywhere that it has not been repealed by statute. Baker v. Scott, 62 Ill. 86. See Hileman v. Bouslaugh, 13 Pa. St. 344; opinion by Gibson, C. J., who defends the rule.

2. Doebler's App. 64 Pa. St. 9; Warner v. Sprigg, 62 Md. 14, 20. But see Belslay v. Engel, 107 Ill. 182, 186, where the court says that "the rule has always given way to the clear intention of the testator, when that intention can be ascertained from the instrument in which the words supposed to be words of limitation are used."

3. Adams v. Ross, 30 N. J. L. 505; Price v. Taylor, 28 Pa. St. 95.

"Words of purchase will be treated as such until it has been unmistakably shown that the grantor designed to use them in a different sense." Tyler v. Moore, 42 Pa. St. 374. But the word "heirs" may be construed as a word of purchase, if the intention of the grantor is unequivocal. Criswell's App. 41 Pa. St. 290 (semble); May v. Ritchie, 65 Ala. 602; Clarke v. Smith, 49 Md. 106. On the other hand, it seems that "children" may be a word of limitation if the intention is clear. Oyster v. Oyster, 100 Pa. St. 538; Belslay v. Engel, 107 Ill. 182; Stump v. Jordan, 54 Md. 619. See for the interpretation of the word "issue," in a deed and will, Taylor v. Taylor, 63 Pa. St. 483; and Robins v. Quinliven, 79 Pa. St. 333.

4. Webster v. Cooper, 14 How. (U. S.) 488, 500; Adams v. Guerard, 29 Ga. 651.

5. Tillinghast v. Coggeshall, 7 R. I. 383; Croxall v. Sherrerd, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 268, 281. "If an executed trust, the limitations must be construed by this rule of law precisely as if they were legal limitations: if executory, the court will look at the general purpose and particular intent of the creator of the trust, as expressed in the instrument, and construe the limitations as these may require." 7 R. I. 392. See, for the non-application of the rule to a marriage settlement, Berry v. Williamson, 11 B. Mon. (Ky.) 245, 258.

Both estates must be legal, or both equitable. Bacon's App. 57 Pa. St. 504.

6. The rule has been abolished by statute, both as to deeds and wills, in Alabama, California, Connecticut, Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New York, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin. It has been abolished as to wills only in New Hampshire, New Jersey, Kansas, Ohio, and Oregon. See Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 498; Den v. Demarest, 21 N. J. L. 525. In Mississippi, the rule has been abolished as to real estate. Powell v. Brandon, 24 Miss. 343 (a case of slaves). In Rhode Island, the rule by statute does not apply to the case of a devise to A. for life, remainder to his children or issue. Williams v. Angell, 7 R. I. 145. But the rule is still in force where the remainder is limited to the heirs generally. Bullock v. Waterman St. Soc., 5 R. I. 273. Where the rule is abolished, the immediate grantee takes an estate for life, with a contingent remainder in his heirs. Williamson v. Williamson, 18 B. Mon. (Ky.) 329; Richardson v. Wheatland, 7 Met. (Mass.) 169. That the heirs take a vested remainder, see Moore v. Littel, 41 N. Y. 66. But this case stands alone. See Monarque v. Monarque, 80 N. Y. 320; Tesson v. Newman, 62 Mo. 198; Voris v. Sloan, 68 Ill. 588.

circumscribing its continuance or extent. It is deemed a fee because there is a possibility that it may last forever.<sup>1</sup>

III. Estate Tail, or conditional fee, is an estate of inheritance limited to the issue, or a particular class of the issue, of the grantee. On the failure of such issue, the estate reverts to the grantor. The estate is inalienable, but has all the other characteristics of a fee-simple. The ancient conditional fee, where the estate granted was conditional on the birth of issue, and on failure of such issue reverted to the grantor, was changed into an estate tail by the English statute of de donis 13 Edw. I. By this statute, the right of alienation was cut off, and a perpetuity was created. The proper words of limitation in the creation of an estate tail are "heirs of the body;" and the word "heirs" is necessary in a deed, while an equivalent expression is allowed in a will.<sup>2</sup>

An estate tail may be general, where it is limited to the heirs of the body; or special,<sup>3</sup> where the limitation is to a special class of such heirs; e.g., the heirs by a certain wife named, or to the heirs male, or female, of the body.

An estate tail after possibility of issue extinct exists where the estate is limited to the heirs by a certain wife, and the wife has died without issue: there the grantee holds for his life as a tenant in tail.

The restriction against alienation was early broken down, and the tenant in tail was allowed by a bit of judicial legislation to bar the entail, and convey a fee-simple by levying a fine, or suffering a recovery. In this country fines and recoveries have been abolished or never existed, but generally the entail can be barred by deed.<sup>4</sup> Fees-tail have been very generally abolished or seriously modified in this country, and would perhaps not be recognized in the jurisdictions where the statutes are silent.<sup>5</sup>

1. 4 Kent, Com. 9; Jamaica Pond Co. v. Chandler, 9 Allen (Mass.), 159, where there was a conveyance to A. and his heirs "so long as the grantor shall keep (water) pipes in the land, and no longer." This was held to create a base fee. In re N. Y., L. & W. R. Co., 105 N. Y. 89. And see Wiggins Ferry Co. v. O. & M. R. R. Co., 94 Ill. 83; State v. Brown, 27 N. J. L. 13 (so long as premises are used for a canal).

2. 4 Kent, Com. 11-22; Hill v. Hill, 74 Pa. St. 173; Arnold v. Brown, 7 R. I. 188; Nightingale v. Burrell, 15 Pick. (Mass.) 104. A devise to A., but if she dies without heirs, then to her brother, creates an estate tail in A., for she cannot die without heirs while her brother lives. Fahrney v. Holsinger, 65 Pa. St. 388.

In the absence of a statute referring in terms to estates tail, the estate descends always to the eldest son, and not to all the children. Wight v. Thayer, 1 Gray (Mass.), 284; Williams' Real Prop. *35, n. 2.

3. Estates tail special still exist in Maryland unaffected by statute. Newton v. Griffith, 1 H. & G. (Md.) 111.

4. McGregor v. Comstock, 17 N. Y. 162, 166; Richman v. Lippincott, 29 N. J. L. 44. That they never existed, see Moreau v. Detchemendy, 18 Mo. 522. Any restriction against barring an entail was declared void in Dewitt v. Eldred, 4 W. & S. (Pa.) 414.

5. The statute de donis never existed in Mississippi. Jordon v. Roache, 32 Miss. 481. In Jewell v. Warner, 35 N. H. 176, the court says, "If our statutes have overturned the two great objects of the statute de donis to secure to the eldest sons in succession of the grantee and his heirs an inalienable interest in property, and to the grantor and his heirs the reversion on the failure of the heirs of the body of the grantee, we may regard the statute as repealed, and with it all the doctrines of the English law on the subject of estates tail." After showing that the statute of descent, and the statute granting full power of conveyance, do effect this result in New Hamp-

An estate tail in personalty cannot exist, and an attempt to create it carries an absolute estate.<sup>1</sup> The rule in Shelley's case applies to estates tail except in so far as it has been abolished in this country.<sup>2</sup>

IV. Estates for Life. — Strictly speaking, an estate for life is an interest whose extent is limited by the life or lives of certain persons; but the term has been extended to include all estates that may last during the life of the tenant, although they may be determined at an earlier time; e.g., an estate to a woman durante viduitate. The termination is entirely uncertain, as the contingency may never happen. So that an estate for life in its broadest sense is every estate, not of inheritance, without a fixed limit.<sup>3</sup> Estates for life fall into two classes: 1. Those created by act of law; 2. Those created by act of the parties. In the first class are, (a) dower, (b) curtesy, (c) tenancy in tail after possibility of issue extinct, (d) homestead. For a treatment of these estates, see titles DOWER, CURTESY, ESTATES TAIL, and HOMESTEAD. In the second class, estates are either for the life of the grantee, or for the life of some other person. Estates of this latter kind are known as estates pur autre vie.

1. Estates pur autre vie. — These estates are not common in this country, but most often occur where a tenant for his own life conveys his estate to a third person. He cannot convey more than shire, the court goes on to say, that "Not one object of the statute de donis remained; no characteristic of an estate tail continued to exist; and no other conclusion can be drawn than that the statute de donis was impliedly repealed, and estates tail finally abolished."

So in Connecticut in Hamilton v. Hempsted, 3 Day (Conn.), 339, the court declares that "Our courts have never adopted the fee conditional at common law, nor the statute de donis; but from the principle that the law abhors a perpetuity, they have decided that a deed or devise, using words proper to create an estate in fee-tail, should vest an estate in fee-simple in the issue of the first donee in tail; and the statute on that subject has been considered to be in affirmance of the common law."

In many States, estates in fee-tail are abolished by statute, and a grant in tail passes a fee-simple. Allen v. Craft, 109 Ind. 476; Knoderer v. Merriman, 7 Atl. Rep. (Pa.) 152. But in New York, Indiana, Michigan, and California, the land reverts to the grantor, if the first taker leaves no issue. 3 Rev. St. N. Y. 2175.

In Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Missouri, and Vermont, estates tail are made life estates in the first donee, with remainder in fee to the persons to whom the estate would descend at common law, or by the terms of the grant, on the death of the donee. Rev. St. of Mo. § 3941. See Wight v. Thayer, 1 Gray (Mass.), 284.

In Connecticut, New Jersey, and Ohio, the children of the donee take as tenants in common in fee. Rev. St. Ohio, § 4200.

In Massachusetts, Maine, Maryland, Delaware, and Pennsylvania, an estate tail can still exist, and may descend as such; but a fee-simple can be conveyed by the donee by deed. Pub. St. Mass. Ch. 120, § 15.

In Maryland, however, estates tail descend as fees. Posey v. Budd, 21 Md. 477.

A tenant in tail in remainder cannot convey any estate by deed. He must be in possession. Whittaker v. Whittaker, 99 Mass. 364. But see Coombs v. Anderson, 138 Mass. 376.

In Rhode Island there are special provisions. Pub. St. R. I. c. 182. See Cooper v. Cooper, 6 R. I. 261.

1. Albee v. Carpenter, 12 Cush. (Mass.) 382. And see Hall v. Priest, 6 Gray (Mass.), 18, 22.

2. See cases cited in note to rule in Shelley's case, supra. The rule has been abolished only as to estates tail in Illinois. Baker v. Scott, 62 Ill. 86.

3. Rosenboom v. Van Vechten, 5 Den. (N. Y.) 414 (durante viduitate); Hurd v. Cushing, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 169 (so long as grantee maintains salt-works on his land); Warner v. Tanner, 38 Ohio St. 118. But see Gilmore v. Hamilton, 83 Ind. 196.

he has, and his grantee takes an estate during the life of the grantor who is termed the cestui que vie.<sup>1</sup> If the tenant died during the life of the cestui que vie, at common law the balance of the estate went to the first person who took it, who was termed a general occupant. If the original gift was made to the tenant and his heirs, the heir took the estate as special occupant. By the English statutes, where there is no special occupant, the estate goes to the executors as personal property, unless it has been disposed of by will. This has been generally adopted in this country, except in a few States where the term descends as real estate.<sup>2</sup>

At common law, no words of limitation are necessary to create an estate for life; but now in those States, where, by statute, a fee passes without words of inheritance, the intention to create an estate for life must be clearly expressed.

A tenant for life has full power of alienation, unless restrained by a condition, and can grant his whole estate, making it an estate pur autre vie in the grantee, or he may grant any number of smaller estates, all not to exceed his own estate. A tenant for life cannot convey more than his interest, unless he resorts to the old common-law feoffment, in which case he can convey a fee, but works a forfeiture of his own estate by so doing.<sup>3</sup>

A tenant for life cannot gain a title by adverse possession against the remainderman, nor will an adverse claim constitute a disseizin. So, too, a disseizin by a stranger during the tenancy for life does not bar the rights of the remainderman; for the latter has no right to possession until the death of the tenant for life, and he then has the statutory period of twenty years within which to bring his action to recover possession.<sup>4</sup>

1. For what is evidence of the death of the cestui que vie, see Clark v. Owens, 18 N. Y. 434.

2. The residue of the term descends to the heir of the tenant in Arkansas, Massachusetts, Missouri, North Carolina, and Rhode Island. In the other States, the term goes to the personal representatives. See 3 Rev. St. N. Y. p. 2294. It is in all States disposable by will.

3. Jackson v. Van Hoesen, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 325.

At common law, a feoffment by a tenant for life of a greater estate than he had, worked a forfeiture of his estate, and the rule holds to-day where it is not changed by statute. Jackson v. Mancius, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 365; Faber v. Police, 10 S. C. 376; Matthews v. Ward, 10 Gill & J. (Md.) 443; Redfern v. Middleton, 1 Rice (S. C.), 459. But a conveyance by any other method does not effect this result. Stevens v. Winship, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 318. The difference is theoretical as conveyances by deed are innocent. Rogers v. Moore, 11 Conn. 553; Bell v. Twilight, 22 N. H. 500. It seems, however, that a conveyance in fee by a tenant by curtesy or dower works a forfeiture of the estate. 4 Kent, Com. 84; French v. Rollins, 21 Me. 372; Grant v. Chase, 17 Mass. 442. But except in these cases a deed conveys merely the interest of the grantor, and this is so by statute in some States. Grant v. Townsend, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 554; McCorry v. King's Heirs, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 267, 274, 277; Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 498, 505.

4. Varney v. Stevens, 22 Me. 331; McCorry v. King's Heirs, 3 Humph. (Tenn.) 267; Foster v. Marshall, 22 N. H. 491; Jackson v. Mancius, 2 Wend. (N. Y.) 357. So where the life tenant granted a fee, the grantee may be ousted by the remainderman on the death of the life tenant. Williams v. Caston, 1 Strobb. (S. C.) 130. Where, however, the life tenant had lost his estate by a twenty-one years' adverse possession, he cannot, by surrender of his interest to the remainderman, give the latter an immediate right to recover the land. Moore v. Luce, 29 Pa. St. 260.

Apportionment of Incumbrances.—If an incumbrance exists on the estate, the tenant for life must keep down the interest, while the remainderman must pay the principal; but the life tenant cannot be compelled to pay the interest, and pays it merely to escape a forfeiture of his estate.<sup>1</sup> If the incumbrance is paid off, the amount is apportioned, and the life tenant pays the present value of the interest for his life. Either party can buy in the incumbrance, but cannot hold it to the exclusion of the other, who is willing to contribute his share of the amount paid for the purchase.<sup>2</sup>

Taxes.—The tenant for life is under an obligation to pay all taxes assessed on the estate, and all betterments that are not in their nature permanent; and the tenant cannot hold a tax-title adversely against the remainderman.<sup>3</sup>

Where a tenant for life leases the premises, the lease expires on his death, and his personal representatives cannot recover for the rent from the last rent-day to the day of the death of the lessor, as, by the common law, rent could not be apportioned. Now generally, rent is apportioned by statute.<sup>4</sup>

A tenant for life cannot make repairs or permanent improvements upon the property at the expense of the inheritance. He is bound to make repairs at his own expense; but improvement is a voluntary act on his part, which gives him no claim on the reversioner.<sup>5</sup>

1. Doane v. Doane, 46 Vt. 485. On application of the remainderman, enough of the estate can be sold to pay the interest; and if the estate is not thus divisible, the whole may be sold, and the proceeds invested. From the income the interest is paid, and the balance is paid to the life tenant. Warley v. Warley, 1 Bailey, Eq. (S. C.) 397. The incumbrance cannot be enforced against the life tenant. Morley v. Landers, L. R. 8 Eq. 594.

2. Daviess v. Myers, 13 B. Mon. (Ky.) 511; Foster v. Hilliard, 1 Story, 77; Bell v. Mayor of N. Y., 10 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 49. The old rule was, that the tenant for life paid one-third, and the remainderman the other two-thirds; and that seems to be still the rule in South Carolina. Wright v. Jennings, 1 Bailey (S. C.), 277. But generally the apportionment is made by life-insurance tables, by which the value of the tenant's interest is estimated. Eastbrook v. Hapgood, 10 Mass. 313. Each case is settled by a master for itself. Atkins v. Kron, 8 Ired. Eq. (N. C.) 1.

The law will not permit a life tenant who purchases an incumbrance to hold it for his own exclusive use and benefit, if the other parties interested in the estate will contribute their share of the amount paid for the purchase. Whitney v. Salter, 30 N. W. Rep. (Minn.) 755.

3. Patrick v. Sherwood, 4 Blatchf. 112; Newby v. Brownlee, 23 Fed. Rep. 320; Pike v. Wassell, 94 U. S. 714. The remainderman may apply for a receiver to pay the taxes out of the rents and profits. Cairns v. Chabert, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 312; Sidenberg v. Ely, 90 N. Y. 257. In Ohio, by statute, non-payment of taxes works a forfeiture of the estate. McMillan v. Robbins, 5 Ohio, 28. Where the tenant buys a tax-title, he is presumed to have bought it for the benefit of the estate, and cannot hold it against the reversioner. Prettyman v. Walston, 34 Ill. 175, 192; Varney v. Stevens, 22 Maine, 331, 334.

A life tenant, twenty-eight years old, is bound to pay assessments for a stone pavement on an asphalt foundation in front of his premises, as such an improvement is not in its nature permanent, or likely to last during the probable continuance of the tenant's life. Reyburn v. Wallace, 3 S. W. Rep. (Mo.) 482. See Cairns v. Chabert, 3 Edw. Ch. (N. Y.) 312; Hitner v. Ege, 23 Pa. St. 305 (brick sidewalk); Whyte v. Mayor of Nashville, 2 Swan (Tenn.), 364; Plympton v. Boston Dispensary Co., 106 Mass. 544.

4. Dexter v. Phillips, 121 Mass. 178. See Pub. St. Mass. ch. 121, § 8.

5. The duty of putting the property in a tenantable condition is on the estate,

Estovers. — This term is applied to the wood that a tenant for life is allowed to cut on the land for his own use on the premises. The only important uses are for fuel, and for building or repairing fences, as the wood cannot be sold, and the proceeds used for repairs. Only a reasonable amount can be cut; but in this country, where woodland is abundant, the law does not interpose unless there is a material injury to the reversion.<sup>1</sup>

A tenant for life cannot commit waste. (See WASTE.)

Emblements (see CROPS) are the products of annual growth and cultivation; they are the profits of the crops planted by the tenant for life and not harvested when his estate terminates. Such things as do not require regular annual planting or cultivation, as fruit and grasses, are not classed as emblements. Emblements, or fructus industriales, go to the personal representatives of the tenant for life, while fructus naturales go to the remainderman.<sup>2</sup>

Life Estate in Personality. — A life estate may be created in but the tenant must then keep it in repair. Sohier v. Eldridge, 103 Mass. 345, 351; Corbett v. Laurens, 5 Rich. Eq. (S. C.) 301; Parsons v. Winslow, 16 Mass. 361.

1. Webster v. Webster, 33 N. H. 18; Smith v. Jewett, 40 N. H. 532; Hubbard v. Shaw, 12 Allen (Mass.), 122. But estovers cannot be taken for use by a workman living on the land. Sarles v. Sarles, 3 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 601. So a tenant is not allowed to use wood to burn bricks made from clay dug on the land where the bricks are made for sale. Livingstone v. Reynolds, 2 Hill (N. Y.), 157. Where repairs are necessary, wood cannot be sold, and other wood for the repairs bought with the proceeds. Padelford v. Padelford, 7 Pick. (Mass.) 153; Fuller v. Wason, 7 N. H. 341. But see contra, Loomis v. Wilbur, 5 Mason, 13, where Judge Story allowed the sale of wood for the payment of taxes. See Crockett v. Crockett, 2 Ohio St. 180. The estovers must be used on the estate where they are obtained, and cannot be used on another estate, though both estates were acquired by the same title. Cook v. Cook, 11 Gray (Mass.), 123. But see Dalton v. Dalton, 7 Ired. Eq. (N. C.) 197; Owen v. Hyde, 6 Verg. (Tenn.) 334.

The courts give a liberal construction to the term "reasonable amount." "It depends on the custom of farmers, the situation of the country, and the value of the timber." McCullough v. Irvine, 13 Pa. St. 438; Jackson v. Brownson, 7 Johns. (N. Y.) 227; Morehouse v. Cotheal, 22 N. J. L. 521; Pynchon v. Stearns, 11 Met. (Mass.) 304.

2. "The income of stocks, of horses, cattle, etc., belong to the tenant for life; and so do also the crops left by her, as the fruits of her industry, and likewise the growing crops as emblements." Poin-dexter v. Blackburn, 1 Ired. Eq. (N. C.) 286; Hunt v. Watkins, 1 Humph. (Tenn.) 498.

"The vegetable chattels called emblements are the corn and other growth of the earth which are produced annually, not spontaneously, but by labor and industry, and thence are called fructus industriales. The growing crop of grass, even if grown from seed, and though ready to be cut for hay, cannot be taken as emblements, because, as it is said, the improvement is not distinguishable from what is natural product, although it may be increased by cultivation." Reiff v. Reiff, 64 Pa. St. 134.

Young trees planted by nursery-men are emblements. Miller v. Baker, 1 Met. (Mass.) 27.

For a local custom giving the tenant the "way-going" crop, see Howell v. Schenck, 24 N. J. L. 89.

If the tenant puts an end to the estate by his own act, he is not entitled to emblements. Debow v. Colfax, 10 N. J. L. 128 (a minister cultivating a field adjacent to parsonage leaving for another parish); Hawkins v. Skeggs, 10 Humph. (Tenn.) 31 (a tenant durante viduitate, marrying).

To entitle the tenant to emblements, the estate must be of uncertain duration. If a landlord enters on the expiration of a term for years, the tenant cannot take emblements; but if the tenant is allowed to hold over and become a tenant at will, he may take emblements. Chesley v. Welch, 37 Me. 106.

So a tenant from year to year is not entitled to emblements. Reeder v. Sayre, 70 N. Y. 180.

In Mississippi, by statute, the heir takes the emblements. McCormick v. McCormick, 40 Miss. 760.

personal property. If the bequest is of specific articles, the donee is entitled to the possession on signing an inventory and receipt to the executors, acknowledging the right of the remainderman. If any danger of waste of the chattels is shown, security may be required of the tenant for life. If the bequest is of money or stocks, the executor will hold the same invested, and pay the income to the tenant for life. If the things bequeathed are such as are consumed by use, the bequest is an absolute gift.<sup>1</sup>

V. Estates for Years. (See LANDLORD AND TENANT.)—An estate for years is an interest in land granted for a definite fixed time on certain agreed conditions. The interest is founded on a contract called a lease, and originally the tenant's right was merely a right of action on the contract. This was early changed into an actual estate in the land; but the idea that a lease is a chattel still survives in passing the term to the personal representatives of the tenant, and not to his heirs. The term "years" is merely descriptive, as the estate may be for any time, e.g., a month; but the essential characteristic of the estate is, that its duration must be fixed and certain.<sup>2</sup> The term may begin at any time in the

1. Rowe v. White, 16 N. J. Eq. 411; Langworthy v. Chadwick, 13 Conn. 42; Healey v. Toppan, 45 N. H. 243, 262. For cases where the life-tenant will be required to give security for the safety of the property, see Howard v. Howard, 16 N. J. Eq. 486; Homer v. Shelton, 2 Met. (Mass.) 194.

If the property given is of the kinds quæ usu consumuntur, the tenant has an absolute power of disposal. Scott v. Perkins, 28 Me. 22; Lynde v. Estabrook, 7 Allen (Mass.), 68. But household furniture does not belong to that class. Marston v. Carter, 12 N. H. 159. In case of a gift of a life-interest in a stock of wine by a wine-merchant, the donee took the stock in the cellar of the residence absolutely, but the stock in the shop could only be used in trade, and must be replaced. Phillips v. Beal, 32 Beav. 25. And see Cockayne v. Harrison, L. R. 13 Eq. 432. Where the gift is of personal property not specific, "the principle is well established, that when a testator by his will, either in express terms or by legal implication, has given the income of his personal estate to one for life, and, on his or her decease, to another, or left it on the termination of the life interest undisposed of, so that it will then go to his heirs-at-law, and has not in terms placed it in trust with any trustee other than the executor, it is the province and duty of the executor to hold it, and to pay over the income from time to time to the legatee for life, and, at the death of such legatee, to pay over the principal to the person entitled to it." Carson v. Carson, 6 Allen (Mass.), 397, 399.

A gift to Y. for use during her life, she to have the control and management of the same, and on her death all said personal estate remaining to go to my grandchildren, vests a life estate in Y. without an absolute power of disposal. Goudie v. Johnston, 10 N. E. Rep. (Ind.) 296. See also Harbison v. James, 2 S. W. Rep. (Mo) 292; and Howard v. Carusi, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 575.

2. Brown v. Bragg, 22 Ind. 122. The lease need not fix absolutely the length of the term, but it must contain sufficient means for ascertaining its duration. That is certain which can be made certain. So, a lease "for the term of one year, with the privilege of having the same for three years at the same rent, at the option of the lessee," was held a lease for three years, where the tenant continued to occupy the premises after the first year had expired. Delashman v. Berry, 20 Mich. 292; Munigle v. Boston, 3 Allen (Mass.), 230 (a term fixed but determinable on a sale of the premises by the lessor); West. Transp. Co. v. Lansing, 49 N. Y. 499; Shaw v. Hoffman, 25 Mich. 162 (a term for five years, but to end at any time the lessor might wish to build on the premises); Homer v. Leeds, 25 N. J. L. 106 ("for any term of years the said Blake may think proper from the above date." It being shown that the premises were to be used for salt-works, and that it was the intention of the parties that the lease should terminate when the salt works were given up, the court says, "The lease was determinable upon the abandonment of the manufacture of salt by the lessees").

That the term goes to the executors, see Taylor v. Taylor, 47 Md. 295.

future not beyond the limit laid down by the rule against perpetuities.<sup>1</sup> The right of the lessee before his entry is called an interesse termini; it is a mere interest in contradistinction to a term in possession, and its essential qualities arise from the want of possession. It is assignable by the lessee, and binds him on his covenants to pay rent, etc., unless entry is prevented by the lessor, or unless the premises are destroyed before the term begins.<sup>2</sup> The rights of the lessee are usually regulated by the terms of the lease; but where they are silent, he is entitled to all the rights of a freeholder in possession. He is entitled to assign or sub-let unless he is restrained by a provision in the lease.<sup>3</sup> Leases are usually in writing, but they may be by parol except in so far as they may be governed by statute. The English statute of frauds provides that leases for more than three years must be in writing, otherwise they shall have the force of estates at will only; and this has been re-enacted in some of the States in this country.<sup>4</sup>

No especial words are necessary for the creation of an estate for years. Demise, grant, or let, are the most common; but any form of words indicating an intention to transfer the possession for a certain definite time is sufficient.<sup>5</sup>

The leasehold estate may be taken on execution against the lessee, and passes to his assignee in insolvency unless the lease expressly provides for a forfeiture on such an event.<sup>6</sup>

1. Weld v. Traip, 14 Gray (Mass.), 330 (within thirty days of the death of a person named); Field v. Howell, 6 Ga. 423.

A covenant in the lease for an indefinite renewal is good. It does not divest the lessor of the fee. Page v. Esty, 54 Me. 319; Boyle v. Peabody Heights Co., 46 Md. 623; Blackmore v. Boardman, 28 Mo. 420. But see contra, on the ground that such a covenant would create a perpetuity, and is void as against the policy of the law. Morrison v. Kossignol, 5 Cal. 64.

A fee may be conveyed by lease, however, if apt words are used. Jamaica Pond Co. v. Chandler, 9 Allen (Mass.), 159, 168. And see Watterson v. Reynolds, 95 Pa. St. 474.

2. Wood v. Hubbell, 10 N. Y. 479, 487; Insurance Co. v. Scott, 2 Hilt. (N. Y.) 550; Lafarge v. Mansfield, 31 Barb. (N. Y.) 345; Taylor v. Caldwell, 3 B. & S. 826 (semble).

3. Mason v. Fenn, 13 Ill. 525; Kutter v. Smith, 2 Wall. 491; Dingley v. Buffum, 57 Me. 382, as to the rights of lessees for years to remove fixtures in absence of any provision in the lease.

As to right to assign or sub-let, see Robinson v. Perry, 21 Ga. 183; Crommelin v. Thiess, 31 Ala. 412, 421. "It is perfectly well settled that underletting is not a violation of a covenant not to assign. But the better opinion seems to be, that the converse of this proposition is not true, and that an assignment is a violation of a covenant not to underlet." Den v. Post, 25 N. J. L. 285, 291. The sub-lessee is not liable to the original lessor for rent, except by express agreement, — Grundin v. Carter, 99 Mass. 15, — or where the original lease is surrendered to the lessor. Beal v. Boston Car Co., 125 Mass. 157.

4. Reed, Statute of Frauds, § 796.

In by far the greater number of States, one year is the time for which a parol lease is valid. In Florida the time is two years. In Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Hampshire, Ohio, and Vermont, all parol leases create estates at will merely. Kerr v. Clark, 19 Mo. 132. The reader is referred to the statutes of his own State. See also ESTATES AT WILL.

5 "In estimating the language which constitutes a lease, the form of words used is of no consequence. It is not necessary that the term lease be used. Whatever is equivalent will be equally available." Moore v. Miller, 8 Pa. St. 272, 283; Cong. Meeting House v. Hilton, 11 Gray (Mass.), 407. The lessee must accept the lease; but if it enures wholly to his benefit, the acceptance is presumed. Jackson v. Bodle, 20 Johns. (N. Y.) 184.

6. McNeil v. Ames, 120 Mass. 481.

An estate for years is terminated before its natural limitation only by eviction by the lessor, or a release or surrender of the premises by the lessee to the lessor; and if the premises are destroyed by fire, or otherwise rendered untenable, that, in itself, is no ground for the termination of the tenancy; the covenant to pay rent is unaffected: but this harsh rule has been changed by statute in many States, so that, if the premises are rendered untenable by fire or other casualty, the liability for rent ceases.<sup>1</sup>

The lessor stipulates that the lessee shall enjoy the premises during the demised term, but this covenant merely protects the lessee from an eviction by one whose title is superior to the landlord's; and it is no answer to a claim for rent, that the premises are in possession of a stranger, for the landlord does not warrant the possession as against trespassers.<sup>2</sup> Per contra, after accepting the lease, the lessee is estopped to deny his landlord's title so long as he remains in possession; but an eviction by title paramount ends the estoppel.<sup>3</sup>

A surrender of the premises to the landlord extinguishes the rent, but an abandonment on the part of the tenant does not amount to a surrender unless it is assented to by the landlord. A surrender is made by operation of law when the lessee takes a new lease, the enjoyment of which is incompatible with the existence of the prior lease, or when the assent of the landlord to the abandonment of the tenant is manifested by some act inconsistent with the prior tenancy.<sup>4</sup>

1. Dyer v. Wightman, 66 Pa. St. 425; Jaffe v. Harteau, 56 N. Y. 398; Cowell v. Lumley, 39 Cal. 151 (fire); Niedelet v. Wales, 16 Mo. 214 (rise in river). The strict rule was denied in Ripley v. Wightman, 4 McCord (S. C.), 447, where the destruction was caused by a hurricane; and in Whitaker v. Hawley, 25 Kan. 674, where it was claimed that the common-law rule was not adopted in Kansas.

Where, however, the lease applied only to an upper story in a building, and the premises were destroyed by fire, the tenant was released from the liability to pay rent. Graves v. Berdan, 26 N. Y. 498. See contra, Helburn v. Moffard, 7 Bush (Ky.), 169; Izon v. Gorton, 5 Bing. N. C. 501.

2. The lessor does not engage to put the lessee in possession; and if the latter finds a trespasser on the premises, he must bring an action to recover the possession. Sigmund v. Howard Bank, 29 Md. 324; Moore v. Weber, 71 Pa. St. 429; Underwood v. Birchard, 4 Vt. 305; Field v. Herrick, 101 Ill. 110. But see Clark v. Butt, 26 Ind. 236, where the lessor warranted the possession. A contrary rule prevails in England, and some States, where it is held that the lessor is not supposed to grant merely the chance of a lawsuit, and he is held to warrant the possession. Coe v. Clay, 5 Bing. 440; Hughes v. Hood, 50 Mo. 350; King v. Reynolds, 67 Ala. 229. In this last case, the court recognizes that the weight of authority is with the rule as first stated, but expressly refuses to follow it.

3. Longfellow v. Longfellow, 54 Me. 240; Alwood v. Mansfield, 33 Ill. 452; Stout v. Merrill, 35 Iowa, 47; Towne v. Butterfield, 97 Mass. 106.

4. Bailey v. Wells, 8 Wis. 141. And compare Amory v. Kannoffsky, 117 Mass. 351, "where by the agreement between the lessor and lessee, the lessee abandons his possession, and the lessor resumes possession of the premises, there is a surrender by operation of law." Bedford v. Terhune, 30 N. Y. 453; Thomas v. Cook, 2 B. & Ald. 119. But see Lyon v. Reed, 13 M. & W. 285, opinion by Parke, B.

The assent of the landlord may be inferred from his acts, as a receipt of the keys and a reletting to a new tenant. Stobie v. Dills, 62 Ill. 432; Matthews v. Tobener, 39 Mo. 115; Elliott v. Aiken, 45 N. H. 30. Where, however, the landlord received the keys, and put up a sign "To let" on the premises, it was held, that, until the prem-

VI. Estates at Will, and Estates from Year to Year. (See LANDLORD AND TENANT.)—An estate at will is an estate in land determinable at the will of either party, and arises only on actual possession by the tenant.<sup>1</sup> The estate may be determined by the act of either party showing an intention to terminate the tenancy, or that is inconsistent with the existence of the relation of landlord and tenant. The tenant has no interest that he can convey, and, in fact, his interest is determined by a conveyance by either party; so, too, it is determined by the death of either party.<sup>2</sup> Where the tenancy is determined by the landlord, the tenant is entitled to emblements and to a reasonable time to remove, but he is not entitled to any formal notice to quit: a mere demand for possession ends the tenancy.<sup>3</sup>

Tenancy at will most commonly arises under parol leases, which the statute of frauds declares shall create tenancies at will. They may also arise where a person enters upon land under a contract for a conveyance, or an agreement for a lease. So where a man is placed on land as a mere occupier, without any terms prescribed, he becomes a tenant at will.<sup>4</sup>

In consequence of the uncertainty of this relation, and the fre-ises were actually let, there was no such change of possession as to constitute a surrender. Oastler v. Henderson, 2 Q. B. D. 575.

1. Pollock v. Kittrell, 2 Taylor (N. C.), 152; Hardy v. Winter, 38 Mo. 106.

2. Esty v. Baker, 50 Me. 325; Howell v. Howell, 7 Ired. (N. C.) 496. "The determination of an estate at will by an alienation by the owner of the reversion, is one of the legal incidents of such an estate to which the right of the lessee therein is subject, and by which it may be as effectually determined as by a notice to quit given according to the requisitions of the statute," from McFarland v. Chase, 7 Gray (Mass.), 462. So also on an assignment by the lessee. McCann v. Rathbone, 8 R. I. 403; Clark v. Wheelock, 99 Mass. 14; Cole v. Lake Co., 54 N. H. 287. And see, generally, Howard v. Merriam, 5 Cush. (Mass.) 563; Stedman v. Gassett, 18 Vt. 346.

3. "If the lessor determines the tenancy before the wheat or other produce is reaped or gathered, the lessee shall have the emblements, and free ingress, egress, and regress to take them away; but when the lessee determines the tenancy at such time, he loses the emblements." Brown v. Thurston, 56 Me. 126, 128. So also where the lessee ends the term. Morgan v. Morgan, 65 Ga. 493. But this case stands alone.

The tenant has a reasonable time in which to remove from the premises, and gather the emblements; but the tenancy terminates without notice. Rich v. Bolton, 46 Vt. 84; Ellis v. Paige, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 43; Elliott v. Stone, 1 Gray (Mass.), 571; Blum v. Robertson, 24 Cal. 127. A formal demand for possession is enough. Herrell v. Sizland, 81 Ill. 457; Larned v. Hudson, 57 N. Y. 151.

4. "The defendant was in possession, holding for no particular term, making no compensation for the use of the land; but he made an agreement to surrender the premises whenever the landlord should require the possession. He was clearly a tenant at will." Burns v. Bryant, 31 N. Y. 453. See Le Tourneau v. Smith, 53 Mich. 473; Johnson v. Johnson, 13 R. I. 467; Herrell v. Sizland, 81 Ill. 457.

Where the tenant enters under a contract for a conveyance, see Harris v. Frink, 49 N. Y. 24; Freeman v. Headley, 33 N. J. L. 523; Dean v. Comstock, 32 Ill. 173. But a refusal to accept a deed ends the tenancy. Gould v. Thompson, 4 Met. (Mass.) 224. But see Cole v. Gill, 14 Iowa. 529.

In order, however, to support an action for use and occupation, there must be some contract, express or implied, to pay rent. Central Mills v. Hart, 124 Mass. 123.

An estate at will also exists where a tenant for years holds over, after the expiration of his term, with the consent of his landlord. Gunsolus v. Lormer, 12 N. W. Rep. (Wis.) 62; Edwards v. Hale, 9 Allen (Mass.), 462. The usual obligations of tenancies exist, and the tenant is estopped to deny his landlord's title. Ezelle v. Parker, 41 Miss. 520.

quent hardship to the lessee, by the arbitrary termination on the part of the lessor, the courts, by a species of judicial legislation, refused to recognize the determination of such an estate where rent was reserved and paid without due notice being given by the party exercising his will to end the tenancy. In this way arose a class of estates called estates from year to year, and which continue for an uncertain number of fixed periods of time, which may only be terminated on due notice being given. The length of these periods of time is regulated by the manner of reservation of rent: if the rent is annual, the term continues for a year; if quarterly, for a quarter, etc.<sup>1</sup> This doctrine has been universally adopted in America, except in Maine and Massachusetts. In those two States tenancies at will still exist.<sup>2</sup> Generally, however, by statute, notice to quit is necessary to terminate the tenancy,<sup>3</sup> where the estate is determined by the will of either party; but the estate at will is still immediately determinable on the death of either party. Tenancy at will in the old form now exists only where the parties specially agree that the estate shall have that condition, or where no rent is reserved.<sup>4</sup>

1. Estates from Year to Year.—As above defined, this estate continues for an uncertain number of fixed periods of time. Originally the fixed period of time was one year; but the term "year" as now used is merely descriptive, and the estate includes tenancies from month to month, etc.<sup>5</sup> If the rent reserved is annual, the fixed period of time is a year, even though the rent be payable at stated intervals during the year.<sup>6</sup> In case of yearly

1. Morehead v. Watkyns, 5 B. Mon. (Ky.) 228; Lockwood v. Lockwood, 22 Conn. 425; Ridgley v. Stillwell, 28 Mo. 400. "A parol demise for more than three years in the first instance, then, creates a tenancy at will only, and this satisfies the statute; but that tenancy at will, like any other, may be subsequently changed into a tenancy from year to year by the payment and acceptance of the rent annually." Dunn v. Rothermel, 112 Pa. St. 272. And see Pugsley v. Aiken, 11 N. Y. 494; Hall v. Wadsworth, 28 Vt. 410; McEwen v. Drake, 14 N. J. L. 523. "The law favors such a tenancy, and infers it from a holding over, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary." Williams v. Paxton, 18 Gratt. (Va.) 475; Coomler v. Hefner, 86 Ind. 108.

2. Ellis v. Paige, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 43; Davis v. Thompson, 13 Me. 209. See also Hammon v. Douglas, 50 Mo. 434; Withers v. Larrabee, 48 Me. 570. The statute in these States requires that notice to quit must be given to terminate the tenancy; but the tenancy may be ended at once by alienation, by the landlord, by deed or lease. — Pratt v. Farrar, 10 Allen (Mass.), 519. — and that, too, although the alienation may be merely colorable, and for the express purpose of ending the tenancy. Curtis v. Galvin, 1 Allen (Mass.), 215. The tenant, then, is merely entitled to a reasonable time to remove. Low v. Elwell, 121 Mass. 309. But see Young v. Young, 36 Me. 133; Thomas v. Sanford Steamship Co., 71 Me. 548.

3. The time for the notice is variously fixed from three days to three months. The statute in each State must be referred to. Williams v. Hodges, 41 Mich. 695.

4. Harrison v. Middleton, 11 Gratt. (Va.) 527, where there was an agreement to surrender possession at any time. Sullivan v. Enders, 3 Dana (Ky.), 66. But see Batchelder v. Batchelder, 2 Allen (Mass.) 105, where the tenant was held to notice, although the agreement was that he might leave at any time.

5. So where there was a verbal permission to erect a shanty on the land for the use of workmen, no rent being reserved. Williams v. Deriar, 31 Mo. 13. And see Johnson v. Johnson, 13 R. I. 467; Herrell v. Sizland, 81 Ill. 457.

6. Anderson v. Prindle, 23 Wend. (N. Y.) 616; Bright v. McQuat, 40 Ind. 521; Secor v. Pestana, 37 Ill. 525.

6. The payment of rent is essential to tenancies, the English rule requires six months' notice to determine the tenancy. In America, the length of time for the notice has been variously fixed by statute.<sup>1</sup> Where the letting is for a less term than a year, the period for notice is fixed by the manner of paying rent: if the rent is paid monthly, a month's notice is required, etc. If no notice is given, the tenancy continues for another term, and so on.<sup>2</sup>

The tendency of the courts is to construe all general or doubtful tenancies into estates from year to year; and parol leases, which, under the statute of frauds constitute estates at will, are turned into estates from year to year by the payment and acceptance of rent, or other circumstance indicating that that is the intention of the parties. So, where the tenant holds over after the expiration of a lease for years, he will be considered as a tenant from year to year.<sup>3</sup>

the estate. Dunne v. Trustees, 39 Ill. 578; Rich v. Bolton, 46 Vt. 84. So, where a tenant for years holds over after his term, and continues to pay rent, he becomes a tenant from year to year. Usher v. Moss, 50 Miss. 208; Tolle v. Orth, 75 Ind. 208. In this last case a tenant under a lease for five years, held over, on the expiration of his term, for several months, paying rent, and then tried to leave on giving one month's notice. It was held that he was a tenant from year to year, and could be held for the whole year's rent.

"If the contract was for a renting for only two months, the receiving of half the rent for the month of September, after the expiration of the two months, would give the appellant the right to hold over for the two months longer; and the reception of rent would tend to show the consent of the appellants, either directly or constructively, to the holding over. If the contract was, that the appellant should pay eight dollars per month, without limit as to the number of months it should run, then a general tenancy was created, and it must be deemed a tenancy from year to year, and notice would be required to terminate it" (three months). Rothschild v. Williamson, 83 Ind. 387, 389. Where, however, the agreement is for so much a month, a monthly tenancy is created, and a month's notice is sufficient. Hollis v. Burns, 100 Pa. St. 206. And see Blumenthal v. Bloomington, 100 N. Y. 558, where the court, in referring to a term created by a parol lease, say, "It could not subsist for its full agreed term because of the statute; but, nevertheless, there having been an entry into possession, and a payment of rent, it was good as a new contract for one year, and enures as a tenancy from year to year" (p. 561).

1. Bessell v. Landsberg, 7 Q. B. 638;

Hall v. Myers, 43 Md. 446; Barlow v. Wainright, 22 Vt. 88; Reeder v. Sayre, 70 N. Y. 180, where a six-months' notice is required. In Pennsylvania and some other States, three months' notice is the rule. Logan v. Herron, 8 S. & R. (Pa.) 459. And see, especially, Steffens v. Earl, 40 N. J. L. 128.

2. Hollis v. Burns, 100 Pa. St. 106.

3. Dunn v. Rothermel, 112 Pa. St. 272. In Patton v. Axley, 5 Jones, L. (N. Car.) 440, a lease was made for the purpose of exploration for minerals. Rent was payable quarterly, but the lease was forfeitable on non-user of the premises for one year, and the lessees had the right to discontinue work at any time. This was held a tenancy from year to year. But see Hunt v. Morton, 18 Ill. 75, where a tenant went into possession of a farm without any specific contract for the payment of rent, with permission to remain there until spring. He continued in possession for over two years, raising crops. He was held a tenant from year to year.

Where a tenant holds over after a lease for years, the terms of the original lease will be considered in force. Gardner v. Com. of Dakota Co., 21 Minn. 33. But where a tenant so holds over, the landlord has the election to treat him as a trespasser, and eject him, or hold him as a tenant. Clinton Wire Cloth Co. v. Gardner, 99 Ill. 151. In this case, the tenants gave notice on the last day of the term (Dec. 31) that they would leave, and at the same time began negotiations with the landlord for a new holding at a reduced rental. The negotiations failed, and they began to move on Jan. 3. The landlord refused to assent to the surrender. It was held that he had exercised his election to hold them for another year, and the tenants were held for a year's rent. Ames v. Schluesler, 14 Ala.

The right to notice is mutual, and the rules as to notice must be carefully observed.<sup>1</sup> The tenancy can be terminated only on the expiration of the time for which the tenant lawfully holds, and the notice must be clear as to the time the tenancy is to expire, and the full statutory period of notice must be given. The tenancy continues until notice is properly given whether the tenant occupies the premises or not.<sup>2</sup> The notice may be waived by the subsequent payment and receipt of rent, but not necessarily so.<sup>3</sup>

The tenant can assign his estate, and, while the term continues, may maintain trespass against all the world, including his landlord.<sup>4</sup> The death of either party has no effect to end the estate.

VII. Estates at Sufferance.—This estate is the interest of a tenant who has come lawfully into possession, and is holding over after his right has determined, without the assent, express or implied, of his landlord.<sup>5</sup> The original tenancy must rest on the agreement of the parties;<sup>6</sup> but if the holding over is by agreement or by permission, it becomes an estate at will, or an estate from year to year. So the payment and acceptance of rent converts a tenancy at sufferance into a tenancy at will, or from year to year.<sup>7</sup> This estate is created solely by implication of law, and seems to have been a judicial creation to prevent an adverse possession when the particular estate determined without the knowledge of the reversioner; therefore the tenancy has the customary attributes of the larger tenancies. The tenant cannot deny his landlord's title, nor hold adversely to him, but he is not liable for rent.<sup>8</sup>

It most commonly arises after the determination of an estate for years.<sup>9</sup> It is determined without notice to quit, and the 600, where the tenant held over one month. Tolle v. Orth, 75 Ind. 298; Schuyler v. Smith, 51 N. Y. 309.

1. Hall v. Wadsworth, 28 Vt. 410.

2. Woodrow v. Michael, 13 Mich. 187; Currier v. Barker, 2 Gray (Mass.), 224. In Waters v. Young, 11 R. I. 1, the tenancy was from month to month, the expiration of the term being on the 18th. A notice to quit "on or before Jan. 17," was held insufficient.

3. Kimball v. Rowland, 6 Gray (Mass.), 244. Here rent was accepted on the distinct understanding that the notice to quit remained in full force.

4. Clark v. Smith, 25 Pa. St. 137.

5. Uridias v. Morrell, 25 Cal. 31; Coomler v. Hefner, 86 Ind. 108. The distinction between tenancies at will, at sufferance, and from year to year, is brought out in Finney v. City of St. Louis, 39 Mo. 177. "When the tenant holds over by consent, either express or implied, after the determination of an estate for years, it is held to be evidence of a new contract without any definite period for its termination, and in either case is construed to be an estate from year to year. And a tenant holding over after the expiration of his lease will be presumed to hold under, and subject to the terms of, the preceding lease.

"A tenancy by sufferance only happens when a man comes into possession lawfully, but holds over wrongfully after the determination of his interest."

6. Merrill v. Bullock, 105 Mass. 486.

7. Emmons v. Scudder, 115 Mass. 367. See Hunt v. Bailey, 39 Mo. 257.

8. That he is estopped to deny his landlord's title, — Griffin v. Sheffield, 38 Miss. 359, 390, — that he cannot hold adversely, — Edwards v. Hale, 9 Allen (Mass.), 462, — that there is no liability for rent, — Flood v. Flood, 1 Allen (Mass.), 217, — but that he is liable for use and occupation, — Hogsett v. Ellis, 17 Mich. 351; Bush v. Nat. Oil Refining Co., 5 W. N. Cas. 143; Stockton's App. 64 Pa. St. 58.

9. Smith v. Littlefield, 51 N. Y. 539, 543; Russell v. Fabyan, 34 N. H. 218.

tenant has a reasonable time in which to remove.<sup>1</sup> After that has expired, the landlord may enter and eject him; and this right of entry is not taken away by statutes making a forcible entry a criminal offence.<sup>2</sup>

VIII. Joint Estates. — Joint estates are all estates where the title is vested in more than one person. There are four such estates known to the law, — joint tenancy, tenancy in common, coparcenary, tenancy by entirety.

1. Joint Tenancy. — An estate in joint tenancy is an estate held by two or more persons jointly, with an equal right in all to share in the enjoyment of the land during their lives. On the death of any tenant, his share vests in the survivors until only one survivor is left, who then takes the estate in severalty; and it descends to his heirs to the exclusion of the heirs of any other of the original tenants. There may be a joint tenancy in any of the estates in land. The estate must possess what Blackstone terms the four unities; viz., the tenants must have one and the same interest (e.g., all the tenants must hold in fee, or for life, etc.), accruing by one and the same conveyance, commencing at one and the same time, and held by one and the same undivided possession.

In Kentucky, a tenant for years is at sufferance for ninety days after his term expires (by statute). During that time he may be ejected; but if he is allowed to remain in possession for that time, he holds for another year. Mendel v. Hall, 13 Bush (Ky.), 232.

A tenant at will, after the determination of the will, becomes a tenant at sufferance. Benedict v. Morse, 10 Met. (Mass.) 223; Curtis v. Galvin, 1 Allen (Mass.), 215.

So a mortgagor in possession after foreclosure, — Allen v. Carpenter, 15 Mich. 25; Kinsley v. Ames, 2 Met. (Mass.) 29, — or before foreclosure, when the mortgage contains no provision allowing the tenant to retain possession. Lackey v. Holbrook, 11 Met. (Mass.) 458.

As stated in the text, a tenant for years holding over becomes a tenant at sufferance; but an anomalous rule exists in New York and some States, that the landlord has the option to treat him as a trespasser or a tenant from year to year. The rule is thus stated in Schuyler v. Smith, 51 N. Y. 309: "The safe and just rule I believe to be the one established by authority, that a tenant holds over the term at his peril; and the owner of the premises may treat him as a trespasser, or as a tenant for another year upon the terms of the prior lease, so far as applicable." And see also Ives v. Williams, 50 Mich. 100, 106; Tolle v. Orth, 75 Ind. 298. But see contra, that a tenancy at sufferance is created, Levy v. Lewis, 9 C. B. N. s. 872; Edwards v. Hale, 9 Allen (Mass.), 462;

Condon v. Barr, 47 N. J. L. 113; Withers v. Larrabee, 48 Me. 570.

1. Nor is he required to give notice of his removal. Edwards v. Hale, 9 Allen (Mass.), 462. The tenancy is terminated by entry, and judgment in an ejectment suit is equivalent to entry. Smith v. Littlefield, 51 N. Y. 539; Bennett v. Robinson, 27 Mich. 32. Notice to quit is required by statute in several States.

Twelve months was considered a reasonable time for removal, when the tenant had an ice-house on the land, and the ice could not be removed sooner without spoiling it. Antoni v. Belknap, 102 Mass. 193.

2. A forcible entry lays no foundation for a civil action on the part of the tenant against the landlord. Harvey v. Brydges, 14 M. & W. 437; Low v. Elwell, 121 Mass. 309. In Stearns v. Sampson, 59 Me. 568, the court held an action for assault and battery would not lie, where the landlord entered, and burst open an inner door; took off all the doors and windows on a cold day in winter; brought a bloodhound into the house; made a great noise about the premises for several days; and refused to allow food to be brought into the house. And see Mussey v. Scott, 32 Vt. 82; Fuhr v. Dean, 26 Mo. 116. But see contra, Bedall v. Maitland, L. R. 17 Ch. Div. 174, 183-190; Whittaker v. Perry, 38 Vt. 107. In Ill. R. R. v. Cobb, 68 Ill. 53, the landlord sent twenty or thirty men with axes and shovels, who broke down the fences, and took forcible possession of the premises. The tenant sued in trespass qu. cl., and recovered exemplary damages.

A joint tenancy is created only by purchase. Its distinguishing feature is the principle of survivorship, but the American law is opposed to this doctrine; and joint tenancy, except for trustees, has been generally done away with, or modified by statute.<sup>1</sup>

Each joint tenant holds the entire estate, and a simple release by one to the other conveys his entire interest without words of inheritance.<sup>2</sup> A joint tenant may convey his interest by deed, and his grantee will stand in the relation of tenant in common to the other tenant; but it is obvious that no estate will pass by devise.<sup>3</sup>

2. Tenancy in Common.—An estate in common exists in two or more persons where there is unity of possession, but each holds by a separate title. The tenants may hold by different titles which may vest at different times, and the times of enjoyment may be different. There is no right of survivorship; but each share may be freely alienated by will or deed, and, if undisposed of, descends to the heirs of the tenant.<sup>4</sup>

Each tenant has a right to the entire, but not to the sole, possession; but his estate is separate, and he cannot bind his co-tenant by any agreement or conveyance.<sup>5</sup> Tenants in common stand so

1. There can be no joint tenancy between corporations, as there can be no survivorship. De Witt v. San Francisco, 2 Cal. 289. In Ohio, the court has declared that the doctrine of joint tenancy never found a footing there; as the jus accrescendi is contrary to the understanding, feelings, and habits of the people. Sergeant v. Steinberger, 2 Ohio, 305. See also Phelps v. Jepson, 1 Root (Conn.), 48. In Kansas and Nebraska, there are no statutes on the point, and joint tenancy presumably exists there as at common law. But almost everywhere a statute exists declaring that a conveyance to two or more persons shall create a tenancy in common, unless the intention to create a joint tenancy is clearly expressed. Hoffman v. Stigers, 28 Ia. 302; Kennedy's App. 60 Pa. St. 511. But see Ball v. Deas, 2 Strobb. Eq. (S. C.) 24. And see Hershy v. Clark, 35 Ark. 17, where an agreement between tenants in common for survivorship was held void.

In North Carolina it is held that the statute merely takes away the right of survivorship, and all the other attributes of joint tenancy are left. Rowland v. Rowland, 93 N. C. 214. Joint tenancy still exists in New Jersey. In a bill for the specific performance of a contract to convey land, it was held to be no valid objection that the wives of the grantors who were joint tenants did not join in the deed. Babbitt v. Day, 41 N. J. Eq. 392.

The statutes frequently make an exception in the case of trustees, as it is manifestly a convenience that trustees should take as joint tenants. Phil. & Read. R. R.

Co. v. Lehigh Nav. Co., 36 Pa. St. 204. But even where there is no exception in the statute, reasons of convenience lead the courts to hold that the statute is not applicable to trustees. Franklin Inst. for Sav. v. People's Bank, 14 R. I. 632. See Parsons v. Boyd, 20 Ala. 112, where the court says, "Joint trustees are not within the reason of the statute, nor the evil intended to be remedied by it; and to hold that their joint title is affected by the act, could be productive of no good: it could avoid no evil, but, on the contrary, might often lead to protracted litigation, and serious injury to the trust estate."

2. Rector v. Waugh, 17 Mo. 13.

3. Nichols v. Denny, 37 Miss. 59; Duncan v. Forrer, 6 Binn. (Pa.) 193. There is no dower or curtesy in an estate in joint tenancy, — Babbitt v. Day, 41 N. J. Eq. 392, — except where survivorship has been abolished; for when the reason of the rule goes, the rule also falls. Davis v. Logan, 9 Dana (Ky.), 185.

4. Brown v. Wellington, 106 Mass. 318; Butler v. Roys, 25 Mich. 53. There may be a tenancy in common in a remainder. Coleman v. Lane, 26 Ga. 515. For holding in unequal shares, see Fenton v. Lord, 128 Mass. 466.

5. McKinley v. Peters, 111 Pa. St. 283.

A tenant in common cannot convey any part of the estate by metes and bounds, so as to bind his co-tenant. Marks v. Sewall, 120 Mass. 174. It is held elsewhere, that such a conveyance is good, except where it works an injury to the co-tenant, — Campau far in a fiduciary relation to each other, that a purchase of an outstanding incumbrance on the estate by one co-tenant enures to the benefit of all who are willing to contribute ratably to the purchase price.<sup>1</sup>

Each co-tenant sues severally for a breach of covenant of warranty in the conveyance by which his title is acquired; and they must sever in actions for recovery of the land, their titles being several; but they must join in actions to recover for injuries to the possession, as their possession is joint.<sup>2</sup>

Where one co-tenant occupies the whole estate adversely to the other, the latter may then have an action to recover possession; but where one tenant merely occupies the land, he only does what he has a right to, and is not liable to the other for rent, or for any share in the rents and profits.<sup>3</sup>

v. Godfrey, 18 Mich. 27, 39; Sutter v. San Francisco, 36 Cal. 112,—and it is suggested that the grantee may take this portion on partition. Barnhart v. Campbell, 50 Mo. 597; Worthington v. Staunton, 16 W. Va. 208, 241, where the court exhaustively reviews the subject, and says, "A co-tenant may convey at his pleasure his undivided interest in all the lands held in common, without the knowledge or consent of his companions in interest. In this case, the effect of the deed is to place the grantee in the deed in the same position that the grantor had previously occupied, and no possible injury could result to the other co-tenants in the tract. A deed from a co-tenant of a part of the land held in common, describing it by metes and bounds, cannot in any way operate to the prejudice of the other tenants in common: they have the right to have the land partitioned unaffected by such deed. But in partition in such case, a court of equity will allot the portion so conveyed by metes and bounds to the purchaser thereof, if it can be done without prejudice to the rights of the other co-tenants." And see Johnson v. Stevens, 7 Cush. (Mass.) 431; Harlan v. Langham, 69 Pa. St. 235, 238; Whitton v. Whitton, 38 N. H. 127.

1. Van Horne v. Fonda, 5 Johns. Ch. (N. Y.) 388; Brown v. Hogle, 30 Ill. 119 (tax title); Picot v. Page, 26 Mo. 398, where the rule is called a principle of equity, and is applied to an outstanding adverse title. Densmore Oil Co. v. Densmore, 64 Pa. St. 43. But this rule is applied only to tenants under the original grant: after one or more of the original tenants has conveyed his holding, the new tenant may buy in and hold an outstanding incumbrance. Wright v. Sperry, 21 Wis. 331. And see Matthews v. Bliss, 22 Pick. (Mass.) 48.

2. Lamb v. Danforth, 59 Me. 322 (breach of warranty). In ejectment the tenants must sue separately, as their estates and titles may be wholly different. Stevenson v. Cofferin, 20 N. H. 151; Hines v. Trantham, 27 Ala. 359; Young v. Adams, 14 B. Mon. (Ky.) 102; Rehoboth v. Hunt, 1 Pick. (Mass.) 224; Muller v. Boggs, 25 Cal. 175. In Connecticut, they may either join or sever. Hillhouse v. Mix, 1 Root (Conn.), 246. And this is so by statute in some States. Brown v. Bates, 55 Me. 520. But where one sues alone, he recovers judgment for such share as he shows himself entitled to, even though he sues in behalf of all. Butrick v. Tilton, 141 Mass. 93; Overcash v. Kitchie, 89 N. C. 384, 391. But see Winstanley v. Meacham, 58 Ill. 98, and that, as against a trespasser, one tenant has judgment for the whole. Contreras v. Haynes, 61 Tex. 103. And see Muller v. Boggs, 25 Cal. 175, where one tenant recovered the whole possession, but was allowed to recover only his share of the rents and profits. For injuries to the possession merely, see Phillips v. Sherman, 61 Me. 548; De Puy v. Strong, 37 N. Y. 372.

3. A co-tenant who is actually disseized may sue to recover possession. Presbrey v. Presbrey, 13 Allen (Mass.), 281; Culver v. Rhodes, 87 N. Y. 348; Small v. Clifford, 38 Me. 213. And he may also recover his share of the mesne rents and profits.

Two tenants in common recovered for mesne profits against a third who withheld possession; but the latter was allowed to set up improvements made by him in mitigation of damages. Backus v. Chapman, 111 Mass. 386. But perhaps the recovery for mesne profits should be in a separate action. Lane v. Harrold, 72 Pa. St. 267. Where, however, the tenant occupies with the consent of the others, he is not liable for rents and profits, though he receives more than his due proportion. Izard v. Bodine, 11 N. J. Eq. 403; Webster v. Calf, 47 N. H. 289; Shepard v. Richards, 2 Gray (Mass.), 424. Nor can a tenant who

So no co-tenant can hold any other for contribution for repairs or improvements.<sup>1</sup>

3. Coparcenary.—This estate is a joint estate, vesting in the heirs of an intestate. It is an entire estate in each heir; that is, all take as one heir: but the shares may be unequal, and there is no survivorship. This estate is not broken by descent, and remains until turned into tenancy in common by an alienation.

This doctrine does not exist in America, except in Maryland, and heirs take as tenants in common.<sup>2</sup>

4. Estates by the Entirety.—This estate is created on a conveyance to husband and wife jointly. Each is seized of the whole estate, and not of a moiety. There is consequently a right of survivorship; but this right cannot be destroyed by either party, and there is no right of partition.<sup>3</sup> During the joint lives of husband and wife, the husband has the control of the estate. He receives the rents and profits, and can mortgage or alien the property; but such conveyance is absolute only in case the husband survives the wife. If the wife survives, she acquires the entire interest, and may bring an action to recover the land.<sup>4</sup> If the conveyance is made to the husband and wife and a third person as joint tenants, merely occupies be held for rent without an express demise. Kline v. Jacobs, 68 Pa. 57. So, where one co-tenant occupied and cultivated one-half of the joint premises, and made no effort to prevent the other tenant from occupying the other half. Balfour v. Balfour, 33 La. Ann. 297; Calhoun v. Curtis, 4 Met. (Mass.) 413. And see Crow v. Mark, 52 Ill. 332, where a remedy in equity is suggested. And see contra, that the tenant is liable for rent. Edsall v. Merrill, 37 N. J. Eq. 114; Holt v. Robertson, 1 McMullan Ch. (S. C.) 475. But this case is disapproved of in Pico v. Columbet, 12 Cal. 414.

In many States, one tenant in common has an action by statute against a co-tenant occupying more than his just share of the estate. Stimson Statutes, § 1378.

1. "Both parties are equally bound to make repairs, and neither is more in default than the other for a failure to do so." Calvert v. Aldrich, 99 Mass. 74, 78. But there seems to be a remedy in equity to recover contribution for such repairs as are necessary for the preservation of the premises. Scott v. Guernsey, 48 N. Y. 106, 124; Cheeseborough v. Green, 10 Conn. 318. But see Dech's App. 57 Pa. St. 467, where a tenant recovered for contribution for necessary repairs in a suit at law.

The rule is the same as to improvements. Kelsey's App. 113 Pa. St. 119. But the court intimate that on partition they will allot the improved portion to the tenant who made the improvement, without any allowance to the others, if the nature of the improvement renders that possible.

2. 1 Washb. Real Prop. 413; Hoffar v. Dement, 5 Gill (Md.), 132.

3. Lux v. Hoff, 47 Ill. 425; Davis v. Clark, 26 Ind. 424; Wright v. Sadler, 20 N. Y. 320.

"By the common law, when land was conveyed to husband and wife, they did not take as tenants in common, or as joint tenants, but each became seized of the entirety, per tout et non per my; and upon the death of either, the whole survived to the other. The survivor took the estate, not by right of survivorship simply, but by virtue of the grant which vested the entire estate in each grantee. During the joint lives, the husband could, for his own benefit, use, possess, and control the land, and take all the profits thereof, and he could mortgage and convey an estate to continue during the joint lives; but he could not make any disposition of the land that would prejudice the right of his wife in case she survived him." Bertles v. Nunan, 92 N. Y. 152. And see McDuff v. Beauchamp, 50 Miss. 531.

That there is no right of partition, — Bennett v. Child, 19 Wis. 364, — and the right of survivorship is not abrogated by a statute allowing partition. Zornlein v. Bram, 100 N. Y. 12.

4. Barber v. Harris, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 615; Needham v. Bronson, 5 Ired. Law (N. C.), 426. If the wife survives, she has the entire interest. French v. Mehan, 56 Pa. St. 286; Pierce v. Chase, 108 Mass. 254. A statute abolishing the jus accrescendi does not affect tenancy by entirety. Rogers v. Grider, 1 Dana (Ky.), 242.

the husband and wife together take one-half the land, and the third person the other half.<sup>1</sup>

Tenancy by entirety does not exist in some States, and has been abolished or modified by statute in others.<sup>2</sup>

IX. Estate in Severalty.—This is an estate held by one person in his own right without having any other joined or connected with him in point of interest. It is opposed to joint ownership where the tenants hold in undivided shares.<sup>3</sup>

X. Estate of Freehold.—An estate of freehold is an estate of inheritance, or for life, or for some indeterminate period, in real property. In its origin, it is an estate worthy of a free man, and nothing less than a life estate falls in that class. The peculiar quality of this estate is, that it lasts for an uncertain period; a term for years, therefore, is not an estate of freehold. At the present day, the word is used to designate the quantity of the estate rather than the quality of the tenure.<sup>4</sup>

XI. Estate of Inheritance.—An estate of inheritance is any interest in lands that may descend to the heirs of the owner. Such estates are estates in fee and estates tail.<sup>5</sup>

XII. Estate by Elegit.—This estate is the interest obtained by a creditor in the lands of his debtor under a writ of elegit. It is a right to hold one-half of the lands of the debtor until the debt is satisfied out of the rents and profits, or otherwise. This was a clumsy and inconvenient method, and has long been superseded by the writ of execution fi. fa. It seems to exist still in a few States,<sup>6</sup>

1. Johnson v. Hart, 6 W. & S. (Pa.) 319; Barber v. Harris, 15 Wend. (N. Y.) 615.

2. The estate still exists in several States. Bennett v. Child, 19 Wis. 362; Washburn v. Burns, 34 N. J. L. 18; Hull v. Stephens, 65 Mo. 670; French v. Mehan, 56 Pa. 286; Hulett v. Inlow, 57 Ind. 412. Survivorship is retained in Arkansas, Maryland, Mississippi, and Michigan. Fisher v. Provin, 25 Mich. 350.

This tenancy never existed in Ohio, Connecticut, and Virginia. Whittlesey v. Fuller, 11 Conn. 337; Sergeant v. Steinberger, 2 Ohio, 305. And generally a grant to a husband and wife will create a tenancy in common, or joint tenancy, if the intention is plainly expressed in the grant. McDermott v. French, 15 N. J. Eq. 78, 81. But in general, the statute declaring that a conveyance to two or more shall create a tenancy in common, unless a contrary intent is clearly expressed, is held to abolish estates by the entirety. Hoffman v. Stigers, 28 Ia. 302. But see Bertles v. Nunan, 92 N. Y. 152, contra.

The question has been raised, whether tenancy by the entirety is abolished by the statutes giving to married women the rights of femes sole in the management and conveyance of their property. That it is not so abolished, see Marburg v. Cole, 49 Md.

402; McCurdy v. Canning, 64 Pa. St. 39; Pray v. Stebbins, 141 Mass. 219; Fisher v. Provin, 25 Mich. 347; Bertles v. Nunan, 92 N. Y. 152; McDuff v. Beauchamp, 50 Miss. 531; Robinson v. Eagle, 29 Ark. 202. But see, contra, that it is abolished, Cooper v. Cooper, 76 Ill. 57; Clark v. Clark, 56 N. H. 105; Hoffman v. Stigers, 28 Ia. 302.

3. 2 Greenleaf, Cruise, *363; Sweet, Law Dict. 760.

4. Gage v. Scales, 100 Ill. 218, 221. There may be a freehold in an equitable estate. A mortgagor in possession is a freeholder. State v. Ragland, 75 N. C. 12; 1 Washb. Real Prop. 57 (5th ed.). And see, for the use of the word in England, Mathews v. Mathews, L. R. 4 Eq. 278; Doe v. Tucker, 3 B. & Ad. 473; Bowen v. Barlow, L. R. 11 Eq. 454.

5. For the technical words necessary to be used to create a fee, see note to "Estates in fee." See also Washb. Real Prop. p. 87 (5th ed.).

6. McCance v. Taylor, 10 Gratt. (Va.) 580.

"The writ of elegit, when issued pursuant to the statute, recites the recovery of the judgment, and the plaintiff's election of that mode of execution: it then commands the sheriff that he cause to be delivered all the goods and chattels of the and has lately been revived in England for the purpose of evading the Bankrupt Act.<sup>1</sup>

XIII. Estate in Possession. — Estate in Expectancy. — With reference to the time of their enjoyment, estates are either in possession or expectancy. An estate in possession (or an immediate estate) gives a present right of present enjoyment, while an estate in expectancy is one which cannot be enjoyed until a future time. An estate of freehold is said to be in possession, although it is subject to an existing prior chattel interest. Estates in expectancy include reversions, remainders, and future interests.<sup>2</sup>

XIV. Estate in Reversion. — An estate in reversion is the interest of a grantor of land who has conveyed less than his whole interest. It is a right to the possession and enjoyment of the land after the determination of the particular estate that he has conveyed: the possession then reverts to him. It is a present vested interest, although the time of enjoyment is postponed. There can be no reversion after the grant of a fee-simple, for the grantor conveys his whole interest; but a grant of any less interest leaves a reversion in the grantor.<sup>3</sup> A reversion can be assigned or devised, and is descendible.<sup>4</sup> There is no curtesy or dower in a reversion, unless the particular estate is less than a freehold, or unless the reversion vests in possession before the death of the owner.<sup>5</sup> defendant, saving the oxen and beasts of the plough; and also a moiety of all his lands and tenements, in the county whereof he, at the day of obtaining the judgment, was seized, or at any time afterwards, by reasonable price and extent: to have and to hold the said goods and chattels to him, the said plaintiff, as his own proper goods and chattels; and the said moiety as his freehold to him and his assigns until he shall have levied thereof the debt and damages." Morris v. Ellis, 3 Ala. 560.

1. In England, suffering an execution on a writ of elegit is not included in the statute as an act of bankruptcy. Ex parte Abbott, 15 Ch. Div. 447.

2. Sweet, Law Dict. p. 323.

For the use of the term "expectancy" in a statute, see Lawrence v. Bayard, 7 Paige (N. Y.), 70, 76; Underhill v. Saratoga R. R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455. See also Valle v. Clemens, 18 Mo. 486. For "possession," see Campau v. Campau, 19 Mich. 116.

3. Payn v. Beal, 4 Den. (N. Y.) 405; Burton v. Barclay, 7 Bing. 745. There is no reversion after a base fee. State v. Brown, 27 N. J. Eq. 13; Nicoll v. N. Y. & Erie R. R., 12 N. Y. 121, 134. There is a reversion after an estate of dower or curtesy. Cook v. Hammond, 4 Mas. (C. C.) 485.

4. If the reversion is not assigned, it descends to the heirs of the original donor, so that, when the particular estate determines, the land goes to the person who can make himself heir of the original donor who created the particular estate: a new stock of inheritance cannot be formed. The reversion will not pass to the heirs of the present owner unless they are also heirs of the first donor. Cook v. Hammond, 4 Mas. (C. C.) 467; Miller v. Miller, 10 Met. (Mass.) 393. But this rule has in many States been changed by statute.

A reversion is subject to levy of execution. Woodgate v. Fleet, 44 N. Y. 1, 21.

Where rent is reserved, it passed with a grant of the reversion. Peck v. Northrop, 17 Conn. 217; Kimball v. Pike, 18 N. H. 419. And see Demarest v. Willard, 8 Cow. (N. Y.) 206.

5. Robison v. Codman, 1 Sumn. (C. C.) 121; Cook v. Hammond, 4 Mas. 467. A son took land subject to his mother's right of dower. He died in the lifetime of his mother, leaving a widow. Held, that the son's widow took no dower in the land held by the mother. Safford v. Safford, 7 Paige, Ch. (N. Y.) 257; Arnold v. Arnold, 8 B. Mon. (Ky.) 202; Brooks v. Everett, 13 Allen (Mass.), 457.

So the wife has no dower if the husband convey the reversion during the continuance of the particular estate, although the reversion vests in possession before the death of the husband. Gardner v. Greene, 5 R. I. 104; Apple v. Apple, 1 Head (Tenn.), 348.

The owner has an action for an injury to the inheritance, and he is not affected by an adverse possession until the determination of the particular estate.<sup>1</sup> If the reversion and the particular estate are acquired by one person in the same right, there is a merger of the interests.<sup>2</sup>

XV. Estate in Remainder.—A remainder is a future estate in lands, of any degree, preceded and supported by a particular estate in possession. The remainder must vest in possession immediately on the determination of the prior estate, which is created at the same time and by the same conveyance. A remainder is distinguished from a reversion, in that it is always granted, and is not an estate in the grantor; and the remainder and the particular estate must pass from the grantor simultaneously. The remainder, also, must vest in the remainderman during the existence of the particular estate, or at the moment it determines. There may be a succession of remainders; and as often as the particular estate determines, the remainder that then vests in possession becomes in turn the particular estate to support the succeeding remainders; but there can be no remainder without a particular estate to support it.<sup>3</sup>

1. Ripka v. Sargeant, 7 W. & S. (Pa.) 9; Wood v. Griffin, 46 N. H. 230 (even against the owner of the particular estate). And see Randall v. Cleaveland, 6 Conn. 328, where a trespasser carried away three hundred cart-loads of the soil.

The Statute of Limitations does not run until the right of entry accrues. Jackson v. Schoonmaker, 4 Johns. (N. Y.) 390.

2. Allen v. Anderson, 44 Ind. 395; Hooker v. Utica, etc., Turnpike Co., 12 Wend. (N. Y.) 371.

3. Poor v. Considine, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 458, 474; Booth v. Terrell, 16 Ga. 20; Wood v. Griffin, 46 N. H. 230. If the future estate does not take effect immediately on the determination of the particular estate, it is void as a remainder, though it may be good as a use. Wilkes v. Lion, 2 Cow. (N. Y.) 333.

The particular estate is usually an estate for life; but it may be any other kind of estate, e.g., an estate tail, — Taylor v. Taylor, 63 Pa. St. 481, — or an estate for years. Ballard v. Ballard, 18 Pick. (Mass.) 41 (an estate for ten years). A remainder may be limited after an estate for life where the life tenant is given a power of disposal of the estate in fee. Such a case is Burleigh v. Clough, 52 N. H. 267, where land was given to a wife "to her use and disposal during her natural life, . . . and what is remaining at her decease undisposed of by her, I give to J. E. D. in fee;" the devise to D. was held a vested remainder. And see Hamlin v. U. S. Express Co., 107 Ill. 443, and Morford v. Dittenbacher, 54 Mich. 593, where the power of disposal was limited to certain purposes; or, again, where a power of disposal to children was given. Patrick v. Morehead, 85 N. Car. 62. But see Green v. Sutton, 50 Mo. 186. But it is necessary that there should be a particular estate. Poor v. Considine, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 458; Hennessey v. Patterson, 85 N. Y. 91. But this necessity has been done away with by statute in some States.

If the particular estate fails, if, for instance, the donee should refuse to accept it, then the remainder takes effect in possession at once. Yeaton v. Roberts, 28 N. H. 459.

The remainder may be created by a reservation to the grantor of the particular estate, and a grant of the remainder. Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N. H. 498; Bissell v. Grant, 35 Conn. 288 (a deed to the children of the grantor, reserving to the grantor and wife the use of the premises for life).

The statute of New York defines a remainder as follows: "When a future estate is dependent upon a precedent estate, it may be termed a remainder, and may be created and transferred by that name." Rev. St. N. Y. p. 2175. The legislation in New York has practically destroyed remainders properly so called. It allows a future estate which needs no particular estate to support it; and where it is limited on a prior estate, it need not vest immediately on its determination. Rev. St. N. Y. part 2, ch. 1, tit. 2, pp. 2175-77. This legislation has been substantially adopted in Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Georgia.

Remainders are either vested or contingent. A remainder is vested when it is ready to take effect on the determination of the particular estate at any time or in any manner.<sup>1</sup> A remainder is contingent when its vesting is subject to a condition precedent: that condition may be the happening of a dubious or uncertain event, or the existence of persons who are not ascertained, or in being, at the time of the grant.<sup>2</sup>

1. Vested Remainder.—There is a present vested right to future enjoyment: the possession only is postponed. It is the present capacity of taking effect in possession, if the possession were to become vacant, that distinguishes a vested from a contingent remainder, and not the certainty that the possession will ever become vacant while the remainder continues. The test, then, is solely in the right; and no amount of uncertainty that the estate will ever be enjoyed by the remainderman, will render a remainder contingent.<sup>3</sup>

The law favors the vesting of estates. Therefore, where a limitation may be construed either as an executory devise or a remainder, it will be held to be the latter;<sup>4</sup> and where it may be construed as a vested or contingent remainder, the law will always consider it vested if the words creating it are capable of that construction.<sup>5</sup>

1. Hill v. Bacon, 106 Mass. 578; Gourley v. Woodbury, 42 Vt. 395.

2. The possession depends on the title vesting, and the estate will fail if the contingency does not happen before the determination of the particular estate. Price v. Sisson, 13 N. J. Eq. 168; Moore v. Lyons, 25 Wend. (N. Y.) 119, 144.

3. Williamson v. Field, 2 Sandf. Ch. (N. Y.) 535; Leighton v. Leighton, 58 Me. 63. So a grant of an estate to A. for life, remainder to B. in fee, gives B. a vested remainder, although he may not outlive A. Smith v. West, 103 Ill. 332. See p. 337, where the court says, "When a conveyance of the particular estate is made to support a remainder over, the tenant for the particular estate takes it; and if the remainderman is in being, he takes in fee. In such case the remainder is not contingent as to its becoming a vested remainder, because the title vests in the remainderman on the delivery of the deed. The title thus vested becomes an estate of inheritance; and in case the remainderman dies before the previous estate is expended, the title passes to his heirs, unless the deed otherwise directs." And see Blanchard v. Blanchard, 1 Allen (Mass.), 227, where the court says, "Where a remainder is limited to take effect in possession, if ever, immediately on the determination of a particular estate, which estate is to determine by an event that must unavoidably happen by the efflux of time, the remainder vests in interest as soon as the remainderman is in esse and ascertained, provided nothing but his own death before the determination of the particular estate will prevent such remainder from vesting in possession. Yet, if the estate is limited over to another in the event of the death of the remainderman before the determination of the particular estate, his vested estate will be subject to be divested by that event; and the interest of the substituted remainderman, which was before either an executory devise or a contingent remainder, will, if he is in esse and ascertained, be immediately converted into a vested remainder." Kelso v. Lorillard, 85 N. Y. 177. But see Hall v. Nute, 38 N. H. 422, where a remainder limited "after the death" of a life tenant was held contingent.

A remainder is deemed to be vested when it is limited to the grantee on reaching the age of twenty-one. Linton v. Laycock, 33 Ohio St. 128; Young v. Stoner, 37 Pa. St. 105.

4. Criley v. Chamberlain, 30 Pa. St. 161; Burleigh v. Clough, 52 N. H. 267; Manice v. Manice, 43 N. Y. 303. The word "heirs" is sometimes used, meaning "children." When it is so used, the remainder to heirs is considered as vested in the children. Haverstick's App. 103 Pa. St. 394; Hinton v. Milburn, 23 W. Va. 166.

5. Chew's App. 37 Pa. St. 23; Cooper v. Hepburn, 15 Gratt. (Va.) 551; Davidson v. Koehler, 76 Ind. 398; Ellwood v. Plum-

A vested remainder is descendible, and may be freely alienated or devised. It may be taken on execution, and passes to the assignee in bankruptcy of the owner.<sup>1</sup>

Devise to a Class. — Where a remainder is limited to a class of persons, e.g., children, to take effect in enjoyment at a future period, the estate vests in the persons as they come in esse, subject to open and let in others as they are born afterward during the continuance of the particular estate.<sup>2</sup>

2. Contingent Remainder. — The distinguishing characteristic of a contingent remainder is the uncertainty of the right, and not the uncertainty of possession. There are two classes of such remainders. One includes all cases where the persons who are to take, are, at the time of the gift, (a) uncertain, or (b) not in being. The other class includes all cases where the vesting of the remainder is made to depend on the happening of some collateral event, and it may be that (a) this event is sure to happen, but it is uncertain whether it will happen before the termination of the preceding particular estate; or (b) it is doubtful if the event happens at all.<sup>3</sup>

The particular estate necessary to support a contingent remainder must be a freehold interest.<sup>4</sup>

The rule against perpetuities, so called, does not apply to contingent remainders, but the contingency must not be obnoxious to law.<sup>5</sup>

mer, 78 N. Car. 392; Rogers v. Rogers, 11 R. I. 38; Rood v. Hovey, 50 Mich. 395; Gourley v. Woodbury, 42 Vt. 395.

1. Croxall v. Shererd, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 268; Wimple v. Fonda, 2 Johns. (N. Y.) 288; Pearce v. Savage, 45 Me. 90; Glidden v. Blodgett, 38 N. H. 74. A vested remainder may be mortgaged. Iowa L. & T. Co. v. King, 58 Iowa, 598; Drake v. Brown, 68 Pa. St. 223 (taken on execution); Smith v. Scholtz, 68 N. Y. 41 (passes to assignee).

2. Poor v. Considine, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 458; Coursey v. Davis, 46 Pa. 25. "Where there is a precedent life estate so that the ownership is filled, and there is no absolute necessity to make a present call for the takers of the ultimate estate, the matter is left open until the determination of the life estate with a view of taking in as many of the objects of the testator's bounty as come within the description and can answer to the call when it is necessary for the ownership to devolve and be fixed." Walker v. Johnston, 70 N. Car. 576. And see Voris v. Sloan, 68 Ill. 588 (a case of an equitable estate). "Where the legacy takes effect in point of right at one time, and in point of enjoyment at a subsequent time, all who are embraced in the class at the last time will take." Jones' App. 48 Conn. 60.

3. Poor v. Considine, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 458.

A remainder "to the heirs of A." is contingent. Reid v. Stuart's, 13 W. Va. 338; Sharman v. Jackson, 30 Ga. 224.

4. 2 Washb. Real Prop. (5th ed.) 634. But this has been changed by statute (see note 9).

5. Cole v. Sewell, 2 H. L. Cas. 186. But see Wood v. Griffiu, 46 N. H. 230.

If, however, the contingency is too remote, the remainder is void. Such a contingency is the indefinite failure of issue. Huxford v. Milligan, 50 Ind. 542. So a limitation to the unborn issue of unborn issue. Jackson v. Brown, 13 Wend. (N. Y.) 437; Allyn v. Mather, 9 Conn. 114; Cole v. Sewell, 2 H. L. Cas. 186.

Whether an estate can be limited to a corporation not yet formed, is a matter of doubt. In Zeisweis v. James, 63 Pa. St. 465, there was a bequest to the Infidel Society of Philadelphia hereafter to be incorporated, for the erection of a building for the free discussion of religion. The bequest was held void; and the court say in explanation, "It is highly improbable that the legislature will ever incorporate, or authorize the incorporation of, such an association. Suppose it, however, to be possible, it is potentia remota that a corporation should be created with that name, —

The rules of law require that a remainder vest as soon as there is any one in existence who can take; and the estate, having once vested, will not be defeated on any doubtful implication or condition.<sup>1</sup>

Except by statute, a contingent remainder cannot in strictness be conveyed by deed, nor can it be taken on execution, but it is descendible.<sup>2</sup> A destruction of the particular estate before the happening of the contingency, destroys the remainder.<sup>3</sup>

XVI. Estate on Condition. (See MORTGAGES.)—An estate on condition is one that may be created, enlarged, or defeated, upon the happening or not happening of a particular event. Such an estate is, strictly speaking, a qualification of some other estate, rather than a distinct estate of itself. Conditions are either precedent or subsequent. Conditions precedent are such as must happen or be performed before the estate can vest or be enlarged.

a possibility upon a possibility which is never admitted by intendment of law."

In Shapleigh v. Pillsbury, 1 Greenl. (Me.) 271, however, a gift to a church to be established was held good to convey the estate when the church was organized.

1. Lantz v. Trusler, 37 Pa. St. 482; Crisp v. Crisp, 61 Md. 149. A contingency is not destroyed by its improbability. Thus, where a remainder was limited to the children of a man and his wife, both of whom were over seventy-five years of age, it was held that the extreme improbability that they would have other children, at that advanced age, was not enough to make the remainder such a vested interest in the existing children that they could convey the fee. List v. Rodney, 83 Pa. St. 483.

An entry on the particular estate for breach of condition destroys a contingent remainder. Williams v. Angell, 7 R. I. 145, 152.

2. Den v. Demarest, 21 N. J. L. 525. An attempted conveyance by deed will pass the estate by estoppel when it vests. Robertson v. Wilson, 38 N. H. 48. But it is assignable in equity. Bailey v. Hopkin, 12 R. I. 560. Chief Justice Durfee there says, "A court of equity does not stop in a case like the present to get itself entangled in the web of subtle refinement which renders the law of contingent remainders so perplexing to the common-law lawyers; but, brushing them aside, it regards only the fact that the grantee of the deed has paid his money for it, and that he is therefore entitled in good conscience to have the fruit of it, though it may exist but in promise, not only conserved to him while living, but transmitted to his heirs and devisees. In equity, indeed, it is the executory contract for the future estate which is transmitted."

Where, however, the contingency is not in reference to the person who is to take, but to the event upon which he is to take, the remainderman may grant his interest, and the grantee will take the interest subject to the contingency. Kenyon v. See, 94 N. Y. 563; Whipple v. Fairchild, 139 Mass. 263. In this last case the word "heirs" of a living person was held to mean presumptive heirs; and the children have the right to alienate the remainder limited to them as heirs, although, as they may die before the ancestor, the remainder is contingent.

The rule that a contingent remainder is not transferable, has been changed by statute in California. Code, § 5699 Michigan Sts. § 5551; New York Rev. St. p. 2178; Minnesota Gen. St. ch. 45, § 35; Wisconsin Rev. St. § 2059. See also the statutes in New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Maine.

It would seem to be law that a contingent remainder cannot be taken on execution. Robertson v. Wilson, 38 N. H. 48; Striker v. Mott, 28 N. Y. 82. But the law is otherwise in Pennsylvania. Drake v. Brown, 68 Pa. St. 223, where Agnew, J. says, "It is immaterial whether his interest in the property was vested or contingent: it was liable for his debts. So also White v. McPheeters, 75 Mo. 286. And it may pass to the assignee in insolvency. Belcher v. Burnett, 126 Mass. 230.

Such a remainder descends. Chess's App. 87 Pa. St. 362; Buck v. Lantz, 49 Md. 439; Winslow v. Goodwin, 7 Me. (Mass.) 363. But see contra, De Lassus v. Gatewood, 71 Mo. 371.

3. Poor v. Considine, 6 Wall. (U. S.) 458. The destruction may be caused by a merger of the particular estate with the inheritance. Pool v. Morris, 29 Ga. 374; Jordan v. McClure, 85 Pa. St. 495.

A condition subsequent is one that defeats an estate already vested. Conditions also may be express or implied. An express condition, or a condition in deed as it is called, is expressly mentioned in the instrument creating or limiting the estate to which the condition is attached. An implied condition, or a condition in law, arises by implication of law, and is annexed to the estate as a necessary and invariable incident. The annexation of a condition to an estate does not necessarily prevent its alienation; but the grantee takes it subject to the condition, and to the possibility of forfeiture on the happening of the condition.<sup>1</sup> No express form of words is necessary to create a condition, though a deed is more strictly construed than a will.<sup>2</sup> It is sometimes a matter of doubt whether a condition is to be construed as precedent or subsequent. The rule has been laid down for wills in these words: "If the act or condition required does not necessarily precede the vesting of the estate, but may accompany or follow it, and if the act may as well be done after, as before, the vesting of the estate; or if, from the nature of the act to be performed, and the time required for its performance, it is evidently the intention of the parties that the estate shall vest, and the grantee perform the act after taking possession, — then the condition is subsequent."<sup>3</sup> The law, however, favors the vesting of estates, and is inclined to treat conditions as subsequent rather than precedent. If they must be construed as precedent, they must be strictly, literally, and punctually performed, and the estate cannot vest until the condition is performed; so that if the performance of the condition has become impossible, the estate cannot vest.<sup>4</sup> Where, however, the condition is subsequent, it must arise by express words or by a necessary implication to work a forfeiture. It is strictly construed,

1. 4 Kent, Com. * 121; De Peyster v. Michael, 6 N. Y. 467, 506; Giles v. Little, 104 U. S. 291; Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103. The condition runs with the land, and is good until broken, in whosoever hands the land is; and the grantee is estopped to deny the validity of the title conveyed to him. O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616; Cowell v. Springs Co., 100 U. S. 55.

2. Craig v. Wells, 11 N. Y. 315. But a condition cannot be created by parol when the gift is by deed. Marshall, etc., v. Iowa, etc., 28 Iowa, 360. If the language imports a covenant, but a right of re-entry is given on breach, it is construed as a condition. Moore v. Pitts, 53 N. Y. 85. But a conveyance "upon the consideration that the grantee shall well and truly fulfil all the agreements on his part in a certain indenture" without any provision for entry on breach, was held not to be on condition. Ayer v. Emery, 14 Allen (Mass.), 67. And see Stone v. Houghton, 139 Mass. 175; Supervisors v. Patterson, 50 Ill. 119.

In a will, the intention of the testator must be looked to, and the precise words may be disregarded. Lindsey v. Lindsey, 45 Ind. 552.

If a condition is in the alternative, the grantee may elect which he will perform; but he is bound by his election, when it is once made. Bryant v. Erskine, 55 Me. 153.

3. Underhill v. Saratoga, etc., R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 459; Watters v. Breden, 70 Pa. St. 235; Hunt v. Beeson, 18 Ind. 380; Monroe v. Bowen, 26 Mich. 523; Finlay v. King's Lessees, 3 Pet. (U. S.) 346; Austin v. Cambridgeport Parish, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 215; Rogan v. Walker, 1 Wis. 454.

4. Mizell v. Burnett, 4 Jones, L. (N. Car.) 249.

Where the condition on which the estate should vest in a devisee was "his paying to the other heirs the sum of —," it was held that the estate could never vest, as there was no means of ascertaining the sum to be paid. Martin v. Ballou, 13 Barb. (N. Y.) 119; Barksdale v. Elam, 30 Miss. 694.

and not favored by the law, as it tends to destroy the estate.<sup>1</sup> If the performance becomes impossible, the condition is gone, and the estate becomes absolute in the holder.<sup>2</sup> So, too, where the condition is void, or illegal, it has no effect on the estate to which it was annexed.<sup>3</sup>

1. Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. St. 341. The words of condition must be so connected with the grant as to qualify or restrain it. Laberee v. Carleton, 53 Me. 211.

The condition must touch the land; and a condition that the grantee shall not do a certain act unconnected with the land, e.g., not be convicted of an offence against the game laws, is of no force. Stevens v. Copp, L. R. 4 Ex. 20.

If it is doubtful whether the language imports a condition or a covenant, the latter interpretation is adopted. Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N. H. 322; Board, etc., v. Trustees, etc., 63 Ill. 204.

Where the conveyance is for a certain purpose, it is no cause for forfeiture that the land is also used for purposes other than those specified. McKelway v. Seymour, 29 N. J. L. 321. And where there was a condition in a deed "for church purposes," that the pews should not "be rented or sold," it was held not to extend to a sale for debt of the whole church property. Woodworth v. Payne, 74 N. Y. 196. And see Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 178.

If the terms of the grant do not expressly impose the performance of the condition on the heirs or assigns of the grantee, the condition can be enforced only while the estate is held by the original grantee. Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N. H. 475. Page v. Palmer, 48 N. H. 385.

A condition must be performed by the person on whom performance is imposed; and performance cannot be delegated to another, except with the consent of the grantor. Rollins v. Riley, 44 N. H. 9. See contra, Wilson v. Wilson, 38 Me. 18. In both these cases the condition was for the support of the grantor during his life, by the grantee. And see Watters v. Breden, 70 Pa. St. 235.

"Conditions which destroy an estate are taken strictly; and although a forfeiture must be enforced when clearly established, it should not prevail on doubtful constructions of evidence. If any thing is to be done as a condition precedent by the party who asserts the forfeiture, he must show a strict performance on his part; and this is so, whether the obligation on him is created by express stipulation, or is implied by law, from the nature of the act to be performed by the other party. He who may lose by a breach of the condition, must be plainly put in the wrong." Hogebloom v. Hall, 24 Wend. (N. Y.) 146. And see Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Cush. (Mass.) 178.

2. Gadberry v. Sheppard, 27 Miss. 203; Brandon v. Robinson, 18 Ves. 429; Parker v. Parker, 123 Mass. 584; United States v. Arredondo, 6 Pet. (U. S.) 691, 745. This is true where performance is prevented by act of the grantor. Jones v. Chesapeake, etc., R. Co., 14 W. Va. 514; Whitney v. Spencer, 4 Cow. (N. Y.) 39. In Cape Fear, etc., Co. v. Wilcox, 7 Jones (N. Car.), 481, the court says, "One who prevents the performance of a condition, or makes it impossible by his own act, shall not take advantage of the non-performance."

3. De Peyster v. Michael, 6 N. Y. 467.

Restraint of Marriage.—A condition in restraint of marriage is void if it is general, and applied to unmarried persons. Williams v. Cowden, 13 Mo. 211. A mere forfeiture on marriage, held in terrorem over the grantee, is void. Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310. But if the whole gift indicates that it was made as a provision for the grantee while unmarried, and no mere restraint is intended, a gift over, even on a first marriage, is good. Jones v. Jones, L. R. 1 Q. B. D. 279; Arthur v. Cole, 56 Md. 100; Mansfield v. Mansfield, 75 Me. 509. A partial restriction may be good; as, where the condition is that the grantee shall not marry under twenty-one years of age. Shackleford v. Hall, 19 Ill. 212; Reuff v. Coleman's Heirs, 3 S. E. Rep. (W. Va.) 597.

A condition in restraint of a second marriage is good; and an estate may be conveyed to a widow, to be forfeited on her remarriage. Gough v. Manning, 26 Md. 347; Com. v. Stauffer, 10 Pa. St. 350; Coppage v. Alexander, 2 B. Mon. (Ky) 313; Dumey v. Schoeffler, 24 Mo. 170; Green v. Hewitt, 97 Ill. 113; Giles v. Little, 104 U. S. 291. This same is true in a gift to a widower. Bostick v. Blades, 59 Md. 231; Allen v. Jackson, L. R. 1 Ch. D. 399.

A contrary rule is in force in Indiana, depending on a local statute. A devise "for life, or during widowhood," is held bad, as imposing a void condition on a life estate. Stilwell v. Knapper, 69 Ind. 558; Crawford v. Thompson, 91 Ind. 266. The Indiana court, however, has declared that a devise "during widowhood" was good,

If any time is set for the performance of the condition, it must be strictly observed. Generally the intention of the grantor must be observed; and if it is impossible to ascertain the intention, then the grantee may perform the condition any time during his life. If prompt performance is intended or necessary, the grantee is allowed a reasonable time.<sup>1</sup>

With every condition a right of entry for breach of the condition is associated, and passes with the condition as incident to it. On breach of the condition, the estate does not at once revert in the grantor; but the right of entry becomes available, and the estate reverts only after an entry made for the purpose of terminating the estate.<sup>2</sup> This right of entry is not an estate in lands, or even a possibility of reverter: it is a mere chose in action.<sup>3</sup> It construing it as a limitation of the estate, and not a condition at all. Harmon v. Brown, 58 Ind. 207.

Intoxicating Liquors.—A condition that the premises shall never be used for the sale of intoxicating liquors, is good. Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N. Y. 442; O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616; Cowell v. Springs Co., 100 U. S. 55; Collins Mfg. Co. v. Marcy, 25 Conn. 242. So also that the property shall not be used as a hotel. Stinis v. Dorman, 25 Ohio St. 580.

Other Conditions.—A condition which defeats an estate on appropriation to the grantee's debts is void. Brandon v. Robinson, 18 Ves. 429. It is held good in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Broadway Bank v. Adams, 133 Mass. 170; Overman's App. 88 Pa. St. 276. And see White v. Thomas, 8 Bush (Ky.), 661. These cases are, however, opposed to the general doctrine. See Gray, Restraints on Alienation, for an extended discussion on this point.

1. A devise to A., on condition that he marry B., if uncontrolled by other words, takes effect immediately; and the devisee performs the condition if he marry B. any time during his life. Finlay v. King's Lessees, 3 Pet. U. S. 346, 374. Where the condition was that the land should be used for hotel purposes, and, when the hotel was consumed by fire, there was no attempt to rebuild it during fifteen months, it was held that the condition was broken. Allen v. Howe, 105 Mass. 241. Where the condition is for the discharge of a mortgage on the premises, it must be performed in a reasonable time. Ross v. Tremain, 2 Met. (Mass.) 495. A condition to be performed by the grantees "at your own time and convenience," which is the sole consideration of the conveyance, must be performed in a reasonable time. Adams v. Ore Knob Copper Co., 12 Rep. (C. C.) 166. Performance of a condition may be presumed from lapse of time. Fox v.

Phelps, 17 Wend. (N. Y.) 393 (twenty-nine years). And see Jeffersonville, etc., R. Co. v. Barbour, 89 Ind. 375.

2. Tallman v. Snow, 35 Me. 342; Hubbard v. Hubbard, 97 Mass. 188, 192. It does not revert without entry, even where the grant provides that it shall be "ipso facto void" on breach of condition. Phelps v. Chesson, 12 Ired. (N. Car.) 194; Adams v. Lindell, 5 Mo. App. 197. The entry must be with the express intent to terminate the estate, — Andrews v. Senter, 32 Me. 394; Bowen v. Bowen, 18 Conn. 535, — but it is not necessary to give the grantee notice of the purpose of the entry. Hamilton v. Elliott, 5 S. & R. (Pa.) 375. In some jurisdictions it is held that an action to recover possession dispenses with a formal entry: Stearns v. Harris, 8 Allen (Mass.), 597; Ruch v. Rock Island, 97 U. S. 693. Or an unequivocal act showing an intention to insist on a forfeiture. Memphis, etc., R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412; Kenner v. Am. Contr. Co., 9 Bush (Ky.), 202.

The right of entry is incident to the condition, and passes with it to the heir. Jackson v. Topping, 1 Wend. (N. Y.) 388. On breach of condition, entry can be made to enforce a forfeiture, although there may be no material injury to the grantor, and though he may have other remedies. Stuyvesant v. Mayor of N. Y., 11 Paige (N. Y.), 414; Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Pick. (Mass.) 284.

3. Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 44, 63; Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359.

"There is not even a possibility coupled with an interest, but a bare possibility alone." Nicoll v. N. Y. & Erie R. Co., 12 N. Y. 121, 132. So in De Peyster v. Michael, 6 N. Y. 467, 506. The right of re-entry is not a reversion, nor is it the possibility of a reversion, nor is it any estate in land. It is a mere right, or chose in action; and, if enforced, the grantor is the essence of an estate on condition that the right to enter be reserved to the grantor and his heirs. It cannot be reserved to a stranger, and cannot be assigned: indeed, the right is gone forever if the grantor attempts to convey it.<sup>1</sup>

The performance of the condition may be waived by the grantor. The waiver is usually made by a formal release of the condition, or by an express license; but there may be a waiver implied from acts, though mere acquiescence in the breach is not necessarily a waiver. If the condition is once waived, however, it is gone forever, and cannot be enforced on a subsequent breach.<sup>2</sup>

Equity never interferes to enforce a forfeiture;<sup>3</sup> but it may, under some circumstances, interfere to relieve a grantee from a forfeiture. Where the breach is the non-payment of money, and damages for the delay in performance can be accurately computed, there equity says that the payment of the sum stipulated with interest is equivalent to payment at the day named;<sup>4</sup> but where would be in by the forfeiture of a condition, and not by a reverter."

1. Van Rensselaer v. Ball, 19 N. Y. 100, 103; Wellons v. Jordan, 83 N. Car. 371; Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. (U. S.) 44. The right of entry cannot be originally reserved to a third person, — Fonda v. Sage, 46 Barb. (N. Y.) 109, 122, — and any attempt to convey it to a third person ends it. Norris v. Milner, 20 Ga. 563; Guild v. Richards, 16 Gray (Mass.), 309; Underhill v. Saratoga, etc., R. Co., 20 Barb. (N. Y.) 455. "Whether a condition has been complied with or not, is a matter between the grantor and grantee, with which third persons have nothing to do." Smith v. Brannan, 13 Cal. 107. This is so far true, that a conveyance of the right of entry to one on whom it would subsequently fall on the death of the grantor, destroys the condition. Rice v. Boston & W. R. Co., 12 Allen (Mass.), 141. In Pennsylvania alone a right of entry is assignable. McKissick v. Pickle, 16 Pa. 140.

This rule, however, is not applicable to leases for years. There the right of entry was made assignable by st. 32 Hen. VIII. ch. 34, and this statute has become part of the law in this country. Nicoll v. N. Y. & Erie R. Co., 12 N. Y. 121, 131; Plumleigh v. Cook, 13 Ill. 669.

Nor can a devisee of the grantor take advantage of the breach of condition. Southard v. Central R. Co., 26 N. J. L. 1, 21. Contra, Austin v. Cambridgeport Parish, 21 Pick. (Mass.) 215. Though possibly this doctrine grew out of the construction of a clause in Pub. St. Mass. ch. 173, § 3.

An implied condition is always assignable as an incident to the right of property; but if the condition is apportioned between two assignees of the reversion, it is destroyed. Cruger v. McLaury, 41 N. Y.

219, 225; Rutzen v. Lewis, 5 A. & E. 277.

2. Andrews v. Senter, 32 Me. 394; Hubbard v. Hubbard, 97 Mass. 188; Muston v. Gladwin, 6 Q. B. 953; Murray v. Harway, 56 N. Y. 337, 343; McKildoe v. Darra-cott, 13 Gratt. (Va.) 278; Dougherty v. Matthews, 35 Mo. 520; Porter v. Merrill, 126 Mass. 534.

Receiving rent after a breach of condition, will be considered a waiver, if with knowledge of the breach. Camp v. Scott, 47 Conn. 366; Davenport v. The Queen, 3 App. Cas. 115. But it is said that the rent must accrue after the breach. Jackson v. Allen, 3 Cow. (N. Y.) 220; Price v. Wor-wood, 4 H. & N. 512.

Mere delay in entry is no waiver unless the grantee is permitted to incur some expense after breach; e.g., a grant to a railroad company on condition that the road should be built by a certain date. The road was not so finished, and the grantor stood by and allowed the work to be completed. It was held that he could not then insist on forfeiture. Ludlow v. N. Y. & Harlem River R. R., 12 Barb. (N. Y.) 440.

"A condition once dispensed with, in the whole or in part, is dispensed with forever, and as to all the land; for a condition is entire, and cannot be apportioned except by act of law. Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. St. 341, 349. Here a grant was made on the condition that a "bloomery" should be erected on the land. The grantor expressly waived this condition if the grantee would erect a blast-furnace instead. This was never done, but it was held that the right of forfeiture was gone. See also Murray v. Harway, 56 N. Y. 337.

3. Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468, 478.

4. The English rule is laid down in the condition is the performance of some act, as keeping the premises insured, or where the breach was wilfully committed, there equity declines to interfere.<sup>1</sup>

It is sometimes difficult to determine whether the language in a grant imports a gift on condition, or a trust,<sup>2</sup> or even whether the gift is on condition, or is a conditional limitation. The material difference between the last two is, that a condition can only be taken advantage of by the grantor or his heirs, and the estate is not defeated until entry; while in a conditional limitation, the estate at once goes to a person named in the original grant on the happening of the specified event, without the necessity of any act of entry by any one.<sup>3</sup>

Dunklee v. Adams, 20 Vt. 421, as follows: "Relief will only be granted where the breach of the condition is for the non-payment of money; and it is granted in such case only on the principle that the allowance of interest for the delay forms a certain rule of compensation, and is equivalent to payment at the day." Bethlehem v. Annis, 40 N. H. 34; Hancock v. Carlton, 6 Gray (Mass.), 39; Carpenter v.

Westcott, 4 R. I. 225. But see Henry v. Tupper, 29 Vt. 358.

1. Green v. Bridges, 4 Sim. 96; Hill v. Barclay, 18 Ves. 56; Henry v. Tupper, 29 Vt. 358.

2. See Stanley v. Colt, 5 Wall. (U. S.) 119, 165; Sohier v. Trinity Church, 109 Mass. 1.

3. See Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. St. 335, 340; Miller v. Levi, 44 N. Y. 489; Owen v. Field, 102 Mass. 90, 105.

INDEX.

---

- Down, 1
- Dowry, 1
- Draft, 1
- Drains and Sewers, 2
  - Abandonment, 29
  - Accidents, 25
  - Assessment for sewers, 20
  - Assessments, special, 12
  - Connecting, 29
  - Definition, 2
  - Devising plans, 25
  - Discharging sewerage, 22
  - Easements, 18
  - Eminent domain, 14
  - Legislative power, 2
  - Municipal corporations, duties and liabilities of, 23
  - Municipal corporations, rights of, 19
  - Police power, 6
  - Private drains, 15
  - Public drains, 2
  - Repairing, 28
  - Right to construct private drains, 16
  - Sewers, 19
  - Statutes, 2
  - Taxation, 6
  - Taxing power, 10
- Dram, 29
- Dramatic, 29
- Dramatic composition, 29
- Draw, 30
- Dray, 30
- Dredge, 30
- Driftwood, 30
- Drink, 30
- Drive, 31
- Drove, 31
- Drover, 31
- Druggist, 31
- Druggist, negligence of, 32
- Drugs, 33
- Drummers, 34
- Drunkard, 34
- Drunkenness, 35
- Dry-goods, 35
- Due, 36
- Due process of law, 43
- Duelling, 53
- Duly, 54
- Dumb, 55
- Dunce, 55
- Dunnage, 55
- Duplicate, 56
- Duration, 56
- Duress, 57
  - Actions and defences, 90
  - Admissions, 99
  - Agents, 80, 91
  - Arrest, 62
  - Assumpsit, 95
  - Attachment, 76
  - Business necessities, 71
  - Carriers, 78
  - Colore Officii, 77
  - Crimes, 89
  - Deeds, 81
  - Definition, 57
  - Duress of goods, 60
  - Duress of person, 60
  - Husband and wife, 93
  - Illegal detention of property, 74
  - Illegal process, 75
  - Illegal seizure, 77
  - Improper use of process of court, 76
  - Imprisonment, 62
  - Judicial process, 69
  - Laches, 89
  - Lease, 83
  - License, 72
  - Marriage, 81
  - Master and servant, 90
  - Mortgage, 84
  - Municipal corporations, 95
  - Orders of superior to employ force, 90
  - Parent and child, 92
  - Personal services, refusal of, 75
  - Principal and surety, 96
  - Protest, 87
  - Public duty, 77
  - Ratification, 88
  - Redemption of land, 84
  - Refusal to deliver property, 74
  - Taxes, 85
  - Threats, 64
  - Threats of arrest, 69
  - Threats of criminal prosecution, 69
  - Vitiates contracts, 59
- During, 99
- Dust, 100
- Duty, 100

- Dwell, 100
 Dwelling, 101
 Dwelling-house, 101
 Dwelling-place, 104
 Dye, 105
 Dying, 105
 Dying declarations, 105
   Accomplices, 136
   Admissibility, 106 [128
   Admissibility; discretion of the court,
   Bad character of deceased, 133
   Children, 133
   Condition of declarant, 134
   Contradictory statements, 136
   Declaration exonerating prisoner, 132
   Declarations in writing, 129
   Declarations not admissible, 113
   Declarations not reduced to writing,
   Definition, 105 [130
   Degree of credit to be given to, 135
   Evidence for the prisoner, 131
   General character of rule, 135
   Hope of recovery afterwards abandoned, 116
   How made, 120
   Husband and wife, 134
   Infamous witness, 132
   Insanity of declarant, 133
   Intemperate habits, 133
   Interval of time between the declaration and death, 122
   Manslaughter, 107
   Mistaken identity, 133
   Practice, 135
   Preliminary proof, 127
   Previous declarations affirmed, 116
   Religious belief of deceased, 132
   Res gestæ, 123
   Several declarations, 134 [107
   Situation of the party making them,
   Subsequent proof of recovery, 117
   Where two persons are killed, 125
 Each, 136
 Ear, 137
 Early, 137
 Earnest, 137
 Earnings, 138
 Earth, 138
 Easements, 139
   Appurtenant, 140
   Characteristics and incidents, 142
   Continuance, 141
   Definition, 139
   Discontinuance, 141
   Extent and mode of use, 152
   How acquired, 143
   How created, 143
   How lost or extinguished, 146
   In gross, 140
   Liabilities of parties, 149
   License; distinguished from, 141
   Light and air, 152
   Particular kinds of, 152 [142
   Profit a prendre; distinguished from,
   Easements—Continued.
     Quasi, 141
     Rights of parties, 149
 East, 153
 Easterly, 153
 Eating-house, 153
 Eavesdropping, 153
 Ecclesiastical, 154
 Eclectic, 154
 Ecumenical, 154
 Edition, 155
 Editor, 155
 Educate, 156
 Education, 158
   Corporations, 160
   In deed, 161
   In statute, 161
   In will, 162
   Of children, 160
   Orders of court as to, 161
   Qualifications to suffrage, 160
   Trust for, 167
 Effect, 169
 Effects, 174
 Effectual, 195
 Either, 195
 Ejectment, 195
   Abatement, 214, 245j
   Abstract to title, 215
   Actual occupant, 245c
   Administrator, 243
   Admissions, 245j, 245n
   Adverse claimants, 245d
   Adverse possession, 204, 235
   Agent, 243
   Alienation by personal possession, etc., 210
   Amendment, 245j
   Ancestors, 245o
   Appeal, 245cc
   Casual ejector, 245f
   Claim for the whole—proof of part,
     Codes, 200 [245n
   Committee of imbecile, 243
   Coparceners, 244
   Corporations, 242
   Cotenants, 206, 245p
   Damages and mesne profits, 217, 245y
   Declaration as heir, 245n
   Default, 245 x
   Defences, 245g
   Definition, 201
   Demise, 245i
   Description of the land, 245k
   Devisee, 242
   Disability, 222
   Dower, 242, 245e, 245n
   Equitable defence, 245g
   Estoppel, 245, k 245p
   Evidence, 216
   Evidence of defendant, 245n
   Evidence of plaintiff, 245k
   Executor, 244
   Feigned issues, 203

Ejectment—Continued.

For what lies, 232
 Forced issue, 245<sup>o</sup>
 General prayer for relief, 245<sup>k</sup>
 Grantor and grantee, 241
 Guardian, 243
 Heir, 244
 Heir or devisee, 206
 History of, 197
 Husband and wife, 245<sup>e</sup>
 Improvements, 218; 245<sup>s</sup>
 Infant, 245<sup>e</sup>
 Injunction, 245<sup>dd</sup>
 Insane, 243
 Interest claimed, 245<sup>k</sup>
 Interest required, 202
 Joinder of actions, 214
 Joinder of cotenants, tenants in common, etc., 206
 Joinder of parties generally, 207
 Joint tenants, 206, 244
 Judgment, 220, 245<sup>f</sup>
 Judgment, admissible evidence in bar, judgment as evidence, 245<sup>g</sup>. [245<sup>x</sup>
 Jurisdiction, 211 [223
 Jurisdiction in United States courts, Landlord and tenant, 207, 237
 Landlord may be defendant, 245<sup>f</sup>
 Landlord's title, 245<sup>p</sup>
 Limitations, 204
 Mortgage, 245<sup>s</sup>
 Mortgagee, 245, 245<sup>e</sup>
 Mortgagor, 245<sup>a</sup>
 Mortgagor and mortgagee, 205
 Nature of action, 225
 New trial, 222
 Notice to quit, 238
 One claiming title, 245<sup>c</sup>
 Ouster, 245<sup>f</sup>, 245<sup>m</sup>
 Outstanding title, 245<sup>n</sup>, 245<sup>r</sup>
 Parties defendant, 209, 245<sup>c</sup>
 Parties generally, 205
 Parties plaintiff, 208, 241
 Party coming in pendente lite, 245<sup>t</sup>
 Plaintiff's title terminating, 210
 Pleadings, 211, 245<sup>g</sup>
 Possession, 245<sup>m</sup>
 Practice, 215
 Presumptions, 216, 234
 Public offices, 242
 Remainderman, 245<sup>e</sup>
 Reversioner, 242
 Right of entry, 245<sup>m</sup>
 Right of entry; when it accrues, 205
 Seizin, 245<sup>o</sup>
 Servant, 245<sup>e</sup>
 Service, 245<sup>g</sup>
 Service of process, 211
 Statutes, 200
 Statute of limitations, 235
 Tax title; holder of, 245<sup>f</sup>
 Tenancy; a question of fact, 245<sup>p</sup>
 Tenant at sufferance, 243
 Tenant at will, 243, 245<sup>e</sup>

Ejectment—Continued.

Tenant curtesy, 245<sup>n</sup>
 Tenant for years, 243
 Tenant in common, 206, 244, 245<sup>p</sup>
 Title, 245<sup>k</sup>
 Title from common source, 245<sup>n</sup>
 Title of common ancestor, 245<sup>p</sup>
 Vendor and vendee, 206, 241, 245<sup>d</sup>
 Ward, 243
 What interest may be recovered, 245<sup>f</sup>
 When action may be maintained, 226
 When an action may be maintained, [201
 Writ of error, 245<sup>dd</sup>
 Writ of possession, 221, 245<sup>cc</sup>
 Ejidos, 246
 Elder, 246
 Eldest, 246
 Elect, 246
 Election, 247
 Community of property, 252
 Contracts, 251
 Criminal law, 250
 Definition, 247
 Dower, 252
 Effects of, 250, 254
 Instruments of donation, 251
 Intention of donor, 252
 Mode of, 254
 Remedies, 247
 Time of, 254
 Who may elect, 253
 Elections, 255 [proof, 329
 Admission of votes without proper
 Adjournment of board, effect of, 381
 Affidavit, how sufficiency of, is tested, 412
 Agent, effect of bribery by, 370
 Almshouse, residence of pauper in, 276
 Appellate jurisdiction, 413
 Authority to correct errors, 312
 Authority to hold elections, 293
 Ballots, 342
 Ballots, ambiguous, explainable, 431
 Ballot boxes, improper, 327
 Betting on elections, 437
 Bribery, 364
 Bribery at nominating elections, 285
 Burden of proof, 433 [379
 Call for election, mandamus to compel,
 Canvass, for what office it may be compelled, 382
 Canvass, mandamus to compel, 380
 Canvass of votes at illegal elections, 382
 Canvassing boards, 310
 Certificate, conditional, 377 [377
 Certificate, does not settle eligibility,
 Certificate, effect of bribery, 381
 Certificate, effect of conflicting, 375
 Certificate, effect of, in contest, 377
 Certificate, effect of irregular, 375
 Certificate, form of, for member of Congress, 375
 Certificate, informality of, 337

Election—Continued.

Certificate, lack of, 337
 Certificate, making false, 438
 Certificate of, 373 [compel giving, 379
 Certificate of election, mandamus to Certificate of naturalization, 267
 Certificate vitiated by its own statements, 373
 Challenging voters, 285
 Check list, failure to use, 328
 Children of naturalized persons, 267
 Citizenship, by acquisition of territory,
 268 [dence, 266
 Citizenship, presumption of, from residence, 266
 Citizenship, qualification of, 263
 Citizenship, what constitutes, 264
 Color, 272 [sue of, 379
 Commission, mandamus to compel is-
 Conduct of elections, 325
 Congress, power of, 280
 Congressional districts, changing boundaries of, 284
 Conspiracy, 443
 Constitutional amendments, 261
 Constitutional law, 280
 Constitutional qualifications, exclusive, 263
 Constitutional right, extension of, 263
 Contest before legislative bodies, 390
 Counting the votes, 328 [364
 Counting votes of intimidated voters, Courts of equity cannot try contest for office, 391
 Crime, disfranchisement for, 272
 Criminal, pleading and practice, 441
 Deaf and dumb persons, 270
 Declarations of voter as to incapa-
 Definition, 260 [city, 429
 Degree of intimidation or violence, 359 Delegates to Congress, authority to elect, 295
 Disfranchisement for crime, 272
 Distinguishing marks of ballots, 350
 Distributing voters at Congressional Double ballot, 348 [elections, 364
 Double returns, 377
 Effect of bribery, 365
 Election by two bodies, 332
 Election officers, 302 Electoral votes, power of Congress in counting, 314
 Equitable remedies, 391
 Evidence, 421
 Evidence in criminal cases, 436
 Evidence of bribery, 368
 Evidence of corrupt practice, 369
 Evidence of intimidation, 363 [339
 Failure to send required documents,
 False oath, 443 [tory, 266
 Fourteenth amendment, only declara-
 Franchise, how extended or restricted,
 Fraud, 353 [260
 Fraud, allegation of, 442
 Fraud indictable at common law, 357

Election—Continued.

Fraud in registration, 293
 Fraudulent registration, power to pun-
 Fraudulent returns, 334 [ish, 287
 Freeholds, 270
 General laws, 282
 Ground of contest, 410
 Habeas corpus, 393
 Heading of ballot, 351
 Households, 272
 Illegal contracts, 445
 Illegality in ballots, 348
 Illegal returns, mandamus to compel rejection of, 380
 Illegal votes, reception of, 426
 Illegal voting, 351
 Illegal voting, defence in action for,
 Infancy, 272 [439
 Informal return, correction of, 423
 Informalities corrected, 339
 Informalities in ballots, 343
 Inhabitants, 271
 Injunction: may lie to prevent collection of fees, 391
 Injunction: may restrain acts based on fraudulent elections, 392
 Injunction: not proper to obtain possession of office, 391
 Injunction: will not restrain canvassing of votes, 392 [392
 Injunction: will not restrain contest, Injunction: will not restrain holding of
 election, 392
 Injunction: will not restrain issue of commission acting under it, 392 Injunction: will not restrain use of certificate, 392
 Intimidation, 358
 Intention of person in removing, 434
 Intimidation of registers, 291
 Irregularities, 325
 Irregularities in forwarding returns,
 Irregularities in returns, 334 [341
 Irregularities of registration, 291
 Jurisdiction of court, 412
 Jury trial, right to, 413
 Laborers, 277
 Laches, effect of, 357
 Laws of residence, 279
 Legality of elections tried by habeas corpus, 393 [428
 Legality of the vote, presumption of,
 Legislature cannot indirectly disfranchise voters, 285
 Legislature, power of, 280
 Liabilities of election officers, 302
 Mandamus, 378, 394
 Mandamus compelling returns, 339
 Manner of voting, mandatory, 327
 Mandamus: to whom a writ may issue,
 Members of Congress, 261, 284 [383 Members of Congress, authority to elect, 296
 Mental qualifications of voters, 269

Election—Continued.

Military interference, 359
 Mistake, effect of, 331
 Mistake in depositing or counting ballots, evidence of, 434
 Mistake of law as to jurisdiction, 382
 Mistake, proof of, 432
 Municipal corporations, acceptance of corporate powers, 281
 Municipal subscriptions, 281 [293
 Names, erroneous spelling of voters',
 Names of candidates, mistakes in, 346
 Naturalization, 266
 Naturalization, by what courts, 267
 Naturalization, proof of, 435
 Naturalized citizens: when they vote,
 New trial or rehearing, 413 [269
Non Compos mentis, persons who are,
 Notice must demand relief, 404 [269
 Notice, irregularity in, may be waived, [414
 Notice, publication of, 301
 Notice, waiver of sufficient, 403
 Numbering the ballots, 347
 Offences against election laws, 438
 Officer receiving votes, power of, 305
 Pauperage, 270
 Persons of color, 266
 Phrases, meaning of, 445
 Place of canvassing returns, 324
 Place of holding, 323
 Place must be fixed by proper author-
 Pleadings, 394 [ity, 324
 Pleading before legislative bodies, 402
 Pleadings in civil actions, 408
 Pleadings in statutory contests, 405
 Poll vote contradicted by parol, 430
 Power of Congress over Congressional elections, 286
 Powers of election officers, 302 [287
 Power to compel elections by districts,
 Power to enact registry laws, 287
 Power to punish individual acts at State elections, 286
 Power to submit to popular vote, 280.
 Practice, 408,
 Practice and pleading, 394
 Practice in Congress and legislative bodies, 414
 Precincts not counted, 339
 Presiding officer, absence of, 329 Presumption of official character from acts, 337
 Presumption that voting is legal, 353
Prima facie right to office, 373
 Prohibition, 393
 Property qualification, 270
 Purging or rejecting polls, 353, 356
 Qualifications of election officers, 302
 Qualifications of voters, 260
 Qualifications of voters, power of Congress over, 285
 Qualifications of voters, power of legis-
 Quo warranto, 386 [lature over, 283

Election—Continued.

Quo warranto, practice and pleading,
 Recount, effect of, 424 [397
 Recounting votes, 313
 Recounting votes, officers cannot, 307
 Refusing vote, proof in action for, 434
 Registration, 287
 Registration, mandamus to compel, 379
 Registry law, 263
 Regularity of acts will be presumed, 30
 Rejected votes, counting of, 348
 Rejected votes, proof of, 433
 Remedies in election cases, 378
 Residence, 274
 Returns, 334
 Returns, how may be impeached, 424
 Returns impeached by fraud, 425
 Returns made from improper data, 426
 Sailors, 276
 Secrecy, 343
 Sex, 272
 Signature, lack of, 337
 Slavery of parents, 266
 Social and religious intimidation, 362
 Sojourners, 277
 Soldiers, 276
 Soldiers' voting places, 284
 State control, 260
 Statutory notice, impossibility of giv-
 Statutory remedies, 390 [ing, 302
 Students, 278
 Suffrage not a natural right, 260
 Supervisors, authority of, 333
 Taxation for local improvements, 281
 Taxes, payment of, 271
 Threats of loss of occupation, 362
 Tie vote, 334, 412
 Time and place of holding, 318
 Time, averment of, 442
 Time of filing, how objection to, is taken, 411
 Time of filing notice of complaint, 410
 Time of making returns directory, 340
 Time when residence begins, 278
 Treating, 372
 Trial, time of, 412
 True vote may be proved, 357
 Uncertainty in returns, 338
 Undue influence, 364, 372
 Unlawful combination, evidence to prove, 436
 Verification: statutory provisions must be followed, 411
 Violence, 358
 Vote after reception, power of officer over, 307
 Voters, qualifications of, 260
 Voting fixes residence, 280
 Voting places: too few in number, 324
 Voting precincts, power to change, 284
 Wages, 446
 Women, 272
 Elector, 447
 Elements, 447

Eleemosynary, 447
 Eligible, 447
 Elopement, 447
 Else, 448
 Elsewhere, 448
 Emancipation, 448
 Embargo, 449
 Ambassador, 449
 Embezzlement, 450
   Agents collecting, 475
   Agent, what constitutes embezzlement by; intent; possession of property, Agents, who are, 471 [473
   Agents working on commission, 474
   Application of proceeds: averment as to directions for indictment, 498*k*
   Assignee in bankruptcy, 493
   Assistant overseer, 498*a*
   Attorneys, 481
   Bailee, 480
   Bailliff of county court, 498*a*
   Bailment, indictment in cases of, 498*b*
   Bank clerk and cashier, 484
   Bank officers, 483
   Banks, private and national, 483
   Bill of particulars, 498*r*
   Books of account in evidence, 498*f*
   Burden of proof, 498*s*
   Cashier or teller of national bank, 486
   Charge to jury, 498*s*
   City clerk, 490
   Clerks and servants of public officers, 492
   Clerks and servants; what constitutes embezzlement by, 465
   Clerks and servants, who are, 461
   Clerks of joint-stock companies, 498
   Coin or money, description of, in indictment, 498*g*
   Collector of poor rates, 498*a*
   Comptroller, 491
   Confessions, admissions, and statements made by accused, 499
   Constables, 493
   Conviction of embezzlement under indictment for theft, 506
   Counts in indictment: joinder, 498*i*
   County auditor, 489
   County officers, 489
   County treasurer, 489
   Credibility of witnesses, 505
   Custom, evidence of, 502
   Days stated, 501
   Declarations of owner of property, 500
   De facto officers, 488
   Defendant's financial condition, evidence of, 503
   Defences, 498*g*
   Definition, 451 [502
   Demand and refusal, evidence as to, Demand, averment as to, in indictment, 490 [ment, 496
   Deputy sheriff, 490
   Description, nature, and value of property in indictment, 498*e*

Embezzlement—Continued.
   Directors, members, and officers of corporations, 477
   Directors of national banks, 486
   Embezzlement and larceny, joinder of, in indictment, 498*j*
   Employer's money, failure to account for, false entries, etc., 468
   Employment by other masters, 465
   Evidence, 498*s*
   Evidence, documentary, 498*f*
   Evidence: competency and relevancy, Evidence: sufficiency, 504 [503
   Evidence to show intent, 501
   Evidence to show obtaining of money and application of proceeds, 502
   Experts, 505
   Failure of public officers to account, averment as to, in indictment, 498*m*
   Guardian, 483
   Indictment, 495 [496
   Indictment: averment as to demand, Indictment: averment as to directions or application of proceeds, 498*k*
   Indictment: averment as to failure of officers to account, 498*m* [496
   Intent: averment of, in indictment, Indictment: averment as to manner of acquisition of office, 498*l*
   Indictment: averment as to official capacity of public officers, 498*k*
   Indictment: averment as to ownership, 498*d*
   Indictment: averment as to ownership of money, 498*l* [498*k*
   Indictment: averment as to time, Indictment: averment as to whose service, 497
   Indictment: averment in case of embezzlement of several articles, 497
   Indictment: averment of intent, 496
   Indictment: averment of value or amount, 498*k*
   Indictment: averments necessary in embezzlement from national bank, 498*k*
   Indictment: conviction of embezzlement under indictment for theft, 506
   Indictment: description, nature, and value of property, 498*e*
   Indictment: description of coin or money, character of funds, etc., 498*g*
   Indictment: embezzlement from mails; averments, 498*m*
   Indictment in cases of bailment, 498*b*
   Indictment in case of officers of societies, 498*a*
   Indictment in language of statute negating exceptions, 496
   Indictment: joinder of counts, 498*i*
   Indictment: joinder of embezzlement and larceny, 498*j*
   Indictment: relation of master and servant; principal and agent, 497

Embezzlement—Continued.

Indictment : sufficiency and certainty, 495
 Indictment : when time must be found ; Statute of Limitations, 498*i* Infamous crime, embezzlement is not, Intent, 455 [453]
 Jurisdiction, 498*p*
 Justices of the peace, 493
 Larceny, embezzlement as distinguished from, 455
 Mails, averments in indictment for embezzlement from, 498*m*
 Mail carriers and riders, 495
 Mails, embezzlement from, 493
 Mails, embezzlement of, by individuals, 495
 Master and servant, averment of relation of, in indictment, 497
 Municipal officers, 490
 National banks, 485
 National banks, averments necessary in indictment for embezzlement from, 498*k*
 Occasional employment, 463
 Officers of societies, 498*a* [498*d*]
 Ownership : averment as to indictment, Ownership of money, averment as to, in indictment, 498*l*
 Parol evidence, 499
 Partners, 479
 Payment on commission : duty not compulsory, 464
 Pleas in bar, 498*g*
 Possession or custody of goods by clerks or servants, 466
 Postal clerks, 495
 Practice, 498*r*
 President of national bank, 485
 Presumptions, 498*s*
 Principal and agent, averment of relation of, in indictment, 497
 Private bankers and managers, 484
 Proof of service, 500
 Property and money sold, kept, or received contrary to statute or illegally, Public administrator, 493 [460]
 Public officers, 487
 Public officers : averment in indictment as to official capacity, 498*k*
 Public officers : averment in indictment as to manner of acquisition of office, 498*l*
 Public officers : persons aiding or abetting an embezzlement, 492
 Punishment, 507
 Railroad and corporation agents, 476
 Receipts in evidence, 498*t*
 School treasurer, 490
 Servant of corporations, 478
 Servant of joint committee, 498
 Similar acts, 501
 State, county, and municipal officers, 488

6 C. of L.—58

Embezzlement—Continued.

State treasurer, 489
 Statute of Limitations, 498*i*
 Stockholders, 476
 Tax collector, 491
 Time, averment as to, in indictment, 498*k*
 Time, evidence of, 501
 Time, when, must be found; Statute of Limitations, 498*i*
 Town treasurer, 490
 Township trustees, 490
 Transcripts from public officers in evidence, 498*t*
 Treasurer to guardian, 498*a* Trial, 498*r*
 Trustees, 482
 Two crimes, indictment charging, 498
 United States officers, 487
 Value, evidence of, 503
 Value immaterial, 460
 Value br amount, averment of, in indictment, 498*k*
 Variance, 506
 Venue, 498*o*
 Venue, proof of, 498*s*
 Verdict, 506
 What constitutes, 453
 What may be embezzled, 458
 Witnesses, 505
 Written statements in evidence, 498*l*
 Emblements, 507
 Embracery, 507
 Attempt to commit, 508
 Compensation to juror, 508
 Definition, 507
 Solicitation by juror, 507
 Who may be guilty of the offence, 508
 Emigrant, 509
 Emigration, 509
 Eminent domain, 509
 Abandonment of proceedings, 634
 Abandonment of public use, 603
 Access, injury to, 550
 Action at law to protect and enforce a right, 591
 Actual payment as prerequisite to entry, 585
 Additional burden, imposition of, 552
 Appeal and review, 627
 Appeal; certiorari, 631
 Appeal; entry on land pending, 629.
 Appeal, judgment on, 631
 Appeal, notice of, 629
 Appeal : practice, 630
 Appeal, what is considered an, 630
 Appeal : when appeal lies, 627
 Appeal : who may appeal, 628
 Appropriation, extent of, 540
 Arbitration, 634
 Award : conclusiveness and effect, 626
 Award : exceptions and confirmation, 625
 Award : form and requisites, 624

Eminent domain—Continued.

Benefits, 581
 Burden of proof, 622
 Canals, 525
 Cemeteries, 528
 Certiorari, 631
 Change of grade, 548
 Change of use, right to, 529
 Commencement of proceedings, 607
 Commissioner, assessment of damages by, 613
 Conditions of exercise, 515
 Corporate property and franchises: power to authorize appropriation, 535
 Corporate property: uses for which it may be taken, 537
 Consequential damages, 597
 Contracts, 601
 Costs, 632
 Crops, injury to, 550
 Damages, 563
 Damages: benefits, 581
 Damages: consequential damages, 597
 Damages: depreciation for specific purpose, 573
 Damages: depreciation in market value, 571
 Damages: effect of payment, 591
 Damages: exemplary damages for trespass, 581
 Damages: how compensation is to be made, 5
 Damages: improvements made before assessment, 567
 Damages: inconvenience in working minerals, 577
 Damages: injuries affecting whole tract, 587 [tract, 574
 Damages, lien for, 596
 Damages: market value, 567
 Damages, measure of, where entire tract is taken, 567 [563
 Damages: necessity of provision for, 579
 Damages: payments, 585 [579
 Damages: property abutting on street, 578
 Damages: property injuriously affected, 578
 Damages: railroad crossing, 580
 Damages: running powers over another railroad, 579
 Damages: single tract, what is considered a, 577
 Damages: time of computation, 564
 Damages: to whom payable, 587
 Damages: uses to which land is adapted, 569
 Damages, waiver of, 597 [571
 Damages, where part of tract is taken, 590
 Damages, who is liable for, 590
 Description of premises, 610
 Definition, 511 [523
 Delegated power: when exhausted, 517
 Delegation of power, 517

Eminent domain—Continued.

Delegation of power: conditions precedent, 521
 Delegation of power, method of, 521
 Drains, 526
 Dwelling-house, exemption of, 542
 Easement acquired, rights when, 600
 Easement, interference with, 544
 Ejectment, 593
 Entry for permanent occupation, 543
 Estate acquired, 599
 Evidence: burden of proof, 622
 Evidence: competency, 618
 Evidence: declarations and admissions, 620
 Evidence: documentary evidence, 622
 Evidence: opinion evidence, 620
 Evidence: sales of other land, 619
 Exemplary damages for trespass, 581
 Exemptions, 542 [struction, 551
 Exposure of property during construction, 600
 Fee acquired, rights when, 600
 Fee retained, 598
 Federal constitution, provision of, 517
 Federal government, exercise of eminent domain by, 514
 Fences, injury to, 551
 Fences, recovery for construction of, rendered necessary, 551
 Ferries, 525
 Fire, danger of, 550
 Franchises, transfer of, 603
 Gas-works, 526
 Gas-works, use of highway for, 557
 Good-will of business, 546
 Governmental and police powers, exercise of, 563
 Grant of power, construction of, 522
 Heir or administrator, payment of damages to, 590
 Horse railways in streets, 555 [552
 Improper construction, injuries from, 567
 Improvements made before assessment, damages for, 567
 Incidental injuries, 544
 Individuals, delegation of power to, 521
 Injunction, 592 [521
 Injuries affecting whole tract, 574
 Injuries to business, 546
 Injurious affecting property, 544
 Injury to access, 550
 Interest, 627
 Interest on award, 584
 Interruption of use, 544
 Irrigation, 527
 In whom right is vested, 512
 Joinder of claim, 611 [672
 Judgment: conclusiveness and effect, 627
 Judgment: entry and requisites, 627
 Jurisdiction, 606
 Jury, 613 [panelling, 614
 Jury: selection, qualification, and empanelment, 613
 Jury trial, right to, 613
 Jury, view by, 615

Eminent domain—Continued.

Land and appurtenances, appropriation of, 531
 Lateral support, removal of, 552
 Legislature cannot divest State of its power of eminent domain, 513 Legislature sole judge, 516
 Lessees, rights of, 543
 Lessee, right of, to damages, 581
 License to enter, effect of, 596
 Lien for damages, 596
 Life tenants and remainderman, payment of damages to, 590
 Life tenants, right of, to damages, 581
 Limitations, 633
 Limited estates, 581
 Logging booms, 527
 Mandatory proceedings, 595
 Manner of exercise, 511
 Market value, 567
 Market value, depreciation in, 571
 Married women, damages for right of dower, 589
 Materials for construction, appropriation of, 531
 Military purposes, seizure for, 544
 Milldams and water-power privileges, appropriation of, 539
 Mills, 526 [working, 577
 Minerals, damages for inconvenience in Minerals, retaining title to and right to work, 599 [532
 Mines and minerals, appropriation of, Mining, 528
 Mortgagee, payment of damages to, 589
 Municipal corporations, delegation of Natural gas, 526 [power to, 518
 Nature and quality of interest which may be appropriated, 530
 Nature of power, 511
 Nature of the right, 512
 Navigable waters, 538
 Necessity, 540
 Noise and vibration, 547
 Non-navigable waters, 538
 Notice, necessity for, 607
 Notice of appeal, 629
 Notice: requisites and sufficiency, 608
 Obstruction of light, 547 [520
 Other bodies, delegation of power to, Owner in fee, payment of damages to, Part of tract, 541 [587
 Parties, 608
 Partners: payment of damages, 589
 Payment as prerequisite to entry, 585
 Payment of damages into court, 590
 Petition or complaint: necessary averments, 609
 Pleading, 609
 Pleading: amendment, 612
 Pleading: answer, 611
 Pleading: cross-petition, 611
 Practice 612

Eminent domain—Continued.

Premises not taken, 545
 Prerequisite to entry of judgment, 587
 Prerequisite: waiver of prepayment, Private industries, 528 [587
 Private property: appropriation of land and appurtenances, 531
 Private roads, 529
 Procedure, 604 [533
 Property already devoted to public use, Property injuriously affected, 578
 Protection and enforcement of right to compensation, 591
 Public institutions, 533
 Public lands, appropriation of, 532
 Public necessity, destruction from, 563
 Public property, appropriation of, 532
 Public uses, 524
 Public uses: general requisites, 524
 Railroad companies; delegation of power to, 518
 Railroad crossings, 537
 Railroad crossing, damages for, 580
 Railroad crossing highway, 554
 Railroads, depots, branches, etc., 524
 Residue of tract, injury to, 547
 Reversion in cesser of public use, 598
 Riparian rights, 538
 Rival franchises: taking property of grantee, 545
 Running powers over another railroad, damages for, 579
 Sales of other lands, 619
 Security of payment as prerequisite to entry, 586
 Selection of land and institution of proceedings not a taking, 543
 Sewers, 526
 Single tract, what is considered a, 577
 Smoke and dust, 546
 Specific purpose, depreciation of value of property for, 573
 State, authority of, 512
 Statutory limit of appropriation, 541
 Statutory remedy, exclusiveness of, 604
 Street, construction of horse-railroads in, 555
 Streets and highways, appropriation of, 534
 Streets, construction of railroads in, 552
 Streets: construction of railroads where fee is in abutting owner, 552
 Streets: construction of railroads where fee is vested in public, 553
 Street, damages to property abutting on, 579
 Streets, erection of telegraph-poles in, 556
 Streets: other instances of use, 557
 Streets, parks, and highways, 524
 Street: use of highway for gas-works, Surface waters, 539 [557
 Surface waters, obstruction of, 559

Eminent domain—Continued.

Surveys, temporary user for, 562
 Taking or injuriously affecting property, what amounts to, 542
 Taking part of tract, 571
 Taxation, 562
 Telegraph and telephone lines, 525
 Telegraph-poles: erection in streets.
 Temporary user, 562 [556
 Temporary user to aid construction, 562
 Tenants and lessees, payment of damages to, 590
 Tenants in common: payment of damages, 589
 Title and rights acquired, 599
 Title and rights retained, 598
 Transfer of franchises, 603
 Transferring property of one citizen to another, 515
 Trespass, action of, 594
 User of another's property, 557
 Uses to which land is adapted, 969
 Vendor and vendee: payment of damages, 622 [ages, 588
 Verdict: requisites and validity, 622
 Verdict, setting aside, 623
 View and assessment by jury, 569
 View by jury, 615
 Viewers and commissioners: appointment and qualification, 616
 Viewers and commissioners: powers and duties, 617
 Waiver of damages, 597
 Waiver of prepayment, 587
 Waters and water-courses, rights in, 538
 Waters, appropriation of, 557 [538
 Water-course, obstruction of, 559
 Waters, destruction of, 558
 Waters, obstruction of, 559
 Water-works, 526
 Wells and springs, destruction of, 562
 Wharves, appropriation of, 540
 Wharves, canals, and ferries, 525
 What may be appropriated, 530
 Emolument, 635
 Empanel, 635
 Employ, 635
 Employ, or Employment, 637
 Employé, 637
 Empower, 638
 Empty, 638
 Enagenacion, 638
 Enclosed lands, 638
 Enclosure, 638
 Encourage, 639
 Encroachment, 639
 Encumbrance, 639
 End, 639
 Endow, 639
 Endowment, 639
 Enemy, 640
 Enfeoff, 641
 Enforce, 641

Engage, 642
 Engagement, 643
 Engine, 643
 Engineering purposes, 645
 English, 645
 Engraving, 645
 Enhanced, 645
 Enjoin, 646
 Enjoyment, 646
 Enlarge, 647
 Enlist, 648
 Enter, 648
 Entertainment, 650
 Entice, 650
 Entire, 651
 Entitle, 651
 Entry, 648
 Entry, writ of, 651
     Definition, 651
     Degree, 651
     General principles, 652
     Improvements, 655
     Mesne profits and damages, 654
     Mortgages, 654
     Pleading, 653
 Enumerate, 655
 Envoy, 655
 Equal, 655
 Equipment, 655
 Equitable assignments, 656
     Definition, 656
     Diligence in perfecting title, 662
     Equities of assignee, 662
     Notice by assignee, 661
     Remedy of assignees, 663
     Rights of assignees, 663
     What constitutes, 656
     What is assignable, 658
 Equitable conversion and reconversion, 664
     Effect of, 670 [664
     Effect of failure of the purposes, 671
     How it may arise, 665
     Manner of making reconversion, 674
     Reconversion, 672
     Reconversion by operation of law, 674
     Time of, 668
     What is necessary to constitute, 665
     Who may elect, and to what extent, 673
 Equitable mortgages, 675
     Absolute conveyance intended as a Definition, 675 [mortgage, 675
     Degree of proof required, 679
     Evidence, 677
     Grantor may redeem, 680
     Informal mortgages, 680
     Mortgage by deposit or title-deeds, 683
     Purchaser, rights of, 680
     Right of creditor to show, 676
     Statute of frauds, 678
     What is, 678
 Equity, 683
     Accident, 717
     Account, 720
     Actual fraud, 717

Equity—Continued.

Administration suit, 723
 Assignments, 716
 Between equal equities the law must prevail, 710
 Between equal equities time shall prevail, 709
 Bills quia timet, 723
 Boundaries, 722
 Cancellation of contracts, 720
 Constructive fraud, 717
 Constructive trusts, 715
 Contribution, 719
 Creditors' bills, 723
 Crime, 693
 Damages, 693
 Definition, 684
 Discovery, 723
 Division of, 714
 Dower, 722
 Election, 718
 Equality is equity, 707
 Equitable estoppel, 718
 Equitable liens, 719
 Equitable remedies, 719
 Equitable rights, 716
 Equitable titles, 715 [712
 Equity acts in personam and not in rem,
 Equity acts specifically, 713
 Equity aids the vigilant, not those who sleep on their rights, 710
 Equity follows law, 705
 Equity looks to the intent rather than to the form, 706
 Equity imputes the intention to fulfil an obligation, 712
 Equity regards that as done that ought to have been done, 705 Equity will not suffer right to be withestoppel, 718 [out a remedy, 712
 Exoneration, 719
 Express trusts, 715
 Fraud, 717
 Fraud affecting third party, 718
 He who comes into equity must do so with clean hands, 708
 He who seeks equity must do equity,
 Idiots, protection of, 723 [707
 Implied trusts, 715
 Infants, protection of, 723
 Injunction, 719
 Judgment at law, 694
 Jurisdiction of courts of, 692
 Land outside the jurisdiction of the court, 713
 Lunatics, protection of, 723
 Marshalling assets, 719
 Maxims in equity, 704
 Mistake, 717
 Mortgages, 716
Ne exeat, right of, 724
 Notice, 718
 Partition, 722
 Partnership bills, 723

Equity—Continued.

Receivers, 724
 Re-execution of contracts, 720
 Reformation of contracts, 720
 Rent, 722
 Rescission of contracts, 720
 Resulting trusts, 715
 Reversion and reconversion, 718
 Set-off, 719
 Specific performance, 719
 Subrogation, 719
 Torts, 693
 Trespass, 693
 Trust estates, 705
 Trustees, powers and duties of, 716
 Trusts, 715
 Trusts by married women, 716
 Trusts for charities, 716
 Equity pleadings, 724
 Alien plaintiff, 742
 Alien sovereign plaintiff, 742
 Amendment, 806
 Answer, 797
 Assignor and assignee, 752
 Attorney-general plaintiff, 742
 Bill for relief, 729
 Bill in equity, 727
 Bill in nature of bill of revival, 773
 Bill in the nature of a supplemental bill,
 Bill, not for relief, 730 [774
 Bill, not original, 730, 776
 Bill of discovery, 775
 Bill of review, 771
 Bill of revival, 779
 Bill to carry decree into execution, 773
 Bill to impeach a decree on ground of fraud, 773
 Bill to perpetuate testimony, 774
 Bill to suspend or avoid the execution
 Codes, 726 [of a decree, 773
 Corporations, 741
 Creditors, 736, 750
 Cross-bill, 769
 Definition, 727
 Demurrer, 781 [pleadings, 726
 Difference between legal and equitable Disclaimer, 804
 Exceptions, 805
 Foreclosure, 748
 Foreign corporation, 741
 Government: joinder, 744
 Incapacity to sue, 739
 Infants, 739
 Information, 730
 Joinder of plaintiffs, 742
 Legatees, 736, 752
 Married women, 740
 Nature and modes of defence, 781
 Original bill, 730
 Original bill not framed for relief, 774
 Original bills praying for relief, 765
 Pleas, 791
 Prize money, 737
 Replications, 804

Equity pleadings—Continued.
   Scandal and impertinence, 752
   Stockholders, 737
   Supplemental bill, 776
   Voluntary association, 737
 Equivalent, 808
 Erect, 808
 Erosion, 809
 Erroneous, 809
 Error, 810
 Error, writ of, 810
   Abatement, 825
   Assignment of errors, 825
   Bill of exceptions, 823
   Certiorari, 831
   Coram nobis, 810
   Criminal cases, 836
   Definition, 810, 812
   Diminution, 825
   Dismissal, 829
   Final decree of judgment, 843
   Final judgment, 813.
   From U. S. court to State court, 840
   Generally, 812
   Infancy, 818
   Joinder in error, 828
   Judgment, 832
   Marriage, 818
   Parties, 817
   Pleas in error, 828
   Record in error, 820
   Release in error, 828
   Remittitur, 835
   Restitution, 835
   Reversal, 833
   Revival, 825
   Scire facias, 819
   Statutory regulations, 835
   Supersedeas, 819
   Tax proceedings, 818
   U. S. courts, 837
   When it will lie, 813
 Escape, 844
   Actual escape, 844
   Aiding escape, 851
   Aiding escape, indictment for, 853f
   Appeal, waiver of, by escape, 853j
   Arrest of mesne process, 845
   Civil liability of custodian, 853h
   Consent of creditor, 853
   Constructive escape, 846
   Definition, 844
   Deputy or servant, responsibility of officer for, 853b
   Evidence, 853g
   Illegality of arrest or commitment, 852
   Indictment for attempting to escape
     853e
   Indictment for escaping, 853e
   Justification, 852
   Negligent escape, 848
   Order of discharge, 853
   Presumption of guilt arising from escape, 853j

Escape—Continued.
   Private individuals, responsibility of,
     853c
   Punishment, 853g
   Recapture, 853d
   Responsibility for escape, 853
   Responsibility of actual custodian, 853a
   Responsibility of custodian, 853a
   Suffering escape, indictment for, 853f
   Suit by sheriff against debtor, 853j
   Voluntary escape, 850
   What amounts to, 844
 Escheat, 854
   Conveyance of escheated lands, 856
   Definition, 854
   Distinction between escheat and forfeiture, 854
   How escheat is enforced, 856
   To whom property escheats, 855
   Waiver, 856
   What escheats, 855
 Escrow, 857
   Condition to be performed, 863
   Death or disability of one of the parties, 871
   Definition, 857
   Delivery to co-obligor, 859
   Delivery to grantee, 858
   Delivery to grantee's agent, 861
   Escrows and deeds presently, 863
   How created, 866
   Instrument to be delivered, 858
   Negotiable instruments, 861
   No title passes until conditions are performed, 867
   Party to whom delivery is made, 858
   Rights of innocent purchaser, 869
   Second delivery, 867
   Statute of frauds, 871
   When title passes, 870
 Especial privileges, 872
 Esplees, 872
 Esquire, 872
 Essential, 873
 Establish, 873
 Estates, 875
   Apportionment of encumbrances, 882
   Base or determinable fee, 878
   Contingent remainder, 899
   Coparcenary, 894
   Definition, 875
   Devise to a class, 899
   Emblements, 883
   Estate tail, 879
   Estates at law, and estates from year to year, 887
   Estates at sufferance, 890
   Estates by elegit, 895
   Estates by entirety, 894
   Estates for life, 880
   Estates for years, 884
   Estates from year to year, 888
   Estates in expectancy, 896

Estates—Continued.

Estates in possession, 896
 Estates in remainder, 897
 Estates in reversion, 896
 Estates in severalty, 894
 Estates of freehold, 895
 Estates of inheritance, 895
 Estates on condition, 900
 Estates pur autre vic, 880
 Estovers, 883
 Fee simple, 876
 Joint estates, 891
 Joint tenancy, 891
 Personalty, life estate in, 883
 Restraints on alienation, 877
 Restraint on marriage, 902
 Rule in Shelley's case, 878
 Taxes under life estates, 882
 Tenacy in common, 892
 Vested remainder, 898

Maxims. See Equity, 683

Words and phrases:

Actually engaged, 642
 Any election, 445
 Articles and effects, 194
 Baggage and effects, 193
 Become due, 38
 Beneficial enjoyment, 647
 By the drink, 31
 Claims and effects, 187
 Down, 1
 Dowry, 1
 Draft, 1
 Dram, 29
 Dramatic, 29
 Dramatic composition, 29
 Dramshop, 29
 Dramshop keeper, 29
 Draw, 30
 Dray, 30
 Dredge, 30
 Driftwood, 30
 Drink, 30
 Drive, 31
 Drive : conduct and manage, 31
 Drove, 31
 Drover, 31
 Drugs, 33
 Drummers, 34
 Drunkard, 34
 Drunkenness, 35
 Dry goods, 35
 Due care, 40
 Due cause, 40
 Due course, 40
 Due course of law, 40
 Due diligence, 41
 Due notice, 42
 Due, owing, 40
 Due, payable, 40
 Due process of law, 43
 Due return of process, 42
 Due rights, 42
 Due security, 42

Words and Phrases—Continued.

Due west, 42
 Duelling, 53
 Duly, 54
 Duly arrest, 55
 Duly convene, 55
 Duly direct, 55
 Duly done, 55
 Duly qualified, 55
 Duly recorded, 55
 Duly sworn, 55
 Dumb, 55
 Dunce, 55
 Dunnage, 55
 Duplicate, 56
 Duration, 56
 During, 99
 During pleasure, 99
 During term time, 100
 During the trial, 99
 During the voyage, 100
 During their lives, 99
 During widowhood, 100
 Dust, 100
 Duty, 100
 Dwell, 100
 Dwelling, 101
 Dwelling-house, 101
 Dwelling-place, 104
 Dye, 105
 Dying, 105
 Each, 136
 Each and every part of the charge, 137
 Each case, 136
 Each entry, 137
 Each of them, 136
 Ear, 137
 Early, 137
 Early spring, 137
 Earnest, 137
 Earnings, 138
 Earth, 138
 East, 153
 Easterly, 153
 Eating-house, 153
 Eavesdropping, 153
 Ecclesiastical, 154
 Eclectic, 154
 Ecumenical, 154
 Edition, 155
 Editor, 155
 Educate, 156
 Effect, 169
 Effect of evidence, 173
 Effects, 174
 Effects, stock, books and book debts,
     194
 Effectual, 195
 Either, 195
 Ejidos, 246
 Elder, 246
 Eldest, 246
 Eldest male or lineal descendant, 246
 Elect, 246

